Two Fuels Have Roles In Strikes

New Coal Contract Could Be Delayed; Gas Pacts Involved

The fuel industry in Eastern Kentucky has more problems than a coal strike. The gas industry is involved, also.

Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company is strikebound for the fifth week as company and union employees are disagreed on the terms of a new contract.

And the first bargaining session was held Tuesday between representatives of union employees and the Columbia Gas Transmission Co., Columbia Gas of Kentucky and Columbia Gas of West Virginia. The negotiations began in an effort to arrive at a contract agreement before the Nov. 30 expirationnof the present labor pact.

Only the subject of wages, however, faces negotiators, and all involved are at this time hopeful that a new contract can be negotiated soon. The employees involved number about 2,000.

The nationwide UMWA strike apparently is two or three weeks at the earliest away from settlement. The tentative agreement reached last Wednesday must first be approved by the union's bargaining council, then must go to the local unions for ratification.

Union spokesmen were far from unanimous in their verbal acceptance of the tentative contract, and Guy Farmer. chief negotiator for the coal operators, said the coal industry has made its final offer and "is not open to renegotiate the agreement."

One Floyd county man identified with the coal industry said he would "be surprised if they get a contract before Christmas."

Mine Equipment Theft Results In One Arrest

The theft of an estimated $3,000 worth of mining equipment from the Hale Mining Company at Teaberry was followed by the arrest last week of Forrest K. Martin by Sheriff Joe W. Lewis and Deputy Sheriff Martin who recovered all the missing items on the preceding day.

Martin, who admitted his guilt, was charged with grand larceny. A juvenile also was named in the theft. The mining operation is owned by Sherman Rice, of Swamp Branch.

Two others have been arrested within the week on grand larceny charges. They are Mike Burke, or Charles Michael Allen, arrested by Deputy Sheriffs Doug

THE LOWLY PREPOSITION

There are people who will leave a participle dangling without blinking an eye and split an infinitive without compunction, but who will go to all kinds of pains to avoid ending a sentence with a preposition. In recent years I've watched the struggle as folks, mostly candidates for office, avoided the elegancy of saying, "to make Floyd county a better place in which to live" and wound up by simply saying, "to make Floyd county a better place to live." This, to me, doesn't say what is intended, and, though I decry the current abuse of the language, I insist that it would be better to say, quite plainly, "a better place to live in."

Winston Churchill once upon a time took this swipe at those who refuse to wind up a sentence with the lowly preposition with this line: "This is a situation up with which I will not put."

Gas deliveries through Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company's pipeline system were disrupted early Monday morning when an explosion ruptured an eight-inch pipeline on Turkey Creek, near Langley,

The 3 a.m. explosion was the seventh such incident since 297 employees represented by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers (OCAW) International Union, Prestonsburg Local 3-510 went on strike, October 16, a company spokesman said.

In addition to the seven explosions, the company has suffered more than 400 separate acts of malicious vandalism against its properties during the strike which is now in its 34th day, this source

When company supervisory personnel arrived at the Monday blast site, striking union employees appeared and restrained them from repairing the damaged pipeline, the company reported. Law-enforcement officers were called to the scene to restore order so that repairs could be initiated.

Further negotiations toward a settlement of the union-company wage differences apparently have been

State Police, Lewis Are Heard at Inquiry

The oft-delayed court of inquiry slated dant in the case, Herbert Gene Salisbury, Jr., was not required to be present or to testify, and his common-law wife. Diana Rector, who is regarded as a vital witness, couldn't be found.

Testimony heard during the court session had no effect on Salisbury's present status, since his $15,000 bond stands and he is at liberty until the January grand jury acts. It did get into the record statements of investigating officers and a record of their findings. Much of the testimony related to Edward Wright, Jr., who is accused as an accessory after the fact in the Butler slaying.

State Detective Gary Rose testified that Wright declared: "Gene Salisbury shot him." According to Rose, Wright said he, Salisbury and Butler were playing cards and that his two companions talked back and forth, sometimes talking "hateful to each other but then would laught like it was a joke." As quoted, Wright claimed that Salisbury shot Butler with a .38-calibre revolver, then took Butler's .22-calibre weapon from Butler's belt and shot the wounded man with it.

The detective also said Wright told him in the slaying of Crit Butler was held here that after he had asked Salisbury not to Tuesday morning, but the main defen- shoot him, pleading friendship, Salisbury asked him to "help me hide this boy,

> "I might as well put this s.o.b. out of his misery," Wright quoted Salisbury as saying before he shot the fallen man with his own gun, according to Rose's

The detective pointed out in its testimony that Wright voluntarily submitted to a polygraph (lie detector) test. he read the report holding that Wright was telling the truth.

Testimony of Sheriff Joe W. Lewis pointed to Wright in the quest for the facts in the killing. He quoted J. C. Butler, father of the slain man, as saying Wright told him he had been in a shootout and had killed a man. He quoted Warnie Sammons as saying Wright told him he had been in a shooting match and that he "expected the law to be after him, any minute."

The sheriff said he found Butler's Tshirt in a doghouse on the nearby property of Woodrow Hale and that the shirt had the print of gun handle on the bloodied portion of the shirt. He said the body of Butler had been dragged 13 feet from the dining rom where the shooting apparently took place to the small, enclosed porch at the rear of the house.

Hale's wife testified that she saw Salisbury at about 7 a.m. standing outside the house with Wright, whose face was bleeding from cuts and scratches.

State Trooper Orville Estep testified that when he arrived at the Woodrow Hale home, near the Salisbury residence, Salisbury's common-law wife told him that Herbert Gene "had shot a guy." He said Salisbury was asleep in a chair and that he handcuffed him.

Detective Rose quoted the Rector woman as saying she heard the "snap" of a gun as she lay in bed and later Salisbury's remark, "You don't pull a gun on me, nobody walks on me." She wasquotedin another statement as saying Butler drew a gun on Salisbury before the shooting took place.

The questioning was conducted by County Attorney James R. Allen, assisted by Cassie J. Allen, for the Commonwealth; for Wright, by Scott Collins.

Jones Fork Coal Work In Future

Evans Says Plans Yet Are Indefinite; Some Options Taken

"There's nothing definite at this time. but, hopefully, we will put in a mine, conceivably two, in the Jones Fork section of Knott county," George E. Evans, Jr., Lexington, president of the Beaver Creek Division, National Mines Corp., said Monday.

Mr. Evans' statement was made in a response to an inquiry by The Times as to coal development plans in the area. The query followed weeks of rumors of impending large-scale work in the area of Mousie, possibly extending up the Ball Branch tributary of Jones Fork into the Rock Fork section of Knott county.

Mr. Evans described his company's plans as "long-range" but admitted that some options on sites have been taken. If and when the company is ready for development of its large coal holdings in that area, it is certain a railroad will be built up Jones Fork and that the mines will be underground operations.

Although noncommittal as to particulars, Mr. Evans, who for a number of years has been a leader in the coal business in this county, spoke of his commitment to work toward providing employment through mining for the people of the Right Beaver Creek section of this county and contiguous territory

East Kentucky Leads in Coal Mining Output

Eastern Kentucky has produced almost as much coal this year as all the state of Pennsylvania. Its coal-producing counties mined more coal than any other area of its size in the United States.

The Eastern Kentucky field produced from Jan. 1 to the week ending Oct. 26 1,694,000 tons. This with Western Kentucky's 1,229,000 tons makes the state the coal leader in the nation, according to U. S. Bureau of Mines reports.

Pike county continued to be the nation's largest single-county producer. The nation as a whole mined 13,665,000 tons during the 10 months. Pennsylvania had 1,722,000, exclusive of its anthracite production; West Virginia, 2,562,000 tons; Illiniois, 1,666,000 tons.

Nationally, production is up for the 10 months over last year by 51/2 per cent, but the present strike is expected to cut into the percentage increase for the entire

Health Care Forms New Bi-County Board

Creation of a bi-county governing board to supervise the affairs of Big Sandy Health Care, Inc. was effected last Thursday at a meeting held in Magoffin county, according to Quentin D. Allen, executive director of the health project.

