Pit Bull saves Martin man

DeMoris Thompson, of Martin, and his dog Hack saw, a 105 pound American Pit Bull, took a break Monday from their repair work after a fire last Thursday night consumed part of Thompson's house. Quick action Thursday by the family dog during a house fire saved a Martin man and his home.

According to DeMoris Thompson said, "I kept telling Hack saw to stop it and go to sleep, but he just kept shaking me."

Hack saw had a good reason for trying to wake up Thompson.

There was a fire in the Thompson house that began from an old, sealed

Thompson grabbed Hack saw and got out of the house.

Officer James Burke, of the Martin city police, was first on the scene to help Thompson try to extinguish the fire.

After seeing the fire could get out top of the house and spray water through the opening to put the fire out," Thompson said as he pointed up to a blackened opening near the roof of his house. "If it wasn't for them, I wouldn't have a house now."

According to Petry, the fire was

Man's best friend

son, the old saying "Man's best friend" really does apply to a dog.

In Thompson's case, not just any dog, but "Hack saw," a full-blooded, 105-pound, pit-bull that made it to the top of Thompson's Christmas list last Thursday with a stunt straight out of a Disney movie.

Last Thursday night as Thompson slept, Hack saw, who has slept in the same bed as Thompson since he was a three-month-old pup, began barking and trying to wake him.

"Hack saw was on top of me shaking me with both paws and barking," off fireplace that the last residents had blocked off with strips of wood. Before going to sleep Thompson started a fire in the open fireplace in the living room.

The heat built up and spread to the blocked off fireplace in the kitchen, causing the wood strips to burst into flames.

Thompson said that when Hack saw wouldn't stop shaking and barking at him, he finally woke up long enough to realize his smoke detector was going off.

After getting himself oriented, of control, officer Burke called the Martin fire department, located less than a mile away.

"We tried to fight the blaze with a garden hose, but it wasn't doing any good," Thompson said. "Luckily, the Martin Fire Department showed up, along with the Maytown VFD and put the fire out."

According to William Petry, Martin fire chief, "The fire started in the sealed off fireplace and quickly spread to a kitchen cabinet."

"They had to knock out a vent on reported at 9:44 p.m. and the Martin Fire Department arrived on the scene at 9:51 p.m. with the Maytown units arriving soon after.

The fire was extinguished a short time later.

Thompson said he wanted to thank the Martin city police and fire department, along with the Maytown units that responded to the fire.

And, he especially wanted to thank Hack saw, truly this man's best friend.

Stolen autos found in pieces :

Cops stop chop shop

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and deputies have cracked what appears to be a local chop shop operation after a two-week investigation.

Two Floyd County men were arrested over the weekend and charged with theft by unlawful taking after officers found pieces of several stolen cars in a building at Pyramid.

Eddie Williams, 29, of Prestonsburg and Donnie Hatfield, 18, who is from Floyd County and is living in Johnson County, were arrested by Sheriff Thompson last weekend.

The case began when car lot owner Lowell Sammons reported that a red Chevy Sonoma pickup truck was stolen from his lot the night of November 9.

During the course of the investigation, Thompson learned that the truck was in a building at Pyramid. After seeing a red bumper through the door of the building, officers obtained a search warrant for the premises.

During a search of the building, officers found part of the red pickup truck and also a black Chevy Sonoma which had parts of the stolen truck installed on the black vehicle.

Officers were surprised to also find the body parts of a 1993 metallic green Mustang. Through checking serial numbers on the vehicle, Sheriff Thompson discovered the Mustang had been stolen from Brown's Auto Sales in Paintsville.

Sheriff Thompson said that the owners of the car dealership were not aware the vehicle was stolen because it had been repossessed earlier by the Ford Motor Credit Company. The owners thought Ford had possession of the vehicle, Thompson said, and Ford officials thought the vehicle was still on the lot at Brown's.

The thief or thieves apparently had a spare key to the vehicle and went to Brown's lot after the vehicle was repossessed and stole it, Thompson said.

No charges have been filed in connection with the theft of the Mustang.

Car parts recovered at Pyramid

Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson, deputy Linzie Hunt and Tommy Thompson recovered the body parts of a 1993 Mustang Monday that was stolen from Brown's Auto Sales in Paintsville. The Mustang parts and a Chevy pickup truck stolen earlier this month from Lowell Sammons were found in a rented building at Pyramid. Two men were arrested in connection with the case and other arrests are pending. (photo by Susan Allen)

Stumbo to be sworn in next week

Floyd County Janet Stumbo will be sworn in December 4 at 11 a.m. as Kentucky's newest Supreme Court judge.

The public ceremony will be held on the steps of the Floyd County Courthouse and a reception hosted by U.S. District Judge Joseph Hood will follow at the Jenny Wiley Convention Center.

Stumbo was elected to the Supreme Court after defeating opponents Sara Combs and David Welch in the November election.

Being on the bench is nothing new for Stumbo, she was a Kentucky Court of Appeals Judge before deciding to run for the state's Supreme Court.

Finance officer to leave after brief stay

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County school officials received bad news this week with the announcement that Finance Officer David Johnson has taken a job with the Magoffin County School System.

At last Thursday's special board meeting, Johnson appeared to be frustrated after the board refused to consider purchasing updated computer equipment for the finance department and to hire an additional finance clerk.

Floyd superintendent Steve Towler said Wednesday that losing Johnson would be a big blow to the finance department and the school system.

"Magoffin County's gain is Floyd County's loss," Towler said. "We'll miss David. He worked very hard. He put in long hours five, six and, sometimes, seven days week. I do think Mr. Johnson was frustrated, but I hope that wasn't the reason he decided to relocate."

Johnson was out of town Wednesday and unavailable for comment.

One of the greatest accomplishments in Johnson's 11-month tenure was to build, from scratch, a detailed, accurate data base of the district's finance and personnel records, Towler said.

Towler acknowledged that the district's computer system is outdated and said that he will continue his efforts to sway the board to purchase a newer system.

"It's an old style system and it's nobody's fault," Towler said. "I'll continue to work with board to try to prove the need for new hardware."

High school group helps stock God's Pantry :

Giving more than thanks

by Polly Ward
Times Feature Writer

"It is more blessed to give than to receive." Acts 20:35

Students at Prestonsburg High School have discovered that Thanksgiving is a time for giving as well as a time for thanks.

A Thanksgiving food drive spearheaded by the school's Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) netted 1,060 pounds of nonperishable food earlier this week. Bags filled with nonperishable food items, such as canned corn, peas, and cake mixes and macaroni, were delivered to God's Pantry—Crisis Food Center at Lancer Monday by students Jason Mayo and Brad Biliter. While at the center, the two also unpacked the items and boxed them up, taking a load off the Pantry's lone worker, Debbie Amburgey, who manages the non-profit center.

"Oh, it is great," she said Tuesday about the food drive. "I wish we could get all local schools involved like Prestonsburg High School. It's just wonderful."

The pantry is a clearinghouse of surplus food and non-food products received from local, regional and national donors. The products are distributed to non-profit organizations and agencies such as churches, senior centers, shelters and nursing homes in ten Eastern Kentucky counties.

Tuesday, six FBLA members and club coordinator Judy Combs, who teaches business courses at the high school, visited God's Pantry and brought with them two more bags of food. Combs said that 137 students had donated items during the food drive.

"This is our second year we have had a food drive," Combs said. "Last week we started this food drive, but most gave Monday during the Thanksgiving Assembly."

Some students gave items to earn bonus points from participating teachers, but, Combs said, "Most brought food in because they wanted to." As for the success of this year's drive,

Ground breaking ceremony

The ground breaking ceremony at Minnie on Tuesday for the Viola Bailey Memorial Community Center included appearances by such dignitaries as Senator Benny Ray Bailey and Greg Stumbo. Members of the Big Sandy ADD, along with members of the McDowell Senior Citizens Program, Inc., were also on hand for the ceremony. The center is to be named after Bailey's mother and is located across from the new Minnie housing project. (photo by Ronnie Parsons)

Tuesday's Floyd County's Public Properties Corporation meeting that local officials will meet with area legislators at Stumbo's reception to stump for support for a new Floyd County government center.

Floyd County Attorney Jim Hammond said Tuesday that the Administrative Office of the Courts had put the multi-million dollar government center in the department's budget which will be voted on during the 1994 General Assembly.

Hammond urged fiscal court members to attend the reception to meet with Senators Kelsey Friend and Benny Ray Bailey and State Representatives Greg Stumbo, Russell Bentley and Herbie Deskins. He added that the architect, Chenault Woodford, and bonding agent, Terrell Ross, will also be on hand.

but Thompson said Tuesday that several other arrests are pending.

