SPEAKING OF AND FOR FLOYD COUNTY

PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY

JANUARY 31, 1963

THURSDAY

This Town... That World

Just to show you that Floyd county is dry territory, mention an Old Fashioned and whoever is listening laughs his fool head off and yelps, "Don't talk to me about those winters—look what we got!"

These be nice evenings for reading. One truth I learned at such pastime, the other night, is this: An atheist is a man with no invisible means of support.

Wish next summer's mosquitoes would be as mythical as the winter's snowflakes.

WANTED—A "GUARDREN"

Between water and gas bills to pay on or before the third, a multiplicity of other bills on or before the tenth, social security, income tax, unemployment tax, and so on, all due and payable on such-and-such dates. Plus the little matter of a driver's license—well, as the old fellow said, "I need a guardren."

Last week I discovered that my driver's license was missing. I had the 1962 license, but the one for 1963—well, there was nothing to do but get a duplicate. So, in my most courteous manner, I approach the folks at the Circuit Clerk's office and wonder if, maybe, somehow, they might fix me up to continue driving. They are cooperative and begin looking through the records, then begin looking at me with a sort of commiserating air. Then they tell me: "Master, you haven't had a driver's license since 1960."

NEW BUSINESS IS ORGANIZED

Handicraft Promotion Envisioned by Group; Youth Branch Stated

A new business organization came into existence here Tuesday with the filing of a name under which to do business. Name of the business is Prestonsburg Enterprises, and its purpose is to encourage the making of various articles in the homes of the people of the community.

These articles will then be gathered and offered for sale in the various souvenir shops such as those in Kentucky state parks. The articles wanted are handmade things, carved, woven, spun or made in any way by the people of the Kentucky mountains. Some have expressed an interest in making rugs, carvings and small items of furniture.

These articles will be gathered and sold on a commission basis, the selling price going to the maker of the article.

A branch of this organization for youths will also be started. This group will encourage handicraft by the young people of the Prestonsburg vicinity.

Those interested in the manufacturing of various articles are asked to contact the group by writing to them at Prestonsburg, telling of their interest and the articles they would like to make. A member of the group will then contact them and explain the process.

AREA COLLEGE PLANS RECEIVE FIRM PLEDGE

COMBS VOICES SUPPORT ANEW ON TELEVISION

Building Will Stated Despite College Heads Opposition In State

In an appearance over WSAT-TV, Huntington, West Virginia, Governor Combs voiced his commitment to the community college program and the major highway program now under construction.

Governor Combs noted the opposition voiced by college presidents to the community college plan, then stated: "Combs had on his mind, the community colleges will be built."

He pointed to other states where college programs have been undertaken and to the success experienced in these.

The state has adopted preliminary plans for the Prestonsburg Community College, and George Lee Shannon and Jack Hatcher, architects, are now working on final plans to be submitted by March 1. Approval of these plans will be followed by advertising for contractors.

In a speech prepared for the Business Kings' Club of Lexington, the Governor has stated that the community colleges will not only save young Kentuckians and the people of the state but also will be beneficial to the University of Kentucky.

The two-year colleges, by the nature of their program, will accept the interests closer to the worker, he said.

Combs said the junior colleges also give the worker a better education—something an apprentice and other employees.

The Governor said that he would like to see a community college established in the state and that he would like to see a community college established in the state and that he would like to see a community college established in the state.

Just like that, I do a quick shift from one foot to another, tag at where a forelock used to be and suggest they look someone more. Which they go—with the same result.

And here I am, branded a trooper-looter and a state trooper's right of hand. I've never had a more glorious day, here and there, violating the law every day and feeling as innocent as a newborn babe. And at lucky, in all that time—I—knock on wood!—haven't an accident, and not one do I run into one of these road-blocks and have a trooper stopped that I produce.

"Well, what can I do?" I finally ask.

"And they calm; tell me, 'Just take a driver's test.'"

Whereupon I have an attack of the vapors: "I'll never pass a road test, I'm through." I inform one of the men with him.

To mind comes the picture of Lena Moore taking his road test and failing, then taking it again and finally passing, and explaining to me that the reason he passed was that the trooper decided it wasn't safe to get back in the car with him.

