Three-Year-Old Tot Dies in Blaze Here

PATIERNO CHILD BURNS TO DEATH AS HOME RAZED

Hundreds Stand Helpless, Witnessing Tragedy Wednesday Morning

HELP FOR STRICKEN

Held in the thrall of terrible tragedy, several hundred residents of Prestonsburg stood helplessly Tuesday morning while a three-year-old tot burned to death as a home was razed to ashes.

The tragedy was that in which Edward Sylvester, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Patierno, burned to death with the destruction by fire of the Patierno home in the Garfield Addition here.

It is suggested, now being offered by various Johnson county citizens, are adopted, the lot's bills of the magnificent home which once sheltered the Mayo family during the great success of a huge fortune will be used for the purposes of housing the county.

The Mayo home, following the death of its builder and millionaire owner, was deeded to the John C. Mayo College, which no longer exists. Its worth is such that excessive taxes on the property resulted in a sale by private individual.

The victim resided here and had many friends in this vicinity. He is survived by his father, James Ball, of Gallipolis, Ohio, and by the following brothers and sisters: Elder and Bessie Ball, Prestonsburg; Otto Ball, Gallipolis, O.; Mrs. Tom Moore, Prestonsburg; and Mrs. Maggie Kelly, Cincinnati.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday afternoon from the M. E. Church, South, here, by the Rev. Arnold T. Mainbois, pastor of the Presbyterian Church here, officiating. Burial was made in the Mayo cemetery, beside the late Mrs. Mayo, by the Rev. J. W. Webb, Prestonsburg, and the Rev. J. W. Webb, Prestonsburg, and the Rev. J. W. Webb, Prestonsburg.

TO PRESTONBURG'S CREDIT

With all our human frailties, all our little meannesses, and despite all those petty prejudices which clutter up our souls—still we are good, down deep in our hearts.

The big heart of Prestonsburg bared itself to the everlasting credit of the town here this week when the community as a whole, grief-stricken at the terrible tragedy which befell the Patierno family here, opened its resources to their aid. Gifts were made according to the resources of the donors, but, big or little, the gifts came ungrudgingly out of the goodness of our hearts in the realization that whatever humankind could give would be pitifully inadequate to replace the loss of this family which was infinitely greater than any material misfortune ever can be.

CHILD HEALTH WEEK

Today Child Health Week ends in play Day, with childhood making the day all its own in celebration of youthful health and all those joys which come of the full zest of life.

Each year, the period just now being is becoming more and more widely observed. During recent years, May Day has exceeded in the interest of Floyd county almost all holidays.

It is well that it should be so. Growing interest in the welfare of children, as induced by the knowledge of modern health principles and practices, is an indication of our growing intelligence.

It is not enough to give our children only blind adoration. It is natural for every parent to love his or her child. The great need, the necessity which is being met by such movements as Child Health Week, is for the parent not only to lavish affection upon the child but also to follow the clearly defined precepts of modern science in caring for the child from babyhood through adolescence in such a way as to insure to the child the great heritage of good health.

CHILD HEALTH DAY

By the President of the United States

A PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, the Congress by joint resolution has authorized and requested the President of the United States of America to proclaim annually that May Day is Child Health Day; and,

WHEREAS, the responsibility for the well-being of children is a community responsibility as well as an individual duty; now

THEREFORE, I, HERBERT HOOVER, President of the United States of America, do call upon all Governors of the states of the Union, and all Governors of territories and possessions of the United States to declare to their people that May Day should be used wherever possible as Child Health Day, for the consideration of all public and private measures by which the health of our children may be conserved and advanced; and I hereby commend for consideration on that day "The Children's Charter," as set forth by the White House Conference on Child Health and Protection.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

DONE, at the city of Washington this seventh day of April, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred and thirty-one and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and fifty-sixth.

Washington Not Hailed as "Second Cincinnati"

George Washington has sometimes been called "the second Cincinnati" in allusion to his having been called to the Presidency from his plantation at Mount Vernon, to which he retired after having voluntarily resigned his commission as commander in chief of the army. But it was William Henry Harrison, who was called from his estate at North Bend, on the Ohio river, to be the first President of the United States, who was termed "the Cincinnati of the West."