Monday afternoon, Sheriff Thompson, chief deputy Linzie Hunt and Thompson's cousin, Tommy Thompson, removed the Mustang parts from the building. The parts were taken to Adams Auto Parts where they are impounded.

Thompson said he plans to contact Johnson County officials about the theft.

she said, "I think it's wonderful. We want to do anything we can do to help the community and this area."

Christy Stone, a senior and president of the club, was a member of the FBLA committee that decided to make the food drive a club project. She said members promoted the food drive with posters they made and placed around the school. They also gave items, too, because as Stone said, "it's better to give than to receive."

Another club member, senior Alesha Goble, agreed. "It makes me feel good to give food to people less fortunate on Thanksgiving."

Prestonsburg High School was not the only school in the county to donate food to God's Pantry. Tuesday, Allen Central High School students delivered 673 pounds of food items they collected in a Thanksgiving food drive. And every donation counts in a big way to help the hungry in the county and the rest of Eastern Kentucky.

"Most of the food will go to food boxing programs in Floyd County," Ambrugey said Tuesday. "Last week was busy with agencies getting items for food baskets for most agencies that are doing Thanksgiving food baskets. We provide the essentials, such as canned foods, drinks, cookies, cereals and snacks."

She said that other schools in the county have donated food in past years. She plans to talk to school principals about developing special community service projects in which students could donate food to the pantry for the hungry at Christmas.

"If one student gave a can of food, imagine how much that would be. There could be a lot more people served if we had more food."

Up, up and away

Students at Martin Elementary released 400 balloons Friday that had notes and letters attached asking for replies from the people who would find them. Debbie Hatfield, librarian at Martin Elementary, said it was a contest to see which room could get the most replies and which could get a reply from the farthest location. This topped off a week of events that included 'Dress-up as a story book character day,' 'Mixed-up in a book day' and 'Hats off to story books day.' (photo by Debbie Hatfield)

School districts across the state have been postponing upgrades to their computer systems because state school officials are supposed to develop a computer network system to link all the districts, Towler said. But, it looks like it will be July 1995 before that system could be installed.

Towler said it would cost between $20,000-$25,000 to get enough computer equipment to link all the department heads in the central office. He added that those purchases could be made gradually, but something has to be done quickly to address the computer problems in the finance department.

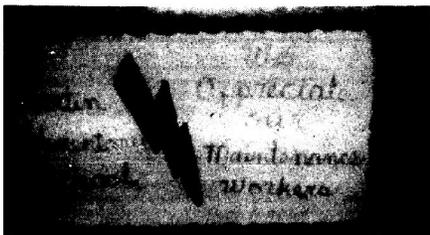

A greater work load has been placed on district personnel because all individual school purchases are being handled by the central office, Towler added.

After last week's meeting, Johnson said in the last three months he has hand-processed 2,400 purchase orders for various schools in addition to his regular duties. Johnson has repeatedly prepared extensive financial reports and cost breakdowns requested by the board.

Johnson has been praised by state and local officials for the work he has done in the finance department and for the amount of financial information that has been made available to the public.

Towler said he hopes to have the position filled by January.

School workers honored.

The staff at Martin Elementary held a reception last week to honor the school system's maintenance workers. Maintenance worker Birchell Duff said last week that the employees appreciated the event.

...While the gittin' is good

by Scott Perry

Can anybody blame Floyd County school finance officer David Johnson for gittin' while the gittin' was good?

After all, Johnson had done everything he could with the tools he had to bring the school system's financial management into the 20th century, earning accolades from state and local school officials along the way.

Trouble is, the tools Johnson was required to work with wouldn't do much work and the board declined to act on his request for an equipment upgrade.

Of course the board also declined a request from the district technology coordinator to have technology department computers cleaned and they rejected a plea for an extra clerk in the finance department to assist with work that must be done by hand since the available computer equipment isn't up to the task.

Apparently Johnson hadn't been with the system long enough to understand the proper procedure for getting the attention of the board.

Had he had the forethought to tie his computer request to the development of one athletics project or another, the board likely would have declared an emergency to get his needs addressed.

Before Johnson's arrival, proper management of the school system's $40 million budget wasn't much of a priority.

Despite his efforts, Johnson's short stay here apparently didn't do much to change that attitude.

Praise for PCC workers

Editor: There are a lot of people who put Eastern Kentucky down and think that we are nothing but a bunch of ignorant Hillbillies who are nasty and don't care how we present ourselves in public, and how things look. We may be Hillbillies, but we do take pride in what we do. There are some who are not concerned about themselves and the things around them, but that is not everyone in Eastern Kentucky.

However, at Prestonsburg Community College, someone does care and the hard work and dedication shows that they do. I'm glad that someone wants to make our college a better place to go.

It is always so nice to walk out the doors and go over to one of the picnic tables and look at the fresh-cut lawn. The lawn looks so smooth and you can smell the fresh-cut grass as soon as you walk out of the building. Also, the trees full of leaves provide a nice cool shade.

The people who take care of the outside do a great job. The lawn always stays clean and neat. I never see any trash lying around. I know that this is a hard job because there is a lot of grass that has to be cut and it takes a long time to get it all done. I don't know how many workers take on the responsibility of doing this job, but they sure do it well. I believe whoever does this must enjoy their work because everything is so nice looking and they always do a neat job. I suppose that the workers have a boss over them to make sure they do a superior task, because I can never remember anything that is left unfinished or lying around. On the other hand, the workers may take pride in what they do and they may want to do a good job.

Also, the inside looks as well as the outside. There is a scent that stays in the air. It smells like a fresh bucket of apples that have just been picked from the tree. I don't see how the smell stays in the air, but it does, and I like the smell. People walk in and out of the halls everyday bringing in dirt and mud, but when I come back the next day everything looks the same as it did when I left, and that same smell is so elegant and still in the air.

I think that everyone who attends this college should help keep it clean, not only for it to stay organized and beautiful, but to help make the workers' job a lot easier. If we would watch ourselves and not throw things down, such as candy wrappers and popcorn, then it would make their job a lot easier. We all should give them a hand instead of making it harder on them. I think that everyone should be proud of where they go to college, because I am, and I appreciate what anyone does to make this a nice-looking place to get a good education.

If you see someone cleaning, cutting the lawns, or anything to help, stop and tell them what a great job they are doing, and say "Thank you, I really appreciate it!"

Expresses gratitude

Editor: I am writing to express my profound gratitude to the voters of Floyd County who gave me the sacred trust of their votes on November 2. Although I fell short of the necessary number of votes to remain your Supreme Court Justice, your support, confidence, and endorsement will never be forgotten.

It was my greatest honor to serve you for four months on Kentucky's highest court. As I depart that post effective November 30, I thank you for the privilege entrusted to me and hope that I may be of continuing service to the people of the Seventh Appellate District.

Court decides reform act means what it says

Here's a bit of advice for any school board members who still hope that the 1990 Kentucky Education Reform Act will go away. Forget it and get on with your work.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals made that clear last week when it ruled on the major test case concerning the new alignment of political power in public education. The appellate court did what a lower court had declined to do. It took KERA and the legislators who passed it at their word.

The reform act transfers power from school boards to individual school councils. The test case, filed in Boone County, sought to give school boards power over the plans of school councils. No dice, the Court of Appeals said. The councils are, within the broad outlines of the school law, autonomous.

The case will almost certainly be appealed, but there's little reason to doubt the outcome. That is precisely what the legislature intended when it passed the reform act, and numerous members of both House and Senate said so repeatedly. Only a complete misreading of both the act and the record of its passage can lead to any other conclusion.

That's not to say that there's no cause for concern about this ruling. The only real check on the autonomy of individual schools is the reform act's reliance on educational outcomes. In theory, so long as a school's students continue to progress on the state tests and other assessments, it doesn't matter what happens in the school. The students can spend their time reading comic books, or studying spurious scientific treatises, or watching basketball—anything, as long as the measured outcomes are satisfactory.

Obviously, that kind of autonomy poses the potential for some problems. The task for school board members across the state now is to help minimize those problems and to make the reform act function to the benefit of children. Anything less is nothing but obstructionism. —Lexington Herald-Leader

A better way

As the Pike County superintendent dances merrily along righting the wrongs of the district's former administration, we have to stop and ask ourselves if there isn't a better way to do things.

Take, for instance, the task force appointed to look into school construction projects. As we have said in the past, why not go straight to the heart of the matter, hire a construction auditor, ask for a formal report and take appropriate action?

Instead, a group of people closely associated with the projects under scrutiny was assembled, and, in the end, issued a report saying an auditor should be hired because the job was too big for volunteers to handle.

An auditor has yet to be hired. When the state Department of Education encouraged the board to seek repayment from the former architect for the Pike County Central High School project, the suggestion went ignored.

