

MAKING WAY FOR CONSTRUCTION of a planned $10 million shopping center/office complex near here, earth-moving and core drilling equipment has been involved in recent months in the considerable task of expanding the seven acres of level ground in the Pin Hook Branch of Katy Friend (beside Western Sizzlin' Steakhouse) to the 15 acres needed to accommodate the 200,000 sq. ft. complex and associated parking areas. Major tenants of the development, already committed to retail space, include Wal-Mart Discount Department Store, Winn-Dixie Grocery, and Begley Drugs. Commonwealth Development Corporation, of Louisville, real estate development firm which has built a number of other similar complexes in Kentucky and Tennessee, has set a completion date for the project in the spring of 1984.

As 20th Anniversary Marked...

PCC Leads in Gains At Anniversary Time

Twenty years ago, in the 1963-'64 school year, Kentucky's Community College System began with fewer than 3000 students. Last Friday night the 20th anniversary of the system was celebrated at the Lexington Center, and as of that date it had more than 23,000 enrolled.

Prestonsburg Community College, which had the highest enrollment percentage increase this year of all the 13 colleges in the system, was represented at the anniversary celebration by its director, Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., members of the PCC advisory board, faculty members and administrative staff members.

Speakers at the Lexington dinner program included Ex-Governor Bert T. Combs, during whose administration the community college system was initiated; UK President Otis Singletary; Charles Wethington, chancellor of the community college system, and William B. Sturgill, chairman of the UK board of trustees.

Although not the largest college of the 13, Prestonsburg Community College rose this fall to an overall enrollment, full and part-time students, of 1160—an increase of 28 percent and the biggest in the system.

"In the last five years we have exactly doubled our enrollment," Dr. Campbell said this week. "We had 580 at the close of registration five years ago."

Approximately 70% of the 1160 enrolled are fulltime students, Dr. Campbell said.

It is not only the buildings, permanent and temporary, that are being jammed by the influx of students here, he said. Even the temporary parking lot is full, and night classes create a jam almost as big as daytime sessions.

Admittedly pleased by the growth of the college, Dr. Campbell said the faculty is bearing up under a heavy load but is doing "a good job, and we're trying to keep them happy." He pointed out that the freshman class this year is the biggest in the history of the college, "and we have the largest pre-nursing class ever." He added that 90 percent of last spring's nursing graduating class passed the state board examination, which is 2½ percent better than the record scored by the previous class. "And we'll try to improve, next year, on that 90 percent," he said.

The economy and the high cost of education of main college campuses make the "at home" community colleges more attractive. Dr. Campbell also points out the practical skills taught at community colleges.

"There's not a lot of jobs, and those looking for them know that skills are necessary. And some who have jobs are getting more training to solidify their employment."

PCC and the other 12 colleges in the system will have activities on their own campuses celebrating this 20th anniversary year, Campbell said.

Even as there was an air of celebration throughout the system the question

This Town...That World

It's raining again today, and I'm sitting here with my little, red tomahawk, waiting for the first to say he wished it would stop.

AND IT'S ALL FREE

My neighbors next door, Mr. and Mrs. George Brown, should charge me the price of admission. For just outside this window is their flower garden, and from early spring into the fall I enjoy when my eyes are open—a passing show of roses, phlox, cosmos, begonias, coreopsis, others whose names I can't spell, in all the colors of the spectrum.

HE SPOKE MORE WISELY THAN HE KNEW

My friend, George Wolford, of the Ashland Independent, did a story recently on the 30th anniversary of the death of Fred M. Vinson, and that yarn brings on one of my own.

George told the Vinson story well—The boyhood years in Louisa, his college days, the beginnings of his political career, his election to Congress, his becoming chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, later secretary of the treasury, director of mobilization during World War II, and director of reconstruction later—no. 2 men in the nation's government, next to the President himself. And he quotes from the memoirs of the late President Truman who told of calling Fred Vinson to the Little White House in Key West to try to convince the Big Sandian that he was the logical man to be his successor.

Which gets me back to my story. On election night, November, 1924 I was in Louisa to talk to Milton F. Conley, co-owner of the Big Sandy News, about my first newspaper job. My Dad and I walked from the railroad station across the

False Report Nettles Police; 2 Men Charged

Capt. Charles Johnson, Pikeville state police post commander, wants it known "that we will vigorously prosecute" anyone caught making a false report, said Trooper Phil Tucker, the post's public information officer, last week.

The warning followed the arrest of one man and the issuing of a warrant for another, in connection with an incident reported over the Labor Day weekend.

Tucker said that police received a call around 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 4, from Ed Bradley, 20, of Arkansas Creek, near Martin. Bradley is said to have reported that there had been shooting on

Escaping Gas Forces Families From Homes Following Explosion

Between 20 and 25 Mare Creek families were forced from their homes at midnight Friday by escaping gas following an explosion at a producing gas or oil well.

The spreading gas vapor necessitated the evacuation, State Police said. Five State Police units were dispatched to the scene after the explosion.

Nobody was injured, and residents returned to their homes around 1:30 Saturday morning after the well had been capped.

Cause of the blast was investigated, and it was indicated that it was accidental. The well was owned by Gypsie Hughes, of Ashland.

Kin of Husband Accused by Jury As 115 Indicted

Six indictments for murder and two for complicity to murder were among 115 true bills handed down by a Floyd circuit court grand jury yesterday (Tuesday).

Named on a count of conspiracy to murder Glenda Sharon Marshall last June 20 was Harlos Ben Marshall, 26, of Langley. Marshall is a brother of Clyde Douglas Marshall, husband of the dead woman, who was previously charged by a special grand jury with complicity in her death.

Two others—Bobby Gene McGuffey, a half-brother of Marshall, and Carl Harold McFarland—were also indicted earlier in the death of the woman.

Charles Martin was indicted on two counts of murder stemming from the shooting deaths of Walter and Reginald Lazar. Also accused of murder are Luther Boyd, for allegedly shooting Luther Jay Boyd; Benny Lewis, in the shooting of Banner Lewis; Frank Newsome, in the shooting of Ellis "Bo" Campbell, and Alvis Randall Frasure, in the shooting of Larry Wilson.

Linda Wilson was indicted for conspiracy in the murder of Wilson, her former husband, last May 29.

State Police, who have been conducting an extensive probe into county expenditures, did not take evidence to the grand jury. Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said evidence gathered during the investigation, which is not yet complete, may be presented to a special grand jury.

Allen said the 115 indictments voted by the grand jury ending its session Tuesday was the greatest number of true bills returned at any one session since he has been in office.

Arraignments of those indicted has been set for September 29.

Jones Among 20 Whose Trials Set Next January 9th

Prestonsburg coal operator Edgar Jones and 19 others will be tried Jan. 9 on charges of planning to force a competing coal company out of business by violence and extortion.

U.S. District Judge G. Wix Unthank fixed the date Monday. The judge also heard pre-trial motions in the case.

A hearing will be held Oct. 20 to discuss whether tapes obtained by undercover agents and unindicted co-conspirators should be admitted into evidence. Defense attorneys are expected to move that portions of the tapes be excluded.

Another pre-trial session was scheduled for Dec. 15 to introduce and mark evidence for the trial.

Jones, who is president of the JRM Coal Co., was named in federal grand jury indictments last June, together with contract miners who worked for him and

Downtown Business Reacts To New Shopping Complex

The construction of a shopping complex at the junction of U.S. 23 and the Mountain Parkway is clearly making Prestonsburg merchants nervous.

They have newly regrouped as the Prestonsburg Business Association, organized a promotional event last Saturday, persuaded the city council to reverse the traffic flow on one city street, and are pressing for new sidewalks downtown.

"We would like to continue in business," Hansel Cooley told council members, in support of his request that traffic flow on Arnold Avenue, which presently runs from south to north between Court Street and U.S. 23, be reversed on that section.

While the Prestonsburg merchants did not wish to pit the two business areas against each other, "we would like to get people into the habit (of going downtown via Arnold Avenue) before the new center is built," Jack Wicker explained.

Council members agreed to turn the traffic around as soon as signs could be posted. The state highways department will also be asked to erect a caution light at the intersection of Arnold Avenue and U.S. 23.

The council reluctantly acknowledged it had no choice but to pay the $2200 monthly asked by Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc. for use of the county landfill. The fee was recently increased from $1600.

City Manager David Evans noted that Johnson county is in the process of opening a landfill and that the judge-executive there "is very interested in having us as customers." The proposed landfill in Johnson county will be nearer to Prestonsburg than the Floyd landfill, which is located at Garth, Evans claimed.

Kal Franko, operator of a restaurant at Lancer, complained of speeding on South Lake Drive in that section. He asked that a 35 m.p.h. limit be posted, that the whole area be designated a no-passing zone, and that a warning light be put up outside the fire station there.

Councilman Estill Lee Carter, who advocated a no-passing rule and a 45 m.p.h. speed limit, agreed to consult with state highways authorities about safety measures there.

Bids on a police cruiser were received from Deskins Motors and Campbell Ford, with Deskins the successful bidder on a 1983 Diplomat, to cost $9999.

Woodrow Allen was reappointed to the zoning and adjustment board for a four-year term. Clyde George was named to replace David Spruill on the board. Spruill was recently named to the city planning commission.

Owner Asks $7500 In Deaths of Horses

Kentucky-West Virginia Gas Co. should compensate him for the deaths of three horses on his Turkey Creek property, Eugene Mullins claims in a suit filed in circuit court last week.

Mullins said the horses died within a 10-day period last January, after drinking from a stream which was polluted by gas leaking from a well or transmission line.

The horses died of lead poisoning as a result of the gas contamination, Mullins said. He is asking for $7500 in damages.

(Claims made in a suit represent only one side of the issue in dispute.)

Radio WPRT Off Air After Creditors Act

After a shaky, two-year flight in the hands of new pilots, Prestonsburg radio station WPRT dropped quietly from the air Friday.

The station had been in financial difficulties for some time, its owners initiating bankruptcy proceedings in U.S. Bankruptcy Court last December.

A consortium of Prestonsburg, Pikeville and Paintsville businessmen was rumored this week to be negotiating purchase of the ailing firm.

A lone guard stationed at the WPRT offices on South Lake Drive Monday said he had been hired by the Bank Josephine, one of the firm's creditors, to watch the premises.

Dave Stephens, who founded the radio station in 1952, sold it in June, 1980, to American Signal Corporation, a Kingsport, Tenn. firm, reportedly for $325,000. Stephens, who sued American Signal to recover his money last summer, said this week the firm still owes him $330,000.

Suits against the company have also been filed by the Bank Josephine, which claimed last month that American Signal was behind on a $100,000 loan, and by H.D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., who said the radio station had defaulted on its lease.

In his suit, Fitzpatrick said he had spent $138,139 to remodel the South Lake Drive offices for WPRT, a sum the broadcasting firm had agreed to repay.

