School workers sue for lost jobs

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Three Floyd County school administrators, whose jobs were eliminated under a central office reorganization plan, carried out a previous threat to take their case to federal court.

Assistant superintendents Tommy Thompson and Pete Grigsby Jr. and Wayne Radliff, co-director of food service, filed a lawsuit Monday against the school board and superintendent in U.S. District Court at Pikeville seeking reinstatement to their positions in the school system.

In March, Prestonsburg attorney Mickey McGuire distributed copies of a proposed federal lawsuit on behalf of the Floyd County Administrator's Association against board member Eddie Billips prior to the board's adoption of the reorganization plan.

McGuire's proposed lawsuit alleged that Billips, under the guise of the reorganization plan, was trying to retaliate against administrators who did not support him in his 1990 election.

McGuire said in March that if the local board adopted the current reorganization plan, the lawsuit would be filed.

The suit filed Monday names the entire board of education and superintendent Steve Towler.

The suit claims that the administrators (See Jobs, page two)

Also injured were Elmer Douglas Caudill, 18, and Justin Ray, 16, both of Wheelwright. ## Financial problems piling up for solid waste :

Commission eyes debtors for cash

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The road to financial health for the Floyd County Solid Waste Commission continues to be littered with debt and deficit, officials say, and if clean-up efforts don't begin soon, bankruptcy may sound a "last haul" for the beleaguered county agency.

"We're getting two cents a pound for (transporting waste)," Floyd County Landfill Director David Cooley said Thursday, "and we're paying seven to get rid of it... We've got to do something soon... It doesn't take a mathematical genius to figure that out."

Bob McAninch, executive director of the Solid Waste Commission, said Thursday that the commission is currently exploring several options, including significant rate hikes and the transformation of the existing landfill facility into a waste transfer station in an effort to balance its over-stretched budget. McAninch is also trying to step up collection by seeking permission to file suit against the commission's debtors who have failed to pay for services over an extended period, he said.

The problem, Cooley said, is the exorbitant out-of-county transportation and disposal costs the county waste system has had to absorb since the Kentucky Cabinet for Natural Resources Division of Waste Man-

Tragedy mars end of school year :

Teen killed in car crash

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

The 1993 school season ended in tragedy Thursday when a Wheelwright High School sophomore was killed and two others injured, one critically, in a one-car accident on Ky. 122 at Bypro.

Trooper Byron Hansford of the Pikeville Post of the Kentucky State Police said at the scene Thursday that the accident apparently occurred when 16-year-old Elmer Douglas Caudill of Wheelwright was driving his Corvette in the westbound lane of Ky. 122, lost control of the vehicle and struck a rock wall.

The vehicle apparently rolled onto its top, skidded several feet across the eastbound lane, flipped back onto its wheels and slid over an embankment, Hansford said.

A preliminary investigation revealed that excessive speed may have contributed to the accident, Hansford said.

A passenger in the vehicle, 16-year-old Brandon Holbrook, was pronounced dead at the scene by Floyd County Coroner Roger E. Nelson.

Both Caudill and a second passenger, Justin Ray, 16, were transported to the McDowell Appalachian Regional Medical Center. Ray was later airlifted to the University of Kentucky Trauma Center at Lexington. Caudill was admitted to McDowell Appalachian Regional Medical Cen-

'It's your worst nightmare' :

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Thursday's tragic car crash which killed a Wheelwright High School student has some Wheelwright parents questioning how students can leave the school campus without parental permission, school officials said. Brandon Holbrook, 16, of Wheelwright was killed and two other students were injured in a car crash at Bypro just before noon Thursday after they left the high school without permission, school officials said.

Terry Spears, communications director for the school system, said Holbrook was last seen at the school at approximately 11:00 a.m. when a teacher saw him and he apparently had a hall pass to go to the restroom. Spears said that school officials reported that Holbrook did not check out of school and apparently left the school campus a short time afterward.

Parents in the Wheelwright community expressed concern because of the reported ability of students to come and go as they please near the end of the school year and that they are not aware their children are absent from school.

School officials could not explain

Thursday how students leave the school campus without following proper procedures or how to prevent them from leaving.

"I don't know how to answer that," Spears said. Wheelwright principal Don Bowling said Thursday that school officials try their best to prevent students from leaving the campus. "This is

Jessen says goodbye to Floyd; hello to Boyd

by Polly Ward
Time's Feature Writer

This Sunday morning, June 20, the Rev. Dr. Timothy Jessen will preach his last sermon as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Prestonsburg. After serving nearly 14 years as pastor, Jessen believes it is time to move on to a new challenge.

"I feel like the work I came here to do is largely accomplished," Jessen said in an interview at the church. "We added this new wing (fellowship hall) to the church in 1990. The church is strong and vital and active in the community and I feel it can go forward in a strong fashion."

On July 1, Jessen, 51, will assume the duties of pastor at Bellefonte Presbyterian Church, a 200-member congregation located in the Bellefonte-Ashland area.

"What is similar about the two churches is that both churches have presented me with a challenge," he said. "The church in Ashland has had one minister for 40 years. They need new leadership."

"It was challenged here to help the church be self-supporting and on its own," he continued. "For a good part of its history this church was a national mission church of our denomination. Now it's self-supporting."

He said First Presbyterian now has about 170 members. When asked what he believes are his other accomplishments during his 14-year tenure, he laughed and said, "That's hard for me to judge."

After a moment of reflection, he answered, "The church budget has tripled since I've been here" because "we have more members, more activities and more commitment. It has been gradual growth. We have strong trators' due process rights were violated and that the district's reorganization plan "was only an excuse to terminate, punish or deprive" them of their rights and that the administrators are "career professionals, specialists in their fields..."

The suit also alleges that Billips "has a plan to eliminate all Floyd County administrators" and that after he was elected to the board, Billips "has threatened school administrators with termination" and "ordered school employees to perform certain tasks and unlawfully asserted authority over school grounds."

Other members of the school board "either conspired with" or consented to "the devise of Towler, Billips and Patton" to approve the restructuring plan, the lawsuit claims.

The administrators are also seeking $100,000 jointly and severally in compensatory and punitive damages; a jury trial and attorney fees.

In a related issue, last week Floyd County Circuit Court Judge Harold Stumbo issued a restraining order which prohibits the school board from implementing the reorganization plan after McGuire filed a civil lawsuit. No hearing has been set in that case.

McGuire has also filed an appeal with the state attorney general's office claiming the school board violated the state's Open Meeting Law because the reorganization plan was discussed in closed session.

Ed Lynch, spokesman for the attorney general's office, said Tuesday that no ruling has been made on the appeal. Under law, the attorney general's office must rule on alleged open meeting violations within 10 days of receipt of the complaint. The appeal was dated June 10.

Three receive ALC scholarships

Bill Melton, director of admissions at Alice Lloyd College, recently announced that three Floyd County students have been awarded ALC's most prestigious scholarship. Receiving the scholarship are Melinda A. Spradlin, Christopher Ray Lafferty and Stacie Michelle Moore.

Melinda A. Spradlin, daughter of Glenn Spradlin of Grethel, is a student at Betsy Layne High School.

Christopher Ray Lafferty, son of Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Lafferty of Martin, is also a student at Betsy Layne High School.

Stacie Michelle Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Moore of Garrett is a student at Allen Central High School.

The Memorial Scholarship guarantees the student room, board and tuition expenses at Alice Lloyd College for the academic year. The scholarship is the equivalent of an annual grant of $9,110. The scholarship will remain in effect each succeeding year for four years so long as the student pursues 15 credit hours each semester at Alice Lloyd College and maintains at least a 3.0 grade point average (on a 4.0 scale), "B" average.

your worst nightmare." Bowling said about the accident that killed Holbrook. "You try to plan for every eventuality to keep something like this from happening. We certainly did everything we felt we possibly could do."

Bowling said that a teacher was placed outside the school building on Wednesday and Thursday in an effort to keep students from leaving the school campus.

One parent, who asked not to be identified, said his/her child had left school after taking a test Thursday and went with a group of students to Jenny Wiley State Park. The parent said the principal did not call the student's residence to report the child was absent from school.

"I want to know why parents were not contacted when students left?" the parent said. "I want to know why my son can go in there and walk out at 8:30 and I don't know about it?"

it because of the last day of school? If that's the case, I don't want my kid going the last week because it's killing them."

Bowling said that every effort is made to contact parents when students leave the school campus or when they are absent. Bowling added that sometimes parents cannot be reached to inform them their children are not at school.

"We did not authorize any student to leave without talking to the parents," Bowling said. "If the student arbitrarily left school, with the teacher supervising out front, I don't think that's the case."

"There may have been some students who went to the lake, I'm not saying they didn't," Bowling said.