"But I am in luck again. I have waited till the right time to find out my driver's license, which I didn't have is missing. As of January 6 they quit this business of giving a guy who has had a license the well-known checks. All he has to do is pass a written exam."

Trooper Lafferty was confident he could grade my work and his confidence wore off on me so that I managed to pass the test out of three. I love with my brand-new driver's license.

Walked to the office, related my experience, then decided to call it a day and go home. Then I found out that the courthouse to get my car.

Who's shock up?—I've been dumfounded.

Either I must have a chart, setting forth all these many important dates to remember—or it's me for a "guardian."

ARCTIC BLAST STRIKES AREA

Record Temperatures Reached At Salsyville; Schools Closed For Week

Temperatures in Eastern Kentucky sank to record lows Sunday night in the second record blast of arctic weather. Readings at Prestonsburg varied from locality to locality but hit 13 degrees below zero at many places.

Lowest temperature recorded in the section seemed to be at Flat Gap where 21 below was noted. Salsyville had 20 below in two sections of town. It was 15 below Monday night at Dewey Dam.

Headlines taken at River Station WINDO here showed 10 below Sunday but this was two degrees higher than the 12 degrees below on the preceding day.

The windy-blast struck Wednesday of last week with snow and falling temperatures. Schools were dismissed and although school was ordered resumed Wednesday of this week it had to be called off due to sudden icy conditions. The schools have missed a total of ten days due to inclement weather.

Prestonsburg labored to repair broken water lines or get water to start flowing in the homes. Every water pipe in the courthouse here froze Monday night.

On Thursday, Feb. 7, the Rev. Ed Beck will be conducting evangelistic services at the First Methodist Church, will be the speaker.

IN APPRECIATION

We wish to express our deepest appreciation to all our friends, relatives, and neighbors who so willingly rendered us many services to us upon the recent tragic death of our son, James Estill Marcum. We can never forget them. Especially, do we want to thank the ministers, Rev. Rush Shane and Rev. T. W. Chisholm, the choir and organists, the pallbearers and any who assisted in any way. Thanks to the friends who brought food and sent flowers, the friends who prepared the grave and to Carter and Callahan Funeral Home for their efficient services.

MR. and MRS. ROBY MARCUM and FAMILY

TIMES WANT AD PAY!

GODLINESS

To live a godly life we must first have God in our life, or, rather, there is no life without God—the life in this world, or the life to come. God is the light which gives us life. He is the life and light.

We can be as godly as we desire. We can have as much of Christ as we seek, for Christ said, when preaching the Sermon on the Mount (Matt. 7:7), "Ask and it shall be given you; seek and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you." If you read on in the eighth verse, He also said that every one who asks, seeks or knocks, He would grant it.

We can also know people by their fruits and we do not have to portake of the way others live. Neither does God want us to outright judge them but we can be bold in our living for Christ and not be ashamed to tell them we are Christians by the way. Live for a godly life in worth more than all the talking we can do, in the things we do on this earth and not live as we try to tell them we are. If we are honest, we can be sure a sinner can soon "get our number" if we are living godly lives. We are called living the God or we are not. It is the way of God and living for Him. We cannot lose it. If we are honest, we can be sure every good deed brings forth good fruit that will carry us through this life and into the life to come.

"We can live for Christ and work for Him for we can be so humble and Christ-like we can be filled with the things of God."

REGIONAL WATERSHED IS APPROVED BY SCS

Government experts on conservation have termed as feasible a plan to build a watershed project comprising the whole of the Little River Valley and its numerous tributaries. The plan would be to construct a dam of at least 10 water retention dams in the watershed.

The plan would be to construct a dam of at least 10 water retention dams in the watershed. The plan would be to construct a dam of at least 10 water retention dams in the watershed.

Little River is a tributary of the Clinch River. Its headwaters flow north of Knoxville across the mountain ridge and about three to five miles from the Elliott-Lawrence line. It enters Carter about a mile north of Robbins and runs through the southern part of the county and enters Little Sandy four miles south of Grayson near the junction of the Clinch River.

Most of the valley is in Elliott. But its tributaries run into Lawrence like Walker Branch from Carter past Sarah to the Lawrence line; Hurricane from near Fadden east to the line; Blaine Branch from Robbins east to Elliott and the line. And tributaries branching out from Little River in Carter are the Clinch, Clinch Fork, Clinch Creek from Stephens several miles west, and Brush Fork.

