

Clark Says Mayo Fears Unfounded Says Regional Plan Not To Hurt School Or Director Ramey

Charles Clark, superintendent of Floyd schools and chairman of the board of directors of the new Regional Organization for Educational Services (ROPES), this week termed as "ridiculous" fears expressed that the regional concept will jeopardize the position of the Mayo Vocational School and its veteran director, George L. Ramey.

Mr. Clark's statement was made after he had learned of the controversy which has arisen at Paintsville over the rumor that possibly as many as five Mayo staff members will be transferred from Paintsville to the regional ROPES office at Allen.

He pointed out that Bronelle Skaggs, who is being transferred from Mayo to the Allen office, is not a member of the Mayo staff but is a regional staffer who has with other staff members been headquartered in the Mayo Vocational School. It is anticipated, he said that regional staff members will no longer have their offices at the Paintsville vocational center but in the regional offices when they are opened at Allen.

"It's possible that more than two persons will be transferred to Allen but that is a decision for the people at Frankfurt to make," the board chairman said.

Three Arrested As Transporters Of Intoxicants

Three men were arrested in this county Sunday and Monday on charges of transporting illegal intoxicants.

Phillman Caudill was arrested Sunday by Deputy Sheriffs Dester Hamilton and Eugene Rackley, and James D. Tackett and Gary R. Newsome were jailed the following day by State Troopers Stubbs and Estep and Wheelwright Policeman Harold Johnson. All three were booked to Magistrate Eddie Caudill's court.

Oindee Kidd, who was arrested Saturday by Deputy Sheriffs Hamilton and Howell, also was booked in magistrate Caudill's court.

A woman whose name was listed as Kay Stephens Mason was jailed last Thursday by Prestonsburg Policemen Conley and Lawson on a shoplifting charge. She allegedly was caught with one or more items taken at Kroger's here.

Others arrested, charges on which they were booked at the county jail, and names of arresting officers were:

John Carpenter, drunk driving, and Charles Jenkins, breaking and entering, both arrested by Deputy Sheriff Otto Fannin; Cline Tackett, drunk driving, by State Troopers Rose and Estep; Gary Stanley, reckless driving, by Harold Johnson, Wheelwright policeman; Willie Bee Mitchell, resisting arrest, by Deputy Sheriffs Hamilton and Howell; Joe Mark, drunk driving, by Troopers Rose and Estep; John R. Court Decision May Jeopardize Suit Filed Here

Last Friday's Court of Appeals decision holding that a defendant's constitutional rights would not be violated if he were tried by a judge who is not a lawyer may have jeopardized the efforts of a Prestonsburg man to enjoin permanently the right of Police Judge Earl Blackburn to preside in the trial of his case or any other criminal action.

The Prestonsburg suit was filed by Carl Edward Allen in the Floyd circuit court, shortly before his trial on a drunk driving charge was to have been held by Judge Blackburn. It followed an opinion handed down by Harlan Circuit Judge Edward G. Hill who held that Police Judge Ditty, of Harlan, could not sit in the trial of a criminal case because he is not an attorney.

But the Court of Appeals overturned Hill's decision. John Rosenberg, one of the attorneys in the Allen case here, said he had not seen the Appellate Court decision but that "it certainly appears it is contrary to our position." He said he had not conferred with his associate in the case, Atty. Cassie J. Allen, but he indicated a ruling by the Supreme Court on a similar case will be awaited.

The Kentucky Bar Association, he said, recently filed with the Court of Appeals a brief in support of the contention that only

Curfew Is Inforced For Trick-or-Treat

Mayor George P. Archer issued a proclamation this week directing limitations of the observance of Hallowe'en here. He said the action has been requested by various groups and governmental agencies.

Mayor Archer's proclamation specified that the practice of "Trick-or-Treat" be limited to one night only, Tuesday, Oct. 31, that no person more than 12 years of age will be permitted to wear a mask of any kind and that a curfew of 9 p.m. be imposed on all persons engaged in the celebration.

Other Counties Join Floyd In Patriotic Demonstration

Thousands of persons jammed Prestonsburg streets and sidewalks Saturday to witness the observance of Red, White and Blue Day, the third annual demonstration of Eastern Kentucky's (no longer only Floyd county's) proud tribute to patriotism and to the earlier days of the land.

They saw floats depicting the fundamentals on which the country was founded... school children marching... bands playing... pretty girls and their escorts in gaily bedecked convertibles... a one-horse shay... a bucolic scene in which a man milked a real, live cow and a woman churned the milk... a mule-drawn wagon loaded with hay... a little boy who broke his leg in a fall, just before the grand march began but who stuck it out, pulled in the traditional "little, red wagon."

Before the mile-long parade began, outstanding vocal groups sang gospel hymns and the flag-raising ceremony was held on the courthouse lawn. "The grandest day of my life," said Mrs. Marcella Bailey, founder and moving spirit in the patriotic demonstration. It was a long day, ending with a bean-stringing and square dance lasting until shortly before midnight.

In the line of march were veterans of every war involving this county since World War I. The day took on a regional flavor with the appearance of bands, marchers and plain citizens from Floyd and surrounding counties. Perry, Knott, Pike, Johnson, Magoffin—they came from all over. Kosairs from Ashland added a touch of gaiety to the scene with their mini-bike performances. The twang of banjo, whine of fiddle and the words of old songs filled in the gaps when the bands were silent.

When the parade had ended Miss Sherri Lynn Deaton, Wheelwright high school junior and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Deaton was crowned Miss Red, White and Blue 1972. Teresa Dell Rowe, Maytown seventh-grader and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delmer Rowe, was named Junior Miss Red, White and Blue.

In the judging of floats, the Allen elementary school was awarded $50 first prize; the Ladies Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, second prize of $25, and the U. S. Corps of Engineers, $15 third prize.

Loving cups were donated by R. & S Truck Body Company and Carl Martin's Standard Oil Station.

Floyd Flood Aid Biggest in State

The President has committed $640,000 to date from his Disaster Relief Fund to help Kentucky residents and communities recover from the effects of severe storms and flooding in the state last April, and Floyd county's was the largest single problem met by the undertaking.

He declared a major disaster for Kentucky on May 15 at the recommendation of G. A. Lincoln, Director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP), the White House agency responsible for coordinating federal disaster assistance operations and for administering the President's Disaster Relief Fund.

OEP Director Lincoln determined that 20 counties were eligible for federal assistance after Governor Wendell Ford has affirmed that all available state and local government resources and emergency funds were being used and had appealed to the President for supplementary federal help. The counties were Floyd, Breathitt, Boyle, Bullitt, Franklin, Hardin, Johnson, Knott, Lawrence, Lee, Letcher, Lincoln, Madison, Marion, McCreary, Pike, Rowan, Washington, Wayne and Woodford.

The spring storms and flooding caused damage to essential public facilities including streets, roads, and bridges. The President's disaster funds have been committed to 22 projects totaling $560,000. The largest projects are: Floyd county,

A TRAGIC TALE

Many of us who attended the public hearing held here last Thursday by the Kentucky Stream Pollution Control Commission left with that empty, desperate feeling. It all sounded so hopeless.

But, to us, the most dismaying statement was one made by Acting Commissioner Regan, merely "in passing."

Describing the Tradewater section as the state's worst in the matter of water acidity, Mr. Regan told of a man who had bought a farm there. He told how the new owner proudly walked his acres until, one day, he found acid water breaking from the ground and purging into the nearby stream.

This man apparently is a good citizen. Disturbed by what he had found and by his knowledge of what this meant to the stream, he contacted the commission. What could he do?

"You could neutralize the acid by pouring about 11 tons of lime onto the place where the water emerges," he was told. "Great!" he exulted. "Send me 11 tons of lime."

"But," he was told, "that is for only one day. You'll need 11 tons more tomorrow, and 11 tons more the next, and..."

