Kentucky, in addition to having an excellent state system, has many high school athletes who may excel several years before they reach college. Here, visitors tour the new stadium in Danville, where Kentucky's first Constitution was drawn in 1792.

Unscored-On Cats Win Third; Defeat West Liberty, 26 to 0

Casters Swamp Rivals In Every Bait-Casting Trial at State Tourney

By E. R. BURKE

Away from home last Friday night for the first time this season, Doc Ferrell's Prestonsburg Black Cats easily defeated a veteran West Liberty school team, 25 to 0, for their third straight win of the year.

Again the Cat's goal line was unopposed, but in the last quarter the Morgan countians came perilously close to doing so. When the Cats took over on downs the ball rested on their own-yard line.

Prestonsburg scored three of its four touchdowns in the first half. Again the half was marred by frequent Black Cat penalties, and this weakness drew from Coach Perrell the statement that "We looked worse in the second half than at any time in the last two years." Rushing and outside punting have cost the Cats heavily in the last half of all their games this year.

The opening was opened with Dixon's 2-yard run for a marker on downs from Hughes at the quarter mark. He scored a second touchdown on a run of about the same distance. A third marker was scored by Schwager, who took Hughes' 20-yard pass and carried it 30 yards farther to cross the West Liberty goal.

Cumberland Lake Dock, Concession Operators Say Business in Peril

Somersett, Ky., Sept. 21—Cumberland Lake dock and concession operators report they are suffering from lack of business that has placed their survival in jeopardy.

At the same time, they said, the finances of seven counties have been gravely affected. The county governments "to help us get more business and a better break for the county."

Player Flattens Ump, Costs Team $50 Fine As Wheelwright Wins

Wheelwright won the playoffs of the Big Sandy Baseball League Tuesday night, but it took home from Drift a $50 fine plastered on it by League President Milford "Toots" Wells.

The fine was levied on the team after its first baseman, Niagara Riley, knocked down Bill Napier, Prestonsburg, base umpire. The player hit Napier after the latter had ruled Riley had missed a tag on a runner at first base and an argument ensued.

How HUDSON's all-time stock car record helps you choose your family car

In stock car races words and claims mean nothing. You can see the make of car you drive compete with the make of car your neighbor drives. Only the results count. When you look at the record you know which car is best.

This year to date, Hudsons, just like those you can buy from us, have won 35 out of 39 stock car races, an all-time record unequalled by any other car on earth.

And how does this help you buy a family car? Well, for example . . .

It proves that Hudson's exclusive "step-down" design—with America's lowest center of gravity—gives you high-road stability, sureness of handling and safety unequalled by any other car.

It proves that Hudson's famous high-compression engines deliver the terrific kind of power you need to get out of tight spots and command the road in any situation.

It proves that Hudson's Menohilt body-and-frame is the most rugged and by far the safest construction on the road today.

All these qualities are yours in a Hudson—for your pleasure, your pride and your protection. And finally, you don't have to see a stock car race to see Hudson's sleek, streamlined beauty.

For Liquor Store Robbery At Hazard in August; Stone Testifies for State

Three Lackey men charged with armed robbery of a liquor store in Hazard had their charges reduced to robbery and were given a 10-year pen sentence in the Perry circuit court, Tuesday.

Sentenced were Sonny Caudill, 18, James Edward Fitzpatrick, 26, and Souze Bentley, 28, all of Lackey. They were accused of taking, at gun point, a cash register containing $229.42, 15 from the establishment near the Floyd-Knox county line.

Another defendant in the case, James Edward Stone, 28, Lackey, testified for the Commonwealth. He will stand trial on the armed-robbery charge in November.

Also testifying was George Erwin, a clerk in the liquor store whom the robbers bound hand and foot. He identified Caudill as the one who took the register, found about a week later in the Big Sandy river at Allen.

However, Erwin said he couldn't positively identify the person who pointed a shotgun at him when he was ordered to lie down on the floor to be bound.

The three defendants testified Erwin, himself, was "in" on the robbery, and that Erwin and Stone got the 15 to go along with them. Stone said he and the three defendants held up the store, adding they all had been drinking.