Decision on constructing the project rests entirely with the people within the watershed.

Should interest in the project warrant it, a vote eventually will be taken to determine whether the watershed project is desired. A majority vote of 51 percent is needed for establishment of the project.

If the people approve, then the government will pay costs of construction but maintenance and changes, etc. are to be provided by the landowners.

All water retention dams on the watershed are Hamilton Branch, Clinch Creek from Stephens several miles west, and Brush Fork.

In addition to the water retention dams on headwaters, the engineers have proposed four dams across major streams—one across Little Fork just above Stephens, one across Dry Fork just above the Lawrence line, one across Blaine Trace on the Carter-Lawrence line, and one across Lot Creek.

In addition to the four major dams, there are 10 dams proposed on the headwaters of smaller tributaries to be used as retention dams.

Conservation officials have held four meetings with Elliott landowners—one at Jan. Creek school, one at Walkabout Church, one at Blaine Trace school and one at Brushy Fork school.

Other meetings were held in Carter and Lawrence. Then on the 11th a general meeting was held in Grayson when the entire project was outlined to the people and the engineer's recommendations explained.

The government last year announced a plan to build a watershed project on the Clinch River. The project, it is estimated, will cost the government a million dollars, perhaps more.

But it will prevent disastrous floods and make agriculture in the valley more profitable. Too, the project can be used to replace the farm land to be covered by the Grayson Reservoir flooding of Kentucky Creek, a parallel creek to the west in central Elliott county.

Little River watershed encompasses about 85,000 acres. According to the team which surveyed the area, the construction of the project would be approved in Eastern Kentucky.

THIS LITTLE TRUE-FALSE TEST MIGHT PROVE PROFITABLE—TRY IT

1. "Never keep your savings and checking accounts in one place." True False

2. "Never get too confidential with a banker. Your finances are your business." True False

3. "You're better off never borrowing any money." True False

The Answer? As you've guessed, they're all FALSE. Here's why: If you spread your accounts all over town, you're not as likely to become an important customer at any one place. By concentrating your banking business, you have the edge when you need a major loan later on. The more you bank knows about you, the more it can help you through counsel, credit references, and—most important—loans.

Get started with a Full Service Bank soon. If there's any secret to "knowing about money," it's to get to know your banker before you need him and then use him for all he's worth. A firm friendship with a Full Service commercial bank (such as ours) is probably the best financial and personal reference anyone can have.

EVERYBODY GETS BLAMED IN CARTER COUNTY BY EDUCATIONAL GROUP FOR SCHOOL MESS

"Each side puts the blame on the other side. There are no neutrals left in Carter county," said a report of the National Education Association and the Kentucky Education Association which begins the report of their joint investigation of the Carter county school system. The report which culminates an eight-month investigation, has been submitted to a Study of an Unconscionable Combination of Politics and Education.

The 40-page report places responsibility for the controversy on many individuals and groups, including the superintendent of schools who had served some 24 years in the post, the elected Board of Education which was ousted by the State Board of Education, the appointed Board of Education which replaced it, the Carter County Teachers Association, the two local citizens' groups backing opposing sides in the State Board of Education, the state superintendent of public instruction, and the state's attorney general.

Recommendations to the parties involved suggest that the state be wiped clean, that new leaders be identified to guide the Carter county schools and the superintendent of public instruction. In Carter county the report calls for the resignation of the officers of the Carter County Teachers Association; the resignation of the current superintendent of schools (who was named in July, 1962); the selection of an acting superintendent appointed on an annual basis on recommendation from the State Board of Education.

The State Board is agreed that the Carter county situation has become stabilized. The report also asks for a guarantee from the long-time superintendent, who was dismissed in July, 1962, that he will remove himself completely from the school controversy; for the replacement of the present appointed members of the Carter County Board of Education; and for the disbanding of the two citizens' groups involved in the affairs of the Carter county schools.

On the state level, the report recommends that the citizens of Kentucky that they approve a constitutional amendment which would provide for the appointment of the state superintendent of public instruction and the popular election of the State Board of Education. Currently the superintendent is elected and the State Board is appointed by the governor.

The report further recommends to the National Education Association and the Kentucky Education Association that they use the findings of the report "and take such action as they deem appropriate."

