STUMBO-McCORMICK VOWS SAID

Miss Joyce Yvonne Stumbo, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Henry Stumbo, was married to Mr. Robert E. McCormick III, son of the late Mr. Robert F. McCormick and Mrs. Michael Voss, of Nashville, Tenn., in a cathedral service at 10 a.m. December 30, at the Methodist church. The Rev. Harold Dorsey solemnized the double-ring ceremony.

Mrs. Chalmers Frazer presented a program of nuptial music preceding the ceremony. Miss Mary Belle Layne sang "I Love You Truly" and "Because."

Before an archway of greenery and standards of white gladioli, flanked by cathedral candelabra holding white tapers, the impressive vows were exchanged by Miss Stumbo and Mr. McCormick. The bride, given in marriage by her father, Judge Stumbo, wore a street-length dress of nylon chauntilly lace over taffeta. The skirt, with graduated tiers of lace, was very full. The fitted bodice had jeweled buttons to the waistline in the back. Appliqued flowers encircled the nylon yoke of the lace panels.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left for a brief honeymoon in Nashville, Tenn. They returned to Washington, D.C. this week, where he is associated with Eastern Airlines.

SUNDAY GUESTS
Mrs. Jo M. Davidson entertained on New Year's Day Mr. and Mrs. John E. Layne, of Ashland, Mr. and Mrs. Garland H. Rice, of Paintsville, and Mrs. Ruth D. Sowards. Mrs. Layne has been her houseguest this week. Mr. Layne returned home Monday.

The Raccoon house was the first stone at the time and the entrepreneur COLLIER'S was building condition through last-hand reports from the scene of action by Palmer Norman Hanson.

Another number, March 4, 1955, contained a poem by the beloved James Whitcomb Riley, written upon the death of General Lee Wallace. General Wallace's folks should have appreciated this poem in the light of the Wallace break and it didn't add any to the beloved Riley's.

A promotional campaign was undertaken in the 1954 numbers. The magazine was developed in the form of a calendar.

It has been said that the magazine was the best of its kind in the country. It was the best of its kind in the country.

The sharpest contrasts between that day and the present are found in the advertisements. The car dealerships and their prices are prime examples.

There was the Columbia Mark XLV "casualty" use cars of the day which had all of 40 horsepower and a range top that extended over the rear seat only the standard model of which sold for $4,900 and the handsome size 1954 model for $2,800. Also the Wilton 16-20 horsepower: $1,800. 24-30 h.p. $2,500 and up to 1954 here that "the new model 1950 Wilton car as an example as all prebought" and that probably accounts for greynolds never being as popular in this country as they should have been.

Look at the Cadillac, too—all 8 1/2 1950 model of her. Only $750 to $900! And the lovely Oldsmobile—the best thing on wheels. The car of the day which will give you the same riding as the new one. Standard runabout $490. Light touring car $580.

those people gainful employment. When he announced his plan to establish a medical school at the University of Kentucky he talked more of the same language. "Our people are doing better," he said, "but we are not doing as well as we should do."

The research program should not be expected to provide the "open sesame" to opportunity for this section as if by magic. It could, as other research has done, fail to achieve much. But it is an effort, one involving qualified researchers and some business ingenuity, and this section should be grateful for it.

The University of Louisville and its supporters may continue to offer a degree for every qualified medical student, and we have not at hand many such addresses to refuse that claim. The record of rejections is too well-known for the public to accept such a statement of fact. Many have failed to find places in the medical school there that some have found entrance to medical schools in other states, while even others, doubtless have become disgraced and turned to other fields of work.

The earlier journal's recent series of editorial page articles by John Ed Pearce were not designed to help either the Government or the University of Kentucky, but to show this dream of a medical school at the state university yet the need exists. In time it will be fulfilled, and it is not ideal at the University of Kentucky, but the same could be said of most educational institutions, and we wonder when the shortcomings of our state colleges will be aired.

Has the nation's economic fall facilities to bring Kentucky, who would devote their lives to the field of medicine. An unbiased look at the situation, and we wonder how many of our state colleges will be aired.

