Bypro man dies in one-car accident

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A 23-year-old Bypro man was killed Saturday night when the vehicle he was riding in struck a building at Melvin.

William T. Bailey died at McDowell Appalachian Regional Hospital just before midnight Saturday.

Bailey was riding in a vehicle operated by William J. Johnson, 16, also of Bypro. Johnson was transferred from McDowell ARH to the University of Kentucky Medical Center where he is listed in good condition.

According to the police report, Johnson lost control of the vehicle on Route 122 at Melvin and the vehicle skidded approximately 100 feet and struck a building.

The accident is under investigation by Kentucky State Police trooper Tim Mullins.

Fiscal court to hold special meeting

A special meeting of the Floyd County Fiscal Court has been called for Wednesday (today) at 9 a.m. at the courthouse annex.

The meeting is open to the public.

Former IRS agent picked for school job

A former Internal Revenue Service agent has been named chief of operations for the Floyd County school system.

James M. Osborne, a Floyd County native, was chosen from 70 applicants for a job which was created in a district-wide reorganization of the central office.

"I'm very excited about this position," Osborne said in a press release. "It will be a tremendous challenge. I will do the best I can to accomplish the goals set by the board and Dr. (Steve) Towler."

Floyd Superintendent Steve Towler said that Osborne's strong background as an auditor and manager was the deciding factor in his choice.

"Mr. Osborne's extensive experience auditing public funds weighed heavily in his favor," Towler said. "He has a solid background as a business manager and as a public servant."

Osborne's work history includes working for the IRS for the past two and a half years, working as a controller and administrative manager for Windfall Gold Corporation in Nome, Alaska from 1988-90, working as a financial examiner for the federal government from 1987-88, and as an audit supervisor for the Kentucky State Auditor's office from 1981-84.

Osborne is a graduate of Martin High School and served in the U.S. Army. After retiring from the Army as an intelligence sergeant, he earned an accounting degree from Eastern Kentucky University.

Osborne and his wife, Margie, live in Prestonsburg.

Betsy Layne parents object to project cut

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Opposition was voiced Saturday to the Floyd County Board of Education's vote last week to abandon the Betsy Layne 21-classroom addition project.

Charlotte Rogers, president of the school's parent-teacher organization, asked the board to reconsider its decision to cancel the classroom addition.

Rogers told the board that last week's decision to cancel the project caught parents "off-guard" and that they wanted the project to continue.

"It's not a matter of inconvenience, it's a matter of child safety," Rogers told the board. "We're not threatening civil disobedience. We are appealing to the Local Planning Committee (LPC) and the board to visit our school and take into consideration the building itself. There are a lot of safety hazards."

Rogers said she was not opposed to board member Brent Clark favoring a middle school in the area, but she said a grade school was also needed. The board voted last week to cancel the school building project and to ask the LPC to put the project on the district's four-year building plan.

Board member Bob Isaac, who also served as parent representative on the LPC, said the committee declined to address the issue because the group thought the project would be completed.

A group of Betsy Layne parents were expected to voice their concerns to a state hearing officer last night at the second public hearing on the school building plan.

At the end of Saturday's board meeting, hours after Rogers addressed

Commissioner's account varies from video of arrest incident

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A Wheelwright City Commissioner pleaded not guilty Tuesday to charges stemming from an altercation with city police officers that was captured on video tape early Saturday morning at the Wheelwright Cardinal Mart.

Commissioner Luther Johnson Jr., 39, appeared Tuesday with his attorney, Dan Rowland, before Floyd District Judge Danny Caudill for arraignment on six charges, including second degree assault on a police officer, stemming from Johnson's arrest Saturday morning.

Hard line adopted for school no-shows

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County School Board members adopted a strict attendance policy Saturday which they hope will reduce the system's dropout rate and boost attendance percentages.

Under the revised attendance policy, high school students who have unexcused absences for more than nine days per semester will not receive credits for classes missed.

Grade school students who have unexcused absences for more than 18 days per school year will not be eligible for promotion to the next grade level.

"It's a strong step forward," superintendent Steve Towler told the board. "We're trying to get the students who miss a lot of school. You'll get calls about this toward the end of the first semester when parents find out Johnny won't get a credit because he missed 25 days."

Students will have an opportunity to make up days missed by either attending Saturday school, after-school classes or summer school. If school work and days missed are not made up, the student will receive an incomplete grade which will be changed to an F for lack of performance.

Each school will have an appeals committee to review exceptional cases. Valid excuses will be reviewed by the committee and their decision will be binding.

Any further appeals can be made to the board of education.

Towler added that absenteeism is also a problem among school staff. Schools that have site-based decision making councils may adopt the board's attendance policy or form one of their own.

Board member Brent Clark suggested that attendance could be boosted if the school day began at 8:30 a.m. rather than 8 a.m.

Towler said that a study would have to be conducted on beginning the school day later to determine what effects it would have on the system's transportation department, parent's schedules and "a lot of things."

Board member Bob Isaac said the board should support the attendance policy until the end of the school year.

In other action Saturday, some board members apparently have changed their minds about moving the instruction department out of the central office to rental space in downtown Prestonsburg.

When the July regular meeting began Tuesday, board members rejected the proposal by a 3-2 vote. Board members Eddie Phillips and Bob Isaac voted for the move and board chairman Eddie Patton, members Brent Clark and Hattie Owens were not in favor of relocating the offices.

On Saturday, Patton said that "new information had come to light" and he felt the offices needed to be moved

Rape suspect is found guilty on contempt of court charge

A Floyd County man who was accused of accosting a female juror during his rape trial was found guilty of contempt of court Tuesday.

Cisco Neeley of Hueysville was given 14 days credit for time served after his arrest July 14 when he was accused of making lewd comments to a female juror during a recess at his rape trial.

Floyd Circuit Judge John Caudill

also ordered Neeley not to have any contact with the juror and that he report weekly to his probation officer until the disposition of his rape case.

Neeley was accused of choking and raping a 15-year-old girl on December 5. Neeley also allegedly threatened the girl with a gun.

No new trial date has been scheduled on the rape charge.

Luther Johnson Jr.

trict Judge Danny Caudill for arraignment on six charges, including second degree assault on a police officer, stemming from Johnson's arrest Saturday morning.

Rowland entered not guilty pleas on charges of alcohol intoxication, disorderly conduct, terroristic threatening, resisting arrest and harassment. Rowland asked that the felony assault charge be dismissed.

Judge Caudill denied Rowland's request and set a preliminary hearing for August 4 at 2:30 p.m. Judge Caudill told Rowland to file any motions pertaining to the case prior to the hearing. Johnson was allowed to remain free on a $15,000 unsecured bond.

Wheelwright Police Chief David Duncan was reportedly injured while arresting Johnson Saturday and Johnson allegedly threatened part-time police chief Brent Huff. Ac-

Ousley recognized at conference :

Bus boss is best in state

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

Monday was Earl Ousley day at the Floyd County school system's school bus garage. Balloons waved high from picnic tables set up in a concrete area outside the garage and hot dogs sizzled on a grill as school bus drivers, their families and other well-wishers arrived for the informal celebration.

Inside, Ousley, transportation director of the Floyd County system school, sat at a table and collected, while a computer-generated paper sign hanging on the wall behind him told what the fuss was about. It read: Earl Ousley — Transportation Director of the Year.

Although this day he appeared to take the honor in stride, Ousley was anything but calm last Wednesday morning when the announcement was made. He was attending a Kentucky Department of Education Association of Pupil Transportation Directors conference in Louisville when he was singled out among 176 transportation directors as the best in the state. "I was in a state of shock," he said. "We apparently have a model program here."

It is a transportation program that has made state school officials sit up and take notice.

According to Chris Gates, parts inventory supervisor for the school system, state department officials visited the garage in May to look over the unique computerized parts inventory system. The computerized program keeps up with garage inventory and bus expenditures on a daily basis. "They were well-impressed with it and recommended it to other Eastern Kentucky counties," Gates said.

In addition, Mike Roscoe, state director of pupil transportation, visited the garage at another time and "was impressed" with the transportation system as a whole — the bus routing system, driver training program and mechanic program, said Ousley.

In fact, at the conference "the parts inventory system was singled out by

McGuire files motion:

Judge Frazier asked to reconsider decision

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

An attorney for three former Floyd County school administrators has filed a motion asking Johnson Circuit Judge Stephen Frazier to reconsider his decision that the local school board did not violate the state's Open Meetings Law.

Judge Frazier refused to grant the administrators a temporary restraining order last week and ruled that school board had properly discussed and acted on reorganization plans in a closed session during meetings on March 25, 27, 30 and April 3.

Prestonsburg attorney Mickey Myers said McGuire, Jr., Tommy Thompson and Wayne Radtke whose jobs were eliminated under the plan. The three filed a civil lawsuit against the school board and superintendent Steve Towler asking the board's decision to implement the reorganization plan be voided. The suit also asked that a temporary restraining order be issued to allow the three to remain in their jobs.

Judge Frazier's decision said that the board was authorized to discuss the plan in closed session because litigation concerning the plan had been proposed.

Under the Open Meetings Law, a public agency can discuss proposed or pending litigation in an executive session.

At the March 25 meeting, McGuire handed out a proposed federal lawsuit against board member Eddie Billips he said he would file if the board did not adopt a reorganization plan proposed in January.

In his motion for Judge Frazier to reconsider the case, McGuire argued that the board cited discussions concerning personnel as a reason for a closed session, not litigation.

"The board has represented to this court that they announced the discussion of personnel, but, in fact, discussed litigation," McGuire's motion said. "If the school board announced they were going into closed session to discuss personnel and then went into executive session to discuss threatened litigation, they have lied to the public and violated the law."

In a response to McGuire's latest motion, board attorney Cliff Latta called McGuire's claims "a combination of speculation, conjecture and fantasy."

"The court's July 19... order decided as a matter of law that the plaintiffs were not entitled to a temporary restraining order because they were not suffering irreparable injury and they had an adequate remedy at law," Latta's response said.

McGuire's motion also says that the Floyd County Times has filed an appeal "as to a new violation" of the Open Meetings Law by the local board.

Latta claims that is inaccurate. "This is simply not true," Latta said in his response. "The Times has asked the Attorney General for clarification of the interpretation of KRS 61.810 (1) (b) since the passage of KERA. The defendants applaud the action of the Floyd County Times and welcome the advice and counsel of the Attorney General's office."

The Times has asked the Attorney General's office for an opinion concerning a school board's capacity to discuss personnel issues other than those positions allowed by Kentucky's Education Reform Act, Section (f) of the Open Meetings Law says that a public agency may go into closed session to discuss issues which could lead to the appointment, dismissal or discipline of an individual.

Under KERA, a school board member cannot become directly involved with the hiring or firing of school personnel other than the superintendent, board attorney and board treasurer.

At a July 14 special school board meeting, the media objected to the board's move to go into a closed session to discuss personnel which superintendent Steve Towler said could lead to "the appointment or non-appointment" of personnel.

The board met in closed session on the issue, but no action was taken. A hearing on McGuire's motion is set for Friday, August 6, at 9:30 a.m. in Johnson Circuit Court.

Project

The board, superintendent Steve Towler told that board the project had to be placed in the district building plan.

Clark moved that the project be placed as priority number one for the next project after building a middle school in the South Floyd area. Clark added that the plan could be changed if the board decided the project should be moved up on the priority list.

LPC chairman Judy Sword told the board that if the plan was approved it could delay new school construction.

Isaac agreed and said that to be fair the entire LPC plan needed to be looked at before making a change.

Board chairman Eddie Patton said the board appeared to be "standing pat" on their decision.

Clark's motion passed by a 3-1 vote, with Isaac voting no. Board member Eddie Billips had to leave Saturday midway through the meeting and did not vote.

The school board has already spent over $450,000 on the Betsy Layne project. Expenses include site preparation, architect and construction manager fees and engineering costs.

In other action, Superintendent Towler said that the board had to be disappointed about the settlement made last Tuesday by board member Eddie Billips.

Billips said last week that he would not vote for pay raises for the teachers. The board department has been asked to look for a way to pay the teachers without a raise. He said he was requested to do a year ago. He cited science labs at Prestonsburg High School. Some lab situations either have inadequate painting or no water and that some drains have been stopped up for at least a year.