Bringing the new board into existence marked the official demise of the old single-county board. Unanimously accepted by the single county board for governing board membership on the bicounty board of directors were Robert Harris, Melvin; Curt Johnson, Hi Hat; Marcus Owens, Sr., Bevinsville; Robert Fields, Wheelwright; Marlene Bartuka, Wheelwright, and Barbara Faye Mullins, Weeksbury; an equal number of directors was also named from Magoffin minated months of difficult board negotiation in determining and accepting guidelines for the formation of the new board. Atlanta HEW guidelines, late in their documentation as an official guide for bi-county restructuring, were a source of controversy for the single county board. Atlanta HEW had forcefully stipulated that bi-county restructuring plans were mandatory to the continuance of the regional health care agency.

Floyd in '90's Had More Schools— And 44 of Them Made of Logs Seventy-nine years ago about the only thing the Floyd county schools system had more of than now were schools, and especially log schools. Although the county's population was but a small fraction of the present-day census, Floyd schools numbered 129 as compared with the present count of 25, according to a statistical report submitted for the school term 1894-'95 by then County Superintendent J. N. Harris. Forty-four of these schoolhouses were of log construction and 85 were frame with no brick or stone schools in existence at that time. Total value of all schoolhouses and grounds in the county at that time was $9,585. The county library expenditures for that year weren't too impressive, either. Total value of the library was $64.50 and the number of volumes in said library was 15, and that was an increase of six over the previous school term!

Enrollment in Floyd schools consisted of 2,083 male and 1,707 female pupils and of this total there was an attendance rate of 46.6 per cent. Per pupil expenditure was $4.00 for male students and $3.28 for female pupils.

Sixty-seven male and 18 females were teachers in county schools, and a teacher's average monthly wages at that time was $38.20. Of these instructors none held a state certificate and only one was a graduate of normal school, the oldfashioned predecessor of today's high

Total expenditures by the Floyd county schools system for the school term 1894-'95 was $14,231 and this amount was used not onlyfor staff salaries and the building of schools but also, as the report reveals, for things like buckets, fuel, brooms, fencing and making wells. Last year's total budget, according to the Floyd County Board of Education, was $6,622,805.29.

Despite a less-than-perfect attendance percentage, a severely limited amount of funds with which to work, and an obvious lack of well-trained educators, countless Floyd children learned the three R's in Floyd's schools and Superintendent Harris expressed optimism in his report: "I feel that by another year, the County Superintendent will be able to report a very great improvement on the condition of the school-houses, and, on the progress and prospects of the schools."

assistants, and supervised by Dr. Robert W. Young, will be begun shortly. The full scale program will be initiated with the reception of additional equipment and personnel.

A primary health clinic is also being located in Salyersville for the target population of Magoffin county. Wheelwright and Magoffin clinic services are financed by health care programs (Public Assistance, Blue Cross-Blue Shield, UMWA's card, other health insurance, etc.), and sliding scale fee. The sliding scale fee is measured by the patient's annual income against the number of persons in the family. Such fees are usually small.

Guidelines for the election of governing poard membership stressed population equality and geographic distribution. Only one person, outside the provider class was elected from Wheelwright. Weeksbury-Wheelwright organizations were asked to submit candidate names in ascertaining individuals of interest. The guidelines of representation of one-third consumer, at-large and provider interests were observed. Geographic representation was maintained with some difficulty, according to Allen.

Services will include the following at the Weeksbury-Wheelwright clinic, located in a census tract area of 4,074 people according to the 1970 census: Doctor-nurse care, interventional emergency care, emergency transportation, home care, preventive health services, health education, among other services. Persons not living in the Weeksbury-Wheelwright and Magoffin county clinic areas are eligible for ser-

All elected governing board members must be reviewed and accepted by Atlanta Hew.

Nevard Wells, head of the Reclamation office here, said Monday that he knew of no work in either Floyd or Johnson counties. Reminded that blasting had been heard in the vicinity of Prestonsburg, he said it's possible some work may have been done at sites of stripping or augering but that no coal was loaded and sent to market.

Yet some coal must be moving from somewhere. In Boyd county last Saturday citations were issued to 14 coaltruck drivers by Sheriff Roy Rice, Jr., and among those cited were Alfred Turner, of Bypro, Samuel Butcher, William Spears, Woodrow Stafford and Grant Adams, all of Johnson county.

Two early attempts to operate surface mines in this county ended last week when pickets appeared and requested that work be halted. There was no show of violence.

Assembling of the UMWA bargaining council was delayed by the fatal shooting in a Washington motel last Friday of Sam Littlefield, 52, of Bessemer, Ala., who apparently walked into a holdup as he was going to his room from the room of Squire Feltner, of Pikeville, president of District 30. The council was slated to convene again Tuesday.

I might add, is why I do most of my farming during the Christmas-New Year's season.)

It has occurred to me that parents these days may have a bit of luck. There was a time when the old folks worried about their brats-mainly, their boy brats-and their affinity for a dip in the nearby creek. Now, they have no worry about their being drowned. The Clorox jugs make excellent liferafts.

I recall some rather stern admonitions relating to this matter of going swimming and of the pains we took to circumvent parental care. It may be that my most terrifying experience came, the time when the father of one of the boys was sighted approaching the swimming hole from across a field. If he caught us, all was lost. Not only his son would get his but he would report on the rest of us, and that would most surely result in somebody-namely, us-taking pains.

We were bathing au naturel, as they say, and there was a mad scramble for shirts and overalls which had been carefully stowed away on the bank of the stream. Everybody succeeded in getting dressed, and they dashed for cover-all except the one who was left behind, and that happened to be yours truly. Somebody had thoughtfully taken time to soak the sleeve of my shirt and tie it into a hard knot. And there, drawing nearer, was our nemesis.

But I learned something right there: with the proper incentive, you can run as fast with a shirt in your hand as you can with it on your back.

Recalling this unimportant incident in the life and times of boys of a few years back, I'm reminded of the story told of the moonshiner's wife who was worried about Junior's getting drowned down there at the "crick."

"I wouldn't mind," she complained to her husband, "if we could be with him to see he didn't git in over his head."

"No problem," said her bearded mate. "Jest save yore aig money and build him a swimmin' pool right thar in the back yard."

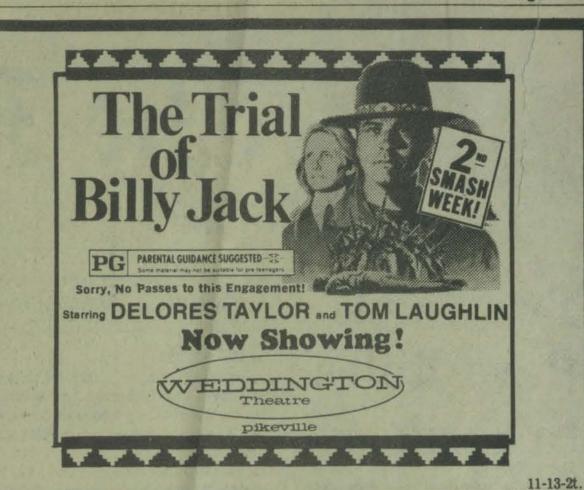

One of the great truths of the century was uttered by a wise man whose name escapes me and, indeed, may not be known. He said:

"The most permanent thing in the world is a temporary tax."

Attend Red Cross Nursing Course

These Floyd county women recently attended a two-day Red Cross home nursing course in Louisa. Major purpose of the course was to give practical and applicable methods and techniques of caring for the sick in the home and in institutions. It included care of youth and adults with temporary or extended illness. Participants learned ways of maintaining health, recognizing signs and symptoms of illness, positioning and body mechanics, personal services of caring for patients and techniques of changing bed linens and transferring activities of patients. All actually practiced the methods and techniques learned for a home and institutional situation.