The man could do nothing. Attorneys for the Commission studied the problem. It was suggested that the landowner might be prosecuted. But then it was decided that would be unjust, since what had happened had its beginnings in a coal mining operation which had long since been abandoned.

The company was gone. The landowner could not finance a "cure." There was nobody to be held responsible. The acid stream will continue to run.

What will happen in the years ahead may be dismaying. But no more so than what has already happened and what is beyond recall.

Hallowe'en Dummy Traffic Cop

Residents of the Goble-Roberts Addition here say all efforts to control autos speeding into and out of the adjacent Dixie Addition there had failed until this "body" was sighted late last Sunday. Motorists stopped to stare and investigate. Residents who had been fearful for children while the three-block-long stretch was, as they said, "used for a speedway," reminded drivers that the dummy could be a child lying injured or dead. The traffic slowed appreciably. The dummy began as a Hallowe'en prank, but its maker, 9-year-old William Rainey, worked better than he thought.

Hallowe'en

Hallowe'en, oh, Hallowe'en,
Why did you come so soon?
Our garden green is turning brown
And all the leaves are falling down.

Mom lost her broom, to my surprise,
'Tis witches' night, I realized;
If they go flying through the air,
Her broom is gone, I know not where.

With all the goblins in the street
I know not when or where we'll meet;
Black cats in windows all over town,
They scare me so I stumble 'round.

With the excitement I'm sure you know
There's still one thing that I love so,
Trick or Treat is my delight
When I go out on goblins' night.

Nixon Has Lead In 'Straw Vote' At College Here

Prestonsburg Community College students lean heavily toward the top candidates on the Republican ticket at next month's election, a mock election held there last Thursday indicates.

Of the approximately 400 eligible to vote, however, only 170 were polled.

President Nixon, on the basis of the straw vote, is a top-heavy favorite with the students, polling 124 votes to 46 for his Democratic opponent, Senator George McGovern.

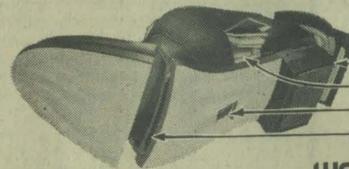

Ex-Governor Louie B. Nunn led his Democratic opponent for the U. S. Senate seat from Kentucky, 86 votes to 61.

But Congressman Carl D. Perkins, Democratic candidate for re-election, polled 85 votes to 65 for Bob Holcomb, Pikeville Republican. Of the two candidates for judge of the Court of Appeals from this appellate district, James B. Stephenson, of Pikeville, led Don Ward, of Hazard, 31 votes to 20.

County Attorney James R. Allen, unopposed candidate to serve the remainder of the unexpired term, had 34 votes.

State To Get $87.3 Million in Revenue Sharing Funds

Frankfort, Ky.—Unless there is an unexpected delay, state and local governments can expect their first returns from the federal revenue sharing bill around Oct. 26, according to Otto Stolz, special counsel to the Undersecretary of the Treasury.

Kentucky's share of the $5.3 billion State and Local Fiscal Assistance Act of 1972, ratified by Congress last week, should amount to $87.3 million. State government will receive approximately one-third of the funds with county and local governments sharing the remaining two-thirds.

Stolz said the total each state receives will be based on tax figures obtained from a 1967 Census Bureau report.

"These were the best estimates we could come up with at this time," Stolz explained. "There will be no recalculation prior to the time checks go out. But we are constantly revising our data and the basis for redistribution will be recalculated on an annual basis."

Stolz, who was attempting to explain the restrictions and limitations of the bill so that state and local officials will be aware of them by the time the checks arrive, is anticipating some early problems. He is particularly concerned with the provision in the bill that deals with restrictions on spending.

"Basically, our objective was to reduce the federal involvement in the program and rely on local accountability with no strings or restrictions from Washington," Stolz said. "However, there are some provisions in the bill that, on their face, look like they may pose problems. But, it is hoped in administering this program, we will be able to reduce their impact."

Stolz believes the two potentially most troublesome points of the bill involve the priority expenditures list, and sections that call for the payments to be deposited in trust funds.

The categories of priority expenditures include ordinary and necessary maintenance and operating expenses; public safety; environmental protection; public transportation; health; recreation; libraries; social services for the poor and aged; financial administration; and a broad category of ordinary and necessary capital expenditures authorized by law.

"The important thing to notice is that there is no maintenance of effort provision; by this I mean there is no prohibition of the substitution of funds on the local level," Stolz said. "It is entirely conceivable that you could put the revenue sharing funds into an existing category of expenditures to free up funds for a category that may not be on the list."

"The Treasury Department will rely solely on certification by local officials that the funds have, in fact, been expended for these categories. We will not in the normal course audit or perform any other activity to insure that the funds have been spent for these categories."

Stolz called the absence of education in the list of maintenance and operating expenses, "a glaring omission."

He was asked for the rationale behind this decision.

"All I can do is give you the answer that Wilbur Mills (the representative from Arkansas who submitted the joint House-Senate Conference report) used because he's the one who insisted on the exclusions. He said education is a problem that should be handled separately by an education bill."

"He was very concerned that what was going to happen is exactly what's happening in some parts of the country. Teacher organizations are negotiating five per cent increases if the community doesn't receive federal revenue sharing and eight or nine per cent if the community does."

The bill also stipulates that revenue sharing payments be deposited in "trust funds."

"Although we haven't made a final decision on this," Stolz said, "I am confident that we will not require a physical segregation of the funds in a separate bank account. What is contemplated is a separate accounting entity with separate financial accounting statements, that would detail the expenditures of the revenue sharing funds."

"It is my own feeling that we will be able to develop a system that will not be burdensome, one that will require a minimum of additional accounting at the local level. I think this effecuates a very important purpose—separating the revenue sharing funds from the general funds of the states and localities—because the co-mingling of the funds, in my view, would result in undue auditing and interference by the General Accounting Office, and possibly by other federal agencies with the non-revenue sharing activities of the states and localities."

Stolz said the bill prohibits using the funds for matching—either directly or indirectly—other federal programs. Should this occur, penalty provisions of the bill call for funds to be withheld in the future along with a 110 per cent repayment.

"This isn't going to be occasioned by the Treasury Department, unless it is a blatant violation," Stolz said. "We are going to accept certification from the state and local offices."

According to the bill, revenue sharing funds must be expended in accordance with laws and procedures applicable to the expenditures of state and localities own revenues.

Stolz said the first checks will be going out on Oct. 26 or 27. The next checks will be distributed Jan. 2-5, 1973, covering a six-month period. After that, the checks will be sent out quarterly.

All towns that are duly incorporated are entitled to revenue sharing funds.

Gov. Wendell Ford has scheduled a series of regional meetings Oct. 30-Nov. 2 to help local officials with the federal revenue sharing program. The meetings, to be conducted by the state Finance Department, Kentucky Program Development Office, and University of Kentucky, will be held at Madisonville, Elizabethtown, London, Lexington, General Butler State Resort Park at Carrollton and Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, near Prestonsburg.

Gov. Wendell Ford has named Woodford County Attorney Anthony M. Wilhoit as Kentucky's first public defender. The public defender program was authorized by the 1972 General Assembly to provide free legal counsel for indigent defendants charged with a felony or a crime punishable by six months in jail, a fine of $500 or both. Governor Ford said the program is scheduled to get under way in Kentucky's 53 judicial districts in 90 days.

