Center relocation meets pushback

by SHELDON COMPTON

PRESTONSBURG — Prestonsburg Mayor Jerry Fannin said Tuesday there could be a deal in progress that would see the Mountain Comprehensive Care Crisis Clinic moved from its current location.

The clinic has been, for the past decade, located along Highlands Avenue, but clinic administrators say they need a new location in order to expand. That new location could have possibly been a section of town located just behind the billboards along North Lake Drive in downtown, an area once owned by the late city council member Billy Ray Collins. "Some of the residents said they'd rather not have it there, especially if there could be another location," Fannin said Tuesday. "and I mentioned locating it on the industrial site and swapping property." The industrial site in question is the flatland area where the old skylift once existed along Sugar Camp Mountain. "That property will probably give them a little more acreage and

Floyd County will be joining counties across the commonwealth in the "Work Now Kentucky" program, which aims to give jobs to area residents for the summer.

The program was first taken advantage of in Floyd County last year, with the most prominent workers enlisted with Prestonsburg's Director of Economic Development Brent Graden overseeing teams of workers painting streets throughout the city and other projects. The program last year was called "Let's Get To Work."

This year, the program, "Work Now Kentucky," has started advertising by saying, first and foremost, that its design is to help in Kentucky's economic recovery.

The program covers all of the wages for individuals in jobs with participating employees, according to information at the "Work Now" website, www.worknow.ky.gov.

Also at the website, businesses interesting in taking part can find information about how to get started while the same is available to individuals hoping to sign up for the next several months.

Employers taking part can be public, private, non-profit, for-profit or state and local governments.

Jobs can be either created for a special project or to meet existing business needs.

Youths ages 16 to 24 living with a parent or parents or a caretaker relative are eligible. Other individuals who can take part are parents residing with a child under the age of 18 or who is 18 and is attending college, recipients of

Two UNITE 'Shoot Hoops Not Drugs' basketball camps with Jeff Sheppard coming to Pike County

PIKEVILLE - Two free basketball camps featuring former University of Kentucky star Jeff Sheppard are coming to Pike County on Tuesday, June 22.

These interactive camp programs, open to all school-age youth, tip off at 11 a.m. at Phelps High School and 4 p.m. at East Ridge High School. Participants are asked to arrive about 30 minutes early to register.

Presented by Phoenix Products, the three-hour Shoot Hoops Not Drugs camps teach youth fundamental basketball skills while emphasizing the importance for them to stay drug-free.

All participants will receive a special event basketball, T-shirt and be eligible to win one of two portable basketball goals to be given away at each camp. Hotdogs and water will be provided.

"We're excited to be able to bring these camps to Pike County," said Karen Engle, UNITE director. "Shoot Hoops camps are fun and provide a safe, drug-free activity where children get to interact with positive role models while learning fundamental basketball skills."

Residents of WestCare's treatment facility in Pike County have volunteered to assist with these camps — and other UNITE youth programs — for the past five years, Engle noted. "The energy and excitement they bring is incredible and shows others it is never too late to turn your life around."

Because of the physical nature of the program, participants are asked not to wear open-toe shoes or sandals.

As a senior at the University of Kentucky, Sheppard was named the NCAA's Final Four Most Valuable Player in the Wildcats' 1997-98 National Championship season. He would later go on to play one season with the NBA's Atlanta Hawks and 3 years in Italy.

In addition to the basketball clinic, UNITE will offer a brief education program for parents and caregivers on the signs, symptoms and danger of drugs.

Shoot Hoops Not Drugs camps have already been held in Perry and Leslie counties. In addition to Pike County, remaining camps will be held on June 28 in Estill County, July 8 in Jackson County, and July 15 in Knott County.

Other sponsors for UNITE's 2010 Shoot Hoops Not Drugs basketball tour include: Jackson Energy, Knott County SportsPlex, Knott County Abuse Council, Pikeville Medical Center, Sature, SouthEast Telephone and Walmart.

Since 2006 the camps have drawn 3,640 youth participants from 50 Kentucky counties, 10 other states and Mexico.

Amendment 2

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people to peaceably assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

Our View

Summer's often forgotten heroes

A day of summer fun very nearly turned tragic June 5. It began as just another warm summer day at the Archer Park swimming pool, with the sounds of children's laughter filling the air. It quickly became deadly serious when the lifeless body of a 6-year-old boy was fished from the water.

Thankfully, lifeguard Nick Lafferty was able to keep a cool head. Remembering his training, Lafferty was able to revive the child not just to consciousness, but also to life. Within minutes, the boy was awake, walking and talking, no longer at death's doorstep.

Hearing of such a close call certainly brings chills in any parent, but it also gives us an opportunity to truly appreciate the safeguards in place that so often go unnoticed.

Lafferty is certainly to be applauded for his heroics. Without his quick action that day, this paper might have been writing an entirely different story.

Or maybe not. Lafferty is one of many lifeguards at the pool. For decades, Archer Park has given countless young adults the same training Lafferty received, installing them as protectors of our lives and our children's lives. Those efforts generally go unnoticed until such a time as this.

We all owe a debt of gratitude to the park staff for the many years of safety they have provided.

For many children, the lifeguards who sit perched above the pool are but stern supervisors, blowing their whistles to put an end to the fun of horseplay or to signal time for a break.

But for at least one little boy and his family, they are heroes, especially Nick Lafferty.

Guest Column

A legislative perspective

by REP. GREG STUMBO
SPEAKER OF THE HOUSE

It is not often that state officials set aside time to celebrate a building, but earlier this month, hundreds gathered in Frankfort for the 100th anniversary of our state Capitol.

In many ways, this building is our true Kentucky home. In serving all three branches of government, it has been the starting point for virtually every major decision the state has made during the last century, from far-reaching education reforms and civil rights legislation to the creation of our state parks and economic development incentives that have helped lure tens of thousands of jobs.

The Capitol is actually Kentucky's fourth permanent structure. The first two burned down, but the third, opened in 1830 on the same site as its predecessors, still stands in downtown Frankfort and is now a museum operated by the Kentucky Historical Society.