It Should Be a Public Road

Johnson county is making a strong effort to get KY 40 (the old Paintsville-Inez road) improved to the point that it will adequately serve the people of the area. We hope the effort succeeds.

At the same time we would call to the attention of the State Department of Transportation and area leaders who are interested in good roads and service to the people that there is another road leading into Inez and Martin county that should have No. 1 priority. This route, KY 7, was heralded as a "short cut" to Inez and one of special convenience to Martin county students who would attend Prestonsburg Community College.

But it has been nothing but a coal-truck road from the day its surfacing was completed. Few drivers of passenger vehicles have dared to travel it, fearing its chug-hole-pocked surface and the little room left for dodging oncoming coal trucks.

Except as a facility of admitted worth to the coal industry, this road has been an absolute waste of the taxpayers' money. And these taxpayers will not get value received until the road is made not merely available to, but usable by, the public.

Thanks for the Recognition— But No Burnooses, Please

The pursestrings which sometimes divide people are drawing sections of Kentucky together.

The Blue Grass, which ends around Mt. Sterling, is deciding that, after all, the Biblical "look to the hills" wasn't empty talk. The land and the people "out back" have suddenly become important.

Wrote W. B. Ardery in The Lexington Herald last Monday morning:

"Normal Eastern Kentucky coal production . . . is pouring many millions of dollars into Fayette county annually, with many more millions in store from the anticipated intensification of coal demand."

He quotes Charles Bringardner, owner of extensive Eastern Kentucky mineral rights, as predicting: "The future of coal in the next 30 years is terrific." And then he enumerates some of the benefits accruing to Lexington from this coal of ours:

—Retail sales to miners and coal operators.

-Sales of heavy equipment.

-Expenditures by from 50 to 100 coal operators who live in or near Lexington.

—Earnings of rail crews who reside there.

-Financing of coal activities by Lexington banks.

-Coal personnel recreational spending there at football and basketball games, races, etcetera.

-Coal personnel meetings, dinners, money spent at the Kentucky Coal Association meetings.

-Lexington-headquartered coal companies (one, Island Creek, has 200 employees there and an annual payroll approximating $5 million). And so on.

It's great to be recognized, even if we are seen through green-

Opinions from Office of Attorney General

Jerome D. Berman, Louisville lawyer, recently questioned whether the Planned Parenthood Center is entitled to an exemption from ad valorum property taxes as a non-profit educational institution. It is the opinion of the Attorney General's office that the Planned Parenthood Center be exempt from such taxation since the center is functioning as a public library where membership activities and benefits are minimal.

Adjutant General Richard L. Frymire asked what fees are included in provisions granting free tuition to orphans and children of Kentucky National Guardsmen killed, disabled, or reported missing during a national emergency or war. It is the opinion of the Attorney General's office that eligible students be exempt from all mandatory fees upon enrolling in a state educational in-

Kentucky State Racing Commission, asked the legality of a public school teacher's working for the state racing commission on days when school is not in session. This question involves the possible imcompatibility between the two positions since both are considered under the jurisdiction of the state. It is the opinion of the Attorney General's office that there would appear to be no constitutional or statutory provision that would prohibit a person from holding both positions concurrently if no incompatibility exists. John H. Branson, principal of Mason County High School, asked for an opinion on whether a school board may make regulations pertaining to students who drive their cars to and from school and if the Board of Education may be held liable for injuries to student drivers or their passengers. It is the opinion of the Attorney General's office that it is not within the province of the Board of Education to decide which students may or may not be allowed to drive cars to school. This is a matter for the parents. The school board, therefore, may not be held personally liable for injuries to students on or off the school grounds.

Jerry B. Feather, of Parksville, requested an opinion concerning an election for taxpayer on the board for the Boyle County Fire Protection District. Mr. Feather stated that candidates for the two positions must own property in the district and must reside in that property. The question, however, asked whether or not the voters must also own real property or whether persons who own only a car also may vote if they pay fire tax on the vehicle. It is the opinion of the Attorney Geneal's office that both real and personal property is subject to the fire protection district tax and that any person owning property subject to Dudley J. Burke, secretary for the tax is eligible to vote for the two members of the board of trustees.

Against the backdrop of the sky, leafless twigs of woodland trees appear as etchings. Green pasture fields have changed to brown, fence rows are festooned with cottony fluffs of Old Man's Beard, and the purple plumes of the tall Queen-of-the-Meadow are gray and brittle to the touch. Fallen leaves, subject to the whims of vagrant winds, sweep over the ground like hosts of frightened fiddler crabs on a sea shore The sun drops behind Western hills in a blood-red glow, to be followed by the great hunter's moon that inspires each object to cast strange shadows across the

In the glory of their youth, young foxes whelped last spring yap at this rising o moon, and from the dark pines ringing the cliffs the great horned owl stirs on its perch and adds its unearthly voice to the other wild sounds of the night, bringing frightful sensations to roosting crows, foraging field mice, and bark-eating rabbits. For this is autumn when, since times out of mind, all these sounds have been heard and all these changes have taken place.

Soon, in the endless cycle of the seasons which never hurries and never wearies, winter will come boiling down from the North. The last remnants of summer will be erased from the face of the land but, in the cellars and pantries, cribs and barns of the provident, much of its evidence still remains.

Summer remains in the form of great heaps of potatoes and apples and other good vegetables in the cellars; in wellfilled freezers and in rows and rows of canning jars on pantry shelves; in cribs bursting with golden corn; and in dark, commodious barnlofts stuffed with fodder and hay.

In the homesteads of the industrious, summer never really departs and, as long as grass will grow, it never really will. Like love, summer springs eternal, and with sufficient will, strength, and proper effort, it is a season that, in a sense, can be captured in a sealed jar and, through the long cold months of winter, ever held in the hand.

Few people who live close to the earth and get their living from it really love this period of winter, but they know it must come and therefore prepare for it. It is for this time that all the summer's farm and garden work has been donepotatoes, apples, cabbages, onions, and turnips in the cellar; crocks of kraut, pickled corn, and middlin meat in the smokehouse; bins of grain and racks of hay in the mow.

When the snows come and the days are chill, they still have a lot of summer and take comfort in the knowledge that they will be sustained until it comes again.

NEW SIDE CARVING METHOD

1. Carving position - Place turkey on its side, breast away from carver. Remove wing tip and first joint. Hold tip firmly, lift up, and sever at joint. Set this aside for other dishes and leave second joint of wing attached to turkey.

4. Slicing dark meat - Slice dark meat away from turkey just above removed thigh bone. As you work deeper into the meat, you will discover the "oyster." This choice piece may be lifted whole from spoon-shaped section of backbone.

5. Slicing white meat - Breast meat, like dark meat, is much easier to carve if turkey stands 20 to 30 minutes after roasting. Make deep vertical cut in breast just in front of wing joint to serve as base for all breast meat slices.

6. Breast slices - Start from center of breast and cut toward you, making large, even slices. When more slices are needed, turn turkey and repeat process. Remove stuffing from a hole cut under thigh.

Traffic Fatalities Decline in State 9 Months in Row

Frankfort, Ky.-Traffic fatalities on Kentucky's highways have declined for the eighth and ninth months in suc-

According to Bureau of Highways statistics, 84 and 66 persons were fatally injured during the months of August and September, respectively, compared with 91 and 110 traffic deaths during those same months in 1973.

In August of 1974, there was a 7.7 per cent decrease in statewide fatalities, and in September a 40 per cent decrease, compared to deaths recorded for those months in 1973.

Of those 1974 fatalities, 14 occurred on the Interstate System in August, and 3 occurred in September, compared with 9 and 5 deaths, respectively, for the same months of 1973.

Overall, statewide fatalities decreased by 33.1 per cent for the first nine months of 1974 when compared with the same period in the previous year. Deaths on the Interstate System accounted for 9.8 per cent of the total for the nine-month period in 1974.