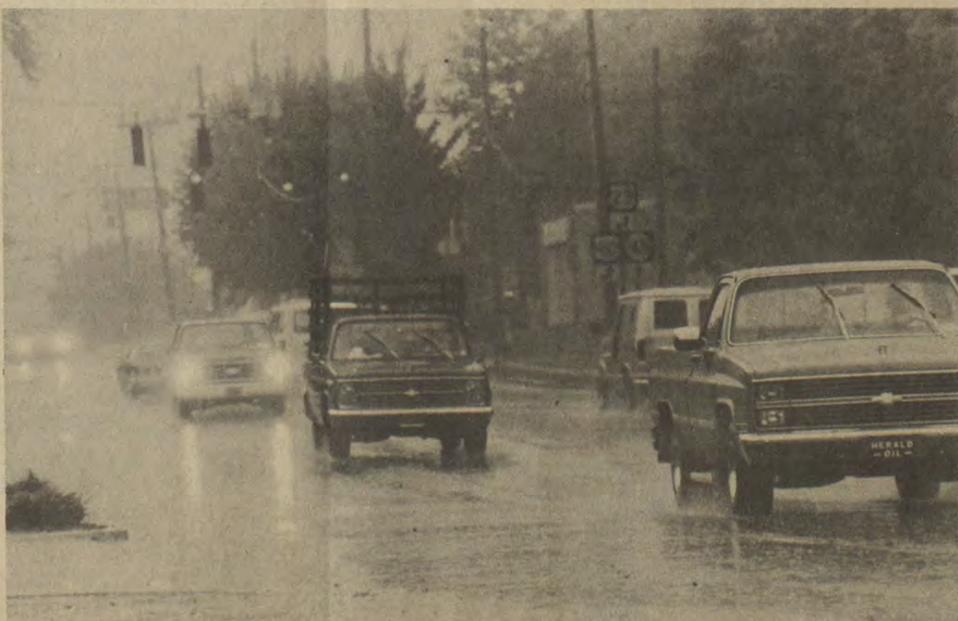

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley issued a restraining order last December which prohibited American Signal from selling any property or removing it from Floyd county. Stephens, who had requested the order, said in an affidavit that he came upon two men at the site of the WPRT radio tower at Lancer. The men were loading the tower, which had been dismantled, onto two trucks, he said.

The men told him they were taking the tower for storage at the Campbell Motors lot at Ivel until it could be sold, Stephens alleged.

A trailer had already been removed from the site, he said.

Listed in the suits as owners of American Signal are H. Curtis Williams, H. Gene Artrip, John Ed Seehorn, and Marion E. Lane, all of Johnson City, Tenn., and Deward R. Dear, also known as Rick Darby, of Prestonsburg.

Darby maintained an office on the WPRT premises here. The station manager was Mike Ormerod.

IT WAS AN UNUSUAL SIGHT for area residents who had begun to wonder if the scorching heat and dry weather of the past several weeks would ever end, when things turned dark and stormy around midday, Tuesday. Except for a few pedestrians who may have been splashed by passing cars, most everyone welcomed the change in the weather.

Gray, McNally Trial Date Set

Trial has been set Jan. 9 for Prestonsburg businessman Charles J. McNally and James E. Gray, who was finance secretary and secretary of the cabinet under former Gov. Julian Carroll. The two have entered innocent pleas to charges of mail fraud and conspiracy.

McNally and Gray were indicted June 30 by a special federal grand jury probing possible corruption in state government. They were charged with participating in a scheme to share $851,000 in kickbacks on commissions from state insurance contracts.

According to the indictment, the kickbacks were funneled through a dummy corporation, called Sefon Investments, which Gray allegedly helped Howard P. "Sonny" Hunt, former state Democratic chairman, to set up.

Hunt is serving a four-year prison sentence after pleading guilty to charges of conspiracy and signing false federal income tax returns. He earlier served an 11-month contempt sentence for refusing to testify to the grand jury.

McNally operates Prestonsburg Auto Parts and is a member of the Prestonsburg Utilities board. He and Gray were released on $10,000 personal recognizance bonds.

Face-To-Face Reconsideration

There has been a change in the appeals process at the first level of appeal, which is known as reconsideration, Jim Kelly, Social Security district director for the Big Sandy area, said recently. "Under a new law," Kelly said, "Social Security disability insurance beneficiaries who wish to appeal a decision terminating their benefits now have the opportunity for a face-to-face hearing when their claim is reconsidered. Under previous law, the appeal at reconsideration consisted only of a review of the evidence in the case file plus any additional evidence that the beneficiary might have presented."

"This new procedure should make the process more fair for beneficiaries," Kelly said. "It should assure that those charged with reviewing the initial decision will have all the information they need to arrive at a correct determination."

Additional information about the Social Security appeals process can be obtained from the Social Security office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

Blast Victim Sues Barnett For $18 Million

Jack K. Daniel Sr., the Lexington coal broker who was critically injured in a mail-bomb explosion last year, has sued Salyersville coal operator Robert H. Barnett for more than $18 million.

Barnett, 44, was acquitted in U.S. District Court in London recently after a two week trial on charges that he mailed the bomb that exploded as Daniel was opening the package on Sept. 5, 1982.

Daniel and his wife, Betty M. Daniel, filed the lawsuit in Fayette circuit court while jurors in the Barnett trial deliberated in London. It seeks compensation for medical expenses, mental stress, pain and suffering, property damage, and other expenses incurred by the couple as a result of the explosion.

Daniel, 52, lost both legs and two fingers when a 30-inch-long cylindrical parcel believed loaded with up to five pounds of high explosive blew up at his west Lexington home.

The suit also charges that Daniel received serious burns and damage to his left ear and eye and spent 87 days in the hospital while he underwent surgery on seven separate occasions.

In addition, it is alleged, Daniel will be required to undergo surgery on at least two future occasions and is confined to a wheelchair for the remainder of his life.

Another suit, filed by Republic Land Company Inc., a corporation owned by Daniel, seeks $7,500 for a company car that was damaged in the explosion.

A third suit, filed by Douglas Puckett, Daniel's 22-year-old business associate who was present when the bomb exploded, seeks $700,000 in compensatory and punitive damages and an additional $200,000 for "pain and suffering" as a result of the bombing.

Richard E. Fitzpatrick, Lexington attorney who represents Daniel, noted that the timing of the suits was based on Kentucky's one-year statute of limitations for civil suits alleging personal injury, rather than the return of a verdict in the Barnett trial. The suits were filed before the jury had rendered its verdict in the federal court in London, he said.

Burnside attorney Lester H. Burns Jr., is working with Fitzpatrick on the suits.

More Than One Audit Needed

The cost-plus contracts of World War II, when the U.S. government guaranteed manufacturers of planes, guns, the munitions of war a profit in order to spur the national war effort have their modern-day counterpart.

The utilities of the country operate on the old cost-plus principle, and wax fat on it, even as did the munitions makers forty years ago.

Since the rates paid by the consumer for electric power, natural gas and other utilities are based on the cost to the supplier, plus a "reasonable" profit, the action taken by Governor Brown toward auditing at least one utility is something that should spread to all who operate on this principle.

Cost-plus was a costly, wasteful experience for the nation and its taxpayers, but in wartime it was necessary. Haste makes waste, and we were in a desperate hurry. But the continuance of this relationship between supplier and consumer raises certain questions that should be answered.

How much, for example, are swank offices and their high-salaried occupants adding to the costs? How much of the capital investment load goes into these costs for the consumer eventually to pay? What, if anything, is being done toward economizing?

Cost-plus encourages the provider of services to spend freely. If a supplier is assured a "plus" (or profit) of 10%, say, above cost, a total cost of $1 million will mean $100,000 profit; but, if the cost is held to only $500,000 the profit is cut in half.

These are matters that cause us to be pleased with Governor Brown's proposed audit. It will cost the taxpayers, which include consumers, but it should be extended from one electric power utility to them all.

Three troopers were sent to the scene and two ambulances were dispatched also, but there had been no shooting, Tucker said. Bradley was arrested at the scene and charged with public intoxication and falsely reporting an incident. He was lodged in jail here in lieu of a $2000 bond.

After entering a guilty plea, Bradley was later sentenced to 30 days jail and fined $100 by District Judge Harold Stumbo.

A warrant was issued also for Art Long, 45, of Harold, who was apparently still at large late last week.

"We take it very seriously, especially when we are busy, for someone to do something like that," Tucker said. "It is especially dangerous at peak periods, like holidays, when we need every available unit at our disposal."

"We intend to prosecute (anyone making a false report) to the fullest extent of the law."

tracks to a small restaurant on the opposite corner. It was a dark, rainy night, I recall, and the gas lights that at that time lighted the streets were reflected in little puddles of water.

Inside the restaurant, it was crowded. The incident that I remember so well was the announcement made by an oldtimer, soon after we got inside. A little, old guy, he was, and he spoke in a falsetto so high that you expected him to emphasize his statement with a "by-cracky."

"They say," he announced, "that Freddie Vinson has been elected to Congress. I tell ye, that ain't far from bein' President."

I recall, young whippersnapper that I was, repeating that statement to my Dad, once we were outside, and of laughing derisively about it. But, as we now know, time proved that that old geezer spoke more wisely than he knew.

arises—Should the colleges continue under control of the University of Kentucky?

As far back as 1976, Dr. Singletary noted "a biennial recurrence of interest in the system," referring to the regularly with which the issue came up in the General Assembly.

The matter came up again recently in a study presented to the state Council on Higher Education. The study, by Florida-based MGT of America Inc., said Kentucky's enrollment in two-year institutions "is significantly below that of all except three of the (12) comparison states," even though community college students pay less tuition than students at four-year institutions.

A possible action, it suggested, is to reorganize the institutions into a single system with a common governing authority and establish a five-year plan for improving program quality and accessibility.

But Robert Goodpaster of Ashland Community College said, "There's nothing offered (in that plan) that would be appealing to the director or to the faculty and staff of this institution."

UK Board Chairman Sturgill said the community colleges operate well in their present administrative arrangement. "I think their track record is such that they do not need anything but dollars and better facilities to grow at the same rate in the future that they did in the past," he said. "I think they have grown well in the university system."

Asked his position on the question, Dr. Campbell said, "I don't think there's any merit in the proposed change. Nothing better is offered."

Most of $27 Million Grant To Help with Home Fuel Bills

The Cabinet for Human Resources' plan for helping low-income Kentuckians keep warm this winter calls for spending most of the anticipated $27 million Home Energy Assistance block grant to pay individual home heating bills.

"We worked with a task force of consumers, energy providers, representatives of the Public Service Commission and Community Action Agencies to develop this year's plan," said Secretary Buddy Adams.

Adams said 17,000 of the homes receiving assistance will have complete energy audits this year. "Some of the homes are so poorly insulated and drafty it's like trying to heat the outdoors. We're taking a longer range approach this year to see what can be done to cut down the heat loss, make families more comfortable, and stretch HEAP dollars in the future," Adams said. In addition to the households receiving complete audits, a survey of energy efficiency will be made on the homes of all HEAP beneficiaries. The number of homes surveyed is expected to be around 80,000.

The elderly and disabled may apply for HEAP assistance, beginning Dec. 5 through Dec. 16, one month earlier this year than last year. "The earlier schedule will allow the elderly and disabled to get out and apply for fuel assistance before the very severe weather sets in," said Social Insurance Commissioner John Cubine. Forty percent of the HEAP funds are reserved for this group.

The remaining 60 percent of the HEAP funds will go to other eligible households who are in a crisis situation regarding home heating. Applications from this group will be accepted beginning January 16 and continue until the funds are exhausted.

To receive HEAP assistance, a household must not have more than $5,000 in liquid resources. The maximum monthly income a household seeking HEAP assistance can have is $500 for a one-person household, $600 for a two-person household, $700 for a three-person household and $800 for a household of four or more persons.

Stumbo's Confident Of Bill's Chance For '84 Approval

The Tennessee Supreme Court has upheld broad-form deed legislation in that state, encouraging Rep. Greg Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg, to pre-file legislation similar to a 1980 bill he sponsored.

In a press conference last Wednesday, Stumbo told reporters he is confident of the bill's chances in the 1984 General Assembly.

Statistics from Tennessee, whose law was passed in 1977, indicate that the broad-form deed legislation has had little impact on coal production levels.

Stumbo cited the year 1976, one year before the passage of the Tennessee broad-form deed legislation, as producing 9,283,000 tons of coal—and in 1980 coal production stood at 9,850,000.

Stumbo's legislation asks that a clear understanding between landowners and mineral-rights owners be established concerning the authority of each to use the land's surface.

