The Best Thanksgiving Dinner You Ever Cooked!

WHAT a lot of satisfaction it'll be to say that on the evening of November 27th! And the thing you'll be most thankful for will be the new, glistening white enamel Gas Range in your kitchen. For the installation of a Modern Gas Range will be a long way toward making it the best Thanksgiving Dinner you ever cooked.

THE Oven Dial Control will really do justice to the Big Bird, maintaining a steady temperature 'till he's done to a turn—leaving you free for the other festive arrangements. The Insulated Oven will keep the kitchen from being overheated. And the pies, cakes and puddings can be baked easier, faster, with less work and worry. Taken all in all, a Modern Gas Range will contribute much, not only to that big dinner this month, but to all dinners in the future.

For years to come. During hot days next summer, it'll be a great sensation to place dinner in the stove, set the Heat Regulator, and spend most of the afternoon out instead of over a hot stove. And if you must stay in, the Insulated Oven keeps the heat in the stove instead of all over the house. Let your gas appliance dealer show you how one of these Modern Ranges will make this a REAL Thanksgiving!

BIG SANDY RIVER PROJECT

Many years ago the United States government built five locks and dams in the Big Sandy river and then quit. Surveys and plans had been made for the slackwater system to extend to headwaters of navigation on both the Tug and Letcher forks. The building of railroads alongside these streams had much to do with stopping the project. The opportunity to revive the work and possibly carry the system to completion has come about through the depression in business. The government desires to find employment for as much of the idle labor as possible. Improvement of rivers and harbors is one of the great enterprises that may be used legitimately to accomplish this object.

The fact that the government is sending out calls for public hearings through its engineer offices is the best proof that the opening has been made. If the cause is worthy, and sufficient interest shown by the people, it should win. As we see it, there is no doubt about the merit of the proposition. The Ohio already is showing enormous increase in traffic. The Big Sandy would be one of the Ohio river's best feeders if the slackwater system reached to the full navigable length of its two streams. Railroad rates are high and the difference in the cost of transportation would be a life-saver for coal operators along the river, who now are not making any money. The five dams already in do not carry slackwater to the coal fields and therefore the system is worth very little to the public as it is. The government can turn a dead investment into a live one of great benefit by completing this system. No better deal is to be found in the world than exists in the hills of Letcher and Tug forks of the Big Sandy.

The Pikeville meeting should be attended by strong delegations from all counties. All facts having a favorable bearing upon the subject should be placed in the hands of the U. S. engineer of this district.

HOG CHOLERA PREVALENT EACH YEAR IN WINTER

During November hog cholera is more prevalent each year than any other time and this year is no exception. It behooves every hog owner to be on the lookout for signs of infection. They may partly prevent through the netting nose and snout an extensive loss.

Hog cholera can be prevented by netting the snout and the farmer who had netted hogs vaccinated when they weighed about 40 pounds is not worrying at the present time about this disease. It is never too late to vaccinate as long as the hogs are not sick. After they get sick, it is usually not a paying proposition.

This disease is caused by a germ and is characterized by a loss of appetite, a fever, constipation at first and later diarrhea and usually ends in death. It is transmissible from one hog to another.

Sanitary measures play an important part in the control of this disease. All hogs that die of cholera should be burned or buried deeply. The hog houses should be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected. All sick hogs should be separated from the rest.

Early American Libraries

In 1721 a subscription library was opened by Benjamin Franklin in Philadelphia. Many early subscription libraries have become the foundations of public libraries. The oldest library as we know it today was scarcely known before 1830 and has developed for the most part since the formation of the American Library Association in 1876. The earliest tax-supported library is supposed to have been the town library of Salisbury, Conn., established in 1803. The oldest existing library is said to be the one at Petersborough, N. H., established in 1823.—Kansas City Star.

Dandy French Musketeers

A musketeer is a soldier armed with a musket, an infantryman of earlier times, but the word is specifically applied to a company of gentlemen who were a mounted guard in the service of the kings of France from 1603 down to the time of the revolution. They were clad in scarlet, hence their quarters were called the "Maison Rouge." In peace they followed the king on his hunting expeditions to protect him. In war they fought either on foot or on horseback. They were dandy soldiers, who went to war with curled hair, white gloves, and perfumed hair linings.—Montreal Family Herald.