"But, if they left home this morning and went to the lake, there is nothing we can do about that. If they checked out with (their) parents' permission and then went to the lake, we can't do anything about that. We certainly did not authorize any student to go to the lake."

If a student leaves the school campus without following the proper procedure, school officials will attempt to contact a parent or a relative to inform them that the student is not at school.

"Anytime we're notified a student is not in class or where they're supposed to be, our first effort is to contact the parent," Bowling said. "Sometimes (we're) not able to get in touch with the parent. Anytime school is about to dismiss, the circumstances change in that kids get anxious and a little hyper about being in school and leaving. We've tried to intercept this kind of thing."

If a student leaves home in the morning and does not go to school, Bowling said, school officials do not know the child is supposed to be in school and the parents are unaware their child is absent.

Bowling said, however, that proper school procedure is to call the homes of students who are absent to determine if the parents are aware their child is absent.

"There is a policy and we have absentee cards the teachers turn in during homeroom," Bowling explained. "We have followed the policy of calling in to check on students who are absent. You have students who don't have a phone or the parents are out of the home. In some cases, it's almost impossible to contact the parent."

Bowling said that over half of the student body did not attend classes Thursday.

Spears said Thursday that superintendent Steve Towler would thoroughly investigate the events leading up to Thursday's accident.

Wheelwright parents are expected to be at Tuesday's board of education meeting to discuss the issue.

The board meeting will be held at South Floyd High School beginning at 6:30 p.m.

agement ordered the Floyd landfill to be shut down last year.

Currently, Cooley said, all of the county's commercial and residential waste is being transported to the Pike County landfill at an estimated cost of $22.50 per ton, plus the cost of transportation which is approximately $1.50 for each of the 45 miles that county garbage trucks must travel to and from the Pike landfill at least ten times per day. Projected yearly cost of transporting all of the county's waste to the Pike County facility is around $178,200, Cooley said.

Although the solid waste commission has been exploring the option of turning the Floyd landfill into a transfer station after negotiation with private companies to operate the facility broke down, Cooley said, the cost of such a project would be around $166,900.

Rate hikes might improve the commission's financial outlook, Cooley said, but it might also lead to increased open dumping.

"I still feel like the people of Eastern Kentucky are not ready to pay $30-$40 a month," Cooley said. "If I had a choice between putting meat and potatoes on the table and having my garbage picked up (by the county), I'd put meat and potatoes on the table."

Floyd County Solid Waste Commission members will convene at a special meeting next Thursday, June 24 at 4 p.m. in order to discuss a number of options, McAninch said. The public is welcome.

ter, where he remains in fair condition.

Responding to the scene were members of the Pikeville Post of the Kentucky State Police; the Floyd County Sheriff's office; Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson; the Left Beaver Rescue Squad; and Lifeline Ambulance Service.

The accident is under investigation by the Kentucky State Police. According to Terry Spears, communications/personnel director for the Floyd County Schools system, Wheelwright High School will be open today, Friday, to observe the last day of the school year. However, Spears said, buses will not run and regular classes will not meet.

Teachers and counselors will be available at the school for students who may need assistance in dealing with the death of their classmate, Spears said.

music and youth programs and community involvement. We make our facilities open to community groups. Throughout its history, this church has been very much a leader in AA and Alanon meetings held at the church."

Jessen, himself, is an active community leader.

"I just like to help people and work with people. I find that our community a variety of needs and I try to respond to these needs."

He is on the board of the David School, Jenny Witte Theatre, God's Pantry Food Bank and United Way of Eastern Kentucky. In addition, he is president of the Prestonsburg Rotary Club, serves on the Job Corps Advisory Board Committee, has been president and treasurer of the Floyd County Ministerial Association, and has been moderator of Transylvania Presbytery, the regional body of the Presbyterian denomination. Also, he was a founding board member of Mountain Christian Academy and has served as president of both Adams Middle School and Prestonsburg Elementary PTA, among other civic activities. "A number of years I was involved in Hospice. I had to give some things up," he said. "I go to meetings almost every night of the week. Sometimes it gets a little tiring."

He is also chairman of the Floyd County Forum, a citizens group formed ten years ago to improve education. "I've been very active and interested in education reform. I see education as one of our great needs in the community and our area."

Recently, the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce inducted Jessen into the Floyd County Hall of Fame for his work as an activist in education.

Jessen's wife, Elma, has mixed emotions about leaving. "It's an exciting time for us, but we are sad to be leaving so many good friends," she said in a telephone interview. "We feel the work at the Ashland area is work Tim can do and where God is leading us. It's new work and that's wonderful."

"But, it's really, really hard. We've lived here 14 years and we just love living here. The children have made so many wonderful friends."

The Jessen's have three children: Ruth, 15; Paul, 13; and Chris, 8.

Jessen said that his last sermon will coincide "with a very happy occasion. We practice infant baptism and we have two infants who are going to be baptized. The sermon topic will be about how the Lord is faithful from one generation to another as changes occur in life. Something passes away, but something new comes along, too."

Jessen hails from the state of New York and he said that as a minister, "I felt called to come to Kentucky."

He was pastor at Bockhorn for 12 years. "Then, in 1979, I was called to Floyd County for this church and Drift Presbyterian. I finished my work at Drift in 1984. I've been full-time here since 1985."

Linda Lamer, church administrative assistant, said about her boss and pastor, "I am unhappy he is leaving. Not just my church, but the whole community will miss him and his family." She added, "We really work well together. It's been a good working relationship for us."

Jessen said that while he will miss most is "being right next to Jerry's and Dairy Cheer," he smiled. "The location of the church I will miss."

On a more serious note, he added, "Also, there are so many interesting issues in Floyd County and most have implications for the church. I'll miss interaction in problems the community is facing."

"I very much enjoyed my work in Floyd County with the church and the community. I will miss the good people here and hope they will press on and make this community a better place."

Father's Day gift may be handcuff on the wrist

by Geoff Belcher
Staff Writer

This Sunday may be Father's Day, but some fathers may receive more than a sappy card and a cheap tie this year as child support workers and county attorneys around the commonwealth step up efforts to corral "deadbeat dads," those who are negligent in making child support payments or acknowledging paternity.

According to a press release issued this week by the Kentucky Cabinet for Human Resources, "Some Kentucky prosecutors use Father's Day arrests to remind delinquent dads that they will be found and made to pay. In fact, counties publicizing such child support 'events' see collections go up markedly."

Human Resources statistics for the first quarter of 1993 revealed that, by the end of March, child support collection services had been requested on behalf of 67,062 children in the Commonwealth of Kentucky alone. Child support area offices offer help in locating and collecting support from the absent parent. The only cost is an application fee of $5 to $25, depending on income.

For help in this area, contact Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond's office at 886-9898 or the Prestonsburg child support area office on 18 South Front Street at 886-2871.

Changing Faces

The Kentucky Education Reform Act is not only changing the face of public education in Kentucky, it's changing the faces.

Since the first parts of that sweeping legislation went into effect in July 1990, nearly half — 87 — of Kentucky's school districts have seen new superintendents. In some cases, that change has been directly the result of KERA's muscle.

Superintendents in Boyd, Floyd and Magoffin counties who ran afoul of Education commissioner Thomas Boyesen, whose post was created by the law, and the state board of education, whose powers were dramatically increased by it, are no longer in their jobs.

Other superintendents, who toiled honorably for their districts for years under the old system, have voluntarily decided to step aside for younger administrators better able to stand up to the demands of reform.

That demand for a whole generation of new leaders troubles some observers.

They question where the talent and experience will come from to lead Kentucky schools through the most challenging time in their history.

They worry that otherwise ambitious teachers who have wrestled with school reform at the classroom level will want no part of the mega-headaches it is creating for administrators, disrupting the pipeline that traditionally has produced most of Kentucky's school leaders.

We prefer to think that school reform is attracting top candidates — both from within Kentucky school districts and from outside the state's borders — rather than driving them away.

How many times in the past two years have we heard applicants for northeastern Kentucky school superintendencies say that KERA was one of their main reasons for being interested in the job in the first place?

KERA in some ways is akin to re-inventing the educational wheel, and we shouldn't expect its changes to come without some cost or casualties along the way. Some administrators, some teachers, will find it too taxing, and drop out. That's a natural, healthy attrition that should infuse the schools with new blood, with leaders who are embracing reform rather than inheriting it; who are excited about it rather than intimidated by it.

It's precisely that kind of leader — with energy, vision and, most importantly, commitment — who will be needed to see Kentucky school reform through.

High rate of HIV virus found among prostitutes

Editor's Note: The following letter is reprinted from Wednesday due to an omission.

