

THURSDAY

This Town-- That World

Now that the Republicans have had their time at bat, we can pick up with the re-runs. Thank goodness, they won't dare run those conventions all over again.

GOOD, OL' ABE

A Democrat whom we shall not identify opined, the other morning, that it looked as if the Republicans might nominate Abraham Lincoln, judging from what the speakers were saying.

OF NAMES AND SUCH

So it's Nixon and Kennedy. And already somebody has come up with some statistics to show that it's the candidate with the longest name who comes in the winner in these Presidential campaigns. . . . That's perhaps true in modern elections, but we seem to recall some five-letter candidates who did right well. . . . Adams (father and son), Tyler, Grant and Hayes, for instance. Then there were those two real "shorties" who took all the marbles: Polk and Taft.

THERE'S A DIFFERENCE

Speaking of politics—why, we do not know—there was the recent occasion when a "champion of the great, common people" spoke to us of his plan of official conduct when and if he is elected. Said he, "If I'm elected, I'll hold court according to the law and the evidence." Then, with a quick glance over his shoulder, he added, "But I'll give my friends mercy and my enemies justice."

BOARD OFFICE MOVE HERE BEING STUDIED

OLD SCHOOL MAY BECOME NEW OFFICES

Clark Announces Plan To Renovate Structure On North Arnold Avenue

Preliminary plans have been made to move the offices of the Floyd County Board of Education from the courthouse to the little-used old high school building on North Arnold avenue, it was announced this week by Charles Clark, county superintendent of schools.

Final approval of the move rests with the Board of Education, Clark noted, but it was indicated the members were in agreement.

The old high school building, constructed in 1927, now houses the Regional Library on the first floor. Moving of the offices of the school system would not affect the library and its services, Clark said.

Tentative planning of the structure for the board's use was drawn by Logan Savage and Associates, Lexington architects, in January. It is envisioned that only the superintendent's office and a reception room would be on the first floor. A remodeled stairway would connect the first floor with the upper story offices. The gymnasium space on the first floor would be utilized as a free textbook and school materials center.

"We feel the move will improve the whole picture of administration and in addition give us a chance to have a child-centered atmosphere in the cultural surroundings of the Regional Library," Clark said.

Renovation of the building can be effected "at a very reasonable figure," it was noted. The school (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

SPEARS DIES BY HANGING

Body of Retired Miner, Object of 3-Day Search, Is Found On Hillside

A two-day search for a Floyd county man ended at 4 p.m. Monday with the discovery of his body hanging from the limb of a tree on a hillside overlooking his home on the Sammy Clark Branch of Little Mud Creek.

The victim, 77-year-old Floyd Spears, a retired miner, had hanged himself by a wire similar to a clothes-line. He had wandered from home at about 2 p.m., Saturday, and when he did not return within a reasonable time neighbors and relatives began the search for him. The unremitting quest continued through Saturday and Sunday and on through Monday till his body was found.

Mr. Spears had been in ill health for some time. A jury empaneled by Coroner James J. Carter held that he had taken his life by hanging.

The victim was a son of Bud and Mary Conn Spears. He was a member of the Church of Christ. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Malissa Jane Clarke Spears, one son, George Dewey Spears, of New London, Ohio, and three brothers, Willie Spears, of Inez, Harley Spears, Ashland, and Rutherford Spears, Old Point, Ohio.

Funeral rites were held Wednesday afternoon from the Free Will Baptist Church on the Sammy Clark Branch by the Revs. Will Hall and Junior Clark, and burial was made in the Tanyard Branch cemetery under direction of the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home.

In addition to Martin and Denney, those making the trip were Tyrone Martin, Danny Stephens, David Caudill, Paul Caudill, Chan Gayheart, Carmel Davis, Cletis Rowland, James Raymond Crisp, Gary Turner, Randolph Hicks, Sherill Hicks, Glenn Salyers.

ADKINS NAMED IN HIT-RUN

Three Dwale Women Hospitalized Saturday; Bond Executed By Driver

Donald P. Adkins, 22, of Arkansas Creek, was jailed here early Sunday after his auto had run down three Dwale women late Saturday afternoon, seriously injuring one and hospitalizing all three. He was released Monday under $2,500 bond—$2,000 on a charge of assault and battery with an automobile and $500 on a warrant alleging hit-run driving.

Mrs. Opal Branham, wife of Turner Branham, is in St. Mary's hospital, Huntington, her leg broken and crushed below the knee. Mrs. Pearlie Baisden, wife of Leroy Baisden, suffered a mild concussion, bruises and a sprained neck and back, and is at the Prestonsburg General hospital. Mrs. Elea Branham, wife of Dee Branham, is at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, suffering multiple bruises and slight cuts. The three women are in their forties.

Witnesses told Allen Police Chief Frank Crum, who arrested Adkins, that Adkins was speeding in the direction of Prestonsburg, leaving Dwale, and that the three women were walking from their nearby homes and in the same direction, toward the home of a sick neighbor, Mrs. Joe Buck Lafferty. They were hit as they were within a few feet of the Lafferty gate, at a stiff curve in the road, near the foot of the mountain.

It was said the women were walking on their right side of the highway but were off the road when hit.

State police and county officers began a search for the driver who fled the scene of the accident, and for a time they were thrown off the trail as another youth was erroneously reported as the driver. Crum found Adkins in bed at the home of his father, Garner Adkins, about 2:30 a.m., Sunday, and Adkins promptly admitted that he drove the car which hit the three.

The arresting officer quoted young Adkins as saying he was "right on" the women before he saw them as he rounded the curve, that he tried to stop the car but could not. He added that he panicked after hitting the women and drove away, not knowing what to do.

Crum said young Adkins was not drinking. He was driving a 1951 model Buick and had no insurance, it was said at the County Attorney's office.

BEACH AREA IS HELD SAFE

Stratton Branch Site Passes Safety Check By Health Department

Dr. Russell L. Hall, of the Floyd County Health Department, announced this week that the Stratton Branch swimming area on Dewey Lake is safe for swimmers.

The announcement followed a check of possible pollution of the water there after water far upstream had been found so polluted that it was unsafe.

"We will keep a close check on the Stratton Branch area as a safeguard for all who go there," Dr. Hall said.

Heavy water pollution was discovered earlier at and above Camp Shawnee, the camp maintained in the upper section of the lake by the Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America. The camping season there has ended, however, and the State Health Department has suggested that certain improvements be made by the Scout Council before reopening of the camp next year.

FIRST OUT-PATIENT TB CLINIC TO BE HELD HERE, TUESDAY

The first out-patient tuberculosis clinic to be held in this county by State Department of Health personnel has been scheduled next Tuesday at the Floyd County Health Department building here.

The out-patient clinic was granted this county after it had been strongly urged by the health department as a matter of convenience and as a money-saver for those t.b. patients who are required to report to sanatoria at intervals for re-examination. The high incidence of tuberculosis in the county also contributed to the State Department's decision to locate the clinic here. It will be held at three-month intervals.

Persons whose records indicate a need for further examination have been invited by letter to come to

"Miss Big Sandy R. E. C. C." for 1960

Miss Bonnie Clarke, 17, of West Prestonsburg, won the title of Miss Big Sandy R.E.C.C. of 1960, at the annual meeting of the cooperative at Paintsville, Monday of last week. A recent graduate of the Prestonsburg high school, she was a major-ette and is a member of the Patsy Teenagers, a music group that has won wide acclaim. She was named to the National Honor Society and participated in Glee Club activities.

