This Town... That World

AMBITIOUS GUYS

Stop me, if you can, if you've heard the one about the fellow on a diet. Trying to win the Nobeley Prize for 1953.

Then, too, there was that other citizen who accepted bets and went about giving red-hot tips that really paid off. He was trying to make the Bookie of the Month Club.

PRETTY PLEASE!

Television is a fer piece from being perfect yet. For one thing, they've never figured out what the lone performer there before the camera should do when the timing is off a bit, when the last word has been said and there's nothing more to do but sit and take it while the camera remains bearing down pitilessly on the old mug.

It's downright pitiful to watch some of the boys and girls face up to it while sitting there with nothing to do, not a word to say. Most of them try to smile and outstare the camera. Most of the smiles turn into sickly grins. All look as if they'd like to cut and run for cover. I get that feeling of edging toward the door, just watching them.

There's John Cameron Swayze, for instance. Now this Mr. Swayze strikes me as a smooth article with more than the usual amount of aplomb, savoir faire, or whatever it takes. He runs through his news broadcast like the pro he is, and if there's a better on T-V we haven't seen him on this one channel to which we are restricted here.

But, the other night, he got caught by the camera for a second or two—it seemed like minutes—with naught to do but sit and take it. Apparently there's a rule against a guy turning his back on the contraction and busying himself with packing or trying a shoestring or business such as that. So what does the Swayze do but break into a slow smile?

And there went aplomb, poise, polish and all down the drain. The smile got sick on the first lap, stumbled and wound up a weak, sheepish grin. He didn't have even a Murad to light up.

For the benefit of the performers and the audience we explore the networks to cut the stuff. When it's over, just cut, please. Turn the camera elsewhere, stop the darned thing, play music or whisk the subject out of doors—anything, please, but these moments of anguish which overpower me with a desire to crawl under the bed.

SUCH IS THE RECORD

The National Geographic Society has come up with a bit of information which gives me a chance to put in a plug for fishing ("plug" get it?). This tells of the Pilgrim Fathers applying to King James I for permission to establish a beachhead at Plymouth Rock.

"What profits may arise in the parts to which they intend to go?" inquired His Nibs.

"Fishing," was the reply.

"So God have my soul, 'tis an honest trade! 'Twas the Apostles' own calling," commented the good James.

To which we add a devout "Amen." Having done so, we must add here that the poor blokes sailed off, even as have you and I, and forgot their fishing tackle!

BOARD HIRES 329 TEACHERS IN MEET HERE

Emergency Teachers To Be named Later; New Rules Adopted

Two hundred twenty-five consolidated teachers and 104 teachers for the rural schools were named Tuesday by the Floyd County Board of Education.

In the larger schools of the county there was no major change except at Allen where Ted Akers became principal, last year's head of the school, Lewis Campbell, going to McDowell as principal of the grades there. Only certified teachers were employed. Emergency teachers will be employed later and only after they receive their emergency permits, County Superintendent Virgil O. Turner said. Certificates of some teachers who were employed Tuesday will expire this summer unless the teachers do work to reinstate or extend them, and all teachers were employed on the condition that they have bonafide certification by the opening of school.

The rural schools will begin their terms, July 20.

The board adopted a strong policy on the matter of substitute teachers. No substitute will be permitted, Superintendent Turner said, to go into a classroom for one day or a part of a day without a certificate. Hereafter, if a teacher is sick or for other reason unable to be in school, she sought out the best substitute available. If this substitute work did not exceed four days, the board paid the regular teacher who in turn paid the substitute. Hereafter, the board will itself pay the substitute.

Mr. Turner said the teacher situation in this county of this date is much better than that of last year. There is not, for instance, an emergency teacher on Right Beaver Creek, and teachers for all schools of that section have been employed. Elsewhere in the county, fewer emergencies appear to be needed, and most of these for the more isolated schools.

In addition to hiring teachers, the board named summer custodians for eight of the larger schools, these at half-pay or less, and re-employed W. J. May as bond agent for the board. It also filed application to continue in the school system the vocational agriculture, home economics and on-the-farm training for veterans which is supported in part by federal funds.

A long-standing claim of a Bull Creek church against the board for $8.45 growing out of destruction of a church-owned water cooler was settled with payment of the account.

Teachers hired are:
Consolidated Teachers
Auxier high school—Boone Hall, principal, Jack Frost Wells, coach, Darwin Hunt, Jewell C. Castle, Aileen Fitch.

STATE POLICE ARREST TWO

Beer Is Found at Inn Near Lake, Saturday; Others Booked at Jail

State police confiscated eight cases of beer at the Dewey Lake Inn Saturday afternoon and arrested Elson Kendrick, owner of the Inn, and Chester Osborne, a taxi-cab driver.

Finding of the beer followed arrest of Osborne who authorities said, was leaving the restaurant with a bag containing beer. The officers, Patrolmen Snapp and Mullins, told County Judge Henry Stumbo they then asked Kendrick if he would agree for them to search the premises, and permission to do so was granted. No whiskey was found.

Both men were placed under bond for their appearance in county court, June 22.

Booked at the county jail within the week on more serious offenses were:
Tobie Ousley, drunk driving and possessing whiskey, arrested by Deputy Sheriff Frank Crum and Herschel Lester; Harrison Gibson, drunk driving; Junior Newsom, grand larceny, accused of the theft of an auto in Franklin county, arrested on Middle Creek, near here, by Deputy Sheriffs Frank Crum and Ransome Marcum; Roy L. Bates, reckless driving, arrested by Deputy Sheriff Crum and Constable George Hall, Jr.; Isom Messer, child desertion, booked by Deputy Sheriff Crum; Ollie Clay, jailed by Crum for Lawrence county where he was accused of drunk driving.

Treasury Department Citation Honors Club For Bond Sales Work

John U. Courtney, Kentucky director of U. S. Savings Bonds sales, last week presented to the Betsy Layne Woman's Club a special citation issued by the U. S. Treasury Department in recognition of the club's being one of three which finished in second place in the recent Woman's Club Savings Bonds campaign in the state.

Announcement of the award was made here by Adrian Collins, Floyd county Savings Bonds chairman. In a letter to Mrs. Beecher Hardwick, president of the Betsy Layne group, Mr. Courtney expressed his appreciation to the entire membership of the club for the work done.

2 FLOYD MEN DIE IN WRECK

Two Others Injured Monday on Way Home From Hospital Visit

Two men are dead and two women are in a Virgie hospital as a result of a car-truck collision which occurred Monday on their return trip to Weebury after they had visited a sick relative in the hospital.

The dead are Henry Fields, 49, and John O. Ballard, 42, both of Weebury. The car occupied by the Floyd countians collided on Indian Creek late Monday afternoon with a truck driven by Raymond Carey, of Wales. Carey was uninjured, Helen Fields and Marie Ford, passengers in the auto, suffered severe head and facial injuries. The condition of the former is considered critical. Cause of the wreck was not given.

Fields and Ballard were employees of Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates at Weebury. The former was a native of Alabama and Ballard was from Harlan county. Fields' skull was fractured and Ballard died from chest injuries. Both died instantly.

The body of Ballard was removed to Cumberland, Ky., and funeral rites were conducted there today (Thursday).

Father of Ivan Lovely, Victim of Truck Wreck, Sues Garrett Residents

Alto Lovely, of Hueysville, as administrator of the estate of his son, the late Ivan Lovely, last week filed suit in the Floyd circuit court against Dalton Ray Conley and his father, Crit Conley, Garrett merchant, asking $50,000 damages.

Seventeen-year-old Ivan Lovely met death last January near Bosco when the truck driven by Dalton Ray Conley left the highway and plunged over an embankment. The suit, which was prepared by Burnis Martin, alleges that the truck was owned by Crit Conley and maintained for the use and benefit of members of his family and that the younger Conley was operating it at the time of the tragedy with the consent and permission of his father.

The carelessness and negligence of the driver is blamed in the petition for the wreck. The plaintiff claims the elder Conley is liable for damages under the "family purpose doctrine" and because he knowingly permitted the son to drive the truck.

In addition to damages, the suit seeks to recover $1,205 burial expenses.

BOARD MEET SET JUNE 15

Purgation Board To View Challenges If Any Filed To New Vote-Registrants

The deadline for registration of voters was midnight Tuesday, and the Floyd County Purgation and Registration Board announced the following day that it will meet June 15 to consider challenges, if any, of any voters registered.

The board this year recommended the purging of approximately 5,000 names from the voting lists, and challenges submitted to it could result in the purging of even more names, it was said.

The law, it was pointed out, provides:

DIVISION PLAN AT LAKE TOLD

Burke Says Development Of Waterfowl Program To Begin Immediately

The Kentucky Division of Fish & Wildlife Resources will begin Dewey Lake waterfowl development work at once, it was announced here Wednesday by E. R. Burke, Seventh district conservation director.

The work is made possible mainly through Pittman-Robinson federal funds which the state division supplements. The decision to develop the area for the promotion of waterfowl, both permanent and migratory, was reached after the reservoir area had been inspected by Don Strode, federal coordinator for Pittman-Robinson funds, Frank Dibble, director of the migratory waterfowl program for the state division, and Terry McGowan, district biologist, Division of Fish & Wildlife Resources.

Present plans, Mr. Burke said, call for eight acres of aquatic plantings in shallow water of the lake and the planting of 25 acres along the shoreline to buckwheat and other food plants. Seed for the plantings is expected here within a week. Locally owned tractors will be hired to prepare the land for planting.