The Easiest Way

A young girl was talking the other day of what she desired to do with her life. While nobody appeared to know of any special aptitude she had for anything, she discussed the possibility of becoming an artist or writer.

It was evident that these things suggested effort, for after a while she said languidly: "I don't know. Perhaps I shall just marry."

Nastical Difficulties

Sharon's mother bought her a toy sailboat and told her to put some water in the bathtub and sail. Fifteen minutes later Sharon came out on the front porch with the toy boat in her hand.

"Why aren't you sailing your boat?" asked her mother. "Oh, the tub was over and the boat kept falling overboard," Sharon called to her mother, "making it

FIND INSANITY IN FRANCE INCREASES

Auto and War Blamed for Overflowing Asylums.

Paris—Hectic Parisian life and bitter memories of the World War are driving many people into insane asylums that the French government has suddenly found itself with more crazy people on its hands than it can accommodate.

Steadily since the war there has been a continual increase in the number of persons admitted to mental hospitals. There are 47 insane asylums in France and they are taxed to capacity. The government is considering the rapid construction of emergency hospitals to take care of this year's increase.

The total number of demented patients for the region of Paris is now around 23,000, while public health officials note an alarming increase in the number of new patients this year. The six leading hospitals in and around Paris are crowded to the doors and to take care of new and pressing cases some of the older patients are moved to provincial institutions for confinement.

The assistants of M. Desire Ferry, minister of public health, have been studying the reasons for the startling increase in the number of demented patients every year. Their studies lead them to believe the greater majority of mental derangement is caused from too fast and hectic a life, or from worries and fears growing out of the war.

Several doctors believe that modern Paris traffic is partially responsible for the mental condition of some of the aspirants. Harassed throughout life by wildly dashing taxis, the day eventually arrives, declare these doctors, that something snaps in their brains.

Every day in France 10 persons are killed in automobile accidents, a figure which has led Premier Andre Tardieu to issue strict orders that driving permits must be taken away from persons unfit to conduct an automobile. Statistics show that only 1,623 persons were killed by automobiles throughout France in 1924, while last year the total was 3,717.

Young Seals Must Be Taught to Swim, Claim

Settle the question of how seals must be taught to swim; they don't take to the water like ducks or fish. Dr. George Haley, professor of biology at the University of California, San Francisco, brought that information with him when he returned here after a tour of the Pribiloff Islands, where a federal survey showed 300,000 seals this summer.

"A young seal thrown in the water will drown," Doctor Haley said, "they must be taught to swim, taking it by degrees at their mothers' sides." The seal population on the islands has been steadily increasing since the United States, Canada, Great Britain and Japan reached an agreement toward the protection of seals foraging on the islands, he reported. The rookeries will eventually reach their maximum population of 4,000,000, he believes.

Doctor Haley returned here on the federal boat Penguin, which carried $1,000,000 worth of seal skins consigned to a St. Louis fur company. The United States receives a percentage of the profits and gives 10 per cent to Great Britain and 5 per cent to Japan as part of the protective agreement.

Since the three nations agreed to protect the seals against winter hunters, the population of the islands has increased at the rate of about 7 per cent annually, Doctor Haley reported. Seals spend their winters off the coast of Washington and Oregon, returning to the Pribiloff Islands during the summer.

Words Can't Describe Good Karnak Did Me

"I just know there is nobody in all the world happier than I about this wonderful medicine, Karnak. I have taken all kinds of medicines and treatments in the past ten years trying to get some relief from my suffering, but nothing helped me until I began Karnak.

"Oh, how I suffered with stomach trouble. Why, I was almost a nervous wreck from it. I had no appetite to speak of, food just didn't have any taste to me. But even though I would eat only the lightest kind of things, I would suffer just the same.

"I had just lost all my strength and at times I would feel so weak I could hardly walk across the room.

"I was so nervous and restless I couldn't get any sleep to amount to anything. In the morning I could hardly drag myself out of bed. It began to look mighty blue for me, but Karnak has changed everything. It is too good for words."

A MATTER OF PARAMOUNT IMPORTANCE

Elsewhere in the Times this week is outlined in detail the purpose and the great importance of the meeting to be held in Pikeville Monday...

With conditions in the coal industry and other business enterprises as they are, it would seem unnecessary to urge upon the citizens of this section the utmost support to the move which would open the Big Sandy to navigation...