Hershel Conn, maintenance employee, told Billips Saturday that their department was being discriminated against and that it was not their fault repairs haven't been made at all schools.

Conn said that it was his duty to be honest to the public. He said he needed repairs done at all schools. He said he was not going to be discriminated against and that he was not their fault repairs haven't been made at all schools.

Ousley

Rose Ousley, best partying girl in the state of Kentucky, has been named the 1993 "Party Girl of the Year" by the state's leading party magazine, "Party Girl."

As transportation director, Ousley oversees approximately 100 people who work directly or indirectly in this department. Ousley is a busy day in the life of a party girl.

Ousley is quick to give credit to the department's success to his fellow workers. Ousley is a very hard worker and is always willing to help others. Ousley is a very hard worker and is always willing to help others.

"Until I get a clear understanding why repairs are not done, I stand by my vote," Billips said. "I don't feel I can vote an across the board raise until I get some information. I have no concept where the breakdown is and I don't have any reason to doubt what you say. But, until we get the problem corrected, I'll not back down."

Former building and grounds director Frank Francis said that something was missing in the line of communication. Francis said it was up to school personnel to keep their schools clean and that maintenance workers were to do major repairs.

Board chairman Eddie Patton said that maintenance personnel were doing a good job and that mental communication appeared to be the problem.

The board voted last week to defer all raises in that department until a report is received from Naim Inc. which is conducting an extensive review of that department.

In other school board action, the board voted to accept a proposal for a new school building.

New health services coming to area

An Indiana diagnostic health care service plans to expand its services into Floyd County.

Precis Medical Diagnostic Services of Evansville, Indiana has proposed to expand its existing mobile X-ray, EKG and Holter (long-term EKG) monitoring services to 34 Kentucky counties, including Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties.

The services will be offered to nursing homes, personal care homes, home health agencies, correctional facilities and private corporations.

No capital expenditure is involved. The interim office of Health Planning and Certification is considering the health care proposal under a non-substantive review.

Non-substantive review expedites the formal review process required for a certificate of need. Such review can be granted in certain cases as specified by statute and regulation.

Persons affected by the proposed change under review may request a public hearing on the application. Requests must be submitted in writing by July 29 to Richard Carroll, Chief Hearing Officer, Interim Office of Health Planning and Certification, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort, KY 40621.

The interim office plans to complete its review by August 23.

McKinney named to Who's Who

He will be included in the 1993 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges," an annual directory of outstanding students first published in 1934.

A campus nominating committee and editors of the publication have included the name of this student based on his academic achievements, community service, leadership in extra-curricular activities and potential for continued success.

He joins an elite group of students selected from institutions of higher learning in all 50 states, the District of Columbia and several foreign nations.

Local student named to Dean's list

Eric Crow from Becksville has been named to the winter/spring Dean's list at Centre College.

Crow, a junior, is the son of Ernest and Mary Crow. He also was named to the Dean's list for the fall semester of his junior year.

Centre issues two dean's lists each academic year, one based on grades during the fall term and the other based on the grades of the winter and spring terms combined. The dean's list is limited to those students whose grade average over the appropriate period is 3.60 or higher.

Founded in 1819, Centre is a private, liberal arts college with an enrollment of about 950 students.

That's why at King's Daughters' Medical Center, we've taken "great pains" (and put forth a lot of effort) to make sure the doctors you need are here for you. Doctors who have studied at prestigious medical centers. Doctors who know and perform the most up-to-date medical procedures. ## Video cording to the arrest citation, Duncan said that Johnson hit him in the stomach and that while trying to subdue Johnson, Duncan twisted his leg and lower back.

Saturday's incident was videotaped by a "silent partner," which is a video camera installed in police cruisers to document arrests.

At a special called Wheelwright City Commission meeting Monday, announced prior to Saturday's incident, Johnson, who was wearing a sling on his left arm, claimed he was set up by police officers because he refused to vote to hire Duncan full-time at a special meeting last Thursday.

At last Thursday's meeting, Duncan told the commission that he had made a complaint to the attorney general's office concerning Commissioner Allen Taylor.

Duncan said Thursday that Taylor had told him prior to the May primary election that if he did not support former police chief Charles Harmon in his race for constable, he would lose his job.

Taylor, who has a hearing problem and who often cannot hear discussions at meetings, was present at Thursday's meeting.

When an audience member shouted to him that "Duncan was talking about you," Taylor made no comment on the allegations.

Duncan also said that Mayor Kenneth Johnson would not turn over police equipment to the department.

Concerning Saturday's altercation, Luther Johnson said he went to the Cardinal Mart to buy a pack of cigarettes and that he saw the two officers whispering as he came out of the convenience store. The commissioner said the two officers asked him if he had been drinking and he said "no."

"I Huff pulled out his night stick and said 'you're going to jail,'" Johnson said Monday. "I told him he was not taking me to jail because I was not drunk. If I had been drunk, I would've went to jail. Why didn't they arrest me for DUI when I got out of the car? They had the camera on me the whole time. I was set up."

The videotape of the arrest, however, contradicts Johnson's account of the incident.

At the beginning of the tape, Johnson is not seen, but he is heard, talking with officer Huff about recent police activity in the city. Huff is heard trying to persuade Johnson to leave the premises.

After a short time, the camera shows Johnson, who is sitting on the edge of the police cruiser, and the officers. The film shows Johnson start to curse at the officers and then Huff telling Johnson he is being taken into custody.

Johnson refuses to be taken, starts cursing at the officers and the three men begin a struggle.

On video, officers wrestle with and then hold Johnson down on the hood of the cruiser. He is eventually handcuffed and placed in the police cruiser. Johnson is heard saying the handcuffs are too tight and Duncan offering to take and eventually loosening the handcuffs.

Johnson said Monday that his brother, Russell, helped put the handcuffs on him, but that does not appear on the tape. Russell Johnson is shown in the background.

"They weren't going to hit me with no night stick," Johnson said Monday. "I got mad as any individual would. I did not hit Duncan intentionally. They twisted my arm behind my back and threw me upon the hood of the car. I think the police chief was doing his best to hurt me. We don't need two people as police who a 140 pound man can whip."

Commissioner Johnson said that he intended to file charges against Duncan and Huff.

In a related issue, following Monday night's special city commission meeting, auxiliary policeman David Gray resigned from the department, apparently leaving the city without police protection.

Chief Duncan is off work due to his knee injury after Saturday's altercation with Johnson. Huff, who is taking a 10-week police training course in Richmond, returned to his classes Monday.

Gray was the city's only other policeman.

Also Monday, commissioners voted 3-2 to return control of the police department to Mayor Kenneth Johnson.

Commissioner Lowell Dean Parker was the supervisor for the police department, but Monday Commissioner Johnson moved that the department be given back to the mayor. Parker and Commissioner Andy Akers voted against the move. Parker and Mayor Johnson engaged in a somewhat heated verbal exchange during the discussion. Parker objected to the proceedings concerning who would supervise the police department.

Parker said that Commissioner Johnson and Mayor Johnson should not vote on the issue because of the Saturday morning altercation.

"There's things going on here that ought to never go on," Parker said.

Parker was named to oversee the city's parks and recreation department, but he resigned that position later in the meeting. Parker said that he didn't have time to supervise that department because he needed to concentrate on his race for mayor of the city.

Commissioners also voted to go into closed session to discuss city police personnel issues.

Commissioners returned a short time later and Mayor Johnson reported that no action would be taken on personnel issues.

"As far as I can see, nothing was accomplished," Mayor Johnson said. "A few things were discussed, but nothing was settled."

Also Monday, commissioners voted to hire Roman Caudill to answer the telephone and dispatch for the police department.

Parker abstained from voting on the issue.

New construction projects planned by Floyd County

July marks the height of construction season for the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet and highway workers throughout the state. The newest projects include the placement of blacktop resurfacing along a 0.3 mile section of Upper Wheelwright Road (KY-306) and the placement of blacktop patching along a 1.8 mile section of Town Branch Road (KY-3384).

The projects will total $35,506, which will be funded through the state's Rural Secondary Account. The account is made up of gasoline tax revenues and distributed to each county throughout the year based on land size, rural road mileage and population. Both projects will be completed through the award of contracts.

Stuck in reverse

by Scott Perry

Political powerbrokers who have no business sticking their noses into the Floyd County schools' business of employing the best people for top administrative jobs are said to be pressuring board members to hire their cronies for top slots.

If those reports are true, it's apparent that some folks are having a difficult time raising themselves out of the pre-KERA slime.

It's also apparent they have little understanding of, or respect for, the law.

Had they done their homework, they would have known that lobbying board members for favors concerning the hiring of school personnel is a waste of time.

State law prohibits school boards from participating in the hiring process for any school employees other than the superintendent, the board attorney and the board treasurer.

The system superintendent has exclusive control over the hiring and firing of all other school employees.

Board members who attempt to intervene or influence personnel decisions are subject to removal.

Beyond the legalities, there is also a question about what would motivate an inept school politician to attempt to influence school personnel decisions.

You don't need a master's degree to figure that one out.

Political cronyism in our educational system has long been the source of power. It has also been the root of its evil.

Fortunately for the children, new laws are attempting to break the stranglehold politics has held on their educational futures.

And, to their credit, local board members have apparently resisted the efforts to drag them back into the political mire.

The superintendent is the last line of defense against a backslide into the dark ages of political domination.

Unfortunately, some people continue to live in the past, when politics and the power it offered meant more than the quality of education our schools provided.

Same name, wrong person

Editor:
Local taxes and garbage bills have been mentioned quite frequently in the Floyd County Times lately. As an educator, I realize the importance of these citizen obligations and, though a widow with two children, do manage to pay my taxes and public utility bills.

In short, I am NOT the Janice Mitchell who was listed on your delinquent property taxes rolls nor am I the Janice Mitchell from Prestonsburg who recently applied for a marriage license in Pike County.

Angry at tax collection process

Editor:
I always have and always will pay my taxes on time. And it makes me very mad to be accused of not paying my taxes. This letter is to address Mr. Lowell Hall and his staff. The problem is, I bought a mobile home in May 1992. At the last of 1992, I never received a tax bill. I didn't want my taxes to be delinquent, so in March of this year I went to the tax commissioner's office and inquired as to why I never received a bill. The lady in the office told me I didn't owe any taxes, as I didn't own the property on January 1, 1992. So, I never gave any thought to the taxes again.

On July 17, 1993, I received a letter from the tax office saying delinquent taxes of $125 were due. Monday morning the 19th, I went to the tax office. The lady in the office was very rude to me. (I am a tax payer and a voter. I shouldn't have to take this very rude and unprofessional behavior from someone that my tax dollars is paying.) She said no, I really didn't owe the taxes, but the taxes were due on my property. I offered to give her the new address of the people I bought the property from and should would not take the address. She said she was not up to me to pay for the taxes and that I should be thankful that she is letting me know that taxes are due. I told her yes I would have been thankful if she would have told me this in March. But in March, she said I didn't owe any taxes and not to worry about it.

Now, something in the tax system is wrong—if I don't owe a tax bill, why send me a bill? Why, in May of 1992 when me and my wife and the couple we bought the home from were at the courthouse signing the papers to have the title changed, was nothing said about taxes?

Like I said, I'm a voter and I'm at the polls every election day to vote. But I will never vote for you, Mr. Lowell Hall again, simply because of your rude staff. Maybe we need a new tax commissioner as apparently Johnson County did. Mr. Hall, you need to have a staff meeting with your people or maybe you all need to take some communication classes. And you really need to find a better way of collecting taxes. I will pay taxes I owe, but I'm not paying taxes others owe.

Response to "Professional Reader"

Editor:
Kim's Korner is a small article in a small town newspaper. This article often reflects occurrences in its writer's life that cause her to laugh, cry, or sit down and think. I don't feel this article is intended to be an epitome of journalistic genius.

I feel this article adds local flavor, good humor and down home personality to this paper.

Kim writes about things she knows and care about. She does not try to make any kind of social commentary. Why should she?

As for Teresa Moore, the "Professional Reader," I find it hard to believe she's a professional anything as she sits on her "throne" in Cape Coral, Florida.

For anyone to be appalled and flabbergasted by an article in the Lifestyles section of the Times is ridiculous. Does this woman watch the world news at night?

Oh well! It's impossible to please everyone. One thing for sure, there's a few birds down in Cape Coral with smiles on their beaks because they got a chance to read Kim's Korner.