Band Mothers Name Mrs. Goble To Head Work for the Year

Reorganization of the Band Mothers to aid the Prestonsburg school band was effected last Thursday evening, with Mrs. Elizabeth Goble named president of the group for the year. She succeeds Mrs. Henry Wright of West Prestonsburg. Other officers elected:

Mrs. Arnold Compton, vice-president; Mrs. Virgil Warrick, secretary, and Miss Roberta Hubbard, treasurer.

The band this year under its new instructor, Keith Davis, is doing a work which Band Mothers describe as important not only to the school but also to this and other communities as it appears at public functions. New uniforms will be needed before the end of the school.

Floyd County raised $1,100 in one afternoon for the football team, and were proud of that fact, but it seems similar interest should be shown in the band, which also is an important part of the school's education.

The Green county courthouse in Greensburg is the oldest courthouse in Kentucky still in use. It was built in 1789.

A girl sow was getting most of the attention in her accouchement when an older hog pulled up alongside and hogged the picture. Any way, before the evening was over 31 pigs had arrived at the Scaff farm and one of the sows had become the mother of 17. And if that isn't a record, please advise.

BIG LIFT to Better Farming

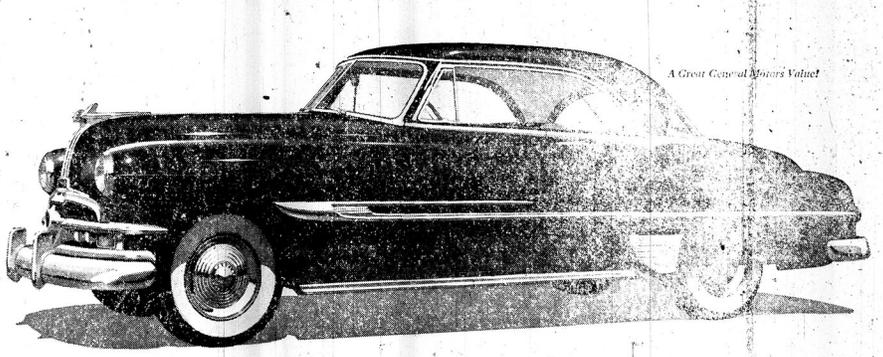

Better farming, new methods and machines, better livestock, and improved marketing are helping bring about a new era of progress and prosperity in Dixie.

Rural telephones (they tripled in number since World War II in the area served by Southern Bell) are bringing a big lift to farm-to-market farming. During the first eight months of this year, we installed more than 92,000 rural telephones.

Will keep on putting them in as fast as we can—because we know how much they mean to prosperity on the farm and in town. Stand to a strong, well-earned money. More farm telephones also mean more valuable telephone service for everyone.

FISHING

The State Fisheries need remarked that fishing has been at low ebb all over the country this year. "To the best of my knowledge," he wrote, "DeWey Reservoir does not seem so starry. If it does so, only for periods of short duration. Water temperature this summer, even in Kentucky Lake, exceeded 90 degrees. In unstratified lakes the temperature remains practically the same from top to bottom, and thus nothing but poor fishing in hot weather could be expected."

It is my intention as Superintendent to so operate the school system so as to make it entirely free from politics, and these three men are in full accord with this program and this determination. They are actively supporting the program which I have just started, and while I have the highest respect for their opponents, I feel it is my duty, as Superintendent, to let all the people know that John E. Campbell, Dr. W. D. Osborne and John M. Stumbo, are behind me in my efforts to so operate the schools of Floyd county without any political consideration. For that reason, I have given them my unqualified support.

Right now bluetgrass is growing faster than usual for this time of year, due to numerous good rains in our district. I returned to the farm last week thinking I'd have to buy at least 100 tons of hay at frightfully high prices and risk contemplating the firm with Johnson grass, dodder and other noxious grasses. After a good look at the Kentucky bluetgrass pastures I vetoed any company extremely bad weather we can give the cattle one light feed of corn once a day. Perhaps $1,500 worth of corn. A 100 tons of hay would cost $3,500 to $4,000. If the winter is not severe we won't feed cattle at all.