The program is expected to be expanded next fall. The lake area has been declared one of the best in the

Successor to Ransdell Awaits June 16 Meeting

The work of the Floyd County Health Department will be continued under the direction of a successor to the late Dr. Marvin Ransdell, but it is almost certain the county will lose in the transition.

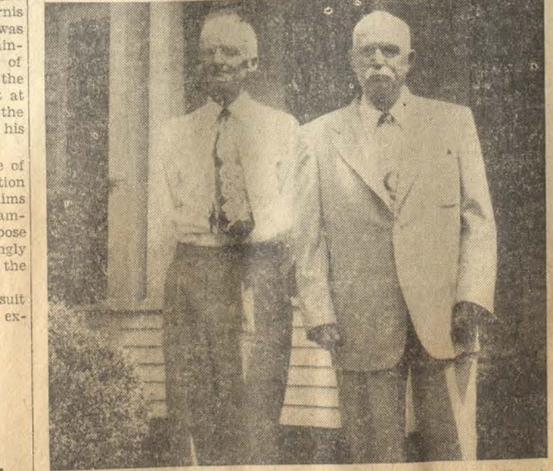

This view was expressed here this week on two premises:

1. It may be impossible to find a medical director trained in public health work to fill the vacancy.

2. And, even if one is found, services such as pre-natal and baby clinics may no longer be made available, for the reason that Dr. Ransdell began this clinic work at a time when the department was not so fully developed and had continued the clinics "on his own," despite the fact such service is not required of a health department.

Doc Stephens, who had been absent from Floyd county 82 years with the exception of two brief visits, wanted to show his son farmers plowing and cultivating the steep slopes of the Kentucky hills. The son, Floyd, knew nothing of mountain agriculture since he was born, reared and lived 54 years on the western plains. Doc, who will be 91 next January, anticipated with pleasure the pointing out of this strange agriculture.

"But when we got here we didn't find people plowing the hills and planting it in corn like they used to do," he said.

MASONIC HOME GRAD FROM PRESTONSBURG WINS COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIP AND HONORS FOR SCHOLASTIC WORK; SIKKLE, SPEAKER

Laura Branham, daughter of Mrs. Mabel Branham, Prestonsburg, and the late Ballard Branham, left the Masonic Home, Louisville, last week with regret.

She had spent 15 of her 18 years there. At Masonic Home high school she had won practically every honor within reach, and nowhere would she ever have better friends. And she was leaving behind her 15-year-old sister, Carolyn.

Solutorian of her class, she received the Hiram Bassett Memorial medal as the girl who had the best conduct and scholarship records during the time she lived at the Home, a college scholarship given by the Masonic Scholarship Fund, the English, history and science medals, cash awards for high school scholarship and for cooperation in the fire brigade, and a $50 award for highest scholarship over the four-year high school period. She also received the character development award.

Adding to the Floyd county flavor given the graduation exercises was the appearance as commencement speaker, last Friday evening, of Dr. R. M. Sirkle, of Prestonsburg, and Martin, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Kentucky, F. & A. M. He urged the graduates to discard excess baggage, such as envy and greed, while traveling the road of life and to make the journey with faith, hope and good cheer.

A brother and three sisters of Miss Branham received their high school diplomas from Masonic Home. Her sister, Carolyn, was awarded a $15 cash prize for the highest average in each grade and excellent conduct in all departments.

Attending the graduation exercises were Laura's mother and her sisters, Mrs. James Clark, Jr., of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Paul Simmons, Huntington, W. Va., also Mr. Simmons and son.

Now it's official. The deadline for filing for county office or for a district of a county, except for city or school board offices, is midnight June 17.

This date applies to Democratic and Republican candidates. Independent candidates must file by midnight June 16. The deadline for Republican, Democratic and independent candidates seeking offices which represent districts of two or more counties is midnight June 6, Saturday of this week.

The Court of Appeals itself fixed the deadline date for the filing of candidates on the regular party tickets for county office or for offices representing district divisions of a county. This came on a Jefferson county test case, the high court upholding Judge Lawrence Grauman who set the deadline at midnight, June 17.

The Louisville suit wanted to know whether the deadline would be midnight June 16 or midnight June 17 for the primary candidates filing for offices representing one county or less. Grauman had held June 17 is the deadline.

The law reads that such nominating papers must be filed with the County Clerk "at least 45 days before the primary election."

The Appellate Court opinion said "a proper construction of this language seems to the court to mean that 45 full days must be counted (including August 1, 1953, the date of the primary), and after 45 full days have been counted then up to midnight of the 48th day nomination papers may be filed but that any nomination papers filed after the beginning of the 48th day are filed too late."

Judge James W. Cammack wrote the opinion.

Repair of the dock was nearing completion Monday afternoon.

Little other damage was reported in this county. Prestonsburg had a stiff wind but no rain. The usual Sunday afternoon crowd of boaters and fishermen were on the lake, but the twister missed them.

Awarded Fellowship

Gordon Moore, former supervisor of the Floyd county school system, has been awarded a fellowship to teach in the summer session of the University of Florida, Gainesville, Florida.

A former high school coach and principal, Moore earned A.B. and M.A. Degrees from Morehead State College and has done graduate work at Ohio State University and the University of Maine.

FREAK STORM HITS IN AREA

Wind Damages Dock At Lake; Structures Damaged in Johnson

A freak storm hit Floyd and Johnson counties mid-afternoon last Sunday with near-tornado violence, wrecking a part of the dock installations at Dewey Lake and jostling at least one home from its foundations.

The storm apparently hit the Brandy Keg cove of Dewey Lake harder than elsewhere in the reservoir area, and it tore away an upper section of the dock, overturned a locker, scattered boats moored there and tore out the entire dock wiring system. A blinding rain accompanied the wind, and three boats and their occupants had made their way to the section of the dock which was ripped free. These accompanied the dock section as it was blown up the cove toward its headwaters.

Repair of the dock was nearing completion Monday afternoon.

Little other damage was reported in this county. Prestonsburg had a stiff wind but no rain. The usual Sunday afternoon crowd of boaters and fishermen were on the lake, but the twister missed them.

At Camel Coal Gap in Johnson county, a five-room home was blown from its foundation, trees were uprooted and two garages were wrecked. The home was occupied but nobody was hurt.

WOMAN SAYS SPOUSE TOLD HE SLEW GIRL

Vaughan and Osborne Deny Guilt in Murder Of Girl 4 Years Ago

Almost four years after the brutal murder here of Muriel Baldrige, Prestonsburg high school girl, the case was revived last week with the arrest of two men.

And after the examining trial Wednesday morning of the two, Clyde Vaughan, 33, Prestonsburg, and Dewey Osborne, 34, of Paintsville, formerly of this place, the case remained an unsolved murder mystery, one of the most baffling in the annals of Kentucky crime. The men were released.

At the examining trial it was the statement of Ellen Foley, former wife of Clyde Vaughan, quoting Vaughan as having told her he struck the girl with a hammer and left Osborne with her on the bridge, against the statement of the two men, both of whom denied any knowledge of the murder.

For the first time in the history of Floyd courts a trial proceeding was radio-cast. The circuit courtroom was packed for the hearing. The broadcast was carried over station WPRF, Prestonsburg.

This latest of a series of unsuccessful probes into the maze of mystery surrounding the slaying of Miss Baldrige, the night of June 27, 1949 began last Wednesday, Policeman Amos Gray, of Prestonsburg, said when Mrs. Vaughan's sister asked him to come to the home of her father, Lemuel Foley. There Miss Foley made a statement quoting her former husband as having told her of the crime and implicating Osborne.

At the officer's request, Commonwealth's Detective Alex L. Davidson entered the case Thursday. After hearing Miss Foley's statement, he typed it, then read it to her and she signed it under oath.

Osborne was arrested Saturday night on a warrant sworn out by Davidson. He was found on Henclip, near Paintsville. Vaughan was jailed the following day.

At the examining trial the woman who has been twice married to Vaughan, and whose divorce petition is now in court here near a final decree, repeated the statements made in writing. A letter which she said she had showed Policeman Gray two years ago is missing, she said. This letter, both she and Gray said, was written while Vaughan was in Walter Reed hospital, Washington, D. C., and in it he allegedly mentioned the Baldrige case, saying it was preying on his mind and he asked her to come see him; that he would tell her about the killing. Gray said the woman showed him the letter at the fire station here but that he saw no signature.

Both Vaughan and Osborne testified they were not together on the night of the killing, although both were at the carnival visiting Prestonsburg at the time. Vaughan said

BREATHITT IS SECOND COUNTY TO PLEDGE BOOKMOBILE HELP

Breathitt county has become the second county to pledge support of a Kentucky Bookmobile Project mobile library and follows Johnson county in notifying KPB headquarters of such action.

Marie R. Turner, Jackson, secretary of the Breathitt county board of education, signed the community organization, and individual citizens the necessary funds for the operation of a bookmobile. Co-signer of the pledge was G. C. Anderson, chairman of the county's board of education.

The bookmobile will be the second travelling library for Breathitt county. The first bookmobile was donated by the Friends of Kentucky Libraries who, with the Kentucky Library Association, are sponsors of the Kentucky Bookmobile Project. It began operation in August, 1950, with Mrs. Carrie Hunt as librarian-driver.

In addition to Breathitt county, the Friends have bookmobiles operating in Glasgow, Barren county; Pineville, Bell county; Horse Cave, Hart county; Richmond, Madison county and Morehead, Rowan county.

(See Story No. 1, Page 8)

Plans of the Kentucky Bookmobile Project call for 100 bookmobiles for Kentucky in one year. Already five have been added to the six original bookmobiles. Now 47th in the nation in providing library facilities for its citizens, if the KPB is successful, Kentucky will rank first in this service.