Both Birth Rate, Infant Mortality In 5-Year Drop

The birth rate for Floyd county decreased during the five-year period, 1965 through 1970, but the infant mortality rate showed an even sharper drop, according to figures released last week by the Floyd County Maternity and Infant Care Project.
The birth rate dropped from 21.5 per 1,000 population in 1965 to 19.3 in 1970. During the same period the infant (under one year of age) death rate decreased from 28.6 in 1965 to 17.4 in 1970.
The figures covered the period during which the project has been in operation in this county. The Maternity and Infant Care Project is designed to find the more vulnerable patients early in pregnancy and to provide comprehensive health services and medical care. It also has as its mission the reduction of the incidence of mental retardation, the lowering of maternal and infant death rates and the overall improvement of the health of mothers and their babies.

The M & I Project emphasized the importance of pre-natal care with its booth at the recent Floyd county fair where it distributed pamphlets to the public. Its facilities are located in the basement of the Floyd County Health Department building here.

State Atty. Gen Ed Hancock says a city council can give its mayor or chief of police a cost of living pay raise at any time, under the Court of Appeals' flexible dollar principle. Hancock's opinion modified or withdrew opinions which were issued in 1968 and 1969 under his predecessor, former Atty. Gen John B. Breckinridge.

The state Highway Department has earmarked 12 railroad crossings around Kentucky to receive protective devices this year. Another 23 will be added to the list before the end of the year, according to Highway Commissioner Charles Pryor. Safety devices will include flasher lights, bells and automatic gates.

Saturday's Parade Scenes

The open Bible and Statue of Liberty had first place in the parade of Prestonsburg streets.

An international flavor is given the parade as pupils portray different nationalities.

The day's royalty—Sherri Lynn Deaton, of Wheelwright, Miss Red, White and Blue (left), and Teresa Dell Rowe, of Langley, her junior counterpart.

Scouts of varying degree and age, students, veterans and others. The Highland Free Will Baptist Church provided the only religious float. The R. & S. Truck Co. entry had a cobbler at his last and a woman at the spinning wheel. Other floats, in addition to these and the winners listed, were entered by Future Homemakers of America, Allen Central and Prestonsburg high schools, the Prestonsburg first grade, Prestonsburg Area Chamber of Commerce, Frasure Furniture Company, Maytown Boy Scout Troop 20, Prestonsburg Brownies.

In the parade were VFW Post 5839 and the VFW Auxiliary, VFW order of Cooties, Kentucky's Coal Queen, Denise Blevins, 1971 Miss Red, White and Blue, Wheelwright school and its queen candidate, Sherry Deaton; Osborne elementary school, Melvin school and its candidate, Kevin Tackett; Allen elementary and queen candidate Sharon Click; the Johnson county American Legion; Betsy Layne high school elementary and their candidates, Emogene Hamilton and Donna Layne; Maytown elementary with its Teresa Rowe; Allen Central high and Pam Innon, its candidate for queen; Yvette Martin, state 4-H speech champion; Clark elementary and its Ruth Younce; Flat Gap and its representative, Karla Baldwin; Beaver Creek elementary at Topmost with queen candidate Bridgett Napier; Jones Fork elementary; the Floyd County Library's bookmobile, with Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn walking ahead; Girl Scout Troop 27; the U. S. Corps of Engineering safe boating exhibit; Lonesome Pine Boy Scout Council, B. & D. Motor Co., U. S. Shoe Co., El Hasa Temple, Big Sandy and Oleika Shrine Clubs, Salyersville high school's marching band with its candidate, Pam Bailey; Radio Station WPRT and its representative, Robin Lynn Hale; Rural Child Care; Pike county's speech champions, David Allen and Bill Avery Riddle; Prestonsburg seventh and eighth grade chorus; Prestonsburg elementary and its representative, Annette Jones; Prestonsburg high school and its Terri Ford; Mason Moore and Dennie Stone in the one-hoss shay; and from Ashland, Mrs. James Stout, senior vice-commander, and Mrs. Alveta Holbrook, past department commander, D. A. V. Auxiliary, riding with Mrs. Bailey.

There was no speech-making as all semblance of political factionalism was shunned. The theme of political neutrality was so strong, an observer noted, that the rooster on one float that could have been identified as Democratic was housed in a log-cabin-type coop.

Bob Branham served as master of ceremonies, and Curtis Clark as parade marshal. The singing of the National anthem was by Stephen Hale, of the Jenny Wiley Repertory Theatre, to the accompaniment of the Prestonsburg high school band.

Other counties have already indicated their desire to have a part in next year's celebration, Mrs. Bailey said.

"I think," he added, "that the effect on Mayo will be beneficial. Through the regional concept, all can sit down and plan together, even plan an improved role for the school, establish liaison between all phases of education and the various institutions and provide a means of sharing services and coordinating education."

Clark added that the Garth, Millard, Belfry and Inez vocational extension centers will remain under the direction of the Mayo Vocational School.

The new regional education service includes Floyd, Johnson, Pike, Martin and Magoffin counties, each of which is represented on the board of directors by its county superintendent of schools. Pikeville College and Prestonsburg Community College also will be represented if they desire to participate, and the Big Sandy Area Development District will have one member on the board.

O. T. Dorton, of Paintsville, who last week notified Dr. Lyman Ginger, state superintendent of public instruction, that he was resigning from the Regional Advisory Council, was named by Dr. George P. Archer, chairman of the Big Sandy Area Development District, as the district's representative on the board.

The controversy over the regional plan had an emotional outburst at last week's Big Sandy Area Development board meeting at the Paintsville Country Club. Although vocational education, which has been headed in this area by the Mayo school, is included in the regional plan, no vocational education people are on the board of the new program and none participated in advance planning of the program, it was pointed out.

In announcing his resignation from the Regional Advisory Council, Mr. Dorton, a Paintsville banker, alleged that the Advisory Council was not consulted or apprised of the establishing of a regional staff and office, despite assurances that the Council would be consulted before any action was taken.

"I have become very disillusioned with the idea of advisory councils since they apparently are never listened to insofar as advice is concerned," Dorton said in a letter to Ginger.

Dorton expressed "sincere disappointment in the manner in which this matter has been handled", and voiced concern that trade education was being downgraded in favor of agriculture and home economics as taught in high schools.

Obviously disturbed by implications of the regional plan, Dorton said that the alphabetic designation "ROPE" would be "more accurately named 'rape'" charging it appeared to be a direct attack on Mayo's operation and an effort to downgrade trade school programs.

VISIT AT DWALE

Mr. and Mrs. Randy Lynch, of Worthington, were week-end guests of his aunt, Mrs. Jack T. Howard, and Mr. Howard at Dvale.

The official said the commission has concentrated on coal preparation plants but is rarely involved with strip-mining operations. He said the Tradewater region is Kentucky's worst in the acidity of its streams, most of which comes from abandoned mines, and admitted there is no practical way to treat acid water from such operations.

The discussion of clearing up streams came a day after the Congress had passed over President Nixon's veto a water pollution control act which, if fully financed, would involve the expenditure over the next three years of $24.6 billion in cleaning up the nation's lakes and streams. Communities would get grants of 75 percent on construction of sewer treatment systems.

Asked what can be done in an area such as this, with a liberal sprinkling of small, unincorporated communities adding raw sewage to the Big Sandy and other streams, Regan said they will be required to incorporate and apply for federal grants to help finance treatment plants or to join in a district effort to handle sewage treatment on a collective scale.

Several who attended the commission hearing urged an immediate clean-water program. Others carried signs protesting continuing pollution and siltation from strip mines.

The audience occasionally jeered statements by the water pollution officials that certain water problems, such as contaminated drinking water and siltation, are under the authority of other state agencies.

David L. Short, of Lexington, a former attorney for the Water Pollution Control Commission who now represents an Eastern Kentucky anti-strip-mining group, criticized the commission's history concerning control of coal industry pollution of streams.

Short read a list of 114 violations by 45 Kentucky companies of state anti-pollution laws which he said had been submitted to the Water Pollution Control Commission within the past year by officials of the state Division of Fish and Wildlife. Most of the alleged violators were coal companies operating in Eastern Kentucky.