In particular, the bill would offer surface owners in a broad-form deed situation the right to restrict the method of mining employed by a mineral holder to techniques in use at the time of the original signing of the deed. Since most broad-form deeds originated during the early 1900's, decades before the development of surface mining methods, surface owners would have the option of restricting coal removal on their property to deep mine operations.

In addition, the legislation allows landowners to settle with mineral-rights owners as to how the property is to be reclaimed.

Stumbo said that although it is obvious abuses of property rights under broad-form deeds are not as prevalent as in the past, the law should be on the books as a safeguard.

The legislation sponsored by Stumbo in the 1980 session was approved in the House of Representatives and was narrowly defeated in the Senate.

"We need to pre-file this bill, and I will ask for a public hearing on the proposed legislation to be scheduled this fall before the beginning of the 1984 General Assembly," Stumbo said.

Growing Child

Why Kids Are Bad At The Worst Times

The ringing of the telephone signals bedlam. As you lift the receiver, your toddler climbs onto the kitchen counter. As you say hello, the five-year-old pulls him off. A nice long chat? Forget it!
That's the way it goes with kids, reminds Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter. The night of your dinner party the baby fusses all evening. The day you set aside to get the house ready for the holidays the little one will scrape a knee, spill the iodine, not settle for the small size bandage, even though it's the only one you have. Funny how children are awful, just when you have no time.
Like other coincidences in childhood, this one is on purpose. Perhaps you remember. Remember how the comfortable framework that held your days together seemed to fall apart, frighteningly, when your own mother's attention was all absorbed somewhere else?
Remember the empty-abandoned feeling that washed around you, just because your mother was busy with her friends?
The bickering and skirmishing around your feet, as you press the telephone closer to your ear, is because a child feels scared when he thinks he is abandoned, angry when he thinks he is pushed out. Your children would rather risk a scolding than feel they don't exist for you.

Maybe the following ideas will help, and maybe they won't. At least you and your child will be dealing more directly with the real problems at hand.
*To have a telephone conversation: Keep some special things hidden near the telephone. A puzzle, crayons and pads, a toy telephone for a baby.
Excuse yourself for a moment (it seems long to you, but it's only seconds) and give your full attention to the kids. Tell them how long you expect to talk—a little while or a long time. Take the time to help them get started on the puzzle or the crayoning. Then go back to your conversation.
*Before a dinner party or an evening with friends coming in: Even if things are not quite ready, give the baby 15 minutes of your undivided—and undistracted—attention, so he is sure you are really the same as usual, so he can sleep reassured.
Let older children help you instead of pushing them out of the way. They might help set the table or count silverware, crumple newspaper for starting the fire, or count the hangers in the hall closet to be sure there are enough.
*And in the hassle of everyday: Try to echo back to children how you think they feel—"It must feel strange to you, with the house all torn apart this way." "It's hard for you when I can't listen." "I know you'd like me to spend some time with you."

Explain your side of things: "I'm really interested in talking to my friend about her sick mother." "I want to cook a very fancy dinner, and I have to concentrate." "I need this new dress for tonight and I don't want to read to you until I've finished hemming it."
But here and there, set aside a few minutes for your children—to read that book, to walk around the block a couple of times, to play a new game, to get a simple project started.
The time it takes to make a child feel things are okay is time well spent—especially when you have so little time to spare.

State Chamber Announces Education Task Force

The Kentucky Chamber of Commerce today announced the formation of the Kentuckians for Excellence in Education Task Force.
The statewide Task Force will be broad-based. Its membership will include teachers, legislators, administrators, school board members, labor leaders, and members of the state's business community.
Philip Thompson, president of the Kentucky Chamber, made the announcement today at a meeting of the Interim Education Committee in Frankfort.

It was also announced that Jim Ratcliffe, a partner with Coopers and Lybrand in Louisville and vice chairman of the State Board of Education, has agreed to serve as chairman of the Task Force.
The Task Force, which will be funded by the state's private sector, will be independent of the Kentucky Chamber. The focus of its proposals and recommendations is expected to include quality of teaching, academic performances, curriculum standards, governmental structure, and public/private partnerships.

Thompson was careful to point out that the Task Force has a specific mission.
"I want to emphasize that this will not be merely another study—the recommendations of the Task Force will be a direct call for action," he said. Once the recommendations of the Task Force are made, efforts will be organized to insure full consideration by the appropriate body for their action.
The complete list of Task Force members, as well as meeting plans, will be announced.

SMOKING, TEETH AND GUMS

Q. How does smoking affect teeth and gums?

A. Studies have shown that smokers are more than twice as likely to contract gum disease than non-smokers. The heat smoking generates and the chemicals in the smoke irritate palate and mouth tissues. Smoking can cause circulatory problems, too, slowing down or halting circulation necessary to maintain normal dental tissues.

Smoking also depletes the body's store of Vitamin C. In fact, smoking just four cigarettes destroys all the Vitamin C you get from an 8-ounce glass of citrus juice. Lack of sufficient Vitamin C robs blood and tissue of the oxygen that gums need to counteract the destructive effects of peridontal anaerobic bacteria.

Pipe smokers accumulate even more stain on teeth than cigar, cigarette or non-smokers do. Pipes can also create a kind of traumatic occlusion from teeth pressing on the pipe stem, causing teeth to shift in the mouth, loosening the teeth, and affecting supporting gum and bone tissue adversely.

Alice Pike Barney, A Genteel Bohemian

By MARGERY BYERS
Smithsonian News Service
"What is capital life at all? Small talk and lots to eat, an infinite series of teas and dinners. Art? There is none."

That was artist Alice Pike Barney's blunt assessment of Washington, D.C., in 1902. Determined to elevate the taste of the capital's residents, she built Barney Studio House as her home, studio and salon. It was the second house to be constructed on one of Washington's famous circles, and she filled it with her own paintings and those of her friends and with carved furniture, Oriental rugs and European decorative bibelots. Antique embroideries and tapestries hung near the 20th-century reproductions.

Today, this unusual house is open to the public from October through May. There, surrounded by Barney's collections, one can experience a bygone era.

The house resembled a stage set on which the lively and unpredictable Alice was one of the main attractions of her Bohemian-style salon. A free-spirited woman, she was barely 5 feet tall yet towering in her influence on the arts. In her dress, she combined haute couture with costume. Her jewelry included both diamonds and paste imitations: It was the dramatic effect that was important.

Alice Pike Barney's behavior, unconventional for her era, occasionally startled her more staid social counterparts. When the house was finished, she gave a banquet for the workmen and their wives which Town & Country magazine called "unique in local annals." She once caused a traffic jam by placing a life-sized reclining nude statue from Paris on her front lawn.

A congenial setting for the social and artistic life of the city, Barney Studio House was the scene of tableaux, musicales, theatrical and poetry readings, lectures and dance performances. Members of the diplomatic corps were frequent visitors, and other noted guests included Alice Roosevelt Longworth, actress Sarah Bernhardt and dancer Ruth St. Denis, as well as justices of the Supreme Court.

Activity at Barney Studio House continues today. After Alice Barney's death in 1931, it was rented for 26 years and opened to the public only once during those decades. It was given to the Smithsonian by her daughters in 1960 and has been carefully renovated by the Institution's National Museum of American Art. Three quarters of the original furnishings are on view. Once again, this unique showplace evokes its original mood and intent as a place of artistic enjoyment. A generous godmother to the arts, Alice Pike Barney would be pleased.

Born in Cincinnati in 1857, Alice was surrounded by wealth. Her father built the first opera house there in 1859 and the Grand Opera House in New York in 1868. When Samuel Pike died in 1872, he left his daughter $2 million, and two years later, she visited Europe for the first time.

Alice, then 17, was wooed by 33-year-old Henry Morton Stanley, the adventurer and newspaperman of Stanley and Livingston fame. They signed a pledge to be faithful to each other and to marry when he returned from Africa. Stanley named his boat "Lady Alice," wrote his "fiance" daily and sent her exotic gifts. Engrossed with her parties, Alice consigned his mail—unopened—to the basement. In January of 1876, she married wealthy Albert Clifford Barney, as stuffily proper and decorous as she was not. She liked but never loved Barney. "Surely he is more than punished," she once said, "by being with his own unavoidable self."

After their marriage, the Barneys divided their time among Cincinnati, New York and Europe. They had two daughters and, when Alice enrolled the girls in a French boarding school in 1886, she began to study painting seriously. In 1889, the Barneys built a 26-room "cottage" in Bar Harbor, Maine, and the following year, a mansion in Washington, D.C.

Despite an air of seeming frivolity, Alice Barney was a respected artist. Her first solo exhibition was in 1901 at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington. During the next 10 years, she had a series of well-received shows in Paris, New York and Boston. Having proved that a wealthy society matron could be a serious artist, she turned to other cultural pursuits—particularly dance and theater.

Alice Barney produced grand tableaux and amateur plays as charity fundraisers and occasionally appeared in them. Although Washington had only a handful of sparsely attended legitimate theaters, attendance at her pageants and plays was standing room only. In 1904, at the Belasco Theater, she presented "The Dream of Queen Elizabeth," with the daughter of the Russian ambassador as one of the stars. Theodore Roosevelt came but, considering it improper for a president's daughter to appear on a stage, he refused to let his daughter Alice take part in the drama.

Alice Barney's support of the arts continued throughout her life and she died on Oct. 12, 1931, while attending a concert in Los Angeles. She is buried in Dayton, Ohio, a small stone appropriately acknowledging her as "Alice Pike Barney, The Talented One."

The decline in the number of persons who worked part or all of 1982, coupled with the continued growth of the population of working age persons, brought about a further drop in the proportion of the population with some employment during the year, according to data from the annual work experience survey reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

New Property Values Total $459 Million

Some 35,556 Floyd taxpayers own $459,427,324 in taxable property, according to a preliminary assessment for 1983. Only small changes are expected in the final figures, said Property Valuation Administrator Lovell Hall.

Almost one third of the assessment is made up of residential property. Listed are 13,039 homes—395 more than last year—valued at $144,282,533. That averages out at $11,065 a dwelling.

On the books are 17,678 motor vehicles valued at $85,019,324, for an average of $4809.

The value of unmined coal is put at $33,422,158, a figure that could become more significant if legislative moves to have unmined minerals taxed at the same rate as surface property are successful.

This year's roll lists 738 businesses—38 more than in 1982—worth $62,166,780.

There are 62 fewer boats in the county (460 this year, valued at $1.5 million) but eight more airplanes (23 valued at $2.6 million).

The worth of the county's three banks—a figure that includes real estate, capital stock and accounts on deposit—is put at $18.8 million, virtually unchanged from last year.

Farm acreage, given as 165,466 acres, shows only a slight decrease from last year. Whereas 52 firms were said to own $17 million worth of drilling, mining and construction equipment in 1982, 60 firms owning $19.9 million are listed for 1983.

The total assessment amounts this year to $492,691,680, but $25.9 million must be deducted in homestead exemptions and another $7.4 million in disability exemptions. For those over 65 or disabled, $15,000 in taxable property is exempt from taxes.

New Dewey Lake Report Brighter Than Last Year's

Two weeks ago, The Times reported that last year's studies of Dewey Lake made by the Division of Fisheries, Kentucky Department of Fish & Wildlife, had indicated a discouraging few tiger musky remained in the impoundment. Only nine musky were listed in a roving creek survey at the lake that year, the report said.

Last week, Kerry Prather, district biologist for the division, supplied an update on the situation. It is more encouraging.

Last spring, he said, electro-fishing at Dewey Lake turned up about 50 musky ranging from 15 to 35 inches. (Electro-fishing, in which fish are stunned by electric shock, is done only at specified points and makes no attempt to cover an entire body of water. Chemical study of fish population is done through the use of rotenone, which kills all fish in the area treated. No chemical study of the lake has been made this year.)