Mrs. Mary C. Bingham, Louisville, and Mrs. Paul Blazer, Ashland, are state chairman and vice-chairman of the project.

Johnson county's community pledge was signed by a group of public-spirited citizens in Paintsville. Paintsville's mayor, J. B. Wels, Jr., is a member of the project's state-wide planning committee and is a member of the project's speakers bureau.

Plans for financing the 100 bookmobiles call for support from citizens and corporations, local communities and the state government. The first group is being asked to donate $300,000 for the purchase of the bookmobiles including the original complement of 600 books. Local communities are being asked to raise about $3,000 a year to pay for maintenance, garaging and the sal-

Self-Appointed Chaplain to the Motorcyclist Visits Here on His Mission of Gospel Service To Fellow Motorcyclists over United States

The Chaplain to the Motorcyclist visited here this week, bringing not the rules of the earthly road but the rules of the Gospel that save a cyclist on the "straight and narrow path." He is Allan McHardy of Long Beach, California.

He came from Johnson City where he had heard of Hales Motorcycle Shop here, riding in a side-car job painted red and with the sign, "Mission to the Motorcyclist, Chaplain" in large letters on the end. He left today (Thursday) planning visits to motorcyclists in New York and the New England states.

McHardy is a native of Vancouver, B. C., is 30 years of age, and unmarried. He has been on the open road two years carrying the Gospel, distributing a tract entitled "Motorcycle Rider," with a subtitle "Two Wheel Power to Real Power." In the tract he tells his story.

"This little book is written to all, especially for the motorcycle riders, some of the finest, carefree and daring young men of our country today. It is written by Allan McHardy, motorcyclist from Canada. So fellows, throttle down, take time, and read it over and read it carefully, as I know you will find it time well spent.

"When I was ten years old I got 'hit' by what we know as the 'motorcycle bug.' From that time, right on through the years of boyhood and youth my ambition was fixed and firm. I hoped, studied, labored and dreamed with one ambition: motorcycle fame and glory. . . . When just a little fellow I would sit at the edge of the highway for hours at a time, just waiting for a motorcycle to pass by. My hero as a small boy was not Hopalong Cassidy, but the motorcycle rider. I figured, if a fellow didn't ride a motorcycle, he just wasn't living.

"As time went on, I became a motorcycle racer. . . . Years passed—years of thrills, spills and chills. . . . Then one day things changed. . . .

"It was like this:

"One Sunday afternoon while out in the country doing a little highway racing I bent a corner too fast and ended up in a ditch with a severely mangled and broken leg and other injuries. I lay on the road for two hours before an ambulance finally arrived. Then as the ambulance went screaming back to the hospital, we were in a collision with another automobile; and in the second mishap of the day I went through the windshield of the ambulance, broken leg and all. I arrived at the hospital broken, battered and bruised. I had a long time to lie there and think."

Converted while lying there in the bed suffering multiple injuries, he decided to do mission work. "That," he says, "is why, fellows, I am a Motorcycle Evangelist."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE SAD REFRAIN
Editor, The Times:

I am sending you a clipping from the Wabash newspaper written about the great number of Kentucky people that are now here in Wabash county, Indiana. Yes, there are over two thousand of us Kentucky people here in this one county; how many in the rest of Indiana, I don't know, but I guess there are a great many. Over 95% of the 2,000 here are from Floyd and Johnson counties.

What are Eastern Kentucky counties going to do about this? Just take it easy, I guess, and soon lose all of their population.

I have talked to about all of the Kentucky people here in Wabash and they all said they would like very much to go back to Kentucky, if they could find work there. This letter is in the interest of the Floyd county people who have homes in Floyd county that they would like to go back to.

As for myself I have no home in Floyd county to return to. As many of you know, I was forced to sell my home to the government when they built the Dewey Dam on Johns Creek. Well, I went broke before I could find another place with the price that I got for my home place there; but whether I ever return to Floyd county or not, I hope the day may come when the others may be able to live and prosper in Floyd county for Floyd county is a good place to live. It is very much too good to give it back to the Indians.

I sincerely wish that I could be able to write such an inspirational letter that it would wake up every person in Floyd county to the point that a great crusade would be started to have factories built, to create more jobs for the people of the county. For Floyd county can and will get factories and have as many as any average northern county in any northern state if they (the people) will fight hard enough to get them.

I just read an article in a Kentucky newspaper that Kentucky still has over 160,000 people on the unemployed list. That means there will be 150,000 more of Kentucky's population it will lose, if something is not done very soon to remedy this situation. Many of us Kentucky people are scattered out over many states. We are not here because we like it, but we are here for our jobs and for the dollars. We all have to find work to live and support our families. Yesterday, I went fishing here on the Wabash River and caught a big lot of fish, and enjoyed the beautiful spring weather, but I could have enjoyed both the spring weather and the fish a lot more if I had got them both back in the beautiful hills of Kentucky.

Well, I sure hope Kentucky tries to become more progressive with the times and its people will not have to stay away from home always. May God bless Kentucky and dear, old Floyd county. I will love you always.

FOR CANALIZATION
Editor, The Times:

All forward-looking citizens of this vicinity and eastern Kentucky should rally behind the campaign for canalization of the Big Sandy river. This action would be timely, especially at a time when the coal fields are showing depressive tendencies and the economic condition is faltering with a downward curve. Those with an eye to the future welfare and prosperity of this part of the state should let their views be known to their congressmen and to the chairmen of the House Appropriation and Ways and Means committees.

It is easy to hand out billions for Point 4 improvements on a world-wide basis, yet very difficult to get a few millions allotted for domestic matters. As canalization is a vital concern to us all, and as it would be a deterrent to another depression, we all should bombard congress, urging its completion.

Tidbits of Kentucky Folklore

"WHAT DID HE DIE OF?"

Before almost every disease could be combatted with a specific remedy, the common folk had a fear of disease that most of us sophisticated imagine that we have long ago given up. In primitive days there were specific remedies, of course, but there was always something interfering so that the tea or bitter dose of some sort went wary; the medicine was perfect for the disease, but as in the successful operation, often the patient died. Some of you who remember the first great influenza outbreak at the end of World War I will know how fearful disease can be. Even the best doctors hardly knew what to do; many able-bodied people died when they tried to go back to work after a few days of weakness. If you can imagine a time when health was ten times as bad as it is now, you can see why there was always a basic fear of disease. The very healthy were almost afraid to admit that they had no aches or pains, for they knew that they might be the next ones to be struck down. I am not so sure but that ailments became chronic from coddling them; it was downright fashionable to be sick.

Some of my most vivid memories are of post mortem conferences by the people who had come to sit up with the dead. I do not mean that any scientific post mortem was actually held, but many a suggestion was given as to what should have been done to save the neighbor's life. This was especially true if the patient had been under the care of some fetched-on doctor, who had come all too lately from some famous medical college, with his head full of new ideas and his saddlebags full of pills and powders. Of course, as everybody would admit, if the family had followed the advice of the local doctor, whether he was a graduate of any school or not, it would have happened differently. Some would even suggest that some of the remedies of the local granny would have been even better: sage tea, ginger tea, onion poultice, and many other famous remedies. And to think that the neighborhood had not been invited in to give its free advice before the tragic event!

My father, the old-time country doctor, used to say that the worst part of his job was that the people with whom he left the medicine often failed to follow directions, sometimes with rather sorrowful results. If three doses of calomel were left, to be taken one at a time every three hours, sometimes the members of the family of the sick person or some well-intentioned neighbor would reason that if one is good, three would be three times as good. Hence the patient would be given the whole handful of the pills or capsules; if he grew worse, that was the result of something else. Father also said that often he left medicine with specific directions only to learn later that some granny came in after he had left and either destroyed the whole batch of pills or powders or substituted her own herb teas and semi-magic formulas for calomel or quinine. As a matter of record I would like to know how many times that actually happened in father's almost half a century of practicing in a remote country neighborhood. The tombstones do not tell such facts; most of his patients did not have any tombstones, anyway.

The panic that often resulted from an outbreak of some disease was sometimes pathetic. People who were ordinarily the very soul of neighborliness were afraid to go near the house where so many people were suffering and dying of some new or strange disease. I myself saw that happen in 1918 in my own town. I do not know of anyone who actually suffered from lack of attention, but I suspect that there were such. The present-day cold fear of polio connects the sophisticated ones of every neighborhood with the ignorant, fearful ones of the remotest old-fashioned time or place. It is still a matter of surprise and wonder when some one goes into the home where a child has been stricken with infantile paralysis and acts the good neighbor with no seeming fear or consequences. We are, as I have often said, not too far from the folk, especially when disease and death strike.

HEALTH NOTES

SAFE PICNICS

Outdoor picnics are among the more popular summer diversions. Eating out-of-doors on a pleasant summer day seems to make the food taste better. Moreover, the picnic is one summer "sport" in which the entire family can participate, regardless of age or physical endurance.

Anyone would scoff at the idea that picnics can be unsanitary or downright dangerous. That's going to extremes. But, on the other hand, we must realize that the intrusion of ants and insects or a sudden rainstorm aren't the only things that might ruin the fun of picnicking.

The food supply is, of course, the most important part of any picnic. People who are ill should never prepare or serve the food because skin infections and other illnesses are easily spread through food. Foods which can spoil easily and thus cause illness should be kept out of the picnic basket.

Most people realize that it is dangerous to drink from unknown streams or brooks. But temptation might be strong to "take a chance" if the drinks run out during or after the picnic. It must be remembered that the most innocent looking streams can be contaminated by deadly germs. Drinking water should be brought from home unless there is a pure water supply in or around the picnic grounds.