Miss Clarke is now eligible to compete in the state contest for Miss Kentucky R.E.C.C., to be held in Louisville at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center, Sept. 14. If successful at Louisville she will be eligible to compete in the national contest at Dallas, Texas, to be held later in the year.

The state contest winner will receive several prizes and a sash emblematic of the state title.

Miss Clarke, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charley Arnett, will attend Fugazzi School of Business, Lexington, to study for a career as medical secretary.

FLOYD TRADING AREA SHOWS STRONG GAIN

Special to The Times
New York, July 26—Floyd county stands out as a solid, growing market, according to a national study of business activity, just released.

Significant gains were recorded in its trading area during the past year as local residents, armed with better incomes and a high rate of employment in most fields, indulged in large-scale buying.

The picture is revealed in a new, copyrighted survey of buying power, made by Sales Management. It covers every section of the country.

The extent of this strength in Floyd county is to be seen in the size of local earnings in 1959. After deduction of personal income taxes, local residents had a net, spendable income of $40,854,000, considerably more than their 1958 total of $36,916,000.

What this represented, on a per family basis, was determined by dividing the dollar volume by the number of households. It came to $4,127 per household as against the previous rate of $3,836 per household.

The gain in the period amounted to 10.6 per cent. That was more than the 6.2 per cent rise averaged throughout the rest of the United States. The East South Central states gain was 7.6 per cent.

With more money available to them than before, people spent more freely.

As a result, business was good for the retail merchants in Floyd county. Their sales volume came to $21-

000,000 in the year, well over the $14,948,000 of 1958.

Although most retail lines reported bigger sales volumes, the best results were in the durable goods field, which staged a recovery from its 1958 setback.

The survey makes use of a "buying power index" to show how much retail business is actually done in each community, as compared with its estimated full capacity. This weighed figure is based on such factors as income, sales and population.

It lists Floyd county, with an index of .0143, as able to produce that per cent of the nation's business.

Since less than that was done last year, .0097 per cent, it follows that a considerable amount of the local business potential is still to be realized.

Economists are predicting that consumers will continue their present rate of spending for goods and services during the months just ahead. They see a slight weakening of confidence due to the world situation, ruling out the likelihood of any substantial increase in the spending pattern for the moment.

AREA'S LICENSE FEES CONTINUE TO INCREASE

Sportsmen of the 12-county Seventh conservation district last year spent a total of $144,237 for fishing and hunting licenses, an increase of $11,060.90 over the preceding year, according to figures released last week by John R. Redwine, of Salsbury Hook, district conservation supervisor.

"Over the last 10 years these 12 counties have lost about 70,000 population, yet there has been an increase in license sales every year," Mr. Redwine commented. Much of this success in the financial side of the fish-and-game picture he attributed to the "cooperation of our conservation officers, their good public relations and their gains in experience in dealing with the public."

Only three of the counties listed by Redwine showed losses, and these were slight: Elliott county with $3,419 in license sales for a drop from the preceding year of

Osborne Recovers Car But Out $300 Damages

Howard Osborne, Dewey Lake reservoir manager, was convinced, until the telephone rang, that his new Chevrolet convertible was safe in the garage at home Saturday morning, but the Magoffin county sheriff informed him otherwise.

The Magoffin officer had found it over an embankment near Salyersville after a nearby resident had notified his office that he had heard the crash of a car wreck.

Osborne has recovered his car but he can't figure how to collect $300 in damages. The thief escaped.

FIRM PLANS GIANT TOWER

At Big Sandy Plant; First of Its Kind In Western Hemisphere

A giant cooling tower rising 320 feet above the ground—the first of its kind ever used in the Western Hemisphere—will be built adjacent to Kentucky Power Company's new Big Sandy plant near Louisa.

Announcement of the contract for construction of a Marley-Mouchel cooling tower by the Marley Company, Kansas City, Missouri, was made Tuesday by F. M. Baker, vice-president and general manager of Kentucky Power. Construction will start this fall and, it is estimated, will require 18 months for completion.

Meanwhile, ground will be broken August 2 for the $39-million, 265,000-kilowatt power plant at a ceremony which the public is invited to witness. Speaking at the ceremony starting at 10 a.m., will be Governor Bert Combs, Lt. Gov. Wilson Wyatt and Philip Sporn, president of the American Electric Power System, of which Kentucky Power is a part. Parking facilities for the public will be provided at the plant site on Kentucky Route 3.

The ground-breaking ceremony will signal the immediate start of construction on the plant slated for completion in late 1962. Kentucky Power recently let a contract with Green Construction Company for the excavation and moving of an estimated 500,000 cubic yards of earth at the site.

The tower will provide the vital and constant supply of cool water required by the power plant's condenser for steam-condensing purposes. It will be hyperbolic-shaped and erected on a still-like structure, Long popular in foreign countries, including England, South Africa, India and several European nations, this design has never been used in North or South America. Its selection came after a two-year study by engineers of the American Electric Power Service Corporation, which designed the power plant.

The shell of the circular tower will be of reinforced concrete. It will be 320 feet high, 245 feet in diameter at the base, tapering to 130 feet at its narrowest point near the top, then widening again to 140 feet at the top. The bottom 10 feet of the tower will be open, except for concrete columns on which it will rest, to provide passage for the steam.

GOBLE BRANCH AREA STUDIED AS LINKS SITE

Hager Gap-Goble Branch Road Graded, Drained; Surfacing Work Is Next

Included in the $395,000 state park extension program which was launched this week are plans for a nine-hole golf course at Jenny Wiley State Park, from Frankfort.

A preliminary survey looking toward location of the golf course has been made by Homer Salsbury, of Prestonsburg. The area near the Sandy Valley Girl Scout Council's Camp Chatterawha is at this time regarded as the most likely site for the improvement.

The nine-hole course is to have grass greens and to meet modern golf layout standards, it was said.

Contracts on the Dewey Lake improvement and for improvements in eight other state parks are slated for letting on Sept. 1, Edward V. Fox, commissioner of parks, said. Work on a picnic shelter and picnic area at Big Bone Lick park in Boone county will begin August 1.

Grade and drain construction on the road from Hager Gap to Goble Branch, in the Camp Chatterawha area, has been completed by the Winston Ford Construction Company, and backstop surfacing of the new highway was scheduled to be started this week by the Adams Construction Company, sub-contractor.

Remainder of the scenic lakeside highway to connect with the existing road at the Stratton Branch recreation area is expected to be let to contract as soon as right-of-way negotiations with the United Fuel Gas Company can be settled. The route will cross large gas transmission lines of the company and highway and company officials have

COMBS URGES CLEAN-UP JOB

Slogan Contest Winner To Be Awarded Vacation At Any Kentucky Park

Governor Bert Combs expressed hope this week that the forces "back home" in Floyd county would participate in a recently announced and much needed clean-up beautification program for Kentucky.

He invited Floyd countians to enter the contest to name a slogan for this program.

"The prize for the winning slogan," said Combs, "will be an expense-paid four-day vacation for two at any Kentucky state park."

Robert Montgomery, Versailles, assistant to the Commissioner of Conservation, has been designated by the Governor as director to coordinate the efforts of cooperating citizens groups and state agencies.

Montgomery suggested a slogan along the lines of "Keep Kentucky Beautiful" or "Operation Clean-up". The contest ends Aug. 4. All entries must be postmarked before August 5.

The Governor said, "Many areas of Kentucky have been allowed to become run-down, shabby, and litter strewn."