Limited information from permanent traffic recorders shows statewide travel in August, 1974 nearly 5 per cent below August, 1973, while comparison of interstate traffic for the same periods reveals a decrease of almost 6 per cent.

The labor force participation rate of married women rose from 26 to 42 per cent between 1953 and 1973, according to the U.S. Department for Labor.

Both Courts, Officers Blamed, Survey Shows

By LEONARD KIMBALL

FRANKFORT, Ky.-What do most people think is wrong with the criminal justice system in Kentucky?

If you are a white male, between the ages of 25-40, earn $8,000-$15,000 a year and live in Louisville or Jefferson County, it's likely that you view the courts as being more in need of improvement that any other segment of the criminal justice system, including police and adult or juvenile corrections.

But if you are black and female, between the ages of 18-25, earn less than $8,000 annually and are a resident of Louisville or Jefferson County, then it isn't the courts that need improving. It's the police.

Those apparently were among the most striking differences to come out of two unofficial public opinion polls conducted by the state's Department of Justice at the Kentucky State Fair last August and, more recently, at "Black Expo" in Louisville during mid-October.

At the state fair, where poll respondents were predominately both white and male, 48 per cent favored court reform as opposed to only 15 per cent wanting to improve police. At "Black Expo" where those surveyed were chiefly black and female, 33 per cent expressed dissatisfaction with police while only 24 per cent argued for better courts.

The results of the two polls were made public here recently by Justice Secretary Henri L. Mangeot who said the results could prove useful as a planning vehicle in preparing the state's comprehensive criminal justice plan for next fiscal year.

A preliminary reading of the "Black Expo" poll showed a majority of almost 38 per cent saying that police responded only "after much delay" when a crime was reported. In addition, slightly over 74 per cent rated police as only doing a "fair" to "poor" job.

While both polls seemed to differ sharply as to whether police or courts needed improving the most, fully 58 per cent of all persons responding in both polls to questions dealing only with the courts agreed that "judges in general were too easy."

Both groups also agreed generally that adults convicted of a serious crime ought to be imprisoned, but with treatment, and juveniles should be sent to a detention home as opposed, for example, to placing them in community-based programs or foster homes.

Mangeot noted that where criticism of the courts was concerned, both polls appeared to support much of what he heard early last summer in a series of open meetings with local officials and citizens in nine Kentucky cities. During those meetings, Mangeot said, many people complained about excessive delay in disposing of court cases.

James Amato, executive secretary for Kentucky Citizens for Judicial Improvement, agreed with Mangeot. A poll conducted for his agency early in the year also showed that most Kentuckians think their courts are too lenient and political, he said.

"Even though they (the public) don't specifically blame judges for handing down lenient decisions, they see the court system as one reason for high crime rates," he said.

Whatever the reasons, both Mangeot and Amanto believe that most people want judicial reform now. Some measures already are being implemented under grants funded through the Kentucky Crime Commission to shorten the delay between arrest and indictment and indictment and trial, Mangeot added.

Among them is the model courts project which allows circuit court judges to appoint court administrators to relieve judges of routine paperwork and administrative detail.

"A year ago, a survey showed 31 of the state's 86 circuit court judges didn't even have a secretary," Mangeot said. "Now, six courts, including Jefferson circuit court have court administrators, and another 12 will have administrators

But possibly the most important change could occur next November when voters are asked to ratify a broad-based constitutional amendment for judicial reform which would restructure the courts system from top to bottom.

At the top would be a state supreme court, followed by an intermediate appeals court, circuit courts, district courts and a judicial commission having power to remove any justice or judge from office for good cause. The circuit courts would replace police, county, quarterly, junvile and justice of the peace courts as the only courts of trial jurisdiction in each county.

In addition, all judges would be required to be licensed attorneys and, once in office, would not be permitted to practice law outside or run for any other elective office. All courts also would become part of the state system, thereby ending purse-string powers currently exercised by many county fiscal courts.

Jackson Loses Federal Court

Jackson, Ky.-U. S. District Court at Jackson, a part of the town for 60 years, has closed, much to the dismay of local residents.

"Isee no reason for it to leave Jackson," said Mayor Leonard Noble.

A recent order suspending the town as a place for holding U.S. District Court was approved by Chief Justice Harry Phillips of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth District.

All three district judges signed a joint order bypassing Jackson because "the physical facilities for the court, the security measures available to the court and the community facilities for the court personnel, jurors and witnesses at Jackson, Kentucky, are completely inadequate."

The building, which some local residents feel was belittled in a reference as "being above the Post Office," was built in 1914 specifically for the court rather than the post office, recalled Elisha Smith, a local resident.

The ground floor of the three story building houses the postal facility with the other two stories for the federal

The top floors are now empty except for the probation officers office. A postal clerk said he knew of no plans at this time for utilizing the empty rooms.

The court was a "drawing card" for local businesses as it brought about 300 people to the town for each session, the mayor said.

One of several court members who traveled to Jackson said the case load was light compared to Lexington, Covington and Frankfort. Cited were about 10 criminal and 20 civil cases last

Dr. Anderson To Speak At Maytown, Nov. 29

The Rev. Lawrence Baldridge, pastor of Maytown First Baptist Church, announces that Dr. Russell Anderson, of Ypsilanti, Michigan, will speak in the church Friday, November 29 at 7 p.m. Dr. Anderson, multimillionaire native of this county, owner and operator of five businesses, is distinguishing himself as one of the most renowned lay speakers in the nation. He flies from coast to coast, speaking to Christian and civic groups on a variety of subjects. His first book was published this summer, and his articles have appeared in a number of publications. He is co-founder of Hyles-Anderson College in Hammond, Indiana, and founded one church in Japan.

Dr. Anderson, who is a native of Hunter, attended McDowell schools, played ball with "Wild Bill" Stumbo and others, left here in the '50's, was converted in 1959, and is married to a Kentucky girl from Somerset. They have three daughters, all active in their church. Dr. Anderson averages five nights and three days weekly, speaking and winning souls, has won over 1000 in the last two years, gives most of his income to Christian work.

He tells a wonderful story of how God gave him $33,500 in 20 minutes in December, 1970.

By Hope Carleton Dept. of Fish and Wildlife

> By JOHN WILSON Guest Writer

Kentucky's gun deer hunters will have to wait until December before taking to the woods this year, but game management officials at the Department of Fish and Wildlife feel that the later season will be worth the wait.

The gun deer season was moved from early in November to Dec. 7 through Dec. 11 this year at the request of hunters, according to Joe Bruna, director of game management. The later season, after the leaves are off the trees, should provide better visibility, Bruna feels, increasing both the hunters' safety and their chances of spotting and bagging a deer.

Another advantage of a December season is that the weather should be colder. In some previous November hunts, warm days have caused harvested deer to spoil before the hunter could get his prize into cold storage, and it is hoped that this problem will not occur during a December hunt.

The intensified deer management program in Eastern Kentucky is reflected in other changes in this year's regulations. Five counties and three additional wildlife management areas in the Eastern portion of the state have been closed to deer hunting. The closed counties are Jackson, Owsley, Clay, Harlan and Powell.

The Wildlife Management areas, which are closed to hunting for all species, are: Pine Mountain WMA, Letcher County; Grayson Lake WMA, Carter and Elliott Counties; Beaver Creek WMA (including private inholdings), McCreary and Pulaski Counties: and Robinson Forest WMA (which has been closed in previous seasons), Breahitt, Perry and Knott Counties.

Another change this year is that gun hunters in three counties-Barren, Hart and Edmonson-may take either sex deer. In the remaining open counties, gun hunters are limited to deer with at least one forked antler.

The requirements for hunter orange also have changed from last year. This season hunters must wear a vest, coat, coveralls, cap or hat consisting entirely of hunter orange color. Any one of these items may be worn to comply with this regulation. Bow hunters are exempt from this regulation, which applies only to gun hunters.

There has also been one change in the list of firearms which are prohibited for deer hunting. This year's regulation does not permit "any M-1, .30 caliber carbine, either military issue or its equivalent commercially sold counterpart." Last year, only military issue M-1's were prohibited.