Some of its historical highlights include having Henry Clay serve as House Speaker; intense debates about Kentucky's role in the Civil War; and being one of the final stopping points for Daniel and Rebecca Boone, whose remains had been moved from Missouri in the 1840s for placement in the cemetery overlooking our current Capitol.

It only took a few decades before officials agreed that the older Capitol needed to be replaced. Even so, a long dispute about whether Frankfort should remain the capital kept the General Assembly from acting on a new structure until 1904.

Using federal money paid to cover costs incurred during the Civil War and the Spanish-American War, legislators budgeted what ultimately would be $1.75 million for the building, its furnishings and the surrounding grounds. While that was a considerable amount of money then, it was a bargain in many ways when you consider that this total would now be about $41 million in inflation-adjusted dollars, or less than half of what it cost to build a new building for the Transportation Cabinet less than a decade ago.

During the new Capitol's first legislative session, Governor Augustus Willson called it "a statehouse worthy of Kentucky, our people and our times." A little less than two years later, during the same week his birthplace in Hodgenville became a national historic site, President Abraham Lincoln became the Capitol's most famous permanent "resident" when a statue of him was dedicated in the Rotunda. At the unveiling ceremony, which was attended by President William Howard Taft, Governor Willson remarked that the Lincoln statue would be "a guardian spirit standing for eternity in sleepless vigil over our liberties and our hopes."

It now shares the Rotunda with statues of four other prominent Kentuckians: Henry Clay; Ephraim McDowell, the father of abdominal surgery; Jefferson Davis, the only president of the Confederacy; and Alben Barkley, who was vice president under President Harry Truman.

Other famous busts in the Capitol feature Colonel Harland Sanders, the founder of Kentucky Fried Chicken; former Governor Happy Chandler; and, the most recent, former Kentucky Supreme Court Justice William McAnulty, the state's first African-American to serve on our highest court.

This month, the Capitol added another permanent piece of artwork: four new murals high over the Rotunda. There had been plans for them even before the Capitol was finished, but they didn't come to fruition until a Corbin couple donated money for them last year. The murals, similar to the ones painted over the House and Senate chambers, depict Kentucky's heritage in various ways.

Kentucky may have outgrown its previous capitol in a matter of years, but the one serving us now has the potential to last us another century, if not two. A lot has obviously changed since 1910, but it is good to know that if the leaders of that time could be with us today, they would still feel right at home in its marbled halls.

If you have never had the opportunity to tour both capitol and the nearby Kentucky History Center, I encourage you to schedule a visit soon. It is something every Kentuckian ought to experience at least once.

House week in review

by REP. HUBERT COLLINS

Every American voter has probably heard of the "separation of powers" of government. By splitting the power of government into three "branches" or roles—Executive, Legislative and Judicial—our Founding Fathers ensured that one branch's hunger for more power is kept in check by another branch.

You also probably know that the biggest stick the Legislative branch has to hold the Executive branch in check is the "power of the purse", meaning lawmakers have the constitutional right to decide how money is spent to meet the needs of our citizens. And, likewise, the Executive—or the governor, in the case of our state government—has the power to veto not only entire bills but individual appropriations called "line items" in the state budgets. Lawmakers approve, should the governor believe those appropriations are not the best idea.

A good example of how this system of checks and balances works surfaced just last week when Governor Beshear took his pen to the roughly $17 billion state budget (House Bill 1) ok'd by lawmakers in special session on May 29 and sliced 19 provisions from both budget bill and the next two-year Transportation Cabinet budget found in HB 3—provisions that we lawmakers cannot override since we are no longer in special session.

Some of the provisions vetoed by the governor are small, some are large, but all will have some affect on the needs of Kentuckians over the next two years, and possibly beyond.

The overall theme of the vetoes, it seems, is the governor's concern that his branch will not have the flexibility and management freedom it needs to meet stiff budget cuts ordered by lawmakers. One veto will ensure that budget reductions of $131 million in fiscal year 2010 and $168.9 million in fiscal year 2011 are met while giving Executive agencies what the governor called "all the flexibility...the Executive branch can muster" to meet contract reductions. The governor said the veto will not affect spending reductions required by the budget, and reductions will be made on contracts, non-merit employees and other areas—although the veto will absolve the governor from having to cut a specific number of non-merit employees, many of them political hires, along with a specific amount spent on private contracts.

Medicaid protections that were placed in the budget were also cut in some areas by the governor, as was a provision that would require the state to study the possible expansion of Medicaid managed care and help fund an urban trauma center with Medicaid dollars. The governor also vetoed provisions in the state budget that would have exempted Mental Health/Mental Retardation Boards and local and district health departments from future budget reductions.

Another veto deletes a provision that would have mandated certain changes to the state employee health insurance plan to meet a $94 million reduction in plan costs over the next two years. (The governor will still have to find $94 million in savings, but will not have to follow the vetoed provisions which the governor said "serve only to

Governor proclaims June 'Dairy Month' in Kentucky

FRANKFORT — Gov. Steve Beshear recognized the official beverage of Kentucky by proclaiming June 2010 Dairy Month in the Commonwealth of Kentucky. Gov. Beshear signed a proclamation in recognition of the importance of Kentucky's dairy industry to the Commonwealth. "I urge all Kentuckians to support Kentucky's dairy industry, and to salute Kentucky's dairy farmers for their contributions to Kentucky," said Gov. Beshear. "The Kentucky Agricultural Development Fund has helped the regrowth of Kentucky's dairy industry with more than $10.3 million in grants and loans related to the dairy industry."

Over 1.2 billion pounds of milk are produced on Kentucky farms. In 2008, cash receipts from the sale of milk were more than $242 million, making a vital contribution to the economy of Kentucky. Kentucky also boasts several dairy processing facilities that produce a variety of dairy products, including gourmet cheeses, yogurts, cottage cheese, bottled milk, salad dressings and ice cream.

During this month, the Kentucky Dairy Development Council, Southeast United Dairy Industry Association and the Kentucky Department of Agriculture have been celebrating dairy month with special events being held across the state.

limit the options available in implementing the health insurance program.") And the governor vetoed a provision that would have exempted federally-funded state employees from furloughs, adding "...equitable treatment of our workforce is a key consideration when sacrifice is required."

