PRESTONSBURG, KY.

THIS 1942 season has already opened a new war between umpires, managers and ball players, especially in the National League. You can gamble that the umpires are right 95 per cent of the time. Here's one set reason: No umpire sitting on the bench, and this includes Leo Durocher and Frank Frisch, is in position to call a pitched ball within a foot of where it travels. Their angle of vision is all correct, and that of gear and focus.

Grandstand Rice In our wandering career we have watched the mang of over 2,000,000 feet of sports pictures, to discover how much the right and wrong angles meant. This goes for a ball game, a horse race and a stand in golf. It goes for any game. If the camera is set at the wrong angle, only by a few feet, the picture will tell an untrue story. The same is true of the human eye. Or the human ear.

At race track, if you are not dead set on the finish line you can easily disagree by a half length or even a length with the testimony of the camera which is aimed directly at the wire. Every horseman knows that.

Same in Baseball Trained umpires are supposed to be in the correct spots for a correct decision. They can make mistakes, being only human.

Managers and ball players on the bench are not in the right spot to call an out correctly. If the bench were the right place, then umpires would be sitting on the bench and not standing around on the ball field.

Using two examples, Messrs. Durocher and Frisch know this. They may be making a few mistakes, but they are not dumb. Most of the load, at squawking, it would make poor umpires, even if packed in the proper places. These bery fellows too often think ahead of themselves.

You'll find that Leo Durocher's physical explosions are used largely in behalf of the old birds. They are employed to offset the defeats in connection with critical crowds.

There is a belief also that crowds like scrappy baseball. Crowds do. But crowds would rather see the battle between two teams—the speed and brains of Ty Cobb, the brains and power of Babe Ruth or a Lou Gehrig or a Ted Williams thrown against the other team, not against the umpires.

A ball player who bats .333 is above the average. Yet, that means he is a flop two-thirds of the time. Umpires make mistakes, but not as many mistakes as managers and ball players make—if you happen to look at the daily box scores.

The greatest pitcher that ever lived—Walter Johnson, never had an argument with an umpire. He was concentrating on the job in hand, not on some umpire's decision. Among a few other pretty fair county pitchers in this respect I might include Chet Mathers, Cy Young, Grover Cleveland Alexander, Ed Walsh, Mordecai Brown.

I've never seen a great pitcher who was an umpire's enemy. No one is great enough to spit his concentration—to look out first for the alibi.

The Ball Players Pick Ball players know what can happen between June and October. They are not the best guessers in the world—but who is? In talking over the two big league campaigns with managers and veterans—we'll leave the younger fellows out—this is the way they figure the two races:

American League—The Yankees chased by the Red Sox and the Indians. National League—Another red-hot all-summer stretch can between Dodgers and the Cardinals.

This was a majority vote, by a wide margin, from the dozen or more respected opinions sought. It is only one respects that the Cardinals to hold the dizzy pace they offered the league through the first few weeks. The material, minus Bobby Feller, isn't that good. But Boudreau has turned in a great job so far. So has Joe Cronin.

Yankees, Dodgers and Cardinals began the season with the better teams—much better teams. They were the headline entries. I still think either Dodgers or Cardinals will meet the Yankees in the next World series—providing, of course, there is a next world series. But through the remainder of the race it appears to me managers and ball players will show more common sense in contracting their attack on rival teams, and not on umpires who are seldom responsible for the mistakes managers and ball players make.

Hilmer's Scheme From indisputable diplomatic sources your reporter learns that the Nazis hope to win, with their fifth and sixth columns, what they could not win on the battlefields. If the Russian campaign fails, Hitler will be toppled—and the German General Staff will pose as the savior of the world from Bolshevism. There is only one thing Hitler is planning to do to save himself from the allied armies and the armies of Germany.

The only thing Hitler has to offer the civilized world is his death. The only people more double crossed than the conquered are the appeasers. The only people more brutally treated than captured civilians are the German industrialists, who gave Hitler his first money.