Regan verified Short's list of violators in an interview and said that most of the situations have since been settled through "informal hearings" between the commission, the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, and the companies.

He said several of the companies listed by Short had been threatened by the commission with losing their discharge permits. He added, however, that none of the companies' discharge permits—which are granted by the commission—have been revoked.

Short, in his presentation before the commission, said that pollution could have been controlled under the original 1950 law if the commission had not been dominated in the past by commerce, and mining interests in particular.

Two spokesman representing area coal and development interests objected to the regulations, describing them as too stringent and too inflexible to suit future commercial interests.

Don Willis, representing the Beaver Creek Consolidated Coal Co., said the commission's all-use classification for many small, unnamed streams would cause unbearable costs to the coal industry.

"We should not be penalized by unnecessary expenses because we cannot know what our mines will be like in the future," he said.

Earl N. Williams, who said he represented several local coal and development companies, said that more time was needed by the state to study stream pollution and its effects on fish and aquatic life.

Dr. C. L. Allen, of Martin, state fish and wildlife commissioner representing 11 Eastern Kentucky counties, said he opposed the "agriculture" classification and said he was "confused" about various commission definitions and interpretations in the proposed regulations.

John Rosenberg, of Prestonsburg, said he objected to any classification that does not seek to restore all water for all uses.

Rosenburg, an attorney for the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, criticized the commission for not including the problem of siltation in its clean-water standards.

Regan explained that the commission had not dealt with sedimentation and siltation because it did not want to "tell people when to plow." He explained the commission's "philosophy" that strip mining is not the only source of siltation in Eastern Kentucky. He said siltation is caused by farming, highway construction and general development as well.

James M. Hamilton, 76, of Lookout, said he once fished in the Pike county streams around his home, but added that since the advent of strip mining a few years ago he "couldn't find nothing to fish for."

"I'm against this ugly stuff of strip mining and pushing the filth into our streams," Hamilton told the four commission members present, including chairman H. W. Kirkpatrick. "We who are affected would like to have action instead of so much discussion."

John T. Miller, of Wheelwright, presented the commission with a jar of dark-colored water and explained that he had stopped on his way to the meeting and collected the sample from a drinking fountain in the bathhouse at the Island Creek Coal Co. mine at Price.

Several other residents gave the commission samples they said came from their wells or from streams near their homes.

Jan Bodner of St. Vincent's Mission at David said her concern is that the regulations proposed for water classification are not strict enough. "They are too general and cannot be enforced." She cited the instance last Easter of open sewers in the privately-owned town of David where the reservoir holding that town's water supply was contaminated.

It was learned that the Kentucky Health Department issued a citation on Monday attorneys are proper trial judges, but the high court overruled it.

The Court of Appeals decision in reversing the Harlan case said, in part:

"The function of the court is not to defend the accused, or to represent him, but to decide fairly and impartially," it held yesterday.

"An accused needs counsel to defend him . . . Because the government employs lawyers to prosecute him—because our system of criminal justice is an adversary system," the high court said. "But the judge is not one of the accused's adversaries and is not there either to defend or to prosecute him."

"There never has been any thought that a right to be tried by a lawyer judge grows out of the right to be defended by a lawyer."

allowing 15 days to clean up the contamination at David, or to provide reason why the town will not do so.

James B. Goble, administrator of the Floyd County Health Department, said water samples there are now "clear and clean."

Harland Hawkins, of Belcher, in Pike County, said that sulfur water was leaking into streams and wells in Belcher. He said the health department "will not do anything about it. What profit is a law on the books if nothing is going to be done," he said.

Bill Pettrey, vice-president of the Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club, said, "We cannot have siltation from coal mines in Dewey Lake like they have had at Fishtrap Reservoir." He pointed out that fishing license sales amount to $55,000 a year, that Dewey Lake and Jenny Wiley State Park attract upwards of 2 million visitors a year and that siltation will destroy both park and lake.

Nello Francis, of the Garrett Water Company, said the use of magnite, a substance to collect coal dust, is in the water of Right Beaver Creek from which his company draws its supply, and that this has prevented proper operation of his water plant. When Regan replied that permits are not issued to allow the emission of black water into streams, adding that "we will look into the situation," Francis said:

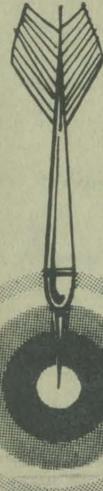

"When a report is issued that the stream is black, then by the time it is checked it's clear. When we talk to you people, this is about what we get—'We'll look into it later.'"

Mr. and Mrs. Avery Smiley, of Cliff, produced water samples from Middle Creek which were described as yellow and noxious. Arthur Spriggs, of Drift, reported that in his area approximately 200 persons "in the hollows" are left without water "after the strippers moved out."

History by the People

Jim Robertson packed his close relatives into a camper and drove 11,000 miles—stopping in 63 small towns during the middle six weeks of summer to see it with his own eyes.

He'd been hearing stories about a grass-roots history movement—everybody people working with perseverance and perspiration to save the little pieces of America's past—a grist mill...a way to make baskets or buggies...a few recollections by an old soldier...

Jim, naturally a curious man (and a trustee of the America the Beautiful Fund, which concerns itself with the living history of America) talked wife Carolyn, photographer-brother Alden, and sister-in-law Jean into an exploring "vacation" and they rolled out due Southeast from California, July 21.

Apparently founder Albert Fountain was an uncommonly devout man—he believed the talents of his performing family were divine gifts and should not be the source of commercial gain. So devout he was, in fact, that when films became popular in the '20's, he personally accompanied them with moral interpretation... moviegoers were taught Christian principles as Fountain "explained" the actions of Mack Sennett, Gloria Swanson, John Barrymore...

The Robertsons, unfortunately, did not rise early enough to see the form of Maria—the "Fountain's" resident ghost—standing in the ticket booth at the first light of morning. But they did record on tape stories about Maria... also about La Llarona, the river ghost who weeps for her lost children...

The "Fountain of Pleasure" is not safe yet. The old roof sways threateningly... Mrs. Leger, Paul Taylor, Luis Estrada and their neighbors are busy raising funds for materials. It's possible the Theatre Group will stage an opera written long ago about Mesilla—in order to raise the roof!

The second night of the trip brought the Robertsons to Mesilla, New Mexico, to the "Fountain of Pleasure" Theatre. They were hosted by Mrs. Mary Lou Leger and the Las Cruces Theatre Group (who recently saved the "Fountain" from ignominious demise as a chili-pepper warehouse) and heard several odd things about the 74 year-old theatre:

1. It operated as a playhouse for thirty years without once charging admission.
2. It had its own editorial policy when it presented films.
3. It is haunted.

Alden took this picture in Wye Mills, Maryland. The mill was built 292 years ago and ground grain that nourished General Washington's men during the Valley Forge winter. Those two young men (Richard McComas, 22, and Brian Spence, 15) grind delicious flours and meals today. Young people, including Professor John Bronson from Chesapeake College, re-opened the mill and saved it from being just a decaying curiosity.

If your town has a mill over 100 years old that's still grinding with stone, would you send us a postcard? We'd certainly appreciate knowing about it.)

In Oberlin, Kansas, they keep alive the most literally "grass-roots" of all crafts: sod house-building (pictures above). "Soddies" built at Oberlin and Colby let youngsters under fifty find out how it's done...

The Robertsons all enjoyed the journey... Their truck didn't (a valve job in Denver)... Jim came home amazed by the intensity and variety of activities, but bothered by two observations: towns people didn't realize the importance of their work to the rest of America... and nobody knew what people in other towns were doing, so tactical mistakes were repeated unnecessarily...

So he talked with other America the Beautiful Fund officials, and the People's History Information Exchange was born—to talk and listen to small towns.