Appalled by reader

Editor:
My friends and I are appalled by the letter from "Professional Reader." Kim's Korner is our favorite part of the Floyd County Times.

She often reminds us of episodes of our child rearing days.

We sure hope Kim gets a salary, because she brightens our Wednesdays each week. A smile or a chuckle is worth a fortune.

Keep it up Kim!

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

We tend to get a nervous twitch every time we read a story about what the federal government plans to do to stimulate the nation's economy.

It's kind of hard to get real enthusiastic about proposals offered by our country's top management when you take their track record into account, which, at last count, accounted for about four trillion bucks worth of debt.

One of the most interesting and common characteristics among those who would guide our economic ship is that few have had any practical experience in sailing.

We should require all future leaders of our federal bureaucracy to prove that they once worked for a living before we give them the power to ruin our lives.

The federal probe of legislative influence peddling on racing issues, also known as BOPTROT, seems to be shifting its focus to the area of health care, specifically legislation which benefited Humana, Inc., one of the state's largest providers.

Don't know how the media will dub the latest investigation (MediAid is already taken) but it's a sure bet they'll give it some kind of cool, modern, acrostically correct title.

Meanwhile, state officials are launching an investigation of their own into the state lottery following a critical audit of that organization. The lottery board has quit, at the request of the governor, and authorities have been asked to look into possible criminal activities.

While the Humana issue and the lottery probe have no relevance to one another, they do offer the opportunity to play the name game with a catchall title for these and other investigations into allegations of official wrongdoing in Kentucky.

Lot O' Nausea

Amazing stories.

An Associated Press item reported Monday.

"Documents show nearly every move Phil Gramm, R-Texas, made was motivated by political aspirations, a Dallas newspaper reported."

Holy mackerel. Is that some profound news, or what?

A U.S. Senator motivated by political aspirations?

My God, what has this country come to?

Of course if you replaced Gramm's name in the story with a blank, you could probably fill in the names of any one of 99 other Senators, whose political aspirations dominate their every waking breath.

So, what makes Gramm stand out in the crowd?

He's a likely presidential candidate in '96.

An interesting analogy has risen with the flood waters along the Mississippi and the fact that so many people have been disconnected from their usual source of clean, fresh drinking water.

While the victims of flooding are most certainly suffering, their plight is only temporary.

But, for nearly three of every ten people on this planet, including many in Eastern Kentucky, access to potable water is non-existent.

You don't miss the water 'til the well runs dry (or flood waters knock out the water plant).

Some folks, sadly enough, have never had it to miss.

Rarely does an Act of Congress go by that doesn't cost money, but some states are taking the bull-headed by the horns by inviting their congressional contingents to come home and explain themselves.

At least 16 states have laws on their books which invite their U.S. Senators to joint sessions of their respective legislatures to explain why costly federal mandates have been imposed on states without federal dollars to pay for them.

These mandates, like the Clean Water Act and the Americans With Disabilities Act will cost states billions of dollars to implement without the assistance of federal funding.

Kentucky ought to have a similar "consultation law" but with a twist. Instead of inviting Congressmen to explain the whys and hows of expensive federal mandates, they ought to be required to come home and face the music, before they are allowed to vote on the issue in Washington.

Most of us don't know what our government is doing until it's already done. By then their hands are usually well into our pockets.

Keep the laughs coming

Editor:
This letter comes in regard to Teresa Moore's in last Wednesday's paper.

Trash, poor trash is all I can say. I hope Kim doesn't feel betrayed by this newspaper. If one would, she's written quite some time for you, I know, I've followed her column.

Go back to your throne Moore, and stay there.

Keep those laughs coming to us, Kim, we'll be watching for them.

Mother responds to "Professional Reader"

Editor:
First of all, I want to answer your question as to "who is she?"

Number one, she is my daughter. I am very proud of her and what she has accomplished in writing this small article for this small town newspaper. I never go out without running into someone who mentions her articles and how much pleasure they get out of them.

Kim's only claim to fame is that she is a very loving, caring, giving person with a personality which allows her to write an article of this nature. As most of us in Floyd County and the surrounding counties know, we can always get a smile, a chuckle or a sad remembrance of things past from her column.

The Floyd County Times, like the Paintsville Herald who has Sarah Hopson who writes "Smile Awhile" and Melene Davis who writes for the Lexington-Herald Leader, all write about family, friends and everyday happenings. If "Professional Reader" reads her own local Florida paper, I'm sure she will find that there is a lady in her town who does the same thing.

It's evident to me that you don't read too much or you would know that with all the bad news, these three ladies in our area are like a breath of fresh air and are considered somewhat of a celebrity in their respective towns.

To ridicule Kim by saying "Believe me, it will get a laugh in Florida." Do you think Floridians are above a good laugh or just you. You appear to me to be a very shallow person because if as you say, you are a native of Prestonburg and have read the Floyd County Times for years, you would know that Kim does mention, quite often in fact, very prominent people of the area and I for one am sure this paper will hear from quite a few of them that find your objections of Kim's Komer more than meets the eye.

Are you one of the people who wasn't popular in school and has since succeeded elsewhere? If so, let Kim know about your accomplishments and I'm sure she can make room for you in her small column as Mr. Perry granted you space to try and degrade and criticize Kim's Komer. I for one, in your words was "appalled and flabbergasted" that Mr. Perry allowed this so I'm eager to see if my daughter's supporters get their letters to the editor published.

Your attack on my daughter hurt me for her but as the old saying goes, sticks and stones may break my bones but Teresa M. Moore's words cannot hurt—my daughter.

Patricia VanLoose
Paintsville

Mother-in-law defends daughter-in-law's column

Editor:
Dear "Professional Reader," who are you? My unprofessional opinion is this: You are a transplanted hillbilly who speaks only for yourself. Being as close to Kim (of Kim's Komer) as I am, I know personally that she has a tremendous reading audience. From comments I overhear weekly, I know that many readers relate wholeheartedly to her experiences in everyday life that she shares with them.

What else would Kim write about except the things she knows and cares most about, her family, her friends and her community? Kim has never claimed to be a journalist, but she certainly has a flair for expressing her humor, her joys and her sadness. We sometimes laugh, or just grin with tongue in cheek at her articles; and sometimes we cry. It takes a pretty good writer to move us to some sort of emotion. Here is, for the most part, a column meant to entertain and make one smile. While we all appreciate those who make the Dean's List or graduate, this does not amuse; simply informs. And classified ads, who laughs or cries at them? Each article in the paper has its own place. Kim's Komer reflects it. It gives us a break from "interesting," depressing, morbid headlines.

There's a game of sorts in our little circle of family and friends. When the paper comes out, one of the first things we do is quickly turn to Kim's Komer to see who she "spilled the beans on" this week. Then we read the paper.

Ms. Teresa Moore, whoever you are, do you have any specific cause other than Kim bashing? Is there a personal vendetta? It seems that Kim's Komer has aroused yet another emotion—anger! Have you ever taken the time to write a letter to your editor concerning important issues such as the homeless of America or perhaps saving the precious Everglades of your adopted state? Get a cause...get a life.

Who am I? Kim's mother-in-law.

Judy Fields
Allen

Columnists provide wealth of information

Editor:
Ms. Teresa Moore of Cape Coral, Florida, asks the rhetorical questions of Kim; e.g., "Kim's Komer: 'Who is she?' Why do we care about a cheerleader who thinks she has a hand for journalism." Let us turn this around and ask who cares about a self-appointed "professional reader" and her opinion of Kim. And for me, I could care less about whatever will float a laugh in Cape Coral.

Yet, I snicker behind my hand to observe that Ms. Moore conspires our Kim for the trivia of her column; while she reports to us that her bowel movement afforded her the opportunity to sit on her throne and read the newspaper. This causes me concern as the Floyd County Times is a bi-weekly newspaper. Ms. Moore does not make it clear if her bowel movements depend on the arrival of the paper. And-gasp-I am simply destroyed to learn from Ms. Moore that a fellow creeker or hillbilly failed to pass inspection by "my mother and friends."

The Lord preserve us and keep us—what are we to do? Will our Kim be banished to a life of silence and meditation in a convent.

I read Kim's Komer and enjoy it. It is light and fluffy and most often concerns problems I never encountered. Many of my generation were caught up in the grim business of war (Korea) and never knew the problem of being a cheerleader or the parent of a cheerleader. I never had the opportunity to participate in school sports—yet I almost always read everything that Mr. Ed Taylor writes. I learn from him about the politics of sports, of individual young men and women players, of coaches, and school officials—things I would never know otherwise. Does anyone care when Mr. Taylor describes the hopes, the fears, the supreme effort of some boy or girl athlete from Betsy Layne or Prestonsburg or else where. I care—and so am able to become a part of that which he writes about.

Mr. Clyde Pack's column so closely describes my own childhood that I could probably see him and win. He often massages latent memories of a childhood, of friends and events gone down the days of time.

Sarah Hopson writes with the grace and dignity of a loving person—one able to express her deep feelings for friends and neighbors as well as the culture of our beloved hills. I will always remember her moving tribute to Brother Stratton—whom I also knew.

The young authors program stand out also. I deplore the thought of fighting chickens and roosters but learned a great deal about it from the excellent article by Shawn Williams.

Twice weekly—some would pun "twice weekly." The Floyd County Times provides a wealth of information to its readers. Sometimes we learn from Kim that her daughter made the cut for cheerleader; from Ed Taylor, that some boy or girl, despite extreme hardship, made the A team; from Clyde Pack about a long ago feisty squirrel dog able to dance on its hind legs while rolling bugler cigarettes; or from Shawn Williams that his rooster won a mortal battle in the pit. They are a part of my world and my world is richer because of them. I do not care if I or we pass, "my mother and friends" inspection in Cape Coral, Florida.

Indeed, I learned from Ms. Moore's letter. Clutching the Floyd County Times in one hand and my galoshes in the other, I hobnobbed off my throne screaming to my wife, "See, women read newspapers in the job also." It was a day of triumph for me.

Gun control craze, a dangerous farce

by James J. Fotis

The good people of this nation are scared. And rightfully so. Headlines and news broadcasts everywhere offer the same startling mayhem: Murder. Rape. Carjacking. Assault. Robbery. Some think we're back to the Old West again, where everyone needed a gun.

Not so. The Old West was far safer. Old West violence was primarily limited to clashes with bandits, foreign nations or along frontiers.

This is not to say we should all start carrying guns in holsters again. But as history shows, the answer is not in disarming citizens either.

Unfortunately, public fear is creating misguided and ineffective gun control laws. Politically motivated police chiefs and police commissioners create the mistaken impression that police officers on the street support such laws.

for employee safety.

"Legally, we could be negligent if someone got hurt," Patton said.

Owens' feelings on the issue did not change and she said that as long as students are in old, dilapidated buildings, she could not vote for new office space.

"My child sits in school every day and watches the ceiling fall," Owens said.

Owens suggested that the central offices be housed in old school buildings that have been abandoned.

Towler said that it would be expensive to renovate the old school buildings.

Clark jumped into the discussion saying that there "is a bad atmosphere" in the district's central office and workers connive against themselves.

"You need to work together for the kids," Clark said. "It's hard for us as board members to vote for you all for anything. It's up to you all to straighten out the bad vibes."

Clark said workers acted "afraid" when he walked into the central office and that some employees "churn out rumors to cause upheaval throughout the school system."

"Certain people feel you connive against yourselves and you deserve what you get," Clark said. "If you're going to do that, for what purpose? I don't know. We can start anew. You need to get together and work together."

Francis Francis, director of student services, told Clark that "you can't put a stop to rumors" and that he needs to be told when employees are doing their jobs. Francis added that people who don't do their jobs should be reprimanded.

Chairman Patton commented, "the only thing this board can do is hold the superintendent accountable for people doing their jobs and we will do that."

The board voted 4-1 to lease office space for a one-year period with a provision that "the absolute minimum" be spent on office furniture. Owens voted against the motion.

Also Saturday, the board heard from Delores Dingus, who complained about the treatment of special education students and their parents.

Dingus, who has a child with Down's Syndrome, said parents of special education students are treated poorly by administrative personnel. Dingus asked for more cooperation between administrators and parents. She also complained that in many of the teaching units there are not telephones or intercoms in case of emergencies.