The findings of the report note that many changes have been made in the Carter county school system since the NEA-KEA Special Investigating Committee held its hearings in June 1962. The long-time superintendent was replaced and a new superintendent was named to succeed him in early July. The findings on the superintendent related mostly to the long-time superintendent, although it was recommended that his successor resign, too.

Citing the fact that the superintendent who had served more than two decades was the product of the economic-cultural-political forces in Carter county, the NEA-KEA report found that by necessity of circumstances, "he came actively involved in politics, working for the election of Board members and ingratiating himself by dispensing favors to those who supported him." Such diversified activity on the part of a school superintendent "was not conducive to a program of quality education," the report commented.

As the educational policy-making body of Carter county, the report appeared to be satisfied with keeping the status quo and going along with whatever the superintendent desired. They appeared to have little knowledge of and even less responsible concern for the report which they authorized payment."

The appointed Board members, on the other hand, had in complete and total disregard of the report stated, "they each wanted to discharge the superintendent at the first opportunity."

The investigating committee noted that it was apparent that the appointed Board members had "no recognition of the damaging effect of their activities on the welfare of the children of the schools. It is regrettable that men nominated by a legislative committee and appointed to membership on the Board by the State Board of Education should have limited their activities as evidenced by the appointed Board of Carter county."

On a section devoted to the State Board of Education and the state superintendent of public instruction, the NEA-KEA Special Investigating Committee concluded that the State Board acted hastily in ousting the elected Carter county Board of Education "without giving the members of the elected Board a full opportunity to prove that they had met the obligations of their office."

Commenting on the selection of members of the appointed Board, the report states, "It appears that one of the reasons the NEA-KEA Special Investigating Committee appointed the Carter county Board was to remove the superintendent of schools."

The NEA-KEA report also condemns the actions of the Carter County Teachers Association, commenting that during the 1961-62 school year, the association concentrated its efforts on the removal of the superintendent, neglecting other desirable functions of a professional education association, the report finds.

Noting that several occupations officers of the Carter County Teachers Association "attemped out of bounds on public statements," the NEA-KEA report charges that the association "was dominated by a small core of teachers who took excessive liberties with the authority conferred upon them by the association's constitution."

It was apparent that many Carter county teachers are uninformally concerned with their rights under tenure laws of Kentucky and the provisions by which their contracts were renewed, the report notes. Two controversies which occurred during the 1961-62 school year were serious enough to be attempted to be resolved separately by the appointed Board of Education and the superintendent to remove two different groups of teachers.

Members of both organizations "were determined to win at all costs and were not willing to seek any areas of common agreement. Both of these groups were composed of people so consumed by their passion that they had lost the ability to listen and to consider opposing points of view."

The investigation of the Carter county schools was originally requested in February 1962 by the Carter County Teachers Association. Later requests were made by the Carter County Board of Education and the Friends of Carter County Schools Organization, Inc., a citizens' group.

Chemicals Recommended By Horticulture Group For Control of Weeds

Lexington, Ky.—Some, Dethal and Eptam will be recommended again this year by the U.S. Agr. Experiment Station horticulture department for weed-control in strawberries.

James Herron, weed control specialist, said about 10 chemicals were used last season in his test work. Some were incorporated in the soil planting, others incorporated in the soil or surface-applied two weeks after plants were set out. Some of the materials were granules, others were sprays.

The recommended materials (Dethal and Eptam) performed satisfactorily, Herron said. However, he added that three experimental materials, not yet cleared for use on strawberries, were even more satisfactory in these tests, giving 70 percent weed control or better, and causing no injury to the strawberry plants. He said it is possible that some of the experimental materials may be cleared for use on strawberries this season.

Such clearance is given by control officials only after the most careful and thorough testing.

LINCOLN TRAIL PROJECT STUDIED BY TRAVEL GROUP

Frankfort, Jan. 28 (Sp.)—A project to establish a highway routing which will touch all significant sites in the life of President Abraham Lincoln will be headed by Charles Warnick, director of the Kentucky Department of Public Information's Tourist and Travel Division.

To be called The Lincoln Trail, the route will use existing roads and will connect Lincoln sites in Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois.

The Lincoln Trail will not attempt to follow exactly in the footsteps of the Lincoln family's migrations," Warnick said. "It will guide the motorist to all the important and interesting places that played a part in the great man's life."