Hilmer believes he can bribe American business men with their own bank deposits and the American people with the deeds to their own homes. The American answer will be with American scrap-iron—not on Nazi scraps of paper. Hitler's offer will be seventh heaven for the sixth column. But American business leaders will not be fooled by Hitler's profits in dollars. The United States Constitution has supreme authority to defend in peace and dignity. MacArthur, Stillwell, O'Hare, Wheelock and Bukley are building a firm foundation for peace—with a wall for Hitler's back.

Scrambled Eggs: The picture of wrecked Rotterdam, in the Times mag, is something the United Nations must remember to bring to the treaty table. It's a conviction, an unbroken tomb, destroyed to show how tough the Nazis are. And a good argument for a deal that will keep them from getting too high again.

Washington correspondents have a phrase for colleagues who will square a deal by the price of their heads: "They can be bought for a canope."

Lots of Congressmen would be jumper than they already are if they knew their letters were being shown around. These are the sort of letters that are being shown in public but as Band-aging as ever in private. It's the old racket of trading their faces for a few votes.

Which isn't a very smart limb to get yourself out on, Bud. Archibald MacLeish, in an interview, discussed his hecklers, who have grown since he took over the Office of Facts and Figures. "The criticism is often interesting to see what the dailies, that have been warning there was, he says."

An editorial writer keeps repeating that we should win the war as quickly as possible, because peace is better than war. Do you have to have brains to figure that out? How come nobody ever gives medals to critics for going to so many doll shows all season? This one was so dull both the Critics Circle and Pulitzer Committee agreed no show was worth a prize.

This gives you an idea how temporary fame is. If DiMaggio doesn't get a hit one day—they boo him. Whatever happened to those people, who said they had proof Hitler was dead? Here's one to make you dizzy: "Blithe Spirit" the play, is barred from Army camps. Too soggy, they said. So what happens? "Blithe Spirit" gives a performance for—you'd never guess—West Pointers!

Italy has celebrated the sixth anniversary of its empire—which has ceased to exist. Most people cling to it as if it were a life preserver. It takes a great man to look big in defeat. Wilkie, who missed the Presidency, and O'Dwyer, who ran second for mayor, are still good men for these offices. Did you hear why that New Yorker writer was rejected for military service? His doctors found out he had a brain tumor.

Sad to read about Graham McNamee's death. He pioneered a lot of things on the networks. He was the first to get all set up about his subject. He had the kind of pipe that could convey excitement, as too many of his mockers haven't. He also was one of the few laughing faces—who got away with it. The usual giggling feeder is an ear torturer. The straight man who simply laughed at the act's sillies never hit the big time. He was a sensation at Loew's Wichita but never played the Palace.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—PIXFACE—Soundphoto—Elmer Davis of New York shown in photo is the chief of the Office of War Information. The fifty-two-year-old former school teacher and radio commentator has supreme authority to deal with the press, radio, film industry and all other news sources, either federal or private and answers only to the President.

THEY WHO DIE FOR US!

American people, American principles and ideals, American freedom—all have been attacked. The attack on Pearl Harbor is just a taste of what the Axis would like to give every city, town or village in the United States. In comparison with the fanciful cravings of a maniac a human life is but naught. The Axis would inculcate in our youths as they have their own, the belief that all men are morons and all women harlots. They would destroy—not only our homes—deprive us of our freedom and liberty . . . they would degenerate our youth into a state of inferiority—robots.

To preserve our great American principles and perpetuate that god-fearing institution, the American home, as safeguarded by the Bill of Rights, millions of American men and women are risking their lives . . . cognizant of the fact that many will make the supreme sacrifice. For this love of country, home, family and freedom they die for us.

We who remain at home must recognize in this an unliquidatable obligation—a debt of gratitude we can never fully repay. But we can keep the home fires burning; we can sacrifice without complaining.