"Kentuckians are naturally proud of their state," said Combs, "and I have faith that they will join together in this intensive effort to make our state more attractive to tourists and industry. I hope this effort will arouse our citizens to the need for a more beautiful Kentucky through cleaner highway rights of way, more attractive homes and yards and elimination of accumulations of trash and junk."

Rules for the contest are:

1. No more than one entry per person.
2. In case there is more than one entry of the winning slogan, the one bearing the earliest postmark will be the winner.
3. All slogans become the property of the Commonwealth of Kentucky.
4. There will be no acknowledgements.

Mail entries to Robert Montgomery, Department of Conservation, Room 252, Capitol Annex, Frankfort, Kentucky.

MISS WALLACE, HOMEMAKER

She received the highest score in a 50-minute written examination on homemaking knowledge and attitudes taken by graduating senior girls. Don't Be in Hurry To Move Injured After Auto Accident

The first and most important thing you can do to help the victim of an automobile accident is—look around and think.

Don't begin hauling people from the wreckage immediately. According to highway experts quoted in an August Reader's Digest article, "If You Are First at the Crash," 80 per cent of the people hurt in cars are tugged out by frantic rescuers—and many are made worse, or even killed. It is far better to leave the injured where they are until a doctor arrives.

Since no two crashes are alike, the best first step is to look over the situation and decide what the most pressing danger is. Often it is most important to slow or stop other traffic; in a recent turnpike collision, three people were slightly injured—but five died in a subsequent pileup of other cars at the scene.

Some of the other tips in the article, by E. D. Fales, Jr., are: don't try to lift a car with fewer than eight or ten strong men—many victims get hurt all over again when motorists try to lift wreckage off them, fall and let it fall back. Send four or five cars in each direction for help, to make sure someone really gets it. Turn off the wrecked car's ignition to prevent fire. Keep the injured warm and reassured; never tell them anyone else has been killed or is badly hurt.

The article, condensed from Popular Science Monthly, appears on the 25th anniversary of "—And Sudden Death," a memorable Digest article on fatal traffic accidents. Paul Hoffman, former president of Studebaker, George Romney, president of American Motors, and other industry leaders have credited it with inspiring organization of the Automotive Safety Foundation.

Traffic deaths reached a peak of 39,969 in 1941. Thanks to safer cars and highways, medical advances and safety efforts of many kinds, they have never since been so high though the number of cars on the highways has more than doubled. The number of persons injured, however, has increased, hence the importance of their careful handling by anybody first on the scene.

Squirrel Season Set Aug. 27, Sept. 5, Said

The squirrel season at Dewey Lake will begin August 27 and continue till September 5, it was emphasized last week by personnel of the Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources.

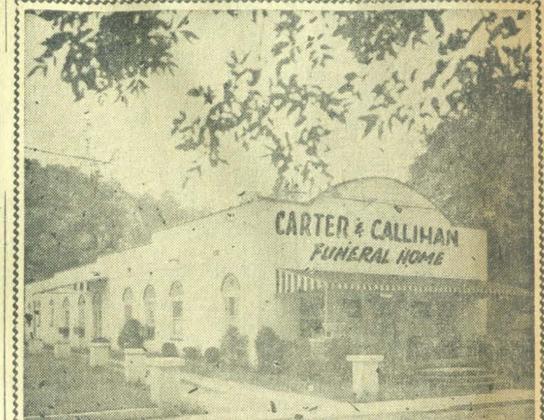

The open-season date there was erroneously given recently in a Times column, and for this reason conservation officers are anxious that hunters be apprised of the period during which they may hunt squirrel in the refuge there.

This Month Only!

Because The Times did not notify its subscribers of the 3% sales-usage tax on in-Kentucky subscriptions in time for them to renew before the effective date of the tax on July 1, we are bearing the tax ourselves through the month of July. (The truth is, we did not know till too late that subscriptions are taxable.)

Beginning August 1, we will be obliged to add the tax. That means that subscribers in Kentucky will pay $3.09 a year for The Times on and after that date. Out-of-state subscriptions, which are $4 a year, are not affected by the tax.

On that date we also will cancel all subscriptions that are in arrears more than one month. This is an absolute necessity because of the increasing cost of newsprint and newspaper production.

HE TOOK THE HINT

We doubt if the American truck driver has ever received full credit for his ability and acumen. The other day, there arrived safely at this office a shipment addressed to "Lloyd County Lines." The driver didn't even cuss the billing clerk.

HE ADVERTISED—AT LAST

We go all the way to Boise, Idaho, to lift from The Modern Press this eloquent little ditty:
"There was a man in our town
And he was wondrous wise,
He swore—it was his policy,
He would not advertise.
But one day he did advertise,
And thereby hangs a tale.
The ad was set in legal type,
And headed: "Sheriff's Sale!"

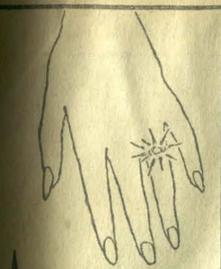

HE SHOULD SEE THE PRICES NOW!

I have been reading, these last few days, the autobiography of William Allen White, the late, great Kansas editor, and from that reading came away with a greater sympathy for one of our less-honored Presidents, Warren G. Harding. White tells of a visit to the White House, of talking with the harried Harding whose friends had pestered him till he was getting plumb profane about it. Know what Harding talked about? It wasn't the budget, foreign relations, taxes or anything of the sort. It was about the rising cost of newspaper.

The President, back home in Marion, Ohio, was a newspaperman. And it seems that along about press-time every day, his thoughts leaped the miles back there to the "shop" to wonder about the make-up of Page 1 and such earth-shaking matters.

Notice To City Taxpayers:

Please come in and pay your city taxes.
You don't want your friends and neighbors to pay their taxes and you not pay yours. I am taking this tax collection in order to help you. If you can't pay all at one time, pay part, and make payments out of it. The city needs the money. Be a good fellow and pay. I will be in the Municipal building from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Each day from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m., and from 3 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. I will be in my office next to the Jim Nunnery store building.

Billy Graham Assails Churches For Continuing Segregated Worship

Racial discrimination in church worship is "a blatant denial of the fundamental gospel we preach and profess," the Rev. Billy Graham charges in the August Reader's Digest.

In an article titled "Why Don't Our Churches Practice the Brotherhood They Preach?" Mr. Graham, who was born and reared in North Carolina, calls segregation the Communists' "most powerful" propaganda weapon, but adds: "Christians should banish Jim Crow from their midst for one reason primarily: because it is right to do so."

"As Christians," he writes, "we must dare to obey the commandments of love, and leave the consequences in God's hands."

However, Graham also warns that "some integrationists, both Negro and white, are trying to go too far too fast. Men's attitudes are changed gradually. In this as in other reforms, one should not try to drive people but lead them."

He describes his own change in attitude toward segregation: "Southern-born, I was reared in a community where typically Southern attitudes prevailed. Segregation was taken for granted. Not until 1950 was the religious and moral issue involved brought sharply to our attention. After much thought and prayer, in 1952, we decided we could no longer have segregated audiences. Our first non-segregated meeting was held in a Southern city. Negroes were told they could sit where they wished. Next, we began insisting that sponsoring committees be both Negro and white. No resistance or bitterness of any kind resulted.

"In 1958, in Columbia, S. C., we had a completely integrated meeting with 60,000 attending; last year in Little Rock we had 20,000—one third Negroes—all sitting together. We've held integrated crusades in every Southern state save Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, and have not had a single incident."