"All these children have health problems," Dingus told the board. "There was no intercom in the room when my child went into cardiac arrest. They had to send a father to get to a telephone. Teachers also need CPR training. A child can die in the blink of an eye."

Dingus also said that during a hearing concerning her child, one school administrator remarked, "She thinks her son is a genius, she doesn't know he's retarded."

Chairman Patton told Dingus that he "didn't appreciate" school personnel talking to her that way and he encouraged her to file a formal complaint.

Patton instructed Towler to make sure parents are contacted and allowed to be more involved at the school level concerning their children.

Dingus also asked that the board work to implement programs to teach special needs students skills related to jobs.

In other business Saturday:

* The board heard from Libbi Hall who is spearheading the district's alternative education school. Hall reported that new programs are being developed to be implemented at the alternative school which she felt would help problem students be able to return to a regular classroom setting. Hall said the school will not be a dumping ground for problem students. Chairman Patton asked that board receive a monthly briefing on activities at the school.

* The board heard from adult education paraprofessional Joyce Hall that state funding for the Adult Basic Education program is expected to be diverted to the David School. Hall said if that if the money is diverted, several employees in the program would lose their jobs. Hall told the board that it would cost $20,000 to continue funding the program. Patton asked that a formal complaint concerning the funding cut be made to the Kentucky Department of Education. Board member Eddie Phillips asked finance officer David Johnson to put the money in the current budget and determine what would need to be cut in order to fund the program. Johnson is to present his report to the board at August meeting.

* The board approved policy revisions concerning extended employment for site based decision making schools which would allow those schools to develop unique salary schedules, a revision that vacation days be counted down contract days, and a revision that would grant certified employees three personal days and classified employees two days.

* The board awarded service contracts for security, elevator inspections, fencing, telephones, grass cutting and food service supplies.

Remembrances of James J. Carter

Editor:

This article may appear quite long, but I ask that you print it. The subject is about someone who not only was a personal friend, but also one who was a servant to his community and nation.

On 3 October 1988, he addressed a letter to me recalling the names of many of our mutual friends in Prestonsburg—several gone and others yet living. He said:

"We often reminisce about when you lived in Prestonsburg on Maple Avenue; you and Edgar; Frank and John Heinze; Louis Harkey Mayo and brothers Dick Edgar and Walker Porter, Jr.; Arthur Johns and William Thomas Archer; Rev. Cottrell, Essall and Roland Burchett; Freddie James; Bill and Jack Jones. Then on Graham Street there were David Darwin May, James William and Jack Salisbury, Billy Callahan, Second Avenue (now Arnold Avenue), there were Winston Burke, Bill Baker, Edmond and Lucien; Leo, Jack and "Muck" Carter; Babe and Bunk Friend; Bill Arnold and Jodie Spradlin, James and Billy Morrell; Jack and Dick and Geraldine Allen; Sam and Jimmy Hatcher, "Little Joe," Walter Scott and Monty Scott Harkins. Then there were: James and Lucien Lafferty; John Calvin Hopkins who lived on the hillside above town; Oliver Hanson Stumbo; Harold, Lex and Eugene Holcomb, Adrian and Ray Collins; Lon, Mary and Joe Hill; John and Ralph Archer; Fred, Bob and "Little Huck" Francis, and others I just can't remember or think of at the present time."

"Sometimes one wishes to recall the days of 'Cowboys and Indians,' shynapping up trees, hide-and-go seek, tracking, snipe hunting, playing with little toy cars on the river bank, etc., and those times were wonderful to remember. Sadly, some of them never grew up or advanced to some late age in life. It was grievous to learn of the death of Carhel Hill Smith whose submarine was sunk in the Pacific during World War II. But we all grew up together in a close-knit community, and together our lives were enriched in lasting friendships."

"Though many have moved away, as you, or have since died, their memories are etched in our minds. We are all richer for knowing and having known one another. God Bless you, our Friend..."

A few weeks before his death, I saw him in a Lexington hospital. Although his leg had been amputated, he still seemed as jovial as I had known him in childhood. He was still happy with those unlost days of our early growing-up years and said they were times to never be forgotten. Somehow, I sensed an unexpressed knowledge that he knew his downward steps were numbered; that his life was ebbing slowly toward eternity: "God, in his healing way, takes care of us." The room was still and we were alone. But he never knew that I was uttering a final muted prayer. And now, my eternal friend, God's servant and devoted patriot, James Joseph Carter, rests with the ages of time.

1993 BLUEGRASS GAMES...
The Ninth Annual Bluegrass State Games is history now but the Games get more exciting every year. Especially when they continue to add other sporting events to the already large list.

One has to wonder how long the city of Lexington can continue to fill the needs of the Games. It was almost impossible to get rooms in the city because of the large number of people that registered. All the motels were full and the eating places were crowded also. You can say one thing. It certainly was good for the city's economy.

This was my fourth trip to Lexington to cover the games. I always like to go out early to Commonwealth Stadium on Friday when the athletes are making their way there to check in. I enjoy talking with the folks that are there and take in all that the Games staff has planned.

There seem to be fewer senior citizens centers taking part in the Games. I remember when they had over 3,000 but I believe that less than 2,000 took part this year. Two of the finest folks at the games were Marianne Blodgett and Darlene Easterwood who handle media relations for the games. These two ladies are appreciated by all the press. They do an excellent job and I know their job is not easy.

Parking around Shively Field was hard to find and several people had to park at Commonwealth Stadium and walk.

Here are some facts on this year's Games:

• About 18,486 persons from 111 Kentucky counties participated in the Games.

• Former University of Kentucky basketball player Jamal Mashburn was the guest athlete at the opening ceremonies and officially kicked off the games by lighting the Bluegrass State Games flame.

• Fayette County racked up the largest number of medals with 834 followed by Jefferson County with 540. Floyd County brought home 16 medals.

• The individuals who won the most medals were Amy Tuttle and Andy Tuttle of Scott County with 14 each.

• There were 5,848 persons that played softball this year. That was 344 teams.

• The largest individual sport was track and field with 942 participants.

It was a great weekend in Lexington. I traveled from one end of the city to the other in trying to cover as much as I possibly could. Also taking place was the Babe Ruth state baseball tournament at Veteran's Park in Lexington. I had a chance to cover the first game that our Floyd County team played. It made for a long day but I enjoyed every bit of it. I'm looking forward to next season.

CONTRARY TO RUMORS...

A basketball coach has not been hired as of yet (Tuesday) at South Floyd High School. Rumor had it that Jim Rose has been selected for the job but applications are still being taken by the school board.

Rose is one of the applicants for the job as well as about five others. He was a successful coach at Knott County Central, finishing two state tournament teams. Stay tuned!

KIWANIS GOLF OUTING...

Teddy Hall tells me that there will be prizes galore at this year's Kiwanis golf outing this Saturday at the Jenny Wiley Golf Course. He also told me that we off time has been changed from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. Players are to gather at 9 a.m. for the event.

A conflict with a family reunion and the use of the course are reasons for the change of time.

Pizza and drinks will be provided for the event.

Good luck to the Paintsville Big League team at the state.

Until Friday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

Record numbers turn out for opening of Bluegrass Games

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Commonwealth Stadium, on the campus of the University of Kentucky, was very active Friday night as a record number of athletes and spectators gathered for the opening ceremonies of the 1993 Bluegrass State Games. Over 16,000 converged on the home of the Kentucky Wildcats' football team to take in the festivities that officially open the games.

Former University of Kentucky basketball standout Jamal Mashburn (the Dallas Mavericks' first round draft pick) was on hand to assist in the lighting of the Bluegrass State Games flame.

The flame was lit during ceremonies in Frankfort earlier in the day. The torch was carried by runners from the old capitol building to Commonwealth Stadium.

Leo McMillen, who is a member of the Bluegrass Runners Club, carried the torch on its final leg into Commonwealth Stadium where he and Mashburn ignited the huge Olympic-style flame.

The parade of athletes was led by the Henry Clay cheerleaders who were followed by the athletes taking part in the Games.

Softball was the largest sport of the 25 offered in this year's Games. Over 340 teams registered for softball-involving 5,000 athletes. Soccer was the second largest. Over 200 soccer games were played.

The Bluegrass State Games' Carl Frey opened the ceremonies, welcoming all incoming athletes to this year's Games.

"The Bluegrass State Games has grown at a tremendous rate," said

Frey, "and this year offers three new events, making 25 sporting events that will involve over 18,000 athletes."

Frey told the large gathering of the massive undertaking of organizing such event as the Bluegrass Games and extended a "thank you" to the University of Kentucky for the use of their facilities because "the University of Kentucky has been a key to the success of the Games since its beginning."

"The Bluegrass State Games of 1993 will be the best yet," Frey told a cheering crowd. "We at Valvoline Oil (who, along with Coca-Cola, underwrites the Games) are committed to next year's games that will be held on July 29, 30 and 31."

Joe Burch, representing University of Kentucky President Charles

Wodgett, welcomed everyone and stated that "It was proud to be part of the Games since its inception."

"It's our pleasure to welcome you to the University of Kentucky and we are pleased to have you here," he said. "We want to congratulate each athlete and wish them the best."

Standing in for Lexington Mayor Pam Miller was Vice-Mayor Teresa Isaac who brought a loud cheer from the thousands gathered when she welcomed everyone to Lexington, the home of Jamal Mashburn.

"We here in Lexington are committed to making your stay in Lexington a pleasant one," said Isaac. "Athletics teaches us lessons. It also helps round out character in individuals."

Kentucky Governor Brereton Jones informed those present of the record number in attendance for the opening ceremonies.

"It is the largest and greatest crowd to view the opening games," said Governor Jones. "It shows great respect for competition in the state. Some will know the agony of defeat and the thrill of victory."

For the third consecutive year, Bernice Sharpshire, 91, of Paris was the oldest participant in the Games. Sharpshire took part in two track and field events, shot put and the 1,500-meter walk.

The youngest participants in this year's Games were the tender young age of 3 years old.

The opening ceremonies of the Games started with a flyover by the Kentucky National Guard. Otello Humphrey, after his outstanding rendition of the National Anthem, thrilled

Allen makes seventh trip to Bluegrass Games

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

For Allen's Kenneth "Buzz" Allen, the competition at the Bluegrass State Games just keeps getting tougher and tougher with each year. But that doesn't stop the veteran archer from taking part.

Allen just returned from his seventh appearance in the state games and, once again, returned with yet another medal.

Allen made his first appearance in the Games in 1986 and has brought some sort of medal to Floyd County each year.

"I've won nine medals total in the seven years that I have been going," he said. "I usually win something."

Allen said that the heat, not the competition, in this year's Games was almost unbearable.

"It was certainly hot," said the veteran archer. "It was too hot. You

Father and son act impressive in Bluegrass State Games

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

James and John Stout took their act on the road to the ninth annual Bluegrass State Games this past weekend in Lexington as they took part in the archery events for the third consecutive year.

For the third consecutive year, the duo brought home the medals.

They began their archery careers by just observing the games four years ago. Their observation turned to participation as they entered the games for the first time in 1991. Even in their first year, they won a medal and they were then hooked.

James Stout took first place this past Saturday at the University of Kentucky Sports Center (Shively Field) and won his second gold medal in the three years he has been attending the Games. The elder Stout also has won a bronze in the Games.

Stout won first place in the Field Archery 18 and over Bowhunter Freestyle Limited.

"I enjoy going to the Games," said James. "We have a ball. Just a great time."

The trip to Lexington is a family affair for the Stout family. Stout's daughter, Leslie, finds the Games more rewarding other ways.

"Leslie and my wife compete in the shopping games," said James with a laugh. "They like to make the shopping places."

Leslie isn't without her interest in archery but elected not to enter the games.

John, who plays football for Prestonsburg High School, won a bronze medal for his third place finish in the Freestyle Unlimited. It also was his third medal in the three years of competition.

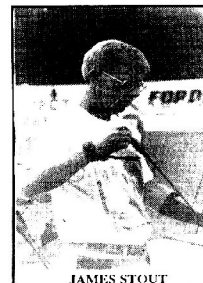

"We like shooting our bows," said James. "The Bluegrass Games is the only competition that we have been to this year. We usually try and go to other places and shoot, but John has had so many things to do that we haven't been able to get out."

