SPORTS AFIELD BY TED KESTING. When we asked a retired angler what he thought of the new fluorescent lures, he replied that they were better than plain ones—sometimes. Other times they weren't as good as regular ones.

It was suggested that fluorescent lures might reflect certain rays visible to fish but not to man. However, some fairly recent experiments by English biologists seem to prove that fish see the same wavelengths we do.

What does all this add up to? Precisely what most of us had expected right from the start: You should by all means have some fluorescent lures or plugs along to try when the light is dull.

D.A.R. Service, Tribute To Mrs. Fitzpatrick

John Graham Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held its meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. O. T. Stephens. Mrs. M. J. Lee, the Regent, presided. Mrs. Herbert Salisbury conducted the ritualistic service.

Mrs. O. T. Stephens reported that Miss Roselyn Hager, of East Point, who had been chosen the Good Citizenship Pilgrim by the high school student body and faculty, had received her Good Citizenship pin and a check for $5. Flag Day on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Harlowe. The committee in charge of the arrangements are Mesdames Gwynn Ford, R. V. May, E. R. Burke, H. L. Mayo, Misses Alice Harris and Mirra Friend.

Mrs. Lee presented Mr. A. C. Harlowe who gave a Memorial Day address, reading "The Bivouac of the Dead" and other poems appropriate to the occasion. A beautiful memorial service was conducted for a recently departed chapter member and a former Regent of the chapter, Mrs. Panny May Fitzpatrick. The draped photograph of Mrs. Fitzpatrick rested on an easel on a table, flanked by a bowl of American Beauty roses, sent by her husband, Henry D. Fitzpatrick, Jr., and tall candelabra holding five candles. Each member taking part in the service lighted a candle in memory of Mrs. Fitzpatrick. Mrs. A. C. Harlowe read the Twenty-third Psalm from Mrs. Fitzpatrick's Bible. Mrs. Herbert Salisbury read a beautiful obituary of her. "The Lord's Prayer" was sung by Mrs. R. V. May, Anson, accompanied by Mrs. Edith F. James at the piano. A favorite poem found in her Bible, which was read at her funeral service, was read by Mrs. C. F. Stephens. The closing prayer was given by Mrs. O. T. Stephens. Mrs. Fitzpatrick held many offices in the chapter and was State D.A.R. Memorial chairman, and was a direct descendant of John Graham for whom the chapter was named.

The hostess served a dessert course to the following guests: Mrs. A. C. Harlowe, Mrs. R. V. May, Mrs. George H. Fitzpatrick, Sarah Clay Stephens, members: Mesdames Osa May Latta, Grace D. Ford, Claude F. Stephens, David Herndon, H. L. Mayo, Jo M. Davidson, Everett H. Skags, Herbert Salisbury, M. J. Lee, Osa F. Ligon, John R. Clarke, C. L. Humphreys, Tom James, Alice Harris, O. T. Mrs. Frazier, Victim At 67 at Home Here; Was Ill Four Years

An illness which had its inception in a fall four years ago in which she suffered a spinal fracture resulted in the death last Wednesday at her home on Friend street here of Mrs. Nellie Dillon Frazier, 67 years old.

Mrs. Frazier was the widow of James Frazier. She was first married to John C. Calhoun. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dillon, she was a native of Prestonsburg where she spent almost her entire life.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday afternoon from the Assembly of God Church, West Prestonsburg, by the Revs. G. R. Pannell and J. E. Johnson and Mrs. Gura Johnson officiating.

THE OLD ORDER PASSETH

By Henry P. Scalf

C. of C. Votes To File Suit Testifying Application Of Law on School Funds

They lived in the "Bob Neelley home" here on the Spring Fork of Holbrook Creek. Neelley, after leaving his coal property to the Pond Creek-Prestonsburg Coal Co. had left for Indiana. Walter Vanderpool, the present tenant of the old house, built sometime back in the 1880's, had come to Spring Fork from Beaver Creek in Floyd county, to work in the lumber camp of the Daubins Lumber Co. This was some three decades ago and, "taken a likin'" to the valley, had remained to farm and to rear a family.