They who die for us are not complaining. We who are at home must not let their sacrifice be in vain. We also can serve.

Kentucky Honors Site of First House Built on Her Soil

Dr. Thomas Walker Kentucky State Memorial Park
BARBOURVILLE, KENTUCKY

“telling” Kentuckians of Kentucky

The first house built on Kentucky soil was the one built by Dr. Thomas Walker in 1775. The site is now a national historical landmark. The house was built on the banks of the Cumberland River. It was the first permanent settlement in the state. The site is now a national historical landmark. The house was built on the banks of the Cumberland River. great gorge at Pineville where they discovered and named the Cumberland River after the Duke of Cumberland.

Due to heavy rains they could not cross at the aged old Cumberland Ford and accordingly traveled on down the south side of the river. Ascending Branch Creek and Little Branch and on over the Divide they descended Swan Pond Creek to the river again. Finding it too deep to ford they made a park canoe and crossed on April 23. After wading through the low marsh land and up onto a knoll they, in the next seven days, built a house 8 feet wide and 12 feet long; planted some corn and peach stones as well as killed many hours, curing the meat to use for food in further travel.

Upper Right—Panorama of Park and its eastern skyline. Lower Right—Replica of First House, 1776.

Three times as many had they so wished. That Kentucky's First House was built on this site is verified by folklore, proximity of the spring and Dr. Walker's Journal, a copy of which is available at the office of the Park custodian. The Kentucky First House replica is a faithful reproduction of the type of pioneer log hut of the period. Its roof poles hold the sawed planks in place. The door is made of rough slabs pegged together and hinged in the early pioneer fashion with iron. Oil or tallow added are the one-pot bed, triple decked; the hinged wall table; three-legged stools; and outside one is amazed at the skinning pole and salting trough. The visitor gains respect for his ancestor. He learns from the displays that he was strong, sensible, sturdy and unafraid. Here one becomes thankful for the very rich heritage of his forefathers in these days of stress. No one visiting this historic park will regret it. Come and bring others. The children will find swings, teeter boards, and a slide for their entertainment. Adults will enjoy the nearby mountains and the beautiful valley and will take stock of their blessings.

SHIKE'S POKES

The views expressed herein are those of the writer and not necessarily those of this newspaper. Editor. Well, we guess everyone knew what the report of the Truman investigating committee would be. We all know that they would be unable to find any link between obtaining fat contracts and giving expensive presents—using taxpayers' money, too. But the fact remains that Collins obtained a fat contract—so that he made $210 more per yard for concrete than the other contractors. We all know that the other contractors made good money, so it stands to reason that Collins made about $250,000 more than the others. I am of the opinion that if "Happy" had not obtained this contract for Collins, he wouldn't have “yellow” class you were talking about last week.

Keep up the good work, R. H. Heard from Edward Sumbo, of Uncle Sam's army up in Michigan and he says (quote): Shike you Doug to quit closing up the honky-tonk—and me, Mitchell, Stan and Ison will take over after we have turned them heathens across our lap and spanked their Axis. I'm just wondering what happened to all those loatheheads up in Congress that, a couple of years ago, were calling for Walter Winchell a war-monger. I'll bet they'll be wondering what happened, too, after the election. I'm just wondering when John Nielsen's cow will start nesting. He'd fer a sack of "laying mash," while back. Charlie Compton must have had that muffler fixed, or he swapped cars. We haven't heard any complaints of unnecessary noise from Mud Creek.

IT'S SURE THE TRUTH

The best place to find a helping hand is at the end of your arm. What is supposed to be women's stockings, according to the press, comes in a bottle and is applied with a brush. Well, that ought to be a godsend to the women, if a way is figured out to add a little mosquito poison. JUST A THOUGHT "Briarback" and I will be together again in next year's primary. If Big May runs for Governor, it's about time (there never has been) that a Governor came from this section of the state. You don't have to read the papers to know there's a primary election this August. Now, we see a greater sign on the Left Beaver highway—that's a sure sign. Well, it looks like the married men will have to do the fighting in this section—so few of the single ones pass the physical exams. To avoid missing an issue of THE TIMES renew your subscription now.