Stout feels that the games in Lexington are not getting all that big and feels that "everything" went smoothly over the weekend but likes the old way of keeping score the best.

"This year all the scoring was done on a computer," he said. "I liked the old way where they put it up on a board."

Polk captures gold in bowhunters limited; wins silver medal at Wilmore

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

James Randy Polk of Prestonsburg echoed what some of the other local archers were saying—that the weather was hot this past weekend for the ninth annual Bluegrass State Games held in Lexington.

While the weather was uncomfortable, it didn't hamper Polk from winning two medals in the Games, giving him six in the six years he participated in the Games.

"I enjoy going to the Games," he said. "It wasn't as crowded in archery this year as it has been."

One reason was that archers could choose what day they could shoot. Some picked Saturday over Sunday.

Polk won first place and the gold medal in the Bow Hunters Limited in field archery. He brought home the silver medal for his second place finish in the animal round on Sunday at Wilmore.

Bullets pound Maysville to win Bluegrass State Games

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

There were over 340 softball teams competing in the ninth annual Bluegrass State Games this past weekend in Lexington and 32 of those were at Frankfort playing for the Class C title.

When the smoke had cleared, the Bullets (Floyd County) emerged as the Class C champions after rolling through the other 31 teams.

The Bullets won all six games they played and defeated Maysville Sports 16-6 to capture the title.

"We had good hitting all through the tournament," said Bullet manager Carl Hall. "Our defense was very good and we just played a strong tournament."

The Bullets pounded out 17 hits in the 16-6 mercy win over Maysville in capturing the championship game. Pete Green, Mike Conn, Todd Tucker, Cory Vicars, Gordie Ratliff, John Goble and John Chaffins collected two hits for the Bullets.

Jeff Cole had a home run in the fourth inning when the Bullets scored six times to win by the mercy rule.

Tucker and Cole had two doubles, each in the game. Goble had three runs batted in while scoring twice. Chaffins had a second-inning triple and Ratliff doubled in the third.

The Bullets opened the tournament with a 19-9 "mercy" win over Magic (Lexington) as Tucker, Vicars and Conn each collected three hits.

Conn picked up four runs batted in and Randy King had three RBIs as did Goble.

Twelve batters reached to the plate for the Bullets in the fourth inning as nine runs crossed the plate.

It took extra innings in game two for the Bullets to pull out a 10-4 win

The Bullets scored six times in the eighth inning to snap a 4-4 tie and then held off Penderosa Steak House (Glasgow) for the win.

"That was the toughest game that we had," said Hall of his team's extra-frame win.

Again, it was the balanced offense of the Bullets that led them to their second win of the tournament.

Putting the extra-inning game behind them, the Bullets took care of business in game three as they blew past the Dixie Land Dragons (Jackson) 16-6, collecting 21 hits.

Several players padded their average in this one with Kevin Mullins and Jeff Cole going a perfect three-for-three. Mullins had a third-inning double and Cole doubled in the fifth inning.

Things were a little more tense in the fourth game as the Bullets dodged the bullet in their first meeting against Maysville.

The scored was knotted at 12-12 as the Bullets batted in the bottom of the seventh inning. Ronnie Clark lined a base hit that scored John Goble with the winning 13th run. It was Clark's second hit of the game and only RBI.

Randy King and Chaffins each collected three hits for the Bullets.

Bullets win the gold!

The Bullets softball team won all six of their games in last weekend's Bluegrass State Games and took the gold. Team members are (not necessarily in order): Carl Hall, Pete Green, Mike Conn, Todd Tucker, Cory Vicars, Randy King, Gordie Ratliff, John Goble, Jeff Cole, John Chaffin, Kevin Mullins, Greg Hall and Ronnie Clark.

Kentuckians when he performed "My Old Kentucky Home" and made all in attendance proud to be from the Bluegrass State.

The crowd was entertained by a dance troupe from Canada and the fireworks display ended the ceremonies as Governor Jones, after administering the Oath of Athletics, declared the Games officially open.

"You now can go out and compete," the Kentucky Governor said. The festivities got underway around 2 p.m. when athletes started arriving outside of Commonwealth Stadium to check in for the Games. Music and other entertainment was provided, plus a picnic for the athletes.

The Bluegrass State Games is one of the top state Games in the United States. It affords the athletes the chance to make new friends and renew old acquaintances.

The Games were developed to promote and develop local amateur athletics; to give amateur athletes an opportunity to showcase their talent and receive statewide recognition. Bluegrass State Games Notes:

•Former Kentucky Governor Martha Layne Collins started the Games in 1985. The idea was presented to Collins by 1984 Olympic kayaker Leslie Klien, following a ceremony honoring Kentucky Olympians.

•The Bluegrass State Games is one of 44 state games held nationwide.

•This year, three new sports were added to the 22 sports offered in 1992 bringing the total number to 25.

Racquetball, karate and darts were the three added.

•Because of the increased number of softball teams, the games had to be sent to different area diamonds at Jessamine County, Mt. Sterling and Frankfort.

•Over 700 volunteers provided support for the sport venues during the Games.

•Almost 2,000 senior citizens took part in the Pacesetters walk in Frankfort.

couldn't stand it. Standing all day kills you, too."

Allen won a bronze medal this year for his third place finish in Field Archery. He said that his bow tore up and that hampered him in some events.

"I don't know what happened to it," he said, "but when I was shooting at 20 yards I had to set it for 26 yards."

Allen said that he would like to see the Games held in the fall or early spring to escape the heat of summer. The new scoring procedure impressed Allen and he believes that things went smoother than in previous years.

"They kept the scoring on a computer this year and that seemed to make things go better," he said. "It's a lot of fun. I just go to have a good time."

Allen has totaled nine medals in the seven years he has attended the Games and plans to go back next year.

Allen also took part in the animal shoot held in Wilmore on Sunday. He failed to place in the event.

"It was so hot that we just came home after we finished shooting," he said. "We didn't wait around for the scoring."

The archery events drew almost 1,000 archers and was held at the University of Kentucky baseball field.

Jenny Wells

Jenny Wells wins two gold; brother Levi brings home silver

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Levi Wells took a little kidding from kid sister Jenny as she won two gold medals in the ninth annual Bluegrass State Game over the weekend in Lexington.

Both entered the track and field events in the Games. Jenny Wells brought home the gold in the shot put and discus while Levi managed a silver in discus.

"It sure is hard living around here with her," said Levi. "It shocked me.

It made me look bad."

"She is going around with her finger in the air saying 'We're number one,'" explained her mother Joy.

Wells placed second in the 15 and 16-year old division with a toss of 104 feet. Wells is one of the up and coming discus throwers for Allen Central High School.

Jenny Wells, although not at the level of competition as her brother, looks as if she may be a competitor herself in years to come. She had a throw of 21 feet in the shot and tossed 31 feet in discus for her gold medals.

For Levi, it was his third year in Bluegrass Games competition and he has taken home three medals. He won a gold last year in discus. But this year, he moved up to a higher class when he shouldn't have.

"They moved me up but shouldn't have," he said. "It was the way my birthdate fell. But I enjoy the games a lot. The competition is good and I like that."

Moving up to a different class means more competition against more experienced throwers.

"Jenny beat the older girls that she threw against," explained her mother.

"I was real pleased with the way they both did."

"They have real nice facilities down there and it just a good place to go. I think it is good competition for the kids and also a good experience for them."

"Hopefully we will get a track and field facility here in the county so the kids can have a place to work out and practice."

For the Wells', the Bluegrass Games allows them time together as a family and just enjoying the outdoors in a competitive atmosphere.

Local trio captures gold at Bluegrass Games

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

In the Bluegrass State Games, completed last weekend in Lexington, an athlete will find plenty of good competition.

A local trio found out that, on the outdoor courts, basketball takes on a new perspective.

"It was the roughest game of outdoor basketball that I have ever played," said Kenny Music, who along with Robbie Russell and Robert Allen, won yet another three-on-three basketball tournament.

The trio captured the gold in the Games' 25-34 age group.

It was the second three-on-three tournament they have won this summer as well as an independent league championship.

The trio, known as the Hornets, stung hard as they defeated a good Laurel County team (HRP) in the championship game by the score of 16-11 to win the gold.

"They were a good team," said Allen of their competitors.

Drawing a first round bye, the Hornets moved past No Mercy (Danville) 16-7 in the first round of the tournament held at the University of Kentucky outdoor courts early Saturday morning.

In an afternoon game, the Hornets defeated HRP the first time 16-11, sending them to the losers bracket.

Sunday morning, the trio returned to the courts and handed Pinkard (Versailles) a 16-8 defeat, moving into the winners circle to await the winner of the losers' bracket.

HRP was to be the competition in the championship game.

"There were a lot of good teams there," said Allen of the competition. "A team from Magoffin County (Almond) 30 was a better team than what we played."

"I thought they were better than the team we beat in the finals," said Music.

The trio was surprised at their success in the meet.

"We went down there and we really don't have that much talent or we don't have great talent," said Music.

"I think it is that we work so well together and the more we play together the better we will get," said Allen.

The threesome won the WSAZ three-on-three competition earlier in the summer and placed second in Charleston.

Each team is allowed a sub and during the weekend, Terry Watson and later Keith Harris helped out on the court.

"It's" face UK football

"Everybody thinks we're going to be terrible, but we're not. There's a genuine belief here that our program is going to turn around this fall. It's an attitude."

That from a member of Bill Curry's coaching staff at the University of Kentucky.

Now the it's.

If one of our incoming freshmen running backs comes in here and makes an impact, something we haven't had, it would really open things up for us," he added.

"If that happens we could be the surprise team in the league this year."

"We know our talent levels have increased and we have better depth at more positions," the coach said. "At some point we're going to explode."

It says here key to '93 will come early for UK again. The Florida game Sept. 11.

DIS 'N DATA

Adam Kane, a 6-3, 270-pounder from South Bend, Indiana made it official, transferring to UK from Notre Dame. He will be eligible in 1994.

"It's a wonderful stroke for us," a UK source said last week. "Adam just didn't visit enough schools. He signed at Notre Dame because it was his dad had gone."

Kane's position: Center.

UK's schedule: Northeast Louisiana replaces Western Michigan, Nov. 12, 1994 at Commonwealth.

Close look at Wildcats '94 card-seven home games, all winnable.

Forecast for 1993? Could be five wins, six would be hailed a turn-around season, but looks like four.

C.M.'s SUMMER HEARTBURN?

Ah, the dog days of summer. Time for pause and peaceful reflection at the University of Kentucky athletic offices, right?

Maybe, maybe not.

Even as ink dried on a contract extension for its celeb basketball coach, director of athletics C.M. Newton had a new problem last week when University-approved voice of UK sports Ralph Hacker's name hit the headlines.

Kentucky Loto board vice-chairman Hacker was in warm (getting warmer) water because of his role in the much scrutinized and allegedly mismanaged Kentucky Lottery Board.

State legislators howled for heads to roll and they did.

Hacker's involvement is an embarrassment for UK since "the Voice of UK Sports" is a University point man if not by design then certainly by perception.

All of which leaves image-sensitive Newton in a ticklish spot at a time when pushing football season tickets is problem enough.

READERS (RIGHT) WRITE: Fred Nichols of Madisonville: "Please comment sometime on the size of your mail, daily or otherwise."

COMMENT I: January-March average 8-10 letters or post cards each week, Sept.-Dec. six to eight; during summer months three to five.

Mostly because of space restrictions, letters are edited. Unsigned ones are discarded. Some readers ask that their names not be used in which case—if the writer makes a worthwhile point—I include initials only.

I try and respond personally to all readers who include return addresses. Most mail is about basketball and many letter writers are remarkably well informed, particularly on matters of basketball.

Most popular subject: Basketball recruiting, naturally. Close second: Coaching suggestions for Puno. I have a few regulars, chief among them, Carl Bible (II) of Milford, Ohio, who could (and sometimes does) write a column of his own from which I share excerpts.

All mail is interesting, often flattering (edited out), sometimes immensely entertaining and forever humbling.

Oh, and readers critical of Sports In Ky? Bring it on. Readers (Right) Write is your forum.