Among the remaining vetoes in HB 1 was the removal of language that the governor said takes away the Executive Branch's flexibility to award grants from the Local Government Economic Development Fund; the veto of a $1 million appropriation to the Allegheny County Industrial Authority for a storage facility to be owned by J.M. Smucker Co. (although the governor stated in the veto that his Cabinet will do whatever it can with current resources to assist the employer); the veto of a provision that would cut the salary of state Economic Development Secretary Larry Hayes; the veto of $1.3 million for the Hopkins County fairgrounds and $1 million for the replacement of two water tanks in Liberty; funding for Economic Development Innovation and Commercialization centers; $500,000 for a tree nursery program, and others.

Among the vetoes in HB 3—the Transportation Cabinet budget—were the removal of a maintenance project in Shelby County and salt storage facility in Spencer County, which the Beshear Administration said lawmakers did not provide enough money to build.

One of the frustrating parts of the old check-and-balances system for us lawmakers is that we cannot return to the House and Senate to override any of these vetoes because we have already adjourned the 2010 Special Session in which both these bills were passed. There is no going back to override vetoes once a session has ended, as the 2010 Special Session did on May 29. We will have another shot at getting these provisions into law in a few months, however, when we convene for the 2011 Regular Session in early January.

I promised last week that I would fill you in this week on some more bills passed during the Regular Session, but informing everyone about the vetoes seemed more urgent. I will have more information on our "new laws" in coming columns. Have a great one.

LEXINGTON — Whether you are in support of the coal mining industry's practices or not, there is no denying that coal has a major impact on the state of Kentucky, and both sides of the debate have clear messages they need to convey. This is why the

Kentucky Cabinet for Energy and Environment provided funding last summer to the University of Kentucky Center for Visualization and Virtual Environments (Vis Center) to produce a video documentary exploring the enduring significance of coal in Kentucky. The documentary, simply but complicatedly titled "Coal in Kentucky," will premiere at 7 p.m. Tuesday, June 22, at the Kentucky Theatre in downtown Lexington.

Producer Julie Martinez has enjoyed the opportunity to explore this important topic. She believes that it is vitally important that Kentuckians learn about the issues surrounding coal and energy in our state.

"In recent years, coal has become a polarizing topic with strong feelings on all sides. Our goal for the documentary is to present a variety of viewpoints that can help Kentuckians understand the issues surrounding coal. The questions at hand are so critical for our state that it is crucial that we all join in the conversation."

cabinet, coal industry professions, the Sierra Club, Kentuckians for the Commonwealth, the Mountain Association for Community Economic Development (MACED) and others to pull together the content for the film, shooting video all over the state.

For over 250 years coal mining has been a part of Kentucky's history. The goal of the film is to examine the significance of this history, what it means today and how Kentucky can move forward to responsibly mine coal while protecting the health, safety, and welfare of its citizens, the environment, and the economy for the future.

Stephen Bailey, director of the documentary, believes that it is important to represent the wide variety of perspectives that exist around the state regarding coal and mining.

The Media for Research Lab within the Vis Center and the Department of Mining Engineering in the UK College of Engineering have worked together for the past year on the project to present a balanced picture of coal in Kentucky. They have worked with the

"It's been rewarding and challenging to work on this project because of the sheer depth of information and range of opinions that exist. I think each person we interviewed brings an important perspective that needs to be considered in the dialogue of this statewide issue."

HAZARD HERALD

HAZARD — Former University of Kentucky basketball player Derrick Miller will serve three years of probation and be required to complete the drug court program in Fayette County, according to a plea deal reached in Perry Circuit Court on Thursday.

Miller was indicted in March on two counts of felony theft by deception for taking money from a Hazard chiropractor for tickets to University of Kentucky basketball games that Miller didn't have. The chiropractor, Dr. Dale Williams, told the Herald following Miller's arraignment in District Court that this ticket scheme was not the first time Miller had abused his trust for monetary gain.

In one scheme, Miller allegedly asked Williams to sponsor a drug abuse program that didn't exist. Williams had been providing Miller's false program with monetary sponsorship for five years when Miller approached him again, asking if he would like to buy season tickets to University of Kentucky men's basketball games for the 2008-09 seasons.

Williams paid Miller $1,200 for the Miller has already pleaded guilty in similar cases in other counties as well.

According to the plea deal announced on Thursday in the Perry County case, Miller's guilty plea will have him sentenced to three years of probation, during which he must be accepted and enroll in the Fayette County Drug Court Program. He will also receive a $500 fine, and restitution in the case will be determined at the sentencing. Circuit Judge Bill Engle set Miller's sentencing date for July 22.

LEXINGTON — An assistant professor in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture hopes her research can help many Americans who have trouble losing weight and maintaining that loss reach a healthy weight. Kelly Webber's research focuses on the role motivation plays in people's ability to lose weight.

"It appears to me that many of us know the right things to do to lose weight, but we don't do them," said Webber, who works in the UK Department of Nutrition and Food Science. "My research studies what happens with a person's motivation that either helps or keeps them from losing weight." During the 16-week weight-loss study, Webber measured motivation levels of the 66 overweight or obese female participants, and found that the women who found participants who were self-motivated were more likely to lose weight than those who were motivated by participants who were not. The more self-motivated individuals were, the more likely they were to self-monitor their diet and exercise, which could lead to more weight loss. In addition, she was able to pinpoint the exact time in the weight-loss study when participants' motivation starts to wane, which was after four

The results from this study led her to a second study where she experimented with using motivational strategies to help people lose weight. She found that those who were self-motivated to begin with did not benefit much from the extra motivational strategies. However, those who were not highly self-motivated benefited greatly from the motivational strategies and lost more weight than participants in the control group.

"If we can provide support to people before their motivation starts to tail off, we may be able to help them lose weight," she said. Webber hopes to use the findings from these studies to do further studies and look at the benefits of a motivational intervention in people with chronic diseases related to overweight or obesity.

Results from Webber's studies were published this year in the Journal of Nutrition Education and Behavior and the International Journal of Behavioral Nutrition and Physical Activity.

a better facility," Fannin continued. "There's also additional property up there for development that could create 35 more jobs. Mountain Camp is wanting to build a new facility because they say they are limited with space for playgrounds and so forth."