Now the Exchange is ready to hear from you—about history still alive in your town... By the way, has any other town besides Mesilla saved a haunted building?

Who's saving what: La Grange, Ca.—gold dredge and site...Cuero, Texas—turkey trot (yes, they herd the turkeys down the middle of the main street!), Victorian storefronts...Barbourville, Ga.—quilting, whittling...Zion, Ohio—natural-glaze pottery...Emmett, Ark.—people's archaeology...Carrollton, Ohio—the Algonquin Mill.

Write us. Our address is People's History Information Exchange, 2200 Bridgeway, Sausalito, California 94965...and keep the grass-roots history movement growing!

Bill Provides Raise For Social Security

One of the final acts of the 92nd Congress before adjournment last week was to pass and send to the President for his signature a compromise welfare-Social Security bill which will increase benefits to beneficiaries and also increase Social Security taxes on both employees and employers.

The bill, which President Nixon is expected to sign immediately, guarantees every impoverished elderly American an income of at least $130 a month. Its major provisions follow:

Raises Social Security taxes from the present 5.2 per cent each on employers and employees, levied on the first $9,000 a year of earnings ($468 a year each) to 5.85 per cent each on the first $10,800 a year in 1973 ($631 each) and 5.85 per cent on the first $12,000 from 1974 through 1977 ($702 each annually).

Students Hear How Help Is Available

Two representatives of the Office of Youth Affairs last week visited Prestonsburg Community College and the new Allen Central high school at Eastern to explain the services now offered by their agency to Kentucky's half-million high school and college-age citizens.

Co-director Bob Arnold and John Schlich, and administrative assistant, told the students that now when they have a problem and do not know where to go for information, they can call a toll-free number and receive help.

"By calling 1-800-372-2973, a young person can get the information he needs," said Arnold. "No matter what the question, we'll give the caller a straight answer."

The office primarily acts as an informational clearing house regarding the many opportunities federal, state, and local governments offer Kentucky's youth.

The OYA was created last July by an executive order of Gov. Wendell Ford the better to inform him of the many problems facing the youth of the Commonwealth.

Arnold and Schlich are now visiting many of the 356 high schools and all 44 Kentucky universities and colleges scattered across the state to publicize the services OYA can offer youth.

The office also hopes to make government, business and industry more aware of the overabundance of young talent available within the Commonwealth.

OYA also is revising and updating a state speakers list in conjunction with the Department of Public Information. Although the primary interests and emphasis of the office is on matters pertaining to youth, the speakers list will be available to groups and individuals of all ages and interests.

Questions can also be mailed to the offices Frankfort address: Room 2220 Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Reduces waiting period for disability insurance from six months to five, effective Jan. 1, 1973.

Raises widows' and widowers' benefits from 82.5 per cent of the deceased spouse's entitlement to 100 per cent. Effective Jan. 1, 1973. Affects 3.8 million persons.

Permits Social Security retirees to earn up to $2,100 dollars a year instead of the present $1,680 without reduction of benefits. Over $2,100, benefits will be reduced $1 for each $2 earned, effective Jan. 1, 1973. Affects 450,000 people.

Provides a new minimum benefits calculation guaranteeing that a Social Security retiree will receive $8.50 in benefits per month for each year he worked in excess of 10 years; for one who worked 30 years, this would work out to $170 a month unless his regular benefits calculation worked out to more. This is to provide better retirement benefits for long-term, low-wage workers. Effective Jan. 1, 1973. Affects 150,000.

Makes 1.7 million Social Security disability beneficiaries eligible for Medicare benefits after they have been on disability 24 months. Effective July 1, 1973.

Provides 1 per cent bonus for each year a person under Social Security delays his retirement beyond age 65, for future retirees only.

The interim Committee on Health and Welfare says it will look into drug abuse and ambulance service needs in Kentucky. The suggestion to do so was made by committee chairman Rep. Darvin Allen (D-Royalton) who said he would name a subcommittee to perform the investigation. The subpanel apparently will concentrate on a bill to have the state license ambulance services and perhaps the personnel who run them.

Introducing the 1973 Beetle:

Re-introducing the 1972 price:

With the price of our new Beetle still under $2,000,* the Volkswagen Beetle is a bigger buy than ever before.

More warranty, for instance, than you get with any other small car. Twice more: 24 months or 24,000 miles.

More attention to specific details than ever (and that's quite a lot). More than 1,000 inspectors meticulously scrutinizing more than 5,000 parts. Some two or three times. For us, it's not enough to get it right, we want it perfect.

Volkswagen also has the most advanced automotive service system in the world. A brand new computer is, or soon will be, waiting in our service area. We simply plug it in to your VW, and it checks, via sensors and probes, vital service parts and spells out the results in plain English. That's service.

Maybe all of this explains why VW owners have gotten more resale dollars after three or four years than the owners of any other comparable car.†

Obviously, it's not only the price of the '73 Beetle that reminds you of the good old days. It's also the quality.

Few things in life work as well as a Volkswagen.

*1973 Volkswagen Sedan III suggested retail price, P.O.E. Local taxes and other dealer charges, if any, additional.
If an owner maintains and services his vehicle in accordance with the Volkswagen maintenance schedule any factory part found to be defective in material or workmanship within 24 months or 24,000 miles, whichever comes first (except normal wear and tear and service items) will be repaired or replaced by any U.S. or Canadian Volkswagen Dealer. Ky. TB Situation Still Serious Though Improvements Made

An examination of statistics for the first six months of 1972 shows an improving, but still serious, problem for Kentucky's Division of Tuberculosis Control, Jerry Brimberry, of the State Department of Health, said in an address Oct. 13 before the board of directors of the Kentucky Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, held in conjunction with the Kentucky Thoracic Society.

Significant improvement has been made in effective at-home treatment for active TB patients. On June 20, 1971, 80.6 per cent of these patients had been examined in the preceding six months. That figure has now risen to 82.9 per cent. During the same period, the percentage of at-home cases on drug therapy rose from 75.6 to 79.6, and those who had received a bacteriological examination went from 65.0 per cent to 70.6 per cent.

Between January and June of 1972, 464 new cases of TB were reported, bringing to 10,269 the number of cases on file. Of this number, 381 patients were in hospitals and 947 active cases (that is, patients whose disease has not yet been arrested) were at home. The remaining 8,560 cases on the TB register are classified as inactive, or patients whose TB has been arrested.

Yet the TB Control Division still faces five critical problems: Less than half the state's TB beds are in use. 193 active, at-home cases are not receiving adequate treatment.

Almost 3,000 inactive cases have never received adequate treatment. Preventive treatment can minimize their chances of reactivating TB. 131 people who were in close contact with active TB had a positive skin test, but are not themselves receiving preventive treatment. The TB Control Division is continuing its efforts to persuade these people to take advantage of anti-tuberculosis drug therapy.

There are still 15 Kentucky counties without any TB clinic to treat and supervise active TB patients on home care. However, seventeen counties established clinics between April and June, and additional clinics will be started as funds are available.

An additional concern is the fact that within this six-month period, 244 people in close contact with newly-identified TB patients have not been examined. Nineteen cases of active TB were discovered through checks among contacts of other TB cases. The Division is expanding its field social workers in order to provide improved follow-up of contacts and positive reactors.

Clemons To Head Safety Program of Mines Bureau

Bill Clemons, assistant district manager in the U. S. Bureau of Mines office, Pikeville, will head a new Bureau of Mines safety program to reduce the number of coal mine haulage accidents in District 6.

Mr. Clemons said that haulage accidents are the No. 1 cause of fatal injuries to coal miners. To date this year, 45 men have lost their lives from this cause in the nation's coal mines.

Specially trained inspectors will conduct comprehensive haulage surveys in all underground coal mines. These surveys will evaluate the design, operating procedures and condition of track and rubber-tired haulage systems and equipment relative to the safe transportation of materials and personnel.