COMMENT II: Among the more memorable:

- Personal memories of listening to Cawood Leford. Received lots of those.
- Requests for home telephone numbers of Kyle Macy, Rex Chapman, Rick Farmer.
- Requests for photos of same.
- Is Jeff Brassow married?
- (Evansville's) Don Mattingly is the greatest! (?)
- And of course these: "You write too much about UK" and "You're too critical of UK" and "You don't write enough about UK" and "Why don't you write more about U of L?" and "Why do you waste time and space writing about U of L?"

Philip Cartmill of Franklin, Ky.: "Since Western Ky is the second best team in Kentucky behind UK, with the Hilltopper, start getting national recognition again!" Seems to me WKU is back where it belongs, at the top.

Cartmill recently saw Western's new scoreboard in Paducah Arena and it will go along great with 12,000 yelling fans. Maybe someday UK can go to Diddle and play. It could take the place of WKU-Louisville because nobody cares about Louisville anymore.

"We need some kind of state law saying if you live in Kentucky you have to be a UK fan (just kidding). But it would be easier without having to deal with these Louisville, Indiana and North Carolina fans. These fans couldn't have been born in Kentucky."

Finally, Cartmill wants to know about UK newcomers: Walter McCarty and Jeff Sheppard.

McCarty: Rick Puno said recently "I'm not allowed to watch him, but I like what I'm hearing about him in the summer pickup games."

Footnote: McCarty must sit out UK's first game because he played in an NCAA sanctioned summer league last year. In any case, after a Prop 48 redshirt year, McCarty will need time to re-tune his game.

Sheppard is working in Lexington this summer and playing pickups every day.

Carl Bible of Milford, Ohio: "In-state players good enough to play for UK who were passed over—Jermaine Brown, Maurice Morris, Bryan Milburn, Dejuan Wheat, Carlos Turner, Darrell Burton, Danyell Macklin, Jackson Juson, Barry Bowman, Alvin Sims, Derek Anderson and Darrin Horn. Puno has no excuse."

U of L's HOPGOOD CAN BE REPLACED

University of Louisville backup center Brian Hopgood said this week he is leaving the Cards basketball program.

Departure of Hopgood, 6-foot-11 and two hundred and pick-a-number pounds, opens an opportunity for 6-11 Matt Simmons of Shelby County. Chiefly because of his attitude, work ethic and enthusiasm, Simmons is more a prospect than Felton Spencer, since at the same stage Spencer had all the aforementioned assets, but could not play as well as Simmons already can.

Added bonus for U of L: Hopgood's departure would "upgrade" the (big man) recruiting pitch available to Scooter McCray and Larry Gay.

Something like: "Come to U of L... (6-9 Marco Baston of Dallas?) and you can get some early IT at Cliff's spot."

PARTING SHOT

After gender verification tests, four athletes were disqualified from the recent Southeast Asia Games. A Singapore newspaper reported that a medical examiner at the Games said the news was "terrible for two of them. They did not know they were not females until they were told."

And so it goes.

Have a point of view you would like to share? Write to Bob Watkins, Sports In Ky., P.O. Box 124, Glendale, Ky. 42740.

Top Guns run out of steam, fall to Crooked Creek

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

When Bridget Clay got hurt in the third game of the Bluegrass State Games this past weekend, her loss hurt the Top Guns women's softball team, who dropped a heartbreaking 10-9 game to Crooked Creek and was eliminated from the tournament with their second loss.

The Top Guns suffered their first loss in the initial game of the tournament when they fell 15-10 to the Thoroughbreds in game one.

The score was tied at 2-2 and later 9-9 before the opposition scored six times in the sixth for the win. Master Carpet became the first victim for the Top Guns as they posted a 13-3 win in a mercy game that went six innings. The win allowed the Top Guns to advance in the lower bracket of play.

In the third game of the day for the local team, they found Gattif a little tougher but did prevail with an 8-5 win to keep their tournament hopes alive.

It was in game three that Clay suffered a blow to the head. She was taken to a Lexington hospital and then released.

Clay returned to the Top Gun lineup in the late innings of the final game. Top Gun mounted a comeback after falling behind 8-1. Three runs in the third made it an 8-4 game but Crooked Creek scored two for a 10-4 score.

The Top Guns made the game interesting with five runs that closed the margin to one run, 10-9. But the rally fell a run short.

The Top Guns left the tying and winning runs on first and second.

Allen Central freshmen invited to Rebel practice

Allen Central head football coach Glenn Reeves has issued an invitation to all incoming freshmen and others who may be interested in playing football for Allen Central this fall.

The new head coach said that the team will be working out all this week at the Allen Central pool area. Workouts begin at 6:30 p.m.

Reeves is pleased with the turnout he has had thus far with the upper classmen and expects the numbers to grow with the freshmen reporting.

The team is not allowed to go in full pads until the first official day of practice, August 1.

Coch Reeves expects to send his team through two-a-day practices after August 1.

The Rebels will be taking part in the EKMC gridiron at Wheelwright on August 21. Then Coach Reeves' gridironers will take part in South Floyd's panorama on August 14.

Reeves stated that the Rebels face a 5:30 to 7 p.m. talk and defensive practice schedule and then from 7 to 7:30 p.m. the team will work on offensive drills.

REBEL NOTES:

• Danny Blackburn will be assisting Coach Reeves at Allen Central. There are two positions open for assistants if spots can be found for them at the Right Beaver school.

• The $20,000 appropriated to the school's football program was cut in half to $10,000 after the board had a change of heart on the matter.

PREPARATION FOR SUCCESS

Everybody wants to catch fish—the more the better. There are several things you can do to have a successful day. To start out you must be prepared. Preparation is one of the main keys to the secret of success. Let's look at some of the things that I have picked up through the years which I believe are very helpful. First you need to check the boat over. Make sure it is ready for the trip. Batteries need to be charged. Check the air in the trailer tires. Make sure the trolling motor works and the big engine turns over. After the boat, check your truck. Make sure the oil isn't low, the radiator is full, and the air pressure in your tires is correct.

Now let's look over your fishing equipment. First make sure that all reels are operating properly. Sometimes a not-so-smoothly operating reel simply needs cleaning and I have found that WD-40 works wonders on cleaning the gears of a reel. Then, be sure that the reels are properly sealed and secured on the rod. While looking at the rod, check it. Sometimes the eyes will have a piece of thread that has worked loose. If so, clip it and pull a small portion of epoxy to keep the threads from working loose again.

Line is very important to a fisherman. It is the link between you and the fish. Line size may vary depending on the water clarity, structure and lures you are fishing with. Always during actual fishing, check your line for frays and nicks in the line. You can do this by running your fingers down the line. Usually all you have to worry about is the last two or three feet of your line.

There are several knots that are designed to prevent the line from cutting itself when tension is applied during the hook set or when you're fighting the fish. Usually a good brand of line will have instructions on how to tie these knots. I personally use a palomar knot along with Triple Fish line.

Now let's look at the tackle you'll be using. One very important rule is a sharp hook. I use exclusively VMC hooks. The hooks that you get out of the box are very dull compared to the ones I fish with, even the razor sharp ones. I sharpen ALL my hooks as soon as I get them. They must be sharp enough to stick into my fingernail with just the slightest pressure.

They will actually hang in the gillnet by the weight of the bait alone. The reason for this is that a fish has a tough mouth and I want to penetrate all the way in the mouth no matter what part of the mouth the bait enters.

A fish may strike a bait any second. I always try to concentrate on where my lure is and where the fish may strike from, but sometimes you will be surprised and the extra sharp hooks will make up for this and increase the odds of getting that fish in the boat.

Bullets

Tucker, Goble, Mullins and Chaffins had two runs batted in.

In the finals of the winners' bracket, the Rebels had an easy time handling the T & S Cougars (Nicholasville).

Pete Green and Jeff Cole picked up three RBIs each to lead the Rebels to a 15-7 victory and their fifth consecutive win. Conn and Tucker had two runs batted in.

"We just hit the ball well and it was a complete team effort in winning six straight games," said Hall about his team's victories.

The team was sponsored in the tournament by Ronnie Slone, Morris Isaac and Terry Kinzer.

"We appreciate what these three did for us in helping us to be able to play in the Games," stated Hall.

Once I hooked two bass on one spinnerbait at the same time. I had hooked one fish in the shallow creek. The water was clear so I could see another fish swimming along with this fish and it was trying to take the bait out of its mouth. It was hooked on the trailer hook that was hanging on the back of the other hook. I believe I landed these two fish on account of being prepared. My hooks were sharp and I had a trailer hook on to catch the short strikes. Now I always try to use a trailer hook.

There seems to be no end to getting prepared for a fishing trip. But if you'll do these things before you leave the house then you will be not only ready and willing but also able to catch the fish you're after. Keep a positive attitude, keep casting, and keep FISHING!!!

DON'T WORRY 'BOUT IT

Lyn Bulmahn of the Cox News Service had an article in the paper this past weekend about worrying. Two things she concluded were that women worry more than men, and that worrying is a useless activity.

Heretofore, I hadn't thought much about the first, but had long suspected the latter.

Have you ever noticed how some people tend to worry about every little thing? From Red China to the plight of Jesse on General Hospital, they fret, fret, fret. Some even start to worry if they suddenly discover they have nothing to worry about.

Well, those folks are going to have a field day with Paul Warren of Columbia University has written. In a synopsis of Aldous Huxley's Braze-New World Revisited, Warren said that scientists are now predicting the exact date in the future when, due to "supersaturation of population," there will be no more room left on this planet for anybody else to live. He also wrote that it would be sooner than a lot of people expect.

It probably won't stop the chronic worrier, but I might point out there that you can't tell anything about those intellectual types who make this sort of statement. "Sooner" to them may even mean within the next five or six billion years or it may mean next week.

Then again, I suppose we'd be rather narrow minded to flatly state that it could never happen, especially with the size of the world apparently shrinking every day, coupled with all the improvements in medical science and stuff. I mean, if people continue to live longer, and children are born at a faster rate than people die, who knows?

Imagine sitting around some day in the future watching TBS when the president appears with this special announcement: "My fellow Americans, this afternoon at 4:21, Mrs. Jane Doe gave birth to an eight-pound bouncing (or at least it would bounce if there were someone left to bounce it) boy. We're now full up. No more room. That's it." I guess it'd be pretty obvious that all the old solutions wouldn't work anymore. No more of this "Ah, heck, we'll just move to Wabash," or "Well, Sweetie, I guess we could live with your folks for a while."

Of course, one solution could be to stop having babies, or stop living so long. (I'm sure everybody's gonna miss old grandpa.)

Personally, I think it'd be a while yet before we run out of room. Why, there's property all over Eastern Kentucky that don't have a thing on it. As a matter of fact, I know where there's this big bottom where a fellow could build a Wal-Mart, plus 20 or 30 good-sized homes and still have room for a basketball court (with two goals) and a horse show pit.

Anyway, in my article, Bulmahn attributed psychologist Rex Sellers with giving two primary reasons why folks worry in the first place. First, some think that if they worry about something, it won't happen. And secondly, others like to worry so that in case it does happen, they can say, "See, I told you that would happen."

So, if you worry wants want to go on ahead and worry about over crowding, and it finally comes to pass, I guess it's okay if you want to tell me, "I told you so."

You're gonna have to find me first, though.

Care Connection :

Group links hospital patients to home

By Jim Warren
Herald-Leader
medical writer

When Patricia Mills of Prestonsburg checked into the University of Kentucky Hospital for tests last week, she knew she could count on one thing.

A friend would be around to check on her soon.

Sure enough, Stephanie Baldwin arrived a short time later to chat, offer encouragement and ask whether there was anything Mills needed.

"It means a lot to know someone is here for you," said Mills, 66.

After a brief talk, Baldwin hurried off to other floors of the UK Hospital where she had to see an additional dozen or so of "her patients" from Eastern Kentucky.

Baldwin is not a doctor; she isn't even employed by UK.

She is part of the Care Connection, an unusual program in Lexington run by Highlands Regional Medical Center in Prestonsburg, 120 miles east of Lexington.

It works like this. When Highlands refers patients to Lexington hospitals for treatment or tests, Care Connection representatives are dispatched to meet them when they arrive.

They visit the patients every day they are here, offering comfort, running errands, giving pep talks, keeping families informed and generally trying to provide anything the patients might need to feel comfortable while they're far from home.

Program organizers say that is important for patients who may be intimidated by the prospect of putting themselves in the hands of strange doctors and nurses in an unfamiliar big-city hospital.