Fannin said the deal had only been discussed at this point, but that the MCCC board of directors was set to meet Thursday night for further talks as to whether the offer is something that could benefit their overall goal for a new facility.

The crisis center usually houses anywhere between six to seven in-need children, with the longest stay set at a 10-day visit.

"It's a short-term situation where they can get the kids out of a bad situation and hopefully move them someplace else," said Fannin.

Though not directly tied to the relocation talks for the clinic, Fannin and the rest of the city council voted

Monday evening to change insurance providers, a move that will save the city about $80,000 annually.

The city had been using the League of Cities' insurance provider, which was locally headed up by the firm of Hall and Clark Insurance.

"In the past, if we had an insurance issue come up, we'd call Dick Clark with that agency and hand it over to him," said Fannin. "But the vote to switch to Travelers Insurance will make for some real savings."

Fannin said the city has decided at this time to allow the savings to be placed in a general fund contingency account, adding that if unforeseen project costs were to arise, the money could be utilized to soften the financial blow.

Guilty

According to court documents, Barnett hired an undercover agent with Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF) to murder an individual in Huntington, W.Va.

Barnett allegedly gave the ATF agent $5,000 as a down payment and promised to pay him $4,000 more after the murder. Barnett also allegedly provided the undercover agent with a machine gun, a pistol and two silencers to be used for the murder.

According to the summary of the investigative activity that led to the arrest warrant, Barnett called the undercover ATF agent's cell phone on March 5, 2009, requesting that they meet in Mount Sterling. The agent reported that he met with Barnett at a hotel in Mount Sterling where he was handed $5,000 in cash by Barnett, who told him that he would receive an additional $4,000 once he had completed the murder. The agent said that he showed a picture of the intended victim to Barnett, who confirmed that it was the person that he wanted killed. The agent met Barnett again at the same hotel and provided him with the guns along with several hundred rounds of ammunition.

Barnett's sentencing has been scheduled for Sept. 24 at 9 a.m. in Lexington.

The investigation was conducted by the ATF.

Expo Center to host indoor football team

TIMES STAFF REPORT

PIKEVILLE — Gridiron on the indoor green will begin as the Eastern Kentucky Exposition Center will become a home and host to an Ultimate Indoor Football League (UIFL) team in 2011. The Eastern Kentucky Expo Center was chosen to be the home for the fourth league team for the 2011 season and will host seven home games season, beginning in March.

"It has been great working with Steve St. John and his staff at the Expo Center," said UIFL co-founder Michael Taylor. "We are focused on being the most fan friendly sports league in the country. To start the team off with that mission, we are excited to announce a 'Name the Team' contest. This is Eastern Kentucky's team, and we want them to have input on the team name!"

The UIFL is a progressive, indoor football league focused on the fan's overall experience.

The league has already announced teams in Johnstown, Pa., Huntington, W.Va. and Northern Kentucky. Announcements for more teams will follow in the coming weeks. To date, all arenas hosting UIFL are managed by SMG. The Eastern Kentucky Exposition Center is the latest to execute a contract.

"We are very excited to offer this new entertainment to the region," said Steve St. John, General Manager of the East Kentucky Expo Center. "Arena football is a fast-paced game and very fan-friendly. I know Kentucky is basketball country, but Eastern Kentucky has its fair share of football fans. The rich tradition in the region's high school football programs proves this at Belfry, Johnson County, Prestonsburg and the Hillard Howard days in Pikeville."

Boys' All-Stars: Indiana sweeps Kentucky

Justice leads Buegrass contingent

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LOUISVILLE — The Kentucky All-Stars fell short in their bid to avoid a sweep on Saturday against the Indiana All-Stars. DeShaun Thomas scored 28 points and Terone Johnson netted 25 to help Indiana complete a sweep of Kentucky with an 81-69 win in Indianapolis.

Johnson (Indianapolis North Central) was named player of the game after shooting 9-for-16 from the field at Conseco Fieldhouse. He is headed to Purdue.

Johnson netted 23 points on Friday at Bellarmine University as Indiana edged Kentucky 100-97.

Thomas (Fort Wayne Luers), the reigning Indiana Mr. Basketball who is headed to Ohio State, pulled down 12 rebounds to register a double-double.

Erik Fromm pulled down a game-high 15 rebounds for Indiana, which outrebounded Kentucky 58-44.

Kentucky Mr. Basketball Elisha Justice led the Bluegrass contingent, scoring a team-best 20 points. Ricardo Johnson joined the Shelby Valley standout in double figures, dumping in 12 points. Johnson was the only other Kentucky player to reach double figures.

Neither team shot well as Indiana connected on 34 percent of its shots and Kentucky finished 31 percent from the field.

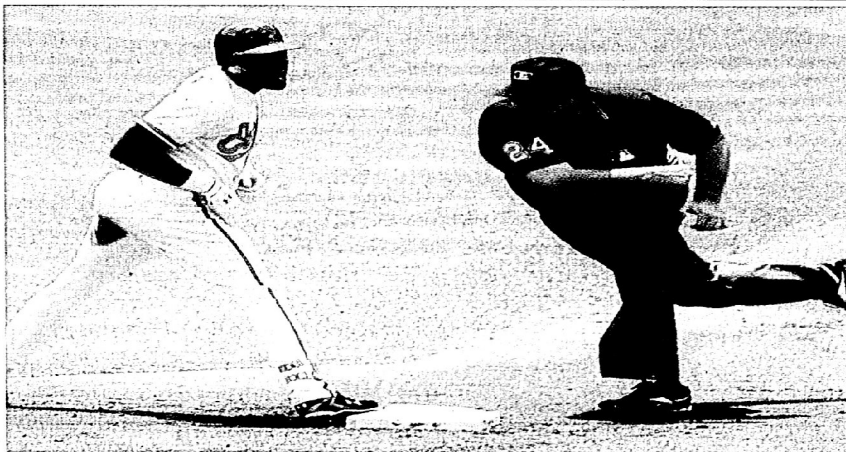

Indiana players Russell Byrd (Michigan State) and Russell Byrd (Wisconsin-Green Bay) missed the game due to injuries.

