Board Members Unfazed, Annexation In Question

If there was any surprise in Tuesday's generally lackluster election, it was perhaps the margin by which those who expressed a preference on the issue rejected the proposed annexation of Auxier by the city of Prestonsburg.

Under the law, it is by no means easy to beat back an annexation attempt, but voters in the Cliff and Auxier precincts, who voted against the proposal by 160 votes to 11, may just have done it. Only scrutiny of the ballots and voter rolls will reveal whether the legitimate opposition amounted to 75 percent of the district's qualified voters—the percentage it takes to defeat an annexation bid.

"It will be close," County Clerk Carla R. Bolton predicted as the votes were tallied Tuesday night.

In the two Board of Education races, the incumbents easily turned back their challengers, Dr. James D. Adams defeating Maryland "Burl" Joseph in District 1 by 1512 votes to 989, and Ray "Shag" Campbell defeating Dolores Smith in District 2 by 1715 votes to 788.

Ford, Perkins Easy Winners; Daniels Mayor

Joseph outpolled Adams only in the Courthouse and Porter precincts. Smith outpolled Campbell only in Cow Creek precinct.

U.S. Senator Wendell Ford turned back Louisville attorney Jackson Andrews' nominal challenge by 7272 votes to 1047 in a clean sweep of all Floyd precincts. By a similar margin and also in a clean sweep, 7th District Congressman Chris Perkins defeated Pike businessman Jim Polley, 7939 to 1204.

Both Constitutional amendments on the ballot fared poorly here, Floyd voters rejecting by 4115 votes to 1540 the proposal to appoint the state schools superintendent and, by 3280 votes to 1598, the proposal to let mayors in larger cities succeed themselves. A mayoral race in Wheelwright yielded votes for nine write-in candidates, with Don Daniels coming in ahead of former mayor Elmer Ferguson, 98 votes to 64.

Glen Thornsbury received 4 votes for mayor, Joe Stewart received 2, and Albert Rhea, Goldie Farmer, Paul Osborne, Winston McCown, and Dennis Holbrook each received one vote.

Re-elected without opposition were state representatives Greg Stumbo (95th District), who received 5460 votes, and Sid Adams (92nd District), who received 1171 votes in this county.

A little over 9,000 persons turned out to vote, about average for an "off" year. When many county races are at stake, the voter turnout is sometimes twice that number. No polling-booth incidents were reported, although there were early suspicions that a voting machine may have been tampered with at Auxier and that the annexation vote may have been distorted there as a result.

Silent Children Cited In Child Abuse Hearing

Beth Potter, two years old, never cries.

When he picked her up at her Lackey home last month, a sheriff's deputy said, the little girl "seemed lifeless, like a rag."

That testimony came in a preliminary hearing Monday in Floyd District Court, where the child's mother, Tammy Ratliff, and stepfather, Danny Ratliff, faced child abuse charges.

Photographs were tendered to the court. They showed what appeared to be bruises on the child's face, chest, back, arm and legs. And a nearly bald patch on the top of the toddler's head, where much of her thick, black hair appeared to have been torn away.

There were medical reports. A broken collarbone; a hard-to-break bone fractured in the pelvis; possible ingestion of Lysol, according to a UK Medical Center team. Child abuse, they concluded.

District Judge Harold Stumbo ruled there was sufficient evidence to refer the case to a Floyd Circuit Court grand jury, which will decide next week whether or not to issue indictments.

The Ratliffs, who sat impassively through the brief hearing, are free on unsecured bond. A hearing is scheduled today (Wednesday) on whether their six children—who have been in foster care since their parents' arrest and who range in age from seven weeks to six years—should be returned to their custody.

Summoned by social workers to Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin on October 5, he found that Beth Potter had already been taken home against medical advice. Deputy Sheriff Anthony Castle told the court. When he returned the child to the hospital, she was feverish and unresponsive, Castle said.

The parents told him Beth—called Biddle within the family—must have been bruised in a fall from her bed. "They said she is a clumsy child," Castle said. They said one of the other children must have pulled the hair from her head, the officer testified.

A fall from bed could not explain the child's injuries, said Maria Crisp, a social worker with the state Department for Social Services. The child's passivity—she did not react or whimper during her hospital admission and a neighbor reported never hearing the children cry—seemed to indicate abuse, she said.

IRS Office Move Not Yet Decided

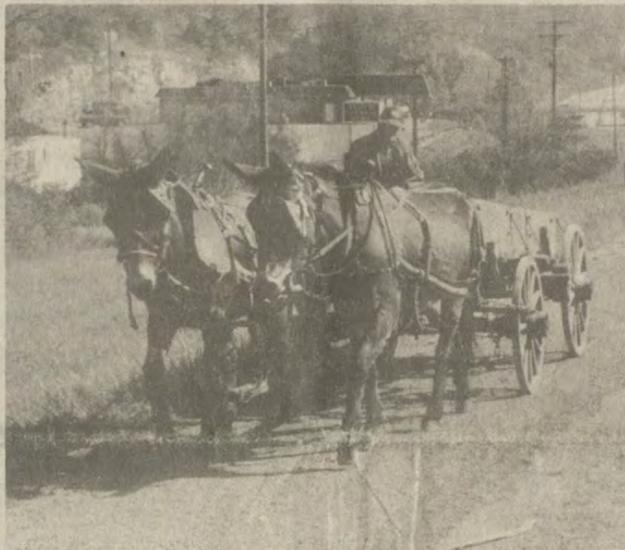

Figures cited by the Pike Chamber of Commerce in support of its argument that the Internal Revenue Service office there should not be moved to Prestonsburg are official, an IRS spokesman conceded last week. But considerations of space, parking, and accessibility still make it necessary to relocate the federal agency's Pikeville and Paintsville offices, he said.

James Allgood, public affairs officer at the Louisville IRS office, was responding to an October 21 letter from Frank M. Morris, Pike Chamber president, in which Morris took him to task for statements attributed to him in a recent Floyd County Times story.

The story quoted Allgood as saying that figures put out by the Chamber—which said Pike county accounted for 33 percent, Floyd county 17 percent, and Johnson county 11 percent of the IRS workload in this region—were "not IRS figures."

When Morris confronted him with a copy of a Jan. 1, 1985 memo from the assistant commissioner of the IRS cen-

District Court Docket Features DUI Charges

His drunk driving conviction last week was nothing new for Cret D. Caudill, 26, of McDowell. According to court records, Caudill has been convicted of DUI seven times in the past five years. District Judge Harold Stumbo sentenced him Thursday to 30 days in the county jail.

Back in court Monday to face drunk and disorderly charges, Caudill was given a 20-day sentence, to be served concurrently with the earlier sentence.

Prosecution and defense witnesses gave widely varying accounts of events leading to the arrest of Kenneth E. Ward, 32-year-old Van Lear man, on a DUI charge. Prestonsburg police Sgt. Gerald Clark said Ward smelled of alcohol, failed three sobriety tests, and refused to take a Breathalyzer test after he stopped him on University Drive shortly after midnight on Aug. 14.

Ward and two women passengers, who were on their way home from an Auxier nightclub, denied he had been drinking anything stronger than Pepsi. He thought he had passed the sobriety tests and that the Breathalyzer was malfunctioning, Ward said.

Case Against Crums Summarized by State

Three more of the 16 defendants indicted as the result of a state police investigation of county finances under the troubled administration of the late Jerry Lafferty, Jr. came to trial Tuesday in Floyd Circuit Court. Ballard Crum, owner of an auto dealership and nightclub at Eastern, and his sons Jackie and Ricky are accused of receiving checks drawn on county agencies in late 1982 and early 1983 on the basis of fraudulent claims.

The story the Commonwealth will tell, according to a summary by Assistant Attorney-General Barbara Whaley of the evidence she intends to introduce, is this:

Ballard Crum, owner of Village Chevrolet and part-owner with former county magistrate Kenneth Roberts of the Paradise Lounge, received and cashed a check drawn on Floyd County Solid Waste, Inc. for $2027 in January, 1983, supposedly for repair work on two solid waste agency trucks.

Two invoices prepared by Ricky Crum to justify the payment were "a total fabrication," the prosecutor contended, since no solid waste agency trucks were repaired by Village Chevrolet. When Floyd County Solid Waste Director David Cooley made out the check to the auto dealer, the prosecutor said, he thought he was paying for work done on two county trucks—and thus paying indirectly a debt he owed the county for gravel.

In connection with the check, Ballard and Ricky Crum face a single charge of theft by deception. Jackie Crum is charged with two counts of theft by deception and two counts of criminal possession of a forged instrument on the basis of two checks drawn in November, 1982 on Floyd Fiscal Court.

The two checks were made out on November 15 that year—one in the amount of $2,020 payable to Ben Davis, the other for $450 payable to Ronnie Horn—and both were cashed four days later by Jackie Crum.

Horn, who was on the regular county payroll at the time, claims he did nothing to earn an extra check, that he never saw the $450 check in question, and that what purports to be his endorsement on the back of the check is a forgery, Whaley said.

To justify payment of the $2,020 check, a claim in that amount was purportedly submitted by a Ben Davis, of Hueysville, for a mower and attachments he sold to the county for use at the Allen park. No one of that name has lived in the area for 20 years and Allen

P'burg Selected For Main Street Revised Program

Prestonsburg was one of 16 Kentucky cities named last week as participants in the 1986 Main Street Program for downtown revitalization. It was the second time in as many weeks that the city has been targeted for downtown upgrading. It was also one of six cities that would formerly have been excluded from the Main Street program because they were too small.

Along with Brandenburg, Franklin, Harrodsburg, Princeton and Springfield, Prestonsburg will receive technical and training assistance as demonstration cities, or models for the state's small towns.

The six were included in a revised program for cities with populations under 10,000, said David L. Morgan, director of the Kentucky Heritage Council, which administers the Kentucky Main Street Program. In previous years, the program focused on medium-sized cities.

The program began in 1979 as "an effort to return downtown to what it once was: a center of activity and a source of pride," said Gov. Martha Layne Collins. The state program, which is patterned after the National Main Street Program of the National Trust for Historic Preservation, has generated $54 million in private investment through its funding of 11 Kentucky cities since 1979.

Word that Prestonsburg will participate in the Main Street program follows the announcement two weeks earlier that the city had been awarded a $6,500 grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission's Downtown Revitalization Program. The money will be used to design brochures and an official city logo and to conduct marketing and merchandising seminars for city businesses.

Grand Plans, Moral Outrage Heard at Water Meet, Here

If grand plans and moral outrage could do it, the state's water problems would soon be resolved.

The latest plan—a hefty, 199-page document generated by the state Division of Water—was on the table at a day-long meeting Saturday at May Lodge. Nor was the meeting short on outrage.

—Freida Chaffins, of Garrett, held up a jar of water, inches of black oil floating on its surface, that she had drawn from her parents' Martin Branch well and that she suspected of causing chronic sickness in the family. "If you've got laws on the books, let Mum and Dad get something done with them," she said.

—Kathryn Poe, who lives on Middle Creek near the Magoffin line, told of being stranded midway between two public water systems. She also had criticism for those—especially mobile home owners, she said—who discharge sewage directly into streams.

—Mining activity has drained the water from their Pike county property, said Harold and Rejeana Rowe, who drilled their third well this summer at a cost of $1785—and came up with nary a drop.

—For Magoffin county residents the issue was brine pollution from oil wells. Two complained of the garbage in Fishtrap Dam. Curtis and Hope Blackburn, of Stanville, wished they could restrain a neighbor from diverting a stream. Some had problems with discharge from a stripmine sludge pond. Henderson county residents had questions about a plant producing PCBs.

Division of Water officials, who were conducting five public hearings simultaneously across the state, insisted they were not trying to defend the agency's past record but to plan for the future. Public concerns would be incorporated, they said, in the Kentucky Water Management Plan mandated by the state legislature earlier this year.

In a show of determination, Bob Ware listed 17 water problems already identified by state officials as needing attention and the steps his agency would be taking to resolve them. Testing fish tissues will give authorities better data on stream pollution, he said. State money will have to be found to replace the federal funds that once built sewage-treatment plants. Where 33 drinking-water contaminants are now monitored, 130 contaminants will be monitored by 1991.

The Division's capacity to inspect hazardous dams will need to be upgraded; they will offer better training for local water and sewage workers; flood-prone areas will be better identified; more commercial laboratories will be certified to handle water testing; and industries will be encouraged to recycle their wastes.

Even if the state agency enforced its regulations, little headway will be made in tackling water and sewage problems unless the Division of Water takes an active role in changing funding priorities—and, ultimately, the social priorities on which the funding decisions are based—said Roger Recktenwald, executive-director of the Big Sandy Area Development District.

Because federal grant and loan money for public water and sewage systems is parceled out strictly on the basis of economic "feasibility," people like Kathryn Poe—who lives on a sparsely-settled, seven-mile stretch of the Mountain Parkway—are always being bypassed, Recktenwald said.

"The state can't hide behind its

Seek Host Families For Foreign Students

Host families are being sought for high school students during the school year 1986-87, in a program sponsored by Open Door Student Exchange. The students come from 30 countries in Latin America, Europe and Asia.

The students, ages 15-18, arrive in the United States in November, December and January for three or five months during the current school year. They attend the local high school while living with their American host family. All students have been thoroughly screened in their home countries, speak English, and have spending money and medical insurance.

Host families may deduct $50 a month for income tax purposes, and families with teenagers, young children or no children at all are welcome to participate.

Families interested in participating should call Sylvia Wallace at 1-800-645-2154.

Open Door Student Exchange is a not-for-profit educational exchange organization which operates in 30 countries and works with more than 1,200 high schools across the United States. Open Door has administered more than 15,000 international high school exchanges since its founding in 1963.

Bits and Pieces

CEASE AND DESIST

It's that time again. The new telephone directories have arrived, and if I turn my back for the blinking of an eye, my old directory will disappear by some underhanded legerdemain. I have, over the years, called down ancient and unmentionable as well as untried and terrible curses of my own invention on the head of the one responsible. But to no avail.

The inescapable fact is, somebody here doesn't like me, isn't the least bit afraid of me, and what's more, is a cold, unfeeling nerd.

In the second instance, he or she is making a serious mistake. I would inflict great bodily harm in defense of and for possession of my old phone book. In it are all the numbers I don't want to look up again, can't look up, can't remember, and some I have inveigled by hook or crook, mostly the latter. Besides all that, I need them.

There's my vet's number without which I could not survive. There's my daughter's number which I cannot remember. It has a bunch of 9's, 7's, 5's, and I only remember, on my good days, even numbers. Okay, so that's a little weird, but then, nobody's perfect. Also there are doctors, hospitals, physicians' exchange numbers, plumbers, electricians—all the people necessary to a well-rounded existence. And it takes at least a year to get them all together.

Is there no longer a place in this hurry-scurry, workaday world for old telephone directories?

Prithee, cease and desist!

regulatory function. There must be a larger movement," the ADD leader said. "We have to turn around the funding game, to see that the water goes the extra seven miles."

Instead of constructing costly public sewage systems, Recktenwald added, it could prove cheaper for the government in some areas to give householders $1,500 or so toward the cost of installing individual septic systems.

Pikeville engineer David Rasnick, who said he spoke for the Kentucky Society of Professional Engineers and the Pike County Coal Operators' Association, urged greater public investment in the water and sewage systems needed to expand industry. But, for the same reason, no more regulations should be imposed on industry, he said.

"We don't support turning the major part of the state into a nature reserve. We need to develop our renewable resources," Rasnick said. "The mining industry can't support further regulations or controls."

That brought a rejoinder from John Burgess, of Prestonsburg, a member of the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition. "We're not talking about making a wildlife refuge of the state," he said. "We're talking about a fifth of the people who don't have drinking water."

"The question is, 'Who's going to pay to clean up the pollution of the water—the ones causing the pollution or the people?' It is not going to stop until those responsible for the pollution are responsible for the cleanup," he said.

Ann Joseph, who lived some years in Frankfort before moving to eastern Kentucky, commented on the differences between the two communities. "If an open sewer was discharging into a stream in Frankfort, I'd call up and have an official there the same day," she said. "After I called up the (Magoffin county) health department, I found they didn't even have a record of my call."

Mike Kimmel, the Division of Water official who chaired Saturday's hearing, categorized Mrs. Joseph's complaint under "lack of response of local and state officials." But one comment appeared to suggest that, to find the real source of pollution problems, eastern Kentuckians might look to their own.

After Kimmel vowed to focus the resources of the Division of Water upon the problem of sewage discharge into eastern Kentucky streams, Rob Nicholas, a water specialist with the Big Sandy ADD, asserted flatly, "That's not an enforceable issue."

"I could take you up any creek around here and find 50 people in a row (improperly discharging sewage)," Nicholas said. "People don't see it as a problem and it's unrealistic to think you could enforce it."

imposing a $250 fine. With court costs and fees, Ward will have to pay a total of $469.

An attorney for Jackie D. Martin, 30, of Printer, said a DUI charge against his client should be dismissed because he was entrapped by police.

Martin was initially a passenger in a car driven by Terry Blackburn last July 17 and only took over the wheel when a police officer suggested that Blackburn was too drunk to drive, said attorney John Kirk. Martin was later booked by another officer.

Judge Stumbo imposed on the defendant a 30-day curfew, with Martin to be confined strictly to his home after 9 p.m. He was also ordered to pay $357 in fine and costs.

Although it was Martin's third DUI conviction in the past three years, it was treated as a first offense, attorney Kirk arguing that he had not earlier had the benefit of legal counsel.

James S. Ison, 43, of Prestonsburg, was convicted of one DUI charge and has another pending. He was sentenced to 30 days and ordered to pay $707.

He already had another car pulled over when Bernard Leslie sped by, weaving from side to side on KY 3 by Dewey Lake, Deputy Sheriff Ricky Thornberry testified Monday. "I had a hard time catching up with him," said the officer, who added, "He was still drinking when he got out of the car."

The 32-year-old Prestonsburg man, who did not appear in court, was convicted of a second drunk-driving offense, driving on a suspended license, and having neither registration nor insurance. He was sentenced to 10 days in the county jail and ordered to pay $407 in fine and court costs.