The old house was the most remarkable feature of the landscape, not excluding even the mountains that rimmed it in, leaving only a gap for a visual outlet. It was two stories, built of hewn poplar logs with a native stone chimney on the north end. A door in the middle of the lower floor and a narrow window, high above the head, on the end adjoining the chimney on the same floor, were the only avenues of ingress for the mountain sun. The south end of the building rose, log upon log, without door or window, to the starkness of the primitive architecture.

Indeed, the builder had built in a stark land. Tradition has it that he built without windows to prevent some homicidal mountaineer from shooting him while he rested at the oven hearthstone. Whether true or not, the old house would have provided excellent cover from feud-minded neighbors.

They were hospitable people, these tenants of the old house and they were not reticent as the average hill people. They described contentedly the life in Spring Fork years ago. The roads were none, only paths along the creek bed and these paths led up to Old House Branch and over to Knott county or over another hill to and down Salt Lick Creek to Haysville. This road over the mountains and down Salt Lick to main Right Beaver Creek had been in prohibition days, a favorite way for those who had corn to sell.

One path, ever acquiring a semblance of a road at places, led to Jackson, the county seat, 47 miles away. "You could get there and back in a day if you had a good horse. Most people took two days on the trail."

There are no church houses. Public religious services they met at some neighbor's house or under the open sky on a cemetery. To these services, either of Methodist or Baptist faith, came the Baileys, Conyers, Wiremans, Shushers, Vanderpools and Howards. At these "meetings" could have been seen Riley Shusher, Bob Howard, Lige Lovey or L. Stacy—all of whom lived in the old house.

Years ago, they said, if you had need to visit a store, you rode horse-back six miles over a mountain to Ned Allen's store on the Pine Fork of Licking River. There too was the postoffice of Waldo, Ky. To the inevitable question, "how leads come the reply: "No wars, no on Spring Fork but plenty of killin'."

There were not enough people to get up an army for a war. We left the old house, along a good road, passing the fast-accumulating installations and debris, too, of a giant industrial project. The car climbs high up the mountain, and you look back at Spring Fork Creek. It is so black with the dust of the coal that it seems to move like oil, burdened as it is with the excess of coal particles. This old house and the blackened stream are but symbols of two separate periods of time and two ways of life. Which were the better, each of us would have to choose for himself for the things we value are never the same for everyone.

The lady of the old house and her daughter had chosen, months ago, when the husband of this daughter died, to leave the old house and have it filled in "the slope." The older woman had said to us: "The old way was better. Just ask the mother of that young child."

Governor Wetherby announced that there will be no special session of the General Assembly this year to change the state's congressional districts. Because Kentucky failed to keep up with the national population rate of increase between 1940 and 1950, the state will lose one Congressional seat. A special session to redistrict the state after the election next November was considered possible until the Governor made his announcement last week.

LA REVOIR, CHIEF

The sudden death of Chief H. I. "Dad" LaRevoir came like a bolt of lightning from a blue sky. . . . He was my good fortune to know and work with him for more than twenty years. . . . He was a courageous, fearless and efficient police officer. . . . Those who will miss "Dad" most will be the kids of Raedland. . . . They idolized the kind and considerate police chief and he returned this affection. . . . In a chat, shortly after the opening of the last school term, the chief outlined that the part of his job that he liked best was the patrol of the school zone. . . . Regardless of weather conditions, the chief religiously was on the job, morning, noon and afternoon. . . . He got a whole lot of kick from escorting the little boy or girl across Greenup Avenue on their first few days of school. . . . If "Dad" wasn't on his job, the kids were disappointed. . . . He had a sick kick of handling juvenile delinquency. . . . Those outside the border of his work were summoned into his office where they received a kind, fatherly talk. . . . This psychology in the treatment of the juveniles is 80 out of 100 cases always worked. . . . He sought to make better citizens of the boys and girls who strayed from the beaten path. . . . And his efforts were rewarded as records will show that Raedland was practically crime-proof. . . . The chief was noissy by any means. . . . When the occasion demanded he could get plenty loud and rough, especially if he was handling habitual offenders of law and order. . . . He was a man of splendid habits and his character was without reproach. . . . With other police officers he was most cooperative and was always willing and ready to lend assistance in "breaking" a case. . . . His relations with the public, which he faithfully and honestly served for more than 20 years, could be described as 100% perfect. . . . In April, 1947, poor health forced Col. Osborne to return to this country and retire from the army. . . . Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, Henry H. Osborne, Jr., of Chevy Chase, Md.; his father, Albert B. Osborne, and two brothers, Albert B., Jr., and John M., all of Martin. . . . Funeral services were conducted Friday and burial was in Arlington Cemetery.