It has often been said that the best picnic grounds are always surrounded by poisonous plants. While this is not literally true, it's a good idea to watch out for poison ivy, oak or sumac before "setting the table."

Minor wounds—insect bites, cuts from bottle openers, scratches from brambles—seem to be a part of many picnics. No matter how small the scrape might be, it is wise to cleanse the affected area with a mild soap and apply an antiseptic salve or lotion, to prevent infection, as soon as possible.

Pike-Co. Homemakers Aid Bloodmobile Unit

How homemakers cooperated with the Bloodmobile Unit when it visited Pike county is told by Miss Sally A. Newell, home agent with the University of Kentucky.

The entire membership of 33 women in the Slater's Branch Homemakers club offered to contribute blood, 27 being accepted and each giving a pint. In addition, they influenced 15 others to make a contribution. Mrs. Avery Adkins of the Turkey Creek club gave her seventh pint of blood. The June-Bug Homemakers made 180 sandwiches for those working with the bloodmobile. Six of the members assisted with the work of the unit and five gave blood.

HOMER WICKER for COUNTY COURT CLERK

Sometime ago I announced for the office of County Court Clerk. Since that time I have received assurance of support from all sections of the county and this assurance of support has come not merely from my own relatives but from many people who are not related by blood or marriage. This support, all of it, is deeply appreciated, and I want to take this means to pledge you an efficient, and courteous administration of the office.

I was born on Right Beaver Creek, the son of William Wicker and Millie Davis Wicker of Lackey. My father's people were among the early settlers of Beaver Creek and by blood and marriage this family is connected with several of the many families of this county. My grandfather was Jesse Wicker and grandmother was Eliza Hayes Wicker.

I am a brother to Dr. M. V. Wicker of Wayland. Two sisters of mine, Mrs. Huey Bayes and Mrs. Louis Jones live at Garrett. I have people living in many other small towns and precincts of this county and these people, as I have said with many other people, have offered me their support.

I married Virgie Fitzpatrick, daughter of Cleve and Fanny Watkins Fitzpatrick of Maytown. Her people are the Allens, Howards, Shepherds, Terrys, Messers, Halls, Mullins, Bradleys, Webbs, Jacksons and many others of good old Floyd county names.

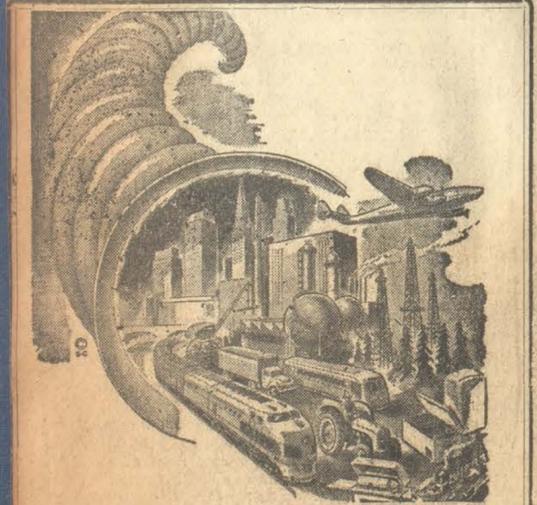

I am related myself to the families of Hayes, Hall, Johnson, Inman, Riddle, Chaffins, Howard, Conley, Davis, Sizemore, Adams, Campbell, Stephens, Mosleys and Hicks.

Homer Wicker endorsed for Clerk by Dr. M. V. Wicker

I want to take this opportunity to ask my friends in Floyd county to support my brother, Homer Wicker of Prestonsburg, for County Court Clerk.

He is qualified for the position, is honest and sober, will offer the people the courteous and efficient service they are entitled to have in the Clerk's office. Any support extended him will be appreciated.

Yours Sincerely,
 DR. M. V. WICKER,
 Wayland, Ky.

the son of James P. and Cynthia May Stephens. There were ten children born to this union, three of whom died young. The parents made plans to go west and as a preliminary move, James P. went to Kansas to look the country over. When he reported to his wife of the level, rich plain the decision to move there was soon made. But for awhile they would have to wait. The tenth child was on the way.

Cynthia Allen Stephens died in childbirth Dec. 9, 1869, when her son James was born. On her deathbed she enjoined her husband to go ahead with their plans to move west. He remembered his promise to her while the baby James, cared for by George and Mahalia May, grew from infancy to the toddling age of four. Daniel married and became the father of two children of his own. It was then that James began to make preparation to go west with his family.

Here Doc Stephens retreats into reminiscences of his childhood, one of his remembrances being how he got his nickname Doc, for he was really christened Solomon. He was the seventh son and mountain lore had it that a seventh son would make a doctor. Solomon or Sol he was called until the time he had the toothache. His father had it pulled and it bled so profusely that someone in the family went for old Doctor Callihan at Prestonsburg.

Meantime, while the horseman was riding towards Prestonsburg, Solomon tried the experiment of putting a finger in the cavity in his jaw. The bleeding stopped and when the finger was removed, it did not resume. Some of the family recalled that he was supposed to make a doctor anyway. Ever afterwards he was Doc. Few remember or know his real name.

After telling this, which was prompted by an inquiry as to his real name he tells of the beginning of the western trip. They made a boat from poplar lumber and calked the bottom with tar. Preparations went apace with one of the chief items of preparations being the matter of caring for the toddler, James on the long journey. But they reckoned without the babe's own wishes and his Aunt Mahalia.

The day of the take-off from Maytown they gathered at the water's edge. Handshakes, perhaps tears from the children and some too from their Aunt Mahalia. The father ordered all into the boat. James ran to the sanctuary of his Aunt Mahalia's lap. The father retrieved him and went towards the boat. James escaped again towards Aunt Mahalia. Here the foster mother interposed and James P. reluctantly agreed for her to keep his youngest, Mahalia and George May reared him and today he keeps the name May.

Finally the boat drifted off down Beaver, and with the exception of difficulty in negotiating the many mill dams that crossed Beaver Creek in that period of time, the boat moved away, carrying the father and six sons, Will, Daniel, David, Mart, George and Solomon. There was the wife of Daniel and his two children. Will, who afterwards lived to the ripe old age of 95, was somewhat younger than Daniel who was 20. They reached the mouth of Beaver without mishap.

James P. loaded his sons on the steamboat, "Jerry Osborne, here, after a night of turmoil with weary boys, James went aboard a tramp steamboat freighter that was working its way to Cincinnati. One stop Doc recalls vividly was at Ironton where negro stevedores loaded iron in kegs on the freighter. Perhaps what makes it a point of vivid remembrance was the big whip the overseers of the job used to urge the lagging negroes.

Cincinnati was the nearest point of railway traffic at that time and James P. took the boys to the railroad station to buy tickets to Kansas. It was here he was introduced to the pickpocket's art. One of the youngsters wanted apples. The father pulled out a pocketbook and paid for a supply. A few moments later there was a sudden rush of men in a hurry and James P. was enveloped by them. When he reached for his pocketbook to buy the necessary tickets he found it gone. He remembered the rush of men around him a few moments before and knew where his money had gone. He went to a secluded spot and took from around his body his reserve cash from a money belt around his body. Just enough to buy the tickets. He gave one to each boy with strict orders for each to look after his own ticket.

The train reached St. Louis and as there was no bridge there across the mighty Father of Waters in 1873, the passengers ferried. The migrants reached Newton, Kansas, March 28.

Newton, was at this time the terminal of the railway pushing towards the Pacific. James P. purchased a farm of 400 acres from an old German and with it acquired all the necessary implements to work the farm. It was one of the finer homes of the period in that section and while other settlers lived in sod houses, James P. lived like a king in a house built of lumber.

"Dodge City had nothing on Newton," Doc states. It was full of dives, saloons, bad women, rally workers and cowboys. The cowboys, mostly from Texas with a herd of longhorns, drank, fought and died. Six fell under blazing guns in one single night, Doc recalls.

Doc grew into manhood and began the herding of cows himself. One thing worse than blazing cowboy guns, he thinks, was the cyclonic storms. One blew a horse five miles away, he avers. But worse than that the mighty rush of wind that carried the horse so far was one night when another kind of storm broke over him as he herded 450 head of half-wild cattle. It was a giant display of an electric storm. You could feel the accumulation of static electricity in the air and it played on the horns of the frightened cattle.

David Stevens joined the 5th Kansas Cavalry, was stationed at Fort Dodge when General Custer suffered defeat and extinction at the hands of the Indians. There was a forced march but Daniel's cavalry arrived only in time to help pick up a few of the scattered bodies.

Doc became a wheat farmer and having married an Ohio girl reared six children. He moved to Enid, Oklahoma, in 1898 where his wife died several years ago. He reads without the aid of glasses, dresses neatly and reminisces about those golden days when the West was young.

'Bear' Facts—

By PAUL BRYANT
UK Football Coach

LEIGHTON, KY. — Memories in the world of athletics, like in our everyday lives, are a funny and sometimes pathetic thing. They can be something wonderful or sad, tricky or very vivid, and either of the "dime-a-dozen" variety or an enduring panorama of fond remembrances.

Just where those recollections that come to mind during graduation week here at the University of Kentucky fit into the picture, I'm not sure. But certainly the departure from the scene of several Kentucky football stars and the coincidental end of an era in our grid history caused some memories for me and should call to mind a few afterthoughts for followers of Wildcat football.

Most grid fans now remember well the standouts of past years—Babe Parilli, Bob Cain, Shorty Jamerson, Jay Rhodemyer, Walt Yowarsky, George Blanda, Jerry Claiborne, Ermal Allen, Phil Cutchin, Pat James and a host of others. In the same category in my personal memory are another group of eight boys who will not be around next year and who represent a select list of Wildcats who had the honor of playing in Kentucky's two bowl victories.