Sheriff's Reply to James R. Allen, County Attorney, on Richard Alan Hicks

On July 13, 1974 at approximately 3:30 o'clock a.m. Richard Alan Hicks from Lexington, Kentucky was arrested near Allen, Kentucky for improper head lights, reckless driving and transporting alcoholic beverages in Local Option territory. Richard Alan Hicks had in his possession 126 cases of beer and 13 cases of whiskey. Richard Alan Hicks was placed in jail at approximately five o'clock a.m. One 1974 F350 Ford Truck License No. CF2-663 Richard Alan Hicks was driving was registered to George Hicks, Lexington, Kentucky. The whiskey and beer was unloaded behind the Floyd County Court House and pictures made of contraband. The vehicle was confiscated and placed in storage at Allen, Kentucky. The following week, a picture appeared in the Floyd County Times on the front page. On this page it was mentioned that the above vehicle was impounded. When unloading the alcoholic beverages, I talked to all the Floyd county officials except Hollie Conley. Listed below I will give you some facts to rely upon which may help you to

Hunters, Hounds Almost "Score" On Recent Coonhunt

The raccoon, object of many a late-night hunt in the Kentucky hills is, as any veteran coon hunter would attest, one of the willest of forest animals.

In this photo, Jailer Lawrence Hale (kneeling) and William Hackworth along with one of their ace coon hounds, try in vain to flush the coon out of the tree trunk.

Well into the morning hours, the coon hunters decide to "go to the house."

Times' photographer accepted an invitation from Jailer Lawrence Hale to accompany him and William Hackworth, of the Abbott road, for a night of what might be termed the "national sport of Appalachia"-coon-hunting.

So, armed with camera, a bologna sandwich, and several "Forever Yours" candy bars, said staff member bungled along behind the seasoned coon hunters as they loaded three Redbone hounds and a big "Walker-dog" into the bed of a pickup truck, took off up the Big Branch of Abbott Creek, and hit the hills.

Hale and Hackworth can identify the hounds. Later into the night (and about 20 assorted "bawls" and howls of their hounds as easily as most people can recognize the voices of old friends, and usually the two can tell by the dogs' vocalizing just what's going on-whether, for instance, the dogs have something treed or are only "trailing." And although the party didn't take a raccoon on this particular expedition, the night was by no means "slow." At one point, the dogs ran a coon into a hole at the base of a large beech but the crafty ring-tail simply climbed up the partly hollowed out tree trunk and the entrance hole proved too small for the long-legged degrees colder) the hunters, who had by this time worked their way through a pouch of "Apple Jack" chewing tobacco (according to Lawrence Hale, if you coon hunt, you're bound to take a chew), were alerted by the treeing howls of their dogs and ran down an almost vertical hillside only to find, to their dismay, that the dogs had treed a 'possum.

But a coon hunter is not easily discouraged, and for most, it's enough to just stretch out every once in a while on some dry leaves, turn off your capmounted miner's light, and listen to the ones who are really having a ball . . . the

State Small-Game Season Opening Set November 21

Frankfort, Ky., November 12-Kentucky's small game season opens November 21, the traditional third Thursday in November, but the remainder of the season will be different from past years.

Due to the December 7 through Dec. 11 gun deer season, small game hunting will close on December 6 and re-open December 12. The seasons for quail, rabbits, and grouse will then continue through February 28, a month longer for quail and rabbits then in past years, and squirrel hunting will continue through December 31.

Surveys conducted by the game management division of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources indicate good populations of both quail and rabbits, with the rabbit supply up 12 per cent from a year ago on a statewide by other methods cannot hunt during the December 7 through 11 gun deer season.

Sportsmen should remember that the period from November 1 through November 20 is closed to almost all hunting including those species, such as groundhog, for which there is normally no closed season.

The only exceptions during this closed period are for the deer archery season which closes November 15; the shake-out season on raccoon; the goose season, which opens November 12; and the duck season, which opens November 20. This closed season does not, however, prohibit landowners from killing any species of wildlife on their land which is causing damage to persons or property.

Alice Lloyd College Cagers In Season Opener Tonight

Pippa Passes, Ky.-Alice Lloyd College basketball begins at 7 p.m. Nov. 20 as the ALC Eagles take on Kentucky Business College in Lexington. The team will play its first home game at 8 p.m. Saturday against the Union College junior varsity squad at the former Knott County High School gymnasium at Pippa Passes. A second home game, against rival Lees Junior College, is set for 8 p.m. Monday.

Coach Jim Rose says that with five returning sophomores on the squad he is expecting to improve considerably on last season's 13-12 win-loss record.

"This year's team will probably run more and be more offense oriented as opposed to last year's defense oriented team," said Rose. The five returning sophomores were on the ALC team which swept the Kentucky Junior College Athletic Conference and went on to play in the national Little College tournament last season.

"I expect that offense and team depth will be our strong points," said Rose. The Eagles have acquired height with the addition of Keith ("Stretch") Gearheart, and Eric Fenner.

Gearheart is a 6-6, 195-pound center who won All-District, All-Conference, All-Regional and honorable mention All-State honors while a student at Allen Central High School. The 18-year-old freshman is from Hueysville.

Fenner is a 6-4, 175-pound forward from Washington, D. C. who won All-City honors while a student at Roosevelt High

They, with the help of returning sophomore Cliff Washington, a 6-5, 180pound forward Ripley, Ohio, should dominate the boards, says Rose.

Rose says that one of the problems with last year's team was the lack of a big man at the guard position. Greg Roberts, at 6-2 and 175 pounds, should provide much help. Roberts, an 18-year-old freshman from Harold, won All-District and All-Regional honors while a student at Betsy Layne High School.

Roberts will get a lot of help from returning sophomore Chuck Washington, who, though only 5-10, was named honorable mention All-American last season by the Little College Athletic Conference. The guard from Ripley, Ohio has also won All-District and All-Regional honors.

Other returning sophomores on this year's team are:

James Colley, a 6-foot, 175-pound guard, from Haysi, Va.; James ("Tippy") Moscript, 6-foot, 155-pound guard from Weeksbury; Ed Salyers, 6-4, 190pound center from Letcher, Ky.

Other freshmen making their first appearance with the Eagles include:

guard from Carr Creek High School;

David Combs, 6-foot, 150-pound guard from M. C. Napier High School; Gary

Gibson, 5-8, 150-pound guard from Knott

County High School; Jess Hall, 6-3, 215-

McDowell, P'burg Undefeated In Early-Season Net Games

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

The Prestonsburg Blackcats and McDowell Daredevils remain undefeated after 10 days of the young basketball season. McDowell won its third straight game while Prestonsburg notched its second. Last Tuesday night the Blackcats opened the season by winning over Millard.

Friday night, Gormie Collins and Kippy McNally combined for a total of 50 points to lead the cats to a 76-44 win over Feds Creek. "We played a good all-round game and everybody looked good," Coach Setser said. "We're getting back from that slow start we had last week against Millard, and I think we're putting it together."

McDowell won two games during the week, defeating Salversville, 68 to 58. after downing Dorton earlier, 66-56. The game with Salyersville was played at Paintsville, Coach David Turner, making his first year as a head basketball coach, was able to win over his nephew, John Ray Turner, who is in his second year as head basketball coach at Salyersville. In the Salyersville game, the Hornets led at halftime, 31 to 27. In the second half, however, McDowell pulled away as Ricky Roberts scored 18 points and grabbed 16 rebound. Bubby Osborne had 17 points and Terry Tuttle connected for

In the Dorton game the Daredevils got off to a good lead and never trailed. McDowell led at halftime by a score of 37 to 31. Timmy Tackett of Dorton took scoring honors with 34 points. Again Ricky Roberts led the Daredevils with 23 points and 16 rebounds. McDowell will entertain Sheldon-Clark Friday night, while Prestonsburg will travel to Millard.