FLOYD NATIVE HEART VICTIM

Lt. Col. H. H. Osborne, Retired Army Officer, Dies Suddenly May 22

Lt. Col. Henry H. Osborne, 50-year-old retired Army officer, died of a heart attack early Tuesday, May 22, at Walter Reed Hospital, Washington, D. C.

Col. Osborne was stricken Monday night on his way home from a movie with his wife, Mrs. Eva A. Osborne. He died about six hours later at the Army hospital. A native of Martin, Colonel Osborne had lived for a number of years at 4223 Chevy Chase boulevard, Chevy Chase, Md.

The colonel enlisted in the army in 1914 when he was 18. He served for a number of years on the Mexican border and in World War I was a sergeant of the guard at the White House. Col. Osborne received his commission shortly after World War I and in 1923 left the army to join the Washington police force. He was stationed at No. 8 precinct and was attached to the License Bureau many years.

In April, 1941, he re-entered the army and attended the first class at the Proviso, Marshall General's School at Fort Meyer. From 1942 to 1944 he was Provost Marshal at Fort Meade, Md. He then went to the Princeton Military Government School and was in command of the task force that went to Tottori, Japan, after V-J day in 1945. He soon was named military governor of Shimane Prefecture in Japan and was joined there by his wife in August, 1946.

In April, 1947, poor health forced Col. Osborne to return to this country and retire from the army. Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, Henry H. Osborne, Jr., of Chevy Chase, Md.; his father, Albert B. Osborne, and two brothers, Albert B., Jr., and John M., all of Martin. Funeral services were conducted Friday and burial was in Arlington Cemetery.

Floyd County Historical Notes

By HENRY P. SCALF

To a local request to point out, western side of Original Floyd was on the map Ails Valley in South-west Virginia I couldn't oblige for there "ain't no such place". This typographical error came about not so much from careless proof reading but the inability of others to read the name of the historical script. Ails Valley is an historic place. It is a tributary of Walker's Creek in the present Giles County, Virginia. It was settled early by an Absalom Looney and was named for him. The references referred to in last week's Notes seem to indicate the place was first settled by an Isaac Ballahy. From this valley Jennie Webb was carried into captivity by the Indians.

The Robert Paue referred to last week was Robert Poage. The Poager settled at and near Ashland, Ky. There is an old Augusta county Virginia court record that states he had gone to Georgia. Perhaps the court attaches thought so but he had come to the Ohio valley, near the present Ashland, and hebec'ford "that city. There Poages became great landholders near there.

One man who is concentrating his time and talents to genealogical and historical research and doing an excellent job at it is Harry Willard Mills, of Arlington, Virginia. This column under stands that he is a native of Montgomery county, Ky. For a long time there has appeared in The Advocate of Mount Sterling a column of early Montgomery county pioneer families and pioneer history. Today this same column, or a variation of it to suit local interest, appears in The Intercourse Journal of Stanford, Kentucky. The Beattville Enterprise of Beattville, Ky., and other Eastern Kentucky papers. He has compiled quite an amount of material on counties like Montgomery, Breathitt, Powell, Co. Ky., Lee, Menifee, Wolfe and Clay. He is interested in Floyd county, he informs: "My particular problem in reference to Floyd county, right now, is to approximate the early settlers who lived in those parts of the original county which now lie in Menifee, Wolfe, Breathitt and Perry. As indicated in your map, a little fringe on the

