stroy the dream that soldiers have? Dreams that are imbued in their homeland, before the battle, by fiery-mouthed patriots who have never seen—

Misery, gasped, lungs hanging limp, and gory entrails . . . And the second horse is white and is ridden by LLAGUE—

The same horseman that is riding among the cholera-stricken in China and pestilence-ridden Spain was the same whose touch brought gangrene and tetanus in France.

I see a black horse and FAMINE holds the rein—

The same in whose wake in France I saw the hunger and starving left to beg to hunger and starve amid barren fields peck-marked by shell-bits and barbed-wire entanglements.

I see a pale-colored steed and it is ridden by DEATH—

The same horseman that strikes with bullets and bombs and gas is striking in Spain and China, destroying, as was I, the young and old, the guilty and innocent.

And amid today's marching men my spirit calls to warn of the Fourteenth I hear tramping toward American soil.

And I would that drums be muffled, the martial notes of bugles hushed, the tongues of demagogues hushed, that the world may hear and know what the dead remember, but the living do not quickly forget.

O, Ghost of the Unknown Soldier, speak.

YOU DID—

I DIDN'T That back-sassing idea we had last week at the start of this column came in handy, not two hours after the paper went into the mails. For some of the iron prices in the American Department Store ad were wrong. And this one of the editors claim to be Mr. Fife, manager of the store, that it was all his assistant's fault. The ad appears in this week's paper, corrected, we hope.

WEVE GOT SOMETHING HERE

Recently the TIMES has been copied in papers up and down the valley, in Huntington, Louisville, and elsewhere. But we felt the high point was reached last Saturday and Sunday when two successive days the Courier-Journal printed our story of the 'Cat-Hazard football league, changing only one word in the headline. Make that 'Cat team' get something there.

disorderly, also was wounded when Marshall was shot to death.

He is in the Paintsville hospital, and attaches said he was not expected to live. He suffered a gunshot wound in the abdomen. No effort was made to question him. Commonwealth's Attorney Cooper said state police were not requested because of anticipated trouble, but "merely because we are without a police department."

Chief Marshall led Salyers two blocks to the jail but did not search him, Sheriff A. L. Cooper said.

After the chief was shot, the sheriff said, Salyers dodged inside the door on the jail's second floor. There were no other prisoners on the floor and a Sheriff Cooper locked the door to allow the still-arrested prisoner to "cool off."

It was not for several hours that officers found that he had been wounded. They found him unconscious on the floor.

CUPID GETS INTO HIGH GEAR AS THREE COUPLES ARE WED

Hueysville, Ky., Nov. 9.—Dan Cupid who has been quiet in the Hueysville vicinity for some several months, got into high gear during the last fortnight.

They will reside here, near Mr. Jones' work with the Central Elkhorn Coal Company.

The third couple to get a marriage certificate were George W. Bailey, well-known merchant of this place, and Miss Dora Handshoe, of Salt Lick, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey are held in the highest esteem and will reside here, where Mr. Bailey has a nice store and good house.

HILLSMEN MOURN LOSS OF SQUIRRELS, TREES

Hueysville, Ky., Nov. 9.—The Kentucky hills have lost so many of their old-time customs and ideas during the last few years, due mostly to the extending hand of so-called progress, that they are getting pretty well used to it now. But even yet they do not give the tree trunks to squashes their forefathers against with an attitude of finality is not their way.

These days, with the spirit of fall plain everywhere, they are talking about the loss of the chestnuts and the gray squirrels. These, of course, may not be regarded as gifts from the forefathers; but they were very closely connected with the fairyland of old-time life, and that was what the forefathers really wished to bequeath to their children.

The chestnut blight, which many of the old-timers look upon as a scourge resulting from too much contact with the outside world, has swept the Kentucky mountains almost clean of their once-time abundant and beautiful supply of chestnut timber. Only the decaying trunks and brittle limbs are to be seen today, black and lonely against the skyline.

With the chestnuts went a spirit and a following which can't ever be replaced, and the true hillsman, though helpless, hugs into himself an unexpressed resentment against the outside world as a result. It is a feeling which only time can erase.

To a wide section of the mountains, Quinsand Creek, Knott county, has been a sort of mecca for hunters during many past years. Once or twice a year hundreds of men with that natural sense for wild life managed to slip away from humdrum jobs and take a quiet vacation in its state's depths. They always came back with better spirits and a bushy squirrel between their teeth.

But now this last mecca is no more, for Quinsand was largely a chestnut forest—and the blight has done its work.

Where Prizes Offered In the "nifty nineties," most United States senators wore Prince Albert. They were a symbol of statesmanship and a beard was the mark of a man of maturity and substance.

Newly-Elected Board Members Thank Voters

The election is over, and the people through their mighty power, have elected us members of the Floyd County Board of Education.

We hold no enmity toward those who opposed us. During our tenure we will try to perform our duties in seeing all of Floyd county's 17,000 school children.

We shall be glad to serve on this board and shall lend our assistance in furthering the splendid school system Floyd county now has.

When they came to play awhile; And always had a kind word to say. When they came to see him each day.

So now he is called to another field, I'm sure he will work with as much zeal. To help others to find Jesus Christ today. That we may all meet again some day. —Written by a friend.

The Roman Toga

The Roman toga, the national garment of the Romans, was originally worn by both men and women. It was a piece of woolen cloth in the form of a segment of a circle. The chord of the arc—the straight edge—was about three times the height of the wearer, and the height a little less than one-half of this length. One end of the garment was thrown over the left shoulder and allowed to hang down in front; the remainder who terrorized the South for several years.

Largest Band of Criminals The largest band of criminals in the history of the United States was "Murder's Gang," consisting of more than a thousand horse and slave thieves, forgers and highwaymen who terrorized the South for several years in the early part of the Nineteenth century. When captured, states a writer in Collier's Weekly, the men who directed and protected the gang had grown so bold that they were about to attempt the seizure of New Orleans.

Where Kite-Flying Originated

According to tradition, kites were invented by Archytas of Tarentum two centuries before Christ. They have been used by savage tribes of Asia from time immemorial, and kite flying has been a national pastime of the Chinese, Japanese and other East Indians. The origin of kite flying is obscure, but it is generally ascribed to religion. The Koreans attribute its origin to a general who many hundred years ago inspired his troops by sending up a kite with a lantern attached. The soldiers believed it to be a new star and the sign of divine help.

TO THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY:

I take this means to explain to you my reasons for withdrawing from the race for judge; and at the same time to thank my many friends and relatives for their loyalty and support.

Because of the fact that I had not been a resident of the county for a year (having resided in Ohio for several years), I could not legally hold the office, had I received a majority of the votes. This fact was called to my attention after I had won the Republican nomination, and I had no other course to follow.

Again permit me to express my deep gratitude to all who stuck by me. I hope to be able to repay them in kind.—DAY HALL.