Editor:
 I think it is unfortunate that you are disseminating totally wrong information in what purports to be a women's health section (The Human Condition by John W. Shiber, Wednesday, June 9, 1993). HIV, the virus which causes Aids (acquired immunodeficiency syndrome) is transmitted by heterosexual contact. While studies have shown that it is fairly difficult for a male to become infected from a woman with the virus, it is relatively easy for a woman to become infected through vaginal unprotected sex with an infected man. I think it is important to stress that while women are much more likely to become infected from heterosexual contact than men, anyone who has sex with someone who is not their monogamous partner runs a risk of becoming infected. I have included a copy of the article from the Lancet referenced at the end of Dr. Shiber's Column. I think careful reading of the article will show that in 1987, 85 percent of the prostitutes studied in Nairobi, Kenya had HIV and that they gave the virus to their customers who in turn gave it to uninfected prostitutes. There is an abundance of good scientific literature on AIDS. In the future, please use it for the women's health features.

DISTRIBUTION OF TROPICAL RAIN FORESTS

Promising anti-AIDS compounds have recently been extracted from trees and shrubs found in widely dispersed portions of the world's tropical rain forests. These forests contain the highest concentrations of biological diversity, but are one of the habitats being destroyed most rapidly by humankind.

No sense to it

We heard a song on the radio the other day with an intriguing refrain: "It don't make no sense, that common sense don't make no sense no more."

Pardon the grammar, but ain't that the truth? You don't have to be a genius, just fairly literate and observant. The truth is that much as we do not make sense.

In southeastern Europe, a once beautiful, once progressive (by Communist standards) country is eradicating itself because of ethnic and religious differences.

In Somalia, the common people are watching their loved ones die, and their land wash away by a raging political faction.

In Washington D.C., our elected representatives are locked in a game of one-upmanship with a green president who wants more than right to be popular.

In Kentucky, our legislature and our government mirror the D.C. scene.

In Rowan County, a woman recently locked herself in a social worker's office and made the state employee list to help problems with the child care system. Ironically, for her deed, she faces up to five years in prison, where she'll receive the free medical treatment she needs but can't now afford.

In Pike County, we have a hit-and-run driver who snuffs out the life of a young person and doesn't stop to assess the damage.

Alison Pike County, a 10-year-old is listed among those getting a marriage license; several people call the paper in horror, but no one calls when the names of 13-year-olds appear with some regularity.

Some of it makes sense and all of it defies common sense. —Appalachian News Express

Safeguards

Within recent days, the U.S. Supreme Court has made two decisions that say much about what should be the proper relationship between government and religion in the nation.

In one, it ruled that religious groups must be treated like other community groups when the issue is access to public school buildings for after hours meetings. In the other, it overturned the ban on ritual animal sacrifice in cases taken to the court by the Santería Church of Lukáwaní Babalu Aye.

The common thread between the two decisions is that school districts and communities cannot discriminate against one particular group simply because of its religious beliefs. In the Santería case, an ordinance outlawing ritual animal sacrifice was passed by the city of Orlando, Florida, in reaction to the announcement that a Santería Church was being established.

The court's decision was not a statement about the validity of that particular religion, but a recognition that the Constitution does not permit governments to discriminate against either unpopular religions or religious rituals.

Similarly, the decision that school boards must pursue an all-or-nothing policy toward community groups getting access to school buildings supports the right of people not to be discriminated against in pursuit of their religious beliefs.

The Supreme Court's decisions reaffirms one of the tenets that this country was built upon — that the rights of the minority cannot be trampled by a tyrannical majority. —The Daily Independent, Ashland

Reality check

Gov. Brenton Jones, like many of his predecessors, has come face to face with financial reality.

The reality is simple. The state always plans to spend more money than it will bring in through taxes.

As Jones surely knows, cutbacks in state spending is a stopgap solution to a long term problem. To find a long term solution, Jones needs to address both ends of the problem — spending and taxation.

On spending, Jones needs to examine every facet of state government. Withholding tax refunds to make ends meet is not the answer. State government needs to be scaled back.

Doing that will mean setting serious priorities. It will mean a smaller state payroll. And it will mean looking hard at the issue of efficiency in all government endeavors, including public schools.

But spending is only half the problem. The other half is the state tax system.

Since 1988, Kentucky has financed education reform primarily through increases in two taxes: corporate income tax and general sales tax.

Because of its numerous exemptions, the sales tax has little potential for growth. And the corporate income tax has failed to grow in part because it has been undercut by the state's policy of tax breaks for new businesses.

There are solutions to these problems, but achieving them will require strong political leadership and courage.

Governor Jones will be doing his successors and the state a favor if he took on the task before leaving office. More than that, he would be doing the job Kentucky elected him to do. —Lexington Herald Leader

AAA opposes transportation fuels tax

by Kathy Gross
AAA spokesperson
AAA Blue Grass/Kentucky is opposed to the transportation fuels tax now under consideration in the Senate Finance Committee. The proposal is little more than a gas tax under another name, designed to place a disproportionate burden of reducing the federal deficit on the backs of the nation's motorists.

Many facets of the nation's population would be adversely affected by such an increase: Rural and suburban Americans — in states like Kentucky, who must drive farther to go to school, work or to the store. It will cost them more than people living in urban areas.

Businesses — will pay added costs for goods and services and pass these costs on to the consumer.

The tourism and recreation industry — may be hurt since 80 percent of travel is by motor vehicle.

Seniors — citizens on fixed incomes will be affected by the regressive nature of an increased motor fuels tax.

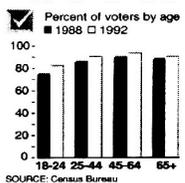

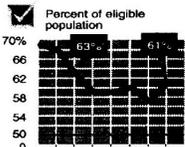

A recent survey by AAA found that over 70 percent of Americans disapprove of raising taxes on gasoline to balance the federal budget. The deficit is a national problem, not a transportation problem. All sectors of the economy should expect to do their share to reduce the deficit — transportation should not be singled out to do it all.

The goal is to get Americans moving, not tax anything that moves.

Editor's note: AAA Blue Grass/Kentucky is a not-for-profit motoring services organization which serve 112,000 members in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia.

State agency draws up new rules on wrestlers

Attention, professional wrestlers. Grabbing the ropes or your opponent's togs is henceforth contrary to state regulation. Violators are subject to possible disqualification by the referee.

The new regulation for the Kentucky Athletic Commission also requires "clean attire which is in good taste" and for wrestlers to be "personally neat and clean in appearance."

Also, contestants must "use only legitimate holds or methods known to wrestling."

The General Assembly's interim joint Business Organizations and Professions Committee approved the regulation last week.

The regulation has a serious side: Most of it is intended to keep patrons of wrestling matches from being injured or cheated. There is a money-back guarantee when a featured wrestler fails to show up, and front row seats must be at least 6 feet from the ring. - Lexington Herald-Leader

Jones appoints CPA assessor in Pike

James T. Cauley, a certified public accountant in Pikeville, was appointed property valuation administrator for Pike County by Gov. Bretton Jones Wednesday.

Cauley replaces Rex Johns, who resigned to become superintendent of Pike County Schools. - Lexington Herald-Leader

OSM to investigate landslide

The U.S. Office of Surface Mining has decided to reinvestigate a landslide nearly 1 1/2 years after the agency determined it could not be linked to mining.

Bill Kovacic, director of OSM's Lexington office, said Tuesday that the decision to take another look at the slide threatening two Pike County homes followed a report by the Kentucky Geological Survey. The report said there was "strong circumstantial evidence" to suggest the damage was caused by drainage from an abandoned mine. Kovacic said that does not mean OSM agrees mining is responsible.

Residents of Big Creek near Sidney blame the damage on mining done in 1982 by J & H Coal Co., a contractor for Island Creek Coal Inc.

Additional data is being collected. - Louisville Courier-Journal

Man charged with murder in hit and run

The Kentucky State Police have made an arrest in the case of a hit and run accident that left a Shelbyville woman dead Saturday.

The KSP arrested Wesley H. Waller, 21, of Kinper on Tuesday in connection with the death of Colene Jane Bullough.

Bullough, 18, and a friend were walking east on U.S. 460's westbound shoulder at 11:05 p.m. when the accident occurred. Bullough was hit from behind when Wallar's vehicle allegedly pulled out to overtake the vehicle in front of it. The vehicle swerved wide and struck her.

The pass occurred in a no-passing zone.

Bullough was pronounced dead at the scene. She died of multiple injuries.

Waller's vehicle was spotted Monday and identified. Wallar was then arrested. - Appalachian News-Express

Man says he, not wife, started fire

An assault charge has been dismissed against an Olive Hill woman who had been accused of dousing her estranged husband with gasoline and setting him ablaze.

Bethel R. "Big Arie" Callihan said Tuesday that he, not his wife, Jewell, started the April 18 blaze that caused him to spend more than a month in a burn unit in a Lexington Hospital.