This project would not be the servant of the coal industry alone. Besides saving all other businesses thousands of dollars annually on freight rates, it would restore coal production to its rightful place...

Years ago, five locks and dams were installed on the lower Big Sandy and Levisa and Tug forks. These as they now stand, furnishing slackwater for only the lower reaches of these streams...

It is to our permanent advantage to fight this matter through to the ending which will see the Big Sandy the medium whereby the vast resources of its valleys may be profitably developed...

NEW DOMAIN CO. ABANDONS WELL

Haysville, Ky., Nov. 17.—Work on abandoning another of the "dry-out" oil wells of this vicinity, which has produced an abundance of "dry gas"...

Not Sexton, minder, who recently came here from his home in Ohio to work in the mines this winter, suffered a badly lacerated leg the other day when a small shaft fell on him.

The hunting season opened here Saturday with a bang. Stomachs raved on every side and the poor rabbits and quail had a hard time of it.

Mrs. Edith Horn, of this place, was slightly hurt when she collided with her opponent during a basketball game at Gannett last Friday.

Elben Layne, Jr., of this place, was attending the Martin theater Sunday afternoon.

Miss Annika Mapple, of Salt Lick, was visiting in Haysville, Sunday afternoon.

CORN FODDER GOOD FOR HORSES DURING COLD SEASON

Thick corn fodder, or properly cured corn stover, furnishes one of the best roughages for the horse. If they are not mottled to a great extent these cornstalls will be palatable and free from dust.

stalls will be found clean and quite fresh, so the horses will get a great deal of forage from them. For stallions and brood mares, the horses and growing colts it will be found that good corn silage is a good substitute for timothy hay.

Experiments in feed of the eastern states show that horses being light work in winter may safely be fed 10 to 12 pounds of corn stover per head daily besides a grain ration of oats and corn.

NATIONAL SAFETY RALLY

When one reviews the enormous figures of human and economic losses through industrial accidents, one cannot help but applaud the one sent out by Secretary of Commerce Robert D. Lamont to employers and employees of the United States to unite in a movement to reduce this tremendous toll.

Secretary Lamont recently spoke on this subject over a national radio broadcast and it is estimated that his address was heard by one million workers throughout the country and they heard the astounding fact that industrial accidents in the United States during the year 1929 had been responsible for 23,000 deaths, 300,000 injuries and money losses totaling $1,000,000,000.

These figures, remember apply to industry alone. They do not include the destruction of life and property on the highways or in the home, just in industry alone.

Most of these accidents were preventable. Most of the deaths and injuries could have been avoided by the exercise of due care. The tremendous monetary loss, which ranks last in importance could also have been prevented. It is high time that employers and employees united in a national safety rally.

BARBER TRIMS THEM; SHEARS NOT NEEDED

Skill Makes Usual Tonsorial Tools Unnecessary

New York.—Antonio Olivette is a barber. He makes money shearing people and such is his skill that frequently he doesn't even use the scissors. An irritating smile, a sympathetic manner, a soft, friendly voice at times serve him in place of clippers, and this was never illustrated better than in the case of Patrick Gannon, which was called to the attention of the police at headquarters recently.

Olivette was arrested in front of an employment agency at twenty-eighth street and Sixth avenue, on the same spot where nearly five months ago he did the neatest piece of trimming in the history of his tonsorial career. He was seized by his former customer—Mr. Gannon—held firmly in the latter's grasp until uniformed assistance arrived and was then removed to the police station, where he was charged with grand larceny. For once apparently he had shaved things too close.

The Whole Story. The next day the complete story was revealed to the authorities, and it is chronicled above as follows. On May 22 Mr. Gannon was out of work. He was standing in front of the Sixth avenue employment agency when he was approached by the barber.

"Would you like a job, my friend?" Olivette inquired, showing a grin of white teeth and placing a soft hand on Mr. Gannon's shoulder. "Wouldn't it be just—just?" Gannon replied slowly and forcibly, with long spaces between each word.

"Very well, my friend, you shall have a job. Come with me," and with this the barber led Mr. Gannon to the corner of Twenty-sixth street and Fifth avenue. There they were waiting for the barber's who was wearing Mr. Gannon's white apron, although the fact is irrelevant. The three men stood on the corner after the formal introduction and talked about Gannon's prospective job.

"Have you any references?" asked the man in the white apron. "No," replied Gannon, "nothing but a bank book." The book, at the top of which he had written the name of the other man, who saw that there was $2,000 lying idle in the bank to the credit of Mr. Gannon.