Adam Ousley, 40, of Hueysville, was also facing a second DUI count, but the first was held inadmissible because it occurred prior to Kentucky's 1984 drunk driving statute. On the latest charge, he was ordered to pay $357.

Also convicted of DUI: Kenneth Gross, 34, of Pikeville; Anthony G. Lucas; Gary W. Huff; and Ken Joiner, 37, of Cliffside.

A DUI charge against Millie S. Mills, 45, of Tomahawk, was thrown out after the arresting officers—Mike Meade and Greg Hall, of the Prestonsburg Police Department—failed to show up in court.

Frank Shepherd, 51, of Gunlock, was sentenced in his absence to 60 days' jail and ordered to pay $200 after being convicted of threatening sheriff's deputies Anthony Castle and John Blackburn. Castle testified that Shepherd was using a backhoe on June 11 to dig up the driveway at Annie Handshoe's Salt Lick grocery. When he and Blackburn sought to question him, Shepherd threatened to kill them. Castle said. The defendant was said to have a history of mental illness.

Billy Osborne, of Melvin, was sentenced to 20 days after being found guilty of slapping the daughter of Estelle Hall, of Kite. The sentence was probated for a year on condition Osborne stay away from the prosecuting witness and her family.

By order of the court, a $200 bail bond put up by Kenneth Prater, of the old Middle Creek road, was forfeited and paid to Brenda Hall Clay for child support. Mrs. Clay argued that Prater was $350 in arrears.

John L. Hamer and Willie L. Williams each received 14-day sentences after pleading guilty to assault. The two were involved in a fight at the Job Corps Center.

Questioned by Public Defender Norm Bennett, who suggested that the child's fever may account for her passivity in hospital and that the silent home might indicate that the children there were not abused. Mrs. Crisp replied, "Six children under six and none of them cry? That to me is a little odd. I think most children cry."

As is usual in a preliminary hearing, only the Commonwealth presented evidence in the case. The Ratliffs did not testify and no witnesses were called on their behalf.

tral region to the Louisville IRS district director—which was the source of the Pike Chamber's statistics—Allgood acknowledged that the figures are authentic.

"My best recollection of the response I made to the (Times) interviewer's question is that I did not know where the figures came from," Allgood said. "In any event... I did not intend to dispute the figures or the fact that Pike county has the highest workload average for IRS in the three counties. The figures are factual and speak for themselves," he said.

The fact remains, Allgood said, that the existing Pikeville and Paintsville offices cannot accommodate proposed staff increases. There is also a concern to have IRS offices accessible to the handicapped and with adequate parking space, he said.

While the General Services Administration recommended a consolidation of the Pikeville and Paintsville offices in Prestonsburg, a final decision on the matter has yet to be made. Allgood said.

park administrator Gordon Boyd denies buying a mower or attachments at that time, the prosecutor said.

Alma Hughes, a bookkeeper in the Lafferty administration, would testify that, when the judge-executive and Magistrate Roberts heard erroneously that she had actually mailed the check to "Davis," they became upset, the prosecutor said.

Start of the trial, which is being heard before Special Judge Will T. Scott, was delayed for a time Tuesday, when the sheriff was dispatched to round up absent witnesses. Former county roads foreman Sam Fitzpatrick, whose absence in the past has twice caused postponement of the trial, was apparently on hand this time, however.

Det. James Henderson, who headed the probe of Floyd finances by the state police special investigations unit and was the first witness called by the prosecution, accused the Crums of being "not very cooperative" in his investigation. Sometimes, he and other investigators were made to wait several hours at the auto dealership before being allowed to see company records, he said.

Among earlier defendants in the series, Magistrate Ed Caudill was sentenced to a year in prison after his conviction in July, 1985 on a charge of possessing a forged instrument. A ruling on his appeal is expected next week. Former Magistrate Roberts received a 2½-year sentence in May upon his conviction of theft by deception. He also has appealed the conviction.

Still to be tried are former deputy judge-executive Thomas Lafferty, Sr. and his son, Thomas Lafferty, Jr., who was personnel officer in his uncle's administration and later county court clerk. The elder Lafferty was tried in July last year on a theft count, but the Pike circuit court jury that heard the case was unable to agree on a verdict.

Originally, trial of all defendants was moved to Pike county at the request of the Commonwealth. Claiming he was not notified of the venue-change hearing, however, attorney Patton later sought a new hearing on behalf of the Crums and their trial was moved back to this county.

Head Start Help

I would like to thank all the folks and business people who gave of their time and resources to support the Floyd Co. Head Start Float for the Red, White and Blue Day. Five days prior to Red, White and Blue Day, parents and staff were busy getting ready for the parade, making posters and preparing the children for the day's activities. It was such a touching feeling seeing the children "come alive" when they saw the huge crowds of people in downtown Martin. Everyone started singing "The Head Start Song". Working together we can accomplish the absolute best for our Head Start children.

Commends Kiwanis

As a former member of the Martin, Ky. Kiwanis Club I would like to take this opportunity to express my gratitude to these gentlemen for all their kindness and support. As a new member of the Martin club, they provided me an avenue to both develop new friendships and to offer help to a deserving community.

Nationally, Kiwanis have been a source of strength and service to the communities of which they are a part. There is no end to the benefits the community as a whole and individuals in particular may reap from such a group.

Martin, just as any town or city which supports a Kiwanis group has benefited immensely. I am very happy and proud to have been a member. I would like to encourage all citizens of Floyd county who would like to see their community grow to take an active part with the Kiwanis group in your area.

Ask Future Help

Saturday October 25, the Kiwanis club of Prestonsburg held its annual St. Jude's Bike-A-Thon. The event was underway at 10 a.m., with seven riders of all ages, with one, a new entry this year, being a very energetic 11-year-old black pup named Penny. Other entries were Helen Ann Vickers, Shad Vickers, Sarah Vickers, Betty Francis, Tim Hatfield, Kelly Hammonds, and Doug Brown, all participants in a three-block, twice around symbolic mile, all doing their part for the St. Jude's Children's Research Hospitals. The Prestonsburg Kiwanis club, and those involved in this year's Bike-A-Thon ask for your help in the future, so they may help the St. Jude's Children's Research Center fighting to put an end to childhood cancer.

Meat Prices Cause Drop in Food Index

With cooler weather discouraging backyard barbecuers, meat prices posted a broad decline during October, pulling Kentucky's food price index a full two percentage points below the September average.

A select group of 40 food items cost shoppers an average $60.70, according to Kentucky Farm Bureau's market-basket survey. Last month, the same selections demanded a price of $61.96.

At the meat counter, beef, pork and poultry were down an average of 3.4 percent as the peak summertime demand period gave way to a slower consumption pace. The drop meant consumers were paying only an average of $2.09 for a pound of fresh meat, instead of the $2.16 composite figure in September.

Fruits and vegetables were also cheaper in October, down by nearly 5 percent on the strength of major seasonal price drops for new harvest apples and potatoes. Apple prices dropped 35 percent in October, from 93 to 59 cents per pound. Idaho potatoes fell 32 cents to $2.21 for a 10-pound bag.

Dairy products posted a price increase for the month, the only one of six food groupings to do so. Higher prices for milk, cheese and ice cream led to a 2.2 percent increase for the month.

The meat-paced softening of food prices recorded in October could be the start of a longer downtrend if current farm price forecasts prove accurate. Most analysts say hog and cattle prices have stabilized, and they report signs of herd build-ups which could boost meat supplies by as early as the first of 1987.

Grain prices are currently at their lowest levels in several years, a trend that could add to the livestock production increase. Traditionally, cheaper grain and feed prices eventually translate into more meat animal production.

Morehead had the lowest local marketbasket price average in October while Jackson checked in at the high end of the scale. Overall, volunteers working through Kentucky Farm Bureau Women canvassed retail food costs in 20 Kentucky communities.

Child Abuse Issue Scrutinized Nov. 20

Child abuse is one of the most serious social problems of this century. However, the extent of this problem and its long-term effects have surfaced only in recent years. Those adults most often trusted by children—parents, teachers, day care counselors and even doctors—have been known to abuse that trust and physically abuse those children.

"Battered Child, Battered Trust" airs Thursday, November 20, at 7:00 p.m. on KET. This program, part of the "Managing Our Miracles: Health Care In America" series examines the many sensitive issues involved in treating child abuse victims.

"In general, we don't want too many laws governing the population," said Nancy Dubler, an attorney experienced in child abuse court cases. "This (lack of laws) isn't the case when it comes to children. Here we want and need strong laws...because children can't be their own advocates...they can't protect themselves...they can't seek their own help."

Rhode Island Attorney General Arlene Violet strongly believes that the child's safety supercedes any physician/patient relationship. "There should be no need for a statute regulating child abuse," said Violet. "The safety of the child is all that should matter to the physician."

"Battered Child, Battered Trust" tackles the aspects of strong child abuse laws such as should physicians comply with child protective agency requests for patient records? How does a physician handle a possible sexual abuse situation?

"Managing Our Miracles" is produced by Columbia University Seminars on Media and Society, Graduate School of Journalism in association with WQED/Pittsburgh and WNET/New York.

Have Furnace, Chimney Checked For Carbon Monoxide Problems

Homeowners should have their gas heating system checked for possible carbon monoxide problems, government safety experts have warned.

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, consumers should arrange for a qualified heating contractor to inspect the furnace, chimney and flue pipe for problems. While chimneys are seldom checked during routine furnace servicing, CPSC said it is extremely important to have the chimney inspected for blockages, such as mortar loosening from chimney walls and birds' nests to prevent a buildup of carbon monoxide fumes in the house. Chimney sweeps are equipped to provide the service, if needed.

The government agency said people exposed to carbon monoxide fumes often show symptoms likened to "having the flu," including dizziness, fatigue, headaches, irregular breathing and nausea; cardiac patients may additionally experience angina symptoms. Exposure to continued high doses of carbon monoxide can be fatal. If flu-like symptoms persist, homeowners should consider having their heating system checked.

Apart from routine furnace inspection, CPSC said home heating systems converted from oil to gas can also pose carbon monoxide problems. After the conversion, soot on chimney walls tends to loosen and fall to the base of the flue. If enough soot falls, it could block the exhaust from the gas furnace, thereby causing a buildup of carbon monoxide fumes in the house.

CPSC said homeowners who have converted from oil to gas should have the system checked now. If there is any accumulation of soot at the base of the flue, the chimney should be cleaned immediately. Annual checks should be made at the start of the heating season each fall until no more soot is found in the chimney. If you are converting from oil to gas, have the chimney inspected when the new furnace is installed, then routinely each fall.

Some people believed that emeralds quickened the intellect.

Historical Soc. Holds Two Sites Significant

The Board of Directors of the Auxier Historical Society drew up a resolution, to be approved by the full membership, designating two tracts of land as historically significant to the area.

The first of these tracts, located on John's Creek, is a section of the North East Coal Company Tram road that was completed in 1924. The construction of the full tram road was begun in 1911, shortly after the purchase of the Henry Litteral land and some of the Auxier family land. This section of the tram road was the third section to be constructed, and it was begun in 1923. The tram road was the "brain child" of R.C. Thomas, then the superintendent of North East. The first section, begun in 1911, began at the tipple on Railroad Street, crossed the center of town and the Big Sandy, and terminated at the entrance of Number 7 mine at the head of Jockey Hollow.

The second section of the tram road was begun after Number 7 mine was worked out and was converted into a tunnel that was one mile long and went through the hill from Jockey Hollow to the John's Creek side of the hill. Upon reaching the John's Creek side, the road crossed John's Creek, by way of a steel bridge, and entered the hill at the Number 8 opening. The road tunneled its way through this hill and resurfaced on Hyden Branch, crossing that stream and road, and then disappearing into the Number 9 opening. This section of the tram road did not resurface, but, under the hills, wound its way to Number 10 Mine which also had a surface opening near the head of Number 10 Hollow.

The third section of this road, and the one so designated as historically significant, was begun in 1923, and began at the John's Creek opening of Number 7 and at the point where the second section crossed the creek. From this point it wound its way around the hill that ran parallel to the creek and crossed John's Creek via a wooden trestle that was constructed across the field as an elevated roadway that terminated at a small tunnel across the creek. Thus, construction of this section was finished in 1924. This third section began at the other side of the small tunnel and terminated at the Number 10 Mine opening at the head of Number 10 Hollow on John's Creek.

The fourth section of the tram road began at small tunnel and turned right from the main spur of the road, crossing John's Creek and terminated at the Number 13 mine opening. This section was begun in 1926 and was completed the following year.

The fifth and final section of the tram road was constructed in the summer of 1932. It began at the steel bridge, at the Number 7 tunnel and turned left down John's Creek, following that stream to its termination at the Tater Hill mine opening.

This tram road was conceived by Thomas and was constructed using company employees. It is also interesting to note that not all the John's Creek residents viewed this road as necessary, for North East fought many court battles over this right of way with the Ireland Wells family. Finally, in 1938, the controversy was resolved by the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

The Board of Directors also designated Railroad Street, in Auxier, as historically significant. This street which runs parallel to the C and O Railroad tracks, contains the old power plant, the bank house site, the Mary Luck Coal Company store, which will soon house the North East Coal Company Museum, the Depot site, the Ice House site, and the sites of the tipple, the trestle, and the weight house. This street apparently was designed to be the main street in Auxier, but was soon replaced by the present Main Street, which was known at this time as River Street.

The Society plans to restore these sites on Railroad Street and on John's Creek to their former grandeur, using public and private donations. The Society will hold a flea market at the public park, on Saturday, November 8, from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. Anyone who would desire to rent a space for the sale of their items can contact Robert Castle or Stella McCown at 886-8916 or 886-6920. Some items that were donated in the Mary Luck Coal Company Store will also be offered for sale. There will also be live entertainment supplied by local groups.

The Society meets every third Monday of each month and membership is encouraged. Membership dues are $10 per year, and each member receives a subscription to "The Trestle," the Society's quarterly. The Society publishes primarily source material concerning the History of Auxier and of the North East Coal Company. Further inquiries may be directed to The Auxier Historical Society, Box 409, Mary Luck Coal Company Store Building, Auxier, Kentucky, 41602.

Burchett Certified In Family Practice

Dr. Blake R. Burchett, of Betsy Layne, has been named a diplomate of the American Board of Family Practice (ABFP) as a result of passing a certification examination offered by the ABFP. The physician is now certified in the medical specialty of family practice.

The intensive written examination is designed to prove the candidate's ability in the areas of internal medicine, surgery, obstetrics and gynecology, pediatrics, psychiatry and community medicine.

To qualify for the examination a physician must have successfully completed three years of residency training in family practice. There are some 385 such training programs in teaching hospitals and university medical centers across the United States.

ABFP diplomates also must continue to show proof of competence in the field of comprehensive, continuing care of the family by being recertified every six years.

ACNE TREATMENT

Benzoyl peroxide is a very popular ingredient in acne medicines. It causes an increased sloughing rate which, in turn, peels away skin that blocks the pores that produce oil. By doing so, it prevents the formation of pimples. Benzoyl peroxide produces a feeling of warmth and stinging when applied to the skin. It can even cause the skin to turn red. For this reason, it is usually applied at night after the affected area has been washed. Fair-skinned individuals may find it to their advantage to leave it on for only two hours at a time. This will allow the skin to become conditioned to the treatment.

Our pattern of excellence is always consistent here at COOLEY APOTHECARY. We are a pharmacy dedicated to offering you the finest service available anywhere. We aim to provide quality over-the-counter products as well as prescription medications to care for your total pharmaceutical needs. We are always available to answer any questions you may have. We are located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. MasterCard and Visa honored plus we welcome third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4.

HANDY HINT: Do not use a benzoyl peroxide acne treatment with a sun lamp. Both treatments irritate the skin.

WHY GO ANYWHERE ELSE?

Water Pollution Woes Welling Up For Millions

Is your water safe to drink? A 1978 study by Cornell University revealed that more than 63 percent of rural-household water supplies were considered unsafe (largely because of bacteria), affecting about 39 million people. Thirty-four states have recommended wells be closed because of contamination by organic chemicals. Fifteen percent of Americans now depend on boiled water for drinking and cooking; in Southern California, the figure is 33 percent.

How can you determine if your water is safe? Even if you get your water from a public supply that is periodically tested for contaminants, the November Reader's Digest advises you to have your water examined at the point of use. Faulty pipes, soldering and leaks can greatly affect your water. If you are among the almost 40 percent of Americans who depend on private wells, your local government may test your water for free or for a nominal fee. Or you can use one of the national, mail-order testing services that send you a kit with directions for taking samples. Most such tests cost under $100 and will give you a general idea of your water quality.

If you find that the water is tainted, switch to bottled water and alert your county or state health department to the problem. Then try to find out where the contamination is coming from—a nearby dump, an industrial plant, a leaking gas tank, runoff from a farm's fertilizers or pesticides.

While a problem is being corrected, the magazine says you can protect your family by installing your own filter system. Bear in mind that every problem requires its own, tailor-made solution. An inexpensive device probably won't do the job. A $20 carbon counter filter, for example, can become so loaded with bacteria after a few weeks that what comes out of the tap may be worse than what went into it.

The three most popular methods of purifying water are as follows:

- Carbon treatment. This type traps contaminants in charcoal filters. Though relatively inexpensive, $150 and up, it is not effective in removing metals like lead, and the filters must be changed regularly.

- Distillation. This method, which costs about $300, heats water until it turns to steam, and then allows the steam to condense into water again. Though contaminants are supposed to be left behind, some such as the carcinogen chloroform vaporize, recondense and wind up in the water supply—unless you have special equipment. Distillation also produces heat, which may be uncomfortable in the summer.

- Reverse osmosis. In this treatment, water is forced through a semi-permeable membrane that rejects almost all contaminants. One that escapes, however, is the ever-elusive chloroform. A good under-the-counter unit costs between $450 and $850, and maintenance runs about $25 to $100 a year. This method is popular, especially when coupled with the activated-carbon filter. The combination takes care of just about every water problem.

