This Town— That World

WE CLEAN THE DESK
This week Town-World is being written by an associate of the editor who is more or less just a scribbler of old tales and no columnist. The Chief escaped a few days ago to Florida. Whether as a matter of need or precaution he removed his typewriter to parts unknown. The desk, sans the machine, cluttered with its load of releases, bills, folders, newspapers, magazines, cigarette stubs, paper clips, etcetera, etcetera, and etcetera again, invited sabotage. We began slowly and brazenly to sort and discard. When we got down to year before last's odds and ends of papers we knew we would soon strike bottom. We did and at last I knew for sure what I always suspected. . . The desk top was made of wood.

NEWS OF 1928
Our friend, the irrepressible Bob Harlowe, dropped in to brighten our harassed life a few days ago and left a copy of The Prestonsburg Post that his father, the late Rec. A. C. Harlowe, so ably edited over a quarter a century ago. The issue is dated May 17, 1928.

The two top heads of the 30-year-old paper were, "Miss Oma Preston, Ex-County Supt. Died Last Sunday," and "Task of Curbing Flood Waters In South Begun." Miss Prestons, Floyd county's only woman county superintendent, had died, Sunday, May 13, 1928, at the old Preston home near Eastern. As an evidence of the regard in which she was held by people in this area it was noted that a special train was provided by the railway to rush casket and vault to Eastern and in the days that followed before interment the Beaver Creek passenger train made her home a regular stopping place for the throng that visited or attended the funeral.

As for the other headline this columnist need not comment. "They" are still at the job of curbing flood waters in the South, which includes the Big Sandy valley. A lot of water has gone down since then, a plenty of it last January. A dozen, more or less, surveys and a thousand speeches have hit the newspapers since then but the job of curbing is still just a promise and a headline.

HOW THIS COLUMN GETS WRITTEN
Perhaps a few of you wonder about how this column, when the senior ed. is here, gets written.

The process begins early Thursday morning. The main news stories and the heads are all written. The senior ed. sits down at his typewriter, lets his finger stray over the keys, all the time staring in a vacant sort of way out of the window.

"You writing Town-World, I ask. 'Yes, going to,' the Chief says. 'You got any ideas?'"
"No, not a one." I usually reply. Then there is continued staring out of the window. After a few moments he drops his eyes to the

RETAIL ASSAY SHOWS GAINS

Trade Advances Made In Most Businesses; Auto Sales, Exception

A new survey of business, just made public, shows that retail activity in Floyd county was at a high level right through the first half of last year.

Personal expenditures, stimulated by high earnings and growth in population, advanced to a record. Price rises accounted for a part of it.

The report, issued by the Standard Rate and Data Service, is based on data gathered from Federal, state and local sources. It assays the economic strength of each section of the country for the twelve months ending July 1, 1957. In the light of the volume of retail business done, it is the first such study covering that period.

In Floyd county, it shows, the gross business in the local retail stores aggregated $18,329,000 in the year. It exceeded the $18,082,000 mark set in the previous year.

Advances were made in most categories of retail trade, a notable exception being automobiles. Had business continued for the remainder of the year at the same pace, new highs would have been established for the calendar year. Just how much the recent drop has cut into these gains will not be known for some months.

SCHOOLS VAN YULE SEASON CELEBRATION

Pageants, Carols Feature Holiday Festivities; Caney Distributes Gifts Widely

Pageants, choral presentations, Yule trees, and the traditional presents were symbols of the spirit of Christmas that premeated the schools last week as they celebrated the Nativity. All high schools and most of the grades presented programs.

Programs offered the students, selected groups or the general public in the several schools of the county follow:

Prestonsburg grade — (1) A pageant was presented with the first, second, third and fifth grades providing the choral music at an assembly in the evening for the parents and public. (2) Tape recordings of the program were made for a radio-cast. (3) A live radio program of carols was given from the court-house steps. (4) Individual teachers had trees in their rooms.

Prestonsburg high school—(1). Presentation of a program by the school's music department for the student body. (2) The same program was offered to the parents and public on an evening preceding Christmas Eve. (3) Each home room had a tree for its pupils.

Allen grade school—(1) The school gave a pageant in song and story by the primary grades assisted with musical numbers by

UTILITY FIRMS ALTER SETUPS

UFGC Consumer Outlets Here Sold To Cent. Ky.; CKNGC To Change Name

As of Wednesday gas users in this section served by the United Fuel Gas Company will receive gas from the Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Inc., according to an announcement this week.

John W. Partridge, president, said the change is a step in the long range plan of the Columbia Gas System to simplify its organization and reduce the number of operating companies.

The name change was accomplished in two stages by two Columbia Gas affiliates as follows:

1. United Fuel Gas company sold all of its distribution property in Kentucky to Central Kentucky Natural Gas Company on January 1.

2. At the same time, Central Kentucky adopted its new name, Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Inc.

United Fuel serves about 22,000 Kentucky customers, principally in the Ashland area in nine southeastern counties.

As a result of these changes, Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Inc., will own and operate property serving 70,000 retail customers in approximately 40 cities and communities in 27 counties.

Partridge said "We will continue the high quality of service now provided. Company offices will be operated in the same manner, although under a different name. As soon as possible we will make the necessary name changes on all our buildings and transportation vehicles."

Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Inc., will have two distribution districts in Kentucky—Lexington and Ash-

Underwood Twins, Never Separated, Back From Korea

Grade and Hardy Underwood, 20-year-old twins of Prestonsburg, who have completed 17 months overseas service in Korea, returned two weeks ago to spend the holidays with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Underwood, Man, W. Va., and their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Grade Hubbard, Prestonsburg.

The twins, both of the Prestonsburg high school, were never separated while in the medical department of the armed service. They are being reassigned to Walter Reed Medical Center at Washington, D. C., where they will complete courses in male nursing. Both veterans, who will be discharged in the autumn of this year, will resume nursing as a profession after their discharge.

PARKS GROUP IN AGREEMENT

Dorsey and Fitzpatrick Tell Committee of Aid Needed for Dewey Lake

The 24-man committee for Kentucky State Parks, meeting at Frankfort recently, was in agreement on the necessity of harmony in planning and working for improvement of the state's parks.

Members representing this area and Dewey Lake State Park in particular were the Rev. Harold W. Dorsey and H. D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., both of Prestonsburg. Each member was called on to join in the discussion, and the spirit of working together for all parks was expressed by each speaker.

Pointing out that the committee must agree on amounts asked for parks, the Reverend Dorsey said, "We do not think the amount of money suggested for Dewey Lake is enough, but it is about what can be used in the next two years. Roads will come from the Highway Department. We are not satisfied in the Dewey Lake area—tourists are inquiring about overnight facilities. Camping areas in woods or along the lake front are needed. We need to develop facilities for overnight guests and dining room facilities. The economy of the state can be improved if the worth of Eastern Kentucky is considered."

Mr. Fitzpatrick expressed interest in amounts previously earmarked for each state park and asked if sums allocated to each can be spent in the next two years. "We are making tremendous progress at Dewey Lake," he told the group. "We have a large park of 15,000 acres; 500,000 people have been visiting it, year in and year out. In 1959 we will be in position to spend money on park developments. We will not be able to spend much in 1958, but will need all we can secure in 1959. Senators and Representatives seem to think $150,000 a low figure," he added, referring to the amount allocated Dewey Lake State Park.

(Buckhorn State Park, a park to be located on a lake yet nonexistent, was allocated $300,000 in the "package plan" adopted recently, but since this money cannot be spent now figures may be subject to change.