In 1958 $289,385,000 worth of coal was mined in Kentucky.

THE FLOYD COUNTY TIMES

Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Kentucky, under the act of March 3, 1879.

These Are Not Partisan Issues

The Floyd County Times makes no departure from a policy of long standing when it recommends to its readers that they support both the road bond issue and the calling of a Constitutional convention, both of which will be important items on the November ballot.

The Times supported the road bond issue sponsored by A. B. Chandler during his administration, and it has always held that the voters should give the most serious consideration to changing the Constitution in some of its features.

The road bond issued asked by Governor Chandler was voted. It has resulted in the building of roads, and so has served Kentucky well.

On the road bond issue now asked by Governor Combs hangs the fate of hundreds of miles of highway reaching into areas where roads are few, where the few existing roads are far from modern and where the people suffer because they have been shunted off into a sort of backwater while other areas benefit from this modern means of transportation.

The road bond issue is necessary, because it is the only way whereby Kentucky can bank at one time the money required for the roads that will bring the state up to the level of other parts of the nation. Taxes, if they could be hoarded up, would eventually provide such a fund. But we cannot wait over a period of years for the hoarding up of a surplus for this purpose; common sense dictates that we vote and sell bonds, then build and enjoy these roads while our taxes are paying for them.

There are a dozen items to be considered as an argument for a Constitutional convention. But, first of all, let this be said:

A vote for a Constitutional convention does not change the Constitution. It simply does this: It authorizes the election of delegates to a convention at which changes would be drafted in the designated portions of the Constitution, and those changes would not become effective until they are at a later date approved by a vote of the people.

Certainly it will do no harm to have the people's own delegated representatives study the state's Constitutional needs, then set them down on paper and submit them to the voters.

Dr. Frank Dickey, president of the University of Kentucky, only a few days ago said that failure of Kentucky to change the salary limitations section of the Constitution will set back education in the Commonwealth thirty years. The best minds in the field of education and also in the area of official service cannot be employed by a state operating under a salary schedule that is outdated and truly farcical as inflation has made $7,200 a year really only a fraction of that figure. Other states know that; Kentucky should.

Kentucky must have more and better roads and schools in these last years of the Twentieth Century. Its Constitution, in certain of its sections, belongs to the Gay Nineties, not to 1960 and the years that lie ahead. And some of its so-called highways are of the same vintage.

These are not partisan issues. They deserve the support of both political parties, of all the opposing candidates and of all citizens who would live in the present for the future rather than in a somewhat beclouded, benighted past.

MUSIC REUNION TO BE HELD AUGUST 7

Va., will deliver the sermon. The afternoon speaker will be Coleman Hatfield, attorney. He will speak on the Hatfield and Musick families as pioneers. An interesting feature of the program will be a motor cavalcade to the burial grounds of David Musick who was killed by the Indians.

The program will begin at 10 a.m. and adjourn at 3 p.m. Those who plan to spend the day should bring a picnic lunch.

mendous amount of cooling air required.

Hot circulating water coming from the plant's condenser will be pumped into the tower at a level of 40 feet above its base, from this point it will fall through wooden tacking. Here, heavy masses of air, drawn up by the draft action of the tower, will evaporate a small percentage of the hot water and so cool the remainder.

F. R. (Fred) Carman has been named resident engineer for the plant. Announcement of his appointment was made by F. M. Baker, vice-president and general manager of Kentucky Power.

Carman has served as resident engineer during construction of three plants on the American Electric Power System, of which Kentucky Power is a part. He most recently served at Kammer Plant, Captina, W. Va., where two of the plant's three 225,000-kilowatt units are owned by Ormet Corporation and the third by Ohio Power Company, which operates all three units. He has been at Kammer Plant since 1956.

From 1952 to 1956, he was resident engineer at Ohio Valley Electric Corporation's Kyger Creek Plant, Cheshire, Ohio. The 1,075,000-kilowatt plant was one of two built by 15 electric utility companies to supply the Atomic Energy Commission's Portsmouth Area Project. Three AEP System companies are members of OVEC.

Prior to his assignment to the Kyger Creek project he was resident engineer during construction on the 150,000-kw Units 3 and 4 at Philip Sporn Plant, Graham Station, W. Va. This plant is jointly owned by Ohio Power Company and Appalachian Power Company.

Two Martin Men Buy Davidson Farm At Garth; Former Coal Firm Site

Purchase of the 699-acre Davidson farm at Garth was made recently by Lawrence Keathley and Glenn C. Spradlin, of Martin, for a reported price of $90,000.

The farm, once owned by the late A. J. Davidson, was purchased from the Samuel P. Davidson heirs, most of whom reside here. All rights, except oil and gas, were conveyed.

The farm has 12 tenant houses on it and once was the scene of the Garth Coal Company operations. Its bottom lands have mainly been used for corn crops and have been producing about 800 bushels of corn annually.

Combs said the county board is now preparing plans for construction of three more elementary buildings, and is constructing a six-room, $60,000 addition to Hindman high school.

The elementary buildings will be located at Topmost on Beaver Creek, Mousie on Jones Fork, and in the Clear Creek section of Knott county.

SUMMER SAFETY talk usually centers around highway, water and campsite accidents—well, don't forget yard safety, too. Remember that power mowers can cause rocks and other objects to fly up and injure you or someone nearby. Be sure you handle all yard implements carefully. And, above all, keep dangerous tools out of the reach of small children. Happy gardening!

BUSY HOMEMAKERS get some hot weather relief when they serve light meals. Why not lighten your busy schedule even more this summer, and all year long, by installing a handy extension phone in the kitchen? With a kitchen phone you can take and make calls and watch the stove at the same time. And think of the steps you'd save! It's really easy living within easy reach. The cost is low for a convenient kitchen extension—so, why don't you give our business office a call and order one for your home.

WHAT A LINE! The deep-sea telephone cable between Florida and Puerto Rico goes down as much as five miles below the surface of the Atlantic.

If that's the line, think what the hook must look like!

Kentucky Site Of Last Battle Of Revolution

The last battle of the American Revolution was fought in Kentucky.

At Blue Licks on US 68 between Paris and Maysville, 182 pioneers engaged 500 Indians and Canadians on August 18, 1782, and were routed.

In the spring of that year, British Capt. William Caldwell had collected nearly 1,000 Indians and whites in southern Ohio and raided the weak settlements in the Kentucky Blue Grass. With him was the notorious renegade, Girty.

After his forces were reduced somewhat by quarrels, Caldwell struck the little outpost of Bryan Station near Lexington. But he was delayed by the stout opposition of the men, women and children inside the fort. As volunteers gathered to help the small stockade, Caldwell's army lost heart and retreated towards the Ohio River.

At Blue Licks, the reinforced garrison from Bryan Station under Major Todd overtook Caldwell. Hot-headed Major Hugh McGary spurred his horse and dared the Kentuckians to follow him in an attack on the Indians and Canadians. Outnumbered about three to one, the Kentuckians were ambushed and cut down, losing 60 men in about 15 minutes. Todd and Daniel Boone's son, Israel, were among the killed. Boone escaped by swimming the river.

But the invaders, although winning the battle, left Kentucky and were later faced by George Rogers Clark who laid waste many Indian villages.

A granite shaft records the names of those who fell at Blue Licks in defense of Kentucky. It is surrounded by a 100-acre state park which has a pioneer museum and picnic facilities.