He pointed out that tourists take with enthusiasm to historic sites and sight-seeing routes. "The Lincoln Trail will be a natural tourist attraction, which should meet with outstanding success through the three-state area," Warnick declared.

The Kentucky tourist and travel director will be chairman of the committee planning the route. Indiana and Illinois representatives will serve on the committee. Warnick said the group hopes to have the trail open by late spring of this year. He said highway markers bearing Lincoln's profile will identify the routing.

Junkyard Law Declared Valid by High Court; Four Litigants Attack

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 23—Kentucky's new automobile-junkyard act is constitutional in every respect. So ruled Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs Tuesday in two lawsuits brought by junk and scrap dealers against the state Highway Department.

The new state law forbids junkyards within 2,000 feet of a road unless authorized by the commissioner of highways. Permits, good for two years and costing $30, are issued if a junkyard is hidden by trees, shrubs, fences and the like. Hardship cases can continue operations for two years, but must conform to the new thereafter.

Judge Meigs noted that the courts have held in the past that junk dealers are subject to reasonable regulation in the exercise of police power by the government.

The Legislature, the judge said, has wide discretionary powers in this area, so long as its acts have pertinency and reasonableness.

The judge said he was unable to find that the junkyard act does not tend to benefit the public. Further, he said, the means in which benefits are extended to the public are not arbitrary nor oppressive, but based upon substantial grounds.

The suits were filed by Clifford Jasper, an Edgar Iron & Metal Company, London; Raymond Waddell and Malcolm Coomer, West Somerset Wrecking Yard; Gambrell Auto Parts & Wrecking Yard, Pineville; and James P. Stanton, Rowlett's Junk Dealers.

CARPETS

By FRANCIS H. PITTS
Home Demonstration Agent

Carpets and rugs take quite a "beating" in winter, so give your carpets and rugs the right care to prevent permanent damage.

Your family is bound to track snow and ice into the house this winter. Melting snow and ice that penetrate the carpet backing will create yellow or brown stains. They can also cause mildew. If possible, remove tracked-in snow and ice before it melts. If it should melt on your rug or carpet, blot up the moisture immediately. Spread clean newspaper tissues over the spot and weight them down. Change them often until all the moisture is absorbed.

The salt used to clear streets of ice and snow often is tracked into the house, too. On a carpet or rug, it attracts moisture and causes brown stains. A white crust on the carpet pile, and fading. Ashes, which are often used in winter as a safety measure, contain alkali that harms carpet colors and fibers. If ashes or salt are tracked in, remove them immediately with the vacuum cleaner. Have rugs and carpets cleaned as soon as possible after winter soiling.

Another winter carpet stain might be caused by pitch or evergreen needles from the Christmas tree. To remove such stains, apply a safe drycleaning fluid with an eye dropper and then blot it up with clean, unabsorbed toweling or paper tissue. Work from the outside edge of the stain toward the center. Do not rub too hard. If the rug has a rubberized backing, use as little solvent as possible to prevent damage to the backing.

Be careful any time you use such a dry cleaning solution; use a non-flammable fluid and avoid inhaling the fumes or spilling the liquid on your skin. Plenty of circulating air helps keep the area free from fumes.

Fire Takes 11,600 Lives in Nation '62, Said; Precautions Are Listed

Frankfort, Jan. 28 (Sp.)—Fire, one of the most dreaded of all killers, took a toll of at least 11,600 lives throughout the United States during 1962...

Among the leading causes of fire fatalities and serious burns were smoking in bed, overworked heating equipment, overworked wiring and electrical equipment...

Another cause pointed out by the commission was leaving small children alone in a house...

To reduce the possibility of home fires, Lovens pointed out several items to check:

1. Don't smoke in bed. 2. If heating equipment is old, check it or have it checked for safety. 3. Don't overload electrical circuits. 4. Don't leave small children alone, even for a minute.

SECTION 13. Each bidder for said franchise, privilege and right shall file as a part of his bid a certified copy of a certificate of convenience and necessity from the Public Service Commission of Kentucky, issued under the authority of KRS 278.020 (2).