Mr. Fitzpatrick also said the feeling that $150,000 is a figure too low

Mrs. Maymie B. Smith, 77, Of Prestonsburg, Victim; Native Of West Virginia

Mrs. Maymie Blanche Smith, 77, of Prestonsburg, was found dead on the floor of her home at 10 a.m. Friday. A coroner's inquest held that she had been dead 10 to 12 hours, presumably from a heart attack. She was a native of Kanawah county, West Virginia.

Mrs. Smith, who lived alone, was the daughter of Peyton W. and Fannie C. Walker and the widow of T. W. Smith, Prestonsburg contractor, who preceded her in death in 1940. She was a member of the Presbyterian church for 34 years.

She is survived by four sons and daughters: Clyde Smith, Prestonsburg, Woodrow Smith, New York City, Mrs. E. P. Davis, of Justell, and Mrs. John Martin, Louisville. Surviving are two brothers: William C. Walker, St. Petersburg, Fla., and Roy P. Walker, Charleston, W. Va. Surviving also are 13 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral rites were conducted at 1 p.m., Sunday, from the Presbyterian church here, the Revs. Paul Bingham and Howard C. Church officiating. Burial was made in the Mayo cemetery under the direction of Moore Funeral Home.

GIFTS OF PEOPLE OF GOOD WILL BRIGHTENS HOLIDAYS FOR TRIO

Randall Conley, age four, happily receives the many gifts Santa Claus brought him Christmas Eve. The presents were contributed by Prestonsburg businessmen. "Little Randy," as the nurses call him at the Prestonsburg General hospital, was the victim of injuries received several weeks ago when both legs were broken. He will lie in traction another week.

Last week, through the promptings of the spirit of Christmas and the innate good will of people, three persons, who could only anticipate a dreary, pain-wracked holiday season, were made happy with gifts and good cheer.

The trio was that of little Randall Conley, four-year-old boy with his broken legs in traction at the Prestonsburg General hospital; Rosella Auxier, now in a t.b. sanatorium, one of her daughters as an out-patient of a medical institution and three other children to care for, was dragging herself around the home a few days ago, needing surgery because her back was broken, her foot and leg crushed.

To these three last week cheer was brought because people were filled with the spirit of good will that traditionally pervades at Christmas. Randy never had such a Christmas. Jolly St. Nicholas brought loads of toys to his bedside in the hospital. Miss Auxier was the recipient of cash and gifts that flowed to her room. Mrs. Jones, through a drive initiated and headed by the Rev. Robert Martin, was given funds to enable her to go to the Methodist hospital at Pikeville.

The Conley child received approximately $100 worth of clothing and toys contributed by Prestonsburg stores and individuals. The things of cheer were delivered by a committee to the hospital through the kind offices of another businessman, alias Santa Claus.

AGENTS ISSUE WORK TOTALS

39,000 Miles Traveled By Farm Agents in '57; Sheep Progress Noted

The Floyd County Extension Service released this week a summary of their 1957 activities to the general public and the farmers. It statistically points up the extensive and diverse agricultural work the service was able to perform last year and notes much of the farm improvement promoted through the agents' efforts.

Typical of the attention-arresting statistics in the summary is that of the mileage traveled by the staff. All of them chalked up 39,922 miles on Extension work in the county. The staff consists of Robert M. Jones, agent, Dixie T. Higgins, home demonstration agent, Jack M. Friar and David Gillespie, both assistant agents.

"The Floyd County Extension Council has the overall responsibility of planning the Extension program," the summary of activities noted. "This council met three times last year. One project for the council in 1958 will be to work out a long time plan of work for the service based on the problems in the county."

Excerpts from the summary follow:
Extension agents made 530 farm visits during the year, also had 1,119 office calls and received 1,725 telephone calls. One hundred thirty-seven news articles were published in the paper.

Agents distributed 2,160 bulletins on agriculture, home economics and 4-H subjects. Two hundred seventy-seven radio broadcasts were made over WPRF, and three television programs were participated in by agents.

The report stated that 19 results demonstrations were held, 19 training meetings, and 326 other meetings were held. Eighty-eight circular letters were written, copies were sent to 7,338 people. The production of family food supply was stressed by extension agents in 1957. Garden meetings were held in 12 communities, and 400 copies of a garden and food preservation booklet were written.

REGION'S UNSURPASSED TRADER REMINISCES AT FOUR-SCORE MARK

By HENRY P. SCALF

The candles, marking the passage of time for W. J. Turner at his birthday celebration at Drift last week, represented four score years. However to Big Bill, his relatives and friends, the candles noted much more. In between the flickering points of light they read a story of hardship and struggle, of poverty, and a slow, sure climb to success.

Life for W. J. began in 1878 at Minnie in a rough, buckeye, log house. In this home, presided over by John and Jemima Turner, there were six other children. As a mere boy he had much of hard labor and a little schooling when he was 11 years old. School terminated permanently at the Simpson Martin Branch at the end of a three-month term. He didn't attend all of it, either. His father withheld him two weeks to do some chores and withdrew him at times for days to fodder and dig potatoes.

Big Bill, as his friends call him for he weighs much in excess of 300 pounds, likes to reminisce about how he got his first school books, one of them being a second hand blue back speller. Hours

STATE AGENCY TREATS 125

Floyd Crippled Children Given Medical Attention; Speech Therapy Initiated

Floyd county had 125 children treated by the Kentucky Crippled Children Commission in the last two years, according to the Commission's recent biennial report to the Governor. A total of 8,194 children were treated in various hospitals through the efforts of the official agency for the two-year period ending June 30, last year, the report shows.

Letcher county tied with this county in the number treated but several other counties had high numbers. Harlan county had 204 cases, Pike, 110, Perry county, 136, Breathitt county, 119, and Boyd, 130. Jefferson county, with its largest population led the state with 1,701 cases of crippled children treated.

"The Kentucky Crippled Children Commission is the official state agency," it was noted by Marvin Williamson, director, in the report. "It was created in 1924 by an Act of the General Assembly and is responsible for the care and medical treatment of handicapped children under the age of 21 whose parents or guardians are financially unable in whole or in part to provide such care."

Other than the Eastern Kentucky counties named there were none with as high or higher number of children treated. Knott county had only 40 cases, Martin, 38, Lawrence, 32, Johnson, 36, Magoffin, 50, Leslie 58, Morgan, 29, and Elliott, 27.

The Commission, recognizing the need for speech therapy, treated 12,547 cases of speech defects in the biennium. Funds for speech rehabilitation were made available to Commission from the Governor's emergency fund.

Six treatment centers for crippled children are maintained at convenient locations in the state to advance the work. These are at Ashland, Covington, Lexington, Louisville, Owensboro, and Paducah. Field clinics were held in the biennium at Prestonsburg and at Pikeville to discover and advise on cases, it was pointed out.

REED OBJECTS TO PROPOSAL OF NEW LAWS

Drift Mine Operator Says Early Acquisitions Opened Area Development

B. F. Reed, Drift coal operator, took issue this week with a proposal to submit a petition to the next General Assembly seeking certain legislation in the truck mining field. The petition was prepared by Will Boggs, of Garrett, who is a gas service employe of the Public Service Commission. Boggs asked for public support through the medium of The Times three weeks ago.

Reed, the largest buyer of truck mine coal in this county, stated that the early owners of minerals used their best judgment in selling their holdings. Boggs had deplored these sales.

"They probably made no more mistakes than the present generation is making," Reed said. "At least they set in motion the events that were needed to develop the coal lands in Floyd and neighboring counties. They did what was necessary to encourage building of railroads and mining plants."