The mere recital of the names of those who form the last link between the "down-to-earth" present and the great Bowl Era of 1950-52 conjures up memories. I am sure that Kentucky football fans will not soon forget the incomparable Jones twins from Louisville, "A-Bub" and "B-Bub," who certainly had more downright desire and spirit per pound than any of UK's illustrious athletes of the past.

Morganfield's John Griggs, captain of the 1952 "Comeback Kids," and Big Bob Fry, our alternate leader from Cincinnati, are extremely good bets for fine memories on the part of most true fans.

In the unsung heroes department of the Sugar and Cotton Bowl sagas are tackle Frank Fuller and Madisonville's dependable John Baldwin.

Finally, last but far from least in most peoples' recollections are the two former standouts who had their careers curtailed in a controversial order by the conference commissioner—All-Conference guard Gene Donaldson and tackle Chet Lukaski.

As one recalls the flush of success enjoyed under this fine group, memories cannot help but fade into hopes for other great athletes from throughout the Commonwealth and a future equally as bright.

PRICE-POSTING ILLEGAL

Frankfort, Ky., June 1 — The Attorney General's Office held that it was illegal for barbers and beauty shops to post prices in their shops—a restriction equally applicable to privately-owned shops as well as to school-operated shops where the price is lower.

It was disclosed that the State Board of Barbers and Beauticians has summoned the University of Kentucky officials to appear before it next month to explain its posting of prices in the student barber shop.

Corn Needs Fertilization

By COUNTY AGENT ELLIS BOGGS

As we raise our sights toward higher and higher yields of corn we find it necessary to give more attention to those practices which supplement the soil's own inherent ability to yield up nutrients to the crop. As we move toward these higher yields, the soil becomes more and more a medium through which nutrients are conveyed to the plant rather than a direct source of those plant foods. The native fertility remaining in our soils is not released to the crops being grown in sufficient quantities to produce yields large enough to meet the nation's present demand for food and fiber; therefore our soil must be used as a processing plant for commercial fertilizers rather than a source of the total plant foods needed.

Kentucky farmers grew nearly 330,000 fewer acres of corn for grain in 1950 than they grew in 1940, but they harvested nearly eleven million more bushels of corn in 1950 than they did in 1940. This increased production from fewer acres resulted from wiser selection of land for growing corn and the use of improved varieties and the use of more fertilizer per acre.

Corn is hard on the land if we rate crops according to the amounts of plant food removed from the soil or the degree of erosion to which the land is exposed. Many farmers have the idea "to corn land means to wear it out." This is true when farmers manage and fertilize their corn crop so that it produces 40 bushels or less per acre, but when farmers produce 80 bushels or more per acre the fertility of the land can actually be improved while growing the crop, especially when the cover is returned to the soil as organic matter.

Of all the crops grown in Kentucky, corn is one of the heaviest feeders on plant foods. To produce 100 bushels of corn per acre the crop should have available to it at least 150 pounds of nitrogen, 125 pounds of P2O5 and 250 pounds of K2O. The supply of nitrogen in the soil can only be estimated from past yields, or from the amount added by a legume cover crop and the amount of decaying organic matter present in the soil. A soil test will give a good idea of the amount of P2O5 and K2O available to the crop. When the amounts of these three plant foods have been determined or estimated, the supply can be built up to the above figures through the use of commercial fertilizers.

To conserve and improve soil fertility, to harvest the profits from a high yield that results in bigger returns on labor and investment, and greater returns per dollar spent for fertilizer, farmers should strive for a yield of 100 bushels or more per acre in 1953.

doing under Dr. Ransdell's direction, without friction or lessening of interest in the public service.

M. V. Clark, sanitarian with the department, said Monday there is a critical shortage of health doctors in Kentucky and that less than 30 health officers are now working in the state, in a few cases one doctor serving two small counties. He added that 50% of the counties do not have a medical director on either a fulltime or part-time basis.

While the naming of a department head awaited the June 16 meeting here, the public health work continued. All the nurses, both sanitarians and the office-workers are veterans. They were receiving the volunteer help of Dr. George P. Archer, of the Prestonsburg General hospital.

Members of the county health board are County Judge Henry Stumbo, Dr. George P. Archer, Dr. M. V. Wicker, Dr. R. M. Strick and Mrs. W. W. Burchett.

After Dr. Ransdell's death last week, some of the outstanding effects of the health department's work under his guidance the last 25 years were recounted. One of these was the contrast between conditions when he assumed directorship of the department and the present. The day he came to Prestonsburg, one of the town's leading attorneys was ill of typhoid. There were other cases of the disease in Prestonsburg, and at Martin the county's lone hospital was full, a large part of its patient-population being typhoid sufferers. At that time, it was pointed out, the population ran the typhoid gauntlet every year. In recent years, as a result of an inoculation program, mainly in the schools, the occurrence of typhoid was so rare that it was news.

The same was true of smallpox, diphtheria and other contagious diseases.

STATE CONSERVATION WORK GAINS NATIONAL ATTENTION

Special to The Times

Frankfort, Ky., June 3 — Since 1944, Kentucky's progress in wildlife conservation has made the entire nation sit up and take notice.

In that year, upon the advice of more than 16,000 sportsmen in the state, a nine-man commission was named to head the Division of Game and Fish with Earl Wallace as director. It was also decided at the time that all money derived from the sale of licenses was to be used for the conservation of fish and wildlife resources.

Last year by act of the General Assembly, the division became the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

In 1944, fishing licenses sales totaled 27,226. Resident hunting licenses sold that year numbered 69,835, and 3,219 were issued to non-residents. The total income for the division was then $194,790.81.

In 1952, there were 350,384 state and 87,726 non-resident fishing licenses sold. Hunting licenses for last year, both resident and non-resident totaled 263,582. Total income for the year was $1,648,644.91.

In the field of law enforcement, there were 44 conservation officers for the entire state in 1944. They made 349 arrests, which resulted in 190 convictions. Licenses checked that year totaled 11,929.

In 1952, with 140 men working in the field, there were 2,533 arrested violators. Convictions totaled 2,162. During the last year, officers checked 115,886 hunters and fishermen.

Under the leadership of the commissioner, the program of conservation education, started in 1944, has been intensified. Hundreds of thousands of persons have viewed educational films and have been made more familiar with the aims and purposes of the agency and more are becoming acquainted with good wildlife practices every day.

One of the main purposes of the department is working with young people throughout the state organized into Junior Conservation Clubs. Since their organization in 1945, the junior clubs have grown to 515 with a membership of more than 25,000 boys. Two permanent camps have been constructed, on Lake Cumberland and Kentucky Lake, to accommodate the boys at summer camp.

In a recent survey by the Federal Fish and Wildlife Service, Kentucky was rated first in the nation in junior conservation education.

One of the most popular projects with Kentucky sportsmen is the State Game Farm and Nursery operated by the department.

The nursery located near Frankfort, raises three to four million seedlings each year, primarily shrub species and multiflora rose. These plants are distributed free to interested landowners and are used as cover for game.

In 1952, the game farm hatched pheasants, partridges, wild turkeys and 78,618 quail, more than a ny other game farm in the world. Most of the quail were delivered as day-old chicks to sportsmen's clubs under a cooperative rearing program.

Under the watchful eyes of the department, the state deer herd now consists of several thousand and an open season is expected within three years.

Kentucky's 14,000 miles of streams, major lakes and thousands of farm ponds have benefited greatly from the efforts of the Department to expand fishing opportunities for the sportsman. Today, Kentucky is known as one of the best fishing states in the nation with the fame of its big lakes rapidly being spread throughout the country.

Kentucky hunters and fishermen are fortunate in the variety and abundance of game and fish to which they have access and in the liberal limits and open seasons which they enjoy. They still have good hunting and fishing with a minimum of interference in spite of the national trend toward a reduced supply of game and fish and ever-tightening legal restrictions.

Inland Steel Chairman Speaker at Wheelwright As Foremen's Club Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the Inland Foremen's Club, at Wheelwright, Kentucky, which is usually scheduled for the second Saturday of each month, was deferred until Friday evening, May 22, so that the members might have an opportunity to meet and to hear Clarence B. Randall, of Chicago, chairman of the board of the Inland Steel Company, and a nationally prominent speaker and writer.

Other guests of the club were William Crawford, vice-president and general manager, and I. C. Spotte, general superintendent of the Princess Elkhorn Coal Company, representing the Pecco Foremen's Club at David.

Following the dinner, served by the Home Economics class of the Wheelwright high school, Mr. Randall was introduced by Robert Smith, club president. After an interesting extemporaneous talk, reviewing the development of the Wheelwright property under Inland Steel Company, and stressing the importance of human relations in the course of a supervisor's duties, Mr. Randall concluded by inviting questions from the floor.

Mr. Randall's invitation to the members of the Foremen's Club to ask questions resulted in inquiries regarding the future of the Inland Steel Company, the Schumann Plan, the Marshall Plan, trade negotiations at Panmunjom, and other matters of current national interest.

STATE TO DO WORK IN '53

On Howard Branch Road, Curlin Says; Jacks Cr. Highway Bids Are Asked

Highway Commissioner W. P. Curlin told County Judge Henry Stumbo this week in a telephone conversation that the rights-of-way already acquired for the Howard Branch road linking Magoffin and Floyd counties are satisfactory to the Commission and that the state definitely will build the highway this year.

Judge Stumbo said he inferred that whatever delay there may be will be of possibly two or three months and that this will result from a wait on funds.