Although the service basically is intended for patients from Highlands, Care Connection tries to see any patient from Eastern Kentucky admitted to a participating hospital here.

"Basically, we're here to help all Eastern Kentucky patients," said program director Sandy Shackelford.

Care Connection's two-person Lexington office has operating agreements with UK, Good Samaritan, St. Joseph and Cardinal Hill hospitals. It hopes to expand to all Lexington hospitals soon, Shackelford said.

Describing the program isn't easy because it has no definite outline. The services offered by Care Connection representatives run the gamut from the complex to the most simple.

Some patients may need nothing more than a hug and a friendly word. Another might need help contacting a social worker, or arranging for home health care after leaving the hospital.

Some requests are personal. Baldwin recalls buying super glue for a patient who wanted to repair her broken fingernails in the hospital.

In other cases, Care Connection might provide out-of-town family members with directions so they can fight through Lexington's traffic to reach the hospital where a patient is staying. Care Connection even has met families on the edge of Lexington and led them into town.

If loved ones can't come to Lexington, Care Connection will call them with word on how a patient is doing. Or family members can call Care Connection's toll-free number to get information.

And the service isn't just for patients and their families.

Care Connection also keeps doctors back in Prestonsburg informed about the progress of patients they send here, Shackelford said.

"We're sort of a conduit of information for both ends; it kind of closes the loop," Baldwin said.

Patricia Mills knows that.

She first came to UK Hospital in April to be treated for a severe cardiac problem. She was hospitalized for 20 days and her husband Joseph, who was sick back home, couldn't be with her.

Baldwin, however, visited her daily.

"That meant everything to me; I don't think I could have made it through 20 days without her," Mills said.

"She helped me and she kept Joe informed about how I was doing."

"I looked forward to her coming every day because she was the one person I had to feel close to."

Link to home

Care Connection is the brainchild of Lois Burchette, director of surgery and ambulatory care at Highlands.

One day in 1989 she overheard a cardiac patient in the Highlands emergency room refusing to be transferred to UK for treatment.

The man knew he needed help, but he didn't want to go far from home among people he didn't know.

Recalled Burchette: "It seemed to me that what we needed in Lexington was a hostess. Someone who could tell patients we'll greet you, help you, do whatever we can to make your stay better, and wave goodbye when you come home."

Highlands President Clarence Traum liked the idea. Care Connection began operations a few months later.

The program is financed by general hospital revenues, and patients aren't charged directly for the services they receive, Shackelford said.

Care Connection can be reached toll-free at (800) 284-4274.

Dear Dr. Bubba: I have a big problem and I hope you can help. You see, I just got a new job, but I'm going to have to move for some reason or another my new landlord won't let me keep my pets. It's had enough that I have to give up my babies, but now I can't even find a good home that will take them all and I hate to split them up. Do you think there's any way I can hide six Clydesdales in my new apartment without my neighbors finding out and telling on me, or should I keep looking for a new home with a more understanding landlord? Horsing Around, Lackey

Dear Horsing: I understand how bad ya must be feelin', but I wouldn't try hidin' 'em if I was you, especially if ya got an upstairs apartment. Honesty is almost always the best policy, unless of course ya hold a public office. Besides, the carpet cleanin' bill alone could break ya up. I advise ya to either keep lookin' fer a new place or ta find somebody that'll take care of 'em fer ya. If yer havin' that hard a time, I here Alpo's payin' top dollar these days. If that don't work, try McDonald's.

Dear Dr. Bubba: I AM Elvis's two-headed alien bigfoot baby, but for some reason or another, I can't seem to get on any talk shows.

Oprah, Phil, Maury, Geraldo and even ARSENIO have all turned me down. And Arsenio'll take ANYBODY!!! He even had THE NEW KIDS ON THE BLOCK, for gosh sakes.

I don't understand. I mean, it's not like I smell bad. I mean, I shower at least once a month whether I need it or not. Personally, I think it's racism, pure and simple. Two-headed alien bigfoot people have always been discriminated against in this country and they always will be until something is done. Do you think it would help if I wrote my congressman, or should I try to organize some sort of peaceful demonstration? Two Heads Are Better Than One, Neptune

Dear Two: Uh-hh... maybe the first thing ya oughtta do is try ta get off the drugs, son. Or at least cut down on yer caffeine intake.

That's about all the space we got fer this week, kids. Keep then cards an' letters pourin' in ta "Ask Dr. Bubba," c/o the Floyd County Times, P.O. Box 391, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653. In the meantime, don't take any wooden nickles. I don't endorse stealin', ya understand, but if yer gonna do it anyways, at least try ta get some REAL money.

Consistently one of the most popular bands to emerge from this area, Goose Creek continues to pack in audiences for their unique blend of music and original lyrics.

The core of Goose Creek Symphony has always been singer-songwriter Charlie Gearheart. Now

Charlie and Goose Creek's lead guitarists, Paul Spradlin and Vince Mucke, emerge as a powerful acoustic trio.

The Acoustic Goose meets with enthusiastic fans as they tour their progressive act throughout the country. Thousands of fans catch Goose Creek at every opportunity but when they show up to hear the Acoustic Goose they're in for a treat. Since the lyrics are so unique and

Watson wins Merit Scholarship

An Allen Central graduate is among the additional 1,200 winners of Merit Scholarships announced by National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC).

Heather C. Watson of Garrett has been awarded a Transylvania University Merit Scholarship. Watson plans to major in law.

These Merit Scholars are among a total of more than 6,500 distinguished high school graduates of 1993 who have been awarded Merit Scholarships in this year's competition.

About 115 private and 85 public higher education institutions, located in 42 states and the District of Columbia, offered Merit Scholarships this year for use at the sponsor college or university. College-sponsored Merit Scholarships provide between $250 and $2,000 for each year of undergraduate study. Winners were chosen by officials of the sponsor institution from among Merit Program Finalists who will attend that college.

Students in over 19,000 U.S. high schools entered the 1993 Merit Program by taking the 1991 PSAT/NMSQT, which served as an initial screen of some 1.1 million participants. In the fall of 1992, approximately 15,000 of the top scorers were designated Semifinalists.

Only Semifinalists, representing about half of one percent of graduating seniors in every state, had an opportunity to advance to Finalist standing and compete for Merit Scholarships. In order to become a Finalist, a Semifinalist had to meet extremely high academic standards, to be endorsed and recommended by the high school principal, confirm earlier test performance on a second test, and provide information about activities, interests, and goals. Winners of all Merit Scholarships were chosen from the group of 14,000 Finalists.

In addition to college-sponsored awards, two other types of Merit Scholarships were offered in 1993: National Merit $2,000 Scholarships, for which all 14,000 Finalists competed; were awarded on a state representative basis; and corporate-sponsored Merit Scholarships were offered to Finalists with qualifications of particular interest to the companies and business organizations supporting the awards. This year's recipients of these two types of Merit Scholarships as well as most winners of college-sponsored Merit Scholarships were announced in the spring.

TRAVELLING RIVERSIDE BLUES

Wanting to wash away the bad aftertaste of St. Louis, with memories of the breakaway top and awful cover bands, we set out to quench our thirst for blues from the ever-swelling waters of the Mississippi in Memphis.

While twisting along 61, Marty spotted a great photo opportunity. In a field outside of St. Genevieve, Missouri, (a town which is now, unfortunately, underwater) we spotted a herd of cows grazing and wading in a small lake to beat the heat. We pulled onto the shoulder and the cows immediately stopped what they were doing to come over and investigate. We got out with our cameras to take some shots. When our beefy friends realized we had no food, they all wandered away, almost as if someone hit the "Bovine Recall" button. Thirty seconds later, they were all gone.

I hate uncooperative cows. Before we got to the Arkansas border, we passed Cape Girardeau, the birthplace of one Rush Limbaugh; Braggadocio, which is probably where Mr. Limbaugh has his summer home; and New Madrid, which the locals call "The Earthquake Mistake." Many of you probably remember the big quake predicted for last year which was supposed to have its epicenter in this small Missouri town. No one seemed particularly concerned and the ground seemed pretty firm to me.

We were in the home state of our President for less than an hour. Our brief view of Arkansas was almost entirely fields of lush green broken up by an occasional cemetery. We did see a gravestone for Mr. Clinton's approval ratings.

Now I don't mind most displays of religious belief, but just before crossing the Tennessee border into Memphis, I saw a billboard for a self-storage facility that puzzled me. The sign read, "Rent storage HERE — where we believe now is the time for JESUS!" Isn't that a contradiction in terms for such a place? If the end of the world is nigh, doesn't that mean you won't need your earthly possessions anymore? Even so, I wonder how many people check to see if their stuff is still there three days after they lock it up.

We got to Elvis City, headed downtown, and got a room at the Peabody. (Nice, this expensive account stuff.) However, we weren't able to see the world famous march of the Peabody ducks. At 11 a.m., these ducks come out of the elevator, walk across the lobby, and hop in a fountain where they swim around until 5 p.m., when they hop out of the fountain, saunter back to the elevators, and head upstairs for the night. Unfortunately, just before Duck Time, busload after busload of tour groups invaded the hotel and lined the lobby and mezzanine. If you're a hotel guest, you have no chance. Other than that, it was a posh place, except for a fire alarm during breakfast when a dryer caught fire. Never a dull moment.

That night, intent on finding the blues, we headed for Beale Street, once the blues capital of the world. Even on a Tuesday night, we could hear music coming from club after neon laced club: B.B. King's, the Rum Boogie Cafe, Blues Life, and on and on — good music, real music, blood, grease, loss and longing.

At last. Given, Beale has become a little commercial, with its shirt shops and souvenir places, but they aren't too obtrusive. Music is first and foremost on Beale.

(Even Jerry Lee Lewis has a club down there. It's 13 years old, but he says it's 16.)

We holed up in B.B.'s for the evening to hear a band called The King Bees. The place was packed, but somehow we found seats up front. The first half hour we were there, the band got through three songs. Lots of instrumental jams, harmonica and sax solos, and conversation with the audience. Just the way it should be. The set really gained speed with the appearance of one Miss Ruby Wilson. Ruby sang a couple of songs each set with the band and brought the house down. She had a set of pipes straight from the choir. She has an album just released on B.B. King's label. During one song, she brought herself to tears singing. I was astounded, shocked, overjoyed and generally having the time of my life.

Near the end of the second set, Ruby started talking about how she loved men, especially men's legs. She looked down at me from the stage, pointed and said, "Say, boy, you got some real pretty man-legs!" And the Viper was nowhere in sight.

Waking up refreshed after an evening on Beale, we paid a visit to the Great American Pyramid, known as the Tomb of Doom to basketball fans (also the sight of the 1994 SEC tournament). I never really thought about it, but all along the Mississippi, there are towns named after towns along the Nile in Egypt. Cairo, Alexandria and of course Memphis have analogies in Africa. Unfortunately for the Midwest, the Mississippi is still doing its best impersonation of the Nile.

We decided to skip Graceland, since we'd both been there, and dropped by Sun Studios instead. Sun is where Elvis did most of his recording, as well as other notables like Johnny Cash, Carl Perkins, B.B. King, Jerry Lee Lewis, Roy Orbison, Howlin' Wolf and, most recently, U2. It's very unpretentious, but it's still a working studio.

Marty and I did pay tribute to the King. On the way to Sun, we stopped at Baptist Memorial Hospital, where they wheeled Bledsoe Elvis that fateful night. They say that on the anniversary of the King's death, just at midnight, you can see his ghost trudging away from the hospital in search of ectoplasmic jelly doughnuts.

We also swung by the National Civil Rights Museum, which is built out of the Lorraine Motel where, on April 4, 1968, the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. was shot. There's a wreath in front of the room where he was staying. Inside is exhibit after exhibit of the history of the civil rights movement. The museum's a powerful place. A visitor leaves with almost a sense of dread, realizing what African Americans have gone through the last 400 years. I looked for pictures of my father in the museum, but found none.

Shelby Dodge was our last Memphis stop to pick up our new top. A "Check Engine" light had appeared as we were coming into Tennessee and we decided to have it looked at. After over two hours, our mechanic informed us that the computer warning code indicated that the pressure in the Viper's A/C compressor was low and we should recharge it, which would take overnight with all the cars they had in for service.

We kindly informed him that our car didn't even have an air conditioner (well, except for driving faster), took the keys, our top and hit the road again.