The Reed statement follows: "I believe that for every person that has been inconvenienced by a small truck mine in Floyd county, there are at least a hundred people who have benefitted materially. The benefits are far reaching. They start with a job that enables the man to support his family. Floyd county today realizes about a half million dollars of income monthly from the truck mining industry. On this income depends trade of all kinds. Dozens of small businesses in the county live on the money brought into the county through the sale of this coal. It helps to pay the professional people; it supports our educational system and it gives life to the sale of automobiles and the supplies to keep them operating."

"If Floyd county were as a location for new business, employing 25 men, we'd have big celebration. Two or three small truck mines furnish equivalent employment and the earnings of the men are probably greater than they would be in some other plant. The reference to these mines as 'rat holes' is unjustified. I am continually amazed at the self reliance and the ability and the independence

FIFTH POLIO CASE STRIKES

Lewis Home on Mare-Cr.; Neighbor Child's Illness Presumed Also As Polio

Polio has apparently struck twice in two adjoining homes on Mare Creek and doctors fear paralysis will have severe effects, it was learned Tuesday. One of the cases, that of Randall Lewis, three-year-old son of Deputy Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis, has been definitely diagnosed as polio and the other child, Lavada Lee Jarrell, two-and-a-half-month old daughter Raymond Jarrell, is in King's Daughter hospital, Ashland, with confirmation of polio expected.

The two families live on adjacent farms on Mare Creek. The Lewis child was stricken Dec. 16 but first polio was not suspected. It was taken to the United Mine Workers Memorial hospital at Williamson.

The Jarrell child became ill several weeks ago and was first brought to the attention of the Floyd County Health Department, Nov. 5, according to M. V. Clark, administrator. Paralysis has already set in, it was said, but definite diagnosis of polio has been delayed until the doctors can be positive. Neither of the children had had Salk vaccine, it was said.

If the Jarrell babe has polio, and a definite diagnosis was expected Wednesday, it will make the sixth case in this county this year, according to Ray Howard, Floyd County director of the Infantile Paralysis Foundation. Two of the cases were similar to the Mare Creek case inasmuch as both children attacked lived in adjoining homes in the Mud Creek section.

Howard pointed out this week that through the March of Dimes program the Floyd county chapter was caring for or had under supervision 43 cases, some of them of long-standing. One child, it was noted, had been under treatment for 13 years and has now been rehabilitated to the point where it can walk and enter school.

JUDGE BEN MOORE BOOK

A new book on a section of Eastern Kentucky, written by a distinguished son, is "Heritage of Freedom," published by Denison & Co., Minneapolis. Its author, a native of Magoffin county, is Ben Moore, now a judge of the Federal bench at Charleston, W. Va. He is a brother of Albert Moore, publisher and editor of the Salversville Independent.

We excerpt the following from a book report of the book:

Judge Ben Moore native of Magoffin county and now Federal District Judge for the Southern District of West Virginia has written a book telling of his early experience in Magoffin county, his school days at Magoffin Institute and his rise from this humble positions in the legal profession.

We follow him from his family life on Burning Fork, in what he fondly portrays as the "real backwoods" of a half century ago, through his experience in the commercial world as a bank employee, streetcar and land company bookkeeper and "correspondence school lawyer" to his venture in politics and election as Judge of the Common Pleas Court of Kanawah County, W. Va. (an office similar to our Circuit Judge), and his eventual appointment to the Federal bench.

The latter half of the book deals with some of the cases which have come before him on the federal bench with analysis of the cases themselves and his instructions to juries.

MISSING WOMAN

A letter from Clarksville, Texas, inquires about a missing woman with Floyd county connections. The writer, Rev. F. Simcox, asks help in locating a Nell Yarbrough.

"That is her maiden name," the minister writes. "She would be about 45 years of age at this time. She is said to have a half-brother by the name of Victor Layne. There was a Victor Layne from Floyd county some years ago. This woman lived in Memphis, Tennessee, around 1931. She later went to St. Louis."

Anyone desiring to write Rev. Simcox may address him at 501 E. ... Clarksville, Texas.

GOBBLE-GOBLE FAMILY

J. R. Goble, Idaho Falls, Idaho, writes he is a self-appointed genealogist of the Goble family.

"The name was originally Gabel and pronounced in German as we say turkey "gobble." It was Americanized before the Revolutionary War and subsequent to that several members dropped one of the 'b's' to make it Goble. There are many by the name Goble and Gobel and Gabel and other similar spellings who are not my relatives but most of our relatives have retained Goble and a few Goble. . . . I have been in correspondence with many of the name in particularly every state in the Union, dozens of whom I can't connect with each other or with my own family."

Mr. Goble is a descendant of Isaac Goble and Elizabeth "Betsy" Musick Goble through their son Thomas Wilson Goble and his second wife, Jenima Ellen Taylor.

Thomas Wilson Goble was born Aug. 20, 1814, in Washington county, Va., married Jan. 8, 1839, died at Abingdon, Iowa, April 5, 1913. His wife was a native of Manchester, England, died at Abingdon, March 14, 1912.

Mrs. Jeston, 106, Offers Reasons For Longevity

West Liberty. — When Mrs. Jeston Gevedon of nearby Grassy Creek was 100 years old, she was described as a pert and petite centenarian.

Now approaching her 106th birthday, which will be next Monday, "Aunt" Jeston still fits the phrase.

She might even be called a bit more "pert", for then she said resignedly, "I'm ready to go." More recently, she said, "I'm willing to live longer, the Lord willing."

When the photographer inquired about her health, she told him, "I'm fine for a woman who is over a hundred years old." When he prepared to leave Mrs. Gevedon's farm home, she called after him, "Be a good boy. There's a better world we're going to."

Mrs. Jeston Gevedon embodies feminine logic. As soon as she learned that she was to be photographed she asked for a fresh ruffled cap for her head and her special red woolen shawl to be put around her shoulders.

Mrs. Gevedon is in remarkably good health, and says she has never had an ache or pain, despite being bedfast five years, since she fell and broke her hip.

She has lost her hearing, but her memory is clear and she likes to read. A constant companion is her old clay pipe, which she has smoked almost 90 years.

What accounts for her longevity?

She says she eats leisurely, airs her house daily, goes to sleep with a clear conscience, never remembers unkind words, is without fear of any kind, and has a firm faith in God.

Capitol Notebook

Everybody likes trees. But proper forestry practice is a comparatively new idea in Kentucky. All at once, it seems, Kentuckians are beginning to realize that our forests are exhaustible.

Forests, however, are unlike other natural resources. Forests are renewable. So reforestation occupies a prominent place in any good conservation plan.

Kentucky has had a forestry agency since 1912. In 1936, it became a division in the Department of Conservation. Its function and duties under law may be summarized this way:

"The Division of Forestry shall protect, develop and keep continually productive the forests of Kentucky."

The division's program consists of these phases: reforestation, fire control and cooperative forest management. The agency is headed by a director who is in charge of all forestry work.

Kentucky is divided into nine forestry districts, all active except one. A district forester is in charge of all forestry work within a district. He has the services of a full-time and several part-time employees.

Landowners may consult the district forester about their tree problems or write to the agency at Frankfort for aid.

FINANCIAL NOTE

Each Legislator receives a salary of $25 a day plus $10 a day for expenses for his work in Frankfort during a session of the General Assembly. The State also pays for travel expenses between the legislator's home and the capital at 15 cents a mile. Legislators also are allotted $50 for stationery and postage.

AID TO LAWMAKERS

As they sit in session, Kentucky's legislators have help with their duties.

Most staff assistance is provided by the Legislative Research Commission. It is composed of Lt. Gov. Harry Lee Waterfield, the president pro tem of the senate, the speaker of the house, and the majority and minority floor leaders of each house.