Alcoholics Can Gain Control By Aid Request

By Louis M. Foltz, M.D., Chairman Kentucky Commission on Alcoholism

More than 1,000 alcoholics each month are laying a foundation for permanent sobriety through affiliation with Alcoholics Anonymous, a rapidly growing group of persons for whom alcohol has become a major problem. For the out-of-control drinker A.A. offers the best hope, leading authorities fighting this disease agree.

The Kentucky Commission on Alcoholism, its activities expanding slowly as additional funds become available, is embarked upon a program of education first, only recently beginning to participate in the treatment and rehabilitation field, within this state, through already established institutions.

First, and by far the most important step in education about alcoholism, is the fact, now generally recognized by the medical profession, that alcoholism is a disease. For the individual concerned, the major step is his admission that alcoholism has claimed him and that he needs help.

A few alcoholics have healed themselves without aid. Others have accompanied sobriety through church, family or their physician's help. But by far the largest number of problem drinkers in the history of mankind to obtain relief from their distressing condition have done so through Alcoholics Anonymous, studies by various interested authorities indicate.

To focus attention and thinking upon the problem of alcoholism in Kentucky through proven educational methods and practices is the present chief objective of the Kentucky Commission on Alcoholism; for without better understanding of this problem, in all walks of life, prevention of alcoholism in many individuals not now its victims is difficult, if not impossible.

Persons interested are invited to write to the central office, Kentucky Commission on Alcoholism, 815 First National Bank Building, Lexington, for printed matter, suggestions for helpful counsel or treatment. They are also urged to attend meetings of Alcoholics Anonymous, which are active in their home towns or nearby.

FURNITURE REFINISHING
Summer is a good time to re-finish that table, chair, wash stand, or dresser that has been needing a new finish. Take it out on the lawn and work on it there, to save indoor clean-up after the job is finished, suggests Kathryn Sebee, University of Kentucky Extension specialist in home furnishings.

Because The Times did not notify its subscribers of the 3% sales-usage tax on in-Kentucky subscriptions in time for them to renew before the effective date of the tax on July 1, we are bearing the tax ourselves through the month of July. (The truth is, we did not know till too late that subscriptions are taxable.)

Beginning August 1, we will be obliged to add the tax. That means that subscribers in Kentucky will pay $3.09 a year for The Times on and after that date. Out-of-state subscriptions, which are $4 a year, are not affected by the tax.

On that date we also will cancel all subscriptions that are in arrears more than one month. This is an absolute necessity because of the increasing cost of newsprint and newspaper production.

CONCRETE is the pavement that is not flexible
....gives maximum strength with minimum thickness!

Interstate System highways like Kentucky's Route 65 pictured here call for a pavement that is solid and unyielding.

Kentucky's highway department chose concrete for this important stretch of Interstate System highway. Necessity for multiple strata construction of 2 to 3 times greater total depth was avoided.

Strength with minimum bulk is possible, of course, because concrete isn't flexible. It supports traffic loads like a beam. Pressures on the subgrade stay permanently within safe limits.

And concrete's design efficiency assures low maintenance costs in years ahead. In fact, maintenance costs will be as much as 75% lower than for asphalt. Only concrete enables engineers to design highways to last 50 years and more.

You can see why engineers and taxpayers agree that concrete is the preferred pavement for heavy-duty highways—especially on the new Interstate System.

Indian Academies Were Encouraged By Government

Shortly after 1800, chiefs of Indian nations discouraged by wars with white men, decided the only way in which redmen could compete was to acquire their enemy's knowledge and wisdom.

As a result, educational programs began to appear in peace treaties, and one, concluded at Washington in 1825, by the Choctaw Nation, provided that $6,000 be applied by the President of the U. S. annually for 20 years for education of Choctaw children.

After months of looking for a site the War Department favored a plan submitted by Col. Richard M. Johnson, to receive and educate at his Blue Spring Farm, near Great Crossings in Scott county, such of their sons as the Indians might send him.

The first 21 students arrived at the school in November, 1825, having ridden their ponies from the western plains to Scott county. Here at this newly established school, young braves were taught the ways and manners of the white man. They received courses in agriculture and mechanical arts as well as the customary schooling of the day.

About 1831, Johnson moved the Choctaw Indian Academy to his recently established watering place, White Sulphur, one of the most noted health resorts in Kentucky.

By October, 1839, dissension arose among the Indian agents, prompted by Colonel Johnson's political opponents. This resulted in a Congressional inquiry into the academy.

Although cleared of all charges of mismanagement, Johnson began to lose prestige with the Indians. The student body declined rapidly from its peak of 250 and the Choctaws voted to send no more boys to the school. After struggling with only a minimum of students for several years, the school finally closed its door in 1844.

While the academy did not meet expectations of the Indians, the fact that it prospered for nearly a decade and a half is a tribute to the energy of Colonel Johnson, who later became Vice-President of the United States.

Danville Honors First Governor With Memorial

A memorial to Kentucky's first governor, Isaac Shelby, is maintained by the state near Danville near the site of Traveler's Rest, Shelby's home.

This illustrious soldier, statesman and patriot was born near North Mountain, Md., in 1750.

He figured conspicuously in three major wars—Lord Dunmore's War of 1774, the Revolutionary War, and the War of 1812.

Shelby was a member of three conventions seeking statehood for Kentucky and the leading member of the Commonwealth's first constitutional convention.

He served as governor from 1792 to 1796 and from 1812 to 1816. With Andrew Jackson, he was commissioned to conduct a treaty with the Chickasaw Indians, which resulted in the acquisition of southwest Kentucky, known as the Purchase.

So much was he admired by his countrymen that counties in nine states were named in his honor.

The memorial is on the Shelby family burial ground. It is south of Danville on Ky. 35, near the Lincoln county line, at Shelby City.

Virginia Woman To Log 9,000 Miles of Travel To Classes at Pikeville

Pikeville, Ky., July 26—Some 9,000 miles of travel this summer to attend college—that's the record two Buchanan county (Va.) cousins are aiming for.

Mrs. Marvin B. Farmer, White-wood, Va., and Mrs. Herman Fuller, Pilgrim Knob, Va., commute 90 miles each way daily to summer classes at Pikeville College.

Dr. A. A. Page, college president, said they are starting on their second five-week summer term, and expect to reach the 9,000-mile figure by the time it ends August 19.

Both are schoolteachers in Virginia. Mrs. Farmer for the last seven years and Mrs. Fuller for 10. And both have time for their families—Mrs. Farmer's son and daughter and Mrs. Fuller's one son.

Four shrines in Kentucky stand in memory of Abraham Lincoln. At Hodgenville is the cabin in which he was born; near Atherton is the Knob Creek cabin where he lived as a youth; near Springfield is the cabin in which his grandfather lived, and at Harrodsburg is the cabin in which his parents were married.

GARRETT LITTLE LEAGUERS WINS IN AREA II TOURNEY

The Garrett Little League won the Area II Tournament of District 4 which was held last Thursday and Friday at Hazard's Little Park.

The Garrett team won over Leslie county Thursday by forfeiture because the latter failed to present the required proofs of birth of the members of the team. Friday, they defeated Hazard in the final game by a 7 to 6 score.

Today (Thursday) the Little Leaguers will go to Benham where they will meet Benham at 5:30 p.m. in the first round of district play.

Legislative Change Required To License Prisoner-Barbers

State regulations would have to be changed before prisoners at LaGrange Reformatory who have completed courses in barbering could be licensed.

A plea was made for licensing of the prisoners at a recent joint meeting of the State Board of Barber and Beautician Examiners and the State Board of Hairdressers and Cosmetologists at Louisville.