FIRST BRAIN WAVE TRANSMISSION — The first known successful transmission of a human brain wave by telephone was completed at Kentucky Baptist Hospital in Louisville recently. Seated in Dr. Richard C. Kentucky's sick people who live great distances away from big-city medical specialists may, some day, be able to have long distance medical diagnoses made of many types of illnesses.

This is the prediction of a Louisville doctor, who on January 9 saw the successful completion of the first known multichannel transmission of a human brain wave by a conventional dial-telephone hookup. Mononucleosis Reported At Barbourville School; Disease Cause Unknown

Frankfort, Ky.—Fifty-seven cases of infectious mononucleosis have been reported since December 1 at Union College, Barbourville. This disease is frequently found among college students, and nursing students, and other groups of young people who are closely associated with each other, though generally not in such a high incidence.

A United States Public Health Service team from Atlanta, Georgia, and a representative from the Kentucky State Department of Health are currently investigating the unusual outbreak in Eastern Kentucky. The cause of infectious mononucleosis is unknown and they hope to learn more about the disease, as well as prevent its spread to other areas.

Infectious mononucleosis usually strikes older children and young adults. It is characterized by glandular swelling, headache, sore throat, rash, jaundice, low-grade temperature, and a "dragged out" feeling. All of these symptoms may appear in only two or three of them. Infectious mononucleosis has an unknown contagious stage and incubation period. It is generally believed that it is spread from person to person by direct contact. Research is being carried on to determine the infectious agent. Diagnosis is through blood tests and clinical observation. This disease is usually self-limiting but occasionally there are complications with some involvement of the liver or central nervous system.

STATE AGED BENEFITS CLIMB TO HIGH TOTAL

Frankfort, Jan. 28 (Sp.)—State benefits to aged Kentuckians reached an all-time high during 1962, the state's Health and Welfare Agency has reported. Felix Joyner, administrator of the agency, reports that the state has vastly improved services to senior citizens in the three-year period since 1959. He attributed the accomplishments to four main factors:

- 1. Higher payments to old age recipients of public assistance funds.
2. An increase in the number of homes for the aged or infirm and nursing homes.
3. Initiation of a medical care program which benefits all aged persons who receive public assistance in addition to about 12,000 other persons over 65 who do not receive welfare checks.
4. Creation of the State Commission on Aging.

Add to these Gov. Bert Comb's expressed hope to do even more during the final year of his administration to improve housing and services for the elderly, and the future looks better indeed for the state's senior citizens.

Assistance payments to needy aged Kentuckians were increased in October 1962, the fourth such raise since 1960, State Economic Security Commissioner Earle V. Powell points out.

Powell said that average monthly payments to the needy aged have been upped to $56.89, an increase of more than $18 since February 1960. Other improvements in the public assistance program have increased the maximum payments for persons living in nursing homes and homes for the aged and infirm.

Patients residing in licensed nursing homes can now receive up to $135 monthly, while persons in approved residence homes for the aged or infirm can receive up to $115. This is enough in most cases to completely pay for the patient's care and services as well as to provide other necessities, Powell said.

By adopting a broader definition of "essential persons," the State has allowed an estimated 1,000 additional persons to become eligible for assistance benefits averaging $50, Powell said. Essential persons are relatives (or other persons) who live in the home with welfare recipients and care for them.

DEGREE-HOLDING TEACHERS ARE INCREASING IN STATE

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 24 — Ten years ago a citizens' committee of Kentuckians took a critical look at the state's school system and recommended that all public-school teachers should have a college degree.

That goal—a farighted one in those days—finally may be within reach because of dramatic progress in teacher preparation, the Education Department reported Thursday.

The Division of Teacher, Education and Certification issued a report showing that 88.1 percent of the state's secondary and elementary school teachers hold diplomas from senior colleges.

And, its detailed report said, the proportion should reach 95 percent by the 1964-1965 school year if the present rate of teacher training is maintained.

This would be a great gain over the 1953 figures. When the citizens committee did its survey for the Legislative Research Commission, only 50 percent of the state's teachers were college graduates.

The most notable progress has been made in the elementary-school level. The degree standard has been in effect in high schools since 1954, but it was not required for certification in elementary schools until 1959.

Transportation Study Of Appalachians Planned

A transportation study of the eight-state Appalachian region has been approved by the Area Development Administration, U. S. Department of Commerce. It is announced by ARA Administrator William L. Batt, Jr.