The commission's research staff works between legislative sessions, studying problems of current legislative interest. During the sessions, the staff will prepare factual and important research data on any subject pertaining to legislation at the request of a senator or representative.

The staff also drafts bills and amendment to laws.

RECOLLECTIONS

I recall the old saying that a marriage ceremony should never take place in the rain. If it does, the bride will shed many tears as the raindrops that fall.—Mrs. Ray Brown, Ashland.

This column invites contributions of similar short items of Kentucky folklore. Contributors will be sent a free issue of In Kentucky Magazine. Address: Recollection, Ky., Dept. of Public Relations, Capitol Annex, Frankfort).

SAFETY FIRST

Kentucky's coal industry, reports the Department of Mines and Minerals, has not allowed progress in production to outstrip efforts for safe working conditions. The number of tons of coal produced per fatal mining accident is now four times greater than that of 30 years ago. For each fatal accident connected with the production of coal, 13 occur on the streets and highways of our state.

Seventh Governor Also Famed as Military Hero

By Charles F. Hinds Secretary-Treasurer, Kentucky Historical Society

Frankfort, Jan. 2 — John Adair, Kentucky's seventh Governor, had one chief qualification for the office in common with his predecessors — Shelby, Garrard, Greenup, Scott, Madison, and Slaughter—a distinctive military career as an army officer.

Adair was born in South Carolina in 1757. When the Revolutionary War broke out, he was in his late teens. He immediately enlisted in General Thomas Sumter's command and rose to major.

He moved to Kentucky in 1786. In 1791, he served in General St. Clair's abortive campaign against the Northwest Indians. Adair's ability and personal bravery were recognized by his promotion in the following year to lieutenant colonel.

In 1793, he was elected to the Legislature from Mercer County, attesting to the frontier's high regard for military service. He served eight terms in the State House from 1793 to 1803.

The year 1801 marked the first high point in Adair's political career: He was elected Speaker of the House, and Adair County was formed and named in his honor.

His well-known connection with Aaron Burr in 1805, though not of a treasonous nature was held as such by the public. When he failed to be elected to the United States Senate in 1806, Adair's political career seemed to be at an end.

The War of 1812 served as an opportunity to Governor Isaac Shelby, who appointed him brigadier general.

On January 8, 1815, the Battle of New Orleans was fought. General Adair and 1,100 Kentuckians gave good account of themselves in the center of the line on the east bank of the Mississippi, but on the west bank, 170 ill-equipped Kentuckians "ingloriously fled," according to an official report by General Andrew Jackson.

Adair took up the cudgels with Jackson over the sullied reputation of Kentucky militiamen, a popular act which led to Adair's election as governor in 1820.

Adair's administration was marked by a serious economic depression with which he proved unable to cope. He died in 1840 and was buried in Mercer county. In 1872, the State Legislature had him reinterred in Frankfort.

Protestant Tithing Is Showing Revival, Publication Reports

A revival of the practice of tithing, giving a tenth of one's income to the church, has started a spiritual revolution in Protestantism, Leland Stowe reports in the January Reader's Digest.

In the article, "Modern Tithing—A Vital Revival," Stowe says that since 1950, ten major denominations have launched tithe campaigns. Contributions have doubled and tripled; hundreds of new churches have been built; support of missions has broken all records.

One of the first to start such a campaign, with almost immediate success, was Grace Episcopal, in Port Huron, Mich., whose rector, the Rev. Dr. Austin E. DuPan, took his cue from the success of smaller denominations—such as the Nazarenes. These groups have always tithed, and averaged far more in contributions per family than the larger, richer denominations.

The Episcopal Diocese of Michigan picked up the Port Huron idea. In 1952, the Presbyterian Church U. S. A. (membership 2,717,000) started a long-term program beginning with 12 "pilot churches", which showed equally startling results. First Presbyterians, in Berkeley, Calif., set a goal of $30,000 the first year and raised $33,000; average contributions at Irvington Presbyterian Church, in Indianapolis jumped by $9.60 its first "pilot" year; the brand-new John Knox Presbyterian Church in Tulsa had one-third of its members tithing within four months.

In 1953, the Joint Department of Stewardship and Benevolence of the National Council of Churches reported tithing campaigns by both the American and Southern Baptists Conventions (total membership 10,200,000); The United Lutherans (2,174,000); The Congregational Christian Churches (1,379,000); the United Presbyterians (250,000) and two other smaller denominations.

Two Paintsville Stores Robbed Christmas Eve; No Clues Are Uncovered

Two side-by-side department stores on Main street of Paintsville were robbed Christmas Eve, one of them of an estimated $4,000 to $5,000.

Entry was gained to both the A. W. Cox store, where a safe was battered and pried open, and Scott's store through barred back doors by means of heavy crowbars, Police Chief Bill Whitten said.

Dennis Vanhooose, manager of Scott's said the robbers made off with only a small, undetermined amount of cash from a cash register, which was damaged in the break-in.

Scott's was broken into three months ago by robbers who took merchandise valued by Vanhooose at $500 to $600.

Both stores had remained open late Christmas Eve to accommodate Christmas shoppers.

Whitten said there were no immediate leads to the robbers.

Two Homes Destroyed By Post-Christmas Fires

The town's second fire since Christmas razed a four-room house at South Prestonsburg (Lancaster), Wednesday evening, at 6 o'clock. The house was owned by Joe A. Spradlin but tenanted by Kenneth Leslie. Failure of the owner to effect a call to the fire department here because of a party telephone line delayed the alarm, it was said by Almos Gray, fire chief. When the fire department arrived the blaze was out of control and wind hampered the firemen's efforts. Extent of damage was not learned and it was said the building and contents were uninsured.

A fire, caused it is thought by defective wiring, destroyed the second floor of the home of Mrs. Fannie Collins on Third avenue, Christmas night. The upper floor was completely gutted of furniture and personal belongings. Water fell through the first floor ceiling and destroyed plastering, damaged furniture and furnishings on the ground floor.

Mrs. Collins was watching a T-V program when she smelled smoke and upon opening an inner door found the fire raging. Firemen brought it under control in a short time but before the building was either consumed or ruined.

Damage is estimated at $13,000. The building was partially insured.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

ADVANCING EDUCATION IN KENTUCKY

By ROBERT R. MARTIN

There are 1,279 schools in Kentucky having four or more teachers. In order for these schools to be "ready for business" during each day of a normal school year, they require constant attention.

Each day many square miles of floors must be swept and mopped, and more than half a million desks must be dusted. But in addition to cleanliness, it is also necessary to provide adequate heat, light, power, and gas. These are the housekeeping operations that are a necessary part of every school's daily routine.

Housekeeping, coupled with good maintenance keep our schools usable from year to year. These services are referred to in school budgets as school plant operation expenditures.

In 1957, expenditures for school plant operation accounted for 12.7 per cent of the total expenditures for the public schools in Kentucky, or more than $10,000,000.

Obviously, maintenance and housekeeping represent an important part of the day to day operation of Kentucky's schools. Because this is true, the Department of Education recognized the importance of providing consultative services in the area of maintenance and school plant operation. Therefore, a specialist in this field was appointed to the staff of the Division of Buildings and Grounds with the express responsibility of assisting local school plant operation. Therefore, a specialist in this field was appointed to the staff of the Division of Buildings and Grounds with the express responsibility of assisting local school districts with problems relating to school plant operation.