At hand is an article of Mr. Mills' on Lee county, Ky. Interesting indeed Beattville, the county seat, was named for Samuel Beatty. Mention is made of Deatur Beatty, his son, who was a coal merchant, John Beatty, teacher, and James Beatty lawyer. One thing that strikes this columnist from a look at some of Mr. Mills' work is the similarity of a great number of family names of the settlers of the North Fork of the Kentucky river section to the names of Big Sandy families. Family names the same as Big Sandy, to quote only a few, are Hill, Pralkey (Pralkey), Boling, Lewis, McGuire, Newman, Phillips, Reed, Bryant, Martin, Daniel, Hammond, Johnson, Porter, Arnold, Barnett, Bailey, Cole, Combs, Groat, Fields, Marshall, Miller, Smallwood, Watkins, Thompson, Akers, Campbell, Cox, Collins, Gray, Gibson, Powell, Stone, Smith, Sparks and York. Most of the above named families are from Lee county. A little examination of the list shows these are families with identical names in the Big Sandy Valley. These early mountain people, Scotch-Irish, German, English and other, began to separate on the ridges of the Cumberland. Some went down the Kentucky river; some descended the Big Sandy.

Mr. Mills, indefatigable worker that he is, has done much to recover and restore to the record, the story of our mountain past.

Jest Among Us...

By Jack Wm

Boys will be boys. That comforting phrase of philosophy must have been thought up by harassed University of Kentucky officials back at the turn of the century, for boys certainly were boys in those lively days. One dark night some of the fun-loving lads obtained a quantity of green paint, which they daubed on the walls of the floors and to the Spanish American War cannon, (all standing in front of the Administration Building). To cap the evening's activities, they painted green stripes on President Patterson's nose.

This lachless animal suffered another indignity on another midnight. The streeter company was planning an extension of its line through the school and had piled the crosses at the edge of the campus. The students borrowed some 200 of the ties about a camp up which the horse was led to the second floor of the Main Building, where the Chapel was situated. The ties were thrown to their original location and neatly stacked. When the college assembled for chapel next morning, the only calm individuals in the hall, according to reports, were old Dobbin, who seemed only mildly interested in the proceedings, and President Patterson, who went ahead with the services as if nothing unusual had happened.

The President had considerable difficulty building a fence on the campus because at night the boys had filled up every possible thatched during the day. The business came to a halt finally, it is said, when President Patterson threatened to plant the crosses for posts. At another time, two trees which blocked the view of spectators at the athletic field but which the President sought to preserve, mysteriously disappeared. Administration and faculty were busy for the practical school, an innocent newcomer to the campus was ordered by the older students, as his first task as a cadet, to perform night sentry duty in the campus for pond to keep watch for "the enemy." This the eager young fellow did without question and at hourly intervals throughout the night he could be heard calling, "All's well at the frog pond." When day break he returned half-frozen to his room he found it bare of furniture and flooded with water. These and many other interesting incidents out of the past are related by James P. Hopkins, U. K. history professor, in his new book, "The University of Kentucky: Origins and Early Years," published by the University of Kentucky Press and released at commencement time. The history tells of the founding of the school and its development under James K. Patterson, president for 41 years.

Floyd County Times
Official Organ for Floyd County, Ky.
Published Every Thursday by Prestonsburg Publishing Co.
Entered as second class matter June 18, 1927, at the postoffice at Prestonsburg, Ky., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Not the First, We Should Not Be the Last

THE TIMES would have found the writing more pleasurable, had it been reported that one of the several water systems serving Floyd county is the first to plan the addition of fluoride to the water as a preventive against tooth decay. But we must look to neighboring Paintsville as the valley's pioneer in that public health move.

The story of fluoride has been so often told in the major magazines of the country, particularly in The Reader's Digest, that the value of the chemical in drinking water need not be discussed here. Fluoride has been under test over a period of four or five years; results have been closely checked as to benefits or possible injurious effects. The benefits have been great; the harm, none. Fluoride, as many will recall, was discovered as a beneficial agency in preventing tooth decay when it was found that residents of a Texas county were singularly free of tooth decay and that fluoride, an ingredient naturally supplied, was in the drinking water supply there.

The community of Paintsville already has approval of the State Department of Health for addition of fluoride to the water there. First use of the chemical in drinking water there will be in November, it is planned. And the cost per family for such insurance against pain, possible ill health and costly dental bills is expected to be no more than eight cents a month. This is not absolute insurance, it is no panacea, understand, but its benefits are indisputable. Tooth decay has been reduced around two-thirds in some cities where fluoride was used.