Cadillac - This Time - He Knows He's Right! Here's a man who is through with doubt and wonder about the wisdom of his choice in a motor car. He has just taken possession of his first Cadillac - and, this time, he knows he's right. He's a mighty happy man as he rolls serenely along the highway - heading for home and the delighted approval of his family and his friends. And how the years and the miles will justify his confidence! First to reassure him will be the car's magnificent performance. He will discover smoothness, almost-beyond belief - smoothness of operation, smoothness of handling, smoothness of ride on all types of highway. Then he will notice the quietness: just the soft sound of the wind slipping by - and, now and then, the tick-tick of the electric clock. He can whisper - and be heard. And there will be, of course, the sheer brilliance of Cadillac performance - the lightning-fast acceleration, the great bursts of power when emergencies loom, the quick response to brakes and steering wheel. And, finally, he will learn of the car's endurance - so great that there is no practical limit to its life and its usefulness. Records reveal that numerous Cadillacs are still going strong at well past half a million miles. Yes - this time he's right. And so will you be right if you choose a Cadillac. Better come in and place your order - today. CARTER MOTOR SALES, Phone 6492, Prestonsburg, Ky.

Cheap Cobalt Recognized As 'Poor Man's Radium'

Pleasantville, N. Y., Sept. 24.—Cobalt 60, now recognized as a cheap and plentiful substitute for high-priced radium, holds great promise in the treatment of cancer. Lois Mattox Miller and James Monahan, co-authors of an article on Cobalt 60 in the October Reader's Digest, says this "poor man's radium" may be our biggest and most beneficial dividend from the atom bomb.

Like radium, Cobalt 60 emits powerful cancer-destroying gamma rays, but with greater uniformity. Doctors are now using radiocobalt needles inside malignant tumors, particularly those that cannot be removed surgically. Thin tubes of flexible nylon, loaded with bits of Cobalt 60, are being sewed into cancer tissues, to be withdrawn when the radiation treatment is complete.

Any hospital qualified to employ radiotherapy can afford Cobalt 60. It is safer than radium for the patient, the authors say, and easier for the doctor to handle. "This versatility," says one radiologist, "opens up entirely new possibilities for the internal irradiation of cancer." Studies by Dr. William B. Myers, of Ohio State University College of Medicine, resulted in the findings which established Cobalt 60 as a promising tool for cancer research. Myers' conclusions, published in the American Journal of Roentgenology and Radium Therapy, in Dec. 1948, showed that Cobalt 60 is capable of anything that radium can do, yet is free of many of radium's disadvantages. Only in one respect is Cobalt 60 inferior to radium: it loses its original radioactivity much faster.

Cobalt 60 equipment can be made available to any radiotherapist competent to use it, the authors state. One large pharmaceutical house is planning to supply a wide variety of Cobalt 60 applicators to approved institutions.

Because it is so cheap, Cobalt 60 will make radiotherapy more widely available, and thus it should greatly advance the war on cancer. The article emphasizes, however, that it is not a "new cure," and that its most enthusiastic users refuse to discuss it in terms of cures.

New Dial System Invades Ruralside, Exit Central

The dial system has begun its invasion of villages and crossroads. Despite its convenience and efficiency, there are people in small towns all over America who will welcome it with something less than complete enthusiasm.

These people aren't against progress but they know that no impersonal "dial tone" can match the friendly voice of Central, and that no instrument devised by science can have a heart like the hometown operator's.

Loula Grace Erdman gives eloquent expression, in the October Reader's Digest, to the regrets that have been felt by small-town people everywhere at the passing of Central. Miss Erdman writes in a piece condensed from The Rural New Yorker: "I grew up under the benign autocracy of a small-town Central who held within her busy hands the multiple lines of all our destinies. With her passing, I feel that something precious and irreplaceable will have disappeared from the American scene."

The author recalls various emergencies in her community—a farm-house fire, a woman about to have a baby—in which the stricken called Central first, then prayed. "God was undoubtedly the center of the universe, but Central was just what her name implied—the focal point of the community."

Her helpfulness was not confined to emergencies. In the author's town, as in a thousand others, she would tell you any time how to cook apple jelly or how Grandma Williams' health was this morning. With no newspaper in town, Central "advertised" by general announcements—by ringing eight long bells—specials on groceries, current movies and the Missionary Society's ice-cream social. She would tell you whether tonight's front would kill the tomatoes, and what time the Lions' minstrel show starts.

No man-made gadget, efficient though it be, will ever take Central's place in the hearts of the townspeople.