They Live—If You Remember

Few things are more precious than the memory of loved ones who have gone. Grace and dignity should be the keynote of the funeral rites. To neglect this means years of bitter memories and regrets. At our home you are sure of completeness in every detail and at prices well within reasonable limits.

BOSTON MISS SPENT THREE YEARS AS FIGHTING MARINE

By THELMA MACQUEEN
THRILL-FACED experiences encountered aboard an American warship by a young woman disguised as a man highlight the interesting story of adventuresome years spent by Miss Lucy Brewster as a member of the United States Marine Corps. Miss Brewster guarded her secret so well that in 1918, after her experiences several years later, no person suspected that a woman had served in actual combat as an American Marine. Miss Brewster claimed she participated in four sea engagements. According to her story, Miss Brewster's stirring adventures began two years after she had left the home of her parents for Boston, 40 miles away, to start work as a domestic. At 20 she found herself in dire need of employment. That fact, together with a strong desire to enjoy privileges and adventures restricted her, led her in July, 1916, to obtain a sailor's uniform and disguise herself.

Farmers Report Big Returns from Sheep

Small flocks are adding to farm incomes in many Kentucky counties this year, county agents are reporting. The flock of C. Nichols in Harro county produced an average of one and a quarter lambs and 11 pounds of wool per ewe. When weighing 100 pounds, the lambs brought $16 each. The wool sold for 52 cents a pound, and lambs and wool brought an average of $25.72 per ewe. In Grayson county, 13 northwestern ewes produced 19 lambs, and lambs and wool from the flock brought nearly $300. R. O. Wilson of Livingston county received $77.52 from lambs and wool from two ewes. Ten western ewes which C. E. Powell of Marshall county bought last fall produced wool selling for $46, or more than half what the lambs cost. Claude Nixon of Monroe county sold lambs from 24 ewes for $378, and kept three of the best ones. In Russell county, C. E. Smith clipped an average of 12 1/2 pounds of wool per ewe and the flock of Vernon Solby averaged 11 pounds.

ASSIGNED TO CONSTITUTION

Thorough physical examinations were not included in the enlistment routine of that day and Miss Brewster had little difficulty joining the Marine Corps under the name of George Gabbard. The 44-gun frigate Constitution, commanded by Capt. Isaac Hull, and boarded the warship the next day. Describing her early experiences aboard the Constitution, Miss Brewster said: "New scenes now opened to my view. Plans were taken to the Marine Corps officers to instruct me in the manual of exercise. My good fortune in having Lt. William S. Brush, a humane and experienced officer, for my commanding officer, was much to my favor." BECAME BIBLE EXPERT The Constitution sailed from Boston August 2, 1812, and Miss Brewster states that, except for a brief attack of sea sickness, the first few days were uneventful. She learned to become an expert rifleman and a good shot. In the Constitution met the frigate Guericke and, after a severe battle, captured it. Lt. Brush, she reported, was killed in the engagement. When the ships were together in close action, Miss Brewster reported, she was "busily employed in the topmast, playing my faithful musket with success whenever the smoke would permit me to see the enemy. In the height of the action a grape-shot struck and splintered the butt of my musket." Miss Brewster was aided in concealing her identity because Marines had quarters apart from the crew. Instead of sleeping in hammocks, Leathernecks had separate staterooms with individual bunks. Six Marines were assigned each crew. Sailors and Marines of that era also allowed their hair to grow long.