The Roman empire alternated between persecution and tolerance. Christianity was and is threatened all over the world. This incident which the brothers describe involved a group of Russian peasant boys, a spiritualism of Russian men and youngsters, and an old man, Garbat, in priestly robes. What impressed the American colonists was the reverence with which the priest was greeted by the old women and the amused, cynical look of the men and children in the presence of this representative of what was once Russia's state church.

The Alps come up with the conclusion that for only the very old, those who live in memory, in an almost forgotten past, does God and religion and any church have any real meaning in the land of the Soviet, that to those who are younger the only religion is Communism, with Stalin Lenin and the other Bulgarians their deities. Those who still believe in God, who cling to the eternal verities and the innate rightness of Christianity are old, soon will be dead. Left will be their only genuine faith resting upon the mountains of the Communist faith in the power of the state. And all this fierce, passionate belief in Communism, armed with the most lethal weapons of destruction conceived by man, will threaten the very existence of Christianity and decay it in the churches throughout the world.

those people gainful employment. When he announced his plan to establish a medical school at the University of Kentucky he talked more of the same language. "Our people are doing better," he said, "but we are not doing as well as we should do."

The research program should not be expected to provide the "open sesame" to opportunity for this section as if by magic. It could, as other research has done, fail to achieve much. But it is an effort, one involving qualified researchers and some business ingenuity, and this section should be grateful for it.

The University of Louisville and its supporters may continue to offer a degree for every qualified medical student, and we have not at hand many such addresses to refuse that claim. The record of rejections is too well-known for the public to accept such a statement of fact. Many have failed to find places in the medical school there that some have found entrance to medical schools in other states, while even others, doubtless have become disgraced and turned to other fields of work.

The earlier journal's recent series of editorial page articles by John Ed Pearce were not designed to help either the Government or the University of Kentucky, but to show this dream of a medical school at the state university yet the need exists. In time it will be fulfilled, and it is not ideal at the University of Kentucky, but the same could be said of most educational institutions, and we wonder when the shortcomings of our state colleges will be aired.

Has the nation's economic fall facilities to bring Kentucky, who would devote their lives to the field of medicine. An unbiased look at the situation, and we wonder how many of our state colleges will be aired.

The Roman empire alternated between persecution and tolerance. Christianity was and is threatened all over the world. This incident which the brothers describe involved a group of Russian peasant boys, a spiritualism of Russian men and youngsters, and an old man, Garbat, in priestly robes. What impressed the American colonists was the reverence with which the priest was greeted by the old women and the amused, cynical look of the men and children in the presence of this representative of what was once Russia's state church.

The Alps come up with the conclusion that for only the very old, those who live in memory, in an almost forgotten past, does God and religion and any church have any real meaning in the land of the Soviet, that to those who are younger the only religion is Communism, with Stalin Lenin and the other Bulgarians their deities. Those who still believe in God, who cling to the eternal verities and the innate rightness of Christianity are old, soon will be dead. Left will be their only genuine faith resting upon the mountains of the Communist faith in the power of the state. And all this fierce, passionate belief in Communism, armed with the most lethal weapons of destruction conceived by man, will threaten the very existence of Christianity and decay it in the churches throughout the world.

ON THE JOB Butcher, baker or whatever—all jobs carry hazards and accident possibilities. But all such accidents can be prevented if we recognize the hazards, adopt preventive measures, follow safety rules—and most of all—THINK SAFETY. Keep the hazards constantly in mind. THINK. Don't take chances. THINK. A few good rules:

- 1. Don't let trash accumulate.
2. Use the right tools for the job, keep tools in good working condition.
3. Wear protective clothing and also recommended for the specific job.
4. Report unsafe conditions to management for correction.
5. Know the safety rules for the job and follow them conscientiously.
6. Sacrifice speed for safety, always.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, The Times:

I was just looking at an old paper, "The Citizen" dated April 13, 1929 and was wondering how our own mother "Floyd County Times" of 1935.

It was in the second year of The Citizen's publication. The editor and business managers' names were told.

True but amazing, the subscription was one dollar. BUT they even had advertisement on the front page on the lower left corner was one about a liquid antiseptic—2c and in the lower right was a notice of "The Liberty" and on that Monday, the 19th, was playing On The Quiet starring John Barrymore and Jean Harlow.

Then at the top of the paper was the column of marriage licenses and only one couple registered and that was Frances and Lizzie Batten, of Langley.