Callihan, 43, said he touched off the fire when he tried to substitute gasoline for cigarette lighter fluid.

Callihan, who ran unsuccessfully for Carter County magistrate last month, said he put gasoline into his lighter because he was out of lighter fluid at the time. - Louisville Courier-Journal

1993 Trash Bash a success!

by Johnny B. Martin Park Ranger
The 1993 Dewey Lake Trash Bash was a success. On Saturday, April 24, approximately 90 volunteers braved the early morning rain and came out to Dewey Lake with a goal of trash removal.
This was the 4th year for the event and even though it rained during registration, we still had the best turnout to date.

The event is sponsored jointly by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and Jenny Wiley State Park. The event is held in conjunction with the celebration of Earth Day and Earth Month.
This year, volunteers picked up approximately 160 bags of trash, 15 ties and a large pile of scrap iron. This helps get rid of a portion of the trash around Dewey Lake, but there is more to be picked up. That's why we ask everyone to do their part in helping to pick up trash all year.

We have a volunteer program if anyone is interested in pitching in for the environment. Stop by the Corps of Engineers office or call us at 886-6709. We also want everyone to come out for next year's trash bash. We have plans to make the event better than ever.

All volunteers were treated to a cookout at Dewey Dam that was catered by Jenny Wiley State Park. There was musical entertainment provided by Charlie Walls of Springfield.
Overall despite the early morning rain, the 1993 Dewey Lake Trash Bash was a success! Everyone seemed to enjoy pitching in and the cookout at the end of the day was an enjoyable time, too.

Students from the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center helped clean up Dewey Lake during the 1993 Trash Bash.

Dear Jax,

How do fish breathe under water? I'm in the 7th grade and still don't know.

Jennifer Haglings
San Antonio, Texas

Dear Jennifer,

Don't feel bad about not understanding something regardless of what age you are. The key thing is asking when you don't. And that's exactly what you did. Lots and lots of people don't know the truth about fish.

Fish do not breathe under water. Breathing is the way we get oxygen into our blood and get waste gases out. Fish use a different method.

experiment #1

experiment #1

Oxygen in Water

WHAT YOU NEED: Just a glass of water
WHAT TO DO: Leave the glass on a table beside your bed. Go to sleep. In the morning, you'll see little bubbles in the glass. Those tiny bubbles are filled with air that was dissolved in the water. That's what fish use for their oxygen. Water flows over the gills, which are full of tiny blood vessels.

experiment #2

Letting Gases In

WHAT YOU NEED: Balloon - patience
WHAT TO DO: Blow up the balloon and tie it off. Now just let it sit somewhere. In 2 days you'll see that it has deflated.

WHAT IS GOING ON: The air inside passed right through the rubber! It's called osmosis (oz MO sis). Gases dissolved in water go through fish's blood vessels the same way.

Take a Closer Look

The next time you're at a grocery store that sells fish, conduct an examination. Open up the gills and have a look-see inside. (You can't hurt the fish anymore. It's already laid out on a bed of cracked ice.) Inside the gills you'll see the red, oxygen-absorbing tissue. If you gently slide a pencil inside the gills, you can pop it out the fish's mouth.

Mirror Message:

Water in: Water that has oxygen dissolved in it flows into the fish's mouth.

Water out: Blood in the fish's gills has used the oxygen in the water.

WORD LADDER

To catch a fish, you have to cast your line into the water. See if you can turn CAST into FISH by changing one letter at each step. The gray boxes show which letter you should change. The meaning of each word is next to its place.

GLORIOUS FOOD

Here's a recipe for a great summer treat. I found it in our neighborhood newspaper:

FRUIT SALAD POPS

YOU'LL NEED: 6 big paper cups
3 cups of yogurt
3 cups of fresh fruit
(Try bananas or blueberries)
6 plastic spoons

1. LAYER IT!

Divide one container of yogurt among the six cups. Make the layers even. Then, divide one cup of fruit six ways. Put the same amount of fruit in each cup on top of the yogurt. Do this two more times. You'll have three layers of yogurt and three layers of fruit in each cup.

2. FREEZE IT!

Now, stick a spoon into each cup. At least two inches of the handle should remain outside the cup. Put them in the freezer for three hours. Then run warm water over the outside of each cup and pull on the spoon handle.

3. EAT IT!

There's No Remote Control with this Newspaper

59% of Kentucky households recently made a purchase as a result of newspaper advertising, compared to 27% who made purchases from a TV commercial.*

Newspaper advertising doesn't work that way. It's there when newspaper readers are ready. They don't have to run to the refrigerator. But if they do, they can take the newspaper with them. Ever try that with a TV set?

And newspaper advertising stays around. It's not on for 15 seconds and then gone. It's there for days. In fact, the same survey shows that up to 73 percent* of Kentucky newspaper readers keep the newspaper around the house for at least three days.

So while newspaper readers might go to the refrigerator, your message is there when they return. And it stays there, working for you.

Newspaper advertising - - it doesn't stop with the flick of a button.

In a recent statewide survey of 2000 Kentucky households, 58 percent* said they "do something else or change stations" when a commercial comes on. TV. They switch stations, run to the refrigerator, or check the laundry.

South-Of-The Border Steak Is Perfect For Summer

(NAPS)—The mouth-watering, smoky aroma from the charcoal grill and the sizzle of juicy steaks is summer at its flavorful best. In fact, a recent study from Kingsford shows steak is Americans' favorite food to barbecue.

For those prime barbecuing afternoons and evenings, the charcoal grilling experts at Kingsford have given steak south-of-the-border flair.

This easy-to-prepare recipe delivers even more zest with fresh herbs or spices added directly to the coals during cooking.

1. Add fresh herbs to coals during the last half of grilling. Soak them in water at least 20 minutes before adding them to the fire so they'll smolder and smoke, not burn.

2. Toss garlic cloves, fennel pieces, lemon quarters right on the coals. 3. Try mesquite or hickory wood chips soaked in water for 20 minutes first, for distinctive flavor.

GUADALAJARA BEEF
Add 2 or 3 fresh rosemary sprigs and the peel of half an orange directly to coals when grilling meat for more aromatic flavor!

1 bottle (12 ounces) Mexican or any dark beer
1/4 cup soy sauce
2 garlic cloves, minced
1 teaspoon ground cumin
1 teaspoon chili powder
1 teaspoon hot pepper sauce
4 beef bottom sirloin steaks or boneless tri tip steaks (4 to 6 ounces each)
Salt and black pepper
Red, green and yellow bell peppers, cut lengthwise into quarters, minced (optional)

SALSA
2 cups coarsely chopped, seeded tomatoes (about 1-1/4 pounds)
1 green onion, with tops, sliced
1 clove garlic, minced
1 to 2 teaspoons

Charcoal-grilled Guadalupe Beef with Salsa is full of spicy, delicious Mexican flavor.

Salsa (recipe follows)
Flour Tortillas (optional)
Lime wedges (optional)

Combine beer, soy sauce, garlic, cumin, chili powder and hot pepper sauce in a large shallow glass dish or large, heavy plastic bag. Add beef; cover dish or close bag. Marinate in refrigerator up to 12 hours, turning beef several times. Remove beef from marinade; discard marinade. Season with salt and pepper.

Oil grill to help prevent sticking. Grill beef and peppers (optional) in a covered grill, over medium Kingsford briquets, 8 to 12 minutes, turning once. Beef should be medium done and peppers tender. Serve with Salsa, tortillas and lime (optional). Makes 4 servings.

Combine tomatoes, green onions, garlic, chili pepper, oil and lime juice in a medium bowl. Stir in cilantro (optional). Season with salt, sugar and black pepper. Adjust seasoning to taste, adding lime juice or chili pepper, if desired. Makes about 2 cups.

Technicians create the magic at Jenny Wiley Theatre

Jenny Wiley Theatre's 1993 season opens on June 18 with Cinderella, but for weeks before the first play opens, the magic of the shows first stirs in the minds of a group of players whom the audience never sees.

This group, known as the "tech" s (short for technicians), is responsible for "building everything," according to Joe Clark, production manager for the theatre. This year the tech's number 15, including everything from a master electrician to a resident costume designer to box office workers. Without the hard work of these people, there would be no plays—no costumes for the actors, no scenery, no ticket sellers, no props, no one to give the cues to those on stage.

Although these technicians came from as far away as Alabama and Maryland, many of them are local artisans who lend their skills to getting the plays up and running. Some of them, like Chris Griffith from Prestonsburg, one of this year's stage managers, began as a volunteer whose theatre "hobby" turned into a summer job. David Coleman of Paintsville, properties master for the theatre this year, has worked on shows at PCC and Morehead State University, where he majors in government/pre law and minors in theatre. Joe Clark, production manager, in his first season with the theatre, oversees all areas of getting the productions ready. Clark who previously taught theatre in South Carolina and at Hazard Community College, lives at Deane in Knott County.