Charles Kammer, representing the Louisville Area Council of Churches Committee of Instruction, and Attorney Harold Marquette asked the boards if the LaGrange inmates taking the courses could qualify for the Kentucky examinations and earn their licenses.

They said being licensed in the barbering profession would prepare the prisoners to resume civil life and to take their places in society when released.

Bill Napier, executive director of both boards, advised Kammer and Marquette that the board's regulations state that a person committing a felony is not qualified to earn a license in Kentucky. Napier added that if the committee wished to have these regulations changed it should present the problem to the next General Assembly.

At the meeting, Gene Williams, Elizabethtown, was sworn in as a new member of the barber board, and Mrs. Lula Sousley, Sandy Hook, and Mrs. Faye Farris, Murray, were sworn in as new members of the cosmetology board.

Board examination will be resumed in September and continue monthly through next June. Penalties on delinquent license holders will begin August 1.

CONSTITUTION BOOKLETS

Two new booklets that discuss the proposal to revise Kentucky's constitution will be available for distribution to the public July 21. Prepared by the staff of the Constitution Revision Committee, the booklets are "100 Questions About a Limited Constitutional Convention" and "You and Your Constitution."

Young trees, evergreens, and shrubs should be cultivated during hot summer weather. Keep the soil loosened to a depth of three or four inches in a circle 24 to 30 inches in diameter.

Pineville Drama Seen By Visitors From Canada, Puerto Rico, 50 States

Frankfort, July 18 (Spl.)—Audiences for "The Book of Job," now being presented at Laurel Cove, Pine Mountain State Park, Pineville, show a representation of more than 30 of our 50 states, as well as persons from Canada and Puerto Rico, according to Preston Slusher, one of the production's officials.

Slusher went on to say that parking lot checks revealed that persons from 50 counties of Kentucky have seen the production this year, and of the Kentucky counties represented, Jefferson leads all others in audience participation.

In breaking down the totals of parking lot attendance according to states Slusher said Tennessee is next to Kentucky, followed by Ohio, and then Indiana.

This outdoor religious drama is an adaptation of the oldest book of the Bible. The mosaic design in the actors' Byzantine robes and in masks painted on their faces accent the play's setting in mid-eastern Biblical culture. The mosaic motif accords with the chant of the actors speaking the verses from the King James version of "Job." The bizarre pattern suggests the mystic theme of the Book—that finally joy emanates from misery accepted with resignation to God's will.

This dramatic production will continue to be presented nightly except Sundays, in Laurel Cove amphitheatre, Pine Mountain State Park, Pineville, with a final production on Saturday night, August 20.

This is Garrett's first year of entry into tournament play on its own. During their first year of operations the Garrett boys were ineligible for tournament play because the first year all leagues must hold a limited franchise which does not grant that privilege. Last year they were eligible for tournament play but the two teams from Wayland disbanded and Garrett joined the Martin League. This year Hindman became interested and joined with Garrett.

Dr. G. B. Smith, Hindman dentist, is the tournament team manager. Dr. Smith is the manager of the Hindman Reds during the regular season. Roy S. Martin, of Garrett, is the tournament team coach. Mr. Martin is manager of the Garrett Indians during the regular season. Also helping with the coaching chores are Charlie Young, manager of the Hindman Royals, and Donald Hughes, manager of the Garrett Tigers.

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.
Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

Queer and Ordinary

It is said to be good for the soul when one makes an honest confession. Here goes with one. When I first started to talk about folklore, away back in the past, I chose to mention exceptional rather than ordinary happenings. But I probably got more attention by doing this than if I had bluntly declared that just about everything we do or say or are is folkish. Lots of folklorists in my early days spent their lives studying the most primitive people they could find, and I do not doubt that these same scholars often felt that only such people were folkish. I used to tell so many authentic yarns about oddities of folk customs and conduct that some of my friends asked me whether all the people at Fidelity were half wits. My yarns were pretty largely about sub-standard people, for I had been reared on just such yarns and naturally took to telling them, especially after I had left home and my listeners had no way of verifying my tales. But through learning and telling of quaint things I ultimately came to see that what we regard as perfectly natural and ordinary is also folkish. It may seem a long step from the village idiot to the most dignified gentleman or lady of Fidelity, but, basically, it is not so far as it seems. We rational folks imagine that we are acting on our carefully planned and reasoned-out philosophy when we are, more times than not, as blindly following tradition as the merest ignoramus. How much of one's faith in religion, or neighborliness, or politeness, or even education is actually personal, and how much is a weller of folk ideas that he inherited, or was attracted to as he grew up?

Lady Is Free of Rheumatic Pain

One lady told us she had rheumatic pain so bad she had to walk with a cane most of the time. The joints of her knees and ankles were stiff and sore. Recently she got RUGON and says the pains began to go within a few hours, and now after one week the pain is gone entirely.

RUGON is helping so many victims of rheumatism and neuritis because this New Liquid Formula contains Three Wonderful Ingredients. Not a tablet or capsule. RUGON goes to the very source of pain almost at once and costs but a few cents a day to take. So don't go on suffering. Get RUGON at W. A. Rose Drug Co.

Louisa Man Is Shot By Trooper In Chase; No Charges Are Filed

Louisa, Ky., July 24—A man was accidentally shot and seriously wounded by a state trooper who was chasing him and three other men near here Saturday night.

Ralph Vanhorn, 24, of the Louisa area, was in serious condition at King's Daughters hospital at Ashland, Sunday, with a .38-caliber bullet wound in his side.

Trooper Robert Morrison said he shot Vanhorn accidentally when he tripped over him during the chase. No charges have been filed, state police said.

Morrison said he had been following a car and planned to stop the driver to question him about a traffic violation.

The automobile suddenly stopped on the outskirts of Louisa and four men fled on foot, the trooper said. He said he chased all four and fired his pistol into the air.

Then, said the trooper, he closed in on Vanhorn, who tripped and fell. Morrison said he tripped over Vanhorn and the gun discharged.

Louisa officers later seized another occupant of the car for investigation, but filed no charges. The two other men haven't been caught.

Building a Kitchen?

When building a new kitchen or remodeling an old one, include at least 18 inches of heat-proof counter surface next to the range for a convenient spot to rest hot pans. Counter surface materials that are the most heat-proof are stainless steel, ceramic tile and hard wood.

SETTING THE RECORD STRAIGHT

The Kentucky Department of Public Relations in a June release, titled "Jennie Wiley Park Features History and Recreation," garbles a bit of history.

This column tries now to set the record straight.

"History, scenery and recreation are the main features at Jennie Wiley State Park near Prestonsburg, Ky." So says the release from the state. This column agrees except as to the spelling of Mrs. Wiley's name. No document survives with the heroine's name on it but her daughter, Jenny, who married Richard Williamson, spelled it with a "y," not an "ie." We must assume then, with little fear of contradiction that Mrs. Wiley wrote her first name, Jenny, as did her daughter for whom she was named.

On the big sign at the intersection of U. S. Highway 23 and the park road at Lancer the name of the park is spelled, Jenny Wiley State Park. On the highway signs for many miles the name is spelled, Jennie. Consistency, thou art a jewel.

"Much of the history of this section of Kentucky concerns Jennie Wiley, whose home in Virginia was attacked by Indians in 1787," the release continues. "They tomchawked her brother and three children and carried her and her baby as captives into the region now occupied by the park. During her 11 months in captivity, she saw savages dash her baby's brains out against a tree."