Also, due to the growing significance of school plant operation in Kentucky's educational program, a conference was held by the Kentucky Association of School Administrators in cooperation with the Advisory Council on Public Education in Kentucky December 12-14, devoted to consideration of problems of maintenance, school plant operation, and insurance. Superintendents of the 216 school districts in Kentucky were invited to this meeting and most of them attended.

Annual maintenance consists of such things as floor refinishing, desk repair, wall washing, curtain cleaning, and boiler repairs; painting, plumbing repair, heating and playground upkeep and dozens of other things that come up during an average school year.

In order to provide these services, local school districts in Kentucky employ hundreds of janitorial and custodial personnel. There is ample evidence that these employees are doing a good job. But their jobs will become more difficult as we construct new schools and as increases in enrollment place new pressures on present buildings.

The recent conference devoted to school plant operation and the addition of a specialist in the Department of Education who can advise local school districts on problems in this area should help us get more for our maintenance dollar as well as insurance that our children's schools are clean, well kept, and always operational.

Certainly this is a vital part of the scheme of advancing education in Kentucky.

U. S. farm population is now 13 percent of the total population.

of the men in these truck mines. They take great pride in their business and they are slaves to no one.

"There are few cases where cooperation and a sincere effort to reach an understanding, will not solve a controversial problem. Probably none of us are blameless but if we approach the problem with the desire to work it out to the best advantage, I'm satisfied it can always be done so that no one is badly hurt. Anyone who believes that it would be practical to buy surface rights and right-of-way, which was already paid for at the time title to the coal was granted, hasn't been in the coal business and doesn't know the problems that the coal operator in Floyd county faces. Much of the coal that is being mined would not be mined in our generation, probably never, except for the small truck mine. Our coal industry is competing with areas that have seams of coal that are four and five feet thick and have good mining conditions. These mines set the price for coal during the times when there is an ample supply for the market; at such times only the most efficient and the most ingenious operators are able to stay in the business, in this area where we have really thin seams. There is no place for an added burden, and if burdens are added, the operators can only withdraw and let the coal go unmined.

"The condition of the roads is often a problem. Very often the small operator using the road is unable financially to do very much about improving them. Certainly it's an imposition on other people living along these roads to have them become impassable for their use. I believe our county has a responsibility because primarily the road is the means of furnishing employment for a number of people and through that employment and the income from it the county lives. Again, those who believe that the coal industry can, itself, build the roads and maintain them, don't know about the coal business as it is today. Much can be done by cooperation but nothing but destruction will come of neighbor fighting neighbor because the thing that is a problem for one man provides a job for his neighbor.

Actually I know of little good land that has been destroyed. Generally it's barren hillside on which the owner never paid taxes and on which he would violently oppose any value being fixed for tax purposes. Floyd county will need to live on the small truck mine industry for some years. I doubt that many of our people will be interested in signing a petition that will do away with 1,500 jobs in Floyd county."

SEARS ROEBUCK FOUNDATION

On December 10 a dinner meeting of leaders, 4-H members, and county agents was held in the Howard hotel at Paintsville. This meeting was to discuss progress for the past year and formulate plans for the year. The Sears-Roebuck Foundation Strawberry and poultry project for next year.

Seven Eastern Kentucky counties were represented. They were Perry, Knott, Morgan, Johnson, Lawrence, Magoffin, and Floyd. Representing Floyd county were Glenn Branham, Prestonsburg Senior Club; Tommy Harris, Brandy Keg Club and Jack Friar, assistant county agent.

Each of the counties reported to the group and John Austin, representing Sears-Roebuck Foundation, as to how the two projects had progressed during the previous years. After this C. E. Harris, Extension specialist in poultry, gave a short talk on poultry in Eastern Kentucky and W. W. Magill, Extension specialist in strawberries, gave a talk on the strawberry outlook for next year.

Austin informed the group that the Foundation would again sponsor the poultry and strawberry project next year. This means that the Foundation will give enough plants, fertilizer and chloradane to set 25 one-fourth acre plots. The 4-H member in return agrees to follow approved practices of production and marketing recommended by the county agricultural agent and Extension specialists of the University of Kentucky. Also during the first harvesting season the club member will give one crate of strawberries or its equivalent in money, to the County 4-H Council for further promotion of similar projects.

In the poultry project, ten groups of 100 chickens will be given away. The club member will feed and care for these chicks in accordance with recommendations from the Agricultural Experiment Station. They will select 12 pullets to be shown and sold with the money being used to continue the project the following year. The Foundation will furnish prize money for the show.

Any club member interested in enrolling in either of these projects should apply to the extension office as soon as possible.

Stumbo had the money and watch.

John Turner, while he may have been only a poor mountain farm "renter," did know horses. One look at the equine specimen W. J. brought in was enough. His father ordered him to get rid of her at once. The mare was a "corn crib without slats," he said, and would take all their feed to get her through the winter.

The young trader appealed to his mother and she promised to intercede for him but W. J. knew his father was a man of few words. If he said get rid of that horse he meant just that. However in a few days John Turner, a bit out of character, relented and told his son to keep the mare.

W. J. went to work on the scraggly mare. Buying medicinal powders said beneficial he massaged and treated the sores. Curing and feed wrought wonders. The next spring she foaled a colt. Her owner went trading again, met a Perry county man with a mule at a Baptist Association on Stonecoal Creek. They swapped.

A few days afterward he exchanged the mule for a horse. He had acquired a saddle now and was rising in the horse trading fraternity.

After these first few trading experiences the young scion of a hillside farmer was really learning the rudiments and a few of the fine points of trading. He began to swap, trade and buy. He acquired and disposed of horses, mules, sheep, cattle and pocket knives. He would trade for anything and always he made a profit, be it large or small.

By the time W. J. was 26 years old he had saved a few hundred dollars and married Cicely Robinette, daughter of the late Elbert Robinette, of Harold. His father-in-law offered the young couple a home with him but W. J. tactfully refused. The newlyweds went to Turkey Creek, rented a worn-out farm from Isom Moore for $20 per year. They outfitted the house with home-made furniture and went to work.

Despite all prophecies of failure the young farmer was successful. He raised a good crop because he worked almost day and night. Many nights he hung a lantern on trees or stood it on stumps to give him light to work. Next year he sold corn, bought a few head of cattle. For five years he toiled on the sterile acres, forcing them to yield a competence. By 1908 he had saved $1,300 and was the owner of several head of livestock.

He moved from Turkey Creek to Sizemore Creek of left Beaver, bought a farm of 140 acres from John G. Turner. It was here that he began to expand his trading operation, not only in livestock but in anything that would yield a profit. He began to trade in real estate. Buying, selling and trading farms and lots he began to accumulate wealth. He did it by dint of hard work, a native shrewdness and a fairness that everybody recognized and respected.

Today W. J. Turner is the Floyd county's largest individual taxpayer. His holdings are widely scattered, being in properties in this state, chiefly on Beaver Creek and at Prestonsburg, Pikeville and Lexington. He helped organize the First Guaranty Bank at Martin, was instrumental in interesting the Reeds to develop Left Beaver coal mines. His interests broadened out of the state and he now owns, it is said, real property in Virginia, Ohio and Tennessee.

And what of this man who started from "scratch" with practically no formal education and worked forward to such an outstanding success? What are the basic elements of the rugged character that "made him tick" under heavy odds?

For one thing it was his gregariousness and as a matter of reciprocity people liked him. He was a good, if teetotaler companion, even on the "horse-swapping grounds" where trading and drinking went together. And he liked the fascinating game of trading, of the matching of wits against a man who often as not was trying to "skin" him. People, too, liked his generosity, his open-handed way with those less fortunate.