To Present Concert At Pikeville Gym

Lt. Col. William E. Clark, commander and conductor, and the United States Army Field Band and Soldiers' Chorus, of Washington, D., will appear in concert tomorrow evening (Thursday) at the Pikeville High School gymnasium.

As musical ambassadors of the Army, the band logs more than 40,000 miles annually with numerous cross-country tours as well as trips abroad. The band was organized in 1946 to "carry into the grassroots of our country the story of our magnificent Army...and of that great symbol of American manhood—the Ground Soldier," according to a directive issued by General Jacob L. Devers.

The band's commander and conductor, Lt. Col. Clark, is a native of Prestonsburg, son of Emory Clark, of Fredericksburg, Va., and the late Mae Clark.

1985 Appalachian Award Winner...

Careful Record, Unanswered Questions Mark New Study Of Mountain Community

By RON MARSTIN

Patricia Duane Beaver. Rural Community in the Appalachian South. Lexington, KY: The University Press of Kentucky, 1986. 182 pp. $18.

Plenty of people, no doubt, manage to live their lives in the bosom of a close community they never find especially problematic. Others—fewer, surely—can blaze for themselves distinctly solitary paths without feeling any need for close communal ties. For most, though, community stirs decidedly mixed feelings. Sources of nurturance, rootedness, and identity, communities can also set stifling limits, threaten to swallow up their members, and force individuals to flee if they would find an identity of their own.

Perhaps because so many events in our recent history, and many current pressures, seem to tug at the fabric of U.S. society, the last few years have seen a resurgence of scholarly and popular interest in the ways that communities hang together and, sometimes, fall apart.

High mobility and urban anonymity, the pressures on families in which both parents work outside the home, the narrowed preoccupations of the "me generation," revelations of venality and "disinformation" in high places, the challenge to the nation's traditional hospitality posed by boat people and "wetbacks," the rising and often angry voices of Third World nations—it's enough to make many of us nostalgic for simpler, more predictable times, when everybody knew their place and the knowledge was a comfort.

That sort of longing has typically been trained on the rural village, often enough the Appalachian village, and not infrequently by those who have never paid close attention to the quality or constraints of small-community bonds. There will be less excuse for that with the publication this month of Patricia Duane Beaver's study of the three western North Carolina communities she calls Rocky Creek, Plum Tree, and Grassy Fork.

Beaver's is a telling account of the strengths and sensitivities that give these places their appeal. In the course of 10 years of research begun in 1973 she has obviously listened attentively to the many tales she heard. Anyone who has lived any time in Appalachia will recognize these voices and places. A winner of the 1985 Appalachian Award, her book combines the scholar's perceptiveness, points of reference, and concern for careful record with the virtue, no less scholarly perhaps, of entering sympathetically into the lives of those she observes. After setting out in 38 pages the essential demographic and economic data about the three towns, the author plunges into an account of the flood that struck the region in the fall of 1977. The book takes on new life. The author writes with a grace that usually eschews academic jargon and in which the cadences of the interview narrative echo throughout.

Rural Community is neither judgmental nor prescriptive, neither cynical nor romantic. It simply portrays three communities in careful detail, setting them in as wide a context as Beaver thinks necessary. A finely nuanced portrait, it invites the reader to attend to events with the author's keen eye and ear and gives pause to anyone who would jump to quick conclusions.

Separate chapters describe the role played in the communities by family and land, sex roles and parenting styles, and the experience of foreigners. A concluding chapter traces the different myths to which Beaver's subjects refer in interpreting their communal life.

Preachers accustomed to inveighing against the evil of gossip will do well to read Beaver's explanation of that rewarding pastime, which she says is "probably the most significant social-control mechanism operating in the community." And that is typical of the anthropologist's treatment of many behaviors that lay people tend to view moralistically.

In this view, people don't act the way they do or change their behavior because they are good or evil or experience a moral conversion. Things are done the way they're done because that is what it takes to hold the community together. And things change because the objective needs of the community change.

Nothing might seem more amenable to moral explanations than the violence sometimes associated with mountain families. But Beaver sets it in a non-moral context, as the predictable outcome of the stresses caused by extended-family cooperation. Violence is decreasing, she argues, not because moral sensibilities are becoming more refined but because the economic conditions warranting extended family cooperation are changing.

What would she have to say, one has to wonder, about the alleged incest and other sexual deviations with which an extended Magoffin county family was recently charged and which instinctively stirred in most of us a sense of moral outrage and demands for retribution?

There are some other questions I would like to have seen the author address, although most of them are probably outside the scope of the present study and reflect quite different circumstances. For all that Ap palachian communities have in common, this book is a reminder that there is much to distinguish western North Carolina from eastern Kentucky.

Still, in the light of the Appalachian ideal of independence, it might have been illuminating to hear from some welfare recipients about the costs and compromises of their dependency on the state. As recent discussions of Harry Caudill's contribution to Appalachian scholarship make clear, the role played by public assistance programs in shaping mountain communities is still a controverted issue.

And what happened to the egalitarianism that traditionally caused Appalachians to "avoid status competition based on wealth" when coal boomed in the oil-crisis days of the 1970s and every coal operator with cash in his pocket, it seemed, scrambled to build an ostentatious home?

The notions that kinship "provides an idiom for the way in which people should behave toward each other" and that informal personal relationships are emphasized in the social system of the mountains will not come as any surprise. But we don't hear anything here about the conflict between this warm, interpersonal style and the cool, bureaucratic relationships that many associate with desired social change.

Don't western North Carolina communities have to wrestle with the conflict between interpersonal loyalties and reform of the school system and local government? Beaver's account of the mixed feelings people have toward Maggie, a local political fixer, doesn't begin to tell this story.

A related question has to do with the wariness of natives toward outsiders, many of whom come into the community bearing bureaucratic styles and skills. The foreigners in Rural Community are all back-to-the-land types or summer-home owners, neither of them typical of the foreigners who have settled in these parts. What was the effect on the local community, and on the foreigners themselves, of the waves of "helpers" who descended on Appalachia in the wake of the War on Poverty and the heightened social concerns of the late 1960s? Did the ideological arguments about the goals and methods of social change, which the outsiders took so seriously and which occasionally embroiled the natives as well, finally matter a whit? And do they matter now, as Appalachian communities struggle both to hold their own in the face of a changing world and to be a part of the change?

The relationships between local, national, and international communities are complex and fluid. In the end, our most critical choices for social policy come down to how we define the community of which we feel a part. Can we risk letting the outsider in? Should we raise the ramparts in defense of "our own"? It depends finally on who "our own" are reckoned to be. Whatever guidance the anthropologists can give us in distinguishing what local traditions are worth holding onto at all costs and what adaptive risks we ought to take for the sake of a wider, more viable community will be welcome. Rural Community suggests that Patricia Beaver's will be an important voice in that ongoing conversation.

Printer Man's Death Under Investigation

The death of Richie (Teddie) Ira Amburgey, who was found dead in his car at Printer at 2:30 Sunday morning, is under investigation by the Kentucky State Police.

According to his wife, Amburgey, 53, left his home at Printer between 4:30 and 5 Saturday afternoon and was carrying approximately $400. Although preliminary findings of an autopsy performed in Louisville indicate death was due to cardiac arrest, the fact that the money Amburgey had is missing has spurred authorities to investigate the death further.

Coroner Roger Nelson said final autopsy report had not been made yesterday (Tuesday).

State Police Detective Jim Riederick is in charge of the investigation.

Amburgey was born January 3, 1933 in Letcher county, a son of the late Rubin and Minnie Adams Amburgey. He was an Army veteran of World War II.

Surviving him are his wife, Vernita Conn Amburgey; three sons, Ricky and Teddy Amburgey, both of Martin, Columbus Amburgey, of Printer; one daughter, Connetis Carver, also of Printer; four brothers, Brody Amburgey, of Auxier, Olin Amburgey, of Langley, Ed Amburgey, of Perry county, Eugene Amburgey, of Sidney; three sisters, Effie Ousley, of Langley, Goldie Ratliff, of Estill, Opal Welings, of Russia, O., and three grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow (Thursday) at 11 a.m. at the Salisbury Regular Baptist Church at Printer with Ted Shannon officiating. Burial will be made in the family cemetery at Martin under direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

LET THE HEART SPEAK.

Consolation. It's such an easy word, yet when it comes to consoling someone who has lost a loved one, many people find it difficult to express themselves. Here are some suggestions:

1. Don't worry about what to say. Just speak from the heart. Sometimes touching or hugging is more comforting than mere words.
2. Don't worry about what to bring. Bring yourself, and give of yourself, your time, your listening ear.
3. Be there later on, after the initial rush of visitors has passed. Birthdays, anniversaries and holidays are hard times to be alone.
4. If there are children in the family, listen to them, and don't hide your tears. Ask each child if he or she wants to attend the funeral, and accept each answer as right for that child.
5. Don't stay away. Even if you're afraid you'll say all the wrong things, even if you're too upset to say anything. Grieving people remember your presence and your touch, not your words. Just by being there, you can help them through their pain and help them to accept their loss.

Miss Northeastern Ky.

Jessica Jani, five-year-old daughter of Wan and Lana Jani, was crowned Miss Northeastern Ky. October 18 at Grayson.

Miss Jani also placed second in the American Sweetheart pageant held October 25 at South Point, O., and is now eligible for national competition.

She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Ruby Damron, of Van Lear, and the late Louranza Damron and the great-granddaughter of Chlorie Damron, of Wheelwright.

"Wonder of Western Australia" Explores Wild, Mysterious Land

"The Wonder of Western Australia," a five-part documentary series, captures the spirit of this wild, beautiful and largely unknown land when it premieres Thursday, November 27, at 8:00 p.m. on KET.

Western Australia is an ancient land, billions of years old and a million square miles in size. The coastline stretches for 8,000 miles. Perth, the main population center, is the most isolated city in the world.

In unearthing the many wonders of Western Australia, series director Guy Baskin searched some of the world's most desolate, untouched and amazing land and seascapes. Often, members of the film crew were 500 miles from the nearest human being.

Topics explored include climate, wild-life, geology, biology and the recent history of Western Australia.

The documentary is narrated by John Waters, international star of such successful Australian productions as "Breaker Morant" and "Rush."

Baskin presents many colorful contrasts of the land: the first filmed encounter with the world's smallest marsupial carnivore and a helicopter excursion of the "Lost World Bungle." An extraordinary lost land, "Bungle bungle" has been undisturbed for 1.5 billion years.

The "Wonder of Western Australia" is presented by the Interregional Program Service/Eastern Educational Television Network.

During the Civil War, with metal money being hoarded, postage stamps were often used in lieu of coins.

Hist. Society Assists Classroom Teachers

The Kentucky Historical Society is reaching out to help children discover their state's past. A new guide entitled "Kentucky in the Classroom: A Resource Catalog" has just been published. The 208-page catalog lists books, periodicals, maps, audio-visuals, games, field trips, and resource organizations that may be of interest in Kentucky studies courses. A joint project of the Kentucky Historical Society and the Kentucky Department of Education, the guide has been distributed to 1,400 school libraries and instructional supervisors. Teachers throughout the commonwealth will now be able quickly to locate supplemental materials for use in their classrooms.

Two innovative document kits have been made available to teachers. "The Civil War in Kentucky" uses reproduction of vintage 19th-century maps, diary entries, letters, newspapers, and photographs to help students in grades four through 12 discover how "the Brothers' War" changed the lives of civilians as well as soldiers. The kit contains 31 documents (all 9 inches by 12 inches) and a teacher's guide outlining activities, discussion questions, and background readings. A second kit, "Capitol Ideas," explores the history and evolution of the commonwealth four "Capitol buildings."

"Thousands of students tour the Old and New Capitols each school year," commented Jim Wallace, education specialist at the society. "Now students and teachers will be able to study architectural drawings and photographs before they come to Frankfort so that they can make the most of their visit."

The Kentucky Historical Society, now celebrating its 150th year of service, is committed to ensuring that all Kentuckians, young and old, have the opportunity to discover their heritage. Individuals desiring more information about the society or about Kentucky history in general may write the agency at P.O. Box H, Frankfort, Ky. 40602-2108; the telephone number is (502) 564-3016.

Water Watch Lifted

The statewide Water Shortage Watch that has been in effect for the past three months has been lifted for most of the state. Environmental Protection Cabinet officials announced recently.

The watch, which advised local officials to monitor water supplies and be prepared to take conservation measures, remains in place for the communities of Jenkins, Crofton, Flemingsburg, Manchester, and in Martin County Water District No. 1. Those areas still face water shortage problems.

The watch was lifted because rainfall in September relieved immediate water supply problems, according to the Drought Monitoring Task Force, a group of water resource scientists and managers who advise the Division of Water. The Task Force concluded that streamflow levels have improved enough to discontinue the watch for most of the state, although rainfall in Kentucky is still averaging 73 percent of normal.

The Water Shortage Watch is one part of a Water Shortage Response Plan developed by the cabinet early in the summer when the possibility of severe drought conditions threatened the state. At that time, 35 communities were considered susceptible to severe droughts, based on historical data.

Throughout the drought period, the Division of Water issued a weekly summary of water supply conditions. Division staff worked with local officials to monitor community water supplies and encourage communities to follow the phased-in conservation responses outlined in the plan.

Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Secretary Charlotte Baldwin said the plan helped Kentucky communities cope with water shortages. "The Division of Water worked with 27 communities who were in danger of running low on water," Baldwin said. "These communities prevented critical water shortages by practicing conservation measures from the Water Shortage Response Plan."

COW CREEK PAVING CONTRACT AWARDED

The state Transportation Cabinet has awarded a contract for a surfacing project on Kentucky 194, the Cow Creek-Buffalo Creek road.

Melco-Greer, Inc. of London, received a $87,676 contract to resurface Kentucky 194 from Cow Creek extending northeast two miles.

Big, Yellow Ant Is Scaring Homeowners

Many Kentucky homeowners got an unusual Halloween scare this year in the form of large, yellow ants which they mistook for termites.

"The ants are about one-fourth to three-sixteenths of an inch long, and are pale yellow to yellowish red. Their pale color has caused many people to mistake them for termites," said Lee Townsend, Extension entomologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The ants have "elbowed" antennae and narrow waists. Termites, on the other hand, are cream colored, have straight antennae and broad waists.

"These ants, properly called the Large Yellow Ant, swarm during the cooler months of the year. They'll begin emerging from under foundations and from nests in rotting wood any time from late summer, through the winter until early spring," Townsend said.

Termites do not swarm during the cold months.

The ants are not known to feed on stored food, so although they may invade homes temporarily they are not likely to take up residence.

"They are a nuisance more than a danger. Almost any aerosol insecticide, especially those for flying insects, will take care of the pests. Nests can be treated with any product containing diazinon," Townsend said.

ACHS Places Regional Art Winners

Thirteen woman's clubs participated in the Seventh District art exhibit which includes Floyd, Johnson, Letcher, Perry, Pike, and Magoffin counties.

The winning art works were entered by the Garrett-Lackey-Wayland Woman's Club.

Seek Black Walnut Seed

The Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet's Division of Forestry announced that they will be seeking to purchase 8,000-10,000 bushels of black walnut seed this fall.

Secretary Charlotte Baldwin stated that the seed is being purchased for use in two tree nurseries. The nurseries produce 10-12 million seedlings of 20-24 different species annually. The trees are then sold to private individuals to reforest eroding and nonproductive areas.

Forestry Director Donald Hamm said that in addition to black walnut seed lesser quantities of yellow poplar, white oak, red oak, pin oak, and Chinese chestnut are also being sought. Hamm said that persons interested in selling seed to the state should contact one of the Division of Forestry's district offices. The district office will inform interested parties of the type and quantity of seed desired and prices paid. Since each district may be looking for different species and quantities, it is recommended a person have a commitment from the division before seed is collected.

The seed planted this fall will produce seedlings for planting during the fall of 1987 and the spring of 1988.

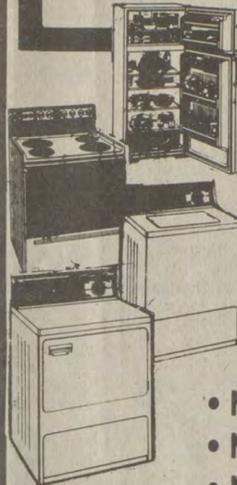

For more information, contact the Kentucky Division of Forestry district office in your area.

Hunter, Morgan Wed

Carla Bays Hunter, of Decatur, Alabama, and Billy Joe Morgan, of Danville, Alabama, were married Saturday at 1 p.m. at Shady Grove Baptist Church by Wendell Callahan.

Parents of the couple are Carl and Doris Bays, of Prestonsburg, and Redding and Francis Morgan, of Danville, Alabama.

Given in marriage by John Breeding, the bride wore a gown of silk organza over taffeta. The princess silhouette bodice featured a high neckline, bib front and fitted sleeves highlighted by lace and pearls. The skirt was overlaid with a pleated design bordered with lace. She wore a riding hat of Venice lace, seed pearls and white silk flowers overlaid with a blusher net and carried a silk bouquet of peach wild flowers and peach and cream colored ribbons.

Sheila Morgan, the groom's sister-in-law, was matron of honor. Joyce Morgan, the groom's sister, was maid of honor. Tiffany Hunter, the bride's daughter, Ashley Morgan and Cassandra Morgan were flower girls.

The groom's father was best man. Groomsmen were Timmie Morgan, the groom's brother, and John Breeding, the groom's brother-in-law. Derek Morgan was ringbearer.

Music was provided by Martha Edwards, pianist, and Gary Taylor, soloist.

Assisting at the reception held at the church were Rebekah Morgan, Rosa Morgan, Kristi Morgan and Sherry Morgan. Rosa Morgan and Kristi Morgan kept the bride's book.

Following a wedding trip to Birmingham, the couple will reside in Decatur, Alabama.

A rehearsal party was given at the church by the groom's family.

MSU Staff Members Are KAWDAC Officers

A Morehead State University staff member was elected president of the Kentucky Association of Women Deans, Administrators and Counselors at its recent fall conference.