Floyd County native Jerry Layne is in his 22nd season as a Major League Baseball umpire. Layne, who lived in Betsy Layne as an infant before his family moved to Ohio, made his MLB debut in 1989 and since then has been a part of several memorable games. His resume boasts working the 2005 World Series, three National League Championship Series (1997, 1999, 2006), five Division Series (1995, 1998, 2002, 2005 NL; 2001 AL) and two All-Star Games (1994, 2001).

Layne, who was born in Pikeville, was the home plate umpire when slugger Barry Bonds belted his record 71st home run in 2001. He was also behind the plate for Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Fernando Valenzuela's no-hitter on June 29, 1990 at Dodger Stadium.

After high school, Layne went to Harry Wendelstedt Umpire School, ultimately completing the course and being one of 12 umpires chosen for another evaluation camp.

Layne got his start in professional baseball in the minors. He called the first Paintsville Highlander game in the Appalachian League. Layne also called games in the Southern League, Florida State League and Pacific Coast League as part of a 12-year stint in the minors.

Kinzer finishes 17th in annual Dream 100

TIMES STAFF REPORT

ROSSBURG, Ohio — The Kinzer Motorsports team visited famed Eldora Speedway June 11-13 for the annual running of the Dream 100. The highest paying event in the Dirt Late Model industry drew 104 competitors to the 1/2-mile, high-banked Tony Stewart-owned dirt track. Brandon Kinzer started off the weekend by laying down the 28th fastest lap during the two-round qualifying session on Friday night.

During heat race action on Saturday evening, Kinzer held off a strong field of cars behind him to capture a convincing heat race victory. Unfortunately for the drivers and tens of thousands of fans in attendance, Mother Nature stepped in following the six heat races and forced the postponement of the remainder of the program until Sunday afternoon. After starting third in the $100,000-to-win Dream 100 on Sunday, Kinzer ran into problems and only completed 47 circuits. The Allen native was later credited with a 17th place finish in the 100-lap event.

Shelby Valley product to play baseball for Bears

TIMES STAFF REPORT

PIKEVILLE — The rebuilding process is a long, drawn out thing, but for Pikeville College Baseball Coach Robert Taylor, it is one he looks at with excitement.

Taylor, a Pikeville College Hall-of-Famer who was a three-time all-conference pick, is looking for young men who want to come to the school and be a part of getting the program on the right track. He found another local who shares his excitement.

Colton Bentley of Shelby Valley High School recently signed a scholarship agreement to play for the Bears. Bentley had 29 hits for the Wildcats in 15 games, and 11 of them went for extra bases. He had 10 doubles, a home run and struck out only four times as a senior. "We're very pleased to be able to find young men like

Kentucky Fish And Wildlife Commission proposes 2010-11 early migratory bird season dates

TIMES STAFF REPORT

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission, at its quarterly meeting June 11, proposed to the General Assembly the 2010-2011 early migratory bird season dates.

The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission recommends all hunting, fishing and boating regulations for approval by the General Assembly and approves all expenditures by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. All recommendations must be approved by legislators before they become law.

The 2010 - 2011 Early Migratory Bird Seasons: Mourning Dove: Sept. 1 - Oct. 24, 2010; Nov. 25 - Dec. 3, 2010; Jan. 1, 2011 - Jan. 7, 2011. Canada Goose: Sept. 4 - 12, 2010.

Wood Duck and Teal: Sept. 15 - 19, 2010.

American Woodcock: Oct. 16 - Nov. 29, 2010.

Virginia and Sora Rail, Common Moorhen and Purple Gallinule: Sept. 1 - Nov. 9, 2010.

Common Snipe: Sept. 15 - Oct. 31, 2010; Nov. 25, 2010 - Jan. 23, 2011.

Season lengths and bag limits remain the same as last year.

In other early migratory bird business, the commission proposed opening Swan Lake on Boatwright Wildlife Management Area (WMA) to wood duck and teal hunting. Swan Lake is the only section of Boatwright WMA not open to wood duck or teal hunting. Hunters must use U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service approved non-toxic shot at Swan Lake.

The commission also proposed extending the spring squirrel season dates. Under the proposal, the spring squirrel season would open on the third Saturday in May and close the third Friday in June. Previously, the season opened on the first Saturday in June.

The commission also recommended removing the restriction on shot size for hunters using shotguns to hunt furbearers such as coyotes. Previously, furbearer hunters could not use buckshot to take these species.

On shooting ranges on wildlife management areas, the commission barred certain weapons and ammunition from use. Users of shooting ranges on wildlife management area cannot use cannons, artillery or replicas of these weapons, mortars, grenades, incendiary bullets, explosive devices or explosive bullets. They cannot fire shotgun slugs larger than 10-gauge or modern firearm bullets with more than 500 grains of powder. They also may not use muzzleloader balls larger than .78 caliber, rifles that are not shoulder-mounted or pistols that are not hand-held. The commission proposed these changes to reduce damages to the shooting range caused by these weapons and for safety reasons.

The next Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission meeting will be held at 8 a.m. Friday, August 13, at #1 Sportsman's Lane off U.S. 60 in Frankfort. Persons interested in addressing the commission must notify the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife commissioner's office in writing at least 30 days in advance to be considered for placement on the meeting agenda. People who are hearing impaired and plan to attend the meeting should contact Kentucky Fish and Wildlife at least 10 days in advance and the agency will provide a translator. To request to address the commission, write to KDFWR, Commissioner Jon Gassett, #1 Sportsman's Lane, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601.

NASCAR: Daytona race cars to have larger restrictor plate

TIMES STAFF REPORT

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. — NASCAR announced last week that Sprint Cup Series teams will use carburetor restrictor-plate openings of 1 1/32 inches for the July 3 event at Daytona International Speedway.

The plate in February at Daytona was 63/64-inch.

Last week's announcement pertains only to next month's race — the last Cup Series event on the current Daytona asphalt. The 2.5-mile, high-banked super-speedway will be repaved prior to the 2011 Daytona 500.

Each restrictor plate contains four openings which restrict air flow to the engine, thus slowing cars. Larger openings mean more air, and more speed.

"We think this will be a needed boost due to the additional drag we've picked up since switching from a rear wing to a rear spoiler," said Robin Pemberton, NASCAR vice president of competition.