The study last spring also brought up "quite a few bass from keeper size to four pounds," Prather said. A good bass population was indicated.

In response to an inquiry, the biologist said he doubts that the fertilization program once in effect at Dewey Lake will be resumed. In addition to the cost of fertilization, he pointed to the flow-through, or water-exchange, rate which prevents the lake from getting the full effect of any fertilizer that is added.

The Carr Fork Lake fertilization work, which is being concluded this year, was undertaken because, he said, the need was "drastic." Effects of fertilization will be studied for perhaps two years before a decision is made to resume the program or to discontinue it permanently.

Although no comprehensive study of the Big Sandy river has been done, a check of the river is planned for a later date, it was said.

The scars of an abused child can stay with us all his life.

In any way you can think of, the effects of child abuse are devastating.

Each year, over one million American children suffer from child abuse.

Over 2,000 of those abused children die.

And, for many of those who live, the effects of an abusive childhood may influence their entire lives. And ours.

Many teenage drug addicts and teenage prostitutes report being abused children. So do juvenile delinquents and adult criminals.

Because we pay to respond to those problems, we are all the victims of child abuse.

Yet child abuse can and must be prevented.

The National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse is a private, charitable organization that knows how to prevent child abuse.

But we need your help to do it. We need money. We need more volunteers. Send us your check today, or write for our booklet.

And, remember, if we don't all start somewhere, we won't get anywhere.

 National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse

Help us get to the heart of the problem.

More Drinking, Less Smoking On Television

Researchers who sampled three decades of television shows ranging from "Leave it to Beaver" to "Dallas" have concluded that drinking is up during prime time but smoking is down.

Their review of "The Twilight Zone," "Perry Mason," "Alice," "M-A-S-H" — 280½ hours of situation comedies and dramas in all — found a 10-fold drop in TV smoking since 1950. But during the same period, on-the-air drinking has risen dramatically.

The research, published in part in the New England Journal of Medicine, was conducted by Drs. Warren Breed and James R. De Foe of the Institute for Scientific Analysis in Berkeley, Calif.

"We believe that television producers accepted the idea that smoking is dangerous to your health," Breed said in an interview. "We think they have shown good responsibility to the public in terms of health."

The depiction of drinking, however, was excessive, Breed said. TV often fails to show the consequences of overindulgence and rarely portrays people turning down a drink, he said.

"I would say that television does not handle drinking as responsibly as it could," he said.

The use of booze on TV was unchanged until recent years. Throughout the 1950s, '60s and '70s, actors on the hour-long shows committed an average of four "drinking acts" per hour. But in the early 1980s, this doubled to eight per hour.

In a drinking act, the actor actually takes a gulp on camera or has a glass in his hand.

Breed attributed the increased drinking to the advent of shows like "Love Boat," in which drinking plays a part in the plot.

"A pleasure cruise ship where people weren't drinking would be ridiculous," he said.

The researchers counted all the liquid consumed, not just alcohol, and "people on television drink more alcohol than soft drinks, coffee or water," Breed said. "Drinking on television does not reflect reality."

Cigarette smoking was highest on the hour-long drama shows during the 1950s and early 1960s, when actors puffed an average of 4.4 cigarettes every hour. By 1982, this had dropped to just under a third of a cigarette per hour.

"In a 1961 episode of 'Dr. Kildare,' both Dr. Kildare and his mentor, Dr. Gillespie, smoked. In contrast, not one cigarette was seen in 10 hours of two 1971-1977 hospital dramas, 'Medical Center' and 'Marcus Welby, M.D.'"

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND
Health Educator

Cervical cancer kills approximately 11,000 women each year, yet this type cancer can be one of the most curable of all types of cancers if the disease is detected in its earliest stages and treatment is begun.

There is a simple painless test for this disease. This is the Pap test which was developed by and named for Dr. George N. Papanicolaou. It takes only a few moments of a woman's time and it could possibly save her life.

Women over age 45 are especially urged to be screened regularly for cervical cancer since they are in the high-risk group for the disease.

The Floyd County Health Department is having a Pap clinic on Friday September 16 from 8:30 until 11:30 and from 1 until 2. This clinic is a free service of the Health Department and is open to women of all ages, but those women age 45 and over are especially urged to take advantage of this service since this is the high risk age.

A nurse from the Health Department will be in Harold at Ward's Health Food Store on Monday September 19 from 10 until 2. She will offer T.B. skin tests, urinalyses, immunizations, anemia screening, and blood pressures. This is a service of the Health Department and the public is welcome.

★ CANCER HOPELINE ★

Q. I am scheduled for a breast cancer biopsy soon. The surgeon wants me to sign a form that says he can proceed with a mastectomy if tests indicate I have cancer. I want the two procedures done separately so I can be aware of what is happening to my body. What should I do?

A. You should resolve the matter with your surgeon before you have the biopsy. Ultimately it is your decision. It is your right as a patient to modify the surgical consent form in your own handwriting to say that you are giving permission only for the biopsy.

Many women feel as you do. For them it is psychologically a very sound idea. This approach may help the patient adjust to the possibility of having major surgery and allows her to make decisions based on the options presented by her surgeon. If, for example, the biopsy reveals that the cancer is very small, with no apparent lymph node involvement, she might elect surgery that is less extensive; i.e., a lumpectomy that only removes the tumor and some surrounding tissue, not the whole breast, with post-operative radiotherapy.

There are also good medical reasons for a two-step procedure. First, breast cancer normally is not an emergency condition, so waiting a few days or a week or two between the biopsy and subsequent surgery is not considered harmful by most specialists. Moreover, proper staging of the cancer will require a liver function test and a chest x-ray at a minimum, to establish whether the cancer has spread elsewhere. If the tumor is large, or if lymph nodes under the arm are thought to contain a tumor, a bone scan should be done. Bone or brain scans should also be done if the patient has bone pain, motor or sensory problems, or a mental change.

An estrogen receptor assay should be performed at the time of biopsy to assess whether the tumor is "estrogen dependent" or not. Estrogen-dependent breast tumors are treated differently from others. It is important that this test be performed on breast cancer tissue samples.

Of course, you have chosen your surgeon for his skills and you trust him to provide guidance for you in choosing among the available treatment options. However, as a patient, you have the right to ask questions and insist upon answers in terms that you understand. Should you not be satisfied with one surgeon's proposed approach, you can always seek a second opinion. Once you make a choice, allow the physician to use his/her skills to your best possible advantage.

For more information about breast cancer, call the Cancer Helpline and ask for a free copy of "What You Need to Know about Breast Cancer" and "Questions and Answers about Breast Lumps." Call toll free 1-800-4-CANCER from 9-5 weekdays, or write us at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, Ky. 40503.

Floyd Woman's Parents Killed in Auto Crash

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frank, of Harrisonburg, Va., parents of Mrs. Nell Valentine, of Auxier, were killed in an automobile collision Saturday, near Mint Springs, Virginia.

The car in which they were traveling turned into the left lane at the same time an asphalt truck was attempting to pass causing the collision in which the Franks died instantly.

Charles William Frank was 78 years old and his wife, Anne Bowman Frank, was 65. He was a retired realtor in Harrisonburg.

Their daughter, Mrs. Valentine, came to Floyd county in 1970 to work in the Christian Service Ministry program of the Presbyterian Church. She is married to Robert J. Valentine, and they are the parents of two children. Two other daughters of the Franks, all in Virginia, also survive.

The Franks had willed their bodies to medical science, and a memorial service for them was held Tuesday at the First Presbyterian Church of Harrisonburg where Mr. Frank was an elder and his wife a Sunday School teacher.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that memorial contributions be sent to the Harrisonburg Church Building Fund, or to the First Presbyterian Church of Prestonsburg, the Valentines' church.

VISITORS HERE

Mrs. E.A. Smith, a patient at the Mountain Manor Nursing Home, was visited during the Labor Day weekend by her sons, Waldo W. Smith, of Kingsport, Tennessee, and E.A. Smith, Jr., of Olney, Illinois, who were accompanied on the visit by their wives. While here, they also spent some time visiting friends, Mrs. Zella Archer, Mrs. Jeanette Hubbard, and other relatives.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Ethel Gilton Ziino would take this opportunity to thank everyone for their help in the loss of our loved one; those who sent food and flowers, spent time with the family or just spoke comforting words. We deeply appreciate you all. A special thanks to the ministers and the Hall Funeral Home for being so kind.

Teen Volunteer Program Gears Up

Especially vivid in the memory of Teen Volunteer LaDonna Griffey of Prestonsburg is the experience of trying to comfort a cancer patient at Highlands Regional Medical Center. "I just tried to keep his mind off his problem and cheer him up," she said.

LaDonna and many other area teens have been active in the volunteer program at Highlands Regional and now there is an opportunity for others to become involved. The teen volunteers are holding an orientation meeting on Monday, Sept. 19 at 3:30 p.m. at the hospital. All high school students interested in health care volunteer work are invited to attend.

HRMC teen volunteers work afternoons in various areas of the hospital. They transport patients, play with children, perform thoughtful patient services and assist in the Pharmacy, Medical Records and other departments.

Students must be 16 years of age or older to volunteer and must have the permission of their parent or guardian. Teen volunteers must be responsible and have a caring attitude.

(For further information on the teen volunteer program, call the Public Information Office at 886-8511 or 789-6548, extension 159.)

Al-Anon To Hold Meet in Louisville

Al-Anon family groups will hold their 18th annual convention at the Galt House in Louisville, September 16, 17, and 18.

Al-Anon is a fellowship of relatives and friends of alcoholics who share their experience, strength, and hope with others who are seeking solutions to the problems that come from living with an alcoholic. If a friend or family member has a drinking problem, Al-Anon can help you cope with the problem as it affects you.

The public is invited to the Sunday meeting, September 18, at 10 a.m., which will be held on the second floor of the Galt House.

Area Child Abuse Study Funded by State Grant

What type of parent could abuse a child? Any parent, say the experts. Anyone who finds himself or herself with more than enough stress—and less than enough support.

While stories of children who have been burned, beaten, sexually molested, emotionally victimized, or chronically neglected conjure images of depraved parents, most abusive parents are "normal," according to a pamphlet widely used as an educational tool by mental health and social workers.

Child abusers are not typically "criminal" types or mentally unbalanced, caseworkers say.

While abusive parents come from all classes and creeds, however, the myth persists that it is a problem only among the shiftless and the poor. And, while child abuse is now recognized at least by professionals as a pervasive social problem, in many places it is still spoken of only in whispers.

That situation may begin to change here soon, thanks to a modest state grant being administered by the Department for Social Services' Prestonsburg office and Mountain Comprehensive Care Center.

The grant will pay a social worker to pull together a team of professionals—from the medical, legal, mental health, teaching, child care and social services fields—to review some of the thornier cases of child abuse in the five-county Big Sandy Area Development District and to come up with recommendations for treatment.

A seminar is also being planned to make professionals more aware of the child abuse problem and to encourage them to report suspected cases.

In Floyd county, there were 94 reports of suspected child abuse or neglect, of which 39 were substantiated, in the year ending June 30. Statewide there were 18,857 reports, 8589 of which were substantiated.

Not all reports end up as cases in child welfare files. Some turn out to be merely shots fired in the course of a family feud or an argument between neighbors. For every case erroneously reported, however, many go unreported, child welfare workers believe.

Under Kentucky law, anytime anyone knows or even suspects a child is being abused or neglected, he or she must report it. The law specifically mentions doctors, nurses, teachers, social workers, coroners, health workers and peace officers.