Madonna Huffman, director of residence education, will serve a two-year term, beginning immediately.

Huffman holds three degrees from MSU, a bachelor's and two master's. She began working as a full-time staff member in 1972 as associate director of student housing. She assumed her present position in 1985.

The Kentucky Association of Women Deans, Administrators and Counselors is a professional organization of women in higher education which focuses on networking in public and private institutions. Its activities are geared to current trends in administration and professional development.

The association holds a yearly meeting with the executive committee meeting biannually. MSU will host the group's meeting next spring, according to Huffman.

Another MSU staff member, Dallas Sammons, residence hall director, is currently serving as secretary for the association. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Sammons, of Prestonsburg.

TO MEET IN LOUISVILLE

The Council on Higher Education will hold a meeting of the full Council and a number of committee meetings, November 5 and 6, in Room 201 of the Commonwealth Convention Center, 221 4th Avenue, Louisville.

Lowe's Low Payment Credit Terms: Your credit must be satisfactory. Our cash price doesn't include sales tax. Optional Credit Life and Disability insurance is available upon request. Delivery charges are excluded.

Make a purchase of $250 or more between now and Nov. 8, 1986 & ask for 6 months interest-free on Lowe's Low Payment Program. Just pay off the full purchase price within 6 months from the date of purchase. A minimum monthly payment will be established based on the total purchase price. To use the 6 months interest-free plan subtract the monthly payments already made from the original purchase price & pay the difference. You may pay the balance of the original purchase price at any time during the first 6 months interest-free & with no pre-payment penalty. If you elect not to use the 6 months interest-free program, finance charges accrue from the date of purchase with the same low monthly payment.

SPORTS

By Alton Huff

MAIN MAN: John Gilliam (53) adds another notch in his team leading tackle list with his stop of a Murray State runner in Saturday's contest at Jayne Stadium.

THE SPORTING TIMES

They said he retired but I know why Terry Bradshaw isn't playing football anymore; he was killed in the wilderness by a man who thought it his duty to protect God's creatures and creation.

No kidding! It was on TV. Terry Bradshaw was shot to death but luckily he didn't die in vain because Mark McCormick and Judge Milton Hardcastle brought Bradshaw's killer to justice.

Yep, saw it myself just the other night on a rerun of Hardcastle and McCormick. Now you and I both know why Bradshaw's football career came to a sudden end.

We also know why former All-American running back Ed Marinaro didn't play much professional football and why Merlin Olson called it quits.

Marinaro is saving the people of New York's Hill Street division from the criminal minds of society and at the same time trying to enhance his relationship with a female partner.

Merlin Olson could have played several years longer but he thought his family was more important than earning all-pro so he loaded the wife and kids in a covered wagon and moved to the country, in the same neighborhood as Charles Ingels.

Life was wonderful until the town went broke and they blew it all too. Merlin, sorry, Johnathon, left Walnut Grove with full intention of returning to football but he had to go serve as a priest for some orphan children.

Marinaro's life as a cop was so good that he told Fred Dryer to get out of football and become a policeman. "Oh, yea Fred," Ed said. "Don't forget to get a lady partner."

Dryer decided to give it a try and we might add, he has went after bad guys with as much vengeance as he did opposing quarterbacks.

Kareem Abdul Jabbar loved his life of being a mean ole giant so much that he turned completely nasty. Kareem turned his back on basketball and left for an island of gold. No one knows what might have become of this talented athlete if the 'Man From Atlantis' hadn't shown him direction.

Alex Karas used to be mean. Especially on the football field but the big guy decided he also had a big heart. Football didn't appeal to Karas anymore. What he really wanted to do was retire, get married, adopt an unfortunate child, and have the happy ever after story told, so millions of Americans could follow his kind example.

Now, these facts are rarely told and not many people are aware of the true stories behind why these professional athletes left their respective sports.

I bet you thought it was because of their age or a terrible injury, no way. They just had a change of heart and wanted something different to do with their lives.

Take Bubba Smith for example. Most people thought he left football for one of the normal reasons but he didn't.

Bubba, being of the intelligent nature which blesses defensive linemen, noticed that Ed and Fred were getting a head start in the police world so he threw away his athletic career and enrolled in the police academy.

Everybody thought this was merely a movie but not so. Bubba joined the academy and some Hollywood joker figured it would make an interesting movie so they made a movie about Bubba Smith's life, except they didn't include the part where he played football.

The factual story of why athletes changed lives could go on forever because, believe it or not, professional athletics isn't all that glamorous.

Why else would Terry Bradshaw go hunting in the great western wilderness? Why would Merlin Olson leave it for the country?

If you aren't convinced just take a look at how many players have decided to retire for the sole reason of being a cop, or a farmer.

Tell me one thing. What happened to Joe Namath. We all thought he retired from football. Bad knees, age catching up, the whole bit. But a little while after Hollywood Joe quit playing, he showed up teaching school and coaching, of all things, basketball.

Now, Joe should have stayed in football. Why? I reckon he got fired from his teaching position because after a while no one saw Joe around school.

Getting fired is something Joe is used to by now but what hurts me was the fact that he lost his coaching job. With all of his football experience Joe Namath was the most logical choice to name as your high school basketball coach.

I hope you believe all of this. It is everything but facts. You don't have to take my word for it. Just ask John Fogerty, we both saw it on TV.

Hyden Makes Tough Loss Bearable As Blackcats Look Forward To '87 Year

In their second overtime series running back Mark Holbrook found paydirt on a fourth and one attempt to give his Morgan County Cougars a 20-17 victory over Prestonsburg but for Blackcat fans this particular play and the loss was over shadowed by the efforts of quarterback Steve Hyden and a pair of talented receivers.

Hyden, who saw only reserve duty earlier in the season, arrived in full form Friday night, throwing for 257 yards and running for an additional 60.

Going to the air a total of 31 times Hyden completed 12 of those attempts with one touchdown while finding the end zone once on the ground.

Of Hyden's 12 completions seven were hauled in by the capable hands of Darrin Flannery but more impressively the seven catches netted Flannery over 200 yards in his final Blackcat football effort.

The Hyden to Flannery connection accounted for Prestonsburg's first and only score through the air.

In their second possession Hyden found Flannery for a 68-yard completion and following a fumble recovered by the Blackcats, Hyden once again hit a wide open Darrin Flannery, this time for a 26-yard touchdown.

The aerial score came with 4:31 remaining in the first quarter, capping off a three play, 85-yard drive which took less than two minutes to complete.

Morgan County came back with a successful drive of their own to tie the score with just over three and one half minutes left in the first half but Hyden and Prestonsburg made the tie a short lived one.

On their following drive the southpaw quarterback directed his Blackcats from their own 30 into Morgan County territory but following a holding call and an incomplete pass Prestonsburg, was faced with a fourth down and 13 from the Cougar 46.

Back in punt formation Hyden appeared set to kick the pigskin away but what could have been a loss of possession turned into a Prestonsburg score as the youthful quarterback eluded would be tacklers in his touchdown path.

Unfortunately for the Blackcats Hyden's scoring run proved to be Prestonsburg's final touchdown of the night while Morgan County crossed the goal line twice to earn their second victory of the season.

The Cougars scored their tying touchdown in the third quarter when quarterback Brad Pelfrey found paydirt from two yards out with 6:19 showing on the third period clock.

In the overtime period Prestonsburg chalked up a field goal in their fourth down effort but Holbrook's six pointer wiped out the Blackcat kick.

With the loss Prestonsburg ends a rebuilding season at 1-8 but an enthusiastic Chuke Williams is looking forward to a new football year in 1987.

"We may be a step slow and lack physical strength but if we are willing to work hard then I think you will see a different team next season," Coach Williams said.

Penalties Halt Bobcat Attack In Final Contest

The high school season is over now but when the Betsy Layne Bobcats remember 1986 they will look back with both pride and disappointment.

With pride because of their winning season which represents the first of such in Betsy Layne's football history and with disappointment due to their final contest with Pikeville.

It isn't how you play the game it's how much help you get and the Pikeville Panthers got a whole lot of the latter Friday in downing Betsy Layne 30-7.

Leading 7-3 to begin the second half the Bobcats were covered in a shower of yellow, suffering a total of 110 yards in penalties which Coach Jack Hall says certainly didn't help.

"I'm not saying that we got the game taken from us but a call here and a call there can surely change the outcome of a close game," Hall said.

"It seemed like every time we got something started the officials would throw a flag and move us back," Hall continued.

One play in particular that has Jack Hall questioning the credibility of Friday night's officials was the chop block call.

"They called that three times on us," Coach Hall said. "In the third quarter we were down 10-7 and we ran a draw which gained over 20 yards but they brought it back, saying we blocked below the waist."

"I asked the official what he called below the waist and he said 'Coach he hit him below the knees' then I asked him if he hit him above the waist first and he said 'yes but it's still an illegal block.'"

"I've got a rule book right here with an illustration that shows that if your first block is above the waist and then you fall down it isn't an illegal block," Hall pointed out.

Although Coach Hall can prove his point, nobody will listen now, as nobody listened Friday night and the end product is a Bobcat loss.

With the setback Betsy Layne finishes the season with a 6-4 record and looking past Pikeville Jack Hall sees a pleasingly successful season.

"I said before the season began that if we had a winning season I would be pleased and I am because I thought our kids played well," Hall said.

"I had anticipated a 5-5 or even a 4-6 record but when we won those six in a row I was tickled to death," Hall continued. "We beat Whitesburg which no one anticipated and the Knott Central game could have went either way and we beat Prestonsburg for the first time ever so I feel that we had a good year."

With their successful season the football seed has been planted at Betsy Layne High School and under the direction of Jack Hall most Bobcat followers expect it to grow in the upcoming season.

The Bobcats lose seven seniors, including quarterback Bud Newsome and talented lineman and linebacker Joey Cecil along with Kenton and Benton Nunemaker but a host of experienced and proven players return.

However, the 1987 road may prove to be a tougher one to hoe as the Bobcats say good-bye to single A and say hello to one of the toughest two A districts in the Eastern Kentucky area.

"Leslie County is 8-1 this season and Whitesburg is loaded with sophomores and juniors. Prestonsburg is an established program although they were young this season so this district is probably the toughest one in the mountains,"

Eagles Dream Season Rapidly Becoming Flashback Of Past

Less than two weeks ago Morehead State University football was on top of the world.

Their six victories to open this season had the Eagles ranked second in the nation and more importantly had them alone atop the Ohio Valley Conference.

About then is when the slipper didn't fit anymore and Morehead State's cinderella season began to crumble around them.

First came the Akron Zips and a 30-7 MSU loss. Within a three hour span the Eagles saw their perfect record disappear and along with it a conference lead and their national ranking.

Somewhere among all of this losing and disappearing the Eagles failed to regroup thus enters Murray State, bringing with them another Morehead State loss.

The Racers scored 17 points on their first three possessions and coasted to a 45-11 victory in Morehead, Saturday afternoon.

With the win Murray State lifted their OVC record to 3-1, good enough for at least a share of the conference lead.

On the other sideline Morehead State suffered their second conference loss but according to head football coach Bill Baldrige, his team isn't out of the playoff race yet.

"It isn't over until its over," Baldrige said in a radio interview Saturday. "It isn't over until the fat lady sings and she isn't ready to sing for us yet."

Baldrige added that if his team could rally and win their final three games then, they would possibly be a playoff team but the task awaiting Morehead State is by no means an easy one.

Starting this Saturday, the Eagles begin a home stretch which features two of their toughest contests yet and to add impossibility to difficulty, both are on the road.

Saturday at 2:30 Morehead State will line up helmet to helmet against defending OVC champion Middle Tennessee.

The last time MSU won in Murfreesboro was in 1980 and against the Blue Raiders, Eagle victories are rare indeed.

In their previous 36 encounters, Morehead State teams have won only seven and with 16 starters returning, 10 offensively, Middle might just deny the Eagles once again.

In their final two games MSU plays

Youngstown State at home before closing out the season in Richmond to tangle with Eastern Kentucky.

With what Morehead State has proven they can do, no one has counted them out and even though they don't control their conference winning destiny, with three season ending victories the Eagles could very easily claim an OVC title.

These final three weeks will put conference leaders against conference leaders so don't tell the Fat Lady to clear her throat yet, Morehead State has some football left in them.

Trojans End Season With Even Record

Bobby Hood's ten-yard touchdown pass to Stevie Little wasn't enough to rally Wheelwright and neither was Handy Jackson's fourth quarter scoring run of 25 yards as the Trojans fell at home to powerful Paintsville 34-12.

The Tigers scored on their third play from scrimmage when quarterback Todd Burchill executed a successful option play and the rest was downhill for Wheelwright.

"We just weren't ready for this game, we came out awfully flat," Trojan head coach Roger Johnson said.

With the loss Wheelwright finishes their season with 5-5 record and Coach Johnson says that isn't too bad.

"A 5-5 record isn't a losing record and it is a lot better than most people thought we would do. Most people thought we probably wouldn't even score and I had began to think that too after the Pikeville game and the Hazard game but the teams we lost to were good football teams."

"I was well pleased with the way we played this season," Coach Johnson said of his young Trojans.

Now that the season is over all Wheelwright can do is wait until next season and for Roger Johnson the wait is an exciting one.

"I'm looking forward to next season. We have a lot of good young kids back and I think that we will have a pretty good club," Johnson predicted.

However for some talented seniors next season won't bring another high school campaign but this doesn't exactly mean their football careers are over. Tony Hutton and Johnny Isaac head a list of talented Trojans possessing college ability and have already attracted attention from college scouts.

Hutton, a tough and quick tailback, has drawn attention within the Union College program while Isaac has set his goals somewhat higher.

According to Coach Roger Johnson, Tennessee has requested film and information on Isaac's ability and the coach also feels that Hutton could be effective in OVC competition, if not now maybe in a year or so.

Arrestment is scheduled Friday at 1:00 for University of Kentucky forward Todd Zeigler who has been charged with shoplifting.

According to reports Zeigler, a 6-7 reserve Wildcat forward, was caught with an unpurchased item outside a Lexington store Thursday night.

Zeigler has been suspended from the Wildcat basketball team, at least until the circumstances can be cleared up.

With the suspension of Zeigler and Winston Bennett's injury, the UK basketball squad now has a grand total of nine members.

During his playing days, Larry Bow was a player known for getting the most possible productivity from his natural talents.

Now Bow is expected to relay this method to his San Diego Padre players as manager of the National League team.

Bow, 40, gained managerial experience in San Diego's minor league system this past season but come spring training he will be calling the shots from the top and calling them for a team which finished 14 games under .500 in 1986.

Former Cy Young, award winner LaMar Hoyt is once again in legal hot water due to drugs.

Back in February, Hoyt experienced alcohol-related problems and a week later sought help for additional drug difficulties.

Now the San Diego righthander is facing charges of illegal drug smuggling. Hoyt was caught this past week in a San Diego airport, apparently attempting to bring from Mexico a quantity of illegal drugs.

Martin Youth Center Holds Pool Tournament

The Martin Youth Center held a pool tournament October 21 at Martin. First place winner was Walt Carroll, who received a trophy, and second place winner was Kara Hall, who received a basketball.

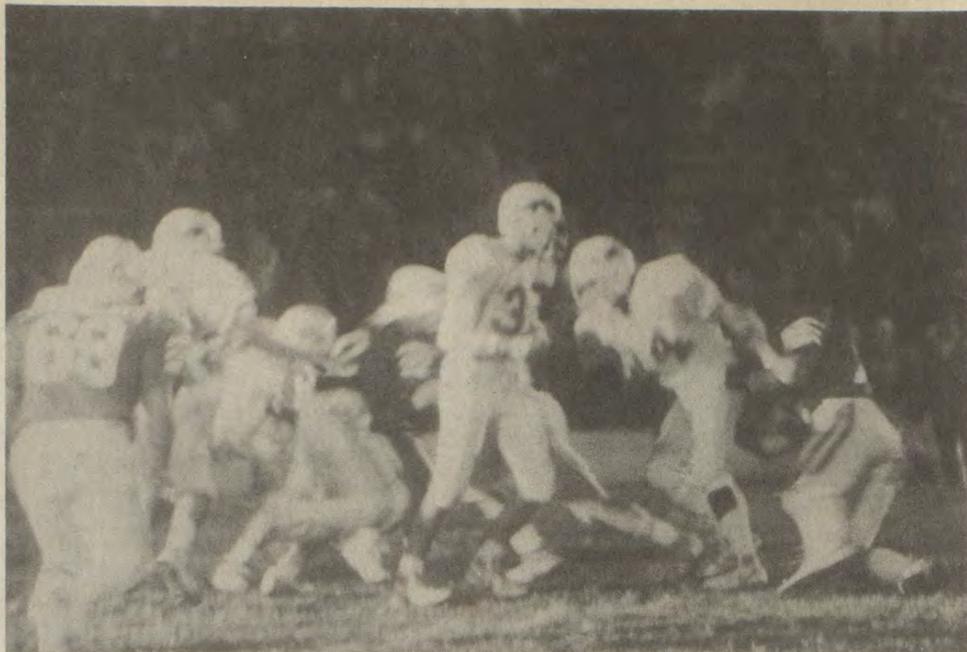

Also participating in the tournament were R. J. Prater, Kenny Rudder, Billy Akers, David Patrick, Tony Carroll, James Carroll, Teddy Burchett, Roy Pack, Brian Moore.

Maytown Grade Girls Win Garrett Tourney

Maytown Grade School's girls' varsity basketball team won the Garrett Invitational Tournament, held recently. Team members are Sheila Brown, Allison Ratliff, Selena Green, Nancy Patton, Stacy Moore, Darnella Bradley, Teresa Martin, Missy Hamilton, Brenda Slone, Jenny Wiley, Linda Slone, Kim Anderson, Marsha Brown and Millison Ratliff. Team coach is Ruth Ann Moore, and assistant coach is Steve Slone.

HOT NIGHT: Prestonsburg's Darrin Flannery gathers in another catch against the Cougars. Unofficially Flannery recorded over 200 yards in total receptions.