In both of these instances the allusion is to the story of the Roman historian, Livy, relating that in the year 49 B. C., when the Aeneid and Aeneas had set up the Roman emperor, Lucius Manlius, and his army in a death and Rome itself being in great danger, the Roman senate, in alarm, had made Lucius Manlius Cincinnatus dictator, the messengers sent to inform him of his appointment, found him at the plow. Although his dignities, however, have pronounced the most attractive parts of the story fiction, Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Dense Sulphurous Fog

In his "Scenes and Legends" Hugh Miller relates that "one night in the month of August, 1624, a cold east wind, accompanied by a dense sulphurous fog, passed over the country, and the half-burned corn was struck with mildew. It struck and withered in the season, all the fields seemed as if sprinkled with flour, and where the fog had remained longest—in some places it stood up like a chain of hills during the greater part of the night—the most distressing were the grapes." In November, a pestilence broke out, which many of the people ascribed to the "fog," and some instances of a most infectious disease. In the English West Indies, out of 500 persons 500 were swept away, and in a little village called the Crofts, inhabited by only six or eight families, there were 20 corpses in the space of a few days.—London, Mail.

Air Scout's Flight

The staff of the Air Scout is as follows: "I am Air Scout; I am flying to the best of my ability in the Scout oath and law. I believe in the Scout's safety in the Air. I know that a healthy mind and body are the greatest factors of airworthiness. I shall strive to further aviation by applying the principles of scouting in all matters pertaining to flying. I shall always remember that a good flyer is an efficient flyer, and that efficiency comes through application. I will never forget that an Air Scout is first, last and always a Boy Scout, that he practices self-control, is a clear thinker, is cool-headed, a student of aviation and has respect for experience."

Airplanes and Birds

It has been asked, "Why can't airplanes be made to fly like the birds?" La Technique Aeronautique says: "It is well known that the primary features of a bird's wing are directly separated while in flapping flight. Tests made on models simulating this construction showed that the lift increased three times, and drag increased nine times. One of the most important assets of the bird's wing is its flexibility and control in condition extremely difficult to copy mechanically. Many scientists are studying the flight of birds to find any hitherto unobtainable details of nature's technique that will help man in mechanical flying. When inventors produce a material that has the strength, weight, rate of resistance and the balance of a bird with an engine which has the efficiency of a bird's digestive system and can be made so that he may fly both an airplane as well as a bird."—Washington Star.

"Duce" Greeting to America

The National Broadcasting company says that the first international program ever broadcast from Italy to the United States was staged on January 1, 1931, when Premier Benito Mussolini, speaking from Fascist headquarters in Rome, sent his New Year greeting to America through coast-to-coast networks. This was the first program ever heard in this country originating on the Italian mainland. Twelve hours, however, broadcast had heard programs from Italian warships from the yacht of Senator Guglielmo Marconi, the father of radio, anchored off the coast of the peninsula.

Keep Up Old Custom

It is significant that although in the country, owing to drought to stress of circumstances, many old customs have died out, in London companies distinctly connected with them still linger. For instance, farmers once gave their laborers the traditional "Merry Monday Supper" to celebrate the beginning of another year's plowing.

It would be hard to find a farm where the custom is still kept up, but the lord mayor keeps the festival by giving a Plow Monday dinner to all the officials of the city corporation, London Morning Post.

Happiness

Joy is a condition of the mind and art, not a circumstance of environment. It is something we create, not a gift from the world. A secret of happiness is not in doing what one likes, but in liking what one does.—Gail.

THREE-YEAR-OLD DIES IN BLAZE HERE

This tragedy has made a profound impression upon the people of Prestonsburg, who immediately came to the relief of the stricken family. Before the fire had passed, the residents of the town gathered by the roadside on Grand street by way of sympathy for the family, and many household effects had been donated to the fatherless.

John Patton, father of the child of this tragedy, is associated with young John W. Fawcett here, and is one of Prestonsburg's most important and distinguished citizens. The family has the sympathy of the entire community in their bereavement.

The residence which was occupied by the fatherless child and destroyed in the fire, was owned by J. T. Patton, father of County Attorney J. P. Patton. Mr. and Mrs. Patton's apartment building from the building. Through the kindness of the fire department, the flames from spreading to an adjacent residence.

PROMINENT AUXIER MAN FOUND DEAD

James Ford Succumbs Sunday Night; Heart Attack, Death Cause

James Ford, prominent Floyd county citizen, was found dead Monday morning in bed at his home near ... this county by members of his family. He is believed to have been a victim of heart disease. Mr. Ford was about 42 years old. On Sunday night, Mr. Ford was in Auxier and complained of being ill. After he had re-arranged his pillow, a physician was called, but later his condition was improved and he was thought to be recovering. He retired in a room alone that night, and members of his family were unaware of his death until the next morning. Mr. Ford was the son of the late M. J. Patton of Ford and Mrs. Elizabeth Patton Ford, who survives. He was widely known in the lower part of this county, and was a prominent citizen. One brother and three sisters survive: Mrs. T. E. Moran, Miss Louella Ford and Will Ford, of Auxier.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. May, Jr., and their daughter, Barbara Jean, Mrs. Harry Stidgen and Miss Margarette May spent several days last week in Cincinnati.