But many are reluctant to get involved. For a doctor, it might mean time tied up in court. A teacher might fear reprisals from family members. Some may not feel confident that Social Services will handle the case sensitively.

Getting people to report abuse will be a primary goal of the multi-disciplinary team currently being assembled here by Beverly Richards, an MSW from Lexington, who has been hired to administer the year-long child abuse project.

"We think there's a lot going on that we don't know about," Mrs. Richards said, citing a study that puts at two million the number of children thought to be abused or neglected in the U.S. each year. The same study says about 2000 children die each year from mistreatment.

"This has to change," Mrs. Richards said. "We have to tell people when to report and where." (In Floyd county, suspected abuse or neglect should be reported to the Department for Social Services, 886-8192.)

Ironically, if the new program succeeds in generating more frequent reporting, it will further burden social workers already overwhelmed with protective services cases. For that reason, the support team of professionals is being put in place first in order to back up Social Services.

Thirteen have already indicated a willingness to serve on the panel, which will hold its first meeting next Wednesday, Sept. 21, from 12 until 2 at the Dept. for Social Services office here. The team will discuss the management of cases presented by social workers.

A prevention program will also be offered, especially for parents considered to be "high risk," to teach the skills that can prevent crises and keep abusive behavior at bay.

Not the least result of the project might be to document the need for resources which this area lacks—like adequate daycare facilities and a shelter for abused women and children—Mrs. Richards said.

A forum at which candidates for Attorney-General have been invited to speak has been set for October 5, from 1 to 5 p.m., in the Prestonsburg Municipal Building. The symposium, which is also expected to draw speakers from the medical, legal, law enforcement and social services fields, will be entitled "How To Make the System Work."

ANNIE ALLEN CIRCLE MEETS

The Annie Allen Circle, W.M.U., of the First Baptist Church, met Monday evening, September 5, at the church, with the president, Mrs. Sarah Laven, presiding, and leading the devotionals entitled, "We are Laborers Together with God." Mrs. Laven announced that there would be a seminar for the Baptist Enterprise Association at the church here, Thursday evening, September 8, that the local W.M.U. had been asked by Mrs. Shelby Spradlin, president of the W.M.U. of this area, to furnish food for the young people of the church, who attend Prestonsburg Community College, during October: That the Black and White meeting of the Baptist churches would be held here sometime in November, and that the Week of Prayer for State Missions would be observed Sept. 13, by the group at the church.

Mrs. Beatrice Collins and Mrs. E.A. Smith, who have been ill were remembered during the meeting.

On behalf of the W.M.U. members, Mrs. Pat Minns presented to Mrs. Sarah Laven, outgoing president, a pin, bearing the W.M.U. emblem. Mrs. Lucy Regan, who serves on the board of the Baptist Children's Home, discussed the hope that food and other necessities be donated for the children in these homes, and said that a container for this purpose would be placed in the back of the church. The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Eva Collins.

A desert course was served by Mrs. Pat Minns to Mesdames Sarah Laven, Ruby Garrett, Lucy Regan, Vivian Fraley, Eva Collins, and Docia Woods. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Laven, at Allen, Monday evening, October 3.

DANIEL, from Paramount Pictures. Directed by Sidney Lumet, screenplay by E.L. Doctorow. Starring Timothy Hutton, Lindsay Crouse, Ed Asner. Rated 'R' ★ ★ ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

When future film historians are looking back at the career of Sidney Lumet they could easily term this film and its two predecessors as Lumet's "justice trilogy."
 "Prince of the City" told of a New York City policeman's struggle to stay honest. "The Verdict" illustrated how the law and justice are occasionally at odds with each other, and now "Daniel" deals with those who actively protest what they believe about laws and governments.
 "Daniel" is based on E.L. Doctorow's novel "The Book of Daniel." The events and characters are inspired by the tale of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg, a couple who were executed in the 1950s, supposedly for selling atomic secrets to the Russians.
 The story, however, also focuses on the children of those who have protested in the past. We examine the effects of such events through the eyes of the children, and how they will react to contemporary fellow activists. The heroes are never perfect in any cause, and the villains are often more bumbling than diabolical. Those who protest are part-visionary, part-martyr, but above all, human.

 "Daniel" is powerful, moving filmmaking at its best. Here is a deeply moving story, a tale of a family torn apart because of the gap between their idealistic dreams and the reality of the power of the authorities.
 The performances in Lumet's films are outstanding. Timothy Hutton stars as Daniel, who 10 years later, is now struggling as an adult to deal with the execution of his parents. Amanda Plummer, his younger sister, doesn't quite have her brother's strength, ending up in drugs and mental collapse. As the Rosenbergs-like couple, Lindsay Crouse and Mandy Patinkin, are superb.
 A late-summer release is unusual for this type of film, but Lumet's direction, Doctorow's absorbing script, and those performances make "Daniel" one of the best films of the year.

ROCK ON

By Ethlie Ann Vare

UPDATE

One more addition to the list of comebacks and reunions — Steppenwolf ("Born to Be Wild") is set to release an LP late this year or early '84.

Supertramp now holds the all-time attendance record for a European tour, exceeding the previous mark set by the Rolling Stones. In 24 shows in 10 countries in 50 days, they entertained 725,000 fans.

Peter Tosh, the reggae artist whose latest album is entitled "Mama Africa," will have his first chance to play "at home" when he tours Zimbabwe in November.

Billy Idol is re-releasing, yet again, a new version of "Dancing with Myself." This one comes with a video directed by Tobe ("Texas Chainsaw Massacre") Hooper.

REVIEWS

Asia — "Alpha" (Geffen) — Of course, the new formula LP by rock moguls Asia is dull as dishwater. It's still going to sell a jillion copies. Who'd ever have thought we'd miss Foreigner and REO?

Josh Leo — "Rockin' on 6th" (Warner Brothers) — Half the working musicians in

Josh Leo

Los Angeles backed session man Josh Leo on his debut album, and the result is some of the tastiest mainstream rock since the Iron City Houserockers. Josh Leo is unprepossessing looking and the album won't be much publicized, but the music is J. Geils crossed with Springsteen. Maybe worth looking for.

Malcolm McLaren — "Duck Rock" (Island) — McLaren, best known as the mentor of the Sex Pistols, went around the world and back to put together this LP. It's sort of "found music," as McLaren does little other than tie it together. From Africa ("Soweto") to New York City ("Double Dutch"), he has rounded up performers, rappers, singers, handclappers and more, for a mix often silly and often delightful.

PAUL D. HARRIS, local driver who has established an enviable reputation during the current racing season, receives Old Glory from track co-owner David Stambaugh at Highlands Raceway Park Friday night. The honor goes to the fastest qualifier each week who circles the track as the National Anthem is played. Harris went on to win the 25-lap feature race for super modified cars while Dennis Baliff, of Elkhorn City placed second. The battle between the two continued the following night at Hazard's Perry County Speedway with Baliff winning, Walter Combs, of Hindman, placing second, and Harris, third. Another Floyd county driver, Brad Martin, driving his brother Frankie's Camaro, won a street stock 10-lap heat race Friday but left the feature with a blown engine, and Terry Hall, of McDowell won the sportsman class trophy dash Saturday at Hazard and finished second in the feature. Hall is track speed record holder in his class.

Paintsville Lake Impoundment Scheduled To Begin Next Week

Creating a body of water is no easy task, but the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is doing just that by closing the intake structure gates at the Paintsville dam September 19, according to Col. John W. Devens, district engineer. The Paintsville lake impoundment will be 709 feet above sea level. To reach this point, the water level will rise in stages proposed at 650, 670 and 690 feet. Each level will be maintained for two weeks for general surveillance and safety inspections, according to Devens.

The Paintsville dam will serve many purposes. By providing for water storage, the dam creates a reserve during drought periods and serves as flood protection during rainy seasons. The newly formed lake will also provide for future recreational opportunities, such as boating, fishing, swimming, and camping while maintaining a constant river flow downstream for maintenance of tailwater fishery and fish and wildlife conservation.

Paintsville Lake, a narrow winding lake with the intimacy of a river, will provide spectacular views for the lake visitor. This mountainous area with narrow deep winding valleys is filled with forest views along the steep hillsides.

Because of the areas' geologic history, the scenic beauty of the lake will also be enhanced by views of large cliff faces, rock outcroppings, and large boulders. Such views will provide new perspective to the forested areas unlike a walk through the woods.

The Corps expects the lake to fill to operational level of 709 feet by next spring, Devens said. This $61 million facility will create a beautiful body of water 18 miles long with 1139 surface acres for recreation. Recreation facilities currently under construction include a boat launching ramp with car and trailer parking for 100, a 100 car parking lot for future marina development, and comfort station with facilities for the handicapped. Plans call for the Rocky Knob marina and comfort station to be complete for the 1984 recreational season.

The dam's purpose is to provide flood protection for the Paint Creek and Levisa Fork basins of Johnson, Lawrence and Boyd counties. Estimated cost of flood reduction benefits will exceed $700,000 annually, Devens said.

Entrance to the project is located approximately two and one-half miles off U.S. 23 on State Route 40, three miles from Paintsville.

New Commission Member

Doug Hensley, Hazard, (left) takes the oath of office upon being appointed Fish and Wildlife Commission member for the Seventh Wildlife District. Administering the oath is Judge Elijah M. Hogge, of the Court of Appeals. Hensley will represent Lawrence, Magoffin, Johnson, Martin, Pike, Floyd, Breathitt, Knott, Perry, Letcher, Leslie and Elliott counties on the commission, which oversees the operation of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Now stationed at Fort Knox, he is the grandson of Orville and Delphia Hamilton and Alice Hamilton and the late Emmitt Hamilton, all of Teaberry.

Kentucky Afield

DOVE HUNTING RESULTS MIXED
Although there were some good dove shoots around Kentucky on the opening weekend, they were not plentiful as usual, according to an informal survey of fish and wildlife regional supervisors across the state.

The birds seemed scattered with little to concentrate them, the supervisors said. But where feed was available, doves did show up in good numbers.

Overall, conservation offices across the state checked 5,587 dove hunters who had bagged 20,812 birds. Of these hunters, 663 had reached their limit of 12 birds each.

During the same period last year, 5,808 hunters took 23,966 doves and 512 limits were reported. It's really hard to compare the two years, however, since heavy rains over much of the state in 1981 shut down hunting for the first two days.

Some of the best shoots this year were over "PIK" fields. Farmers were allowed to sign up for a wildlife option under the federal Payment In Kind program. This allowed them to grow grain specifically for wildlife management purposes. Most apparently grew wheat, then bush-hogged it just before the season opened—a perfectly legal practice, and one which proved highly effective.

Because of this summer's drought, there was virtually no silage cutting taking place across the state. Generally, silage fields provide some of the best dove shooting, but this year, there's no waste grain to attract doves. Dove season will continue through Oct. 31, then reopen for a short time in December (Dec. 3-11). The daily limit is 12 and the possession limit after two or more days of hunting is 24. Shooting hours are from 11 a.m. until sunset.

The typical city dweller, without even thinking about it, is breathing millions of dust particles each day. Every cubic inch of air in a large city, says National Wildlife magazine, can be contaminated with as many as three million dust particles.

Betsy Layne Falls to PHS, 34-0

By LAURA COOLEY

The Prestonsburg Blackcats collected their third straight win of the season by defeating the Betsy Layne Bobcats, 34-0, Friday night at Betsy Layne.

Scorers for PHS included John Anderson, Irvin Spears and Brad Hughes.

The Blackcats made nine pass attempts for six completions as Brad Hughes caught three for 56 yards, Anderson, one for nine yards, Irvin Spears, one for 37 yards, and Gordie Ratliff, one for 13 yards.

Hounded by Prestonsburg's defense, the Bobcats completed two of 10 pass attempts.