SLIPPING AWAY: A Prestonsburg defender holds on as defensive help is on the way. The Blackcats lost their season finale to Morgan County Friday night.

News And Notes From The NFL

Six weeks ago everyone had all but written off the Los Angeles Raiders from their playoff list but after losing their first three games to open the season LA proceeded to win five straight to place their name back on that list and some people began to reconsider their thoughts.

However, those same people have once again excused the Raiders from post season action and with good reason this time. Five turnovers gave Denver a win over LA Sunday and with this the Raiders fall three games off the AFC West pace and the schedule doesn't get any easier.

After turning an important divisional game over to the Broncos, Los Angeles now has to travel to Dallas for a must game on both sides of the field.

Dallas, like LA, is coming off an important divisional loss but in Sunday's game the Cowboys lost much more than one contest because thanks to Carl Banks Dallas will be without quarterback Danny White for at least four weeks.

After Los Angeles the Cowboys have San Diego, Washington, and Seattle, not a nice stretch to enter without your leader and most valuable player.

Injuries seemed to be the hottest item in week nine and no team suffered a bigger loss than did New England. The Patriots, trying to stay alive in the AFC East, kept pace with a victory over Atlanta but they lost outstanding linebacker Andre Tippett who suffered a sprained left knee.

The New York Jets added insult to injury with their victory over Seattle. Last year's number one ranked passer Ken O'Brian hooked up with this year's leading receiver Al Toon for two first half touchdowns to help themselves and Denver.

Other than a week 11 encounter with the Rams the next few games would seem as less difficult ones for the Patriots so Tippett probably won't be missed badly if he can come back shortly.

Speaking of the Rams and getting help they did just that. Other than New England's victory over Atlanta, New Orleans upset San Francisco thanks to Ruben Mays' 128 yards and two touchdowns.

Mays wasn't the only player who emerged as a valuable asset Sunday. Minnesota quarterback Tommy Kramer threw for just under 500 yards but his Vikings fell in overtime to Washington and keep falling out of the wildcard chase.

With the incredible effort Kramer became football's top ranked passer along with setting a single game Minnesota record and remember, this is the team that owned rights to Fran Tarkenton.

No positive offense records were set in Monday's contest unless you count Erick Dickerson's taking over Lawrence McCutchen's former Ram rushing record. However, Gary Fencik tied a Bear all-time interception record while Jerry Gray closed in on Ronnie Lott's league leading pickoff number. Gray intercepted one to give him six on the season, two behind Lott.

After playing to a 3-0 score in the first half these two defenses sparked their offenses to score a total of 31 points in the third quarter.

Looking forward to this Sunday about the only game of interest is the Los Angeles, Dallas matchup where the Raiders will try to deny further NFC dominance. In 32 inter-conference games the NFC has captured 19 wins and without White it could remain at 19 as far as this contest is concerned.

Monday night may prove to be an exciting game with Miami beginning to show signs of becoming a good football team in 1986 while Cleveland is in the midst of a divisional race.

Other news of note, Don Coryell quit San Diego with his team suffering at 1-7 and in Buffalo Hank Bullough has been fired and Mark Levy was named to replace him.

It is a bad time to be an NFL coach on a struggling team such as Tampa Bay, St. Louis, and Indianapolis and even though these teams lack a great deal of talent the coaches receive the blame so look for some changes to be made in these cities soon.

Next February when the Cincinnati Reds head for Florida they will be without temperamental pitcher John Denny.

Cincinnati management has decided not to take advantage of the one year, one million dollar option on Denny's contract.

The Reds may also be without veteran shortstop Dave Concepcion who is expected to enter the free agent market but Cincinnati did scrape up enough money to lengthen Bo Diaz's contract.

After thrilling fans for 16 years Julius Erving has had enough of basketball so says Dr. J.

Erving announced this week that this 1986-87 season will be his last in professional basketball.

One of the few remaining survivors of the ABA, Erving will be remembered as one of basketball's greatest and most exciting players.

Amidst controversy and turmoil Maryland basketball coach Lefty Driesel resigned this past Thursday.

In 17 years Lefty had recorded an impressive 348 wins against only 159 losses but it all came to an end this past week.

Five-year Maryland assistant coach Ron Bradley was named as head man to fill the vacancy left by Lefty.

Kentucky Afield Show Draws Good Response

A recent Kentucky Afield television program offering viewers a chance to call in questions about fish and wildlife generated an excellent response, according to officials of both the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and Kentucky Educational Television (KET), co-sponsors of the program.

During the Oct. 22 broadcast, 109 calls were received in approximately 30 minutes. Questions covered a broad range of topics about hunting, fishing, wildlife laws and out-of-doors. Kentucky Afield is broadcast every Wednesday on KET at 7:30 p.m. EST (6:30 central time).

Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Don R. McCormick, Acting Wildlife Director Lauren Schaaf and Law Enforcement Director Paul Oliver were guest panelists of the show responding to questions from viewers across the state, as well as from out of state.

Although several questions were addressed during the program, time did not permit many questions to be answered on the air. Inquiries not discussed on the show will be addressed on subsequent shows via taped interviews with the panelists. Persons who gave their names and addresses will receive responses through the mail as soon as possible, if their question is not answered or discussed on later programs.

KET Program Director Kirk Lehtoma said response to the show as one of the most successful for a call-in format program since he has worked with KET.

Professional Wrestling Comes To MSU

Morehead State University will be the site of an MWA Professional Wrestling Event on Thursday, Nov. 6 at 8:00 p.m. in Wetherby Gymnasium.

The card includes World Wrestling Federation star Cousin Junior against Ron Sexton, a heavyweight title match between Dale "TNT" Mann and the Super Star, plus a ladies match between Dollie Dalton and Teresa Monroe. The Mad Mongolian and Playboy Tony Falk will also be on hand.

The night will be topped off with an eight-man "Thunderdome" anything goes match.

Tickets at the door are $6 for ringside, $5 for general admission, and $3 for children 12 and under.

The event is being sponsored by the Eagle Athletic Fund and the MSU Student Government Association.

Bassin' With The Pros...

Benefits Of Belonging To B.A.S.S.

If you're reading this column, you have a keen interest in the sport of bass fishing. It's nice to think of fishing as a pastime, but when you graduate to the level of keeping a fishing log, have an insatiable appetite for the latest lure selections, and would rather catch a four pounder instead of the three pounder your friend caught yesterday, then you've definitely made the transition into the sport of bass fishing.

Just like any other sport, there's an organization to which you should belong to get more out of your leisure-time activity. I'm talking B.A.S.S.—the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society founded in 1968 to bring together the most avid bass fishermen in America. It's more than just a fraternal organization for professional bass fishermen. It seeks to stimulate public awareness of bass fishing, introduce youth to the wonders of fishing, and provide state conservation departments with organized moral and political support via promotion of good conservation practices. Just as importantly, BASS demands adequate water standards, and encourages both private and governmental study into all the reasons why fishing on our lakes and streams is deteriorating. Finally, it seeks out solutions for restoring and maintaining top bass fishing conditions.

That's a big chunk of real estate to chew. In order to safeguard these goals, more members are needed to support local efforts by local BASS chapters. The time and effort you give are more than adequately rewarded by the benefits of BASS and the skills you learn from fellow bass sportsmen.

"One of the tremendous benefits of belonging to BASS is the magazine which has articles about bass fishing from all points of the country, and all the new techniques that are utilized out on the fishing circuit, which is where just about anything is tested whether it's a new product of a new technique," Johnson Outboard Pro Staff member Randy Fite points out. "The first time someone uses a new product or technique and has success with it, then the next issue of Bassmaster has an article about that. I think there are a lot of good basic articles done by the pros that offer a lot of information."

"I think probably the biggest benefit of any organization that has a magazine like Bassmaster is that it has tournament reports: Who won the tournament and how they did it," emphasizes Ken Cook, Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff member. "I think that's the most honest information that you can get for what sort of fishing technique was successful to that set of conditions—and both the techniques and the conditions will be reported fairly accurate. You can take that information and over a period of time it works almost as well as having your own log book to get information about seasonal patterns, and particular patterns that are successful during various times of the year. That's the real shortcut in learning to be a successful fisherman. That kind of information comes from a good monthly magazine like Bassmaster."

One of the other important benefits of belonging to BASS is the bass club federation, which gives the bass club member the opportunity to participate in some tournaments that can lead to bigger and better things. That's how Ken Cook started to fish competitively. "Of course, I went through the Bass Federation ranks where I got my start in professional fishing. I realized through some of those tournaments that I could make it."

A less pronounced though very important benefit of BASS is its support network located in Montgomery, Ala. The membership services include a bass fishing information service which provides information on top-producing lakes, nearby hotels/motels, marinas and guide services. If you want to be put in touch with a chapter near where you are vacationing, they'll provide you with a contact.

How much is all this worth? Some organizations to which I belong in other fields charge up to $35 a year. A similar organization with almost the same benefits, the National Rifle Association, charges $20 annually for membership. So, the $15 that the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society asks for is simply a bargain—especially since two-thirds of that goes toward your Bassmaster subscription fulfillment. For just over one dollar a month, you can buy a goldmine of information!

For further information or BASS membership, write to: Bass Anglers Sportsman Society, P.O. Box 17900 Dept. BWP, Montgomery, AL 36141. And be sure to tell them that "Bassin' with the Pros" columnist Trey Foerster sent ya!

Before putting your boat and motor away for the winter months, be sure to add fuel stabilizer to the remaining fuel, advises the service experts at Johnson Motors. Add the correct amount of stabilizer product, such as OMC's 2+4 Fuel Conditioner®, and then run the motor long enough to get treated fuel into the carburetors. The stabilizer will prevent varnish and gum from forming in the carburetors during the winter.

"Ring-Tailed Bandits"

By A.G. SPENCER

When I was a college student, my sojourns between my cramped apartment and the university took me by a neat little cottage-style house with a garden and a white picket fence. To complete this Rockwellian image was an old man who sat on the porch, occasionally leaning over to squirt an amber stream of Red Man into his brass spittoon. He always waved to me—and to anyone else who traipsed past—so I waved back to be neighborly.

I think I finally met Old man Wiley one day when I was out walking my beagle. It turned out that he was a lonely widower whose only son lived in Tennessee. The elderly fellow was also an avid fisherman who used to hunt when he was younger and better able to negotiate the uplands. Being homesick for Eastern Kentucky and just plain sick of the big city, I found it refreshing to talk to someone who was interested in wildlife and the outdoors instead of more sedentary goings-on.

Wiley and I soon became fast friends, gabbing across the fence at least once a day. I dropped squirrels and groundhogs by for the old gentleman on a regular basis, too, as he had confessed to loving game meats.

One afternoon he asked if I had ever seen any 'coons in town. I told him that I had not, but that I would not be the least bit surprised if there were a few, allowing as how frequently skunks and 'possums were run over on the main drag, only two blocks away. With a glint in his eye, as if expecting a challenge, Wiley told me that I should come by around dusk, if I could wait quietly for about half an hour, to see at least a dozen 'coons. More than a little doubt lingered in my mind as I knocked on the door a few hours later.

All of my doubts evaporated scant minutes later, however, when 14 adult raccoons invaded Wiley's back yard near downtown Lexington! It seems that he had been feeding the little pirates for more than a year and a half, frying cornbread fritters and doling out table scraps to supplement his regular contribution of dry dog food!

Wiley first found out about the masked bandits when some coins he had been cleaning for his collection disappeared from where he left them on the back porch. At first he suspected some unruly kids, especially when he kept finding his garbage bags ripped open, with the refuse strewn over his lawn. Soon afterward, he went into his back yard to search out the cause of a rattling noise. With a flashlight in one hand a .357 revolver in the other, Wiley heard more suspicious sounds emanating from one of his garbage cans. The culprit was discovered when Wiley got to the last can: there stood a big boar 'coon, staring back blinkingly in face of the flashlight's harsh glare.

Old Man Wiley said he couldn't help but laugh when he caught the unrepentant 'coon red-handed. He eased the garbage can over onto its side, whereupon the ring-tailed creature departed post-haste.

Wiley decided that he would rob some nuggets from his terrier's bag of dog food to put out on the porch just to see if the little scoundrel had the gall to come back. Wiley just had to see if the 'coons would come back. They did—in droves!

The point of this long-winded dissertation? Mr. Raccoon can survive, indeed, thrive, almost anywhere. He has shown up in the downtown areas of such megalopolis as New York and Dallas, in the wilds of Canada and Oregon, and in the backwoods of Vermont and Alabama. He even seems to do a booming real estate business in the thorny, inhospitable east Texas brush country!

We will examine the vagaries of chasing this spunky little varmint (in fact, those who hunt the tough 'coons more often than not let them go once they "have them treed"), as well as upcoming seasons for grouse, quail, rabbit and squirrel (again) in next week's column.

While you are probably already licking your chops in anticipation of the gun season for deer, here is a reminder for the other folks: Gun season begins statewide on November 8 and runs for 3, 5 or 10 consecutive days, depending upon the county's zone status. What? Yes, you guessed it: we get only a 3-day season here in Floyd County. Next year, this ol' boy is heading toward a bank on the Kentucky side of the Ohio River, but don't ask me where. The only company I want is a big 10-point. Call me greedy, but when one dreams, he might as well dream big.

Until next week, be safe, and happy hunting!

ROAST 'COON

Parboil in salted water for 30 minutes or so, depending on the size and age of the 'coon. Drain and pat dry, season with salt and pepper and any herbs of your choice. Roast at 300° with a bit of apple juice in the bottom of the roaster for three or four hours, basting frequently with the liquid that accumulates in the pan. If the 'coon is fairly mature and/or exceptionally large, you may wish to cover the pan for part of the cooking time, but be sure to remove the cover during the last 30 minutes or so. If you dust the meat with flour after each basting, the crust will be crisp and crackly. Roast 'coon may also be stuffed.

Join In Cross-Country Run

The cross-country team at Mountain Christian Academy participated in the Three Rivers Conference for the first time this year. Team members are, from left, Robin Jones, Sandra Bormes, Jessica Summers, Chris Strack, Mary Beth Dudleyson, and Ryan Shepherd. The students were accompanied by athletic director David Hall and coach Dave Hensley.

Hi, I'm Dicky Beal. I would like to introduce you to The Life Changer. Would you like to have endless energy, endurance, and stamina, without drugs or steroids? I mean, just plain feel good and have a positive attitude. Man, do I have good news for you. A friend introduced me to The Life Changer just six months ago. I haven't been the same since. I've found out that if you give your body total nutrition the natural way, your body will astound you with more dynamic performance ability. In my research, I've found that President Ronald Reagan and Queen Elizabeth take Bee Pollen, as well as many olympic athletes. Other sports figures, such as Billie Jean King, Arnold Palmer, Bill Walton and Mohammed Ali, are Bee Pollen users. Steve Redding, once tabbed as the "fastest human alive" takes Bee Pollen. Many Pro Football teams today are on a Bee Pollen program, including the Dallas Cowboys. Give your body a lift! Energize your body the natural way, and enjoy all the benefits. I challenge you to give your body the help it needs. Do what so many athletes are doing today. Put 100% natural food in your body, The Life Changer way, and BEE pleasantly surprised at the performance you'll get. Consistency is extremely important. If you really want the products to work, eat Mr. Bee Pollen every day. Allow from 2 days to 6 months for results. I wish I had discovered The Life Changer long ago.

Dicky Beal

Be sure to ask for the original Mr. Bee Pollen!

SKY BANDITS (PG-Galaxy International) Starring Scott McGinnis, Jeff Osterhage, Ronald Lacey. ★

By J.T. YURKO

Picture Melvin and Maude, an average movie-going couple who have just paid their money at the local 10-plex and are sitting down to see "Sky Bandits." The images that greet them are straight out of the Wild West. In sepia tones two cowboys rob a bank and escape on horseback, kicking dust in the faces of the posse riding hard on their tails. "Are you sure this is 'Sky Bandits'?" says Maude. "It looks more like 'Butch Cassidy.' Maybe we're in the wrong theater."

Dear Maude: You are in the wrong theater. The theater is showing "Sky Bandits," but you're still in the wrong theater. Anyone over the age of 14 who goes to see "Sky Bandits" is in the wrong theater. And most of those under 14 are in the wrong theater as well.

Eventually the two wisecracking desperadoes, played by Scott McGinnis and Jeff Osterhage, two made-for-TV-movie veterans, find their way into World War I, and from there into the air corps, where they become the wisecracking "Hawkeyes."

McGinnis and Osterhage

are likable enough as the cross-genre heroes. The trouble comes in trying to figure out which genre we're in. The entire proceedings take on a surrealistic air, and the science-fiction German bomber looks as though it came straight out of Jules Verne's imagination. It's certainly not out of any history books. The camp that the flying squadron calls home is a circus tent worthy of Fellini, but little more is made of it.

The talent behind the scenes is considerable. This is Zoran Perisic's first directing job, but he won an Academy Award for the flying sequences in "Superman," and director of cinematography David Watkin won last year's Academy Award for his work on "Out of Africa."

With a budget of some $18 million, this is one of the most expensive independent productions ever filmed. But the film plays it very safe. Too many tried-and-true formulas are at work here, and too few of them work. Even the special effects will please only air buffs and arsonists.

THE GEORGE MCKENNA STORY

George McKenna (Denzel Washington) is named principal of a gang-ridden Los Angeles high school and turns it around completely — into a superior academic institution. Lynn Whitfield plays his girlfriend. "The George McKenna Story" airs TUESDAY, NOV. 11, on CBS.

VIDEO SCENE

Iggy Pop has wild energy under control in new clip

By Barton Weiss

"Cry for Love," Iggy Pop's first video in quite some time, is full of wild angry-young-man energy. It's the kind of energy that usually leads to chaos, but here it's controlled.

Iggy Pop

Iggy runs, sings, prances and dances around deserted highways, factories and junkyards that inhabit the other end of the urban dream.