Although, as the state sees it, the system stands to recover several thousand dollars, one official called it an complicated matter and said its feasibility would have to be explored.

Please, Mr. Johns, if there was wrongdoing in the former administration, take the proper action now to correct it and get on with school business.

If the guilty cannot be proven, stop blowing smoke about the things you cannot change and change those that you can. —Appalachian News Express, Pikeville

...And justice for all?

It was not surprising that Flem Burchett pleaded guilty Monday in Pike Circuit Court. Ever since Sheriff

Gene Cyrus' death in 1992, many people said the man accused of killing him would never stand trial.

They were right. The way this case was handled has left several people bitter about the justice system. They say the court system was protecting a person charged with a tragic crime. This is not the first time such a comment has been made about a criminal proceeding.

In Burchett's case, his attorney saved him from the death penalty. Using a law that doesn't make a lot of sense, the attorney argued that Burchett was mentally ill and, therefore, could not face the electric chair. State statutes say that a person with an IQ lower than 70 is ineligible for the death sentence. A judge agreed this year that Burchett's IQ was too low and struck death as a penalty in the case.

This case points to a serious question that needs to be addressed by the legislature: What does a defendant's IQ have to do with murder? If people are smart enough to load a gun and shoot someone, then they should be held accountable for doing it, regardless of their IQ. —Painville Herald

What is America's foreign policy?

By Scripps Howard News Service

Some Clintonites are calling the president's foreign policy a "work in progress." And well they might. Bill Clinton and his groping international team have not met the—admittedly extraordinary—challenge of setting a steady course for the nation through the uncharted waters of the post-Cold War world.

Power abhors a vacuum, and one result of the administration's unconvincing management of foreign crises—especially in Bosnia, Somalia and Haiti—is assertiveness in Congress. Senate minority leader Bob Dole threatens to legislate over the president's discretion to send U.S. troops to Haiti.

Quite rightly, Clinton resists this latest congressional sortie in the 200-year struggle between executive and legislative branches over control of foreign policy. The Constitution divides power between the president who is commander in chief, and Congress, which holds the purse strings and has the right to declare war. Like his predecessors, Clinton must defend the prerogatives of his office—never mind the irony that in the past his party eagerly shackled Republicans, through the War Powers Act, for example, and the Boland amendments.

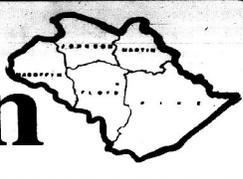

For that matter, never mind the institutional battles. The more important question is the substance of policy, toward Bosnia, Somalia, Haiti and trouble spots to come. An indecisive leader prone to consult too long, not too little, Clinton seems unlikely to strike out in directions offensive to most on Capitol Hill.

Indeed, the president is only too eager to have Congress share big risks. When his meandering policy toward the former Yugoslavia provoked criticism, Clinton mandered again and begged his promise to send 25,000 U.S. troops to police a settlement by using congressional approval an explicit pre-condition. Nor has the trouble in Somalia been defiance of Congress, which repeatedly voted funds for the mission and raised serious questions only after events that also prompted a rethink at the White House.

Congress, after all, is at least as confused as the president, in this unprecedented time of transition. What is lacking is competent leadership in the formulation of foreign policy, clearly an executive function.

Except in relations with Russia, Clinton's top foreign policy team has not succeeded in compensating for his lack of experience and vision. It is time for the president to find new advisers who can give credible coherence to his work in progress.

Kentucky coal operator pays miners to settle discrimination cases

Black Dragon Mining Company, located in Pike County, will pay two fired miners a total of $15,480 to settle separate discrimination cases filed on behalf of the miners by the Department of Labor's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA).

"Miners are protected from reprisals under the law when they point out safety hazards," said Ed Hugler, deputy assistant secretary of labor for mine safety and health. "We urge miners to file a complaint when they have been subjected to discrimination."

An administrative law judge of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Review Commission approved a discrimination complaint settlement agreement on October 28 which provides that Black Dragon Mining Company pay miner Kirby Senter $8,000 in payment of all claims, including wages, employees' benefits and medical expenses. In a separate case approved by another judge on November 3, the company agreed to settle a discrimination complaint by paying miner Freddy Thacker $7,480 in claims and back wages. The company also will pay MSHA a $200 fine in each case.

Kirby Senter, a continuous mine operator at Black Dragon Mining Company's Mine No. 1, was fired after he had made numerous complaints to management that he could not operate the mining machine safely because the headlights were not working. He also complained that management failed to ventilate the mine properly, and Senter finally had refused to work under an unsupported roof.

Freddy Thacker, a shuttle car operator in Black Dragon's No. 2 mine, was fired last June after working only five days. Thacker, who has 12 years experience as an underground coal miner, was fired after he complained about defective steering and bad brakes on the shuttle car he operated.

Under section 105 (c) of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act, miners are protected from discrimination when in good faith they refuse to work in conditions that they reasonably believe are not safe or healthful.

Black Dragon Mining company does not admit that it violated any provisions of the Mine

Act. The administrative law judges found, however, that the miners' complaints were not frivolous and ordered temporary reinstatement of both miners before the settlements were reached. Both miners subsequently agreed to forego permanent reemployment with Black Dragon.

Investigators working from MSHA's district office in Pikeville, conducted the investigation of the discrimination complaints. — Staff Report

Sitka man acquitted in rape of 7-year-old

A Johnson County man acquitted Friday of raping and sexually abusing his 7-year-old niece was the victim in the case, his attorney said.

John Roger Bowlin, 48, of Sitka was found not guilty after two-and-a-half days of often conflicting testimony in Johnson Circuit Court. A six-man, six-woman jury delivered the verdict after deliberating for about an hour.

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney John R. Triplett claimed Bowlin molested the girl when she and her family, who live in Dayton, Ohio, visited Johnson County in March and July of 1992.

But Bowlin's attorney, John David Preston, said there were "so many inconsistencies" in the girl's testimony to discount the allegations. He also questioned whether the girl had been raped, citing conflicting medical evidence.

Following the verdict, one juror, who asked not to be identified, said the jury believed that the girl had been raped but there wasn't any evidence pointing to Bowlin. — Paintsville Herald

Cash 5 winner bought winning ticket in Pike County; gives away $100,000 grand prize

Roy Williamson has made certain that his two nieces have a happy holiday season and a prosperous New Year. The 68-year-old West Virginia resident won the grand prize in the November 9 drawing of the Kentucky Lottery's "Cash 5" game — and gave the $100,000 prize to his nieces.

Williamson arrived at lottery headquarters, in Louisville, on November 12 to receive the check for $68,000 (after taxes). The retired railroad worker said he has no real need for the money, and wanted to do something for his family. Williamson purchased his ticket at First Stop Distributors in South Williamson in Pike County. — Staff Report

Floyd County escaped major damage from floodwaters last week, but two days of steady, sometimes violent rainfall, and the rise of streams beyond their banks gave residents of lowlying areas many hours of anxiety. The Housing Authority of Martin has won its seven-year effort to become the first in the area to construct a housing complex especially for the elderly. Construction of property on the Lancer Water Gap road as a site for a future elementary school was authorized by the Floyd County Board of Education at its Saturday meeting. A Floyd County man's distaste for stolen property may have given detectives the break they needed toward solving the recent burglary here of the Western Store from which an estimated $10,000 worth of merchandise was taken. Construction is scheduled to begin soon on two new food carry-out facilities on U.S. 25 south here, and tentative completion dates were set for sometime next spring. Chronic tax problem??? Problem resolution program to the rescue

Taxpayers who feel they have reached the last straw in a chronic tax problem should contact the Internal Revenue Service's Problem Resolution Program (PRP) staff. Janice Farley, problem resolution officer for the IRS in Kentucky, suggests that taxpayers handle tax problems as soon as possible.

"Taxpayers should respond to notices quickly and try to resolve any problem through normal channels," Farley said. "PRP is designed to handle difficult situations that persist after repeated attempts have been made to solve them," she said. Farley said that a problem resolution officer can also be helpful when a taxpayer is suffering a significant hardship as a result of a federal tax problem. A "significant hardship" could mean that the taxpayer is unable to keep a job, a home, or is unable to buy needed medication.

To contact the IRS Problem Resolution Office (PRO) in Kentucky, call (502) 882-6030, or write to P.O. Box 1735, Stop 120, Louisville, KY 40201.

How to stay afloat if you're deeply in debt

Tough economic times and extended unemployment have caused some consumers to become financially overburdened and unable to pay their bills. The Better Business Bureau of Central and Eastern Kentucky has advised people finding themselves in this situation that the way to deal with it is from one creditor.

Instead, consumers should immediately and explain the problem and the circumstances. Creditors may be able to help you work out a repayment plan that fits your budget. Ignoring the situation won't make it go away. It will only come back to haunt you by damaging your credit record.