The study, to cost approximately $13,000, has evolved out of requests of the Conference of Appalachian Governors who maintain that accessibility is a primary obstacle to economic growth in the Appalachians. Involved in the study are the states of Alabama, Kentucky, Maryland, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia.

The survey will provide ARA and the Conference of Appalachian Governors with methods of appraising the adequacy of the region's transportation network and the formulation of an efficient program of transportation which will contribute to the economic development of the region. Specific areas of interest are: new routes needed to provide the greatest stimulus to growth in the region; the necessary combination of investment in local feeder roads with other highway improvements and extensions; the aspects of public investment in roads combined with expedited private and public investment in other forms of transportation; the indirect effects on the national economy of stimulated growth in Appalachia; a comparison of the direct and indirect effects of transportation investment with other kind of investment capacity.

While the study will be of direct benefit to the Appalachian region in helping to solve some of its economic difficulties, the analysis will be made available to other areas throughout the country which have similar transportation problems.

Kentucky Power Request To Reduce Certain Rates Approved by Commission

Kentucky Power Company's application to reduce electric rates to customers living in all-electric homes has been approved by the Public Service Commission in Frankfort. The new lower rate will apply to customers with all-electric homes featuring electric heat.

Beginning with electric bills rendered on and after March 1, the rate represents a decrease of 30% in the bottom step of Kentucky Power's sliding-scale residential rate. Kentucky Power has about 800 all-electric home customers who on the average will receive an annual reduction of about $48. This reduction amounts to more than one month's average bill on the present rate.

F. M. Baker, Kentucky Power vice-president and general manager, said, "The Commission's approval of this new rate recognizes our goal to reduce the cost and extend the benefits of all-electric living to many more of our customers."

He explained the lower rate was made possible by three factors: savings from Congressional enactment last fall of legislation permitting a 3% tax credit for capital expenditures by electric utilities; increasing use of electricity which, in turn, leads to constructing more efficient facilities to generate, transmit and distribute electric power.

Ashland: Home of Henry Clay

Ashland, built by Henry Clay in 1811, was the home of the great Kentucky statesman for some 40 years. Clay named the residence after the estate's "settling" address, some of which were cut and used to finish the interior of the house. Four generations of Clay's descendants lived at Ashland, until it was opened to the public in 1950. Ashland today contains many pieces of the original furniture, Clay's chess set and two pairs of gold brocade draperies brought by Clay from France where he was a signer of the Treaty of Ghent ending the War of 1812 between the United States and England. A formal garden completes Ashland's lovely setting. Ashland is located on Main Street in Lexington and is open daily from 9:30 to 4:30, including Sunday.

CLEAN UP GARDEN TOOLS

There are still some odd jobs left for the home gardener. For instance, we should wash out all sprayers carefully to remove spray residues. A weak vinegar solution will help. After the sprayers have been thoroughly washed out, coat the tank and other metal parts with a thin covering of oil, and hang in a dry place. Don't wash the dust, but carefully brush dust out with a steel brush. Some of the outside metal parts may need painting. Be careful not to get oil inside the dust, as it will tend to cake the dust that is used next season.

WATERING HOUSE PLANTS

Did you ever forget to water your house plant? Regular and proper watering is an essential part of the care of foliage and indoor plants. The space between the soil and the pot should be kept moist. Keeping Warm ... in 1960

Backing up to the stove was the way to keep warm in 1960. Today, in many homes electricity does the heating and other jobs.

Electricity has become a way of every day more homemakers are finding the electric way is truly the better way. Why? The average home today has 15 to 20 electrical appliances that it did just a few years ago.

With all this time and work, electricity is so comforting to know that it hasn't gone up in price. In fact, the more you use, the lower the unit cost becomes.

Folks live better these days... electricity; and, more than ever, electricity is the biggest bargain in the family budget.

WAYLAND

CLUB HAS MUSIC PROGRAM
"Music is an expressive form of art, which serves us a lift to the spirit," explained Mark Rice, Wayland music instructor, last Monday evening as he spoke before the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club at the Wayland Methodist Church. His subject was, "The Need for Music."

Rice explained the necessary place music has in the school program as well as the community and listed the ingredients for such a program. In conclusion he stated, "Good music helps us to feel better, to improve our mental and emotional outlook."