With Jenny Wiley Theatre's gala opening of Cinderella on June 18 fast approaching, Joe Clark and the rest of the tech team are at work every

A TIE AND A BOX OF HANDKERCHIEFS

This coming Sunday, people throughout the world will be commemorating Father's Day; that once a year anniversary of receiving praise for siring offspring.

Fathering is not a difficult accomplishment when you consider that any living thing with a reproductive system can breed. That hard part is in trying to make the offspring a productive, worthwhile human being. That's harder.

Maybe that's why neckties and handkerchiefs are such traditional gifts to give on Father's Day. If the father doesn't succeed in rearing his child to be a useful adult, he can hang himself with the tie or cry into his hanky.

Today's society of men take fathering more seriously than past generations. My father was from the old school when child-rearing was left strictly up to the mother. The only time my father intervened was when mother couldn't take it anymore, or it was something so bad she needed a more imposing figure to intimidate my three sisters and me. Sometimes this tactic worked, but more often than not Daddy's punishment fell short of what mother would have liked for it to be.

Some of our memorable Father's Days were the last ones we shared together. Dad always hated for us to buy him anything fearing that it would be too expensive so we usually ended up lying about the cost. During the last few years, we bought him a foot massager, house slippers, pajamas, a coffee pot, a peanut butter maker and pillows. He would always act as if he enjoyed the gifts and commented that we shouldn't have gotten them, but we could tell he really enjoyed just having us around. The great part about that is it didn't cost us a thing to be with him. It was the best FREE time in the world.

Albeit, everybody thinks their Dad is the most special Dad in the world; however, you would have only had to know my Dad to realize that he was truly special indeed.

My Dad was generous, friendly, courteous, trustworthy, compassionate, fun-loving, honest and sincere; and that's just the tip of the iceberg. He never saw a stranger and made few enemies. He deserved much more than a necktie or a handkerchief, but he was just as happy to receive a hug and a smile.

This all came rushing back to me this past weekend when I watched people shopping for their Father's Day gifts. Boys and girls were browsing through stacks of hats and T-shirts that boasted fishing and golfing logos. While others sifted through racks of bathing trunks and designer jeans. When I saw people at the checkout lines their buggy's contained none other than neckties and handkerchiefs; safe items that nobody ever really returns because they can always use them.

Deep down I suppose I was jealous of the buyers. A purchased gift meant they had fathers who would be wearing a sily looking tie and trying to find a place to put another six pack of handkerchiefs.

I wanted to yell at them to stop worrying about what gifts to buy. Forget the gift and spend the day with the man who spent his entire life providing for you. Yeah, I know you didn't ask to be brought here, but since you're here, you might as well enjoy the one who was responsible for bringing you here.

Yes. Most any man can sire a child, but it takes a special kind of father to rear one. Happy Father's Day to the one's who've succeeded.

I'm rich! I'm rich! Money money money money money!!! Eat your heart out Ross Perot! Can you imagine ME with a little money and power? I might even run for office.

Okay, so I'm not rich YET. I WILL be, though. And soon. It's like this, see. I found this uhhh... syringe, yea, that's it. I found a SYRINGE in my Pepsi can. And I drank it, see. And I SWALLOWED the needle. Yeah, that's the ticket. Goodness knows where that needle has been and what horrible complications I may suffer.

At first, you know, I thought it was some kind of new promotional deal, like Pepsi was saying:

"Hey intravenous drug users, doesn't all that heroin leave you feeling just a little bit parched? After a big trip, why not drink Pepsi? Cool and refreshing! Serve it at pot parties! And, for a limited time only, look for specially marked packages for a free syringe in every can! Pepsi, for the New Generation of brand-dead dweebs!"

Or maybe they were just trying to convince people to finally buy that Crystal Pepsi swill by making them think that if they drink the good stuff, they're gonna get a

Truth, Justice, and the shut. But then I saw on the news that the Pepsi-Cola Company was DENYING putting any syringes or needles in their products. And there was this guy with no chin who they called the "president of the company" or "Mr. Big" or something like that, who kept saying: "Nope, no needles in OUR products. A few mouse parts every now and then, sure, but no needles."

You can imagine how disappointed I was. I mean, there went my big party. And after I'd bought all the chips and onion dip and everything

And then I thought, well, maybe somebody at the Coca-Cola company decided that, instead of spending bazillions of dollars every year to hire some no-talent pop singer to advertise their OWN product, they could save a lot of money by just scaring the bejezus out of the Pepsi drinkers and making them switch to Coke. I thought to myself, "How sad. Just because they weren't smart enough to hire Ray Charles first and couldn't think of a slogan quite as catchy as

"Uh huh, they have to resort to something like this and start another Tylenol scare.

But then I got to thinking about it and I realized—you know, a clever, enterprising young man such as myself could actually make a PROFIT from this whole thing.

In other words: Somebody's gonna get sued and I'm gonna be RICH!!!

That's right. I'm gonna exercise my constitutional right to SUE SOMEBODY'S BUTT OFF AND MAKE THEIR LIVES A LIVING, MISERABLE PIT OF AGONY AND DESPAIR JUST SO I CAN MAKE A FEW MEASLY BUCKS AND BUY ME A HOT TUB!"

And maybe a satellite dish, so I can have a hundred MORE home shopping channels

And maybe, just maybe, I MIGHT be able to afford to take my wife to Pizza Hut for supper. Ohhh, man, it's gonna be great. I'll be sitting there in my hot tub, munchin' on a slice of Super Supreme, checking out the new genuine faux diamonique

OKAY, STOP PRESSURING ME!!! I admit it. I lied. I can't take all this guilt. I'm very, very sorry. Please forgive me. I made the whole thing up and I just feel terrible about scaring everybody like that.

You have to admit, though, it was a pretty good scam while it lasted.

I coulda made MILLIONS. If only I hadn't wimped out. Anyways, I'm gonna have a party to help get me over my depression. You're all invited. I'll supply the chips and dip

You can bring the Coke. Maybe we'll luck out and find a razor blade in it.

Had I taken the time to think about it, I probably could have foreseen the onslaught of those torrential rains we've been having lately.

After all, my son has been collecting animals by the pair for quite some time.

The first arrivals were our Siamese twins, Betty and Veronica, who firmly believe that they are teenagers.

Veronica likes to hoot with the owls, casting her reputation aside for a night out on the town, while her sister Betty is bulemic...but only when we don't prepare her favorite dish.

Next to board our happy ship was Blackie, a Snow Swift of the lizard variety, and a bluetailed skink, which didn't stick around long enough to get a name.

In a mad dash for freedom from our terrarium, Mr. Skink made it just halfway before my son slammed closed the lid. Burial was at sea.

Then came Sebastian and Flounder, a quiet pair of Hermit Crabs who are relatively tame unless an inquisitive Siamese Cat's nose should come within a pincher's length.

We're considering changing Flounder's name to Curiosity, because (he? she? it?) nearly killed the cat.

Then in no particular order (because we lost track of their arrivals and departures) have come a handful of toads, one terrapin, a salamander or three, a pocketful (yes, a pocketful) of earthworms, two thousand rollic-pollie sow bugs and a bluejay in an oak tree.

These creatures all must be fed (some to each other we might add) so we're all stocked up for the summer.

We have cutworms for Blackie, raw hamburger for the terrapin, dazed flies for the toads, some (we're not kidding, they really sell this stuff) Hermit Crab food for the Hermit Crabs, and pate de goo for the cats, who would prefer to eat an undistinguishable creature and then burp it up on the rug.

When it rains, it pours. Noah what I mean?

NEWS OF THE WEIRD

In May, the Howard Johnson Plaza-Suite Hotel in Baton Rouge, La., temporary home of state Rep. David Armstrong of New Orleans while the legislature is in session, banned him from the premises, to protect his female employees from Armstrong's repeated sexual harassments. Hotel manager Rick Smith said he had stopped allowing house-keeping employees to go to Armstrong's room alone because several of them said Armstrong had greeted them naked or wearing little clothing, had made various sexual gestures, and had invariably invited them to join him in sexual activities.

The hottest product is Mane 'n Tail Conditioner, but hoofmaker also sells well as hands and nails conditioner.

Go West, Eli! A few months ago, "Civil Wars" executive producer, William Finklestein, who was "L.A. Law's" first major honcho, returned to his perch at the Peacock network after his ABC series folded. There was some talk at the time that he might make some major cast changes for next season. So far, there's been no report of departures. But there is a significant addition: Alan Rosenberg, who played lawyer, Eli Levinson on the late, and still lamented "Civil Wars"—which was set in New York—will continue to play Eli, only next season he'll be doing it on "L.A. Law."