Consumers should contact their collection agencies. They should federal law, the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act, to make sure you are treated fairly. The Act covers personal, family and household debts, including money owed for the purchase of a car, for medical care or charge accounts. The law only applies to collection agencies and businesses who collect debts on a regular basis, not to creditors who contact you themselves. Within five days after first contact, the debt collector must send you a written notice detailing the amount of money you owe, the name of the creditor, and what to do if you believe no money is owed.

A debt collector may contact you in person, by mail, telephone or telegram, but may not contact you at inconvenient or unusual times or places, unless you agree. And if your employer disapproves, the collector may not contact you at work. The debt collector also is prohibited from making threats of violence, using obscene language, advertising your debt or making any untrue statements, such as falsely threatening to sue you when collecting the debt.

You can write a letter to the collection agency, telling them to stop contacting you. The agency will review the letter. If you do not want to pay, you should be further contacted to state that some specific action will be taken. But this does not free you from your responsibility to pay your debts.

To assist in reworking your budget, consider contacting a non-profit credit counseling service. One such local agency, the Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Central Kentucky, C.C.S., offers an individual counseling service with an individual program that specializes in helping debtors pay off their obligations and avoid bankruptcies. This firm has several satellite offices in Kentucky, and most services are available at no cost to the consumer. To find out which office is nearest to you, call 1-800-388-2227.

"We need to have people understand that they should call C.C.S. as soon as they realize they are having problems," explains E. A. Dyes, Manager of the Consumer Credit Counseling Service of Central Kentucky. "We can help them develop a budget before things get out of control."

The Better Business Bureau offers a booklet, "Tips On Consumer Credit," that provides information about wise credit management and consumer rights. To obtain a copy, send $3 with BBK's consent form, 410 West Vine St., Ste. 28, Lexington, Kentucky 40502.

'Kentucky teacher' wins national first-place award

The Department of Education's monthly newspaper for Kentucky educators has won a first-place national award for excellence in communication.

"Kentucky Teacher" earned the top award in its category in the 1993 Blue Pen Ink Competition sponsored by the National News Service of Government Communications. The magazine's outstanding communication publications and their producers were recognized by the competition with a first-place award. "Kentucky Teacher" has a long history of excellence in communication. It has often won awards for its distribution and content. The magazine is published monthly for teachers and administrators in the state. It is a certified publication of the Department of Education.

C. Boyesen considers the publication the communications keynote between the Department of Education and teachers.

"KERA's success depends on teachers' understanding, commitment and involvement," he said. "We publish 'Kentucky Teacher' for them. Our goal is to help teachers, the facts and the best practices they need to make KERA work in their classrooms for the benefit of students."

Emergency food and shelter funds available to local non-profit agencies

Floyd County organizations which serve people with emergency food and shelter needs may now apply for federal funds to supplement or expand their services.

Floyd County has been chosen to receive $20,604 from the Emergency Food and Shelter National Board Program, chaired by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

Under the terms of the grant, the Floyd County Emergency Food and Shelter Board determines how the funds are to be allocated to Floyd County agencies. To qualify, local governmental agencies or private voluntary organizations must: 1) be non-profit, 2) have an accounting system, 3) practice nondiscrimination, 4) have demonstrated the capability to deliver emergency food and shelter programs, and 5) if they are private voluntary organizations, they must have a voluntary board. An organization may also ask an audited nonprofit agency to act as its fiscal agent.

Funds may be used to serve meals, provide food, provide shelter, purchase food pantry or shelter supplies (limitations apply) or help with rent, mortgage or utilities.

Last year's funds were allocated to the Floyd County Ministerial Association, St. Vincent's Mission, Mud Creek Clinic, Christian Service Ministry, Wayland United Methodist Food Pantry, Martin Branch Food Pantry and United Way of Eastern Kentucky (the latter only received reimbursement for the grant's administrative costs).

All qualifying organizations are urged to apply so as to make these funds readily available to persons in danger of homelessness in all parts of Floyd County.

To request an application, a representative of an organization should contact Tina McFarland at 886-8985. Applications must be submitted to McFarland at the United Way of Eastern Kentucky, P.O. Box 1446, Prestonsburg, KY 41653 by Monday, December 6.

Experienced local board members will meet with applicants to correct or complete applications at 9 a.m. on Thursday, December 9 at St. Martha Church on Route 3. The local board will convene there at 10 a.m. the same day to allocate the funds. For more information, call Tina McFarland at 886-8985 or Gwen Hall at 874-9170.

Sandy Valley Transportation honored at state convention

Sandy Valley Transportation in Prestonsburg and its staff won a number of honors at the Kentucky Public Transportation Convention held recently in Covington.

The transportation system won Rural Transit System of the Year, Rural Volunteer of the Year, Rural System Driver of the Year, and first place in the Kentucky Transit Driver Road-ec competition.

Sandy Valley Transportation was chosen by the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet as the best Section 18 system for the year. Sixteen systems were eligible for the award.

Arnold Chaffins of Wayland was named Rural Transit Volunteer of the Year. Chaffins was nominated for the award by several drivers in the Big Sandy system and was selected by the State Award Committee, comprised of three transit managers from across the state. Chaffins helps passengers on and off the van, shows new drivers the route and helps passengers with packages.

Johnny Hall was named Rural Transit Driver of the Year. Hall shares a daily route to Lexington medical facilities. He was chosen because of his dedication to the organization, his care and concern for his clients, and the great amount of effort he puts into his job, said Scott Richardson, director of Sandy Valley Transportation.

Andrew Hiner, who drives the Magoffin County Senior Citizens route, won the state Road-ec competition. He will be sent, all expenses paid, to compete in the CTA national Road-ec next May in Pittsburgh.

The Road-ec competition consists of a written test and a grueling road skills test where drivers maneuver their vans through a very difficult course. Along the way, they are tested in backing up, right and left hand turns, passenger drop-offs, diminishing clearances, offset streets, and smoothness of ride. The Road-ec competition was open to specialty carrier systems, as well as rural systems.

The Kentucky Public Transportation Convention is held every two years. It is sponsored by the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet and the Kentucky Public Transit Association. Those in attendance represented transit authorities such as TARC and LexTran and public and private non-profit transit systems serving the elderly, disabled and rural publics.

The "Volunteer of the Year" and "Driver of the Year" honors are given by the Kentucky Public Transportation Association. Each system in the state can nominate individuals to a committee of four transit managers who select the most outstanding individuals in each category. The "Rural System of the Year" is chosen by the staff of the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet.

Sandy Valley Transportation is a private, non-profit organization providing transportation for the elderly, disabled and the general public in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties. It has been in operation for four years and is headquartered in Prestonsburg.

Sandy Valley Transportation operates 26 vehicles and has 31 employees. Services include transportation for senior citizens centers, nursing homes, adult day health care programs, family resource centers, public housing authorities, and mental health programs. The general public schedules trips to doctors, groceries, shopping centers, work and elsewhere.

Nominations sought for journalism Hall of Fame

The University of Kentucky Journalism Alumni Association is soliciting nominations for its annual induction into the Kentucky Journalism Hall of Fame.

The hall of fame was established in 1980 and 76 journalists who have made significant contributions to the profession of journalism have been inducted. They include such journalistic luminaries as author Irvin S. Cobb, publishers Barry Bingham Sr. and Henry Watterson and broadcasters Caswood Ledford and Milton Metz. Selection is made from individuals, living or dead, who are Kentucky natives or who have spent a substantial part of their careers in Kentucky.

Nominations should be received at the UK School of Journalism and Telecommunications by January 3. The inductees will be honored at a special program at UK April 18 and plaques emblematic of the honor will be permanently hang in the UK journalism and telecommunications school.

Further information can be obtained by writing the School of Journalism, University of Kentucky, Lexington, KY 40506, or by calling 606-257-4360.

VISIONS OF GRANDEURING

One of my pet peeves is people who boast about their grand-children. Those who drone on endlessly about how smart two-year-old Betsy can count to one thousand, or how precocious two-year-old Stu has already perused the Iliad.

As a grandparent, I am above this because I realize that my grandchildren, though bright, intelligent and beautiful as they are, aren't perfect. I was discussing this with a friend of mine over the telephone, and she seemed to be in complete agreement.

"Janice," I said, "I saw Lana the other day, and all she could talk about was her new grandson."

"I know, I saw her, too. It's disgusting, isn't it?"

"Did you know that he doesn't even have any hair? My little Malorie had a full head of hair when she was born. We had to blow it dry and pull it back in a ponytail."

"So did my grandson. We had to make a barber appointment for him the day he was released from the hospital."

"Did she show you a picture of him?" I asked.

"She didn't even have one in her billfold. I think she was embarrassed because I had just told her how my grandson could recite the Gettysburg Address."