The decision to build the road, regarded as one of vital importance to Floyd County, was reached after Gov. Lawrence Wetherby and others visited this section recently on the 11th Governor's tour. At that time he was told the importance of the route, and children here staged a placard-demonstration urging the road.

The highway will link this section of the county with a highway to the Breathitt county coal operations.

Contractors have been invited by the State Department of Highways to bid on a road construction project in Floyd county. Bids will be opened June 12.

The projects planned call for grade, drain and traffic-bound surfacing over 4.6 miles of the Jacks Creek road from Ky. 122.

J. P. Noonan, district highway engineer, has written County Judge Henry Stumbo that surfacing of the Bull Creek and Abbott Creek roads cannot be begun until repair work on the Prestonsburg-West Prestonsburg bridge is completed, since the span in its present condition is limited to an eight-ton load and only one-way traffic can be accommodated by the temporary bridging over the break in the bridge.

Judge Stumbo said the contractor on the bridge project expects to complete repairs by the end of June. Materials for blacktopping of the Bull Creek and Abbott roads will be shipped to West Prestonsburg by rail and from there transported from a mixing plant via trucks across the bridge.

2 FROM FLOYD ON MINE JURY

U. S. Court Hearing Under Way This Week For Twelve Defendants

Two Floyd county men are on the jury in Federal court at Pikeville trying the 12 union men and peace officers charged with molesting miners without union affiliation on Cumberland Mountain, May 10, 1951. The two jurors are Abe Green, Cliff, and Millard Roberts, Harold.

The trial began Monday of this week with Judge Mac Swinford, of Cynthiana, sitting. The first trial in January of this year ended with a deadlocked jury that stood 9 to 3 for conviction. The present jury was summoned from the Eastern Kentucky Federal Judicial district.

On trial are Dock Bartley, Ralph Ratliff, and Dial Mullins, former Pike county deputy sheriffs; Carson Hibbitts, Joseph Davis, Sherman Maggard, Harry Ratcliffe, and Bob Newsom, all of Pike county, and Milburn "Cootie" Hall, Charles Minton, Carl Conley, and T. N. Fleming, all of Letcher county.

Hibbitts, a former representative in the Kentucky Legislature, and Davis, Ratcliffe and Newsome are field agents for the United Mine Workers of America. In charge of the Pikeville office, Hibbitts is district representative of the union's District 30.

Hall is a former deputy constable. Originally there were 13 defendants but one of them, M. B. Bloomer, Letcher county, was acquitted by a directed verdict in the first trial when Judge Swinford ruled that the Government had not made out a case against him.

The prosecution contends that the defendants were involved in the beating and forcible swearing into the union of Kentucky employees of a nonunion mine in Virginia. The disturbance occurred in Letcher county, Kentucky.

In his opening statement to the jury of 12 men and four alternates, including one woman, District Attorney Claude P. Stevens, Prestonsburg, pointed out that the defendants are charged with violating the Labor Relations Law.

John Y. Brown, Lexington attorney, opening for the defense, explained that the union men were on the mountann that day to establish a peaceful picket line and persuade Kentuckians not to help break a strike that was going on in Virginia.

First government witness was Joe Ison, who said his truck was halted by a crowd of 20 or 30 men a few hundred feet on the Kentucky side of the state line in Letcher county. One of the men he identified as Milburn "Otu" Hall, one of the defendants, waved him to the side of the road with a pistol, he said. "Others handed him a union membership card and demanded that he sign 'or we will run you, truck and all, over this mountain.'" He signed.

A little later, he continued, two of the men in the crowd tossed a coin to determine which would whip him. A man identified only by the name of "Curley" won the toss and they went after each other, Joe said, but others joined in against him and he was being "roughed up" when one of the union men caused them to let up on him.

Ison said he saw about 15 men wearing uniforms, badges, or officers' caps in the crowd but none attempted to stop the fight.

Giles Killen, who moved from Jenkins to Clintwood, Va., after the trouble, said Hall pulled a pistol on him and forced him to sign a union card. Then he and about 20 other Kentuckians working in nonunion Virginia mines, he said, were forced to line up on the roadside, three deep, and "take the union obligation."

Ray Buchanan, Payne Gap, testified that Hall, with a pistol in his hand, cursed and threatened him.

When he objected to signing a union card, Buchanan said Hall told him, "You will sign it or die on this mountain" so he signed two of them, just to play safe. When some of the mob threatened to whip him, he said, "Joe Davis told them to leave me alone." Davis is one of the defendants.

"Glen Gilliam, Jenkins miner, said he was kicked and beaten and told that, "You are getting off easy for what you have done." All he had done, he said, was work in a mountain mine in Virginia.

Refusing to swear, because he is a minister in the Church of God of Prophecy as well as a coal miner, Joseph J. Hughes was allowed to testify when he "affirmed" to tell the truth.

"They lined us up and made us take the obligation," he said. "Then somebody yelled, 'We've got a preacher. Let's baptize them in the name of the Father, the Son, and John L. Lewis, and I didn't like that very much.'"

Other witnesses testified that the union men blocked the road, forced them to sign union cards and told them they couldn't go to their jobs in Virginia.

CLEVELAND — Robert Owens, 66-year-old press operator, suffered a broken arm in falling three stories from a kitchen window in his apartment. Police said Owens told them he had gone to bed and the next thing he remembered he was on the ground.

the board a list of all registered voters.

2. Challenges by a committee or a citizen must be made within 10 days after the registration books close before a primary or general election, and shall be in writing giving the name and address of the challenged voter and the reason for the challenge. The board shall then meet on the eleventh day following the closing of the books and may sit for a period of five days, the last day to be not less than 20 days prior to the primary or general election.

A number of voters have, through new registration, changed their party affiliation, in most cases making the change in order to vote for a close friend or relative who is a candidate on a ticket they do not usually vote. Since this has been done the question of their eligibility to vote in their new party's primary has arisen, and it has been pointed out that the law prohibits their voting in the primary if they are challenged. This law, it is explained, was enacted to prevent one party from transferring voters in order to control the naming of nominees by the opposition party.

"Eck" Branham Named Winchester Hi Coach; To Leave Paris Post

Prestonsburg's Estill (Eck) Branham advanced another step in the coaching profession last month when he was named basketball mentor at Winchester high school.

He goes to Winchester from Paris, Ky., where he has been coach of the Bourbon County Vocational basketball team. He will assist in football at Winchester as well as direct the school's cage activities, and plans to develop a basketball program in the elementary grades. He plans to move to Winchester, August 1.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. John Branham, of the Auxier road, and a graduate of Prestonsburg high school, he received his degree from Western Kentucky where he played under Ed Diddle for the Hilltoppers. He has coached since 1938 except for three years spent in the armed forces as a physical instructor.

ASSESSMENT LEVIED

Frankfort, Ky., June 3 — A $160,000 assessment against 40 utility companies for support of the Public Service Commission was levied by the commission, a $100,000 supported agency. The assessment is based on the amount of business done in Kentucky by the companies.

The formula calls for five companies—a telephone utility and four electric groups—to bear $117,115 of the assessment load. These are: Louisville Gas and Electric Company, Louisville, $37,415; Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, Louisville, $27,948; Union Light, Heat and Power Company, Covington, $10,711; Kentucky Utilities Company, Lexington, $29,489 and Kentucky-West Virginia Power Company, Ashland, $11,550.

GARDEN NEWS

By O. E. BOGGS
County Agent

Gardeners now is the time to stop those Mexican bean beetles and the Colorado potato bugs that do so much damage to beans and potatoes each year.

These insects have been reported to be much worse at this time of year than they have in several years.

If they are not controlled, bean and potato yields will be reduced seriously.

To control the Mexican bean beetle use 1% Rotonon or 50% Methoxychlor. Dust on 5% Rotonon or 50% Methoxychlor at the rate of 2 tablespoons per gallon of water for a wet spray.

To do an effective job, the beans should have five applications of either spray or dust. The first one should be given when beans first come up; the second in four days and the remaining three should be applied at ten day intervals.

Colorado potato bugs are best controlled by using 3 1/2 level tablespoons of 50% wettable DDT powder in 3 gallons of water. The first application should be given when the bugs first appear or when the potatoes are 2-4 inches high. Repeat 2 to 4 times at 10 day to 2 week intervals until the tops begin to die.

TOMATOES

CAUTION: With the warm damp weather which is ideal for tomato blight development, it is important that you start spraying your tomatoes as soon as they are set in the patch and continue to spray them every 7-10 days until they have at least ten applications. The best material to use for control of both early and late blight is Manzate; however, Dithane Z-78, Copper A, and basic copper sulphate may be used. For best results use a wet spray. For additional information consult your county agent.

MINORITY DISAGREE

Frankfort, Ky., June 1 — Three judges of the Court of Appeals filed a blistering dissent to a majority opinion of the Court which held that a Circuit Judge might convene a special grand jury without proper notice and cause an inquiry to be made and indictments returned.

The minority opinion, prepared by Judge Farker W. Duncan and concurred in by Chief Justice Porter Summs and Judge Bert T. Combs, held to the view that the "Court has created, rather than interpreted a statute" and clung to the view that 10-days notice of such special terms must be given. The majority opinion, filed earlier, had held that Claude Beach, convicted Harlan county slayer, had been lawfully accused of crime.

COURT OPINION ENDS DISPUTE

Combs Writes Decision Holding Publication Act Demands Detailed Audits

The Court of Appeals last Friday handed down a decision which ended the dispute over the duty of local governmental agencies to publish detailed financial statements every year.