Conan O'Brien, who takes over David Letterman's "Late Night" show on NBC when Letterman moves over to CBS, got a big boost from Tom Snyder. The veteran TV personality, now hosting a show on CNBC, told Conan not to worry about being an unknown, saying he, Tom, worked with many unknowns over the years, including Jack Paar and Johnny Father may know best, but he takes a back seat to Mother when it comes to recognition. Mother's Day predates Father's Day both in calendar order and in length of time since observed (1908 and 1910). However, as Jon Winokur, annotator of "The Portable Curmudgeon," finds, Father is not altogether a forgotten man.

In FATHERS (Dutton: $18.00), Mr. Winokur offers an encouraging view of the "old man" via a wide variety of extracts from the biographical reminiscences of the sons and daughters of the famous. Alice Longworth Roosevelt, in her usual candid and terse manner, summed up the exuberant be-all qualities of her father, President Theodore Roosevelt, thus: "My father always wanted to be the corpse at every funeral, the bride at every wedding and the baby at every christening."

Arthur Ashe, Aissa Waddy, Mark Twain, G. Gordon Liddy, Jackie Collins, Frank Zappa, and some 200 others sketch thumbnail portraits of their famed Dads. Comedian Henny Youngman's comment is typical: "My father was the town drunk. Usually that's not so bad, but New York City?"

—Rick Brown of Los Angeles introduced a $69.95 audiocassette program for women, "Think and Grow Bigger," consisting of hypnotic creative-visualization exercises designed to take women's minds back to puberty, to re-engage the "mammary-building process."

—New Celebrity Drug Marketing: Two men in Jerusalem were arrested in February for marketing LSD tablets wrapped in stickers featuring the Simpsons, and the same month in New York City, police reported a potent form of heroin was appearing on city streets stamped with the name and photograph of Mike Tyson.

—Items Available in Vending Machines: In Japan, where Americans have long complained of the closed retail distribution system for their products, U.S. and Australian beef importers have begun to sell cuts of meat in vending machines, for about $12 a pound, vs. $20 a pound for Japanese beef. And First Choice Industries in Toronto is currently testing vending machines that dispense fishing worms, packed in earth, in a can, for about $3.

Carson. He also advised Conan: Be true to yourself. Forget the network, the entourage or anyone else who tries to get you to perform in their image.

Television's hottest young performers compete in athletic and video game events to benefit children's organizations on the third annual "Star Kids Challenge" airing through June 27 in syndication. Some of the young stars are Alfonso Ribiero ("Fresh Prince of Bel Air"), Michael Fishman ("Roseanne"), Jenna Von Ooy ("Blossom") and others.

JUST DO IT: That oh-so-in-love duo, Whoopi Goldberg and Ted Danson, costars of the feature film, "Made in America," are reportedly planning projects that will involve both of them. Although they're said to be focusing on films, some Hollywood wags insist a TV series is an option for the couple.

INTRIGUE AFoot IS AHEAD for "Another World"—As Carl, one of the most fascinating men of menace on daytime, Charles Keating's appearances on "Another World" always guarantee intriguing storylines that twist, turn, and titillate. His short visit in June will be followed by a longer stay in Bay City starting July.

EMPOWERING WOMEN: William J. Bell did the first daytime rape story on "Young and the Restless" in 1973 with none other than Anthony Geary as the attacker. Bell set the standard for sensitivity and social comment that would make daytime soaps an important medium for getting the message across—that rape is a crime, and the rapist is a criminal, and the victim should not be blamed for being brutalized.

"Search for Tomorrow" did an acquaintance-rape story with the character of Sunny (played by Marcia McCabe) being assaulted by someone she knew. "As the World Turns" handled the topic of marital rape, with Larry Bruggman's character, John, accused of forcing himself on his wife against her will.

This year, "One Life to Live" introduced still another aspect of sexual assault by moving the story onto a college campus where rape, especially by people known to the victims, has been one of the least reported, but increasingly prevalent crimes. With the frat party gang rape of Marty (Susan Haskell), several issues that rape victims often have to endure after the attack will be explored. Says executive producer Linda Gottlieb, "No matter what your background, how many men you've slept with, no matter how much drinking, how much lying, no means no, we would like women in the audience to understand they have power. No woman has to be a victim."

FATHER'S DAY has a special meaning for Sieve Burton this year. The young actor who plays Jason Quartermaine, one of Alan Quartermaine's two sons on "General Hospital" says, "Working on this show is like being part of a real family... I miss not seeing David Lewis, who played my grandfather, Edward, since he retired. He used to tell me stories about his early years in the business. Stuart Damon, who plays my dad on the show, and who has two sons of his own in real life, has sort of made me his third son. He treats me like a father even when we're not working. He's really great."

GRUDGES

—The San Francisco Chronicle reported in February that a six-year-long feud between two officials in the small Emery Unified School District, adjacent to Oakland, has produced numerous lawsuits, $123,000 in school attorneys' fees, and hundreds of hours of police investigation time, with the police so far finding no basis for charges. School superintendent Peter Corona said former school board member Rita Dixon tried to put out a contract on his life and once tried to get a witch doctor to put a spell on him, and said Dixon's daughter accused him of running a prostitution ring in the school.

—In November, a California Court of Appeals ruled on a technicality in favor of David Chey in his lawsuit against neighbor John Ben over the series of loud music, threats, racial epithets and profanities that have characterized the pair's relationship. Among the documents in the case is a police report describing Chey's setting up an electric fan to blow hazardous materials onto Ben's property.

In a recent issue of the trade journal Circus Report was a notice placed by a clown, threatening legal action if a competitor didn't stop using the first clown's performing name, which is "Underwearhead the Clown."

The Associated Press reported in February that, shortly after a train near Dhaka, Bangladesh, knocked down a baby elephant on the tracks, the baby's mother blocked the tracks so that the next train along could not pass. After stopping the train, she beat her head against the engine for 15 minutes, disabling the train and leaving 200 passengers stranded for five hours.

THE WEIRDO-CANADIAN COMMUNITY

Donald Kintz, 25, was convicted of assault in Toronto in March after participating in the slicing open of the arm of a 21-year-old woman he had just met in a bar. According to testimony at the trial, the women had agreed in principle to let him drink her blood, but it was Kuntz who

SLIVER

There's no doubt that the makers of this piece of trash were banking on the popularity of "Basic Instinct" to reel in (no pun intended) the viewers. After viewing it, I'd say they were pretty much on the money, given that "Basic Instinct" was nothing but dressed-up pornography, and so is this.

"Sliver" refers to the compact, modern high-rise into which Carley Norris (Sharon Stone), fresh from a messy divorce, moves. Carley is a book editor, but that really isn't important since you almost never see her at work. The apartment she occupies was formerly occupied by a woman who was pitched over the terrace. What we have here is a stab at a whodunit. Could it be Zerk Hawkins (William Baldwin), the handsome hunk who lives on the 13th floor? Maybe it's the crime novelist, Jack Landsford (Tom Berenger). More likely, it's the sleazy guy who loves to "peep" on his neighbors with sophisticated electronic equipment. Whoever it is, it seems Carley won't be lacking for a date, since they all hit on her before she even gets to unpack.

The rest of the movie is devoted to such niceties as masturbation in the bathtub, gratuitous sex scenes replete with moaning from the "talented" Ms. Stone and flexing of muscles on the part of Baldwin.

Obviously, this isn't my cup of tea, nor do I recommend this film. No matter how nicely you package garbage, the fact remains that it stinks!

opened the wound, causing the woman pain and forcing her to head for the hospital. According to witnesses, Kuntz then dropped to the floor and licked up the spilled blood before fleeing.

LEAST COMPETENT PERSON

Brian C. Jones, 20, was arrested in Norfolk, Va., in May and charged with breaking into his neighbor's house, stealing a television, camera and VCR and then setting the neighbor's house on fire, gutting it, to wipe out any evidence linking him to the theft. However, the neighbor's house is actually the other part of Jones' duplex. Jones' place suffered heavy smoke damage, which opened the house to firefighters, and the neighbor's equipment was spotted inside.

who will be entering her 14th year as a tournament manager.

Willis doesn't like what she is seeing in tennis in the area of late and feels that the game has dropped off considerably.

"Yes, tennis is down," she said. "I think it is because our high schools are down and there are so many other things for players to do now. We need to get our high school programs back up."

Willis said that she has offered her services to the local high school, whose program has dropped drastically, but there didn't seem to be any interest.

"We need to have more girls playing tennis," Willis said. "Tennis has a way of opening doors for those who play."

The "dynamic duo's" duties don't stop with being tournament man-ers, but they serve as referees also and handle all difficulties that might arise.

"In the time that Don and I have put into it, we have had the minimum of problems," she explained. "We have very few problems. But if it happens we are there to correct what may come up."