While operating a general merchandise store at Drift he was wont to recall the drunk that taught him a basic lesson in finance. The imbibing friend was talkative, handing out free advice. One of the listeners was young Willie Turner. The drunk was jingling money in his pocket.

"By gum, Willie," the drunk advised while rattling the coins in his pocket, "when a man fars back and jingles money in his pocket you must always have some in your pocket to jingle back at him."

Willie, the youngster, now the respected "W. J." of business and finance and never an imbibor, took the advice of the drunk and always tried to have money in his pocket to "jingle right back at em."

But Big Bill was never the "jingling" type although he was able, if he had been so inclined.

In 1940, the average price of steers at Chicago (per hundred-weight) was $10.48; in 1957, the price is $22.65.

NATIONAL EDUCATION GROUP ASKS FEDERAL SCHOOL AID

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A broad, long range four and a half billion dollar program of federal support for public schools is urged by the National Education Association (NEA), as the main plank in its 1958 legislative proposals for consideration by Congress.

"Schools have been starved too long," NEA Executive William G. Carr said, speaking for the 703,000-member association. "The public schools are trying to defend our way of government and advance the well-being of the nation, yet many people don't want to give education the necessary financial help."

Carr spoke at a press conference at which the NEA's Legislative Commission presented the professional organization's legislative program for the second session of the 85th Congress. Commission chairman is Irving F. Pearson, executive secretary of the Illinois Education Association. James L. McCaskill is executive secretary of the Commission which met with representatives from 46 states in Chicago last week to work out the new proposals.

In stepping up its basic approach to the problem of financing public education, the Commission said a massive program of federal financial support has become a national necessity in light of present world conditions. McCaskill said, "schools now need continuing federal support. Teachers of America have a responsibility to tell people the truth about the needs of our schools."

The new long-range program of almost five billion dollars contrasts with the 300 million dollar federal aid bill the NEA supported last year.

The Commission's report, which translates NEA policy into an action program, urged "an infusion of federal funds for basic support of elementary and secondary education," and said that federal funds should be appropriated to the states for distribution locally either for school construction or for supplementing teacher salaries without regard for subject matter taught.

Beginning federal contributions of not less than $25 per school age child were urged with a steady increase to at least $100 a child in five years. The current average overall expenditure per school age child in the nation is $332. McCaskill pointed out that districts which have expended strong local efforts in construction in recent years could probably use larger proportions of these funds to raise salaries.

The new program also urged 20,000 undergraduate scholarships the first year, growing to 80,000 in four years, and 5,000 graduate fellowships which would be increased to 15,000 after three years. This broad plan which could begin quickly at all levels, would cost about 40 million dollars, rising to 160 million annually.

The Commission also urged strengthening all aspects of the various state departments of education. "This will be one more assurance that the instructional program can't be dictated to states and communities from any higher level," McCaskill said.

Continued support of the King-Jenkins Bill to provide tax equity for teachers was also urged. "There has always been an inequity in the treatment of teachers' income taxes," McCaskill said. "Teachers are spending money to become better teachers. These educational expenses should be deductible from gross taxable income. Most teachers now cannot deduct these expenses and this is unjust. And whereas improved educational standards were a need before, they now are a necessity."

The report also requested continuation of federal assistance "for such well-established and clearly useful programs as vocational education, library services, school lunches, and aid to federally-affected areas. No consideration should be given to reduction or termination of these programs until it can be demonstrated that the need can be met from other resources."

In pointing up the need for increased financial support, McCaskill said, "The White House Conference on Education and the President's Committee on Education Beyond the High School point out that within 15 years educational expenditures must be increased at least 75 percent, just to stay where we are now. The number of teachers with emergency certificates and the number of children on half-day sessions are not going down. We know that enrollments are going to continue to grow."

Carr added, "This legislative program is the minimum safe level of federal action, provided that it is accompanied by steady and normal growth in state and local school revenues."

The new proposals urge "matching requirements and other measures to stimulate state and local effort" which would allow states sufficient time to increase their own spending for education.

On this point Carr emphasized, "The best evidence that local communities cannot handle the complete job of educational finance in the future is that despite valiant efforts they haven't done so over the years. The American economy is a rich and powerful instrument which operates at a higher level each year with evidence that it will continue to grow steadily. But changes in the economy have left schools dependent upon an outmoded tax structure."

The report said, "With one half of our public elementary and secondary school revenue tied to local property taxes, there is little hope that local governments can double their contributions to education."

Dr. Carr said, "In one phase of government after another we have recognized that federal funds are needed. Better schools are necessary for survival. The American people own the schools, and they must tell their representatives whether they wish to deal firmly with the accumulated educational crisis now or whether they wish to allow the level of American education to deteriorate."

The new legislative program recognizes the need for increased scientific training but insists that scholarships be awarded for students to attend institutions of their own choice and to pursue courses of study that meet their career goals. McCaskill said the scholarship program should not be based on a single national test. "Federal testing would inevitably slant the curriculum and decide what will be taught. There is grave danger in placing too much emphasis on one test score, and it is far better and fairer to have stronger local guidance subject areas because manpower needs shift, and the nation needs full utilization of everyone's abilities."

McCaskill added, "There is no question that communities, wherever possible, should and will strongly re-examine their school curricula in order to encourage higher standards."

When asked what would happen if substantial support for education is not given by Congress, Carr said, "More of our schools will continue to have many half-day sessions, many of our best brains will never attend college, crowded classrooms will handicap the work of even our best teachers, and we will have a nationwide school system not good enough for the United States in 1958. From here on, it's up to the American people."

5 Truck Mine Permits Revoked by DMT

Frankfort, Jan. 2 — The Department of Motor Transportation revoked five contract carrier truck permits when owners failed to comply with trucking insurance regulations, Assistant Commissioner Delmer Ison reported.

The owners were notified by DMT of the cancelled policies, Ison said, and "given a 30-day grace period to renew the insurance as required by Kentucky law." Failing to comply with these regulations caused the revocation, Ison added.

Permits cancelled were those of General Lee Stone, of Pippa Passes; Louise N. Cox, of London; Herbert Cain, Jr., of Lothair; Oliver Watkins, of Marrowbone, and Leo Allen, of Scottsville.

Hog Prices To Skid From Recent Levels, Economists Predict

Hog prices probably will decline sharply from recent high levels, says the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station's economic department in its bi-weekly outlook letter.

Heavyweight hogs probably will suffer the most as farmers are apparently holding hogs to feed up the large supply of high moisture grain, the letter says; in addition, recent hog slaughter figures were down for the 8-week period ending Dec. 7.

The economists anticipate a $3 to $4 drop from the mid-December prices. This is due, first, to the holding-off of the market of hogs; and secondly, last summer's farrowings was about 4 percent higher than the previous summer. Slaughter weight of hogs this winter probably will be higher than last year, they estimate.

The expected lower level of hog prices may last until early spring, the economists said. Farmers may attempt to use up soft grain before spring by carrying hogs to heavier weights all winter; this would cause relatively heavy hog marketings until early spring. And, by late winter or early spring, heavyweight cattle marketings could be up, which would have some depressing effect on hog prices.

The sales activity reflected continued consumer spending, made possible by high employment and earnings.

Net income in Floyd county, for its estimated 9,850 families, reached a grand total of $32,848,000 after taxes, according to the SRDS survey. This compared favorably with the income in the prior year, $32,643,000.

Apportioned equally among the local population, it amounted to a net spending capacity of $3,335 per family.

This buying power was quickly translated into bigger purchasing in most local retail stores.

More recently there has been a business let-down and some of the zip has disappeared. Consumer spending, while still high, has not continued at the same pace. A watch and wait attitude has entered the picture.