The Allen Central Rebels spoiled Betsy Layne's homecoming Saturday night as the Rebels defeated the Bobcats by a score of 64 to 57. Ricky Joe Roberts took scoring honors with 23 points while Rick Pack scored 21 for the Rebels. Saturday night, the Rebels will play host to the Salversville Hornets at the Prestonsburg fieldhouse.

Turkey Bowl Score Predictions Clash

With only a week left before the event, the Turkey Bowl looms ever larger on the football scene. Locally, it is the only thing looming on the football scene since the official season ended November 8.

At any rate, psyched up players gave forth this week with predictions and counter-predictions on the game's out-

On the East roster, comments ran thus: Quarterback Steve "Broadway" Clark-"East by 12. I guarantee it." Linebacker Bennett "Butkus" Leslie-"Coach 'Billy Goat Gruff' Collins will outfox Coach 'Mutt' Harris.'' Fullback Mike "Csonka" Castle-"They might as well not even show, cause the East will be on the go."

West players expressed some contradictory predictions. Tackle Larry "Jap" Lyons-"The West by 12 points and a shutout." Tightend Buzzard Howard-"We'll grind their gizards out." Halfback Fred Elmore "Homesick" James-"Nothing less than mud in their eyes." Guard George "Gene Hickerson" Scott-"We're going to pluck Clark's feathers

With such dire and diverse predictions flying fast as an early snowstorm, the team's enter this year's competition with the won-lost figures at West, 3, East, 2, with one tie game.

East Ky. Majorettes Perform at McDowell

The second annual Eastern Kentucky Majorette Festival was held at the McDowell gymnasium, last Saturday. Several area schools were represented, and performances were given by the majorettes in twirling and novelty routines. First place honors were taken by Allen Central; second place by Mc-Dowell, and third place by Johnson Central. Additional performances were given by the McDowell mascots and junior majorettes. The event was covered by WSAZ-TV in Huntington.

Osborne Downs Wayland For Tournament Title

The Osborne Eagles launched their 1974-'75 basketball schedule on a high note by winning the Wayland invitational tournament. They defeated Beaver, 42-36, in the opening round, and in the second round it was Osborne 48, Maytown 32. They met Wayland in the championship game and won by a score

Osborne placed Monroe Jones, Lanny Paul Hall, Victor Rhea, and Ronnie Johnson on the all-tournament team.

Ford announces two cars in the best tradition of luxury. Sized and priced for today.

FORD LTD LANDAU 2-DR. Shown with optional deluxe bumper group, convenience group, color keyed wheel covers, WSW tires.

1975 Ford LTD Landau

Designed to replace longer, heavier, more expensive luxury cars like Buick Electra Limited and Oldsmobile 98 Regency.

We think that if you'll not only compare the workmanship in this new automobile but also compare it for size, comfort and luxury, you'll find that you can get the things you want from a traditional luxury car, but sticker priced hundreds of dollars less. LTD Landau special features and appointments that make Landau so distinctive include:

Hidden headlamps for distinctive styling
Color-keyed vinyl bodyside moldings
Front cornering lamps

Flight bench seat with center armrest ☐ Lush knit cloth and vinyl trim ☐ Vinyl roof ☐ Electric trunk lid release

Automatic seat back release (2-Door).

The main thing you don't get is hundreds of pounds of extra weight and almost a foot of extra length. The new Ford LTD Landau advantage is the security of a solid well-made automobile but with sensible size and weight.

1975 Ford Elite

A new mid-size car in the Thunderbird tradition.

Ford Elite combines the operating economy of a mid-size car with styling and luxury in the Thunderbird tradition. And Elite comes to you complete with twin opera windows and standard features like power steering, power front disc brakes, automatic transmission and steel-belted radials. Its big 261/2 gallon fuel tank gives you good cruising range. The personal luxury mid-size built for the way you drive today. Ford Elite.

Meals on Wheels Help for Blind Man

J. W. Allen had just heard a radio report of a new food service-Meals on Wheels. Here might be something he should know more about

Mr. Allen lives alone in a frame house painted a refreshing green, on a residential street in Paintsville. As one enters his door, the cleanliness of the little house is noticeable; this is impressive, because Mr. Allen has been blind since early childhood. He does his own housework, but cooking has been a problem. When one cannot see, preparing meals over a hot stove may be very dangerous. The news he has just heard of Meals on Wheels gives him

Since Mr. Allen has been buying daily service from Meals on Wheels, a volunteer worker from Paintsville brings him a hot midday meal and a cold snack for supper. The food provides wellbalanced nourishment for the client, and the visit of the volunteer worker, who delivers it, is a pleasant interlude for a lonely person. In this instance, the pleasure is mutual.

Mr. Allen is a person of many accomplishments. He receives regularly from Frankfort and from Washington, D. C., a supply of Talking Books, which he reads to keep informed of the affairs of the world. He learned Braille when he was in the school for the blind at Louisville; and he uses this skill to write Reading Association, were told at their memos to himself. He uses a regular typewriter when he needs to write to any of the rest of us, who do not know his other alphabet.

If you should call on Mr. Allen some day, ask him to play the piano. His response will be gracious; and you will be entertained. He will entertain you, also, telling you what it has meant to him to have hot meals from Meals on Wheels.

Silent Classroom Signals Disinterest

"No sound and no movement in a classroom is a good indication that little or no learning is going on," members of the Jenny Wiley Council, International November meeting, held in the new cafeteria at Betsy Layne school.

John H. Bruce, state director of compensatory education, told council members and guests that a valued tenet is that the individual has value and is worth knowing, but that certain school practices tends to negate this.

He cited various practices and reasons as to why the dehumanizing processes continue. Among them are school consolidation which may lead to overcrowded classrooms, a shortened school day, and the reduced contact and involvement between parents and the school. He said autocratic teachers have made a great contribution to a dehumanizing teaching.

Mr. Bruce stressed the importance of really knowing the student as an individual, and of instructing him with a program based on his needs and strengths.

The next council meeting will be February 11 at Allen Elementary with Betsy Mynheir as guest speaker. All parents and teachers interested in the improvement of reading are invited to

EXPRESSION OF THANKS May we extend our heartfelt thanks to those of you who expressed your sympathy in so many thoughtful ways during nesses have meant so much to us.

The Family of Edward Gearheart

Want a high-jumping, low-crawling, sporadic stop-and-start target for pistol practice? Try balloons on snow. Snow, especially when there is a thin crust, makes a fine skidder surface for balloon targets. Fanned by a slight wind a balloon on snow will go through unbelievable and unpredictable gyrations. Once a hit is made there is no balloonand no doubt that it was a hit.—SPORTS AFIELD ment of Parks officials have announced that a recent comparison of yearly records shows that the parks have been more successful this year than they have your own state," should push the perfor at least the past three years.

A promotion theme designed to counter night in the state's resort parks to 50 per the energy crisis was pointed to as a

Frankfort, Ky.-Kentucky Depart- major reason for the upsurge in parks visitation.

> The theme, urging Kentuckians to "stay at home and enjoy the parks in centage of Kentuckians staying overcent compared to 43 per cent three years

Parks officials are quick to point out, however, that success for the system is not measured in the amount of revenue generated by the parks, despite the fact that more resort parks (five) are operating in the black than ever before.

According to Parks Commissioner Ewart W. Johnson, "The comment cards and letters we receive thanking us for fine service is our measuring stick for success."

Widespread visitation to the different types of parks is also used an an indicator of achievement and parks officials report a surprisingly heavy use of day-use parks or non-resort facilities during the Heavy visitation at Fort Boonesborough, the newest addition to the park system, has been especially pleasing to parks officials, particularly the number of out-of-state visitors to the fort.

Future promotion of the parks according to Johnson will be geared to promoting the parks that will be staying open later this year. Johnson added that the Parks Department, in cooperation with the Department of Public Information, "will be spreading out a little more than we did last year and covering a wider area.

The future of the state's parks system has been termed by parks officials as bright, with special emphasis on renovation and expansion of existing facilities. This will include continued refurbishing of cottages and rooms at the resort parks.