Destination: Clarksdale, Mississippi. Deep in the heart of the delta, this town was the birthplace of the blues. We were heading for the Crossroads with Memphis on our minds, smiles on our faces, a new top for the Viper and Barney in the trunk, still pondering his fate.

He didn't have long to wait. Later days.

Bacterial leaf spot active in peppers

Hot, humid weather has caused bacterial leaf spot to become active again in peppers. This disease has been confirmed in plantings of processing and fresh market peppers in Kentucky.

While disease development slowed during dry periods, bacterial leaf spot can reproduce quickly and be reactivated in a short period of time under ideal conditions.

"During the prolonged cool, wet weather earlier, this disease developed slowly without much defoliation of the plant, but it began to develop rapidly when the weather turned hot and wet in late June," said Bill Nesmith, extension plant pathologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The disease is now causing more typical symptoms of leaf spotting. These include dark, water-soaked lesions or spots that have a greasy appearance, especially along the leaf margins. These spots turn brown or tan with age, and leaves become yellow and eventually fall off. Also, some spotting of fruit is occurring. "Defoliation of the leaves is the most important part of the disease, because once the leaves fall off, the ability of the plant to develop and protect the fruits is lost," Nesmith said.

Bacterial leaf spot in peppers is among the most difficult diseases to control. The bacteria reproduce rapidly under ideal conditions. "A million new bacteria may be present in 24 hours, where only one was present the day before," said Nesmith. "The bacteria double their rate of reproduction every 15-30 minutes."

"The bacteria easily spread by plant-to-plant contact while the foliage is still wet and by rain and wind under wet conditions within the canopy."

Prompt and consistent control is critical in managing bacterial leaf spot in peppers, according to Nesmith. "Since highly effective chemical rescue methods are not available, preventive chemicals must be kept in place to obtain satisfactory results," said Nesmith. "The 'wait and see' approach simply will not work with this disease."

Nesmith recommends using fixed copper or fixed copper plus maneb sprays weekly, or more frequently in rainy weather. Check the labels of each product used because rates of application vary from product to product.

"After the disease has shown extensive development, however, effective control cannot be obtained," Nesmith said.

Thorough coverage of the plant is critical, said Nesmith. High pressure hydraulic spray equipment or air blast spray equipment provides the best coverage against bacterial leaf spot of peppers as compared to hand-held sprayers. It is difficult to obtain effective results with hand-held sprayers.

"It is important to remember that the disease can be reactivated with a change to hot, wet weather," Nesmith said. "Now that the disease is established, the threat of it will persist until frost."

For more information on bacterial leaf spot of peppers, contact the local Extension office.

Invisible itches in the home:

Insects to blame? Maybe not

Small, fast-crawling things in your house cause itchy skin, but what if the itchy skin is not caused by insects? It may be a skin condition called eczema.

"Almost everyone has," said Mike Potter, Extension nutritionist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "Most people don't realize it."

"The itchy skin isn't always to be treated with drugs," Potter said. "There are many treatments for itchy skin, but the most effective is to avoid the cause of the itchy skin. If you have eczema, you should avoid things that cause itchy skin. These include dust, pollen, mold, and certain foods. If you have eczema, you should avoid these things."

Potter said products that most often cause itchy skin are those that contain harsh chemicals. These include soaps, detergents, and certain foods. If you have eczema, you should avoid these things.

If a person with itchy skin has been exposed to any of these products, avoiding further contact may correct the problem, he said.

Itchy skin can be caused by eczema, but it can also be caused by other things. These include dust, pollen, mold, and certain foods. If you have eczema, you should avoid these things. If you have eczema, you should avoid these things.

Itchy skin might really be from eczema, but it might be from something else. These include dust, pollen, mold, and certain foods. If you have eczema, you should avoid these things. If you have eczema, you should avoid these things.

Although these tiny biting insects may be quite small, he added, most are quite painful. These include mosquitoes, ticks, and fleas. If you have eczema, you should avoid these things. If you have eczema, you should avoid these things.

Ground fires damage timber even when trees don't die

The kind of ground fires that Kentucky timberlands frequently encounter doesn't always kill the trees, but that doesn't mean there's been no damage.

"Forest fires can be an insidious destroyer of timber value even when the damage is not obvious," said Doug McLaren, Extension forestry specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"The kind of fires we have often don't immediately kill large trees and people assume that only term damage has been done," he said. "However, ground fires can cause fires beneath the bark which leads to condition called heart rot in the middle of the tree trunk."

Heart rot decreases both the volume of timber and the value of the logs, he said. In Eastern Kentucky, trees may lose 10 to 20 percent of their timber value from heart rot.

"Research has shown that the majority of this heart rot resulted from ground fires," McLaren said. "It costs the Kentucky timber industry millions of dollars."

Since most forest fires are set through carelessness by people in the forest, an obvious way to improve the value of the Kentucky timber industry would be for everyone who goes into the woods to be aware of the need to prevent those fires, McLaren said.

A mature landscape

The streetside landscape of Blaine and Ruth Hall at 104 South Arnold Avenue in Prestonsburg was chosen as the Preston County Woman's Club July Garden of the Month. Judges Helen Wiley, Virginia Tackel and Phyllis Rainer liked the variety of plantings and the fact that the twenty-year-old landscape has been kept in proportion to the Hall's brick ranch house. Boxwood, barberry, dwarf pines and other small evergreens are foundation plants. Petunias, ageratum, chrysanthemums, phlox and other flowers planted by Mrs. Hall serve as accents. Mrs. Hall said that she and her husband planned the landscape together when they built their house over 21 years ago. (photo by Polly Ward)

Happy birthday...

A birthday celebration was held recently for members of the Prestonsburg Senior Citizens' Center. Those having birthdays were Myrtle Chaffins, Orville Cooley, Belle Harless, Rebecca Rasnick, Wilma Rose, Nancy Webb, Deward Stephens, Patsy Evans and Opal Jervis.

Safety Foundation offers tips for older walkers

We all do it.

The "don't walk" signal comes on, but we dash across the street anyway, hoping we can beat the traffic.

Or we trust the signal and don't look both ways before we cross the street. But don't let a leisurely summer stroll or a walk to the grocery store turn into a nightmare, says the Safety Foundation of Blue Grass AAA. Because one in four pedestrian fatalities is someone 65 or older, the Foundation is stressing that older adults especially learn and review walking safety.

The Foundation suggests some simple rules to so older adults can walk smart this summer.

- Before you enter the roadway, search for turning vehicles. Look left, then right, then left again, even if the light is green or the signal says walk.
- Watch for vehicles turning left or making right turns, including right turns on red.

- Look at the driver, not just the car. Be sure the driver of a turning vehicle sees you before you step off the curb.
- Stop at the outside edge of any obstacle, such as a stopped bus, and look around it for vehicles that might be coming.

- Don't assume that all vehicles will stop just because one has.
- Wear or carry something light or bright—like a white scarf—to make you more conspicuous, or wear reflective materials if you must walk after dark.

- Walk in front of parked cars rather than behind them. Watch for backup lights.
- Don't panic if the "don't walk" signal comes on before you have crossed the street. Continue to the other side rather than stopping or returning to the curb.

- Don't assume it's safe to cross when the "walk" signal comes on. You must still look left-right-left before entering the roadway.

Kim's Korner

Well folks, everybody has opinions and you and I got to read one person's opinion last week.

I can't begin to tell you how very, very much I appreciate all your calls, comments, and visits, assuring me you did not share the lady on the throne's point of view.

Different strokes, for different folks, and it does indeed take all kinds to make this world of ours go 'round.

I'm not going to pretend I was not hurt by the tone and attitude used towards me.

However, I was more upset at the fact my children were hurt more than myself.

Oops, there I go again, writing about my daughters!

Guess this is where someone needs to rip this page off and send lining a birdcage!

If you're still reading, I'd like to move on to another subject that's gotten me numerous comments, and letters requesting more information.

Last Monday, the fourth meeting of the upcoming Wheelwright Reunion was held. Those of us in attendance got a chance to hear how big this Reunion is going to be.

At least 2,000 people are expected to attend, three bands, food booths, crafts, and classes from the 30's to the 90's have been returning their plans to be at W.H.S. September 4, 5, and 6.

Larry Johnson and his wife have been teaching Country Line Dancing, and we heard at the meeting that possibly 80 Line Dancers would be performing.

Some classes haven't been contacted yet, and Mrs. Osborne and volunteers would like them to know we're trying, and hoping word spreads, if we aren't able to send everyone a letter.

I received a letter recently from Garland Wilkinson a 1949-50 coach and science teacher at Wheelwright High.

Mr. Wilkinson and his wife Virginia will be attending from Florissant, Mo.

The Wilkinsons read this column and requested all the information possible.

So, to date this is the information I can share.

Maybe in August I will be able to give a more detailed schedule of events.

Until then, I'd like to share some info on the "New Youth Center," at the Wheelwright cafeteria.

Keith Smallwood, a person not only instrumental volunteering his time to the youth of the Wheelwright area, has transformed a school lunchroom into an atmosphere today's younger generation will love.

Through donations, Keith has obtained pin ball machines, air hockey, a jukebox, and more.

His face lights up as he tells you of his plans for this area's youth.

Ha! it's off to you—Keith!

Till next week, see ya!

Kid Search targeting 'model kids'

Your youngster may be more photogenic than you realize. KID SEARCH '93 a nationwide model contest can help you find out. KID SEARCH '93 a nationwide contest searching for "model kids" will be coming to Hazard, August 7, 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. at the Holiday Inn.

Presented by the world's largest children's modeling agency, Wilhelmina Models and JCPenney Portrait Studio, KID SEARCH '93 is awarding over one million dollars in prizes including modeling contracts and college scholarships. The contest is open to ages Newborn to 17 and requires no experience.

The applicants will be selected on personality, vitality and appearance. Vogue of Lexington Model and Talent Agency will be hosting the local KID SEARCH '93 events. This is not a beauty contest, KID SEARCH '93 is seeking entries from the "kids next door"—those with plenty of personality.

Real Beauty IS More Than Skin Deep, But Healthy Skin is NOT Superficial.

Caring for your skin is part of maintaining good health. Your skin is an organ, much like your heart or liver, and unhealthy skin can cause serious complications. In fact, in 1993, more than 700,000 people will be diagnosed with some form of skin cancer.*

Dermatologist Carol H. Cooper, M.D., is a specialist dedicated to skin health. She can provide medical and surgical treatments for the variety of skin disorders that affect adults and children. Treatments for acne, psoriasis and photoaging. Skin surgery, wart removal and spider vein removal. And, of course, screenings and treatment for skin cancer.

As a dermatologist, Dr. Cooper urges you to pay attention to your skin. Early detection of skin disorders makes them easier to treat and cure. Examine your skin monthly. Look at your moles. Watch their shape, notice their color, and note when new ones appear. And ALWAYS be sure to wear sunscreen and avoid the sun at its most dangerous time - 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

Remember these skin health tips. And if you notice changes in your skin, see your doctor. Because concern for your skin isn't vanity, it's simply good health.

Outstanding service

Clyde DeRossett named an outstanding employee

Clyde DeRossett of Prestonsburg has been named an outstanding employee of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet for 1992.

He was one of 15 Cabinet employees recognized during a luncheon at the Governor's Mansion June 30. Gov. and Mrs. Brenton Jones attended the luncheon to thank the employees for their outstanding work to protect and preserve the environment and for their dedicated service to the Commonwealth.

DeRossett is a senior environmental engineer in the Department of Surface Mining, Reclamation, and Enforcement's Prestonsburg field office. He has been with state government since 1984.

He was recognized for a procedure he developed to store data and certifications on his personal computer. This and other phases of his work have been shared with and used by other surface mining regional offices.

"Clyde is a leading authority within the department on causes and cures of mine subsidence," said Surface Mining Commissioner Dave Rosenbaum in presenting the award. "He is a valued employee of the surface mining program. Clyde's contributions to the state's surface mining work of regulatory nature and is respected for his proven capabilities and job performance."

Each year, Cabinet employees are nominated by their coworkers for the Outstanding Employee Recognition Program. After the award luncheon, DeRossett participated in a roundtable discussion with cabinet officials to discuss ways to improve government performance and practices. The Outstanding Employee group will meet again to help develop the state's future success.