The haulage specialist will also discuss with miners employed in haulage jobs, and their supervisors, the potential hazard of haulage operations; awareness of operational features, procedures, and practices that are contrary to established policies, and the means of controlling or eliminating such hazards. Bureau of Mines training specialists began a special training program Sept. 15 for mine haulage employees to increase the awareness of the need for safety in the area of mine haulage, develop positive attitudes toward safety in every day work situations and give the miners the necessary knowledge to improve overall safety in the area of mine haulage.

A third thrust is in the area of engineering and research. Engineers and scientists in the Bureau of Mines' Technical Support Center in Pittsburgh are working to develop new devices and haulage systems that will be fail-safe.

The program will be conducted in all underground mines, however, mines which have had a fatal or a serious haulage injury during the past year will be surveyed first.

State Natural Resources Commissioner Thomas O. Harris said his department's investigation of Eastern Kentucky strip-mining violations is continuing. Harris said he "doesn't know" whether more striping permits will be suspended. The department has reinstated two of 10 permits suspended over the past month.

Who's helping you hold down health care costs?

Here's what KENTUCKY BLUE CROSS® and BLUE SHIELD™ are doing: We represent the consumer in matters relating to the cost of health care. Even if you are not a member of Blue Cross and Blue Shield you benefit from what we do to encourage cost consciousness in providing health care services.

It's true that the price of health care has gone up, like most other prices. Some increases couldn't be avoided if we are to continue to improve our medical facilities and services, and we all want the best health care possible when illness and injury strike.

We work closely with the providers of health care to make sure only needed and necessary increases are implemented.

But if you're concerned about health care costs, there are ways you can help. Don't ask your doctor to put you in a hospital unless it's really necessary. Don't stay longer than you must. Every day someone spends in a hospital unnecessarily raises the cost of health care for everyone.

You are not alone in the struggle against high health care costs. Blue Cross and Blue Shield are with you.

Our only business is helping you get good health care you can afford.

Congress Authorizes Royalton Dam Plans

The Senate and House last Friday night approved the compromise Omnibus Rivers and Harbors bill, one item of which authorizes the Appalachian water resources plan, including the proposed Royalton reservoir in Magoffin county.

Involved in the Magoffin county plan is a comprehensive area development undertaking designed to make of the Royalton-Salyersville section a recreational-industrial center.

How far this approval of planning will advance the project toward actual work remains a question.

The new bill also changes the effective date of Section 221 of 1970 from next Jan. 1 to Jan. 1, 1974. This change, Senator John Sherman Cooper, ranking member of the Senate Public Works Committee, said, will permit construction to go forward on projects that might otherwise have been stopped. Included in the projects thus given a new lease on life are the Paintsville and Yatesville reservoirs.

GARRETT NEWS

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Buckovich, of Lincoln Park, Mich., spent last week here with Mrs. Hattie Huffman and while here they visited several old friends.

Mrs. Rita Best, of New Jersey, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Rosy Oney, at Garrett, while her husband is one tour with Mitch Millers Band.

Mrs. Iby Hughes has sold her home at Garrett to Mrs. Ellen Clemons and left last Saturday moving to Wilmore, Ky., to make her home near her son.

W. E. Parker, Rudolph Spencer, Sidney Allen and Bluford Smith left Monday for Louisville, where they spent the week attending 173rd Masonic Grand Lodge meeting.

John Campbell, Jr. returned home Tuesday after spending several weeks in University Hospital, Lexington, and is recuperating nicely.

Mr. and Mrs. Rondal Lawson announce the arrival of a daughter, born Saturday, October 14, at the Methodist Hospital, Pikeville. The baby has been named Ronda Jane.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Spencer, W. E. Parker and Sidney Allen attended the funeral of W. N. Stratton at Ashland, Saturday.

Mrs. Felix Coburn, Mrs. Virgil Bailey, Mrs. Hansel Bradley, Mrs. Mabel Sloan, Mrs. Sam Rector, Mrs. Alice Hornsby, Mrs. Beatrice Collins, Mrs. H. A. Casey, Mrs. Ruby Wallace, Mrs. Morris Dunfee, Mrs. Rudolph Spencer and Rev. Rush Slone, of the Garrett Baptist Church, attended the 95th session of Enterprise Association held in the J. S. Bell Memorial Church at Topmost, October 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Danny O'Neal spent the week-end here with Mrs. O'Neal's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Martin.

The bill also: Authorizes the establishment of the Big South Fork National River and Recreation Area in the states of Kentucky and Tennessee.

Authorizes the Camp Ground Lake project on the Salt River Basin of Washington and Nelson counties, with an estimated federal cost of $50.8 million.

Modifies the Kehoe Lake project to include acquisition of approximately 4,000 acres, to maintain such area in its natural state, and to conduct environmental investigations and provide access control facilities to assure appropriate protection and enhancement of this unique resource. Acquisition of these lands shall not be commenced until an agreement satisfactory to the Secretary of the Army has been entered into with the appropriate nonfederal interests to manage the area.

Authorizes a detailed study of the total benefits and costs attributable to water resources development projects undertaken in the Ohio River basin by the Army Corps of Engineers. Evaluation of benefits and costs attributable to such projects shall include consideration of the enhancement of regional economic development, quality of the total environment, and well being of the people and national economic development.

Modifies the Cave Run Lake project to provide that construction of any proposed road to the Zilpo recreation area shall not be undertaken until there is full opportunity for public review and comment on the environmental impact statement pertaining to such proposed road.

Authorizes the repair and conversion of Dam Number 3 on the Big Sandy River at Louisa.

The bill would also change the effective date of Section 221 of the Flood Control Act of 1970 from January 1, 1972, to January 1, 1974. This change in the effective date will permit construction to go forward on projects that might otherwise be stopped, including the Paintsville, Yatesville, and Kehoe Lakes projects in Kentucky.

When it comes to an improved environment, there is no Santa Claus

Everybody wants an improved environment, but wishing won't make it so. There is much to be done and it's going to cost everybody a lot of money.

Many people say "I" don't cause pollution... "they" do. "They" should give me back my clean air and pure water, and "they" should pay for it. The truth is all of us are polluters and all of us must pay for improving our environment.

The price tag attached is going to be a stiff one. Controlling pollution, whether by a device in a car, a new sewage disposal plant, or equipment at a power plant, will have an inevitable cost to each of us as a consumer. We should make sure the benefits are worth the price.

WHAT ABOUT THE ENVIRONMENTAL PRICE TAG ON ELECTRIC POWER? The cost of new pollution control equipment at power generating plants will show up in all of our electric bills. How high the price will be cannot be forecast. Much depends on government regulations. In our opinion, some are unrealistic because they can't be met, and if they could be met would be unnecessary. AN EXAMPLE: We must burn coal to make electricity. New government regulations say our burning coal puts too much sulfur oxides in the air—and this is harmful. The fact is that only high concentrations of sulfur oxides at ground level—not in the upper atmosphere—can be harmful. Sulfur oxides exhausted from plant stacks high in the atmosphere are quickly diffused so as to meet strict government regulations. We are and will continue to protect against harmful ground-level concentrations of sulfur oxides.

However, there's no commercially successful way to remove sulfur oxides from power plant stacks on a continuous basis in the amounts specified by the new government regulations. Millions are being spent on research to find a way, and we are taking a significant part in that research. We have no doubt a way will be found, but more time is needed. When science finds a way, we'll promptly adopt it.

We, like you, want to protect our environment . . . make it better than it is today. But, there is no Santa Claus, when it comes to an improved environment. We need to be sure that sought-after improvements are possible and worth their cost. We need to avoid unnecessary increases in our electric bills.

Understanding of the possible and the impossible together with the inevitable price tag is the first step toward a sensible approach to protecting and improving our environment.