"Let us go down to the bank, just we three," suggested the man in the white apron. "Let us go down and see if everything exists as they are represented here," he added, pointing to the book and smiling.

Sound is Familiar. And so the three men walked to the bank. There, Gannon told the teller, he was prevailed upon to draw his money out of the bank—the whole $2,000—and when he did this the job was outlined to him.

"Mr. Gannon," said the man in the white apron, "I think your references are all right. Here is what I have in mind. There is a wholesale silk store up the avenue where I have two bolts of silk valued at $3,000 each. I wish you would go up there and get them for me."

Gannon nodded and started to walk north, but the man in the white apron held him sleeve.

"Not quite so fast, my friend," he said with the utmost good humor. "After all, you understand, this silk is valuable. I have your references all come back with it? And he smiled charmingly. Gannon replied that he did not know how White Apron would know that he would come back with it. He was worried. Already the glowing prospect of a small job began to fade.

"I'll tell you what we'll do," said the man in the white apron. "You leave the $2,000 here with Olivette and myself as security. Then go and get the silk and come back and we'll return the money." He patted Gannon on the back in a friendly way and Gannon accepted the proposal and started off in the direction of the silk house.

It is hardly necessary to say that there was no silk house at the address given, or that when Gannon returned to the southwest corner of Twenty-sixth street and Fifth avenue his benefactors had disappeared.

Completion of Waterways System Is Proposed. According to information given out at Williamson, a large delegation of local operators from the Tug river field and members of the Williamson Chamber of Commerce will attend to urge the completion of this lock and dam system on the two streams, Louisville, Paducah and Tug. Being highly interested in the project, interested persons and, according to those interested in the water, others will come from several other points in the regions drained by the Tug and Levisa rivers.

The meeting is not exclusively for coal operators and business men, but is open to any and all interested persons. It is announced, County and city officials and others interested in the development of the project have been invited, as well as those concerned. They will be given an opportunity to express their views on the advisability of completing the lock and dam project and deal settlements will be heard, but Major Heintzberg says that, in view of the facts and arguments, he presided in writing or in brief form, that a permanent record may be kept.

The revival of interest in the slackwater project grows out of the authorizing the construction, repair and preservation of rivers and harbors. The River and Harbor Act was passed by the last Congress and approved July 3, 1906.

The enterprise to be by means a new one. It has been pointed out, a number of years ago the two rivers were surveyed and the slackwater project started. Three locks were placed on the main stream which runs from the Ohio as far as Linton, and one lock was placed on each of the Tug and Levisa forks. The work was later abandoned. At the time of the abandonment the lock and dam system on the Ohio river had not been completed and it was impossible for boats to get into the Sandy from the Ohio during low water stages on the Ohio. At that time, too, it has been pointed out, the coal exports from the Tug and Levisa fields, were exceedingly small compared to the shipments of the present time.

These locks and dams, many operators of both sections say, would give outlets to the Ohio river for coal at a much cheaper rate than is charged for transportation by railroads, and would, as a result, allow them to sell their coal cheaper in the northern markets. This, it is claimed, would result in larger sales and absorb the unemployed in the Tug and Levisa fields. The construction is also looked upon as an aid to flood control, holding back the waters of large rivers.

A large number of business men are supporting the proposed improvement on the contention that it would improve conditions in general.

More Than Being "Tidy"

If you talk to some folk about their lack of orderliness, they tell you, more often than not, that they cannot be bothered. Somehow they seem to love to see a man lazily doing his work in the midst of a pile of disordered papers.

It is all very well to enjoy such inactivity; but it does not seem economical in fact, it is surely a waste of time. It is always odd to see a man whose very important in these days of speed, and to the importance of his work, is of second importance. I am not so sure that it is not almost as important as the success of his work, that he has not put out of our consideration his orderliness.

Orderliness in a home, on the bench or in a table, is not pleasant to look upon. Besides, if we are orderly in our work, we shall be orderliness, and therefore greater success. We have no right to do any thing or have any method or lack of method, that retards progress.—G. H. G. in London T. B. B. S.

CLUB HERE ENJOYS UNUSUAL PROGRAM

The regular annual meeting of the Business and Professional Woman's Club, held at the Elizabeth Hotel on Monday evening, November 17, proved to be one of the best meetings ever held since the organization of the club.