IT'S A GOOD WORLD
BY WILMA Y

We feel so sorry for all who missed the Flower Show and musical entertainers. Everyone sympathized with the judge, since all entries were beautiful as only flowers can be. Several won more ribbons than most only because they had no competitors in those classes. Let's hope more women succumb to the cactus and poump dahlias, this year to an increased number of entries will be possible. Thurla Ramey's entry for public use and Peggy Vaughan's button garden were the most talked of entries, and Mrs. Osborne's red and white composition from "The Marlin Floral Shop" was the most admired arrangement. We amateurs may learn from the professionals. That is something. The women who worked so hard and so long to make "The Flower Show" a success deserved a bouquet. One remarked that only a few helped. This is always true, although but all was do prefer being among those who assist to belonging to the other side.

We inspect the Maytown lunchroom having been inside of it previously. Everything is the best word in equipment. As we thought of the food derived from it we wondered how only a few years ago new citizens in Maytown announced we must have a P-T-A, again and that its major objective should be a lunchroom. Moreover, despite opposition and criticism from those who had long espoused it, we were because so few took part of help. Arnold Maggard refused to be deterred from his goal. Today he is known as one of the best in Prestonsburg. Kentucky, as a member of the faith of one man with vision. With all due credit to the flower show, a majority of the present cause first place to a chicken dinner served in the lunchroom. The women there very busy deserved and received much praise for their work. Mrs. Viola Stewart, whose chummys are remembered throughout the county, was responsible for the large crowd of men who attended at the noon hour.

The expose concerning Senator Nixon is a difficult one to offset. The manner in which he used the money should have no bearing on the case. He accepted it, whereas his running mate has a record of having declined numerous gifts during his career. The excess being given are about as weak as the one offered when a man used portions of the money for himself, and his friends said he took it to send his twin daughters to college—as if that lightened the crime.

We have a mischievous youngster in one grade who finds it hard to be still and labor to study. His older brother in another grade does splendid work and is a model in behavior. The younger one is full of life and as wide as a smile as they come, he admits laughing and talking. So one day this past week we appeared that it looked as if he would be the first to get a paddling from us this year. "So far, he has no paddle hands," emphasis is on so far. He smiled and whimpers back, "It won't be the first one for me; Cooper John paddled me yesterday." When it comes to varnishing and painting and helping in the room at noon or after school this child is a wonder, for he may some day do something that startles the world. Parents and teachers rejoice over the wider contribution to discover and develop the varied talents of children, some of whom care little for any standard subject.

When passing the town of Eastern notice the well-kept cemetery beside the road. For special attention to the grave fenced separately with a flag flying, gorgeous flowers around the fence and within the lot, too. You see a bench where loved ones and friends may sit and meditate. You also see a grave surrounded by the way of all of them should be. Mrs. Vania Osborne and her husband have been responsible for the loving care in evidence around the grave of their soldier-son, Herman Osborne, who lost his life in World War II. A small sum of money, an abundance of show grass, and plenty of love accomplished all this, which puts to shame many of us who forget our loved ones once the son has grown again on the little mound that marks their last resting place.

It is good news to note that Corinne Hill is president of Prestonsburg P-T.A. They always have a dandy, and we venture to say she will be second to none. She is a go-getter of the first order, and Lou is always in there pitching with her. She headed the Chapel Service program for the county last year, used by many schools.

It is probable that nobody past 40 ever heard of a book satchel. Books used to be rare and precious things, the property of the family, not of the state. There was a considerable investment in the books used by all the children of a big family. One of the devices to keep the books intact was the book satchel. It was in style so long that it became standardized. I know that the description of mine will fit your memory of yours. It was made of bed-ticking, with the straps running up and down. The body of it was big enough to hold even the geography texts. A flap extended over the sack-like body, sometimes with a button, but I rarely saw a book satchel buttoned up. A stout strap was attached, that kept your hands free to carry the dinner basket or bucket and to throw rocks at things along the way. If fellows had had to lay down their books every time they wanted to throw at something or protect themselves against a briar or a bad boy, there was no telling how soon they would have learned to learn in the form of the books, in the satchel, was safe while the learner sat on the floor, read, and education, defending himself against a hostile universe.

Though the book satchel was the chief protection against harm to books on their way to and from the schoolhouse, the book cover did its share in keeping books from falling children, it's time to go to school!