Major projects for the future are the conversion of Kenlake State Resort Park onto a "tennis resort" with the construction of five new courts.

Construction of the Kentucky State Horse Park also will be getting into full swing with a completion target of July, 1976 set for the twenty-one million dollar park complex located north of Lexington. So far, few Kentucky tornado victims have taken advantage of a disaster aid program which would enable them to obtain up to $5,000 to meet related expenses. Anyone who has not received sufficient funds to meet those expenses from other available services is urged to apply at the Bureau of Social Insurance

Although everybody will have to make sacrifices to control inflation, Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan warned in his Labor Day 1974 statement that "we also must make sure that the working men and women of this country do not have to carry more than their fair share of the load in this effort."

Wild Fruits of Autumn

foliage but often overlooked in this riotous extravaganza of hues are the splendorous colors of autumn's fruits: the scarlet of the dogwood and spicewood berries; the purple-black of the pokeberry and wild grape; the orange of the bittersweet; the red of the haw; and a host of other colorful wild products of the tree, shrub, and vine-products that delight the eye and tastebuds of mankind and provide winter security for wildlife.

To wilderness creatures this occasins a period of hurried activity. Ground hogs feed heavily on the bounty, them during their days of hibernation. Chipmunks, tree squirrels, field mice, store away seeds, hazlenuts, and beechnuts for later use, and migratory birds winging their ways to the South pause briefly to feed on pokeberries, dogwood berries, and wild grapes. Later, when snow covers the earth, the few dried fruits-persimmons, crabapples, rose hips, grapes, and haws-left clinging to the twigs may mean, for many birds and animals, the difference between life and death.

The wild fruits of autumn are indeed beautiful, but have a greater significance than as food for wildlife and appeal to the esthetic. Although modern man depends much less on wild fruits for survival, very well may have become extinct.

Archeology reveals that man has long used wild fruits extensively. To some prehistorics and more modern Indians, these ripened ovaries of edible seed Rivaling the flames of autumn's plants were indispensible sources of food and, in many instances, shaped their lives and ways of living. Various berries, acorns, nuts, and seeds of wild maize, oats, and rice served as basic foods and in their harvesting and storage were the first stirrings of that vital science of agriculture.

Wild fruits also played an important role in the lives of early settlers and explorers of North America. Early colonials used many wild fruits not only for food but also for homemade seasonable ripening of nuts and berries medicines and brews to treat the ailing and to cheer up the despondent. From the husk of the black walnut and the juice of building up reserves of fat to sustain the pokeberry came dyes to brighten up their clothes and from the squeezings of wild grapes and persimmons were jaybirds, and woodpeckers collect and distilled potent elixirs that "settled the nerves" and brightened up their lives. Also from wild plums, grapes, apples, and haws came jams, jellies, puddings, and pies, without which the winter tablefare would have been one long round of monotony.

As previously indicated, man no longer needs the wild fruits of autumn for winter survival. At any time in the winter he can go to the local supermarket and there find almost anything in the way of fresh or frozen fruits for which his appetite may hanker or his system crave.

In this era of human history, wild fruits are probably or more value to wildlife than to mankind but they are still good to there was a time when without them, he have around and contribute a lot to the color and wonder of fall. For those with a touch of sentiment in their souls and a sense of botanical history, they offer tremendous esthetic enjoyment. For these people, few things are more pleasurable than to ramble over autumn hills, seek out wild fruits, and partake of the eye treats and taste treats they have to offer.

Daniels Creek Coal Company has changed ownership. The new management wishes to make several statements for the public record:

- (1) The company intends to pay all legitimate claims against the company.
- (2) The new management had nothing whatever to do with the incurrence of any liens; and therefore the validity of any claim must be determined by the trustee for the former owner or by the courts.
- (3) For a brief period prior to the actual change in ownership, the new management operated the company's business at the request of the former owner for reasons concerning his health. This brief management interval was termed Daniels Creek Partners. The earnings from this period were used to pay current debts, the remainder and more going to the trustee to satisfy indebtedness.
- (4) In the opinion of the trustee, the credits that will generate to the former owners' account under the terms of the purchase agreement will be more than sufficient to cover all indebtedness, at the rate these claims can be evaluated and substantiated.
- (5) The new management is in no position whatever to judge the merits of any claims, but will cooperate in every possible way to help creditors establish legitimate claims.
- (6) The Trustee for the former owner is W. B. Hazelrigg, Paintsville, Kentucky. Claims can be filed there or brought to the Daniels Creek Coal Company office at Harold, Kentucky.

$5,000 REWARD

($50,000 Maximum)

FOR INFORMATION LEADING TO ARREST AND CONVICTION

Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company has suffered certain malicious acts of sabotage against its property and equipment, beginning October 16, 1974. Law enforcement officers, including federal, state and local, have been notified.

The Company offers to reward any person or persons furnishing to the company or to any law enforcement agency of the State of Kentucky, or the federal government, or to the sheriff of any county, or to the police of any municipality, information directly leading to the arrest and conviction of any person wilfully or maliciously interfering with the flow of gas or oil, injuring or destroying any of the company's operating equipment or facilities, or for aiding or procuring any person to do such an act.

The maximum of reward payable in each instance of interference with the flow of gas or oil, injury, or destruction of property is $5,000 and the total amount of the rewards payable for all such instances shall not exceed $50,000. The company reserves the right to determine the person or persons entitled to the reward and the proportionate amount to which each is entitled. This offer shall terminate January 1, 1975, subject to extension by the Company.

Such acts of sabotage endangers the public which is dependent on gas for safety, health, and comfort. Any such acts affecting any of the company's facilities will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law as part of Kentucky West Virginia's obligation to provide safe and dependable gas service to its customers.

By Jeanie Adkins Greensburg High School Greensburg, Kentucky

The early flintlock rifle, developed in 1720, was carried into Kentucky by Daniel Boone and his party of Longhunters about the year 1767. They camped on Skin House Branch in Green County for several months and took 2,300 animal pelts. Skin House Branch is the oldest camp site of white men in Kentucky. The glowing description of this hunters' paradise in the Kentucky wilderness by the Longhunters to the colonies of the Atlantic slopes was a leading influence in the settlement of the state. By this time, the flintlock rifle was in use around the world. In America a unique version of the flintlock rifle was developed and refined for use in the Kentucky wilderness by the master gunsmiths of Pennsylvania and the Carolinas. So the rifle came to be known as the flintlock rifle, the Kentucky rifle or the wilderness rifle.

In Europe the flintlock rifle was a cumbersome piece of very large caliber using balls of seven-tenths of one inch to one inch in diameter, but the refined Kentucky rifle (as it is now universally known) was a longbarreled, graceful beauty with barrels of 40 to 56 inches in length. It was stocked to the muzzle in beautifully grained walnut, cherry or apple wood. Its average bore size was reduced to .45 caliber. This bore size gave excellent accuracy, flat trajectory and a tremendous savings on powder and lead, which was a matter of utmost importance to the colonists, hunters and backwoodsmen.

It is quite possible that the accuracy of these rifles was instrumental in winning the Revolutionary War. The cumbersome, fourteen-pound, "Brown Bess" flintlock musket of large caliber used by the British was incapable of consistently hitting a man at 40 yards, even in the hands of a skilled marksman, whereas the refined wilderness rifle was accurate enough to kill at 300 yards.

One of the first gunsmiths to settle in Kentucky, Henry Settles, set up his gunsmith shop in Bear Wallow in Hart County. A few years later, in 1798, he moved to Old Rocky Hill in Barren County near Glasgow. From his native Pennsylvania, he brought with him the skills, crafts, tools and knowledge needed to make the wilderness rifle.