FALLS OVERBOARD

The next Miss Brewster came to having her identity revealed was in December, 1812, a few minutes after the Constitution had won its battle with the frigate Java, off the coast of Brazil. Stationed in the topmast where she discharged her musket 19 times during the fight, Miss Brewster was descending to the deck when she missed her footing on the shrouds and fell overboard. Not knowing how to swim, she sank immediately. A boat rescued her and she was hoisted, unconscious, to the Constitution's deck. "I had not strength to do it myself, some of my shipmates were ordered to strip off my clothes and to furnish me with a dry suit. They had nearly divested me of my outer garments when I mustered sufficient strength to tell them I felt able to change clothes myself." HONORABLY DISCHARGED Miss Brewster remained a member of the Constitution's Marine Corps detachment until 1815 and took part in its final battle of the war, against the cruisers Cyane and Levant, off the West Coast of Africa.

When the famous frigate turned to America, Miss Brewster said she received an honorable discharge after three years service. "I have not the most distant idea that a single soul on board ever had the slightest suspicion of my sex although I freely associated with my shipmates at sea and on shore," Miss Brewster declared. After receiving her wages and prize money, amounting to a thousand dollars, Miss Brewster said she decided to rehabilitate herself in her true character and went shopping. She then returned to the home of her parents where she remained a year before going to New York City where she married.

9 Magoffin Selectees Are Held at Paris

Paris, Ky., July 21—Police Chief A. B. Lovell said nine selectees from Magoffin county, en route to Fort Thomas to be mustered into army service, were taken into custody here this morning and charged with drunkenness and breach of the peace. The nine were traveling with a party of draftees in three buses. The remainder of the selectees were placed aboard the other two buses and left for Fort Thomas. The chief said the arrests were made after the driver of one bus complained to authorities about the conduct of passengers in his bus and refused to proceed.

ANTI-TRUST TRIAL RESUMED IN FEDERAL COURT

Lexington, Ky., July 19—Trial of the Columbia Gas & Electric Corporation on civil charges of violating the Sherman Anti-Trust Act and the Clayton Trade-Restrict Act by purporting monopolizing national gas commerce in Kentucky, West Virginia, Ohio and Michigan will be resumed tomorrow in federal district court here.

Charges against the big New York utility-holding company were filed with the government in an interesting action in bankruptcy cases involving the American Fuel & Power Company, Inland Gas Corporation and the Kentucky Fuel Gas Company.

The government contends that Columbia, for the purpose of stifling competition, gained control of American and subsequently forced Inland and Kentucky Fuel into re-ownership.

The government's charges against Columbia virtually are identical with those filed against the company in 1938 in a Delaware federal court. This case is pending.

The government specifically asked that Columbia's purported acquisition of stock in the two other fuel concerns be adjudged violations of the Sherman and Clayton acts, and that the defendant company, its agents and officers be enjoined from exercising any control on the three companies and that Columbia divest itself of all bonds and other securities of the three firms.

WARNING!

All automobile owners who do not procure operators licenses before midnight, July 31, will be subject to arrest and prosecution by State Highway police. Operators licenses may be procured at the office of the Circuit Court Clerk.

Federal Reserve Credit Regulations Stated

The Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland reminds those firms and individuals extending credit in connection with the sale of durable and semi-durable goods bought within the scope of Regulation W, by the May 6 amendment that the general license granted them expires on Friday, July 31. On or before that date those not already registered are required to file a registration statement, form F.R. 563-a, with the Consumer Credit Department of the Federal Reserve Bank at Cleveland or its Cincinnati or Pittsburgh branch. Forms and information may be secured from these offices.

Exceptions to this rule are firms which extend only charge account credit as distinguished from installment credit, and lending institutions which make only single-payment loans. The expiration date of the general license under which they are operating at present will be announced later, although immediate registration is encouraged.

The new class of registrants includes sellers of automobile batteries and accessories; tires and tubes; bedding; draperies; bicyclists; household electric appliances not hitherto listed; used furniture; jewelry; glassware; yard goods; military clothing and furs, including shoes, hats and other haberdashery, and certain other items.

Almost half of the gardens in Magoffin county were destroyed by floods, and many potatoes retired in the ground.