Both the Willis' enjoy taking part in the tournament themselves and have been successful over the years.

The tournament is sponsored by the First Commonwealth Bank, who finances the trophies and shirts for the players. A first and second place trophy is awarded to the winner and runner-up in each division.

The events offered in this year's tournament include open singles and open doubles. "That is the division for the best players," said Willis, "then we have the A singles which is for the better players."

Events will include the open singles, open doubles, A, B and C singles as well as A and B doubles. Also, a mixed doubles match.

There will be separate classes for males and females and players may enter mixed doubles, one single and one doubles event only.

Entry fee is $6 per person per event plus an unopened can of solid yellow colored Penn or Wilson Championship tennis balls. Winner of the match keeps the unopened can and

Paintsville rocks "Rockers" in doubleheader sweep

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

The Kentucky Rockers, once unbeaten, boasted that the Paintsville Big League Team couldn't hold their bats as they played long ball in the fourth inning at Charlie Adkins Field.

But the Tigers used some lively bats and good baserunning to subdue the visitors in a doubleheader sweep. The Tigers took the first game 11-4 and won the nightcap 4-0. The twinbill sweep evened their record at 2-2. Paintsville lost a doubleheader to the Versailles team last Sunday.

The Rockers were rocking in the fourth inning of game one as they blasted two home runs to take a 3-0 lead off starter Jason Pinson. Hunter Burlew scored Jason Dale, who had led off with a double, with a long drive over the left field fence. Two outs later, Jeremy Richie drilled a solo shot in the same spot to make it 3-0.

Rocker starter Tony Spears had little trouble with the Tigers in the first three innings but Brad Scott put an end to things with a grand slam over the left centerfield fence to give his team a 8-3 lead.

Paintsville had already taken a 4-3 lead with some good hitting and baserunning before Scott's blast. Barry Hall started the rally with a leadoff double and Hater Riddle followed with a base hit. Hall scored on Pinson's RBI single.

Larry Vanhoose and Brent Hamilton walked with Jimmy Money scoring on Hamilton's bases-loaded walk. Brent Adams drove in a run with a single and Josh Hansford drew a walk to force in a run. Scott then delivered his slam and it was all Paintsville. Pinson had a double, his second hit in the inning.

Paintsville added their final three runs in the fifth when they collected five hits, starting with Hamilton's leadoff double. Justin Hall, Barry Hall and Riddle had RBI singles.

Pinson, who started for Paintsville, picked up the win, working the first four innings. He allowed four runs on three hits and fanned six batters while walking no one.

Hamilton relieved the former Sheldon Clark player in the fifth and allowed the Rockers only one hit over the final three innings. Kentucky did score against Hamilton in the sixth on two walks and Will Jones' run-producing single. Hamilton struck out four and walked three.

Spears suffered the loss for Kentucky in going the first 3 1/3 innings. Dunan relieved Spears and did not fair any better in the fourth, giving up four runs on three hits. Kincaid came on to get the Tigers out in the fifth and won the final two frames. He allowed the three runs in the sixth and gave up five hits.

The nightcap was not as much of a slugfest as the first outing. However, Greg Hunter was very impressive on the mound for Paintsville as he combined with P.D. Kincheloe to shutout the Rockers 4-0 on one hit.

Hunter picked up the win for the Tigers in working the first five innings. He fanned seven batters and did not walk anyone.

The lone Kentucky hit came in the fifth inning when Keith Ralser singled to center field. Hunter retired the first 10 batters he faced and struck out four of the first 10.

Harris tosses one-hitter as Rangers shutout Mets, 7-0

Kalen Harris fired a one-hit shutout and the Prestonsburg Mets committed five errors as the Prestonsburg Rangers won their tenth game of the season with a 7-0 shutout.

Harris struck out 10 batters and walked eight in the route-going outing. Brent Bentley got the loss for the Mets walking nine batters and fanning seven.

Todd Kidd had a third-inning double when the Rangers scored the first run. Brian Bowling doubled in the fifth and Drew Brown had a sixth inning double. Brown collected three hits for the game with Bowling and Kidd finishing with two each.

The Rangers scored one run in the fourth and two in the fifth for a 6-0 game. They plated their final run in the sixth.

The Rangers had dropped three games in a row before a win over the Mets snapped the streak.

Brown reached on an error in the first inning for the Rangers and then stole third. A throwing error by Mets' catcher Will Holbrook permitted Brown to score.

In the Rangers third, Kidd doubled, stole third and scored on Jon May's single. On a later play, Brown singled to right and Harris moved to third on an error and scored when Holbrook tried to cut down a runner going to second. The inning ended when Brown was called out for not sliding in an attempt to steal third.

The Rangers picked up their fourth run in the fourth on a walk to Josh Stone, who stole second, advanced to third on an error and scored on a Kidd's RBI single.

Harris had his bid for a no-hitter spoiled when Paul Wallen singled in the bottom of the fourth. However, Harris picked Wallen off at second base.

Brown singled and moved up a base on a sacrifice by Ricky Powers. He scored when Bowling doubled. The final run of the inning scored when Josh Shepherd drew a bases loaded walk scoring Bowling.

The Rangers put their last run on the board in the top of the sixth on a double by Brown that scored Harris who had walked.

It was the second complete game of the season for Harris and the Rangers' first shutout.

NATIVES ARE RESTLESS...

When you talk with the parents around Allen Central, especially those close to the football program, you can sense they are getting restless over the fact that a football coach has not been hired for the upcoming season.

Their patience with the Floyd County Board of Education is wearing thin and an array of folks are planning to attend the next board meeting so that their voice can be heard on the matter.

The opening at the school resulted when last year's head coach Dewey Jamerson decided not to return for the coming year. Camps need to be planned for the summer months as well as other duties that requires a head coach. Several parents (names withheld by request) are concerned that the program may die without someone taking charge soon.

Reports have it that whoever is considered for the position will have to have a degree in chemistry and math plus there must be an opening at the school for such a person.

Allen Central suffered rough seasons the past two years and will need someone to come in and build the program. The Rebels were 2-8 in 1991 and finished 0-10 last year.

Allen Central has had only one winning season and that was during the 1990 season when they finished 6-5.

The position at Allen Central is being advertised and must run for 30 days. According to Principal Jody Sward, two openings do exist at Allen Central.

"One is for a math-chemistry teacher and the other in special education," he said. "We have advertised the openings in Lexington and they will run until July 12. We, along with a screening committee of parents and teachers, will screen all the applications and then do the interviewing.

"Also we will consider any request from other schools in the county," said Sward.

The Allen Central principal indicated that the committee will be looking for someone who understands that the football program at Allen Central is still in its infancy.

"We also want to continue to play a varsity schedule and we will need someone that will come and build the feeder system through the grade school system or Little League football," said Sward.

"We want to be more competitive and the new coach needs to understand this. We have the parents there that are behind the football program."

Sward said that he has had some calls on the position but did not elaborate.

Right now, it is a wait and see situation.

NEW FIELD AT PAINTSVILLE IS

GREAT. If you haven't seen all the work that was done at the Paintsville baseball park you would be surprised.

Renamed the Charlie Adkins Field, the infield has been sodded and red crushed brick laid in the infield.

The folks in Paintsville should be very proud of the way the facility has been refurbished. The folks and officials in Johnson County stand ready to keep nice facilities for their kids and for that they are to be commended.

It sure would be nice to see the Allen Park field renovated in such a manner. The park has a lot of potential if some money was put into it to fix it up. It surely would be an ideal spot to host a high school regional baseball tournament. Why should Johnson County and Pike County always be the spot. I doesn't have to be that way if our park was fixed up.

Crushed brick around the infield would put us right there with other counties. We here in Floyd County could have something to be proud of also.

But our field has an illegal pitchers mound. The field is hard and rocky. The backstop wire is unsafe with protruding sharp points that a player could cut himself or get hurt on. We have no concession area or rest rooms along with water fountains.

The Little League field in is bad need of repairs as far as the lighting is concerned. We have electronic scoreboards now that have never worked. Take them down and get a "manual" Pepsi scoreboard.

I would love to see the Fiscal Court just take a real good look at the diamond area of the park and see the work that needs to be done.

The Allen baseball field could be

Wayland wins three in Beaver Creek Little League

The Wayland Dodgers kept pace with the Garrett Pirates in a race for first place in the upcoming Beaver Creek Little League Tournament that will start Monday at Martin and Mimie.

The Dodgers posted a 4-1 win over the Pirates this week as Brian Crawford went the distance, striking out 12. The win over the Pirates avenged an earlier loss to the Pirates at Wayland.

Wes Howard, who was the winning pitcher earlier, suffered the loss for the Pirates.

Garrett jump out to a 1-0 lead in the second inning as the two hurlers hooked up in a pitchers' duel. Rodney Bentley collected the only hit that Garrett would get off Crawford and scored on an error to give Garrett the lead.