"Really? When did he learn to do that?" I asked.

"He memorized it last week right after he played Mozart's fifth concerto at his piano lesson. Right now, he's learning all four verses of The Star Spangled Banner."

"Well, Hithore has been singing that for months while she twirls a fire baton," I said, smugly.

Seconds passed before I heard Janice's voice on the other end of the line as she ingested this latest bit of information.

"Have you heard about Endora and Daniel's little grandson?"

"No, what happened?"

"Oh, it's terrible. They think he's developing normally."

"How is she doing?" I gasped.

"That's what is unusual. She didn't seem the least bit upset."

"Shock," I lamented. "I'm sure she expected him to have a genius IQ. After all, her first grandchild did."

"Probably, and the most recent picture she had of him was one from the fourth of July."

"She must not want you to see him."

"I think I know why? I heard he only has four teeth."

"She must be devastated," I replied. "Zac had wisdom teeth by that age. How old is he?"

"Seven months. And I don't think he can walk either. She kept talking about how he was pulling up on chairs and things. Put that down, Stan," I heard Janice say.

"Oh, is little Stan with you today?" I asked.

"Yes. He's building a replica of the Empire State Building with his Leggo blocks."

"Hithore doesn't like blocks, but she does like to design clothes when she isn't busy reading her encyclopedias. She's all the way to the P's. She's in the living room now cutting out a pattern. Do you want her to come over and tutor little Stan?"

"That won't be necessary," Janice said, abruptly. "He has a computer class at one, and he still has to finish reading his history lesson on French."

"Malorie loved French, but her real passions are Russian and Japanese. You should hear her roll her r's."

"I've got to run," Janice said

COURT YOUR BLESSINGS

"You know," as my wife has reminded me everyday since July 1, "Christmas is just around the corner."

That's right, folks. After today, Friday, November

November 26, there are only about twenty-nine more shopping days left until Christmas (which leaves less than a month for all you Business owners to rush right out and stock up on plenty of holiday advertising).

But consider for a moment that way before of 'Saint Nick comes hopping down the bonny trail (or sliding down the chimney or whatever it is he does), of Tom Turkey has made the ultimate sacrifice to fill our bellies.

That being the case—in memory of dead ol' Tom—we here at "news central" would like to take this opportunity to announce the all-new, all-different First Annual Floyd County Times Golden Turkey Awards, presented to those who over the past few months have exhibited the most

"fowl" behavior (sorry, couldn't help myself).

And the winners are: • For the coveted Golden Turkey "Hoot-in-Mouth Disease Award": Ross Perot, whose deceptively brilliant and pitiful performance against "Most Likely To Be Mistaken For A Tree Stump Award" winner, Vice-President Al Gore, turned the NAFTA debates from an enlightened, high-spirited discussion into a school yard shouting match. "Can I finish? Can I finish?" You're finished, Ross. We hope.

plain looks awful." • The "National Enquirer" just as good as any other news forum. Well, that's it for this year's Golden Turkey Award list. If you weren't on it, now you really have something to be thankful for this holiday season. But you know, a whole new year is...just around the corner.

Now that the NAFTA debate is history, the media is directing our attention to the next Most Important Story of the Month which, at last glance, involved a worldwide crisis over the whereabouts of Michael Jackson, a good friend of Elizabeth Taylor.

Jackson has not been seen in public since posing as his sister La Toya in Playboy magazine some time ago and he has not had a hit since knocking three homers out of the park for the Oakland A's in... huh? Oh yeah. That was Reggie Jackson.

Most of the entire world is worried about Mike, especially the press, which hasn't had anything interesting to write about since the glamour faded in that case about the wife who cut her husband off.

There was that one shocker of a story in the interval, though, which advised us that Joey Butta, er, Budha, um, Bubbasmethinorother had been lying all along when he swore he and Amy Fischer had never, well, you know.

Did that guy fake us out, or what?

Anyway, back to Mike. Wherever he is.

Mike is big news because Mike has something average folks like you and I don't have.

Well, yes, he does have enough money to burn a wet mule, but that's not what I'm talking about.

Mike has a warrant waiting for him when he comes home and he has to answer some allegations which, if proven to be true, could mean the former kid star of the Jackson Five will do his next tour as Jackson Five to Ten.

Most of us are inclined to believe Mike is innocent and he's really just a misunderstood being from another planet who crashed landed his spacecraft in Diana Ross' swimming pool and who went on to make lots of cash walking backwards and singing with high-pitched squeaks because his pants were too tight. Where is Mike and why have you never seen him and Janet together? There's more to this mystery than meets the eye.

"Sorry we're late. I had to drag George here!"

Lay Away for Christmas

"Little Stan wants to swim a few laps before we leave. Bye."
"Hilone!" I called, as I walked into the living room.
"Where are you, honey?"
"Honey" was positioned on the sofa with a pair of scissors snipping what appeared to be my draperies.
"What are you doing?" I screamed. A puff formed on her cherubic little mouth and tears started trickling from her azure blue eyes. "Me makin' o' a dress," she said, tearfully.
She was making me a dress. How precious. How could I be so cruel? I hugged her and started back to the telephone to call Janice and tell her about my new wardrobe but my husband came walking through the door.
"Do you know that grand-child of yours just destroyed your draperies, and she's starting to cut up the couch!" he yelled.
"Granddaddy!" Hilone said holding up a long shred of material. "Me make o' a tie." My husband smiled and lifted our grandchild into the air.
"She made me a tie," he said. "Isn't she the smartest child you ever saw?"

FATAL INSTINCT
If this movie title sounds like a cross between "Fatal Attraction" and "Basic Instinct," then you've got the point exactly. Carl Reiner, a comic genius whose work we never get enough of, tries his hand at lampoon-ing such slick, sexy thrillers. Does he succeed? For the most part, I have to say...no.

Arnold Assante in a surprise departure from his usual roles, por-trays Ned Ravine, an ace cop who also happens to be an attorney. This is quite convenient since he can arrest someone and then turn right around and defend him in court. Kate Seeligan is Ned's wife, Laura, who's embroiled in an affair and is plotting to have hubby bumped off in order to collect on triple indemnity life insur-ance. Sean Young, also making a de-partment from her previous work, is Lola Cann, the seductress. Ned falls for and has an affair with.

When Laura fails to successfully bump off Ned, she's arrested and becomes her attorney. Wrapped up as he is in his wife's defense, he jumps in and promptly begins to stalk him with a vengeance. It's an aw-ful pick.

Reiner takes some good shots at the two movies he's combed for in the title, as well as "Cape Fear," "Double Indemnity" and "Body Heat," among others. If you don't get the refer-ences, you might find the amusement as I was. I really, I think Reiner did a masterful job.

The most delightful surprise of all in this movie is how well both Assante and Young take on the comedy genre. This is something both should do more of.

Don't listen to the detractors of this Flick. See it for yourself and decide.

Most of the 36 inmates jailed in Mason City, Iowa, started a hunger strike on the morning of May 12 to protest the quality and quantity of the prison's food. The strike was soon broken, but inmates' health was poor and they dropped all of their demands by lunchtime.

USA Today reported in October that two soccer coaches were asked to resign at Smith Academy in Hatfield, Mass., because they had permitted the older players to haze younger ones by pulling up their underpants to give them "wedgies."

In January Robert Williams, a 30-year-old, 5-foot-10-inch, 180-pound, balding, black man with a goatee and a mustache, was arrested on charges of molesting a 10-year-old girl. Recovered from their home, according to police, were 17 marijuana plants, gardening supplies, two books on marijuana cultivation, and a hand-lettered board game they created, roughly resembling Monopoly, called Dealing in Dopeville, in which from two to four players toss dice and make drug deals in different neighborhoods (in place of Chance and Community Chest cards are "Passport" and "Car Rental" cards).

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

DORIS WAS A DELIGHT! On a sad note, when I was recently on holiday in Arizona, I heard of the unfortunate death of one hell of a lady, Doris Duke, the famous tobacco heiress. Miss Duke passed away in her sleep at Falcone's Lair in Beverly Hills, one of her five great big homes worth $100k.

My introduction came to Miss Duke many years ago. I had a good friend, James P. Tullis, the great dazling decorator who at the time had taken New York City by storm and was considered one of the top interior decorators in The Big Apple. Upon our introduction, Mr. Tullis said to Miss Duke, "Miss Duke, now I know that you need publicity about as much as a new strand of pearls, but this is Hilding Wilson, a syndicated columnist, the 'Duke' of the 'Duke' and Miss Duke, who is going to give you the publicity you need with an enormous sense of humor. In fact, she could handle the sharp wit of Mr. Tullis' barb for Tullis' barb. Later in the evening, I inquired to Miss Duke about a million things that I heard of Miss Duke. I said, "I can't hardly think that you're a camel's nose under the tent." She said, "I can't hardly think that you're a camel's nose under the tent."