C. V. Cooper, manager of the Paintsville Water Works, estimates that the cost to the water system of installing necessary equipment will be no more than $1,000. It would appear, on the face of these figures and in view of findings made by researchers, that Prestonsburg, Martin, Albion, Wheelwright, Wayland, Garrett and other communities having public water systems are missing a "good buy" in their failure to make this investment in public health.

OPS PROMISES TO MAKE SURE PRICES FOR ORDINARY PURSE

Assurance that price and production authorities in Washington will exert every possible vigilance to make sure that consumers of moderate income can find goods in the price range they can afford to pay has been given by the Office of Price Stabilization.

Speaking before the Retail Credit Men's Association, Saul Nelson, Deputy Economic Adviser of OPS, declared: "As resources are diverted to defense and as the availability of materials and labor for civilian use put up is reduced, there is a tendency of some producers to curtail production of low-end merchandise and to concentrate on more profitable items. This constitutes a severe hardship on consumers with fixed incomes and to those in the lower income groups generally."

Vigilance will be expressed both by making sure the price regulations do not penalize low-end production and by taking such steps to insure the continued manufacture of low-end goods as the situation may require.

New pricing methods of wholesale-retail sales of home-canning supplies, jars, lids, rings, etc., have been established by the OPS. Because they are sold in volume only in the spring and summer, home-canning supplies were held by the January general price freeze. Because they are sold in volume only in the spring and summer, home-canning supplies were held by the January general price freeze. Because they are sold in volume only in the spring and summer, home-canning supplies were held by the January general price freeze.

Barbers, dry cleaners, operators of filling stations, laundries, frozen food lockers and all other proprietors of service establishments are covered by the Office of Price Stabilization's regulation on services.

By June 15 all persons, not employers who are paid by charge or fees, except doctors and lawyers, are required to file with OPS, 307 S. Fifth Street, Louisville, a statement covering their services and prices charged and to post their ceilings.

CADILLAC MOTOR CAR DIVISION

Start of a Wonderful Journey!

Well, there it goes—out from the great Cadillac factory into the hands of a proud and happy owner.

And what an odyssey it would make if its whole future course could be charted and foreseen!

—far journeys to the world's most fascinating places... grand appearances at the proudest social events... splendid visits to affairs of state... year after year of participation in the life of a fine American family.

Yes—and perhaps two, three, or even four fine American families—for a Cadillac is so soundly designed and built that there is no practical limit to its utility.

Truly, no more interesting biography could be written than an account of the life of the average Cadillac car. As the primary means of transportation for interesting, vital people—it is usually a spectator at important events—always in demand as a trustworthy traveling companion.

So there it goes, like the many thousands of its predecessors, on one of the most eventful and fascinating journeys a motor car ever began.

Wouldn't it be wonderful—and inspiring—to go along!

We are sorry indeed that delay in delivery of new Cadillacs continues unavoidable. If you are waiting for a Cadillac, please be patient—but hold to your purpose. There is no substitute for the "Standard of the World."

Allen-Martin Club Installs New Officers

Martin, Ky., May 28 (Sp.)—The Allen-Martin Woman's Club met at the home of Mrs. William Stinnette, May 27.

An interesting skit was given on "The Birth of the Penny Art Fund."

The following new officers were installed by Mrs. Carlton Wrightson for the coming year:

President, Mrs. Wm. Stinnette; vice-president, Mrs. Walter Prasher; treasurer, Mrs. Maurice Mitchell; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Clarence Akers; recording secretary, Mrs. Lewis Warren; parliamentarian, Mrs. Bill Martin.

After the installation, an interesting talk was given by Mrs. Wrightson on the value of the club to the young people as well as to the old.