The opinion, written by Judge Bert T. Combs, and concurred in by every member of the court, held that the state General Assembly in 1928 enacted the publication law "to bring the light of publicity on the financial affairs of local governmental units."

The showdown on the question came last year with a suit in which the two newspapers published at Paris, Ky., filed a test suit after Bourbon county officials filed for publication an abbreviated financial statement. The Kentucky Press Association, representing practically every other newspaper in the state, later joined in the case.

The Appellate Court held that abbreviated financial statements, or audit summaries, do not comply with the law, which it said is clear on the subject.

"But it is not the prerogative of the courts to weigh the wisdom of the statute. The Legislature had the constitutional right to pass it and it is the duty of the courts to enforce it," said the jurist.

"The court's construction of the statute will continue to affect the taxpayers as long as the statute remains on the books," he added.

The court's opinion provided this "yardstick" to measure compliance: "The legislative intent, implicit in the act, was to require those officers who administer public funds to publish annually a statement which will inform the taxpayers of the amount of money collected, when and to whom expended, and the purpose for which spent."

The law says the statements must be printed in full in the newspaper of the county "that has the largest bona fide circulation in the governmental unit or district for which the statement is published."

Copies of the statements and newspaper clippings showing its published form must be sworn to and filed with county clerks, the law states.

And, it adds, officers required by law to publish the statements also must file copies of newspapers containing them with the State auditor by August 31 after each fiscal year ends June 30.

Failure to file the newspaper containing the statement with the auditor shall be a misdemeanor, the law says, punishable upon conviction with a $50 to $500 fine.

The Kentucky Press Association had advised its members through the years to insist on detailed money statements for publication. However, it said some officials had been "confused as to what actually constitutes full compliance" with the law and asked for a clear-cut ruling.

Such a ruling, it said, "will throw a most helpful light upon this matter for the guidance of all persons, institutions and political subdivisions . . ."

Judge Combs wrote: "The main question in the case is the proper construction of Kentucky Revised Statute 61.290, which provides that except in cities of the first class (Louisville is the only one) and cities otherwise required by law to publish an annual audit of their financial affairs, every public officer of any county, grade-school district, city or subdivisions or district less than a county, whose duty it is to collect, receive, have the custody, control or disbursement of public funds, shall at the expiration of each fiscal year prepare an itemized, sworn statement of the funds collected, received, held, or disbursed by him during the fiscal year just closed.

"The statement shall show the amount of public funds collected and received, from what sources received, the amount disbursed, for what date of each disbursement, for what the total of the amounts paid as salary during the fiscal year to each official or employee of the governmental unit shall be shown in the statement."

he went home from the carnival and was told of the murder, the following morning, by the milkman. Osborne said he went to the carnival with T. J. Kendrick, returned to West Prestonsburg and spent the night at his brother's home. He said he met cars on the bridge but no pedestrians.

The signed statement of Ellen Foley told of the letter which she claimed Vaughan wrote her, of her trip to Washington and of her husband getting a pass and the two spending a night in an apartment house there. Vaughan told her, the statement continued, that he and Osborne were walking across the bridge when they met Miss Baldrige and that Osborne made some sort of remark to her. At the girl's retort, she quoted Vaughan as telling her, Osborne killed Miss Baldrige and he went on home. "Vaughan was very nervous and walked the floor the rest of the night," the statement adds.

A few months later, her signed statement continues, she and Vaughan were staying at the Auxier hotel here. Vaughan went downstairs, returning with two half-pints of whiskey and began drinking. A short time thereafter, she continued, he began talking about the murder. On this occasion, she stated, he told of having visited a girl in West Prestonsburg on the night of the murder and of walking home with Osborne when they met Miss Baldrige. This meeting was described by him, she said, as in Washington, except that he said he "lost his head" and struck the girl several times with a hammer, then told Osborne "he was just as much into it as he was and that he had better not tell it."

Vaughan then left Osborne there with the girl, the statement continued, quoting him as saying he went home and hid the hammer under the floor of his mother's home. Miss Foley added that he learned the next morning that the girl's body had been found under the bridge and that he knew Osborne had put it there.

She said Vaughan told her he was working for Dave Patton, Prestonsburg building contractor, at the time of the murder and that he took the hammer with him when he quit work that day. Sheriff A. B. Meade and Commonwealth's Detective Davidson searched through a pile of lumber under the floor of the Vaughan home Sunday but found no incriminating hammer.

In addition to the denials of both defendants, the testimony of Miss Foley was under attack from defense character witnesses, including Policeman Bill Little and Tommy Vaughan, niece of Clyde's, who said her reputation is bad and that she is "real bad to drink."

Policeman Gray admitted that when she returned from Washington and her meeting with her husband he asked her if she learned anything from him and that she smiled and said, "No."

This statement and the testimony as to the woman's character were among the items reviewed by Judge Stumbo before holding that the evidence was insufficient to hold the two men.

County Attorney W. W. Burchett represented the Commonwealth at the hearing, and Joe P. Tackett represented the defendants.

Order Directs Five Feet More Water in Dewey, If Damage Releases Given

The Huntington, W. Va., district office, U. S. Corps of Engineers, has received orders from Washington to raise the depth of Dewey Lake by five feet as soon as damage releases can be procured from utilities companies operating in the reservoir area.

This word was given Minor Clark, director of the fisheries division, Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, by Dan Johnson, W. Va., office, and Mrs. Clark relayed the information this morning (Thursday) to E. R. Burke, Prestonsburg, Seventh district conservation supervisor.

Mr. Burke in turn telephoned Mr. Johnson in Huntington and was told release forms are being prepared. Burke will go to Huntington tomorrow to bring these forms here and then the utilities companies will be contacted for their cooperation.

It was said here unofficially that the dam structure is so arranged that the water level can be raised immediately when the damage releases are signed and presented the Corps of Engineers.

The United Fuel Gas Company and the Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company have the largest operations in the reservoir area.

The original six bookmobiles are supplying some 15,000 borrowers with books. The monthly circulation amounts to 19,000 volumes.

Need for the bookmobiles is graphically illustrated by the fact that 47 of the 120 counties have no library facilities of any kind. In 37 other counties, the facilities are inadequate.

TO THE PEOPLE OF FLOYD COUNTY:

In making the race for County Judge I do not intend to be tied up or connected with any other candidate or group of candidates. There already has been rumors, and probably will be more, to the effect that I am supporting this or that candidate for some office. These rumors have no foundation, and I do not intend to take part in any race except my own.

I am making this race on the record I have made as a public official and County Judge. Later I will have a more detailed statement of some of the things that have been done. With the experience I have had I will be able to make you a better County Judge for the next four years. I earnestly solicit your support.

Your friend,

In these troublesome times when directly, or indirectly, we have all felt the ravages of war and the suffering it brings, it might be well to count our blessings. There is so much to be grateful for. Blessed is he who is healthy and gazes upon smiling faces. Blessed is he also who can honestly say that he is giving forth his best and sharing his happiness with others. BY WILMAY

But it looked as if a cyclone struck the first paragraph of this column last week! At least printers' errors are a welcome alibi.

Floyd county has no native son who contributed more to her progress than our beloved late Dr. Marvin Ransdell. He will be keenly missed by people in all walks of life, but more especially by the poorer classes, who found him ever ready to help with their problems. He was one of several outstanding physicians who never failed to denounce some corrupt practices that have slowly crept into the profession.

Memorial Day brought Ted and Helen Snoddy back from a distant point in West Virginia to lay flowers on the grave of their baby son. It brought Paul and Beryl Jarrell from Mt. Sterling, and others too numerous to be named. Blessed are those who forget not their dead. And how ashamed all of us should be to permit cemeteries to get in the condition most of them show. A well-kept graveyard is a compliment to any community.

When Mason Moore announced his decision to close his service station on Sundays, because he felt led of God to do so, despite advice of most friends to the contrary, few of us know to what extent this may involve a real sacrifice. Not many men today possess faith to listen to God rather than to man, to care more for Him than for the dollar, which looms so large on most horizons. Many will not be surprised if God some day uses Mason Moore the way He today is using R. G. Letourneau, another eminent Baptist layman.

Everyone who heard Dr. Percy Ray deliver a two-hour sermon on titling one evening this week wished that others might have been present. Unquestionably, God is using this man who is not afraid to speak the truth about dancing, mixed bathing, raising money for the church, fishing on the Sabbath, card playing, drinking, gambling, the movies, women's wearing shorts, and countless other evils of today. He condemned so many different sins all of us longed to hide under the seats, while he pleaded for separation from the world on the part of Christians and made clear that most churches are now powerless for lack of it. God is using this man mightily. In our belief he surpasses Billie Graham in several respects. One needs to be familiar with the history and life of Dr. Ray to appreciate fully his ministry and bold stand against iniquity. He stresses quality, rather than quantity, placing no emphasis on numbers and dollars. It was a great privilege to hear his thirteen sermons.

With Dr. Ray was Rev. Wayne King, an evangelistic singer, and a minister in his own right. He brought wonderful messages in song during the Baptist revival, accompanied by Mrs. Ray Allen at the piano. Brother King taught Sunday School classes, spoke for the B.T.U., and preached the services at Hunter during his stay. His coming brought a great blessing to all of us. People from Pound, Va., Hindman, Marrowbone, Grace Church, Prestonsburg, Paintsville, Allen, Drift, Tennessee, West Virginia, and other points each evening, prove the widespread interest in this great gospel team. All but one of the revival converts came from the new mission at Hunter, where Rev. and Mrs. Wadley have worked faithfully and hard for months.

Anyone desiring colored pageant movie films, size 8 mm, at cost, see Dr. Wade Mahood in Martin. Pageant films bought in advance will be sold at cost, also some colored films, size 120, and others in black and white.