"Attacked by Indians in 1787," it says. This writer and others have tried for years to correct this date. The Calendar of Virginia State

Papers at Richmond, Va., is authority for the date of Oct. 1, 1789, for her captivity. The county lieutenant of Montgomery county, Va., in a report to the Governor of Virginia, noted the exact date she was carried into captivity and the Richmond papers preserve the report.

"During her 11 months in captivity," the release garbles again. In another report by the Montgomery county lieutenant and it too is preserved in the Calendar of Virginia State Papers, it is noted that Mrs. Wiley "escaped from the Indians in the late winter." This report was written in July, 1790, so according to the militia officer she escaped either in March or early April at the latest. By no stretch of the imagination can the length of time be lengthened to 11 months. It is, with little room for doubt, about six months.

The news release is confusing, too, about the baby of Mrs. Wiley. The babe carried into captivity was killed by Cap John, the Cherokee chief, at the mouth of Jennie's Creek, West Virginia, the Virginia, on the Tug River. Another baby, born on the Cherokee Fork of Big Blaine Creek in the present Lawrence county, was killed by the savages because they thought it would never make a warrior. Legend has it that she had named it Robert Bruce.

"She escaped by allowing rainwater to loosen the rawhide thongs which bound her. She made her way to Preston's Station and safety near the present site of Dewey Lake," the Frankfort story says.

Here again we are constrained to except. She did not make her way to Preston's Station for it was not founded until 1797, seven years after her escape. She found refuge at Harman's Station in the present Blockhouse Bottom near the present East Point. Mathias Harman, who had tried to rescue her with a frontier posse, had founded a settlement there during her captivity.

"The nucleus of this settlement was the old Spurlock House, which became General Garfield's headquarters during the Civil War," the release notes. "The settlement grew into present Prestonsburg."

The Spurlock House, built by John Spurlock in 1791, near the present residence of Mrs. Jo M. Davidson in Prestonsburg, was not the headquarters of Col. James A. Garfield in 1862 following the Battle of Middle Creek. He commanded the John M. Burns house on North Second avenue, now occupied by Mrs. C. P. Stephens and known locally as The Garfield Place.

The release goes on to note the excellent fishing at Dewey Lake. Not being a fisherman, this columnist withholds any more exceptions.

GEARHEART AND JUSTICE
Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Flake, 706 N. 3th St., Phoenix, Arizona, were in Prestonsburg last week doing research on the Gearheart and Justice families of this county. Mrs. Flake is a daughter of the late Joseph and Sidney Gearheart Lionbarger, of Ashland. Her parents moved to Arizona in 1914.

Mrs. Flake's grandparents were Alexander Gearheart and Rhoda Frances Moore of Floyd county. They were married April 15, 1860, in this county. Alexander Gearheart, according to tradition, was forcibly inducted into the Confederate Army and was never heard of again.

Parents of Alexander Gearheart were Allen Gearheart and Eliza Justice Gearheart who were married in Floyd county, March 3, 1839. Eliza lived to the age of 103 years, died in Snowflake, Arizona.

Mrs. Flake found in the records here that the father of Eliza Justice Gearheart was a Jonathan Justice. Her problem now is to find the father of Rhoda Frances Moore and the father of Allen Gearheart. Persons having information on the Gearheart and Justice families are requested to write Mrs. Flake. She will gladly exchange information.

School For Blind Gets More Funds, Better Classrooms

Kentucky's present capital outlay budget provides $643,200 for an adequate classroom-administration building at the Kentucky School for the Blind, Louisville.

The money allocated by the two-year budget will be used either to construct a new building or renovate the present one, whichever is more feasible. The structure is more than 100 years old and has been condemned as a fire hazard.

General fund appropriations for the present biennium to the school are 13 per cent higher than the sum for the previous two years. The 1960-61 fiscal year appropriation is $254,375 and the 1961-62 amount is $275,760.

The additional money, made possible by Kentucky's new revenue program, enables the State Department of Education, which administers education for the blind, to establish a new program of home teaching for the blind.

Under this program, instructors will work with the individual in the home, teaching him the skills which will make him more independent and prepare him psychologically for the major task of vocational rehabilitation. The home teaching project will cost $20,000 a year for the 1960-62 fiscal period, and there after, if successful, $40,000 a year.

The major purpose of the School for the Blind is education of blind and visually handicapped children. Academic training includes elementary and high school instruction. Vocational subjects especially useful to visually handicapped persons are stressed in the school's program. Average enrollment is 150 students, representing almost every county in Kentucky.

The new budget also provides for raises in teachers' salaries comparable to the raises for public school teachers.

The education program for the blind also includes Kentucky Industries for the Blind, Louisville, where the visually handicapped are taught special trades in a semi-sheltered environment. Some of the trainees remain at this workshop in a productive capacity and others obtain employment in private industry.

'Endless Waters' Gets Showing After Waters Of Cumberland Subside

Frankfort, Ky., July 21—An opening performance Sunday night of "Endless Waters" at Cumberland State Park was finally held after rain-swollen streams had delayed the drama for 22 days.

Electrical wiring submerged under flood waters caused the delay. Stereophonic speakers and special effect colored lights, useless as a result of the flood, had crippled the drama.

"Endless Waters," a dramatic treatment of the 23rd Psalm, has received favorable comment from in-state and out-of-state visitors.

County Agents' Salaries Rise

Kentucky will rise from 43rd to 25th among the states in the average salary of county agricultural agents this fiscal year.

The current budget will enable the University of Kentucky's Agricultural Extension Division to raise county agents' average yearly salary from $6,500 to $7,300.

Kentucky also will rise from 43rd to 25th in the average salary paid home demonstration agents, this increase being from $5,241 to about $5,940.

Agricultural officials say these increases will enable Kentucky to train farming and homemaking experts and to keep them instead of losing them to other states.

Money also has been provided to improve the 4-H program.

ADDITIONAL REVENUE TO AID KENTUCKY TREE PROGRAM

Kentucky will be producing 40-500,000 tree seedlings annually by 1962.

Gene Butcher, director of the Division of Forestry in the Department of Conservation, said the jump in tree seedling production from 17,000,000 this year, is one of the Division's expanded programs made possible by the state's new revenue program, including the sales tax. The Division will receive $1,519,133 for the fiscal year beginning July 1, as compared with $951,153 in the previous year.

The increase in seedling production will come from a new nursery in Morgan county. The 82-acre nursery, acquired March 30, will have a capacity of 20,000,000 seedlings annually same as the state's four-year old nursery at Kentucky Dam Village State Park.

The increase in production will mean that Kentucky's 1,500,000 acres of eroded, idle and sub-marginal land can be replanted in 35 years, or half the time originally planned, Butcher said. One thousand trees are needed to replant each acre.

The Division seeded for 8,000,000 tree seedlings this year on the 40 acres of the new nursery used as seed bed. These seedlings are sold to farmers and other timberland owners in the state at low cost.

The Division offers for sale black locust, yellow poplar (tuliptree), black walnut, loblolly pine, short-leaf pine and white pine. The species are from one to two years old and normally sell for $8.00 per thousand.

The Division has specific regulations which must be followed in planting the trees:

1. Space the trees not more than 10 x 10 feet in planting, except when permission for spot planting or other spacing is approved by the Division.
2. Plant them in Kentucky and only for timber production, erosion control, or windbreaks. Don't use or sell any of the trees for ornamental planting or otherwise dispose of them with the roots attached.
3. Don't plant them within the corporate limits of any city.
4. Protect the planned area from fire, grazing and other destructive agents so far as is possible.