Delegates were chosen for the convention which will be held in Lexington, last Wednesday. The delegates served refreshments to the following:

Mrs. James Town Hall, Lewis Warren, Walter Prasher, Clarence Akers, Donald Hunt, Elinor Crum, Toby Snodgrass, Herman Porter, Boone Hall, Ted Akers, Mark Rees, Ben Short, William Lyons, George Laven, Russell Laven, Belford Rietz, German Vance, Mack Elliott, John W. Hall, Lawrence Scott, Lewis Campbell, James Webb, Jr., Guy Taylor, William Stinnette, Carlton Wrightson.

The next meeting will be held June 4, at the home of Mrs. Guy Taylor.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT
 John Hager, et al., Plaintiff
 vs. NOTICE OF SALE
 Chauncey Hager & c., Defendant

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered and entered at the February term, 1951, in the above styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale on the below described premises on Little Paint Creek, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 4th day of June 1951, at 10 o'clock a.m., upon a credit of six months, the following described property, to-wit:

First tract, located on the Long or Owl Branch of Little Paint Creek, conveyed to Calvin G. Hager by Hattie Harman & c by deed dated Nov. 10, 1913, recorded in Deed Book No. 40, page 70, Floyd County Court Clerk's office, containing 40 acres, more or less, beginning on a crab apple tree on top of the ridge; thence down the point to the fence, and with the fence to the branch; thence down the point to the fence, and with the fence to the branch; thence down the branch to a white wash fence crossing to the orchard fence; thence with the fence to the upper side of the orchard; thence a straight line to the top of the ridge to a pine and J. W. Musis's line; thence with said line to the beginning.

Second tract, located in the village of East Point, Johnson County Kentucky, being a vacant lot, lying at the intersection of the bridge on U. S. Highway No. 23, beginning at the junction of a street leading from the Highway toward the creek; thence running from the Highway right of way along said street a distance of about 150 feet to the line of Dennis Selvage; thence with his line to Little Paint creek; thence up Little Paint creek to the Highway right of way; thence with the Highway right of way to the street, the place of beginning.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Given under my hand, this 14th day of May, 1951.
HERSCHELL TACKETT,
 Special Commissioner
 Floyd Circuit Court.

Floyd Mines Inspected; Safe-Guards Recommended

Norton, Va. — Although citing several recent safety improvements, a Federal Coal-Mine Inspector again proposed adoption of recognized safeguards at the Central Elkhorst Coal Company's 450-ton-a-day No. 3-A mine, at Lacey, Ky., in a report released today by the Bureau of Mines.

Inspector P. J. Buchanan, who re-examined the 167-man mine recently, again proposed better rock-blasting in the working sections, better timbering along haulageways, frequent voluntary rock tests by the workmen, better ventilation at the working faces, and replacing wooden man-entry stoppings with incombustible ones. He also advised eliminating several ignition, haulage, electrical and machinery hazards.

Among recent safety improvements cited in the report were the use of two or more safety posts at each face, better housekeeping on the surface, and the elimination of certain electrical hazards.

Norton, Va. — Reporting a few recent safety improvements, the Federal coal-mine inspector again proposed additional safeguards for the Liberty Elkhorst Mining Company's 15-man No. W-21 mine, near Monticello, Ky., in a report issued today by the Bureau of Mines.

Inspector P. J. Buchanan, who re-inspected the 108-ton-a-day mine recently, recommended frequent voluntary rock tests by workmen, firing permissible explosives electrically, improved air-circulating facilities, and eliminating several ignition, haulage, and electrical hazards.

Recent safety improvements cited included coursing more air through the last open entry crosscuts and making suitable permits fire boss examinations.

Gold In The Hills...

Again we say there is gold in the hills and valleys of Floyd and adjoining counties. It is not the bright shiny metal we once knew, back in "the good old days," but rather in the form of medicinal roots and plants growing wild in this section, and well-known to the hill folks.

Now is the time to earn spending money for the whole family, and while our government is stockpiling material for defense, large quantities of drugs are also needed. These supplies are growing right here at home; you do not have to go to Michigan to find this gold.

We especially need the following:

Slippery elm bark, May apple root, blood root (puccoon), wahoo bark of root, wild ginger, wild lettuce, black cohosh or rattlesnake, angelica root, snake root and many others.

Prices on most of these items are much higher than last season, so why not get the children some "sang hoes" and let them make some money.

All roots and herbs must be thoroughly dry.