Taking part in the music program were Karen Francis and Eugene Coburn, both of Garrett, and Connie Morrison and Harry Keller, of Wayland. The piano selections, "Fascination" and "Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen," were played by Miss Francis, and "Make Me a Blessing" and Schubert's "Serenade" by Miss Morrison. Mr. Keller played saxophones on the treble-clef rattle tune, "Sweet Hour of Prayer," and Jesus is Calling."

Mr. Coburn gave a saxophone solo, "Fantasia Varaz," and, by special request, "My Happiness." Both young men were accompanied by Mr. Rice at the piano.

A brief devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Richard Vinson prior to the program. At the conclusion of the program the clubmembers and their guests returned to the clubhouse where refreshments were served. Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. L. B. Price, Mrs. Richard Vinson and Mrs. J. T. Spillman.

A business session was held at 6:30 p. m., at the clubhouse prior to the program. It was announced that February 3 is the date for the club-sponsored polo clinic to be held at Garrett.

Baptists Plan Festivals At Three Regional Towns

Some 4,000 Kentucky Baptists are involved in the 1953 festivals for choirs and other musicians throughout Kentucky. The festivals will meet in cities extending from Ashland to Mayfield.

A brief devotional period will meet as follows: Adult and Youth section on Friday, March 22, at Louisville Baptist Church, and "Junior" and "Infant" section on Saturday, March 30, at Unity Baptist Church, Ashland, and First Baptist Church, Pikeville.

Eugene F. Quinn, Middletown, secretary of the Church Music Department for the Kentucky Baptist Convention, will serve as judge for this series of festivals. Other special specialists who have been invited to judge the quality of each performance at the festival will include Glenn O'Brien, of Somerset, and Ronald Shearer, of Horlan.

Bob Crascher, regional music director, invites the public to hear any or all of the choirs.

EASTERN STATE STUDENTS AIDED BY DEFENSE LOANS

Authorized by the National Defense Education Act of 1958, the loan provides a financial aid program for college students in need of comparable size due to the extreme need of the area served by the college, college officials reveal.

Interest, at the rate of three per cent, begins after the borrower ceases to be a full-time student. If the borrower enters military service interest will not begin to accrue for an additional three years and the loans of borrowers who teach in public elementary or secondary schools will be reduced by one-tenth for each year of teaching for a maximum of five years. The means that those who teach for five years will have to repay only one-half of the amount they borrow.

Grady Sellards Honored For Outstanding Service By Livestock Producers

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 20 (Sp.)—Three Kentucky livestock producers and a former member of the U. K. Ag Extension Service were honored here tonight.

Named for outstanding service to Kentucky agriculture by the Kentucky Livestock Improvement Association were:

Certificates of recognition were given at the annual Stockman's Banquet, a feature of the 51st annual Beef and Sheep Week—open now in session.

Also honored was Grady Sellards, a specialist for the U. K. Ag Extension Service. Sellards retired last month after 41 years service. A portrait of Sellards was unveiled and he placed in the Admire Husbandry department's portrait gallery.

Beavin was honored for 15 years service with the Breckinridge County Livestock Improvement Association of which he has been president three years. He operates 800 acres of farm land where he has done much excellent production work, and improvements in reclamation and conservation. He has a herd of 70 registered Hereford beef cows and 75 other cattle which are on a performance-testing project with the U. K. Experiment Station animal husbandry department.

Hicks, farmer in Woodford county, is presently president of the Kentucky Angus Association, a director in the Woodford County Farm Bureau, president of a farm service concern for feed, machinery and artificial breeding, secretary for the Central Kentucky District Livestock Improvement Association, and owner, with his brother, of a top Angus herd successful in major shows and sales.

Sellards went to work for the U. K. Ag Extension Service in 1921 a day after he received his degree from the U. K. College of Agriculture. In his 41 years' experience he emphasized use of purebred breeding stock, helped develop the freezer-locker plant system in Kentucky, pushed use of pastured pushed for remodeling of swine facilities on farms, promoted swine sanitation as a prerequisite for good production, helped develop state and county swine shows, worked with 4-H Club pig clubs and promoted development of the meat-type hog.

He was an early cooperator with the "Ton-Litter" program, and in his 41 years wrote many bulletins, pamphlets and circulars on swine production and husbandry.