In the middle of the clip, there's a great shot of Iggy in a hotel room. He walks around, and as the camera circles him, we see his image repeated by feedback on the TV set. Then, the second time around, we see his face as a reflection in the now-turned-off TV.

Sultry sensuality

Another clip that uses an urban industrial throw-away background is Robbie Nevil's "C'est La Vie." But in place of anger and angst, this clip has a sultry sensuality.

This clip also has a shot in a hotel room, but this shot is simply one of Nevil and a few sensually dressed women dancing around.

Police '86

It's fitting that the first reworked single and video from the Police's retrospective record and soon-to-be-released film compilation is "Don't Stand So Close to Me." It's now called "Don't Stand So Close '86," and this version is about how the Police now feel about each other.

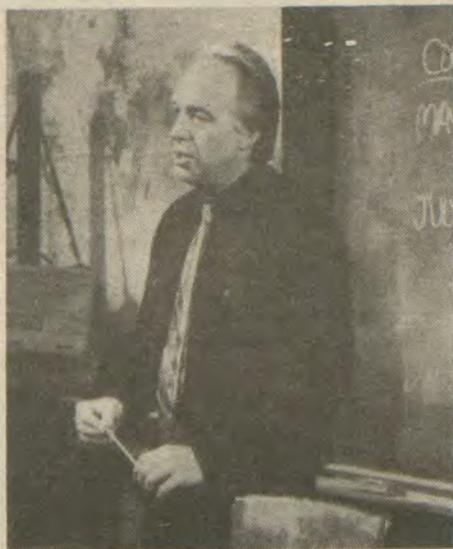

The opening of the video sets up the scene. We see colored hollow shells of the three stars, each moving around his own axis, and the threesome never interact with each other. Instead, they spin around with snippets from their rich videography that inhabit this electronic landscape, which also includes floating drums and guitars.

The tone of the visuals is nostalgic, but there is a real coldness to the clip. I may be in the minority here, but I like it.

Disastrous remake

The Far Corporation has done a disco version of "Stairway to Heaven," and it has to be the worst remake of a classic tune yet. The audio is awful, and the video, a live-looking stage performance, is even worse.

It's in that delicate space where it's not so bad that it's funny; it's just baaad.

HEAD OF THE CLASS

Howard Hesseman tries to teach his gifted students a thing or two on "Head of the Class," which airs WEDNESDAY, NOV. 12, on ABC.

Trial Lawyers Uphold a Great Tradition—And The Law

Clarence Darrow, perhaps the foremost American attorney to plead for the defense, was a plain man whose brooding eyes indicated he knew well the pain and suffering of others.

Best known for his defense of John Scopes, a Tennessee high school teacher who broke a state law in 1925 by presenting the Darwinian theory of evolution, Darrow thrived on controversial cases. He won the acquittal of a radical labor leader for the assassination of a former Idaho governor, and he saved two convicted murderers from the death penalty.

"I may hate the sin but never a sinner," Darrow once said—a statement that to Boyce Holleman, a Gulfport, Miss., attorney, "just about sums up our legal system, which affords everyone a fair trial, and it may well be the trial lawyer's creed."

Darrow was a superb debater and his courtroom skills made him both a folk hero and a legend. Yet all trial lawyers—the attorneys who regularly do battle before juries in courtrooms—are the inheritors of a great tradition of oral rhetoric, and for the most part they are accomplished storytellers.

Like the traditional raconteur, the trial lawyer must be able to construct a basic plot, present the scenes with style, authority and credibility and, most importantly, appeal to audiences to believe in the tales they tell. Indeed, trial lawyers are probably the only professionals in the United States today who make their living telling stories, face to face, to a dozen people.

While students learn jurisprudence in law school, trial lawyers often learn their craft in the courtroom observing the more proficient practitioners firsthand. Novices also attend trial advocacy programs and workshops, which simulate trial settings. As a sign of professional responsibility, many eminent attorneys donate time to such programs, demonstrating their distinct approaches to the craft. It's this on-the-job training that allows the folk tradition of trial law, that is, storytelling, to be passed along from generation to generation.

The skills and lore of trial lawyers were a major focus of the Smithsonian Institution's 20th annual Festival of American Folklife this past summer. Previous festivals have explored the cultural traditions of other varied professions such as plumbing, bartending and stone carving, but to many, featuring the lawyers came as an intriguing surprise.

At least one out of 10 attorneys in this country is a trial lawyer. According to the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, there are about 600,000 lawyers in the United States and 68,000 are members of the association.

For attorneys who regularly venture before juries, developing and refining a distinctive, personal courtroom manner is critical. There is no single image of stylistic excellence with the profession. One Folklife Festival participant, Judge Charles Becton of Raleigh, N.C.—considered by many to be the best trial lawyer in North Carolina and a magnificent performer—offers this advice to would-be trial lawyers: "Don't mimic another's style. But borrow or steal every good technique or style of delivery and adapt it to your style."

Many trial lawyers direct their delivery and style not only toward the juries, but to their opponents as well. Diana Marshall, a Houston defense attorney, has developed a guileful manner in dealing with male attorneys who choose to underestimate her. She admits she's "won a few cases by planting the notion that little old me wouldn't really take a case all the way to trial" without first trying to settle out of court. Then, she confesses, she'll spend an entire weekend preparing for trial while opposing counsel goes to the golf course.

Style may impress a jury, but it's been known to backfire. New York City prosecutor Jo Ann Harris tells about one of her cases in which a man had been accused of stealing social security checks and "compelling" the recipients to endorse the checks so he could cash them. The defense counsel was "from the old school. He was rambunctious, loud and emotional in his cross-examination of government witnesses and during his opening and closing statements to the jury." The jury convicted his client.

Ironically, after the trial, the jurors surrounded the defense attorney and lavished him with praise. Harris even overheard one juror say, "If I ever get into trouble for anything serious, I'll be sure to call you." Harris explains that while everyone likes to be entertained, the jurors in this particular case had no difficulty making the distinction between "flash" and the facts.

Like the storytellers in traditional folk societies, trial lawyers size up their audiences to determine a likely reaction. But there's considerable sensitivity within the profession that juries may feel lawyers are merely "acting." So the trial lawyer attempts to present to the jurors an image with which they can identify.

Appealing to regional pride is one tactic. Take criminal lawyer Bobby Lee Cook from the northwest Georgia hill country. New prosecutors from outside Cook's territory are warned that Cook will approach one of them before a trial, brimming with what appears to be good will and curiosity, asking where the newcomer is from and where he went to school. The unwary counselor is likely to hear Cook telling the jury moments later: "Now here we have a young man, all the way from BROOKLYN, a graduate of NYU, come down here to GEORGIA to tell us how to practice law."

Still, at the heart of any trial is the truth. And the way trial lawyers get to the truth is by asking questions—lots of them. This method in particular, according to San Francisco lawyer James Brosnahan, is steeped in rich tradition and lore. Brosnahan cites the Roman rhetorician Quintilian who, early in the first century, wrote four how-to volumes on asking questions.

The way in which the questions are posed is something the trial lawyer learns mainly through practice and observation. The trial lawyer's approach to storytelling, like the storyteller's can take on a number of structures: dramatic, satirical or accusatory. These oral presentations may be lengthy, embroider on the details of the case or include anecdotal tales. And, like a spellbinding narrator, the trial lawyer knows that facial expressions and vocal intonation must sometimes take precedence over content. A raised eyebrow here, a fist pounded there are just two of a number of techniques that allow the lawyer to get a point across to the jury.

Although the traditions of trial law go back centuries—past American trial lawyers include Daniel Webster and Abraham Lincoln—there are some who worry about the demise of the profession's special skills. Kansas City's James Jeans, another participant in the Smithsonian Folklife Festival, laments that the "golden days" of trial law may well be over. While he believes there will always be a number of law students "yearning for combat and eager to enter trial law," he feels that "alternative dispute resolutions (out-of-court settlements) are threatening our jury system."

As an example, Jeans says he gained much experience trying jury cases on such minor accidents as rear-end collisions. But lawyers just starting out don't get such opportunities these days, he says, because those cases are gone—insurance companies settle them without lawyers. Others agree that there are declining opportunities for new lawyers to earn civil trial experience or to go into practice on their own.

Still others, however, are convinced trial lawyers will continue to hold their own. Prosecutor Patrick Williams, of Tulsa, Okla., says there will always be a need for advocacy and, therefore, there will always be trial lawyers. Like Jeans, Williams believes trial lawyers "are more or less born." It is, he says, "innate (for a trial lawyer) to have trustworthiness, charisma, talent" coupled with the "ability to go into battle knowing the chances of losing are big, then getting up and doing it again."

Attorney Michael Tigar of Austin, Texas, encourages trial lawyers to identify role models among their ancestors—and names Clarence Darrow as an example. Indeed, according to Boyce Holleman, Darrow continues to exemplify what all trial lawyers strive to be. "Clarence Darrow was a man of great logic. He was able to combine his ability to communicate his ideas, opinions and humor to the court, jurors and the public along with his strong feelings that even the indefensible were entitled to an unprejudiced, fair trial."

Before entering national politics, Abraham Lincoln had been one of Illinois' most successful trial lawyers. A talented mimic and storyteller, Lincoln, in addition to his criminal practice, took on cases for banks, railroads and insurance companies.

Actor Raymond Burr portrayed TV's best-known trial lawyer, Perry Mason. For nine seasons, Mason repeatedly defeated prosecuting attorney Hamilton Burger, played by William Talman.

North Carolina's Judge Charles Becton performs at the Smithsonian Festival of American Folklife, where trial law was this year's featured profession. Past occupations have included baseball and stone carving.

Clarence Darrow, one of the nation's most admired and respected trial lawyers, was known for his verbal pyrotechnics in the courtroom. "I may hate the sin but never the sinner," Darrow said in defending the accused.

RATE RESOLUTION
PRATER CREEK WATER DISTRICT
RESOLUTION OF THE PRATER CREEK WATER DISTRICT OF FLOYD COUNTY, KENTUCKY, ESTABLISHING RATES AND CHARGES FOR THE USE OF AND THE SERVICES RENDERED BY THE DISTRICT WATERWORKS SYSTEM, AND PROVIDING FOR THE COLLECTION AND ENFORCEMENT OF SUCH RATES AND CHARGES.

WHEREAS, the Board of Commissioners of the Prater Creek Water District, of Floyd County, Kentucky, has heretofore determined that the promotion and preservation of the public health, safety, and general welfare of said District and of all its citizens and inhabitants require the construction and installation of a new District waterworks system (the "System"), and

WHEREAS, the District is by concurrent proceedings providing for the issuance of its Waterworks Revenue Bonds for the purpose of paying the costs (not otherwise provided) of constructing said System in the manner provided by KRS Chapters 74 and 106, and

WHEREAS, in and by said statutes it is required that rates for water service provided by the District waterworks System be prescribed and maintained so as to provide for the payment of interest upon and principal of said Bonds as the same become due, to pay operating and maintenance costs, and to provide for depreciation of the System, and

WHEREAS, it is necessary at this time that a schedule of rates for water service be prescribed and that provision be made for the collection thereof, and

WHEREAS, such schedule of rates was approved by order of the Public Service Commission dated October 21, 1986,

NOW, THEREFORE, THE BOARD OF COMMISSIONERS OF THE PRATER CREEK WATER DISTRICT OF FLOYD COUNTY, KENTUCKY, DOES HEREBY RESOLVE AS FOLLOWS:

SECTION 1. WATERWORKS CONNECTION CHARGES.
Waterworks connection charges in the amount of $275.00 shall be made for each connection with the waterworks system of the District.

SECTION 2. BASIC MONTHLY WATER RATES
There shall be and there are hereby established from and after the effective date of this Resolution, basic monthly rates or charges for the water supplied by the waterworks system of the District as follows:

A. Minimum Water Rate.
The minimum water bill shall be $13.00 per month, and each water customer shall be entitled to 2,000 gallons (or less) of water in each month for such minimum charge.

B. Meter Rates for Water Usage in Addition to Minimum Charge.

Subject to the minimum monthly rate specified above, the following metered charges shall be made for each 1,000 gallons of water consumption per month to customers of all size connections:

First 2,000 gallons or less per month, $13.00 (minimum monthly charge). All over 2,000 gallons, $5 per 1,000 gallons. Emergency service to Mud Creek Water District, $1.40 per 1,000 gallons.

The monthly charge for water usage in excess of the minimum water rate set out above shall be computed in increments of 100 gallons. Accordingly, a customer who consumes at least 2,001 gallons of water and not more than 2,100 gallons of water in any month shall pay the amount of $13.50 for that month ($13.00 plus .50). A customer who consumes at least 2,101 and not more than 2,200 gallons of water in any month shall pay the amount of $14.00 for that month ($13.00, plus $1.00).

Whenever the minimum monthly charge is in excess of the total metered charge, the minimum shall apply. Whenever the total metered charge is in excess of the prescribed minimum monthly charge, the metered charge shall apply.

C. Special Charges.

1. Meter Changes $13.00
If a meter test shows the meter to be more than two percent fast, this charge will be refunded.

2. Service Investigation Charge $8.00
This charge will apply to service investigations if interruption of service is not caused by failure of the District's facilities.

SECTION 3. MULTIPLE USERS ON ONE METER.

Where two or more tenants or occupants (of different rental units) of property, including duplexes, apartment houses, mobile home parks, trailer parks, or other multi-unit premises, are served by a single water meter, the rates and charges to each tenant or occupant shall be computed by dividing the number of gallons of water registered by such single meter by the number of customers being served through such meter and then applying the result thus obtained to the water rate schedule set out in Section 2 above, to arrive at the monthly bill for each tenant or occupant. Each tenant or occupant shall be separately billed unless the owner or operator of the property has agreed with the District to pay the total monthly water bill for such property. In no event shall the monthly bill applicable to each tenant or occupant be less than the minimum water rate stipulated in Section 2 above.

SECTION 4. BILLING; COLLECTION; PENALTIES.

The rates or charges aforesaid shall be billed monthly, on statements which shall be issued on or about the first of each month, and all bills for such service shall be considered due and payable ten days after the date of issue. If a bill is not paid within ten days after such date of issue, such bill shall be considered delinquent, and there shall be imposed a penalty on each bill not so paid, in an amount equal to ten percent (10%) of the charges (other than sales tax) shown on the face amount of such delinquent bill. When a bill has been delinquent for twenty days, the District shall serve a customer written notice of his delinquency and of the fact that such customer is entitled, upon written request, to a hearing on the question of termination of service. If such bill is not paid within ten days after the mailing of such notice, and if no hearing is requested, or if a hearing is requested and timely held, and such customer's delinquency is thereby established, the District may disconnect the water service of such customer without further notice, subject to the provisions of the By-Laws, Rules, and Regulations referred to in Section 5 below. If water service is disconnected by the District by reason of delinquency in the payment of any water bill, reconnection of such service shall not be made until the owner or user pays all charges and penalties owed, plus the amount of $20.00 as a disconnection and reconnection charge. If any deadline date falls on a Sunday or legal holiday, such deadline shall not expire until the next secular day thereafter.

SECTION 5. BY-LAWS, RULES, AND REGULATIONS INCORPORATED BY REFERENCE.

The Commission has concurrently herewith adopted detailed By-Laws, Rules, and Regulations for the operation of the waterworks system of the District, which are incorporated in this Rate Resolution by reference and made a part hereof. Copies of said By-Laws are on file at the office of the Secretary of the District, where same may be examined by any interested party.

SECTION 6. SEVERABILITY.
If any clause, provision, paragraph, or section of this Resolution be ruled void and unenforceable by any court of competent jurisdiction, the remainder hereof is intended to be adopted and shall be in full force and effect notwithstanding.

SECTION 7. ALL FORMER PROVISIONS REPEALED; EFFECTIVE DATE OF RESOLUTION.

All District resolutions, orders, motions, or parts thereof, insofar as same may be in conflict herewith, are repealed, and this Resolution shall take effect from and after its adoption, approval, and publication as provided by law.

Adopted and approved on this 28th day of October, 1986.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE
Pursuant to Application
Number 836-0176

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Coal Mac, Inc., P.O. Box 3428, Pikeville, Kentucky 41501, has filed an application for a surface, auger, and deep coal mining and reclamation operation. The proposed operation disturbs approximately 134.82 surface acres and will underlie an additional 440.18 acres. The operation is located 1/4 mile southeast of Eastern in Floyd county.

The proposed operation is approximately 1/4-mile southeast from KY State Route 550's junction with new KY State Route 80 and located 300 feet south of Right Fork of Beaver Creek. The latitude is 37° 30' 53" feet. The longitude is 82° 47' 11". The surface area is owned by Coal Mac, Inc., Melba Dyer et al., Frank Jusitce et al., Charlie Martin et al., Gosling Branch Coal Company. The operation will underlie land owned by Vernie Gayheart, Ernest Hayes, Luther Hicks, Edgil Hayes, Hayes Heirs, James Keith Hayes, Coal Mac, Inc., Melba Dyer et al., Frank Justice, et al., Charlie Martin et al., Gosling Branch Coal Company.

The proposed operation is located on the Martin U.S.G.S. 7-1/2 minute quadrangle map. The operation will use the contour, auger, and deep mining methods of mining. The application also includes a proposed land use change from the undeveloped forest land pre-mining land use to a wildlife habitat post-mining land use. The operation will affect an area within 100 feet of public road KY State Route 80. The operation does not involve relocation of the public road.

The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 503 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, 6th Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. 11-5-3t.

FLOYD DISTRICT COURT
IN RE: Estate of Elbert J. Little: 84-P-195
VS: NOTICE OF SALE

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd District Court rendered at the November 11 term, 1985, and October 30 term, 1986, in the above-styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale on the premises occupied by the late Elbert J. Little on Steele's Creek, near Wayland, Kentucky at public auction, on the 22nd day of November, 1986, at 10:30 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash only the following described property, to-wit:

Household furniture, furnishings, appliances, too numerous to be listed in this Notice of Sale.

Each item will be sold separately or as grouped by the Commissioner, e.g. bedroom suites will be sold as one item.