John DeRossett led in rushing for the Blackcats with nine carries for 97 yards. Chris Hooker rushed 43 yards in five carries; Phillip Lewis, five for 19 yards; Gordie Ratliff, two carries for 20 yards, and Randall Stone, two carries for 13 yards.

Total yardage for the Blackcats was 323 with 208 yards rushing and 115 passing. The Bobcats picked up 106 yards total with 71 rushing and 35 yards passing.

When asked how he felt the team played, Friday night, Prestonsburg Coach Phillip Haywood responded: "I felt we improved some from the week before, however, there's still a lot we need to work on."

While the Blackcats go on to face the Golden Eagles of Johnson Central this Friday night here, Betsy Layne will host fellow Floyd countians for the second consecutive week, Friday, as they face the Wheelwright Trojans in a game that promises to be a close one.

Trojan Vs. Bobcat Match Set Friday

Rebounding from losses suffered at the hands of more powerful and experienced foes, the Wheelwright Trojans and Betsy Layne Bobcats will face each other in a matchup of Floyd county teams which is likely to attract considerable attention from area football fans.

Wheelwright, whose ranks have been decimated this season to last year's graduation, had the past week off with no games scheduled although their last game, against Pikeville, resulted in a disastrous 60-0 loss. Fielding scores of freshmen and sophomores, with only a handful of upper classmen participating from last year, the Trojans have found the season hard going thus far although Head Coach Roger Johnson this week expressed relief that the "hardest part of the season should be behind us," with more evenly matched scheduling ahead. Johnson said his team played good football during the first period of play against Pikeville, holding the Panthers scoreless until just before the end of the quarter. "Then Pikeville started scoring," he commented, "and things simply fell apart."

Johnson, who attended last Friday's Betsy Layne vs. Prestonsburg game was impressed by the size of the crowd, which he estimated at close to 3,000, and said he thinks this Friday's match against the Bobcats should be "interesting." Betsy Layne lost to the strong Blackcats, 34-0.

The Wheelwright vs. Betsy Layne game will be held at Betsy Layne.

Girl Scouts Meet

Area Girl Scouts will meet September 20 between 3 and 3:30 at the Floyd County Library.

All American Rating Accorded Miss Conley

Miss Judelle Conley, of Lexington, formerly of Eastern, was named first-team All-American for her performance in the recent American Softball Association women's major national championship tournament.

Miss Conley, a catcher, helped Kentucky's state champions, Fraley's Wildcats of Lexington, to a sixth-place finish in the 48-team tournament held at Montgomery, Alabama. Her team was 83-16 overall this season.

All-America selections were decided by computer, based on tournament statistics.

Miss Conley is a daughter of Judge and Mrs. Hollie Conley, of Eastern.

Dewey Lake Club Sets Fish Fry

Having made considerable improvements to its grounds, structures and related facilities at Stratton Branch, the Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club looks to this year's annual fish fry as one of the most successful ever.

Scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 25, the day's activities will begin with a turkey shoot at 10 a.m. with beginning of the actual fish fry and serving at 11 a.m. Drawing for five prizes valued at a total of $1,075 will be held at around 4:30 or 5 p.m., according to a club spokesman.

Tickets for the fish fry, which allow a deduction of $.50 off each fish dinner, and help finance future club projects, are available from any member of the Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club.

(For those unfamiliar with the location of the club grounds, Stratton Branch is the swimming area hollow at Dewey Lake with the grounds being located a short distance up the hollow from the lake road.)

Our Constitution, the cornerstone of our freedoms, was written to protect every American from the abuse of power by political parties as much as from abuses by kings. Without the determination to restrain the tempting excesses of political power, our Republic will perish. The Daughters of the American Revolution urge that we study the value of public service during Constitution Week which is September 17th through 23rd. Today's problems call for the highest character of leadership. Read your Constitution.

Coal Truck Owner Says Vehicles Worth $110,000 Were Stolen

Separate thefts of two coal trucks from J & J Trucking, of Prestonsburg, represented a loss of $110,000 but one of the missing trucks has been recovered, cutting the loss less than half, David Justice, of the trucking firm, said this week.

The first theft, that of an 18-wheel vehicle, occurred the night of August 27, Justice said. He said he received a telephone call at his home on Abbott Creek, at 4 a.m., and that a woman's voice informed him that "your father is dead." When Justice replied that that was true, his father had died a year ago, the caller broke the connection.

He said he later was told by State Police that such calls preceding a robbery, to locate the owner of the target property, was a familiar tactic of thieves.

When he went to his truck garage on the Auxier road, near here, the next morning he found the truck missing.

That left him a 10-wheel truck, but next morning it also was missing.

Last Wednesday, the smaller truck was found in Martin county by squirrel hunters. Four tires, a CB and AM-FM radio were missing. Nobody has been arrested, and no trace of the larger truck has been found.

In fact, said Justice, he had little cooperation from State Police on the case.

Both trucks were being operated regularly in hauling coal, and the final payment on the larger would have been made next February, according to Justice. The loss is partially insured.

LOCAL CHURCH WOMEN MEET

Members of the Local Church Women's organization met at the First Presbyterian Church, Friday, August 18, at 10:30 a.m., with the president, Mrs. Eleanor Robinson, presiding, and welcoming the members. The devotionals were given by Mrs. Mary Lou Layne and Mrs. Elma Jessen, the President reported that neither the room at Archer Park, which it had been thought would be available for the organization's proposed food pantry, nor the shelves which the group had hoped to be able to use, could be obtained for this purpose. The Rev. Timothy Jessen reported that he had talked with the Rev. John Henry Woods, Pastor of the Fitzpatrick Baptist Church, concerning the possibility of joining this church's already-in-progress program, called "God's Helping Hand," in the endeavor to assist with food and clothing for the needy people of this area. It was decided that a meeting would be held at the home of Mrs. Eleanor Robinson, Friday, September 16, at 6 p.m., to decide whether to merge with this group or to continue with the project as previously planned.

Mrs. Mary Lou Layne, chairman of the nominating committee, presented a list of officers for 1983-85, along with the Churches they represent. They are president, Mrs. Eva Collins, Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist; (no 1st vice president yet selected); second vice president, Mrs. Mabel Donahoe, St. Theodore's Catholic; third vice president, also to be in charge of the Christmas, Advent and Lenten Season programs, Mrs. Carolyn Ford, First Presbyterian, and treasurer, Miss Christine Spradlin, First Christian.

Mrs. Garnett Fairchild, chairman of the Hospice program, reported that Hospice classes would be held at Prestonsburg Community College, beginning the last Tuesday in August and continuing for six consecutive sessions.

Mrs. Elma Jessen dismissed the meeting with prayer. Those attending were Mesdames Eleanor Robinson, Eileen Burchett, Garnett Fairchild, Lucy Regan, Verla Ford, Mary Lou Layne, and Elma Jessen.

GRETHEL HOMEMAKERS

The Grethel Homemakers met Tuesday, September 6, at the Grethel Baptist Church annex where the meeting was called to order by Arietta Hall, president, who also led the devotions. Each member told of a summer accomplishment in answering the roll call. Mrs. Frances Pitts, Floyd County extension agent, gave the lesson on "Quick and Wholesome Meals."

The annual county meeting will be held at 10 a.m., September 28, at the First United Methodist Church in Prestonsburg.

Attending the meeting were Arietta Hall, Christine Crisp, Shirley Hamilton, Brenda Hall, and Eileen Martin.

Squirrel Festival Slated Sunday

The Slone Mountain Squirrel Festival isn't as widely publicized as some of its contemporaries, but when its fourth annual festival is held next Sunday on Sizemore Mountain, between Minnie and Wayland, hundreds from this and surrounding counties are expected to be there.

Its music, contests and menu are reminiscent of oldtime county fairs and July 4 celebrations, picnics and dinner on the grounds.

The menu? Squirrel, naturally. And squirrel gravy, roast pig, groundhog, soup beans and Kool Aid. And if that doesn't suit you, you're invited to bring your own picnic basket.

But the public is warned: "Absolutely no alcoholic beverages or drugs."

Contests for both youths and adults range from horseshoe pitching, the greasy pole, the greased pig, the sack race and others.

Rope-climbing and repalling will be demonstrated.

The week of September 17th through 23rd will be celebrated as Constitution Week by proclamation of the President. The purpose of this observance is to renew appreciation for our Constitution and our Country. The Daughters of the American Revolution urge that you study our Constitution during this week in order that you may more fully understand its meaning and understand why this document has endured as the great charter of human liberties. (This announcement was provided by the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.)

Thelma Team Wins World Title

Members of the men's Special Olympics Softball team of the Eastern Kentucky Comprehensive Rehabilitation Center at Thelma were named World Champions of Division 11 softball when they defeated the Washington State team, 14 to 12, in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, July 15.

Members of the team are Alvin Choate, Scott Clary, Richard Hogan, Ken Alexander, Chris Robinson, Jerry Gillespie, Eddy Wray, Barry Bennett, Neal May, Rudy Carter, Tony Vance, John Fooks, coached by Mike Owens and Larry Dalton.

The team was invited to represent Kentucky and the USA in the International Special Olympics played in Baton Rouge, July 11-18, after it had won the 4A division of the state softball tournament. To compete with the 53 foreign countries and teams for every state and territory, it was necessary for the team from Thelma to raise nearly $8,000 by June. Since the invitation to play didn't come until March, this left them little time. With support from the community and civic organizations as well as from Kim Gardner, special olympics coordination of Area 11, the money was raised, and on July 11, a total of 76 athletes, 13 coaches and 15 chaperones boarded a chartered jetliner bound for Baton Rouge.

In the first game against Mississippi, the EKCRC team scored 34 to 11 for Mississippi. Arizona fared little better that evening, suffering a 22 to 4 defeat. The next game on Thursday against Washington State was rained out in the second inning but was resumed on Friday morning. The stands were filled and delegations from Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky formed a cheering section for the EKCRC team. And the team didn't let their fans down.

Assumes Pastorate Of Adventist Church

Paul Hoover has assumed duties as pastor of the Prestonsburg Seventh Day Adventist Church and is also serving as pastor of the Belcher church.

Pastor Hoover succeeds Robert Houghton who was transferred to the Nashville, Tn. area.

Born in Taiwan while his father was on military tour, he completed an apprenticeship with Ford Motor Company in England as a toolmaker in 1974. He graduated from Southern Missionary College in Tennessee with a major in theology and worked as associate pastor in Memphis, Tn. He recently graduated from the Seventh Day Adventist Theological Seminary in Berrien Springs, Mich., with a Master of Divinity degree.

His wife, Patti, is a registered nurse, and they have one child, Paul, Jr., two years old, and are expecting their second child in December.

The church is presently meeting in the Prestonsburg Presbyterian Church at 10 a.m. Saturday mornings. Construction continues on the future home of the Adventist Church which is located 5 miles west of Prestonsburg on the Mountain Parkway.

Pastor Hoover wishes to serve the Prestonsburg community and can be reached at his residence phone, 886-3084.

Knott Deer Stocking Is Planned by State

A public meeting was held in Hindman, Tuesday, at the Knott County High School gym to explain an experimental deer stocking program scheduled to begin this fall in Knott County.

Officials from the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources were present to answer questions about this program, which will involve the stocking of 500 deer in the county over the next two to four years.

This experimental stocking program is designed to determine if a massive infusion of deer will allow a rapid expansion of the deer population in areas where conventional stocking methods have failed to produce results.

Traditionally, 50-75 deer per county has been an average stocking rate. However, this rate has not been sufficient in many areas of Eastern Kentucky, where deer numbers remain low in spite of repeated stockings.

Biologists believe that there is a "threshold level" below which deer herds won't expand. A large stocking, such as the one planned for Knott county, should provide enough deer to pass this threshold, after which the herd should expand rapidly.