Rule changes announced Jan. 21 mandated switching from a wing mounted on the rear deck lid of NASCAR's new car, back to a more traditional stock-car spoiler. The March event at Martinsville Speedway marked the first race for the new spoiler.

Carburetor restrictor plates are used only at Daytona and 2.66-mile Talladega Superspeedway. Events at those tracks are famous for their close competition.

The 1 1/32-inch size openings will be the largest since the 1-inch mandate in 1988, the first year the horsepower-reducing plates were implemented for yearly use in Cup Series competition.

Teams used openings of 15/16-inch for this season's spring race at Talladega. That size was determined following a March 16 test at Talladega that helped answer several mechanical questions, among them, spoiler height and the restrictor-plate openings.

RACING TIES TRACING BACK TO FLOYD COUNTY

Veteran NASCAR Sprint Cup Series driver Tony Stewart spent some time in Prestonsburg early on in his racing career. Stewart raced at his own track, Eldora Speedway, over the weekend in the Dirt Late Model Dream.

Three Kentucky drivers net spots in feature race

TIMES STAFF REPORT

ROSSBURG, Ohio — Billy Moyer walked a tight rope to victory in Sunday afternoon's postponed DIRTcar Racing-sanctioned Dirt Late Model Dream XVI at Eldora Speedway.

Living up to his "Mr. Smooth" nickname, the 32-year-old dirt Late Model Hall of Famer from Batesville, Ark., overtook Ray Cook of Brasstown, N.C., for the lead on a lap-20 restart and never made a mistake the remainder of the 100-lap distance. He tamed a slick daytime track surface dominated by a precarious top lane to pocket the prestigious race's $100,000 winner's check for the second time in his legendary career.

In a race that saw cars repeatedly sustain right-rear body damage from bouts with the Big E's unforgiving outside wall — including those driven by runner-up Cook and third-place finisher Dale McDowell of Chickamauga, Ga. — Moyer got his Clements-powered Victory Circle chassis to the checkered flag virtually unscathed.

"Your mind's gotta be razor sharp to run on that ledge for a hundred laps like that and never boggle," said Moyer, describing the thin cushion just inches from the high-banked, half-mile oval's concrete barrier. "This track is like running on an ice cube. You just slide in there and time it just perfectly to where you get your right front on that lip first. If you get in there a little bit too hard, you're in the wall over that little berm."

Moyer, who started from the pole position, weathered a mid-race challenge from 2008 World 100 winner Shane Clanton of Locust Grove, Ga., before pulling away from Cook during the final laps. He crossed the finish ahead of a half-straightaway ahead of Cook, who started second and led laps 1-20 in his battle-scarred Masterbilt car.

McDowell, who started 19th, benefitted from the race's attrition to place a quiet third in NASCAR star Clint Bowyer's Warrior machine. Chris Madden of Grey Court, S.C., started 21st and wasn't far behind McDowell throughout the distance en route to a fourth-place finish in his Team Zero by Bloomquist car, while shaded chassis builder, five-time Dream champion Scott Bloomquist of Mooresburg, Tenn., completed the top five after recovering from a lap 75 pit stop to change a flat right-rear tire. Moyer's triumph returned him to the spotlight at Eldora, a track he dominated during the '90s. He won the World 100 a record five times between 1991 and 2000 and captured the Dream in 1998.

"The last three or four years I haven't even been close here," said Moyer, who joined Bloomquist (five) and Freddy Smith (two) as repeat winners of the Dream event. "I've been working to try and figure this place out again. Things are so much different from the last time I won here to now."

"The sport evolves so fast and you just gotta stay on top of it, and I think we finally found something that works here again."

Moyer flexed his newfound Eldora muscle on a lap-20 restart following a caution flag for Brian Shirley of Chatham, Ill., who slowed in turn four with body damage. The veteran dove underneath Cook entering turn one and exited turn two in control of the lead for good.

"I measured him up there on the first (restart)," said Moyer, who won one of six heat races run on Saturday night before thunderstorms postponed the remainder of the program to Sunday afternoon. "I could've did it (made the pass) that first soft, but I just didn't want to be an idiot and wreck us both like that."

The next (restart) I just kind of knew where his little weak spot was. It was really early in the race, but I figured the way the track was I better get after it right now and get into the lead."

Cook, 38, had already damaged the right-rear corner of his car from slapping the wall, but he credited Moyer with a slick move to take command.

"Really done a good job there," said Cook, a five-time Dream starter who matched his career-best event finish of second in 2000. "We were talking about him being a senior citizen earlier, but that experience paid off. He got a good run on me on the restart and got us with a slide down there."

Cook was happy to secure a $20,000 runner-up finish despite racing nearly the entire distance with a crushed rear spoiler and losing second place briefly to Clanton.

"I knocked that (spoiler) off while we were leading actually," said Cook, who added to his car's body damage when he slid into the turn four wall while battling with Clanton on lap 61. "I just got up there (in the corner) too hard."

"This track was probably as challenging as it gets because it was just really, really tight to that concrete cushion." But it's Eldora, and you just gotta stay after it. We almost got it done, so we'll just come back and try it again."

Moyer likely saw his stiffest late-race threat disappear when Clanton's bid came to an abrupt end. Sixth at the halfway mark after starting 10th, the 34-year-old driver vaulted up to second by lap 61 and caught Moyer moments later.

Clanton ducked underneath Moyer rounding turns one and two on lap 65, but that was as close as he got to the lead. His attempt to join Moyer, Bloomquist, Donnie Moran and Jimmy O'Neal as the only drivers to win both the World 100 and the Dream evaporated when he slowed with a broken right-rear shock bolt on lap 69, bringing out the seventh of the race's eight caution flags.

The rough-and-tumble A-Main was slowed by three caution flags for debris on the track and four for disabled cars. The only serious accident occurred on lap 58 when Jonathan Davenport of Blairsville, Ga., gave up his race-long hold on third place after slapping the turn-one wall, bouncing off Clanton's passing car and collecting fifth-place Steve Casbolt of Richmond, Ind., whose machine sustained heavy damage. Clanton's fifth-place John Blankenship of Williamson, W.Va., who was able to continue.