Gettin' old, folks. Used to be we could make eight dresses in a day. Now it takes eight days to make ONE! No kiddin'.

Enjoyed the opportunity of meeting Mr. Jim Pratt in Mt. Sterling last week, when his niece, Mrs. Ollie May, stopped to see how they are. Mr. Pratt left this county in 1901, but, like all Floyd countians, still carries a deep love for it. He is a brother of Elbert Pratt, Garrett, and Mrs. Tom Marshall, of Manton. His wife gave an interesting account of their sixteen-day courtship that took place ten years ago. Isn't that the way with these mountain men?

FLOYD COUNTY DEMANDS GOOD GOVERNMENT

Every candidate for public office should have a platform to offer the people. The people who elect their officers are entitled to that. That platform should be realistic and should be the basis upon which an honest man expects to win and abide by after his election. I propose to explain my position on law enforcement, to tell you just how I plan to operate the Sheriff's office if I am honored with it.

I. DEPUTY SHERIFFS

Deputies of the sheriff should be honest and law abiding men themselves. They should have an understanding of the responsibility that is upon them when they put on a badge. That responsibility descends to them through the sheriff from you who gave it. This matter of deputies is what I want to talk to you about in this article.

I propose to employ a chief deputy for each magisterial district. This deputy will have invested in him by me the duty and the responsibility of law enforcement within that district. He will be a man selected from that district, know its needs and people. He will have any necessary help he may need to help him in the discharge of his duties.

If each magisterial district is set up for law enforcement by this method the need for an excessive number of deputies is eliminated. It does away with the practice of putting a gun and badge on scores of men and sending them out on the highways and towns to patrol and prey on the people in order to live.

Not too long ago a Floyd county sheriff had over a hundred deputies. No one knew for sure how they all made their living but there were plenty of honest people that made shrewd guesses. I want no guesses as to how the few honest upright men I shall employ as deputies make their living. When you vote, that will decide this issue.

Elect me your sheriff and I pledge you an honest administration of the office with honest deputies and honest enforcement of the law.

RECORD-BREAKING GAS MILEAGE
for the driving YOU do!

This year's Chevrolet brings you the most important gain in economy in Chevrolet history. And it's the kind of everyday economy that saves you money wherever and however you drive!

Inch along through heavy traffic. Roll up the miles in steady highway cruising. Long trips or short errands, byroads or boulevards, you get far more miles per gallon in this great new Chevrolet.

New high-compression power is the reason. Both the new 115-h.p. "Blue-Flame" engine in Powerglide® models—and the advanced 108-h.p. "Thrift-King" engine in gearshift models—deliver more power on less gasoline. Acceleration and hill-climbing ability are greater, fuel consumption is lower!

This is the kind of economy that counts the most—important gasoline savings for the driving you do, together with lower over-all costs of upkeep. And along with it, you enjoy all the other advantages that only the new Chevrolet offers you. Come in and see for yourself!

*Combination of 115-h.p. "Blue-Flame" engine and Powerglide automatic transmission available on "Two-Ten" and Bel Air models only.

Neither Above Reproach

THE TIMES can easily understand the indignation of Senator McCarthy and others at Clement Attlee's verbal attack on the United States, but it agrees with Kentucky's Senator John Sherman Cooper that hot-headed retorts from the United States and hasty action on this country's part will serve no good purpose.

Attlee, leader of England's Socialists, rendered Communism an invaluable service when he accused the United States of non-cooperation and some of its citizens of not wanting peace. At the same time, we joined him in helping the Red cause by driving deeper the wedge between the two great English-speaking countries of the world and the last great hopes of democracy. We widened the breach by leaping to the counter-attack.

It is difficult to maintain a stolid composure and to keep one's own counsel when unjustly attacked, but true statesmanship and leadership in a time fraught with peril demand of us forbearance and wisdom such as Senator Cooper advises.

Without the United States, and Winston Churchill, England long ago would have been a German satellite; so would have been Russia, but for our aid during World War II. Now, with Russia the avowed enemy of the democratic way of life, either England or the United States is weak without the other.

International business which too often dictates our international politics and thinking is too devoid of the simple practices of christianity. The United States refused to buy British electrical supplies at a big saving to the taxpayers, because the purchase would have cut into the business of manufacturers and suppliers here at home. Britain and others of our allies say, then, they must have trade, and that this trade must be with the Reds if not with us. Last week, while the International Chamber was in session in Vienna, the Reds were negotiating with business bigshots of certain Allied nations for purchase of supplies of this and other kinds. —this, while pledges of unity of purpose and effort were being heard.

Attlee expressed the belief, that there are Americans who prefer war to peace. That may be. We wouldn't say there aren't, although the possibility seems inhumanly fantastic. But certainly there are as many Britons of the same thinking (or lack of thinking). We do not deny Attlee's charge, because we are convinced that when the dollar rules any man to the extent that he will sell munitions of war or the means for an enemy nation to maintain itself and an offensive against this or any friendly country, that man cannot be praying for peace as he should.

But Britain just now appears to be the big offender. So it appears that the mote is in that eye, not in ours.

Wherever it is, violent recriminations in the British Parliament and the Congress of the United States and demands that ships be sunk, and so on, will help nobody but the enemies of both countries.

Where Shall Work Begin?

THIS may sound like we're picking a fight, but if there must be one let's get in on it early.

The report persists—and it is more than mere rumor—that the state is ready to go ahead with construction of the Prestonsburg - Dewey Dam-Pointsville road, and that work will begin on the Johnson county end of the route.

Now, The Times has been an advocate of this highway, which would connect the area's big attraction, Dewey Lake, with its home county, Floyd, and the neighboring county, Johnson, and also provide for residents of other sections access from either the Floyd or Johnson end to the lake. It also would serve to bypass Abbott Mountain, one of the dangerous features of that miserably poor stretch of the Mayo Trail between Paintsville and Pikeville.

We advocated this road as a public improvement. We expressed disapproval of any idea of throwing up a bar against the road and egress to the dam from Johnson county. It was our contention, as in the case of the Howard Branch road sought to link Floyd and Magoffin counties, that the Closed Door policy is a medievalism.

But in urging the Open Door policy we did not subscribe to the Good Neighbor doctrine so completely that we were willing to submerge Floyd county's interests.

We do not propose to remain silent, and we do not expect Floyd county to submit quietly, in the face of any plan to begin work on that highway from the end most distant from Abbott Mountain and in a county in which neither Dewey Dam nor Dewey Lake is located.

This road must pass through Johnson county through Floyd in order to reach the dam. And there's a matter of rights-of-way for Floyd county to supply some cooperation toward procuring.

There need be no bickering about the matter, if the Highway Department will give Floyd county an even break. And an even break does not mean that Paintsville shall have first direct access to this dam which is in Floyd county.

THANKS TO THE Motor Trucks!

Here in Kentucky — whether you live on a farm, in a small town, or one of the big metropolitan cities — you enjoy the highest American living standards because of the efficient public service of Motor Truck transportation, with its never-ceasing, ever-increasing activity.

Kentucky must have Motor Trucks because twenty counties in the State have no railroads within their boundaries and thirty-five county seats do not have rail transportation.

More than that, 433 towns with populations above 100 are serviced only by Motor Truck transportation, and there are 2,962 communities in the State which have no railroads — the highest percentage of any State in the nation.

But thanks to the Motor Truck Industry, all Kentucky is on the main line today.

If you've got it a Truck Brought it!

MAROONS WIN IN REGIONAL

Wheelwright Represents Area in State Tourney Underway in Louisville

The Wheelwright high school Maroons won the regional baseball tournament held at Grayson last week, and entered the state tournament at Louisville, today (Thursday).

The winner of the state tournament will go to Selma, Alabama and compete in the Southeastern Interstate high school baseball tournament, June 17-19. There, the Kentucky champion will play the Virginia champion in the first round.

In the state tournament the Maroon nine will take on Newport Catholic which is favored to win the tourney.

Coach Adrian Hall's Maroons have a record of 13 wins and no losses. They began their trek to Louisville by defeating Prestonsburg's Black Cats, 6-3, then won over the Martin Purple Flash, 9-1, in the finals of the district. At Grayson the Maroons defeated Sharpshurg, 10-3; Morehead, 9-1, and the Ashland Tomcats 1-0 in the final game.

The whole Maroon team played great ball through both the district and regional tournaments, but it was largely through pitching of Vondall Lee Hall, who has never lost a high school game, and Jimmy Sword that the Wheelwright lads won their way to the state meet.

Reports from several counties state that aphids have caused a serious shortage of cover crops and alfalfa.

Obituary

Victoria Bell Richmond, daughter of Jess Powers Burchett and Louise Bevin Burchett, was born August 23, 1893 in Floyd county, and departed this life on May 29, 1953 at the home of her daughter on Graham street in Prestonsburg, at the age of 59 years, 9 months and 3 days.

On August 30, 1894 she was given in marriage to Michael Layne (better known as "Judge") Richmond. To this union were born two children: Jesse, who died in infancy, and Mary R. now Mrs. Wm. J. May. As a girl she was converted to the Christian way of life and joined the Methodist church. "She lived all her life in Floyd county; she preached her own funeral," are the words of her daughter, who faithfully watched by her bedside for most of the last five years of her life while she was practically a shut-in.

She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Wm. J. May, her grandson, Wm. J. May, Jr., of Prestonsburg, by two sisters, Mrs. John Branham, on Auxler Road, and Mrs. Octavia Akers, of Prestonsburg. I cannot think of them as dead. Who walk with me no more; Along the path of life I tread They have but gone before.