Doris Duke, certainly no stranger to the press, scandal and courtroom drama, was a wonderful person who was fiercely loyal to her friends and demanded loyalty from them in return. She loved to laugh, loved to party, and loved her stuff, boring society types. In addition, she had quite the cross-section of friends, from Imelda Marcos to Pee Wee Herman. In fact, when Imelda was down in the dumps and financially strapped, it was Miss Duke to the rescue with a check in the amount of $5 million — a mere bag of shells for Doris Duke. Her loyalty wasn't just of a financial nature as she came to the rescue once again for a friend, this time Mr. Herman. When the press was stalking the troubled actor after his indiscretion at a Florida porno theater, he took up residence at Doris' chic 2,700-acre estate in Somerville, New Jersey. Thus, Pee Wee was safely hidden away from press corps. With a heart of gold as big as her wallet, Doris donated millions upon millions to charity. This avid humanitarian recently donated $2 million to Duke University for AIDS research and $1 million to Michael Jackson's endangered species project. In a report that recently she wrote a $100 check for Elizabeth Taylor's AIDS foundation.

Taylor's AIDS foundation

There will never be another human being like Doris Duke, but the memories of her will live on forever with those who knew the woman behind the myth. Miss Duke was to be cremated, no services were announced, and her ashes buried at sea. The bulk of her estate is said to be going to charity.

SOAP SCRAPS

IT'S BEEN A WONDERFUL WEEK for the women of daytime. Nurses has been ranked three of the soaps currently on the air. "All My Children," "One Life to Live" and "Foley's" which was co-created by the late Douglas Marland, was the first person from daytime soaps to be inducted into the Television Academy Hall of Fame on November 20. This was the second time the Walt Disney Company and the Academy joined together in celebrating the late Marland, who was killed in Washington, D.C. in 1984. Other inductees that night were John Chancellor, Dick Clark, Phil Donahue, Bob Newhart and the late Mark Goodson and Jack Webb. "One Life to Live's" casting director, Ellen Novick, won the coveted Arturos Award presented by the Casting Society of America. This was Ellen's second Arturos in a row.

The American Women in Radio and Television honored several women including Leza Gibbons, co-host with John Tesh, of the new "John and Leza" on Hollywood and I've got Philip Tullis, co-creator and executive producer of "The Bold and the Beautiful" and "The Young and the Restless."

Among those who peopled the airwaves that night were members of both shows, including actors, producers, directors and staff. I can't forget Ken YR gave the tribute to the late Marland. YR's Tracy Brown, Rich Lauren and Peter Barton, Scott and their "BB" colleagues, John McCook, Eric and Kim Robin, Brian Sheridan when the program turned up on Carolina Island for that fascinating crossover and contribution storyline that started running earlier this month. One of the pleasures was a helicopter flight to the island that allowed Kimberlin an opportunity to video tape 150 dolphins frolicking and doing whatever it is they do when they're having a good time. (I never asked her how she knew there were 150 dolphins, not 151 or 149 or...)

We never saw it because they never didn't talk about a chance for Lynn Herring Hayes, "General Hospital" and husband Wayne Northrop (Roman, "Days of Our Lives") to do a scene together when Lucy was on "DOOL." But, says she, "we do love to work together, and it could be on a soap, we'll do it elsewhere."

Students in three primary classrooms at McDowell Grade School got a first-hand look at the children's favorite animals. Boys and girls from Patti Hick's, Jerri Turner's, and Renee Allen's class organized and held "Pet Day" at school last month. While dogs seem to be the favorite animal brought in for the event, cats, birds and rabbits were also represented. The students had the unique opportunity also to see mounted and preserved animals such as a wild boar, ram, Black Bear, fox, Rock Bass, deer, and a squirrel. These displays belonged to Larry Addie, BoBo Allen, and LeRoy Hamilton of McDowell.

AMS celebrates "Drug Awareness Week"

AMS faculty and students participated in Drug Awareness Week from October 18-21. The activities culminated into students and faculty expressing their displeasure of drug use by wearing red on Thursday. A contest was held among students to see who could wear the most red in a creative way. The winning contestants were treated to lunch at Pizza Hut. Paula Collins, 8th grade communication teacher sponsored Drug Awareness Week.

Native Americans

The class consisted of six tribes, who presented their information to their classmates by various forms of communication. The students built teepees in front of the school and danced around them, using the musical instruments.

Think About It

Parents and the dating game
Some of life's greatest mysteries will never be solved; so it is true of parents and the dating game.

My opinion at this time may not be looked at seriously because I'm just a teenager, but if you'll just think for a minute, isn't it the teenager that goes through all of what has become known as the dating game? Sure it is.

It's the parents who look down upon the opinion of their son or daughter when it comes to dating, which now dissolves the mystery of the female. After all, it's the female's radical ways that are so attractive, even though I may be the only male in this country that thinks that way. The real mystery only seems to be the female, but it's actually the parents.

Now I'm not speaking for all parents. Some parents are very easy to talk to and can give very good advice. My parents are like this, but not all teens are as lucky as me.

I can only guess at how a parent must think when their child comes to them crying over the loss of their loved one. "You don't love. You can't love. You don't know love!" What if you had to worry about paying bills and raising kids? What would you do with those kind of problems? I grant a parent these problems are bigger than breaking up with someone you've been dating, but here's how you have to look at it. The problems that a parent have are of no concern to the son or daughter. All they have to worry about is staying happy. So, to them, losing someone that you have been dating is honestly their biggest problem.

Parents sometimes do the right thing by looking at the dating game as just that: a game. Teenagers, I admit, do have a tendency to act on impulse a little too often. But, by degrading the problem, and simply looking at each situation as puppy love, makes the teen feel that they have nowhere to turn. As the old song goes, nobody knows. In many cases this is true, but other times it doesn't matter if you tell Pope John Paul, it's still not going to help you out. Dating and breaking up is just something that can be really hard and the only cure for it is time. After a few months of grieving, you find that there is no use in it. A person suddenly realizes that his or her life hasn't ended but only been put on pause for awhile.

Then comes the brainstorm of all brainstorms that sends all those bad feelings flying off to Pluto. You realize that everything is going to be okay.

So, parents are really not much help in these situations. A teen just has to stick it out alone. Maybe when I'm a parent I'll understand it all much better, but as for now this is as complex as my lame understanding gets. I'm not even sure if I ever want to fully understand it all. Though I know that twenty years from now, I'll probably be pulling my hair out and counting what gray ones I have left wondering how I could have ever thought that parents should understand more.

I can hardly tell people how to be parents. I can only give you the teen's side of the argument. Don't tell us about your problems. Set that aside and listen to our problems for a change. We'll be coming to you crying about paying bills and how mean our kids are soon enough; so just be thankful that all you have to worry about now is the mysteries of the dating game.

Forensics underway at Stumbo Elementary

One winning poster was chosen from each grade level. The winning posters will be submitted to the Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet in Frankfort. They will select four posters from each grade level to appear on the wall calendars and the 1994 desk calendars that will be distributed to various schools in Kentucky, governmental agencies, organizations, etc.

The posters winning at the state level will be on exhibit at the Capitol in Frankfort and the winners will be presented a congratulatory letter from the Governor at a ceremony in mid-November.

BLACKCATS CONFIDENT AS SEMISTATE IS HERE

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Tonight, the Prestonsburg Blackcats will travel to Danville for a renewal of last year's semistate football contest that saw the Admirals run their way to a 37-6 win over the Blackcats on their home field.

The game tonight will pit the number one team in the state against the number two. The top offensive team will battle the state's top defensive team in Prestonsburg and you can look for some hard hitting at the line of scrimmage.

One Prestonsburg player who did not get to play against Danville last year was Matt Porter who looks forward to playing the Admirals.

"It's going to be a big game," he said, "and Danville is a strong team. They have been in the past but we look forward to playing them this year."

Porter believes the Cats' defense is at its peak and ready for the Admirals.

"Our defense is playing so well right now," said the versatile player. "We should be able to stop their offense. Hopefully, our offense can turn up the score a bit. If they can't score they can't win."

Porter echoed what others on the team are saying, there's no intimidation because of the Admiral's record.

"No, none of us are intimidated by them," he said. "We got that out of us last week at Russell. In the Russell game we came kind of nervous but got that out of us and was much ready to play in the second half."

Fans are thinking that while the game won't be easy, the Cats have a shot at winning and stopping the Danville run. Kevin Farthing feels that the Blackcats will have to play a hard game.

"I think we will have to come out and play the best ball game that we have ever played in our lives," he said. "Last year they came in here on our home turf and put it all over us. We want to get them back for that."