FIRST FROST

Yes, the frost is on the pumpkin. Fall is really here . . . time for hayrides, wiener roasts and other autumnal activities.

It's also the time for harvest . . . the time when even the squirrels know to gather nuts for the winter. Nature has a way of letting her creatures know to save back a little in the time of plenty, for the possible time of need. Perhaps that's why thousands are saving millions at First National. The only difference in the squirrel's method and ours, is that their nuts will not multiply and bring more, and then there's the possibility they could be burned, stolen or otherwise lost. At First National, your savings grow and multiply, and are absolutely safe-insured. So be wise, as nature intended; save at First National now.

ARC Fires Worker Who Procured Funds To Buy Textbooks

(From The Mountain Eagle, Whitesburg, Ky.)

A young staff employee of the Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) in Washington, D. C., has been dismissed from her job for obtaining a grant to buy textbooks for four poor youngsters in Pike county, Kentucky.

The employee is Betty Jean Hall, an assistant in the agency's Youth Division. The controversial grant, involving a total of $160.00, was made by the Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) and personally approved by the OEO director, Philip Sanchez.

The recipients of the money are four high school youngsters in the Marrowbone section of Pike County who did not have funds to buy textbooks to enter school this year. Their plight was brought to Miss Hall's attention by Edith Easterling, who operates the Marrowbone Folk School in that area.

According to Miss Hall, she first sought approval for the money from a special staff contribution fund at ARC. The request was approved by staff director Richard Dynes but turned down by Ken Shephard, ARC's budget director, on the grounds that the special fund - made up of staff contributions, not tax money - for such purposes, was depleted. When Miss Hall approached John Whisman, the states' regional representative of ARC, about the matter, he reportedly advised her to take the request to OEO.

When Miss Hall requested OEO assistance from the Special Projects Division, she got immediate and surprising results: The OEO director himself signed the letter to Edith Easterling, noting the agency's pleasure in making the $160 grant.

ARC officials apparently were not so pleased about the grant, however. Last week she was advised by ARC Coordinator of Human Resources, Dr. Ron Willie, that she was being fired for "failure to follow procedure" in contacting another federal agency.

According to a firm ARC policy, only staff is allowed to "approach" another federal agency. The policy is designed to prevent employees at ARC from conducting business at other agencies without their superiors' knowledge.

Miss Hall insists that the "procedure" question is really a smokescreen to remove her from the agency, since she, "went to all my superiors, including Whisman, and got permission to do what I did." Miss Hall is one of two staff employees left in the agency's Youth Division, a division which was defunded this year as a low priority.

Miss Hall, a graduate of Berea College in Kentucky, is only one of several employees who are either being dismissed or transferred to menial jobs in the agency. Reports circulating in Washington say that employees actively pushing the agency to fund black lung clinics, to speak out against strip mining, and to put citizens on the boards of agencies that ARC funds in the mountains, have also been fired or transferred.

Miss Hall is one of only three natives of the mountains working at the agency, which has over a hundred employees. The other two are Alvin Arnett, the executive director, and John Whisman, states' regional representative.

Miss Hall was planning this week to challenge her dismissal. "I came here to try to help mountain people," she said, "and I do not intend to be run out by a bunch of people who care nothing about the mountains."

Congress Overrides Rail Pension Veto

President Nixon vetoed a 20 percent pension increase for railroad workers but Congress overrode him within five hours Oct. 4 to make the measure law.

The House, followed by the Senate, easily raised the two-thirds majorities necessary to rebuff the President. The House voted 353 to 29 and in the Senate it was 76-5 tally.

Mr. Nixon had rejected the proposal on grounds it was inflationary, too generous and too risky to the financial soundness of the pension fund.

The measure would provide a 20 percent "temporary" boost until next June 30 in the pensions going to 984,000 retired rail workers or their survivors.

An independent commission on railroad retirement reported last month that the fund would be bankrupt by 1985 without an overhaul of its finances. The major problem is that only 611,000 workers are paying into the fund.

The bill was designed to give the rail workers the same 20 percent boost given Social Security beneficiaries this year, but in that case several million more persons pay into Social Security trust fund than receive benefits.

The House rejected Mr. Nixon's protest on grounds that the increase is only temporary and that by March 1, Congress would start a comprehensive review on how to overhaul the fund and make it actuarially sound.

Mr. Nixon had proposed, instead, a smaller boost in pension increases, averaging $28 per month for single retired workers and about $47 a month for married couples. This, he said, would not "deepen the presently projected deficits of the . . . fund."

It was the 17th veto cast by Mr. Nixon since taking office in January, 1969.

At the reorganization meeting on September 13, the State Board of Education elected Milton S. Yunker, Owensboro, as its Chairman, succeeding R. B. Condon of Louisville who continues to serve as a member of the board.

Time To Make Friends With Goblins

By HELEN PRICE STACY

West Liberty, Ky.—These are the days when the wind rattles dry corn blades in the fields, and clutches leaves still clinging to tree boughs, and flings them to distant hills or to crackly mounds beneath spreading limbs.

These are the nights when dark clouds shroud the moon, when hounds baying on a hill receive haunting calls from the next hollow, and when a cat call sounds like a wailing infant in the darkness. These are nights when a chain holding a picture on the wall breaks at midnight, sending the picture crashing to the floor.

It is a time to make friends with the goblins, "for they will get you if you don't watch out."

Ask any occupant of a house that was built 50 or 100 years ago if he has noticed strange sounds or sights, and he will smile and say, "Can't recall any."

But, in his mind, he may remember the night when he imagined the sound of a bolted door, slowly opening on creaking hinges. He'll recall that he dismissed the sound from his mind, since there was no one else in the house.

He will not tell you that it gave him a jolt when, the next morning, the door was found ajar.

Few people will tell you about elusive steps on the stairs in the still of night, thumps on the wall or far-away sobs from someone with a heart broken years before.

But Eddy Pierce, who writes stories about the supernatural for "The Sprite and Bugle," loves to tell about the ghosts, haunts and spirits of the Cumberland Lake area.

In one of his stories, Pierce describes how he found himself in the middle of a strange and terrifying experience.

It began, he wrote, when his phone rang after supper one night. A man's voice told the writer to meet him at an old house down the road. The strange voice assured Pierce he would find the best ghost story he had ever heard.

The old house had been one Pierce had taken for granted, since he passed it every day. Pierce parked his car in front of the house and the man, who already had arrived, motioned him inside.

"I was taken by surprise, for the living room we had walked into was full of furniture," wrote Pierce. The room was furnished in the style of 1900, with oil lamps burning.

Pierce looked toward the stairs, where he heard a soft cry and saw a young girl coming toward him.

The mysterious man introduced the two, and explained that the girl had lived in the house until 1900, when her mother remarried. The stepfather, a cruel drunkard, mistreated the girl, then killed her.

When the girl's mother arrived, the stepfather said the girl had been killed by a horse. If the mother doubted the explanation, she stilled her thoughts, and the matter was closed.

"But the girl's soul has never rested in peace," the man told Pierce.

With that statement, the man took the girl by the arm and they walked out of the house. Pierce ran to see what car they were driving, but all was silence. The two had disappeared.

The writer then ran to a nearby farm and called his wife to bring a camera so he could photograph the strange house. The farm's owner had seen Pierce go into the old house, but not the other man. He had not noticed lights burning in the house.

When his wife arrived with the camera, Pierce returned to the old house only to find the lights were gone, the house standing dark.

He and his wife found the front door locked, and, when they forced open the door, the house was empty. Where moments before there were chairs and a sofa and brightly lighted lamps, there now was only dust and silence.

Pierce wrote that he had no explanation, other than, after years of writing about ghosts and haunted houses, he had walked into "The shadow of the unknown."