Wayland tied the game in the top of the fourth on a double by Crawford and Eric Casbolt's RBI single. In the top of the sixth, Wayland pushed home three runs on a Crawford base hit, two walks and Eric Combs' two-run single. Byron Patton scored the third run when he stole home.

Crawford fanned the side in the bottom of the sixth inning for the win. Crawford and Combs both finished with two hits for the Dodgers.

Wayland rolled past the Martin Reds at Martin with a 19-4 win. Casbolt picked up the win for the Dodgers in a distance-going outing. He had 12 strikeouts in the game.

Crawford and Brandon Wireman each had three hits in the contest with Wireman driving in three runs. Crawford had two runs batted in.

Patton and Howell collected two hits each and Billy Thacker had two singles. The smallest, and prettiest, player on the field, Beth Combs, collected a base hit.

Wayland scored nine runs in the third inning to erase a 4-3 Garrett Cubs lead and went on to subdue the Cubs 13-8 in league play.

Control problems hindered Dodger starter Brandon Wireman. Wireman did not know if the plate had a strike zone as he gave up 19 walks in the game. He walked in seven of the eight runs scored against him. Why did he go so long?

"With the rules we have, you have to go with what you have to pitch," said Dodger coach Ronnie Patton.

While Wireman was looking for the strike zone his teammates provided him with plenty of offense. Crawford had three hits in the game, including a triple, while driving in two runs.

Patton also had a three-run triple in the nine run third. Combs and Thacker each doubled home a run while Oscar Short had a two-run double.

The Cubs did not collect a hit in the game.

Former ACHS student enters ring as promoter and wrestler

Ryan Shepherd "Ko Ko Warrior" by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

For Ryan Shepherd, it hasn't been that long since he graduated from Allen Central High School in 1991.

Shepherd is set to make his return to the Right Beaver school—not as a student but as a professional promoter and wrestler.

Shepherd has founded the American Wrestling Federation and will bring his show to the Allen Central gym on Friday, June 25 with some former WCW and WWF wrestling stars on the card.

But for Shepherd, he will be making his professional debut as a wrestler when he wrestles under the name of Ryan "Ko Ko Warrior" Shepherd. Shepherd says that he has been working out for his first match and it has been a bruising experience.

"I'm still sore in my shoulders from the workouts," he said. "I'm looking forward to getting in the ring with Chain Lightning and it will be tough match on the mat for me."

Shepherd entered the squared circle upon the encouragement of his friends and began working out with Mr. Success, who is part of the card on Friday night.

"Animal" Steele

Shepherd has his sights on building up a reputable show and wants to give the fans their money's worth while eliminating the "soap opera" effect.

"When the fans leave one of our matches, they will know they have seen a real match. We promise them a real good show."

Highlighting the event at Allen Central will be former WCW wrestler "Boogie Woogie Man" Jimmy Valiant. He will face challenger Ray Cooper. The second match will feature "Animal" Steele against "Mr. Success" Rick Newsome. Steele is best known for biting off the covers of turnbuckles and his fascination with Miss Elizabeth. Newsome is from the Virginia area and is a former wrestler in the WCW.

Danny Cooley will go against "Wild Thing" Bill Lee in a preliminary match. The ladies will be in action also as Candi James takes on Lexi Dawn. Dawn is a former International Champion.

Jimmy Valiant

Shepherd will get his taste of the ring when he faces Chain Lightning as "Ko Ko Warrior".

The match will be sponsored by the Left Beaver, Garrett and Wayland fire departments. Advance tickets are on sale now from any of the three fire departments. Ringside seats are $10 and general admission sells for $6.

Shepherd said any school, fire department or charitable organization that wishes to sponsor AWF Wrestling may contact him at 358-2136 for more information.

"We want to reach the local area first," said Shepherd. "We are going to be in Floyd, Johnson, Pike and Magoffin Counties."

While the AWF currently does not have any champions, a championship tournament is in the making. "We are looking for someone to sponsor the championship match," explained Shepherd. "If anyone is interested they should contact me."

If you are a big time wrestling fan and want to see some "hit 'em hard" wrestling then make plans to be at Allen Central High School on Friday, June 25.

Fitzpatrick's "slam" slams door on A's

The Prestonsburg Yankees played long ball in the sixth inning against the Prestonsburg A's Wednesday evening at Archer Park and stayed close to the Prestonsburg Cubs in a race for first place in the league as they posted a 15-11 win.

Ryan Fitzpatrick put an end to any hopes of an A's win when he and Eric Fleming hit home runs in the sixth to give the Yankees a 15-11 lead after trailing 11-7 going into the top of the frame.

The big blow was a grand slam by Fitzpatrick that finished the scoring in the inning. Fleming's four-bagger brought the Yankees back by to trail by one run, 11-10. He homered with Gabe Shepherd and Kyle Shepherd onboard. Both base runners had singled with one out.

After Fleming's blast, William Briggs walked and Daniel Bell singled. Briggs scored on Mike Stephens double. Ray Radloff walked to load the bases for Fitzpatrick's drive.

Both teams scored six times in the first inning with the Yankees taking a 6-0 lead in the top of the frame but watched the A's plate six in their half of the first.

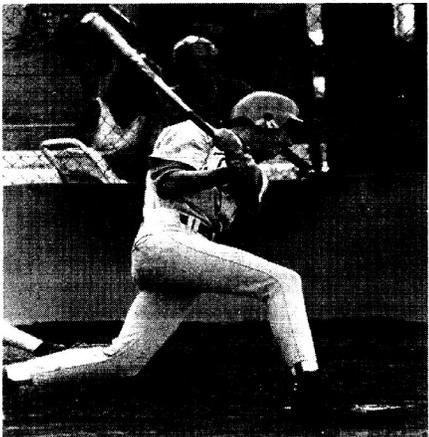

The Yankees failed to score in the second but the A's got two runs in the bottom of the inning for a 8-6 lead on a triple by Jesse Compton in the bottom of the second who scored on a passed ball. Michael Ousley walked, went to second on a wild pitch and scored on Brandon Ambergue's RBI double.

The Yankees recovered one run in the fourth for a 8-7 game on a leadoff double by Fitzpatrick, who stole home and scored on a wild pitch.

In the third, the A's struck for three more runs to make an 11-7 game as Compton hit a three-run home run with Robbie Holbrook and George Hall on the bases. Compton's round-tripper came off of Stephens who relieved Fleming in the inning.

Kyle Shepherd, who came on to pitch in the fourth was the winning pitcher working the final three frames. Jason Skeens fell victim to the Yankees' onslaught in the sixth and suffered the loss.

Roy Sturgill had a double for the Yankees getting two hits. Stephens collected three hits in the game and Fitzpatrick had two doubles to go with his slam. He had six RBIs in the game.

Murriell blanks Orioles; Astros over Dodgers

Rodney Bentley hammered a fifth inning home run to highlight the Garrett Pirates' fifth inning when they scored four times in the inning en route to a 10-0 whitewash of the Duff Orioles.

Brandon Murriell picked the win in shutting down the Orioles of coach Dennis Henson. Heath Scott suffered the setback.

Murriell struck out 11 batters in the game. He got the side on strikes in the third inning.

The Pirates took a 1-0 lead in the first when Ryan Manns singled, stole second and third before scoring on Murriell's RBI single. Murriell stole his way around to third base but was left stranded.

Murriell retired the first 15 batters he faced until Ivan Gunnels broke up the no-hitter and perfect game with a sixth inning single. Gunnell's hit was the only hit that Murriell had allowed.

Garrett scored two more runs in the second inning on a double by Francis and a base hit from Clark. The Pirates had five consecutive base hits off Scott in the inning.

Bentley homered with Ryan Owens and Wes Howard on base in the fifth inning. Murriell had a RBI single in the inning.

Garrett completed their scoring with two runs in the sixth inning.

Astros vs Dodgers

The Allen Astros took one step closer to the championship game of the Harold Allen-Peater (HAP) Little League tournament being played at Stumbo Park with a 24-5 defeat of the Harold Dodgers.

Scotty Walls had a second inning three-run home run as the Astros sent 16 batters to the plate, scoring 13 runs.

Seth Crisp collected three hits and drove in three runs while scoring three times. Nathan Leslie came up with two hits while Jesse Isaac got both his hits in the marathon second.

Chris Hall was the winning pitcher while the loss went to Brandon Brooks. Brooks had the only extra-base hit for the Dodgers as he double in the first inning. Michael Gross had an RBI base hit in the inning that scored Brooks.

The Dodgers scored twice in the first inning for a 2-0 game but the Astros came back with three in the bottom of the inning.

Harold tied the game at 3-3 in the second but the third proved disastrous for the Dodgers.