Farthing feels that Danville may be wrong in thinking the Blackcats are scared cats.

"They're going to expect us to be intimidated when we come in," said Farthing. "But we're mature enough not to be. I think we're going to game on both sides of the football to defeat the Admirals.

"We just got to have a great defensive game and a great offensive game," he said. "If our defense plays like it has all season we can beat this bunch."

Hyden also feels no intimidation when he looks at the accomplishments of the Admirals over the past three seasons.

There is no intimidation factor when you get this far. Everyone knows that everybody else is good. I will try my best to be a leader."

Larry Morris, another stalwart on defense, may be at a loss for words but not in hitting on offense.

"We'll have to go out and play smash-mouth football if we're going to win," he said.

Paul Collins has had a banner year

carpet bad."

Mental preparedness is very important and kicker John Stout feels that his hallicub is ready.

"Yes, I feel that we are mentally prepared for the game," he said. "It will be a tough game anyway you look at it. But I also think we will come out of it victorious. We just need to keep them from running around the ends. We need to make sure we tackle and wrap up well. We will have to have some good blocking."

"Everybody will have to do their job and, if they do, we should win. We just need to play smart football. I think we will prevail."

Greg Jones feels that the Admirals' defense may be just a little weaker this year.

"Danville is a real good football team," said Jones. "They have some good running backs and their passing game is all right. But their defense is not that strong this year."

"I believe if we just work hard this week and just do what we always do, we'll have a real good ball game. I believe we can pull it off."

Shutting down the Admirals defense is priority one, according to receiver Jason Spurlock.

"That is what we will have to do first, is shut down their explosive offense," said Spurlock. "Secondly, we will have to play good defense. Our offense will have to be consistent all night long and we cannot have too many turnovers."

Spurlock said that Coach Letton has been encouraging them all week and reminds them that "we have the second longest winning streak in the state in '2A ball'."

"Coach Letton told us that Danville may have the longest winning streak in the state but that we had the second longest streak. And after they lose Friday night we will have the longest."

down there and put it all over them."

Seth Hyden, who was voted the Player of the Game last week in the Russell game thinks that not only will it be a physically tough game, but a mentally tough one also.

"We will just have to go out and play a mentally tough game," he said. "We came last Friday (against Russell) and wasn't too mentally prepared for it. We came out not thinking."

Hyden feels that it will take a great

"We're not intimidated," he said. "We'll give it our best shot and, hopefully, we'll win."

One person, like many of the others, that has been a standout this season on defense is Kyle Fitzpatrick who doesn't just look at it as a playoff game.

"It's just like a regular game," he said. "If we go out and play like we always do, we'll come back with a victory."

"The intimidation factor is not at the nose-guard position and said that the Admirals are a formidable opponent.

"They're a good football team," said Collins. "But, up front, we're going to have to move their line and get in their backfield before they know what's going on."

Defensive back, Robbie Risner, said the desire to play on the carpet at Louisville is motivation enough.

"It will be a great game," he said. "But I think we want to play on that

Hagens and Howard lead Maytown past Allen 55-44

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Allen Eagles and Maytown Wildcats hooked up in a good elementary basketball game at Maytown Tuesday night before a huge homecoming crowd that filled the Maytown gym.

Timbo Hagens tossed in 19 points and Todd Howard netted 18 to lead the Wildcats past the Eagles for their third win of the season against one loss.

Maytown got excellent inside play from Edmund Slone who finished the game with 12 points, but it wasn't necessarily the points that made Slone stand out.

He was an intimidating force around the basket and pulled down some key rebounds in the closing minutes of the game.

Ian Slone led Allen with 10 points and Kyle Conley added 10 as did Jason Keathley.

Maytown went on a 12-0 run, due in part to some costly turnovers by Allen, as they raced out to a 26-14 lead with 2:12 left in the second quarter.

Allen jumped out to a 4-0 lead with Maytown tying the game on baskets by Hagens and Howard. Allen led 8-4 before Maytown tied the game at 8.

The score was tied at 10 and at 12 before Maytown went on top 14-12 on a rebound basket by Slone to end the first quarter.

Allen tied the game at 14 on Billy Mitchell's short jumper. But it was then that Maytown went on a 12-0 run for the 12-point lead. Hagens, with his awkward-looking shot, was getting out on the break and taking

Auxier Lady Hornets edge Prater Creek; Betsy Layne rolls

The Elementary Basketball season is in full swing as county grade school teams light up the gyms at least three nights a week.

In this week's action, besides the completion of the Right Beaver Classic at Allen Central, several other games were played.

Auxier vs Prater Creek (Girls) Despite 18 points from Heather Kidd, the Auxier Lady Hornets of Jerome Greathouse, got some balanced scoring and held off the Lady Cougars 28-26 to win for the first time this season.

Coach Greathouse said it was because "we're starting to get some scoring from the bench."

Auxier had the basketball and a two-point lead when they went to a stall to run the clock down. The Lady Hornets lost the ball out of bounds with seconds showing on the clock. Auxier pressured the ball, causing Prater Creek to call a timeout. Once play resumed, Prater tried for a long pass that was intercepted by Auxier who held the ball until time expired.

Shelly Greathouse led Auxier with nine points. Tonya Honeycutt added eight. Candy Howard scored four with Carolyn Shepherd, Samantha Cross and Alrixa Spears tossing two each. Rachel Woods scored one.

Kidd led Prater with her 18 points. Brandi Watson scored four with Teresa Jarrell and Lacy Boyd hitting for two each.

Stumbo vs Betsy Layne

The John M. Stumbo Mustangs edged the Betsy Layne Bobcats 55-52 this week in basketball play.

Craig Johnson pumped in 23 points and Kenneth Johnson scored 14 to lead the Mustangs.

Heath Dale continued to play excellent basketball and led Betsy Layne with 20 points. Tommy Taulbee added 12 points and Brent Newsome scored 12.

Stumbo led 27-21 at the end of the first half as Johnson scored eight of his 23 points in the initial quarter. Kenneth Johnson had six points in the period.

Dale scored seven first quarter points as he kept his club close to the Mustangs. Taulbee had a first quarter three-pointer.

Betsy Layne had taken a 40-39 lead after three quarters, but the Mustangs outscored the Bobcats 16-12 in the final period.

Neil Newsome scored nine points for the Mustangs and Brent Tackett added four. Adam Tackett scored three with Anthony Tackett tossing in one.

Brock Bryant, Jarrad Hall and Shannon Williams had two each.

Harold vs Betsy Layne Three players scored in double figures for Earnie Tackett's Bobcats as they posted a 73-42 win over the Harold Red Devils this week. Tommy Taulbee scored a game high 23 points with Brent Newsome netting for 12 points and Heath Dale scoring 11.

Shannon Potter scored 22 points to lead Harold. Jonathan Triplett added nine points.

Betsy Layne blistered the Red Devils 22-6 in the first period and led 30-17 at the half.

Taulbee had 14 points in the fourth quarter alone to offset the scoring of Potter in the fourth for the Red Devils. Potter had eight fourth quarter points.

Shannon Williams added six for Betsy Layne as did David Howell. Justin Hughes scored four with Brock Bryant, Jarrad Hall, Jeremy Adkins and Kevin Hughes scoring two each.

Justin Burley had six points for the Red Devils. Michael Gross added three and Jacob Skoons had two.

MCA wins two

The Mountain Christian Academy Falcons won two games this week as they defeated Osborne Tuesday night at home, 48-37. The win ran the Falcons' record to 3-1 on the season.

Josh Luster led the Falcons with 25 points and Brian Osborne added 11. Ward Hale netted eight points with Byron Stapleton and Brent Slone scoring two each.

Stepp's Eagles to soar again during 1993-94 season

After a record-setting season which saw Coach Jim Stepp's Alice Lloyd Eagles win a school record 27 games and make their first ever trip to the NIAA National Tournament, Coach Stepp is excited about the prospects for his '93-'94 team.

"We either attained or exceeded all of our goals last season," said Stepp. "But our squad had a very special chemistry and an outstanding senior player in Henry Webb. Just as the University of Kentucky is going to have to respond to the loss of Jamal Mashburn, so Alice Lloyd College must make the proper adjustments to life without Henry Webb. I see with Webb's absence, Coach Stepp's cupboard is anything but bare. Returning to an already seasoned squad is Russell Clark, a 17-year-old sharp shooting senior from Pikeville. Clark joined the elite 1,000-point club last year."

"Clark will be called upon to provide senior leadership, along with fellow senior Jeff Castle, who added defensive depth for the Blackcats last year," said Stepp.

Rick Robinson, the team's forward coming off an impressive 192-93 season in which he led the league in rebounding (9.5), field goal percentage (61.5 percent) and dunks (52), is a crucial element in the Eagles' inside game.