As October rusts away, and autumn leaves begin to fall in mounds beneath the tree, it might be good to think kind thoughts about ghosts and spirits, for they want only attention, care and sympathy.

One of them might lend you a helping hand on a dark, stormy night when you are walking a lonely path through the woods toward home and a window bright from the glow of an oil lamp.

Opinion Regarding J.P.'s

A justice of the peace cannot hold court, take pleas or sentence a defendant inside the county jail, according to the state Attorney General's office. That opinion went to Johnson County Sheriff Ray E. Preston, who said magistrates in his area often come to the county jail to take pleas and fine defendants. Asst. Atty. Gen. Charles Runyan, who wrote the opinion, said a jail setting "is not one calculated to promote judicial objectivity or respect for the justices' court."

LOUIE NUNN!!!

WHAT LEADING REPUBLICANS REALLY SAY ABOUT HIM!

Because we're in a Presidential Election year a great deal of pressure will be brought upon Republican party office holders and officials alike to support the entire ticket. A sense of loyalty to the President will cause many Republicans to go along for the good of the party. What is important, however, is what these people really think about Louie Nunn and what they say about him when the pressure of Presidential politics is off.

Senator JOHN SHERMAN COOPER:

"Louie Nunn's campaign has had the purpose and effect of stirring up religious and racial prejudices."

"Whatever the immediate advantage might be, such a practice is contrary to our free system of government for all its citizens and damages the good name and honor of the Republican Party, the Commonwealth of Kentucky and its great people."

Senator MARLOW COOK:

"After spending an entire campaign attacking me, Jefferson County, and our entire Republican Organization, Louie Nunn now finds it necessary to attack our Senior Senator the Honorable John Sherman Cooper. The idea that he would accuse Senator Cooper of conspiring to enter into a deal is so revolutive that an answer would on its face be ridiculous."

Congressman TIM LEE CARTER:

"The ugly ideas of racism, religious bigotry and mud slinging are being exploited throughout the 5th Congressional District and the State of Kentucky. I have seen Mr. Nunn attempt to exploit these issues and I saw him lose all minority groups as a result." Congressman Carter also said he suspected the Nunn forces of "disseminating hate literature."

Lt. Gubernatorial Candidate THOMAS RATLIFF:

"I publicly apologize to the people of Kentucky for running on the same ticket with Louie B. Nunn."

G.O.P. Candidate for Graves County ED ROGERS:

"Nunn's program has reversed the legend of Robin Hood to rob the poor and subsidize the rich."

Don't be misled by Presidential politics.

Popcorn, America's Oldest Snack

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD (UK College of Agriculture)

LEXINGTON, KY.—Popping was probably the first use man made of corn, according to M. J. Bitzer, Extension specialist in grain crops at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. And, from prehistoric to modern times, man has considered popcorn a favorite treat.

Here in the United States, popcorn is the oldest of snack items and still one of the most popular. According to the National Geographic Society, more than 350 million pounds of it were consumed last year in this country. As a result, popcorn is a valuable cash crop in some areas—Kentucky produces more than 10,000 acres of this grain, worth more than $1 million annually, Bitzer says.

Popular long before the first Europeans visited the New World, popcorn probably grew as a wild grass in Middle America before 4000 B. C. Scientists exploring caves on the east coast of Peru found and popped corn 1,000 years old. In 1492, Christopher Columbus is reported to have discovered natives in the West Indies wearing popcorn decorations like corsages. Later, explorers found Indians growing and munching the food all the way from South America to Canada. The Aztecs raised it as a crop and used it to make necklaces and other ornaments by threading popped kernels on a string just as American children have done for years at Halloween and Christmas.

In North America, English colonists probably were introduced to popcorn at the first Thanksgiving feast in Plymouth, Mass. Delighted with its taste, colonial housewives were soon serving popcorn with sugar and cream for breakfast, a forecast of the huge puffed cereal industry of the future.

Future popcorn research reveals that Indians in the Great Lakes region considered popcorn soup a great delicacy. They prepared the main ingredient in a pottery crock heated by hot sand. The European colonists improved on Indian methods by using pierced iron sheets that resembled early bed-warming pans.

Then came the handy, long-handled screen wire popper that, on long winter evenings, waved to and fro over beds of live coals across the width and breadth of the United States. The popped corn, which was called "caps," was eaten buttered and salted or as a confection called "popcorn balls." This homemade goody was the result of boiling sorghum to a thicker consistency, pouring it over the popcorn,

Kentucky counties may not use their share of strip-mine permit funds for their own general funds and not necessarily for road repairs, according to the state Attorney General's office. County fiscal courts recently began receiving the funds, under a new law which gives them a portion of the fees collected from strip-mine operators.

JENKINS LOSES ITS HOMECOMING TO WHEELWRIGHT

By MARK LAFFERTY

The Wheelwright Trojans closed out their season last week with the defeat of Jenkins at the Cavaliers' homecoming, 36-6.

The Trojans' record for the season stands at five wins and five losses. The team loses seven seniors and five starters from this year's team. With last week's game. Coach Don Daniels closed out his third year at Wheelwright without a losing season.

Darrell Branham sparked the Trojans again as he scored 22 points in the game. He scored both of the Trojans' first-quarter touchdowns. The Trojans picked up eight points in the second quarter as Keith Caudill gathered in a Jeff Riley pass to lead at halftime, 20-6. Branham carried the conversion over.

In the third quarter Clifford James scored another Wheelwright tally from two yards out. James also added the conversion. Branham scored the last Wheelwright touchdown of the season from the 10-yard line. The conversion was completed on a pass from Riley to Caudill.

Prestonsburg's Cats Get Revenge On Hazard with 27-0 Victory

By MARK LAFFERTY

The Prestonsburg Blackcats assured themselves a winning season last Friday night by blanking the Hazard Bulldogs, 27-0, and also got sweet revenge for defeats of other years at Hazard hands.

The Cats played before their third homecoming crowd of the season as they avenged the loss of the previous year's District title. They now have a six wins and three losses on the year, with two games left.

Prestonsburg scored early as Ronnie Burke ran 28 yards for a t. d. This score came following a fumble recovery near midfield. The conversion attempt failed. The Blackcats next scored on the first play following another fumble recovery.

The Cats played excellent heads-up defense that forced Hazard to fumble four times during the evening. The next Blackcat score came as Jim Blackburn tossed a pass to Dennis Walker on the 20-yard line and then came back with a 20-yard scoring strike to Ronnie Burke. Robert Tackett kicked both conversions to make the Blackcat lead 20-0 at the half.

The only threat in the third quarter was by Hazard, but it was choked off as the Cats forced another Bulldog fumble. Jim Blackburn, who did a fine job directing the Cats, fired his second scoring strike 25 yards to Dennis Walker. The conversion was kicked by Tackett to make the final, 27-0.

This week, the Cats play host to the Golden Eagles of Johnson Central.

U.S. Bureau of Mines Official Predicts Strip Bill Passage

Bill Boyd, Bureau of Mines liaison officer for Kentucky and West Virginia, Friday predicted passage of the strip mine bill from Congress in March of 1973.

He made the prediction at a seminar with Pikeville College mining technology students.

"Today the coal industry has safety and environmental problems and tomorrow it will have more," Boyd said.

Boyd said the new legislation would make the strip mine bill that was considered in Congress and defeated last week "look like a white paper."

The new legislation would be more stringent due to a youthful Congress that will take a dim view of the coal industry, Boyd said.

He thinks the coal industry is now gearing up for a fight on the bill. According to Boyd, the United States has moved from a "have" nation to a "have not" nation as far as energy production is concerned.

He said the country will have to depend on foreign sources and foreign supplies.

"Each time we go to a foreign source we will have to go with a bigger billfold," Boyd said.

He said he expects Eastern Kentucky metallurgical export coal will not see a slump in demand, but the industry is facing a difficult time now.