The special dining room was very artistically decorated in keeping with Thanksgiving. The banquet table was decorated with strips of orange crepe paper, and the center placed with fruit, flowers, and other things which had a holiday atmosphere. A very appetizing menu was served.

The enthusiastic chairman, Mrs. Anna Martin, and her committee had prepared a splendid program, which follows:

Song, "America the Beautiful," club; "Club Colored," reading by Mrs. M. J. Lester; chorals, Prestonsburg High school also sang under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Van Hook; "Hymn to the Holy Spirit," Rev. J. M. Helms; music, Edith Fitzpatrick; pianist, John Hensley; troupe; "Why Study Art?" discussion by Mrs. W. P. Mayo; address, Congressional A. J. May; song, club. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Winnie E. Johns, who presided in a most pleasing manner. Pleading credit cannot be given Mrs. Dorothy Van Hook for this splendid gift, also which she has worked with so faithfully.

The traveling given by Rev. J. M. Helms, pastor of the M. E. Church, South, was indeed wonderful, as he sang a picturesque description of the Holy Land. Needless to say, the next number was greatly enjoyed, as we all know what to expect when Mrs. Fitzpatrick and Mr. Hensley are on the program, as they appear in their articles in the Holy Land. Mrs. Mayo, who has been a teacher of art here for several years, gave a very fine talk on why we should study art. Congressman A. J. May, who was present, gave a most interesting and highly complimentary talk on the subject of art. The entire program was enjoyed to the fullest extent. Mrs. Heber Barker brought before the club the question of having Mrs. Charles E. Dunn, of Louisville, Ky., social hygiene worker for the state health department, give a lecture on her work. It was voted to request to come here during the next week in December.

Those present were Mrs. Winnie E. Johns, Mrs. Joe Jarrell, Mrs. Estley M. Stimble, Mrs. W. P. Mayo, Mrs. Robert Hensley, Mrs. M. J. Lester, Misses Virgie McCombs, Violet Hunsinger, Louise Dunn, Anna Harris, Amy Martin, Mary K. Kenney, Ruby Barker, Margaret Olike, Dorothy Van Hook, Edith Fitzpatrick, Misses Inez Harris, Marie Sprinkle, Rev. J. M. Helms, John W. Hensley, and Congressman-elect A. J. May.

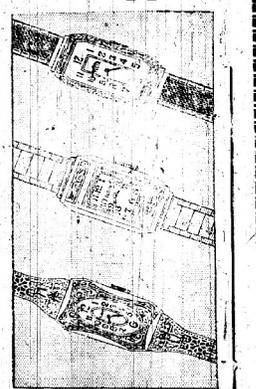

BAKE SALE The Women's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, will conduct a bake sale Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at Oppenheimer's store.

Misses Opal Parker and Eleanor Sprinkle are spending the week-end at Portsmouth, Ohio.

NATION LEANS UPON AUTO INDUSTRY The extent to which the industrial structure of America leans upon the automobile, was vividly illustrated following the placing of an order incidental to announcing Chevrolet's new 1931 models.

The order called for 171,846 feet of material, or a ribbon of canvas 23 inches wide, to be made up into banners for dealers' showroom displays and for signs to be used in sales meetings being held throughout the country.

Less than 2,000 yards of the material were available in Detroit. Due to low inventories resulting from curtailed operations this year, a search of wholesalers, bleachers and mills in strategic parts of the country, revealed a supply of white canvas, on hand still 20,000 yards short of filling the order.

Timely the demand within the specified time, a mill in South Carolina which had built the mill into production on a 24-hour shift schedule. Mills in other parts of the country were put to work overtime. To produce the finished banners, and drape, two plants manned by artists, sign painters, carpenters and laborers had to work on three eight-hour shifts.

"This one order resulted in the opening of three plants not then in production, and the employment of hundreds of men," explained H. J. Sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Division, "and it is a good example of the way in which the automobile industry has helped to build up the country."

simply larger than others we have caution of how all industry benefits placed from time to time for similar through the automobile. Purchase materials to meet the needs of our of a car means work for the customer dealer. What happened in this instance, the manufacturer in fact all those in the mutual activity brought about people employed in the production of though placing an order only for preparation of the large number of material to announce the new car raw materials which go into the to be taken as a pretty good built building of the finished automobile.