His tools were crude, giving ample evidence of the fact that a skilled craftsman can take very limited tools and turn out a high quality product. His tools were a hammer, anvil, forge, hand-cut files, rods and cutters for cutting the rifling, and a V-block for holding the barrel. Each piece of equipment was handmade. Settles bored some of his barrels and made others by beating iron around a mandrel or rod. His riflings were either straight cut (cut in straight grooves through the barrel) or spiral cut (cut in spiral grooves through the barrel). The spiral cut rifling was the more accurate, as the spiral grooves gave the projectile a rotating motion which imparted greater stability and accuracy to the bullet's flight.

In 1807, the Reverend Alexander Forsyth developed a copper cap which greatly simplified the rifle's firing system by eliminating the complicated flint firing mechanism on the rifle's lock. A small copper cylinder containing a small quantity of explosive was exploded by the hammer and then ignited the powder charge. Forsyth then developed the percussion lock to utilize the new copper cap. This is the type of muzzle loader one sees most often today. Very few flintlocks survived the period, as most of them were converted to percussion lock. This was a very simple conversion, requiring only the replacement of the lock and the addition of a small tube for the copper cap. The Settles rifles made late in Mr. Settles' career were invariably percussion locks. Mr. Settles had four sons, each of whom he trained in the fine art of making the wilderness rifle. Three of them began gunsmithing in Kentucky. One of these, Simeon Settles, opened a shop beside the new Peoples Bank in Greensburg prior to 1850. He was the best of the Settles gunsmiths and perhaps the best of the

"THOSE CRAZY EPISCOPALIANS" what is their bag?

Are they Protestant, Catholic, or something in between? Call them anything you please. Episcopalians are Protestant because their forebears were among the leaders of the Protestant Reformation in 16th-Century England. But the word "Catholic" means "universal"...and Episcopalians are quick to embrace the universality of all Christian denominations. Are visitors welcomed to Episcopal services? Absolutely. At any service. It's customary for Episcopalians to remain quiet until they're outside the church, which explains why some visitors look on them as unfriendly. Just stick around after the service. There's usually coffee in the nearby parish hall ... and plenty of opportunity to get acquainted. Feel free to ask the minister for an appointment to discuss anything you find puzzling

Ky. Lawyers Prepare For New Penal Code

New Year's Day 1975 will usher in a brief but hair-raising era of confusion into Kentucky courtrooms as judges and lawyers then begin grappling with the state's new penal code.

But the state's public defenders have been boning up on the new code to help the expected rough transition from a legal heritage largely based on common law justice.

David Murrell, deputy public defender, reported in an interview that a recently completed series of four one-day training sessions on the code reached some 150 public defenders and other criminal defense lawyers wanting to prepare for the big switch.

The sessions were held at four strategically located spots in the major sections of Kentucky-Kentucky Dam Village (West), Lake Cumberland (South), Jenny Wiley (East), and Gen. Butler state parks. About 40 persons attended each session.

Murrell joined Paula Issaes, assistant defnder, and Tony Wilhoit, the state's chief public defender, in giving lectures at each session. The subject matter was drawn largely from a 370-page text written as a reference manual geared especially for defenders.

Other criminal justice personnel—such as corrections, judicial and police officers use a two-volume manual published and distributed by the state Justice Department's Bureau of Training, which also provides them with one-week training courses.

In their training sessions, Murrell said the public defenders dwelled only on general provisions of the code and their ramifications, ignoring discussions of specific crimes. Such provisions included sentencing, probation and fining

Asked what areas of the code loom as the most troublesome or controversial, be sold, less exclusion, amounts to ap- Murrell pinpointed a number of "procedural" matters. For an example, There is being sold at this sale, the he cited the issuance of insanity notices Davidson Memorial Gardens, In- as "drastically different" from common corporated, a perpetual care cemetery, law procedures and as sparking the most heated squabbles among lawyers.

Prior to the new code, insanity notices—papers which defense lawyers file declaring that their clients might be insane—could be issued any time before or during a trial. The code, however, prescribes that defense lawyers must issue the notices at least 20 days before the trial date. But it also requires that prosecutors provide a list of persons they plan to use in countering the "insanity"

Murrell said the new provision "cuts both ways"—for and against the defense and prosecution. It should reduce the number of insanity pleas hurled at prosecutors, but it will leave defenders with cases bolstered by pre-trial access to a list of opponents to the plea.

Among other problems anticipated after Jan. 1 is interpretation of the death penalty and sentences prescribed for other felonies. The new code, which is more diversified, defines more than a half dozen types of murders and four different classes of felonies.

Althoug Murrell said the code generally is balanced, he said that it seems to tilt slightly in favor of defense attorneys in that they will be unencumbered by problems facing prosecutors, including more paperwork and different terminology.

alleged crime-he must understand that

Murrell said plans call for next summer's general public defender seminar to be devoted, at least in part, to a discussion of how the code will have taken shape and ways to cope with stillnagging and new problems.

In the midst of rising costs HERE'S GOOD NEWS!

For three consecutive months the "Fuel Cost Adjustment" factor on your electric bill has gone down.

In August the factor hit an all-time high. Then for the first time in over a year it went down...in September, October and November (This could vary depending on your billing cycle).

If you used 1000 kilowatt hours each month, your "Fuel Cost Adjustment" in November was $1.37 less than in August.

That's not the kind of saving that will solve your budget problem but it sure feels good to be able to say your cost has come down.

Some things you should know about this good news:

1. It does not signal the end of high coal prices. Doesn't even mean they've leveled off. As a matter of fact we expect coal costs and the "Fuel Cost Adjustment" to increase again. What happened was, the coal purchased in this period came from increased deliveries at a lower price.

2. Coal costs won't really come down until America digs enough to more than satisfy the demand. And because we're not digging enough the fuel cost factor will probably go up again. But...

3. Remember, not a penny...

not a single cent of the "Fuel Cost Adjustment" you pay do we keep. It goes directly to our fuel suppliers. We paid them less during this recent period...so you paid less.

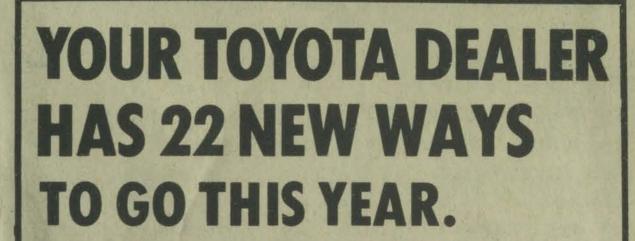

Those are the facts. We want you to have them even though they take the glitter off the good news.

This may not seem to be an earth-shattering event to you. But, to us, it feels good to be able to show that the "Fuel Cost Adjustment" works both ways. Automatically.

When fuel costs us less—you pay less. That's good news we wish would happen more often.

Tired of Running Pauper Government

"I'm sick and tired of running a pauper government," Pike County Judge Wayne T. Rutherford declared Friday as he called for more money for county governments.

In a speech before the Kentucky County Judges Association, Rutherford, newly elected president of that organization, called for a return of half of all coal severance tax money to local governments. He also urged county judges to "work together . . . to solve both our mutual and our unique problems."

Rutherford, at 37 the youngest president of the judges organization, attacked the Kentucky General Assembly for attaching "strings" to the legislation which returned a portion of unbudgeted severance tax funds to counties producing the coal.

"It would only be fair to the counties for the 1976 Kentucky Legislature to return to coal counties a fixed percentage of all severance tax," Rutherford declared. "I suggest that return be 50 percent-with no strings."

"The federal government sends local government millions of dollars and trusts us. Why can't Frankfort?" Rutherford asked the assembled county executives. Based on current coal prices, the severance tax would return 45 million dollars per year to Kentucky's coal producing counties.

Charleston College Names Sam Meade

College of Charleston Head Coach Alan Leforce has announced that a former Cougar star, Sam Meade, has been added to the college staff as assistant intramural director and assistant basketball coach.

The 22-year-old Stearns, Ky. native, available. and former resident of this county, was one of the original scholarship freshmen whom Leforce recruited for the South Caroline college over four years ago. He is the all-time leading scorer for the College of Charleston with 1,812 points in four years of varsity competition.