Junior Avery Fairchild, 5'9 pp, and sophomore Robert Marcum, 12 pp, will join Shawn Hamer, 7'4 as axis players, bringing them perimeter experience to this year's team.

The key element in this year's team is one of leadership," said the Eagles coach. "We must have a couple of players step forward and take responsibility for the success of this team."

Top newcomers include 6-9 redshirt freshman Brad Arrington and sophomores Jody Nalbury, who should help bring the needed size and depth to the Eagles' front court.

Junior transfer Gary Marcum, sophomore transfer Jeff Ritchie along with the two freshmen Jeremy Johnson and Geoff Coody are additional names to watch for this season.

Top Defenses

Which teams have the top defenses in the playoffs?

That's easy to tell by the numbers that have been posted. Two teams that have held their opponents scoreless in the playoffs happen to be the teams that have met for the Class 2A title four of the last six years: Mayfield, which has outscored opponents 84-0, and Danville, which has pounded playoff opponents 130-0. Meanwhile, Covington Catholic has outscored opponents 76-3, Boone County 87-6 and Bell County 109-8.

1992 Finalist Still Alive

Five of the eight teams that participated in the finals last season are still alive for another round. Beechwood (9-3), Bardstown (13-0), Danville (13-0), Mayfield (10-3) and Boone County (11-2).

Beechwood and Danville are trying to join an elite club of teams with three consecutive titles. Pikeville became the first team to do it since the playoffs were instituted in 1959. The Panthers won consecutive titles from 1987-89. Trinity hit the trifecta in 1988-90.

season play. However, several are rematches from past playoffs.

In Class A last year, Beechwood ousted Pikeville on the road 34-7 in the same round. In 1991, the Tigers clipped the Panthers 34-6 in the championship game.

In Class 2A, Danville traveled to Prestonsburg and won 37-6.

In Class 3A, Bell County made the same trip in 1991 to Covington Catholic that it will make this week.

the ball to the basket or getting his shot from the corner.

Maytown led 30-21 at the half. Down 32-23, Allen put together a spurt that narrowed the deficit to three points 34-31. Allen's defense in the third period had the Wildcats scratching their heads. A layup by Dennis Lafferty, a short jumper from Slone and a layup by Keathley with two minutes left made it a 32-29 game. Hagens scored from the corner and Keathley's rebound basket cut it back to three.

Maytown got a rebound basket by Hagens and two free throws from Slone to take a 38-31 lead at the end of three quarters.

Trailing by nine points in the fourth period, Allen went to the three-point shot in trying to catch up with time running out. A trey by Conley and a layup by Lafferty made it a four-point game, 45-41 off two Maytown turnovers.

A second three-pointer by Conley with 1:21 left cut the lead to three 47-44 before Maytown scored the final eight points of the game for the 55-44 win.

Ethan Martin finished with four points for the Wildcats and Curus Webb had two.

Mitchell tossed in eight points for the Eagles with Lafferty tallying four.

The fun of fishing By Scott Patton and made possible by these sponsors:

Last week we talked about how and when to use a fiberglass or a graphite rod. There is one bait that can call for the use of both rods and that is the spinnerbait. I prefer to use a spinnerbait with a glass rod but there are times when you need to use a graphite rod.

I use glass rods with spinnerbaits for the same reason I use them with crankbaits. It will allow the fish to inhale the bait in further and prevent the fish from throwing the bait. The graphite rod comes in handy when the fish are taking the bait and swimming toward you during the strike.

A lot of times you won't feel the fish hit with a glassrod which allows the fish to feel you first and causes her to release the bait before you can react and set the hook. Using the right rod at the right time determines how well you can perform and the things that I've told you in this week's article and last week's article is something I pay close attention to.

If you have trouble getting fiberglass rods in your area, please contact your local tackle store. I am aware that fiberglass rods are not available just anywhere. If that doesn't work for you, you can contact me at (502)957-6766 and I should be able to get the St. Croix representative in contact with you or your tackle store. If you need this assistance, please leave a name, address, and phone number of your local tackle store and we'll get you hooked up with some fine fiberglass rods.

Number one versus number two tonight at Danville...

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Danville Admirals (13-0) will be going for their third consecutive state championship after winning back-to-back titles in '91 and again in '92.

Also, Coach Sam Harp's ballclub will be looking to win their 43rd straight game, a state record. The Ads will try to remain undefeated at 14-0 to go on to Louisville.

But, the only team standing in their way is the Prestonsburg Blackcats. The Blackcats also have an unblemished 13-0 record.

Danville finds themselves in the situation they were in this time last year; the only difference being that the game will be played on their home field this year. The Admirals visited Prestonsburg last season.

Danville came into last year's semistate game also ranked number one in the state in 2A football. They were on a 13-game winning streak.

Last year, the Admirals blew out the Blackcats 37-6 as they dominated the line of scrimmage. The only Prestonsburg touchdown came in the fourth quarter with 9:06 left in the game. Then quarterback Aaron Tucker hit then wide receiver Jason Crisp with a 8-yard touchdown pass.

Seth Hyden gained an uncharacteristic 64 yards on 19 carries in last year's semistate game. Jody Cornette averaged just a yard a carry as he rushed for a meager 17 yards on 17 carries.

Worse yet, the Blackcats had to face the number one Admirals with two key players out. Fullback Dwayne Garza missed the game because of a knee injury in last year's regional final against Lawrence County. Matt Porter was out with a foot injury suffered in practice.

That was all last year. This year the number one offensive team in the state -- Danville -- will be going up against Kentucky's number one defensive team -- Prestonsburg -- in tonight's semifinal game to determine who will meet either Mayfield or Ft. Thomas in Louisville a week from tonight.

The Admirals haven't lost a football game since the first game of the 1991 season when they fell to Steel Valley, Pa. in the Throughbred Bowl in Lexington.

The last state team to defeat Danville was Corbin in the 1990 playoffs.

The Admirals are known for their speed. Coach Harp has a boat load of backs that he can run out of the backfield. His quarterback has been noted as being just as good as some college QBs.

It will be in the trenches that this one will be won or lost. Both teams are excellent football squads. Both have become one and two in the state by different routes. Prestonsburg for their defense and Danville for their offense. Both are very deserving of their ranking.

Danville's speed did the Blackcats in last year as they got to the outside for some long yardage. Joel Gray had 178 yards rushing for the Admirals. Gray is gone this year. Nathan Harris had 122 yards rushing but he also has departed the premises.

But Colin Rogers, who scored two touchdowns last year, will return at the quarterback slot.

Rogers likes to throw the football. He passed for two touchdowns against Somerset last Friday night in his teams 33-0 win over the Briar Jumpers.

This game will be better than most expect.

Harp: "Game will be won in the trenches"

by Ed Taylor -Sports Editor

Coach Harp's scouting report..
 For Danville coach, Sam Harp, a veteran of the gridiron wars, the opinion may be limited to -- in the trenches.

That's where the Admirals coach believes the victory lies, in the trenches.

"I think that Bill (Letton) and I both know that the game will be won there," said the Daville coach. "It will be a good ball game."

age of two and a half points per game.

"If there is a weakness in this Prestonsburg team, it would be in their kicking game," assessed the Danville coach. "But I can find no weakness in their offensive or defensive game."

"Confidence."
 "Staying focused."
 "Must play best game ever."

Opinions vary in the town of Prestonsburg when you stop and ask folks about how the "big game" will go tonight when the Prestonsburg Blackcats and Danville Admirals meet for the right to move on to Louisville next week for the "big show."

Mayfield and Fort Knox meet tonight to determine the other state finalist to face tonight's winner.

A more relaxing time...
 Tailback Seth Hyden and offensive lineman Kyle Fitzpatrick found time to chat during the fourth quarter of last Friday night's play-off game against Lawrence County. The two watched as the reserve preserved a 51-6 win over the Bulldogs. (photo by Ed Taylor)

The Danville coach looks at Prestonsburg as a different team than his team faced last season.

"Prestonsburg is a vastly improved football team," said Coach Harp. "They play muckmouth football. They are capable of playing finesse football or come at you as well."

Coach Harp took note of the fact that Prestonsburg was the number one "defensive team in Kentucky."

"You don't get that ranking by just showing up," he said. "They have given up an aver-

Coach Harp said that the 42-game winning streak that his team is enjoying has not been a distraction for the upcoming game.

"Naturally, they would like to keep it going," he said, "but they're not that focused on that point that would cause them to take this one for granted."

About the Admirals...

Danville will run Robbie Wilson (5'10", 200) at one back position with junior Kinte Bess (5'10", 160) at another. Also in the backfield will be Todd Harris (5'11", 180).

Game time is set to kickoff at 7:30 p.m.