Among other items was a notice from the Board of Education of 1. Republican State Officers were listed.

Polio's population census was 2,110. They were trying to establish a minimum of $75.00 a month for a teacher in public school.

IT'S A GOOD WORLD

(The views expressed herein do not necessarily reflect those of the Times.)

And all who love Coney Island are prone to think that the world is a good world. I found some highly intellectual students there when I came eight years later. I myself, first thought it was a good world.

But after that I found that the world is a good world. I found some highly intellectual students there when I came eight years later. I myself, first thought it was a good world.

"Year of Decision" Crisis Past for Coal

Samuel W. Lackey, Tram Enlists in Marine Corps

Louisville, Ky.—Samuel W. Lackey, 18 son of Mrs. Constance Lackey of Tram, Ky., was enlisted for a three year period in the United States Marine Corps at Louisville and is now undergoing his recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot Parris Island, South Carolina.

During his 10-weeks of training Lackey will receive instruction on basic infantry weapons, close order drill, physical conditioning and other subjects relative to the making of a leatherneck.

Upon completion of his "Boot Camp," Lackey will undergo final weeks advanced combat training at the Marine Corps Base, Camp Lejeune, North Carolina. He will then receive a 10-day leave before reporting to his new duty assignment.

The year just ended has $715 to $245 per barrel in terms of heat content, residual oil this climbed in price the equivalent of $2,085 per ton of bituminous coal. Coal spokesmen continue vehement in their conviction that the imports of residual oil imports, which have more than doubled since 1948 have damaged the industry by forcing mines out of existence during recent years, by weakening the maintenance of adequate coal transportation facilities, and by disrupting the historic pattern of coal marketing.

One effect of this damage during the recent boom months was the critical shortage of rail cars, which has made it difficult to meet sudden increases in coal needs on the Eastern Seaboard where such expanded demand has based on the opportunistic shutting "ram one fuel to another for mass energy uses."

Belief in the future growth of coal gained assurance indirectly from more conservative appraisals of the effects of atomic energy on the competitive power situation. During the year there were a number of announcements by nuclear specialists that they cannot even guess when atomic power will be economical until experimental plants are under construction have been in operation several years.

At a recent AEC seminar in Washington, however, it was learned that the atomic power plant now being built will produce costing at the rate of 2.5 mills per kilowatt-hour.

It is hoped that later the cost may come down to 1.5 mills still an astronomical cost by coal standards.

Adverse decisions in coal freight rates placed new emphasis on developments to reduce or avoid transportation costs. One important move was the start of construction of a pipeline to transport coal from the Georgetown, Ohio properties of Bituminous Consolidation Coal Co. to the Eastlake, Ohio power plant of Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. A contract between these companies calls for the pipeline delivery of 18 million tons of coal over a 10-year period. Three railroads serving the area involved are in position to take substantial ownership in this new means of coal transport, once the Ohio project is completed expected later in 1956.

Other matters of significance in 1955 were the peaceful negotiations of a new wage agreement with the United Mine Workers, the formation of several larger corporate entities in the coal industry through mergers; enlargement of the industry's consulting and engineering service to consumers; intensification of efforts to achieve substantial further gains in safety; and a noteworthy increase in productivity.

As a result of continuing advances in mining technology and mechanization, tons produced per man-day in 1955 will probably reach close to 10. TPM was 6.4 as recently as 1949.

The decade of the 1950's will probably see coal mine productivity doubled.

Reflecting this progress in productivity, coal prices at the mine are lower than they were in 1948 and it appears that this fact will have a stability of price not possible for the fluid fuels.

The outlook, short range, is for a continuation of heavy industrial activity during most of 1956. If serious work stoppages among large coal-consuming industries can be avoided, domestic consumption of bituminous coal should be slightly better than this year's volume. Export activity is less predictable but the recent outlook should hold for a while. The futures are sanguine in the accompanying table.

Longer range, the coal fields look even greener. Whether or not the next several years will prove to be those of a "laboring day" than a "month period" of the bituminous coal industry, which still has some constructive adjustments to direct, there is a consensus among authorities that coal will have a much larger role in the future than has ever experienced to date. The disagreement is on the starting point and the rate of climb for the coal trends.