Not until the latter part of 1958, say the economists, will conditions again combine to cause a resumption of the upward climb of recent years. Meanwhile, business will mark time, they say, but on a high plateau.

Named for Colonel Trigg, Trigg County was named for Col. Stephen Trigg, a Virginian who was a well-known Indian fighter.

LEAD AND WALK

Right now I'm staring out of the window, my window, valiantly cudgeling the fagged brain for ideas. All I can think of is to remove my hat. That doesn't help. The snow is filtering down slowly, now and then whipped upward or around by a puff of wind . . . and that reminds me.

Several years ago, on Buffalo Creek, just such a day as this, Uncle Ireland was getting ready for his weekly trip to Betsy Layne with a load of hand-turned, hickory bark bottom chairs. He always walked with the chairs piled on his back in such a fashion that at times, from a distance, he looked like a many-antlered deer moving along the road.

Uncle Ireland was the proud owner of a mule, Old Gyp, who was fine for work but anti-social when saddled. Only the young men of the family could ride her as sun-fishing and side-swaps against the fence were her chief points of resistance when she was ridden.

On the winter day that Uncle Ireland made ready with the chairs he took a few looks at the snow outside, hesitated until his wife and children noticed his reluctance to start.

"Why don't you ride Old Gyp, Dad?" a youngster asked.

"By gum, sonny, you're right," the old man said, starting for the barn. "I'll ride Old Gyp if I have to lead her and walk."

SOUTHERN TOURNAMENT

Although Mississippi State won its own Holiday Invitational tournament, the visiting teams were treated royally in every respect and the southern hospitality of the Magnolia state will hold forth in the minds of Morehead State College players and fans for many years to come.

However, regardless of the slow deliberate game, Morehead blew the game early in the second quarter by making six consecutive offensive mistakes with a 30-24 lead.

With 2.51 remaining and State ahead by 39-37, Morehead could have tied the count or gone ahead, but the Eagles continually erred by dropping the ball out of bounds or by bad passing.

The Southeastern Conference Maroons boast a 910 record, and a fine all-around player in six-foot, seven-inch Bailey Howell, but he is not in the class with some of ex-Kentucky greats, such as Alex Groza, Cliff Hagan and Bill Spivey.

One of Morehead's most enthusiastic supporters in the meet was ex-McDowell ace Bill Martin, who played his college basketball at Morehead where he was an all-O.V.C. center. Martin now works for the Tennessee Gas & Transmission Company in Columbus, Mississippi.

Mississippi State Coach Babe McCarty had never coached in high school or college before moving to the State College campus. He was a mentor in a junior high school . . . Jim Ashmore, State's first all-American last season, is now playing for the Denver-Chicago Truckers in the National Industrial Basketball League.

In beating Alabama in the first round of the tournament, Morehead mentor Bobby Laughlin maintained his record of never losing to coach Doc Lambert, who formerly coached at Memphis State.

HIGH SCHOOL SCENE

Betsy Layne's 78-43 victory over Pikeville in the Pikeville Invitational tournament last Saturday night was the first in the school's history between these neighborhood rivals. Meade Memorial's 82.4 per game average is one of the highest in the state. Oil Springs, which lost to eventual champion Clark County in the Ashland Holiday Tournament, was tabbed as the second best team in the meet. The Johnson Countians suffered their first defeat in 12 games in bowing 78-89 in the first round. Johns Creek's recently completed gymnasium, January 6, with 10-teams scheduled to battle for the crown.

Betsy Layne (13-1) and Oil Springs (11-1), the two leading teams in the Eastern Kentucky area, will meet for the first time Thursday night at 8:30 in the first round of the sixth annual Paintsville Invitational tournament. The semi-finals are carded for Friday at 7 p.m., and 8:30 p.m. and the finals at 1 p.m., Saturday. Joe Hofstetter and Jim Van Zant, Williamson, W. Va., will officiate the four-day affair.

One lady told us her arm used to be doubled up like a jack-knife because her muscles were stiff and sore with rheumatic pain. She said people would stare at her. Finally she got RUGON and now says she can raise her arm above her head and the awful pain and stiffness is gone entirely.

RUGON is helping so many victims of rheumatism and neuritis because this NEW Liquid Formula contains Three Wonderful Ingredients. Not a tablet or capsule. RUGON goes to the very source of pain almost at once and costs but a few cents a day to take. So don't go on suffering, get RUGON at W. A. Rose Drug Co.

POINT STAR'S FAME RISES

Kelly Coleman Plays Like Veteran, Observed At Kentucky Wesleyan

OWENSBORO, Ky., Dec. 24—Kelly Coleman, Kentucky Wesleyan's fabulous new pointmaker, is already being hailed as one of the brightest freshman basketball stars in the nation.

"And now it looks like Wesleyan opponents for the next four years are going to find out the only way to stop 'King Kelly' is to put a lid on the basket." So sayeth nationally known sports scribe Tom East-oring of The Louisville-Courier-Journal in a recent newspaper article.

Coleman is but a novice in the collegiate cage circle, yet he looked first well-seasoned veteran in the first seven Panther games. The burly 6-3 forward sacked up no less than 184 points and a healthy 26.3 average to plague KWC foes, five of which were in the major-college category.

A stocky 230-pounder, he also leads his mates in rebounding with 75 grabs and a 10.9 clip. First glances give one the impression that he is very slow, but his looks are deceiving. Split-second timing and deceptive movements qualify him for a magician's role.

"King Kelly" is truly a gunner, but an accurate one. The former All-American prep hero from Wayland, Ky., has hit on 82 of 185 free shots for a commendable 44.3 percentage. And he has been picking up more steam as each game passes.

High-scoring feats certainly aren't new to this freshman whiz. In fact he has the distinction of being known as the most prolific scorer in the annals of Kentucky high school basketball, claiming a long chain of records that may stand up for many years to come.

Coleman holds Kentucky's state tournament mark of 68 points in a single game and 185 for four games—two spectacular records which some authorities say "May never be seriously challenged." Coleman's 68-point barrage came in the Univ. of Kentucky Coliseum and still stands as a record for the Wildcat basketball plant.

His senior year was nothing but sensational, scoring, 1,919 points in 41 tilts for a tremendous 46.8 medal every 32 minutes. Coleman's four-year production reached 4,263 points in 127 games and a 33.6 average, giving him still another Kentucky schoolboy mark.

A polished dribbler and ball-handler, "King Kelly" consistently eludes opposing defensive players with his quick change-of-pace and change-of-direction abilities. Thus he manages to get off his favorite one-handed push shot in easy fashion.

In the season opener with Murray State, he played only about 15 minutes in the final half and scored eight counters. In the next half dozen matches he proceeded to score 27, 28, 30, 33, 35, and 23. This is pretty fair in any league, especially for a "raw" freshman.

Although his promising career is just the words, "Kelly Coleman, Wesleyan's candidate for All-America."

Butcher, UK Transferee, Continues Scoring Pace

The brilliant-shooting John Lee Butcher is continuing his scoring rampage for the Pikeville College Bears again this season. During the 1956-57 season Butcher averaged 32.6 points per game, which was second in the nation among small colleges.

His best performance was turned in against King College of Bristol, Tennessee where he blazed the nets for 52 points; next was 50 points at Union College.

Butcher transferred to Pikeville College during his freshman year from the University of Kentucky. Since coming to Pikeville he has been one of the offensive leaders of the nation. This season his average points per game is 30.8. One performance saw him hum the nets for 48 against the Stetson University Hatters at Deland, Florida.