TIDBITS OF KENTUCKY FOLKLORE
By GORDON WILSON, P.L.D.
Western Kentucky Teachers' College
Bowling Green, Ky.

"The Book Satchel"

Late-summer days remind me that school is opening again, and school ties up all my memories, for I have been a pupil or student or teacher all my life and am now going into my 46th year of teaching and 58th year as a student or pupil. And many things come back to me at this season, right now the memory of the old book satchel.

It is probable that nobody past 40 ever heard of a book satchel. Books used to be rare and precious things, the property of the family, not of the state. There was a considerable investment in the books used by all the children of a big family. One of the devices to keep the books intact was the book satchel. It was in style so long that it became standardized. I know that the description of mine will fit your memory of yours. It was made of bed-ticking, with the straps running up and down. The body of it was big enough to hold even the geography texts. A flap extended over the sack-like body, sometimes with a button, but I rarely saw a book satchel buttoned up. A stout strap was attached, that kept your hands free to carry the dinner basket or bucket and to throw rocks at things along the way. If fellows had had to lay down their books every time they wanted to throw at something or protect themselves against a briar or a bad boy, there was no telling how soon they would have learned to learn in the form of the books, in the satchel, was safe while the learner sat on the floor, read, and education, defending himself against a hostile universe.

Though the book satchel was the chief protection against harm to books on their way to and from the schoolhouse, the book cover did its share in keeping books from falling children, it's time to go to school!

When school was not in session, the book satchel often came in handy when we went to the country store, for it would hold a lot of stuff and could be carried handsily, too. As it was made of such strong material, it lasted for years, so that we came to know a whole family by the book satchels. Bed-ticking, somewhat like the one-looks they rarely wears out. It may become slightly faded after innumerable washings and after years of usage by various members of the clan, but for sheer wear it will put it against any cloth yet designed by man.

Now, with free school books and a tendency to leave all books at school, children do not know the daily chore of picking up some or all of one's books and taking them home, in a hope that time will be found to look at the lessons before the next day grind. There are even teachers who do not want the children to attempt any learning away from the ideal set-up of the school plant. And, judging by many of the people whom I now teach, books seem to mean very little in modern children's lives. These old books, even the inherited ones, were ours. We felt that we were something with our big geography books, with our slates, with our tablets, with our readers. I never heard that any of the books ever rubbed off any learning on their owners, but if pride in having them could have been rewarded here and now, certainly some of us should be prodigies of knowledge. "Bet your book satchels, let your books from falling children, it's time to go to school!"

OPS Ceiling Prices

Are Lifted on Items In Various Industries

OPS ceiling prices have been suspended on a number of additional items, according to Charles W. Gowin, chief of the District Consumer Goods Section.

"The commodities have been selling materially below ceiling prices," Gowin said, "and when that is the case, it is the policy of the agency to suspend ceiling prices." He pointed out, however, that controls may be reimposed before the old ceilings are pierced if prices rise significantly.

The major items on which ceilings have been suspended are radios, television sets, and record players. In addition, the ceilings are off: Upholstered sofa-beds, single and double studio couches, low seats, chairs and davenport which open into beds, metal beds and wood and metal cots, including bunks. Mattresses, including rubber mattresses and mattress pads. Bed springs and box springs. Bed pillows and headboards.

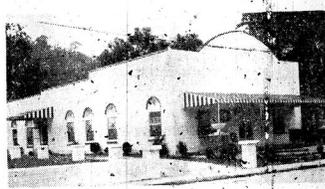

OPS has also suspended ceiling price controls on soft-surface floor coverings made entirely of wool or classed as chenille, wilton, velvet, expanse or punched felt.

Verified chinaware, handmade household glasses, silverware, fireplace equipment, Christmas home decorations, chalk, and lead pencils were among the commodities recently decontrolled. Many of these products were exempted from price ceilings because they are relatively unimportant in the cost of living, or because their continued control is required otherwise for the stabilization program.

In Woodcock county, approximately 315 farmers attended the fourth annual farmer-banisher field day.

Why the West
Is Not the East?