Australia is the world's most arid continent. More than two-thirds of its vast land is desert.

The abused child will grow up someday. Maybe.

Each year, over one million American children suffer from child abuse. Over 2,000 children die from it.

But what about those who survive?

Statistics show that an abused childhood can affect a person's entire life.

Many teenage drug addicts and teenage prostitutes report being abused children.

So do juvenile delinquents and adult criminals.

Yet we now know that child abuse can be prevented.

The National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse is a private, charitable organization that knows how to prevent child abuse.

But we need your help to do it. We need money. We need volunteers.

Send us your check today, or write for our booklet.

Because if we don't all start somewhere, we won't get anywhere.

FOR GOVERNOR

Flem D. Sampson

Floyd county voters should vote for him because he is for:

1. Free text books for the school children of Kentucky.
2. Will appoint a member of the State Highway Commission from the Big Sandy valley, thus assuring them of the early grading and paving of their roads.
3. Will urge the Legislature to pass a bill providing for the establishment of a Normal school in the Big Sandy valley.
4. The State Federation of Labor has endorsed him, as well as the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, because he has proven himself to be the real friend of labor.
5. He is opposed to a tonnage tax on coal, and the coal men have no doubt as to his position in this respect.
6. He is a mountain man and knows the needs of the mountain people.

Thus the citizens of Floyd county will be serving their country in the truest sense, by voting for him on November 8. —Political Adv.

PAINTSVILLE

ROAD WORK PROMISED

County Judge Butcher, Magistrates Jayne and Burgess, and ex-County Judge Beecher Stapleton went to Frankfort Sunday and spent Monday and Tuesday before the State Highway Commission in an effort to straighten out road problems of Johnson county. This they succeeded in doing and Johnson county will fare well in the matter of roads. Some wonderful things were accomplished by the delegation.

The commission will order the contractor today to begin work on surfacing from the C. and O. depot to Dawkins. The road is to be of concrete construction and is to be completed within one month. At the slip in the road which has been the bone of contention, there will be a fill made and covered with crushed stone. The commission will start work of driving large pipes which will be filled with concrete which will make the slip as good as any other part of the road.

Details were worked out for surfacing the Garrett Highway to Salyersville and the contractor ordered to begin work, and they claim the work will be completed by Christmas. Two large rock crushers have been ordered shipped to Paintsville and the work will be under way the coming week.

Positive assurance was received from the commission that the contract on the Martin county road would be let February 1. Johnson county has already paid in full on the road to the Martin county line, likewise its share for paving the road to Salyersville.

Never in the history of the county was the road situation in better condition. The Johnson county delegation said the commission was anxious to have our roads completed, and that 1928 would see the Mayo Trail paved through the county.

$50,000 was set aside for the road to Flat Gap and Red Bush, with indications pointing to its construction next year.

SAMUEL CASSADY DIES

Mr. Samuel Cassady, uncle of Mrs. M. C. Kirk, and a resident of Kenova, W. Va., died at his home last Wednesday morning, October 5, after a lingering illness of several months' duration. Mr. Cassady formerly lived in Martin county, where he was born and reared, but moved to Kenova a few years ago, where he resided till he died. He was taken back to his old home in Martin county, where his remains were interred Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock a. m. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Lottia Cassady, and the following children to mourn his loss:

WOULD SUPPLY TOWNS

The Kentucky Electric Development Company, located at Louisville, Ky., wants to supply Salyersville, Oil Springs and Royalton with electric service, which means that not only these towns but farmers living along the route will be served with electric service for light and power.

Walter C. Fuller, representing the company, is now on the ground making the preliminary arrangements for the new line which will connect with the Kentucky and West Virginia Power Company's line at Paintsville.

PAINTSVILLE WINS

On Saturday, October 8, the well-known Tiger bunch of the Paintsville High School journeyed to Jenkins and took into their den the Jenkins Elks, in a well-played game of football, and did so in a clever manner by the score of 15-6.

Perkins, Others To Discuss 'Plateaus' Created by Mining

U.S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins will be among the featured speakers for "New Lands for the Future," an Appalachian regional economic development conference scheduled Nov. 10 and 11 at Morehead State University.

Other speakers will be announced soon.

"The conference is being held to provide the general public with pertinent economic, geographic and technological information concerning the new land plateaus being created through surface mining," said MSU President Morris L. Norfleet. MSU's School of Applied Sciences and Technology is the conference sponsor.

"Our participation with MAPCO, Inc. at its Martiki mine in Martin county has triggered an awareness to the fact that everyone should become more conscious of the vast potential that these plateaus represent from a developmental standpoint," he added.

MSU is being engaged by MAPCO, the coal producer, and by the land's owner, Kentucky-Pocahontas Corp., to help develop a viable agricultural complex on the Martin county property which ultimately will involve 4,000 acres of reclaimed lands when mining is finished there a decade from now.

Dr. Charles M. Derrickson, dean of the School of Applied Sciences and Technology, said of the conference:

"Our sessions will depict how and where these mine plateaus are being created and what can be done with them from a commercial, industrial, residential and even recreational standpoint."

The conference is expected to attract land owners and developers, industrial development specialists, economic planners, engineers, financial advisers, mine operations professionals, manufacturers and orchardists and vintners.

Dr. Derrickson added: "Not all of the mine plateaus being created are as big as those in Martin county. There are many of a smaller variety, ranging upwards in size from 50 acres. But, if we are serious about the future economic health and development of our steep mountainous highlands, we must take these new land masses into consideration from a planning standpoint. They represent to the people of Appalachia a golden opportunity which will remain when the coal is gone."

Receives Advance Training

Cadet Randall K. Edington, son of Donald J. and Nancy E. Edington, of Vanceburg, received practical work in military leadership at the U.S. Army ROTC advanced camp, Fort Riley, Kan.

Edington is a student at Morehead State University. His wife, Deborah, is the daughter of Roger L. and Norene Madden, of Martin.

Fourth Generation

Mrs. Mattie Wallen, of Water Gap, enjoys her great-grandchildren, Courtney Dawn Collins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collins, and Ronald Andrew Stanley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Stanley, of Prestonsburg.

The flags of six nations—Spain, France, Mexico, the Republic of Texas, the Confederate States of America, and, of course, the United States—have flown over Texas.

Sewer Projects Set For Review

A public hearing on the Kentucky Construction Grants Project List, setting priorities for federal sewer construction funds, will be held Friday, September 16 in Frankfort by the state Division of Water.

The hearing, held to receive citizen and industry comments on the proposed list, is scheduled for 10 a.m. EST in the auditorium of the Capital Plaza Tower.

The grant list includes a priority ranking for applicants for construction grants for public treatment works under Title II of the federal Municipal Wastewater Treatment Construction Grant Amendments of 1981, division officials said.

The list is divided into three parts based on the population of the applicant community and whether or not the work proposed is an "alternative to conventional treatment."

Funds available for use in fiscal year 1984 include $50.6 million for communities of more than 3,500 people, $9.6 million for communities of less than 3,500 people and $2.5 million for alternative projects in communities of less than 3,500.

Division of Water officials urge citizens interested in submitting either written or oral comments attend the hearing. People testifying orally are asked to submit a written copy of their comments. Written comments will be accepted until 4:30 p.m. EST on Wednesday, September 21, 1983.

All written comments should be sent to Richard T. Shogren, Director of the Kentucky Division of Water, Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, Fort Boone Plaza, 18 Reilly Road, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

For additional information on the hearing or to receive copies of the construction grant priority list, contact any field office of the Division of Water, any Area Development District office or the Frankfort offices of the Division of Water.

Former Floyd Artist Merit Award Winner

"Turning Away," by Gary Akers, top merit award winner in Kentucky Watercolor Society's national competition.

Former Floyd countian Gary Akers, of Union, Ky., won the Kentucky Watercolor Society's $1,000 top merit award with his painting, "Turning Away," in the Kentucky Watercolor Society's national juried competition. "Aqueous '83," which opened August 21 at the Owensboro Museum of Fine Arts, Owensboro, Ky. Artists from 27 states are represented in the exhibit of 99 paintings.

Juror for the Kentucky society's sixth annual exhibition was William D. Gorman, A.N.A., A.W.S., of Bayonne, N.J. He selected the show from 675 entries and awarded 23 purchase and merit prizes totalling almost $8,000 to 20 artists.

Gorman gave the top merit prize, the Kentucky Watercolor Society Merit Award, to Akers for his portrait, "Turning Away." This painting of a solitary figure sitting in a strong light with his back to the viewer emphasizes the artist's typical precise and detailed technique.

The Kentucky artist exhibits his work extensively across the nation. Earlier this year, Akers received the "Dale Meyers Cooper Bronze Medal of Honor" and a $500 merit award for "Turning Away," presented at the 1983 Southern Watercolor Society Exhibition in North Carolina. He is listed in "Who's Who in American Art" and "American Artist of Renown."

Akers recently conducted a watercolor demonstration at the Owensboro Museum of Fine Arts, in conjunction with the current exhibition. He is currently represented by Gary-Lynn Galleries on Mall Road in Mall Road Square, Florence Ky.

Week of Sept. 18-24 Is Farm Safety Week

The 1983 National Farm Safety Week, September 18-24, marks the 40th consecutive observance of this special activity co-sponsored by the National Safety Council and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The theme for the week, "Safeguard the future," focuses on efforts to reduce accident losses among farming and ranching families by promoting the safety of their children and youth.

Farm and ranch children are probably subject to more life-or-limb threatening hazards than most youngsters living in non-farm settings. For one, the tools of agriculture are just outside the back door—the tractors, the chemicals, the livestock, the silos, the power tools, and the pond.

According to preliminary National Safety Council estimates, agricultural work connected accidents were responsible for about 1,800 deaths and 180,000 disabling injuries in 1982. Many of these casualties were children or youth. Many young farm and ranch residents also were killed or seriously injured in home, traffic and recreation mishaps.

Safety leaders say the fact that medical help is usually farther away in both time and distance also contributes to agriculture's high severity rate.

NSC and USDA officials urge farmers, ranchers, educators and others in the community involved in child development or their welfare to protect the young from injury and illness, then teach, train and encourage them to make safety a full partner in all activities throughout their lives.

UK Med Center Plans Open House

The University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center will host an Open House, Friday, September 30 from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday, October 1, from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. "We Have a Healthy Interest in You" is the theme for this event.

All members of the local and regional community are invited to attend and enjoy more than 75 displays and exhibits sponsored by the six components of the Medical Center: the Colleges of Medicine, Pharmacy, Dentistry, Nursing, Allied Health, and University Hospital. Many of the exhibits will encourage visitor involvement and participation. For example, visitors will enjoy opportunities to use an operating microscope to microscure glove rubber; maneuver an obstacle course while in a wheelchair, fill cavities in artificial teeth with plastic and harden the plastic with a fiber optic wand; visit an operating room, and more. In addition to seeing many of the divisions and units of the Medical Center, visitors will also have a chance to view the new University Medical Plaza facilities and become acquainted with some of the services and programs it will offer.

"The Open House will provide a unique opportunity for the Chandler Medical Center to reach out to area residents and offer them a first-hand experience to see the work we do in research, teaching and patient care," noted Dr. Peter P. Bosomworth, Chancellor for the Medical Center.

The event is being planned by a Central Committee chaired by Dr. Daniel Kenady, Department of Surgery. Other committee members are: Dr. Donald T. Frazier, College of Medicine (chairman—exhibits committee); Dr. William Lubawy and Richard Doughty, College of Pharmacy; Robert Wildman, College of Allied Health Professions; Ellen Kent, College of Nursing; Laurence Bean, College of Dentistry; William Massie, University Hospital; Patrick L. "More than 2,000 letters have already been sent to area schools, civic groups, and service organizations inviting them to attend," stated Hranicky, adding that so far the response and interest has been gratifying.