Appraised value of each item will be recited prior to its sale and no bid will be accepted for less than 1/2 of the appraised value. Successful bids will be paid in the exact amount of the bid and may be paid by check or cash.

A 1980 Model 90 Oldsmobile, a 1979 model Chevrolet pick-up truck and a diamond ring will be sold at the same time and place for not less than 3/4 of their appraised values.

The appraised values and list of all items will be announced at the time of sale.

This sale is conducted to settle the estate of the late Elbert J. Little.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall include the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 31st day of October, 1986.

FAME

Ritter is fully committed to 'Unnatural Causes'

By Lynn Hoogenboom

The refreshing thing about John Ritter is that he knows when he has it good.

John Ritter

"I'm really so fortunate," he says. "It's a nice life to be able to do work that you've always dreamed about doing."

Ritter's big break, of course, was the hit sitcom "Three's Company," on which he played Jack Tripper. But he didn't immediately recognize it as such. "I thought it was a one-joke show," he admits. "I said, 'I'll be out of this very quickly.'"

He was delighted, however, when it turned into a massive hit, and he claims that he never tired of it. "There were some days," he says, "but basically in the nine years — except maybe for one year in the middle there — I had fun just about every day. It was really a joy to go to work."

Since "Three's Company" and its one-year sequel "Three's a Crowd," Ritter has kept himself busy doing plays ("I really love theater, because an actor gets to go from the starting gate to finish line without anyone yelling cut," he says) and TV movies, including "Unnatural Causes," which will air Monday, Nov. 10, on NBC.

"I've been offered some feature films," says Ritter, "but, basically, I don't choose a play, a TV movie or a feature film on the basis of what theater it's going to be shown at or what network it'll be on. It's the part that I always go for."

And he sees one very real advantage in television. "It's really nice to know that even if 'Unnatural Causes' is the lowest-rated show of the night, it will still be watched by millions and millions of people. That's sort of heartening."

"Unnatural Causes," which dramatizes the battle of Maude DeVictor (played by Alfre Woodard) to establish the connection between Agent Orange, a chemical defoliant that was used by U.S. forces in Vietnam, and the health problems suffered by many Vietnam veterans, is also a project in which he genuinely believes.

"It's like a metaphor for the Vietnam experience," says Ritter, who plays a dying Vietnam veteran. "We want to turn our backs; it was a horrible war. But we can't ignore it, because in the '80s people are still suffering the wounds. I think it's important that television is telling this story. I also think that it's courageous for the people at NBC to put it on."

HILL STREET BLUES

Sergeant Bates (Betty Thomas) advises her new partner, Officer Flaherty (Robert Cloughessy), to tread softly in the "Say Uncle" episode of "Hill Street Blues," airing THURSDAY, NOV. 13, on NBC.

Dick Enberg is a rare bird in the broadcasting world

By Marty Linehan

Nowadays, when a new play-by-play or expert sports announcer is introduced, you can bet he did his sportscasting training on the ball field. He is generally an ex-jock.

Rarely is he, like NBC's Dick Enberg, a former college professor and college baseball coach. Even more rarely does he have a Ph.D. in health science, which Enberg earned at Indiana University after graduating from Central Michigan back in 1957.

Enberg played baseball for Central Michigan and later coached baseball at Cal State-Northridge, where he was an assistant professor. Now he is a top-ranked sports broadcaster.

Enberg won Emmy Awards in 1981 and 1983 as Outstanding Sports Personality in the host /play-by-play category. On three occasions (1979, 1980 and 1981) he was selected National Sports-caster of the Year by the National Sports-casters and Sportswriters Association, and last year the American Sports-casters Association named him the organization's first National Sports-caster of the Year.

And Enberg can handle anything behind a microphone.

In 1975, when he joined NBC Sports, he did the play-by-play on the network's first regular-season college basketball package. Since then, he has become a familiar face at such major events as the Super Bowl, Wimbledon and the Rose Bowl.

He has done play-by-play on Super Bowls XV and XVII, the NCAA basketball championships in 1976 and 1981, major-league baseball's championship series in 1977, 1979 and 1981 and the Rose Bowls of 1979 and 1985. He added track and field to his repertoire when he hosted the NBC presentation of the inaugural World Championships of Track and Field in Helsinki in 1983. He showed his talents further by hosting the inaugural Breeders' Cup Championships in horse racing.

Enberg is much loved at NBC, and last year the network signed him to a long-term contract.

In making the announcement, Arthur Watson, president of NBC Sports, said: "Dick Enberg is without question one of sports television's most extraordinary talents. Whether it be as a play-by-play commentator or host, Dick conveys the excitement and drama of a major sporting event like no other broadcaster. Dick Enberg tops his profession in popularity and performance."

So now you know that when Enberg and his football partner, Merlin Olsen, describe the pro football games, you're not listening to just another jock, who possibly took too many kicks to the head.

Offer Idle Miners Job Training Help

The way the industry is being automated, workers laid off from the mines the last three years are not likely to be hired back. Helping them find other jobs is the goal of state employment agency workers, who will be in Floyd, Johnson and Martin counties next week for that purpose.

"We are making every effort to locate these miners and ensure that they get all the help they need," said James Daniels, Department for Employment Services Commissioner. "Miners usually pursue coal mining as a lifetime career. Many have not been exposed to job seeking in any other area. Through this special project we can help them recognize skills they have which they may not have thought about using in other jobs."

Members of the state agency's Quick Response Team and Prestonsburg local office staff will be at the National Guard armory on the Auxier road on Nov. 10 to hold interviews and workshops for laid-off miners. The services are offered under a special Job Training Partnership Act grant.

Staff will meet with the miners in groups to discuss the first steps in looking for a job, such as how to evaluate skills they already have which could be used in another job, how to prepare a resume and what to expect during a job interview. Miners also will have a chance to talk individually with staff about their skills and strengths.

"Coal miners' jobs may have included carpentry, welding and even minor construction," Daniels said. "At home they may be mechanics, painters or gardeners. All these are skills that can be used in other professions."

"After the miners have put their individual skills into perspective, staff will discuss with each one the appropriate training program, such as classroom, vocational or on-the-job, or a remedial education program for earning a General Equivalency Diploma."

Daniels described coal miners as hard workers. "They have proven work records. In addition to their job skills, they are reliable, loyal and dedicated."

"Many coal miners went to the mines straight from school and never have worked anywhere else. We're there to help them find that other job."

Applicants should report for interviews by 9:30 a.m. Miners who already have registered with the local Department for Employment Services office will be notified to go to the center at a specific time.

"We already have conducted special workshops in other areas of the state suffering from a depressed coal market. The turnout at these workshops convinced us of the need to intensify our efforts to reach all of the out-of-work miners we can," Daniels said.

Heimlich Maneuver A Real Lifesaver

Thousands of choking victims owe their lives to a simple technique called the Heimlich maneuver. Named after Dr. Henry J. Heimlich, its premier advocate, the Heimlich can be done in several different ways, depending on the type of choking case—everything from a piece of meat stuck in the throat to water trapped in the lungs after a swimming accident. The November Reader's Digest explains them as follows:

•The victim is standing or sitting. Stand behind the victim, encircle his waist with your arms, place the thumb-side of your fist above the navel but below the rib cage and—with the other hand over it—give a sharp, upward thrust. Repeat the process until the obstruction pops out.

•The victim is on the floor, already unconscious from oxygen deprivation. Roll the person on his back, face up, kneel astride his hips, place the heel of one hand between the navel and the rib cage, put the other hand over it and press quickly with an upward thrust. Repeat the technique until the object is expelled.

•You are alone and choking. Use your own fist and the other hand for the inward-upward thrust, or press your abdomen quickly and forcefully into a rounded corner of a table or sink, or the back of a chair. Almost any blunt object that provides pressure under the breastbone will cause the lungs to eject an obstruction.

•The victim is an infant under one year of age. Special care is necessary in dealing with babies. Place the child face-up on your lap or on a firm surface, or sit him on your lap facing away from you. Make a "pad" out of the index and middle fingers of both your hands and position it just under the rib cage. Then, with a quick but gentle motion, apply the important inward-upward thrust.

•The victim had been drowning. Place the person on his back, face to one side, and kneel astride the hips. With your hands resting on the diaphragm, one over the other, push the heel of the bottom hand inward and up under the rib cage. The bellows action forces water out of the lungs, making the victim more responsive to cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR), if necessary.

Dr. Heimlich, professor of advanced clinical sciences at Xavier University in Cincinnati, cautions that you have about four minutes before a complete shut-off of oxygen will cause permanent brain damage or death. Knowing what to do if you or someone near you is choking means the difference between life and death.

Fact-Finding Tour To Cover 3 Nations

Father Ralph W. Beiting, founder of the Christian Appalachian Project, will travel to Africa November 8 as part of a two-week fact-finding tour of three of the continent's impoverished nations. He will represent the Catholic Diocese of Covington.

Former pastor to Floyd county Catholics, Beiting will visit Senegal and Mauritania in western Africa and Ethiopia in northeastern Africa. He will then spend three days in Rome at the conclusion of the tour.

The mission is sponsored by Catholic Relief Services (CRS), the overseas relief and development agency of the United States Catholic Conference. The agency asked that the Diocese of Covington send a delegate on the trip because of the substantial financial aid provided by the diocese during the disastrous starvation in Ethiopia two years ago. The Covington Diocese gave $250,000, one of the highest amounts on a per Catholic basis in the country. Approximately 20 other dioceses will be represented on the trip.

In Senegal and Mauritania, Beiting will visit various development projects being conducted either by CRS or other members of the Ecumenical Working Group on Africa, a coalition of six religiously-based U.S. agencies. These projects include soil conservation, irrigation, wells for potable water, health and nutrition programs, and efforts to halt deforestation. The long-term objective is to bring about economic viability of small-scale agriculture.

Dr. Hall Recertified As Family Specialist

Dr. Mary Hall, of McDowell, has been recertified as a diplomate of the American Board of Family Practice (ABFP) as a result of passing a recertification examination offered by the ABFP. The physician thus maintains specialist status in the medical specialty of family practice.

ABFP diplomates must continue to show proof of competence in the field of comprehensive, continuing care of the family by being recertified every six years. The family practice specialty was the first to require diplomates to be recertified on a continuing basis.

The written examination is designed to prove the candidate's continuing competence in the basic components of family practice—internal medicine, surgery, obstetrics and gynecology, pediatrics, psychiatry and neurology, and community medicine.

To qualify for certification initially a physician must have successfully completed three years of residency training in family practice and passed an intensive certification examination. There are some 385 residency training programs in teaching hospitals and university medical centers across the United States.

Retiring Soon? Apply Now For SS Benefits

By JIM KELLY

Social Security District Director For the Big Sandy Area

People in the Big Sandy area who are planning to retire early next year should apply soon for Social Security retirement benefits if they have not done so already, Jim Kelly, Social Security District Director for the Big Sandy area, said recently.

It is best to apply about three months before a person retires so Social Security checks can start shortly after income from work stops. This way, a break in income can be avoided.

Before a person actually applies, he or she should gather certain information and evidence to support his or her claim, Kelly said. This includes Social Security card or a record of the number; birth certificate; evidence of earnings for the last year. Form W-2 can be used by wage earners. Self-employed people should submit a copy of their self-employment tax return along with evidence showing the return was filed (a cancelled check, for example).

A person applying as a husband or wife will need his or her Social Security card and the marriage record.

For more information you may call the Big Sandy Area Social Security office located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local telephone directory under U.S. Government.

South Prestonsburg Homemakers Meet

The October meeting of the South Prestonsburg Homemakers' Club was held at the home of Mrs. Lois Ball. The devotional was given by Mrs. Joyce Allen and the business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Karen Colvin. The program on "Calcium and Osteoporosis" was given by Mrs. Frances Pitts, who used a film strip, courtesy of the National Dairy Council.

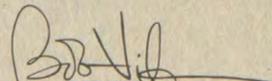

The hostess, Mrs. Ball, served a dessert course to Mesdames Mary Lou Horn, Vivian Fraley, Ora Bussey, Carlos Haywood, Karen Colvin, Joyce Allen, Theckley Short, and Frances Pitts.

To conclude the evening, Mrs. Joyce Allen, Games chairman, conducted a test involving TV commercials. Three members tied for first place, with the prize being awarded to Mrs. Mary Lou Horn.

RECENT HOUSEGUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. Delmas Saunders have had as their recent houseguests, their relatives, John Davidson, of Manistique, Michigan, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Logan, of Ashland.

FINANCIAL PLANNING

IRS AUDITS AND YOU

There are some steps you can take to make an audit of your tax return less likely and, in the event that you are audited, steps that you can take to make that experience less painful.

To avoid being audited, your best defense is a good offense. File an accurate, complete return, and keep good records and supporting documentation for income items and deductions that you claim. Keep your records long enough to meet the statute of limitations for the tax return related to them. The federal statute is three years from the later of the date the return is due or is actually filed. The statute is six years if over 25% of gross income is omitted from the return, and there is no time limit on fraudulent returns or where no return has been filed.

Two kinds of audits are conducted by the IRS. The first is the office audit, and examination done by correspondence or at an IRS office. The IRS will ask for information or documentation related to specific items on your return. These audits can often be concluded very quickly by providing the requested information. The second kind of audit is the field audit which is usually conducted at the taxpayer's home or place of business. Questionable items on the return have been identified by the IRS, but the agent is not limited to these in his examination.

The IRS uses a complex system to select returns for audit, in general, your return will be at higher risk for an audit if you take certain kinds of deductions (deductions for tax shelters, home office, or travel and entertainment, for example), if your occupation involves cash income, (taxi drivers and waiters, for example), or if your income is high.

If your tax return is actually selected for audit, your best strategy is to be cooperative and provide the requested information promptly. Unless the problem is simple and routine, contact your accountant immediately. A professional can put your mind at ease and very likely save you time and money.

NOAH'S ARK

On Sept. 6, 86 I was keeping the Sabbath day and the Spirit started impressing on me that it was time to find the Ark (Genesis 6:15) so I started thinking about a large boat sitting on the side of a mountain. Then one night in a vision, I saw bugs eating holes in the wood of the ark, so the ark has been gone thousands of years I suppose.

But about two years ago in a vision, I was standing on the deck of the Ark when it was new, the deck was tiled with red clay porch tile, each tile had two groove circles in it.

The emphasis was so strong about those tile that I had some made like them, now I know it was because that is what we are going to find.

I saw large I bolts in the deck floor, I saw shiny metal on the corners of the vents, I saw the edge of their living quarters that was built on the deck. I have reason to believe it is at a thirteen thousand feet elevation, the spirit will show me more as need be.

About the Lords light, those stars are living stones, they belong to the prophets, they wrote the Bible, they inherited the earth under Christ. Christ gave them His glory (St. John 17:22) I saw the glory of the Lord. He did not have it, it was shining out of those stars, the Lord come as a thief in that cloud, (Rev. 19:11-16) is talking about that light. The glory of God also shined out of those stars, it was a mingled glory because the Lord had said, I come in my fathers glory.

Now why was the Bible wrote in a mystery in the first place?

So God could have compassion on man and forgive him in his ignorance.

But man hightailed it away from God and created him a doctrine he could believe in and worship in and pay his tithes to.

God, the father, give me a vision and showed me when His Son come to earth the first time. He give Him a herd of sheep, but people started killing His son's sheep and they didn't stop until they had killed all of them, but His son had gone on a long trip, and then in this vision His Son came back again and He gave His Son another herd of sheep, and I saw that people had started killing His Son's sheep, and the way they were doing it, they were laying their hand on them and praying for them, and was putting evil spirits on them. These sheep were little scrubby sheep and they couldn't get these spirits off and they were killing them spiritually.

Build you an altar and pray for yourself, and your family.

Before the Lord withdrew Himself for the tribulation, I could lay a letter on the altar and the Lord would show if that person was a believer. He would even show me how many they had caused to believe.

The Bible was wrote here on this earth, then it was distributed in the judgement world. I was shown in a vision when these thunders are distributed here it is also distributed in that place in the judgement, you may, by helping me distribute these papers cause your spirit in the judgement to get one and believe, and come out of their doctrine.

The Bible says the saints take the kingdom, these thunders are the weapon to fight with (Rev. 19:15)

The devil has ruled over the kingdom and kept the people in his prison long enough. All that are willing to fight the Lord's battle (SAY I)

The reason the devil kept the people in was to keep them quiet, but when the Lord called me out of Babylon, out of that prison, I prayed for a child that was born blind and God healed it, I had the key, the kingdom was still here.

We have been living in ignorance, this is what has happened about two thousand years ago. Jesus Christ came to earth to set up a government to rule over heaven, its called kingdom. It was the ways of God in the heart of a few strong believers called faith. (Matt. 8:10, 11, 12)

But the devil cut Jesus Christ off, then he cut off all those that had that strong faith to use that power of the kingdom, and after he got rid of those that could get a prayer answered, then he set him up earthly churches and had people to join them and believe mens doctrines, and they have prospered and multiplied greatly. Don't just take my word for it open your eyes look around, and then look in God's Word. God said it would happen. (Rev. 17:8)

But we live in the time that (Isaiah 11:11) says the Lord will set his hand again the second time to recover his people.

These thunders are the stone in (Dan. 2)

In a vision in the early eighties I saw a man his name is John Hancock in Bangladesh, I believe Dacca, he had bought the official end time car.

Oct. 16, 84 the frog spirits have come.

After I published thunder one, the Lord caused me to know about a woman that read the paper, then she looked at one of those articles and said, that had to come from heaven. And the Lord heard her, then the Lord give me a vision and let me hear her, I liked that, I know the Lord did too.

After I started publishing the small articles the Lord give me a vision about a young lady, she was on a trip and found one of these articles, she took it and published it in her home town paper, I believe the Lord liked that.

The five foolish virgins went to get oil for their lamps, but were late getting back. Why? (Matt. 25) the oil is the righteousness of God, and it takes a year to keep all of God's Holy days and you want keep them right the first time so they needed two years, and they ran out of time. I prayed for a man's grandson, his daughter's son, and the child didn't get healed, so I asked why? I was caused to know that was not his grandson. He had give his daughter away. Then I was caused to know that is how God has kept each tribe all these years.