Defending World of Outlaws Late Model Series champion Josh Richards of Shinnston, W.Va., who started 16th, finished sixth after being knocked from the top five by Bloomquist on lap 91. Don O'Neal of Martinsville, Ind., transferred to the Dream after running the C- and B-Mains and marched forward from the 25th starting spot to finish seventh and Blankenship was the last driver on the lead lap in eighth place.

Several potential challengers saw their hopes dashed by smacks of the wall that tore up their cars and led to their early departures. That group included World of Outlaws regulars Steve Francis of Ashland, who hit the concrete on lap one but still ran fourth until a turn-four wall encounter on lap 41 ended his day. Tim McCreadie of Watertown, N.Y., who climbed from the 13th starting spot to fifth in just eight laps but bent up his mount's front end when he caught the turn-two wall three circuits later (he ultimately retired with an overheating engine while still holding fifth on lap 55); and Darrell Laquan of Union, who was bidding for sixth when he crashed the right-rear corner of his mount on lap 49.

Allen driver Brandon Kinzer finished 17th.

Sunday's preliminary action drew a crowd of 10,000. Wooster, Ohio, emerge victorious in the 15-lap C-Main and McDowell capture the 20-lap B-Main.

Bike Trek to Shakertown celebrates 25th anniversary

LOUISVILLE — Registration for the American Lung Association's 25th Anniversary Bike Trek to Shakertown is well underway, and since space is limited, cyclists who are interested in participating are urged to sign up now.

The event is scheduled for Sept. 18-20, and includes both a two- and three-day option. This year's ride will be a special celebration of the Bike Trek's regional prominence as a premier, bicycle tour and a highly successful benefit, which has raised over $2.5 million to fight lung disease.

The Bike Trek begins and ends in Harrodsburg, with the first overnight at Danville's famous Pioneer Playhouse. Sunday's ride takes cyclists across Herrington Lake through beautiful countryside to Shaker Village of Pleasant Hill ("Shakertown"), where they may tour the village and visit the craft shops. Riders who registered for the three-day trip will enjoy a bountiful dinner at Shakertown's Trustees' Inn. A special after-dinner treat will be a concert by folksinger Michael Johnathon, who hosts the popular Woodsongs Old Time Radio Show, which tapes every Monday night before a live audience in Lexington and is broadcast on over 450 radio stations worldwide.

The two-day option (Sept. 18-19) includes Saturday's ride and overnight in Danville, plus Sunday's ride to Shakertown, concluding with an afternoon shuttle back to the start point.

No matter the level of cycling ability, there's something for everyone. Beginners can choose the basic route of 30-35 miles each day, while those wanting a greater challenge can opt for a 69-mile, moderately hilly ride on Saturday and a similar route on Sunday. Monday's routes will both be shorter.

According to Trek Director, Carolyn Embry, "The Bike Trek's lasting success is due in part to the route's spectacular network of scenic country lanes, coupled with first class service and countless amenities to make the event a 'mini-vacation' on wheels." Some of the trek's features include a gear truck for luggage, experienced tour leaders, on-road repair service, rest stops with refreshments and free massages at the end of the day.

Contributions raised by Bike Trek participants help the 35 million Americans living with lung disease.

Proceeds fund medical research, education, and advocacy for public policy that will advance the association's mission to save lives by improving lung health and preventing lung disease. "Many participants are riding in honor of someone who suffers from a lung ailment or in memory of a loved one lost to lung disease," Embry said.

To register for the trek, each rider pays a $60 registration fee and agrees to raise pledges to fight lung disease. Participants can qualify for a wide array of prizes as they reach various pledge levels. Co-sponsors of the event include the following:

Jewish Hospital & St. Mary's Healthcare; Rockcastle Regional Hospital; Central Baptist Hospital; Barry W. Ceridan, D.D.S.; Stifel Nicolaus; Byerly Ford; Bicycle Sport; Pedal the Planet; WAVE-TV, New Country 103.1 (Louisville Media); WLEX-TV, 590 WVLC, Z-ROCK 103, and 92.9 The Bear (Lexington media).

Solicitation of Public Comment

The Kentucky Division of Abandoned Mines (KYDAML) is soliciting public comment on a proposed Abandoned Mine Land Enhancement Rule Reclamation Project in the community of Wheelwright, in Floyd County. The project is being proposed pursuant to guidelines in 30 CFR 874.17, and the Commonwealth of Kentucky's Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation Plan. The Division will accept comments from the public until close of business June 25, 2010. Any person or group may submit comments in writing through the United States Postal Service or via email.

The project involves a proposed cooperative reclamation effort between the Kentucky Department for Natural Resources (DNR) and a contractor to remove coal refuse material from an abandoned coal refuse dump located on the west side of KY Highway 308 near Wheelwright. The refuse material was deposited by previous pre-law mining operations. The project proposes to remove the refuse material using suitable equipment and transport it to a local permitted preparation plant.

After refuse removal operations are completed, the former dump area will be regraded and revegetated in a manner described in the project narrative.

You will find a description of the proposed project and plan maps on the internet at <http://www.aml.ky.gov/> for viewing and download. Or call (502) 564-2141 and request to have a copy of the project mailed to you.

EVERYBODY'S SCIENCE

Why I love my job

by SANDY MILLER HAYS
AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH SERVICE

I've always considered myself one of the luckiest people I know for one key reason: I have always loved what I do for a living.

It's a sad fact of life that many people really don't enjoy their jobs. Whatever they do brings in a paycheck that puts food on the table and keeps a roof over their head, but look at it this way: If you're doing something you dislike, for 40 hours a week times 50 weeks a year times 30 years, that's 60,000 hours of your life spent being miserable.

Sure, I'm just like everybody else in that I have my share of "those days" — the ones where you feel lucky to survive until quitting time. But for the most part, all through my years as a newspaper reporter and for twice that many years with the Agricultural Research Service (ARS), I have enjoyed coming to work every day, because I just never know what I'm going to hear next.