THE Green River valley, key to continued prosperity of the West Kentucky coal field, has succeeded in getting approval of the U. S. Corps of Engineers for a package job of improving the waterway which embraces soil conservation, reforestation, land reclamation and water transportation. The reader will note that water transportation is last mentioned. But it really is the big item in the package. All the others are mere packing materials to keep the shipment from being too shaky and unacceptable to federal authorities.

The big improvement job on the lower Green River got such support that Senator Earl K. Clements himself presided at the meeting held Saturday at Central City, Ky. It was so attractive that the Senator expressed this view:

"I believe this meeting... has shown that the solution of the navigation and flood problems is in sight, even though it may not come in one package."
The truth of the matter is, Green river folks don't care a whoop about the rest of the package if they get the navigation item through. As in the Big Sandy area, they know what river navigation will mean to them. We agree with them. Nor do we blame Senator Clements or anyone else for agreeing with them.

But we would here rise to ask the Corps of Engineers and Senator Clements and all others concerned: What need, what condition, what set of circumstances prevail on the Green which make navigation and flood control there not only desirable but also feasible that do not prevail on the Big Sandy?

Employment is not the problem there that it is here. West Kentucky coal mines are flourishing while the Big Sandy's face a battle for survival. Strip mining there makes coal production cheap. The way to market is not so long and costly as ours.

West Kentucky's coal is no more valuable than that of this section. Indeed, Eastern Kentucky produces a quality of coal which cannot be matched. Here lie vast, undeveloped deposits of fine domestic and metallurgical coal without which the nation would sorely suffer in time of emergency. In addition to all that, the timber products of this section and its agricultural potential are matters which the Corps of Engineers have little considered.

The Big Sandy pours its huge floodtime volume into the Ohio, just as does the Green. Its soil is wasting away through erosion, even as that of the Green River valley, although strip-mining has not yet been a causative factor here as along the Green. Nowhere is soil conservation and reforestation needed more than here. We mention these facts to point to the Corps of Engineers, Senator Clements and all others concerned, another part of Kentucky—a part of the Commonwealth whose future, we are convinced, is more firmly linked to river transportation than that section which last Saturday was given the bright hope of an early solution.

Who Got What, From Whom?

THE furore over the fact that Senator Nixon, the Republican candidate for the Vice-Presidency, received from private sources a fund of $18,000 or more leaves us strangely unmoved, for we accept the Senator's statement that this fund was used in a campaign he was waging.

This seems to be regular practice. It has been done before, and we shall hear of many other instances, and if we do not hear of it we still will not be convinced it isn't happening.

We are quite willing to go along with the idea that most of our public officials are honest, decent citizens, trying to do a good job. The danger to America is that, jealously concerned with honesty as a foundation-stone in the building and development as well as the guidance of the nation, we grow so cynical that we lose all faith in government.

And that way lies anarchy, which, even more than Communism, is the mortal enemy of all organized government. Willing as we are to accept the statement that Richard Nixon received and spent these funds in honest pursuit of an honest goal, we are disturbed by statements ascribed to Senator Taft, of Ohio, and Senator Aiken, of Vermont, both G.O.P. stalwarts.

Senator Taft is quoted as saying he can see no reason why a member of Congress should not accept gifts from friends or constituents "to help pay personal expenses in Washington, certainly those political and travel expenses which are not paid by the government."

And Senator Aiken, telling reporters that many senators supplement their incomes with outside financial help—in some states from their state political committees—declared that no senator can maintain a family in Washington and stay in the Senate on his present salary unless he has some outside financial help. (A senator, incidentally, is paid $12,500 a year salary, plus a tax-free expense account, plus an allowance of up to $10,000 a year for office and incidental expenses.)

Now, aren't both the gentlemen acquiescing in something they've been talking a lot about recently? Mink coats and deep freezers, they have been pointing out, bought official favors. What do they think cash can buy? Gifts from state political committees may be expected. But cash gratuities from private individuals to senators for their private use—not for campaign expenses, but for their use after they are elected—hints too strongly at the possibility that the wrong person might be giving something and getting something in return that does the people as a whole no good.

We are surprised at these two gentlemen and would suggest that while everybody is being investigated the probers should look closely into the records of those poor Senate members who have been receiving private help to make their own personal ends meet.

In Caldwell county it is estimated that 10 times the usual acreage will be seeded to rye, barley and oats for winter pastures.