In a vision I was shown that the prophets had to believe the thunders before they could receive their rewards, their reward is to administer the government that's in the thunders.

If Eve had not sinned you would not see the lights you see now (CARNEL)

In a vision I was on the new earth, I looked up and I saw planet Mercury making its way to the sun, and it looked like earth looks from space. I could see the out line of land and water.

If you have trouble believing these articles remember the blind child. It lives right here in this county. I went and told its parents that God wanted to heal their blind child, and that I was going to pray for it. Then I came home and prayed for that child from three to six times a day for nine months and it just gradually got well.

The apostle Paul said, he left one of his helpers sick at a certain town, but that didn't mean he wasn't praying for him as he went.

You will find in another scripture that he almost let one of his helpers die before he got enough healing power built upon him to turn the tide.

Sick people get well everyday, so that is no proof to a unbeliever, but when God heals a person that was born blind someone had to get a lot of prayers answered. Read (St. John Chapter 9)

I am being put down a lot now by people because I quote references from the Old Testament and I am surprised at this, because the Lord has come to reign on the throne of King David (St. Luke 1:32, 33) and if you want to know how King David worshiped God you have to go to the Old Testament. It wasn't explained in the New Testament, everyone then knew.

Faith in the blood of Jesus Christ got you a new body to go to the judgement world in (Gal. 1:4), but you also need to have the righteousness of God in the Old Testament to be a part of the kingdom.

Stop and think, the Lord has come to reign over His chosen people, the tribes of Israel, the throne of David, now how do they worship God?

You may say they don't believe in Jesus Christ, well that's right, but the Bible says they will except Him at his coming, then they will have both.

Remember this if there had been one group of people on this earth that was doing the Lord's will, He would have used them, He wouldn't have needed to call two son's out of Babylon to turn the face of the people around, read (Isaiah chapter 41)

I hope you are keeping in mind I am writing this in the time of the judgement, when the blood sacrifice has been taken away, at a time when the Lord called his servant that He had put over His household an evil servant, because he didn't have anything to cover his evil with.

Electric Heaters Not Designed For Overnight Use, Experts Say

Government safety experts say half the deaths and one-third the injuries resulting from portable electric heater fires could be prevented if consumers stopped using the heaters overnight when all family members are asleep.

According to the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, portable electric heaters are involved in 240,000 residential fires each year. Most of these were not serious fires, but over 3,000 were attended by the fire service and resulted in 95 deaths and 220 injuries annually.

CPSC safety experts offered the following suggestions for operating portable electric heaters safely:

*Do not use these heaters as a substitute for a central heating system. Portable electric air heaters are designed for temporary heating only.

*Operate the heater at least three feet away from combustible materials, including bedding, home furnishings and objects in the room.

*Always follow warning or cautionary advice provided in labels on the heater, and follow manufacturer's operating instructions provided on or with the heater.

*Unless designed for specific uses, heaters should be used on the floor, never on cabinets, tables, furniture and the like. Never use heaters to dry wearing apparel or shoes. Do not place heaters where towels or other combustible materials could fall on the appliance and trigger a fire.

*Heaters are not intended to be used in wet or moist locations, such as bathrooms. Never locate the heater where it may fall into water.

*Make sure the electric cord is strung out and not buried under carpeting or rugs. Do not place anything on top of the cord. Be sure the plug fits snugly in the receptacle. If the plug is loose, the potential for overheating is increased, and you should have a qualified repairman replace the plug or receptacle promptly.

*Avoid using an extension cord unless absolutely necessary. If you must use an extension cord, it must be marked #14 or #12 AWG; this tells the consumer the thickness or gauge of the wire in the cord. For example, a cord often sold at hardware stores as "air conditioner extension cord" will have these heavy gauge wires. Do not use a cord marked #16 or #18 AWG.

*Because heaters draw considerable power, it is not unusual for the cord or plug to feel warm to the touch. However, if the cord or plug feels hot, unplug the unit and have a qualified appliance repairman check for problems. If the appliance is found to be operating properly, have the receptacle replaced. Continued operation of a heater with a hot cord or plug could lead to a fire.

*If the heater is used on a circuit protected by a ground-fault-circuit-interrupter (GFCI) and the heater trips the circuit, don't assume that the GFCI is malfunctioning. Since GFCI's are required to be installed at locations where leakage currents represent a severe shock hazard, you should discontinue using any heater which trips a GFCI and have the heater checked, even though it seems to be operating properly.

*Malfunctioning heaters should be examined and repaired by a qualified appliance service center. Consumers should never attempt to repair, adjust or replace components in the heater.

WATERBEDS FACTS VS. MYTHS

MYTH: Waterbeds puncture easily leaving water everywhere.

FACT: Waterbed punctures are very rare and the water always stays in the mattress or the liners.

MYTH: Waterbeds can make you seasick.

FACT: The new waterbeds with baffles are very still, and the rest is so deep there is little body action to cause waves.

MYTH: Waterbeds are so heavy they'll damage my floor.

FACT: Waterbeds weigh less per square foot than your own two feet! They weigh much less than a refrigerator.

FACT: Sleeping on water will improve blood circulation and may help back and leg pains.

See the Specialists at H₂O for more waterbed facts!

The People's Choice or A Game of Russian Roulette?

Many voters are probably not aware that when they go to the polls to cast their ballots in presidential elections, they aren't really voting directly for their choices for President and Vice President. In the November balloting they are voting for slates of electors whose names they probably don't even know and in whose selection they played no part. The real election occurs in December when these electors meet in the state capitols to cast their votes for President and Vice President. These votes are then sent to Congress where they are tallied and the election results become official. Fortunately in most cases the official results reflect the popular votes cast in the November balloting, but this is not guaranteed and has not always been the case.

This possibility for a glitch in the presidential election process is a result of one of the numerous compromises reached by the framers at the Philadelphia convention. The executive branch was one of the most discussed issues in the convention because quite mixed. Some delegates favored direct popular election, some advocated election by Congress, others proposed election by the state legislatures. Eventually all these alternatives were rejected for one reason or another, and the framers settled on the compromise of the electoral college.

Under this unique arrangement, the framers provided that each state would have a number of electors equal to its combined number of congressional members (senators and representatives). To be elected President, a candidate had to receive a majority of the electoral votes. If no candidate polled a majority, then the election would be decided in the House of Representatives where each state delegation would cast one vote.

Many of the delegates at the Philadelphia convention probably went along with the electoral college compromise because they expected most presidential elections to end up in the House anyway. George Mason, a delegate from Virginia, opined that "nineteen times in twenty" there would be no majority attained in the electoral college. Thus, the framers provided the facade of a popular vote, but felt the real choice would still be made in Congress.

What they failed to anticipate was the emergence of political parties and their nomination of slates of candidates for president and vice-president. The original plan simply provided that electors vote for two candidates with the candidate getting the most votes becoming president and the one with the next highest becoming vice president. In the election of 1800 the first flaw in the system appeared. The Jeffersonian Republican party had nominated Thomas Jefferson for president and Aaron Burr for vice president. A mix-up among the electors resulted in a tie vote in the electoral college throwing the election into the House which was controlled by the opposing Federalist party. After some soul searching and the persuasion of Alexander Hamilton, the Federalists in the House elected Jefferson president. The Eleventh Amendment was proposed and adopted requiring separate votes for president and vice president in future elections.

Thus, the emergence of the party system undermined the framers' concept of the House choosing the president. Only twice, in 1801 and again in 1825 has the House exercised this choice. What has emerged is a system in which the electors have simply become party functionaries and their final decision on the presidency may or may not reflect the popular vote results. On three occasions (1824, 1876, 1888) the electoral college provision has denied the presidency to the candidate polling the most popular votes. In no less than fifteen other elections, a shift of less than one percent of the total votes cast could have made the popular vote loser president. Today, a candidate can win the popular vote by a razor-thin margin in the twelve most populous states and with the electoral votes necessary to become president regardless of the popular vote outcome in the other 38 states.

Is the electoral college an anachronism that might better be dropped in the modern-day electoral process? An 1826 Committee of Congress noted that electors had "degenerated into mere agents in a case which requires no agency, and where the agent must be useless, if he is faithful, and dangerous if he is not." More than a century later, William T. Gossett, was observing that the electoral college "is clearly a political monstrosity, fully distorting the most elementary principles of self-government." Despite all the criticism, the electoral college remains a part of the presidential selection process. Is it only a matter of time before this less-than-perfect product of a framers' compromise results in the peoples' choice being thwarted once more?

Old Age Is Topic

Old age comes to all of us. For many, the aging process is gentle and kind, allowing us to enjoy with undiminished faculties the fruits of our life's labors and to bask in the love and affection of our growing circle of family and friends. For others the process is not so kind.

This Saturday, November 8, from 10:00 a.m. to noon, at the Sanders-Brown Research Center, the University of Kentucky will probe the nature of aging as part of UK's ongoing Saturday Seminars series. The presentation is free and open to the public.

The seminar will explain the latest scientific findings on Alzheimer's disease and how physicians and others can best administer care to the elderly. A discussion of the value and implications of continued intellectual stimulation for the elderly, a tour of the Sanders-Brown Research Center on Aging, and a demonstration of state-of-the-art equipment accompany the presentation.

For information and reservations, call (800) 432-0932 or (606) 257-2622.

Programs and studies on community development at the University of Kentucky have had a significant effect on America's changing way of life. The studies have brought national recognition to the University.

ARTHRITIS IN GOATS

COPYRIGHT 1986 KVMA

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association
Arthritis is a generic term applied to almost any condition which causes inflammation of one or more joints in humans or animals. It is often characterized by swelling, warmth and redness of the overlying skin, and almost always pain and restricted movement in the joint.

In humans the causes are many, sometimes simple, sometimes complex. The same is true with animals.

And while any animal can be affected, some seem to be affected more often than others—among them, goats, of which there is an increasing awareness in Kentucky.

Arthritis or "joint ill" in goats is sometimes, but not always, related to abscess problems in the animal. It can also be caused by mechanical injuries to the animal and is sometimes associated with "navel ill."

Lameness, pain and often puffiness at one or more joints are the obvious symptoms. Accurate diagnosis of the cause is important at this point, because it will determine the course of treatment.

If caused by mechanical injury to the joint, treatment is simple, and usually involves removal of the fluid, if necessary, and rest for the animal. Removing a sample of the fluid from the joint is often necessary for a correct diagnosis. This will normally involve only one joint.

If the fluid is purulent (contains pus) treatment may be more complicated. This can happen either when a mechanical injury becomes infected, or can be caused by one or more of many organisms. Normally a culture is needed to identify the organism.

Sometimes antibiotic therapy can reverse the disease, sometimes not. If the infection has been stopped, often exercises or manipulation of the affected limbs can ease the crippling effect—but once severely crippled, nothing will help.

Several things can be done to reduce the incidence of arthritis. One is to be sure the goat's feet are correctly trimmed. A goat can grow toes which are long and twisting and make it painful to stand correctly, thereby discouraging use of legs. Keep goats in well-bedded stalls, and if cement floors are in the pens, bed a little more deeply. Banged knees increase body stress and can lead to infections in the joints.

Be sure goats get plenty of exercise. Keep an iodine-salt-trace mineral supplement handy, fed free choice.

Choose sound, good-boned breeding stock. Disinfect all navels at birth, many joint problems originate at this point.

Arthritis is a difficult topic to discuss, because it covers so many causes and treatments. Your veterinarian is trained in all of them, however, and can explain them to you in words you can understand, as well as suggest ways by which you can prevent many of them.

What is man's most deadly enemy in the wildlife world? The lion?—no. The polar bear?—no. According to National Wildlife magazine, mosquitoes may be man's deadliest foe. They deploy parasites that cause malaria and kill one million people a year in Africa alone. They are also responsible for high death rates in India, Pakistan, Asia, Central America and the Caribbean islands.

Star Lore

By Fred Cooper Tichenor

Don't be chintzy, it's your mother, Scorpio

ARIES (Mar 21-Apr 21) Take a good look at your career and make sure your ideals are practical. The gendarmes are out in mass so drive legally as well as safely. If you need to establish a new relationship with your boss, begin now. Don't plan any long trips, especially over seas, if you can help it.

TAURUS (Apr 22-May 22) This is the week to take charge of anything and everything. If you're ever going to make your marriage a dream, now is the time to start. Don't try to pull any fast ones, particularly close to home. Plan a romantic evening with the loved one and allow nothing to interfere.

GEMINI (May 23-Jun 21) You'll be most inventive this week and could solve the most difficult problems. Everything may go wrong at work and you'll probably get blamed. Don't start any religious or political discussions, they will get out of hand. An Aquarius is going to make extra work for you.

CANCER (Jun 22-Jul 20) Hope you don't have to take any exams this week, you won't win any medals. Big things job-wise are just over the horizon, get ready for changes. That "number" you've been playing at work could be a winner now. If it is a windfall, invest it carefully and you'll be sitting on Easy Street some day.

LEO (Jul 21-Aug 20) If you've been doing your homework, this is the week everything should fall into place. Children are developing their talents and individuality, and need your encouragement. This could be your most exciting weekend of the year. The loved one may have work planned for you but you'll love the results.

VIRGO (Aug 21-Sep 22) You will be saying and doing strange things at work. Your ruler, Mercury, is retrograde and you should postpone decisions and watch for errors. All your thoughts are on business and you may be working all weekend. Call an old friend living far away and relive fond memories.

LIBRA (Sep 23-Oct 23) You'll be extremely "arty" this week but it will be a superficial interest. You could suffer a temporary financial setback so don't be extravagant. Your mother may "save our life" at work. Your lovelife can be revolutionized or regenerated this weekend if you're sweet and agreeable.

SCORPIO (Oct 26-Nov 23) Devote some time to helping others this week, your own plans can spare you a little. This is not a good time to gamble but it is good for long-term growth opportunities. Your mother may need a loan, don't be chintzy, give her a little extra. Invite friends or relatives over and listen for ideas.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 24-Dec 21) You will be in an unusual, almost bizarre, mood this week. If you've been considering the purchase of a new home, you'll be able to find a bargain soon. When entertaining at home, don't let things get out of hand. It will be a wild-and-wooly party, and the neighbors may complain.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22-Jan 17) You'll start out this week cold and dispassionate. Your mind can be opening to new vistas if you'll allow it - some you've never even dreamed of. Don't buy any flakey investments from an Aquarius. A social you had been looking forward to will be a disaster as far as having fun is concerned.

AQUARIUS (Jan 18-Feb 16) Your lovelife will be a disaster this week. Also, your boss may be overbearing but s/he is just going through a phase. You will be your own worst enemy, especially where money is concerned. And, you will be in one of your kinky moods and anything can happen. Great week, huh?

PISCES (Feb 17-Mar 20) Don't get too optimistic this week, good times are coming but you must be patient. Watch weird friends or habits, either can get you in trouble. Work extra hard on anything that can provide permanent income. Don't get carried away at any wild parties or you will be carried away.

Variety Of Services Available For Handicapped Preschoolers

During the first five years of life, a child depends on others to help develop learning skills. In Kentucky, an estimated 1,500 children at that stage in life depend even more heavily on the help of others because they were born with mental or physical handicaps.

Some very significant help is provided to these children through Kentucky's network of 14 community mental health/mental retardation centers. Staff at these regional centers receive training, administrative and technical support from the Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services.

"The early intervention and preschool programs for children with handicapping conditions are designed to allow the child to live as normal a life as possible," said Charles Bratcher, director of the department's Division of Mental Retardation. "The programs are diverse, depending on the age and unmet needs of the children involved."

"Children under three years of age generally need home intervention programs, while those ages four and five benefit most from programs that allow them to learn with others the same age." The early childhood programs are divided into four groups: home-based intervention, center-based intervention, preschool and preschool/day care, said Marge Allen, children's educational services coordinator for the division.

"The home-based services provide developmental experiences, training and education to children and their families," said Allen. "Center staff visit the home once each week to teach communication, motor and recognition skills, as well as develop social and self-help abilities."

Center-based services offer the same opportunities with the added dimension of seeing the impact of learning on others, she added.

"These programs allow the families to share experiences, problems and insights with other families of handicapped children," said Allen. "This added insight often allows family members to discover that they are not alone in having to deal with similar situations."

In preschool and preschool/day care programs, an individualized schedule of development is the key to meeting the child's needs.

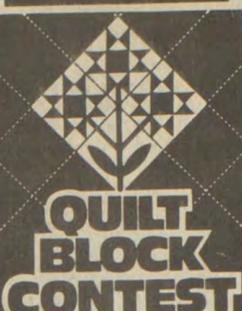

"Help with expressive and receptive language skills may be needed. A child may understand what is said, but may not be able to put an answer into words," said Allen. "Another child may need mobility training or improvement in listening skills. Whatever the need, the preschooler's schedule is designed to fulfill that need."

In addition to teaching the necessary skills, some programs are integrated to allow handicapped and non-handicapped children to learn alongside each other. "Handicapped children will learn from their peers. They become part of the mainstream and feel like they fit in," Bratcher said. "Children who do not have handicaps learn the importance of patience, gain a wider circle of friends and begin to accept handicaps as fact of life, rather than an oddity."

Many programs offer additional services such as screening, diagnostic evaluations, family counseling, and speech, language and physical therapy. Persons interested in information on available programs should contact the developmental disabilities director at each of the regional centers.

Lennon's Life Dramatized

"The writing Beatle," John Lennon, will be paid tribute in "John Lennon: A Journey In the Life" when it airs Wednesday, November 26, at 9:00 p.m. on KET. The dramatization, with an actor portraying Lennon, traces his childhood and career through the musician's thoughts, writings, works and music.

This special also focuses on Lennon's work on behalf of the anti-war movement, his life with Yoko Ono and Lennon's philosophies on life.

With an introduction by Ono, Lennon's widow, the special takes an abstract approach in its examination of Lennon's life. The program uses animation, re-enacted scenes, original film footage, news clips and photographs. The Beatles' music also is included.