Not only is Butcher an outstanding offensive leader but Coach John E. Renfro is quoted as saying "Butcher is the most versatile player I've known. His defensive work is very good. Along with his fine shooting he is a great offensive pattern maker."

Butcher's greatest offensive threat is a jump from the keyhole, moving either to the left or right with a beautiful change of pace for close-in shots. He also has a fine two-hand push from 35 to 40 feet and gets many of his field goals through his defensive play. His shooting percentage is amazing as he hits 90% of his free throws and very seldom hits below 50% of his field goal attempts. In 1956-57 he hit 56% and at present is hitting at a 44.1 clip.

Most coaches who play Pikeville center their defense around stopping Butcher, but it is rarely done. No type defense seems to be able to hold him.

Two College Officials Represent Pike School At Educational Meet

Pikeville, Ky., Jan. 2 — Two Pikeville College officials represented the Eastern Kentucky school at the annual meeting of the Council for the Advancement of Small Colleges Monday and Tuesday in Miami Beach, Fla.

Dr. A. A. Page, college president and senior member of Pikeville's administration, attended the council's national meeting along with the Rev. R. G. Bissett, who became vice president of the college January 1.

"Representatives of 66 small colleges in 32 states conferred on phases of the theme 'How the Small College Meets the Challenge,'" Dr. Page said. "They were led in their discussions by experts in college education, alumni and public relations, fund raising, and other fields."

The Council for the Advancement of Small Colleges was founded some two years ago as the first step in an "operation bootstrap" in which small colleges of this country are striving to improve their opportunities for service to the nation, he added. Pikeville is the only Kentucky member of the council.

Among the discussion leaders were executive directors of three national organizations—W. Noel Johnston, of the American College Public Relations Association; Ernest T. Stewart, Jr., of the American Alumni Council, and David M. Church, of the American Association of Fund Raising Councils. Herman Allen, education editor of Newsweek, interviewed a panel including Dr. Harold Taylor, president of Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, N. Y.

Former Wheelwright Girl Given Outstanding Rating

Miss Anna Lee Jones, local girl, now residing in Fairborn, Ohio, has been awarded an "Outstanding" performance rating at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, where she has been employed for the past two years. In recognition of her sustained superior performance, and in conjunction with the "Outstanding" performance rating, Miss Jones has also been given a cash award of $100.

Miss Jones, daughter of Mrs. Forrest Akers, was graduated from Wheelwright high school, class of '54 and attended Mayo State Vocational School, of Paintsville.

In August she was promoted to the position of secretary to the Chief of the Administration Branch, Directorate of Flight and All-Weather Testing, Wright Air Development Center, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio.

Industrial Gas Uses Explained By Speaker

The "Flexibility of Natural Gas" was the topic presented to the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club, Thursday evening, Dec. 19.

Miss Marjorie Ramsey, information representative for United Fuel Gas Company was the speaker. Following the speech, the new Columbia Gas film, "The Underground Story of Natural Gas" was presented to the group.

In describing the advantages of natural gas, Miss Ramsey used plastic cubes to represent compression of gas and how the characteristic helps the industry.

She explained how gas is used for over 25,000 different processes in industry. It is used as a fuel, a tool, a fuel and as a raw product.

Miss Ramsey was wearing clothing made from natural gas. She was all wrapped up in her topic, literally and figuratively speaking.

"The gas industry has grown because gas does better the seven big household services, because it is vital to so many industries, because of its importance where controlled heat is needed, because of its availability, because it is a clean fuel and because of its place in the growing field of petrochemistry," she said.

Miss Ramsey is a West Virginian with wide experience as a television artist, speaker, teacher and church musician. She holds both Bachelor and Master of Science degree from West Virginia University and has done additional graduate work at West Virginia University, Marshall College and College of Music in Cincinnati, Ohio.

She is a member of the American Guild of Organists, Eastern Star, Quota International - service club, Delta Kappa Gamma, Alpha Delta Pi, NEA and American Association of University Women. She has held past offices in many of the above organizations and was on the state Board of Directors for the Classroom Teachers Association of West Virginia, at the time she was teaching.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Times: I have lived here, or rather have been away from Floyd county, for four years but the place and people are still very dear to me and as the Christmas season is here our hearts become a little more tender and go out to others.

About 2 1/2 years ago I was very ill and weak and went from here to Prestonsburg General hospital for care or to get strength for a very, very serious operation. I spent two weeks there.

I was made so happy while there by the kindness of the doctors, nurses, people from different parts of the county, who came to see me and by the many letters, cards and flowers I received. Even tho I was very ill and my life was hanging in the balance, it was one of the happiest two weeks of my life and unforgettable. I have continually thought of it and how I appreciated my friends and acquaintances' kindness and thoughtfulness toward me. Yet I didn't send any Card of Thanks to be printed in your paper and I just wonder, even if it is a belated thank you, if you would still print a thank you card from this explanation, for it is from my heart. And thank you, also. I mustn't forget to say, I still prize the Floyd County Times.

Elliott-Co. Courthouse Is Destroyed By Fire; Judge Vows To Rebuild

Fire destroyed the 20-year-old Elliott County Courthouse Dec. 19. Consumed in the flames which gutted the interior were irreplaceable records dating back to the county's establishment in 1869.

County Judge David L. Davis, Jr., as head of the fiscal court, vowed, however, "We're determined to build back." He estimated that it would take more than $200,000 to replace the two-story stone building which had been constructed with WPA labor in 1937. The courthouse housed, in addition to a Circuit court room, offices of nine officials, including Davis.

The judge said he would head a six-man delegation going to Frankfort Friday for a conference with state officials looking to a solution of the tremendous problems stemming from the fire. Also expected to attend are Sheriff D. A. Lewis, School Superintendent Curt Davis—a brother of the judge, County Clerk Estill Hutchinson, County Attorney-elect Bill Redwine and Tax Commissioner J. T. Salyers.

The fire was discovered about 4 a.m., by a man on the way to work. By then flames were shooting out of windows and by the time volunteer firemen arrived from Morehead, 28 miles away, the blaze was out of control.

The cause of the fire was not determined. Coroner J. E. Lewis said it started in the county attorney's office.

The only records saved were deed books and some valuable papers on school teacher tenures that had been kept in the county clerk's office. All other court documents, records of births, marriages and deaths went up in flame and smoke.

In the sheriff's office, the tax books and records of criminal cases were consumed.

Average consumption of turkey per person in the U. S. is 5.8 pounds, compared with 2.2 in 1936.

VACCINATION AGAINST TB

Since the germ that causes tuberculosis was discovered 75 years ago, science has searched for an effective vaccine to protect all of us from the disease. But the answer is still in the future.

One vaccine developed back in the twenties, BCG—Bacillus of Calmette and Guerin—is still used but has limited effectiveness. Research continues for a better vaccine, but there is nothing new in sight.

As a layman, you aren't too interested in the scientific reasons why it is so difficult to develop an ideal vaccine against TB. You want to know whether your children should have the protection of even an imperfect vaccine.

Mass vaccination of all children in this country is not indicated, according to a recent report of the U. S. Public Health Service. In some countries where TB is so prevalent that almost every child will be heavily exposed, mass BCG vaccination has proved valuable. However, in this country most of the new cases of TB develop among people infected some time ago. Vaccination is, of course, useless if a person is already infected. Doctors generally recommend BCG vaccination only for special groups—such as those working in hospitals and laboratories or families with a TB patient in the home—people most likely to be exposed.

If public health measures against TB in your community are adequate, the danger that children will be exposed is not great. A regular tuberculin test will provide a check on whether there is such exposure, and then preventive measures can be taken. Your doctor will tell you if there is any special reason why your children should be vaccinated against TB.