Butcher also outlined other areas in the Division's forestry program which will benefit from the increase in funds:

1. Numerous counties will be brought under fire protection for the first time.
2. More graduate foresters will give technical assistance to timberland owners.
3. State forests will now receive adequate administration.
4. Proper attention can be devoted to diseases and insects in the Division's pest control program.

"The expanded program will project Kentucky into the national forestry picture," Butcher said. "The increase in revenue supplies Kentucky with the tools to develop one of the most ambitious forestry programs in the United States."

GARRETT

CHARTER TO BE PRESENTED

This coming Sunday evening at 7:30, Jack Hodge, Scout executive for the Lonesome Pine Council, Boy Scouts of America, will present Troop No. 144, Garrett, its Charter. The presentation will be at the Garrett Baptist church, the sponsoring institution. The Rev. Rush Sloane will accept the charter as the institutional representative.

The Scout troop will attend in uniform and each Scout will receive his registration card. In addition, many of the boys will be awarded their Tenderfoot Badges by their Scoutmaster, Eugene Mullins. Mr. Hodges will also present members of the Troop committee their registration cards.

The public and parents of the Scouts are urged to attend this special ceremony.

PONY LEAGUERS LEAVE

The three members of the Garrett Braves team who are on the Deaver Pony League tournament team left Sunday for Frankfort to participate in the Eastern area tournament. Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Cox drove the boys to Frankfort and will remain with them throughout the tourney. The boys on the trip are Jimmy Ray Cox, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Cox, Danny Ray Stone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burnis Stone, and Keith Edward Lawson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lawson, all of Garrett. The boys will be staying at the Southern hotel while in Frankfort. Gov. Bert Combs is expected to welcome the Floyd county team. Boys from Drift, McDowell, David, Maytown and Garrett made the trip.

GO TO CAMP EARL WALLACE

Several boys from Garrett went Monday to Camp Earl Wallace at Lake Cumberland. The boys will be in camp for a week. Making the trip this year are Hubert Draughn, Gary Dean Francis, Danny Scott, David Stone, John R. Trusty and Gene Coburn.

ON OVERNIGHT CAMPING

Garrett Boy Scout Troop No. 144 went on an overnight camping trip, July 16. Twenty-one Scouts, led by their assistant scoutmaster, Bill Francis, Jr., and their troop secretary, Shelby Draughn, left Garrett at 6:30 and hiked up Stone Coal to Hawley Scotts store and then took the road over the hill toward Goose Creek. At the top of the Goose Creek road hill they took to the woods and followed the ridge for about one-half mile where they found a good spring of water and a campsite. The approximate two-mile hike took about two hours. Each boy was carrying a full pack.

Most of the boys enjoyed a good night's sleep. After breakfast, the boys cleaned up their campsite and left for home. Most of the boys, after getting home at 8 a.m., bathed and were in their Sunday School classes at 10.

Boys making the trip this time were Tommy Rice, Mike Clark, Robert Griffith, Anthony Rowe, Jimmy Jacobs and Clarence Hughes—all Explorer Scouts. Darrell Johnson, Larry Francis, Hubert Draughn, Jimmy Potter, Jimmie Case, Johnny Martin, Jerry Martin, Phillip Rowe, Richard Triplett, Paul Francis, Danny Francis, Gary Francis, Danny Duff, Ronnie Moore, and Larry Shipley, all of whom are Boy Scouts.

Boys 11 years old or older who wish to become Scouts should come to the weekly meetings on Tuesday nights at 7:30 in the basement of the Garrett Baptist church and join.

Too much sun at one time can be painful or even dangerous. Escape sunstroke and heat exhaustion by wearing light, loose clothing and a hat, drinking of cool (not icy) water; and eating plenty of fruits and vegetables with extra salt to replace body salt lost through perspiration.

The Boy Scouts program, currently celebrating its fiftieth year, is made possible for 2,700 Lonesome Pine Council boys by the sponsorship of 90 Scout units by 130 churches, schools, PTA's, industries and organizations.

No Opposition Is Presented At Revision Meet

No speaker opposed the proposal to revise Kentucky's constitution at a public hearing in Frankfort, July 19, but eight groups spoke in favor of the proposal to modernize Kentucky's charter.

The first speaker at the hearing was Sam Ezelle, secretary-treasurer of the Kentucky AFL-CIO. He called the present 70-year-old constitution "a hodge-podge of rules, mostly restrictive, geared to a rural age."

Ezelle reviewed the 12 areas up for possible revision, citing examples of outdated methods and procedures and said his recommendations were not a "labor program" but a program for all Kentuckians.

Gerald Jagers, who represented the Kentucky Education Association, said "We expect 100 per cent of teachers to vote for this convention, but we will settle for 99 per cent." Jagers said, "Our children should be given every advantage possible and one thing we can do is give them a constitution that fits their modern world."

Dr. Irvin Abell, president of the Kentucky State Medical Association, reported the hearty approval of his organization.

Phil Ardery, chief counsel for the Association of Kentucky Rural Electric Cooperatives, predicted that the board of directors will endorse the convention at its September meeting. "This problem," he said, "is nothing but opportunity in work clothes."

Other groups present which endorsed the proposal were the Joint Alumni Council of Kentucky, the League of Women Voters, the University of Kentucky subcommittee for a limited convention, and W. L. Matthews, dean of the University Law School.

The proposal to revise the constitution will be voted on by the people in the November 8 election.

JOHNSON GRASS CONTROL

Another step in the fight to control Johnson grass, a major pest of farm fields in some Kentucky areas, is due now. It is to mow second-growth Johnson grass to prevent formation of seed. Johnson grass reproduces from seed as well as underground rootstocks, intensifying the control problem.

DISTRICT MEETING OF INDEPENDENT ORDER OF ODD FELLOWS

Fraternal organizations have been for over a century a feature of Eastern Kentucky's social, civic and recreational activity. The first chapter of the Masonic Lodge in the Big Sandy valley, Zebulon Lodge No. 273, was organized in 1854 at Prestonsburg.

The Independent Order of Odd Fellows was organized at Prestonsburg in 1890 and has maintained a steady growth through the years. The order held a district meeting in Prestonsburg in 1930 at which time Circuit Judge John W. Caudill was Grand Master. Delegates from many nearby lodges met at the Prestonsburg court house.

Not a single cracked egg since Chevy took over the route

That '60 Fleetside pickup you see takes whatever kind of road comes along, and makes about 250 stops a day delivering eggs house to house for Mr. Harry Hansen of Missoula, Montana. "With my previous truck," Mr. Hansen writes, "I always had some cracked eggs. Cargo damage always cut into my profits. But the new Chevy eliminated that problem completely. I haven't had one cracked egg with my new truck and I've had up to a ton of eggs in it without any difficulty. . . . I didn't know a truck could ride so nice."

Chevy rides nice, all right; takes good care of fragile cargoes. But that's not even the half of it. Torsion-spring suspension also means longer life for the truck, extra thousands of working miles, because the sheet metal and body components take less of a beating. You can run off-the-road or over back trails at faster safe speeds, too; get in more trips a day, make more money. Those facts are as true of the big Chevrolet heavyweights as they are of the pickups. Any model you name. Get one on your job and you've got the world's most efficient, most economical way to haul any load over any road. Your dealer will be happy to prove that statement any day you say.

◀ "I'm getting close to 20 miles to the gallon," Mr. Hansen states, "and that's on stop-and-go delivery."