Attendance at the Open House is free and parking accommodations for the event will be hosted by the Chandler Medical Center. Candidates for Judge Must Limit Campaign Activities

As election campaigning approaches the November deadline, most candidates for Kentucky's governmental offices polish their promises and popularize their platforms in an effort to distinguish themselves from opponents. It is perfectly legitimate for some candidates to personally solicit funds, to align themselves with other strong candidates on a party slate, and to proclaim a particular party affiliation and endorsement. While candidates for offices in the state's executive, legislative, and local governments may engage in such normally accepted political practice, individuals running for the judicial offices may not participate in any of these activities.

Kentucky Supreme Court Rules prohibit persons running for a judgeship, whether judges or practicing attorneys, from engaging in "political activity inappropriate" to the judicial office.

Voters may wonder why judicial candidates do not take a popular stand on disputed issues of law, or promise to "lock up" all criminals. There is public confusion as to which political party or cause the candidate endorses or why a judge cannot recommend a particular candidate for office. Even in the voting booth, voters may become confused when they unsuccessfully attempt to locate their judicial selection under a party lever. Because of such confusion, many voters end up not voting for any judicial candidate because "I couldn't find it on the ballot."

Thus, the public needs to be aware of what individuals running for judicial office may or may not do, under the Code of Judicial Conduct of the Supreme Court Rules:

Ag Dept. Preparing New Hay Directory

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture has begun work on the 1983-'84 Hay Directory.

This publication is printed each fall as an aid to farmers who need to locate extra hay and as a free advertising medium for farmers with hay to sell, said state Agriculture Commissioner Alben W. Barkley II.

"This year's unusual summer weather has put hay and livestock producers in a bad spot," Barkley said. "The dry, hot weather has dried up pastures, forcing farmers to feed hay to their animals when they normally wouldn't have to. Since we've only gotten one good hay cutting, there will be less hay available to meet the greater demand."

Farmers with hay for sale should contact the department's Office of Marketing Services with this information: name, address (including county of residence), telephone number, type of hay, quantity and price. This information should be mailed to the Kentucky Department of Agriculture Hay Directory, 7th floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or phoned in on the office's toll-free line, 1-800-372-7602.

"Farmers who need hay can also contact us at that address or on the toll-free phone line," Barkley added.

Copies of the 1983-84 Hay Directory should be available by Nov. 1. Anyone interested in receiving a copy should contact the Office of Marketing Services at the Frankfort address listed above.

Elsewhere in Kentucky, $10

Judges, and other candidates for judicial office, must be nonpartisan, meaning they may not act as a leader or hold any office in, or make speeches for a political organization. They may not raise funds for or make contributions to political organizations or candidates. While a judicial candidate may attend political gatherings and speak on his or her own behalf as a candidate, the judicial candidate may not identify himself as a member of a political party in any form of advertising or speech. Only if the candidate is specifically questioned as to party affiliation may he identify himself as a member of a particular party.

Thus, on the election ballot or in the voting booth, all judicial candidates will be listed separately from party candidates for other offices. Persons who vote strictly by party line and pull a single lever to do so will miss selecting a judicial candidate unless they also take time for the non-partisan levers and make a selection for each affected judicial office.

Judicial candidates may not make speeches for or publicly endorse a candidate for public office.

A judicial candidate should not make pledges or promises of conduct in office other than the faithful and impartial performance of the duties of the office. The candidate may not announce his or her views on disputed legal or political issues, nor may he or she misrepresent their qualifications, present position, or other facts about themselves.

A judicial candidate may not personally solicit campaign funds, but may have an election committee raise such funds and obtain statements of support for the candidate.

Additionally, according to opinions issued by the Judicial Ethics Committee, judicial candidates may not slate themselves together as a ticket, nor may a judge endorse a candidate for judicial office. Lawyers become candidates for judicial office when they let it publicly be known that they are running for the office and at that time, become subject to the same restrictions as judges who may be running for the position and who are always subject to the Rules even when they are not actively running.

The Supreme Court Rules also prohibit the candidate's family members in his or her household, or employees under his direction, from doing what the candidate is forbidden to do.

The Rules' Code of Judicial Conduct became effective in 1978 with the full implementation of the unified court system and are designed to maintain the judiciary's integrity and independence from political influence. Both are considered indispensable to justice in our society. Infractions of the Code may subject the offender to disciplinary action or removal from office by the Judicial Retirement and Removal Commission, which is the disciplinary arm of the Court of Justice.

New eight-year terms for all the 91 circuit and 14 Court of Appeals judgeships begin in 1984 and will be filled by election this November. Some district judgeships vacated during the past year will also be filled by election. While many candidates for these judicial offices are unopposed, all are subject to the Supreme Court Rules regarding political conduct in general.

UK Economists Assess Effects of Drought

Farmers in Kentucky and throughout the major crop producing areas of the Midwest and South are suffering through the worst growing conditions in decades.

Hot, dry weather has affected farmers in varying degrees, but the drought seems to have hampered crop yields on nearly all farms in Kentucky this year, according to agricultural economists at the University of Kentucky.

The economists report that corn yields are expected to be from 50 to 70 percent lower than normal. Soybean yields likely will be down 20-30 percent. And the state's tobacco crop is in critical condition.

"A drought spells tough times for farmers and perhaps higher prices for consumers," said Dr. Don Shurley, Extension specialist in farm management. "Many farmers, already on hard times prior to 1983, face some tough decisions ahead," he noted.

Shurley and three other UK Extension farm management and marketing economists have assessed the drought and its implications for farmers and consumers. Here is their assessment of that situation and some suggestions on ways to minimize the effects of the drought on farm businesses.

Shurley is the source of information on financial and management implications; Dr. Charles L. Moore Sr. for tax management; Dr. Steven K. Riggins for market outlook and pricing strategies for corn, wheat and soybeans; and Dr. A. Lee Meyer for the impact of the drought on cattle and swine markets and retail meat prices.

Financial Impact

The 1983 drought most certainly will spell financial disaster for some farm businesses and will cause continued financial hardship for many other farms.

Some businesses underwent some debt reorganization and asset liquidation in 1982 as last ditch efforts to save the business—hoping 1983 would prove to be favorable.

The drought has just about eliminated all possible corrective courses of action now, and some farms may be forced out of business.

Farmers participating in the PIK program will be better off income-wise than those who chose not to participate. Due to the drought, numbers of bushels received as PIK payment will be higher than what might have been harvested had the land not been idled under PIK. Higher than expected prices also will aid PIK program participants.

Net farm income on many Kentucky farms is not likely to dip near the record low of 1980, primarily due to PIK payments and lower costs because of some idled acreage. Net farm income in 1983, however, still may prove to be among the lowest in recent history. Real net farm income—net farm income adjusted for inflation using the Consumer Price Index—is likely to be the lowest since the 1930s with the exception of 1980.

Because of PIK and expected high grain prices this fall, farm income and year-end grain inventory values still might look fairly good relative to 1980. As is often the case in drought years, however, the financial effects may not be felt until early to mid-1984 when new cropping expenses must be met through crop and livestock inventory sales, cash funds on-hand, or additional borrowing.

It is common after a drought to see a farm business deplete its liquid sources of cash, such as old crop inventories, very early in the new crop year and have to rely more than normal on additional borrowing to meet crop expenses as well as annual debt payments.

Farmers can do several things to assess their present and likely year-ending financial condition. First, all record books need to be brought up to date. Cash expenses for the remainder of the year need to be estimated. Potential income also should be estimated based on some marketing plan. This should provide information on the ability of the business to repay operating loans, interest, and other debt obligations due before the end of the year.

If cash-flow problems are evident, discuss possible courses of action with the lender now—don't wait until after harvest. The lender will appreciate seeing this type of foresight.

The full extent of how seriously the drought will affect the farm business depends on decisions made now for 1984. Consider selling a portion of 1984 production now to prevent taking the full impact of possibly lower prices next year, thus reducing the probability of two successive years of low income.

Farmers cannot receive federal disaster funds unless their county or state is designated by the Secretary of Agriculture as qualifying for such support. The governor must first declare counties as agricultural disasters, and this request must be reviewed and approved at the federal level before funds can be made available through the Farmers' Home Administration.

Corn, Wheat, Soybeans

As of late August the 1983 corn crop is projected at roughly 4.65 billion bushels and the soybean crop at only 1.55 billion bushels. This is significantly less than the U.S. Department of Agriculture projected in its August report.

The next USDA crop production report will be received on September 12. If it supports the above estimates, prices should continue their upward movement. In years of short crops, prices peak early in the marketing year; this year should be no different. No one knows when the peak will occur; however, if there is no early killing frost, they might well peak by mid-October.

With a short crop expected this fall, it is almost a certainty that there will be no PIK program next year. Thus corn and soybean acreage will be very large next year. If 1984 yields return to the average level of recent years, the U.S. would have a very large harvest in the fall of 1984 and very low prices.

Meat Prices

The hot, dry weather will affect meat prices, but not all of the impact will be immediately higher meat prices.

The drought is causing cattle owners who depend on grass and pasture to take their cattle to market earlier. The increase in cattle marketings is likely to offset the decrease in production of other meats for the next several months. So the drought actually is likely to lead to

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to express my thanks to every one who gave assistance during the illness and upon the death of my brother, Clark Jones, on May 31 at the McDowell Regional Hospital. I am the only member of the family left now, and I and my husband, Ollie Joseph, join in thanking the McDowell hospital, the Hall Funeral Home, the Little Rose Baptist Church, all who brought or sent food, the Martin Branch Freewill Baptist Church for the help it gave his family, and all who offered sympathy. May God add his love to your souls.

an increase in meat supplies into the fall, though there will be more forage-fed beef and less poultry and grain-fed beef.

In terms of price, consumers are likely to see meat prices decline during the rest of the summer and early fall for reasons besides the drought. Beef supplies will be larger. Ground beef may decline 10-15 cents per pound, and the $4 per pound steak may decline to $3.75. Even pork supplies will be larger, though not as large if the drought hadn't occurred.

Pork prices already have been declining and prices may fall another 10-20 cents per pound. Only the poultry supply may decline, leading to perhaps a 5-6 cents per pound increase in broiler prices.

The drought has had its greatest agricultural impact on feeds, pushing up costs to livestock feeders. Increasing costs will cause farmers to reduce the number of cattle, hogs, sheep, and poultry which they feed.

Beef supplies are likely to decline in the first half of next year. Pork supplies are likely to increase, but less than previously expected.

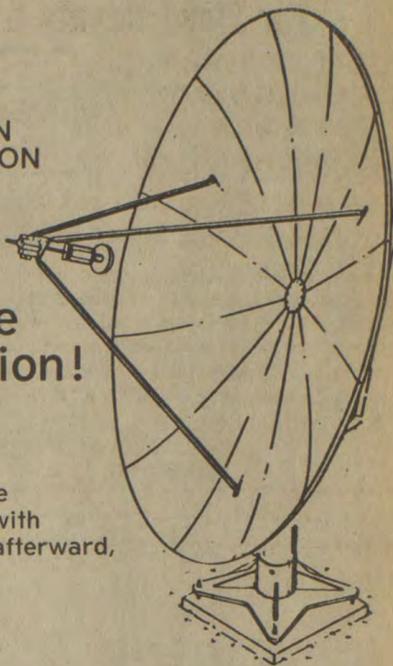

If retailers drop prices substantially this fall, retail meat prices (especially beef) probably will increase next spring. However if meat prices remain steady for the rest of this year, much of the drought's impact on meat prices may not reach the consumer level.