It's like walking into the office every morning and finding a beautifully wrapped box waiting on my desk. What's inside? Is it going to be something that makes us change our whole way of thinking about how we treat our bodies, or treat "Mother Earth"? Or is it something that's going to make everyone say, "You've got to be kidding"? Is it something that could literally save the world as we head into a future with an exploding population, with no more land available to grow food to feed them? Or might it be a combination of all of the above?

Here are a couple of "wait until you hear this" stories that have crossed my desk lately; I enjoyed them, and I hope you do, too.

■ If you keep tropical fish, you're not likely to think of algae as your friend. But the scientists at ARS say algae could actually be very useful in cleaning up water on a scale significantly larger than your fish tank — say, for example, the Chesapeake Bay.

The ARS scientists set up four algal turf scrubber (ATS) "raceways" outside dairy barns at ARS' flagship research center at Beltsville, Md. The shallow 100-foot raceways were covered with nylon netting that created a scaffold where the algae could grow.

For the next three years, from April until December, a submerged water pump at one end of the raceways circulated a mix of fresh water and raw or anaerobically digested dairy manure effluent (yes, that is what you think it is) over the algae. And within two to three weeks after the ATS system was started up every spring, those raceways supported thriving colonies of green filamentous algae.

The scientists harvested the wet algae from the system every four to 12 days, dried it and analyzed the dried biomass for nitrogen and phosphorus levels. The bottom line: The algae recovered 60 to 90 percent of the nitrogen and 70 to 100 percent of the phosphorus from that dairy manure effluent. And if the nitrogen and phosphorus were being captured in the algae, that meant they weren't running off into the Bay!

■ It's not exactly "beers for Bossie," but ARS scientists say hops—a key ingredient of beer brewing—could also help cows do their bit to clean up the environment.

Cows have a slew of naturally occurring bacteria in their bellies, to help them digest grass and other fibrous plants. But one type of bacteria can be bad news; they're called hyper-ammonia-producing bacteria, or HABs. While the other bacteria are helping their bovine hosts convert plant fibers to cud, the HABs are breaking down amino acids, a chemical process that produces ammonia.

Enter the secret ingredient: hops.

Joh corps students compete for 'iron chef' title

MAYS LANDING, N.J. — Four aspiring chefs from the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center are in the Atlantic City, N.J., area to compete in the 2010 Job Corps Culinary Arts Expo June 14 through 18 at Atlantic Cape Community College.

The Carl D. Perkins culinary students participating in the expo are Cecilia Maddox, Lemar Peeple, Roland Polk, and Arianna Fields under the direction of Chef Terry Marrs, culinary instructor at the Carl D. Perkins center.

Sixteen teams representing 15 Job Corps centers and academies in Maryland, Delaware, the District of Columbia, Kentucky, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, West Virginia and North Carolina are competing for the "iron chef" title and professional culinary tools.

During the first round of competition, each team will have three hours to prepare 10 servings of a healthy meal, create a decorative centerpiece and present these to a panel of professional judges. Teams are judged on food preparation and knowledge, taste and sanitation, and overall presentation. After the judging, guests and professionals will observe and taste the food.

Four teams will compete during the final round on Thursday, June 17, and the winning team will be announced during an award ceremony on Friday, June 18, at Dave and Buster's at Penn's Landing in Philadelphia, Pa.

The Connecticut Culinary Institute and Clemens College will provide $50,000 in scholarships for all students participating in the expo.

Job Corps is a program of the U.S. Department of Labor. It is the nation's largest and oldest federally-funded job training and education program for "at promise" youth ages 16 through 24. With 123 centers nationwide, the program trains and educates approximately 100,000 youth each year in more than 75 career areas, including the culinary arts. YARD OF THE MONTH

Cast against landmark, home is a sight itself

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

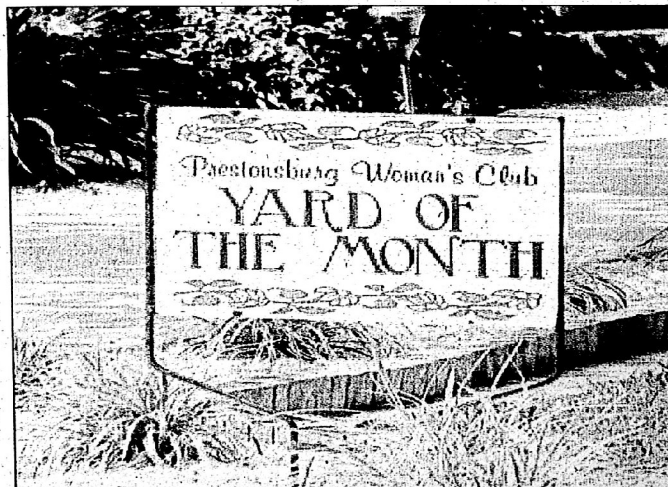

PRESTONSBURG — With the West Prestonsburg Bridge as a background, the home of David and Martha Layne was named the Yard of the Month by the Prestonsburg Women's Club for the month of June.

David Layne serves as treasurer for the Floyd County Fiscal Court, and it could be said that his yard is a treasure in its own right.

Along with the impressive scenery that includes the landmark bridge, the well-kept lawn and abundance of space makes the Laynes' yard a deserving selection for Yard of the Month honors.

While the yards are located in Prestonsburg, the locations are spread out across the area. The Yard of the Month for May was located on the Big Branch of Abbott, and two previous yards have been located in Lancer.

The Prestonsburg Women's Club selects a new Yard of the Month around the first of each month during spring and summer. Some of the yards are covered with a variety of flowers and foliage, while others are more simple, yet are just as maintained and impressive. When a yard is selected, a sign is placed in the yard designating it as the Yard of the Month. The sign remains in the yard until the end of the month. The club will soon be on the lookout for the Yard of the Month for July.

A July 1 completion date is expected for implementing the Enhanced 911 system in the BellSouth dialing area. Floyd County E-911 coordinator Bill Dotson told the E-911 Advisory Council, Wednesday, that 95 percent of the address notification and verification status was complete for the BellSouth area.

One winner came back to town for the occasion, one was on the job, one was out of town and another provided the setting for the event. Thirty Years Ago

(June 11, 1980)

The official state police report of the fatal shooting early Saturday night at Theaqua of Chester Calhoun, 48, of Prestonsburg, and the statement ascribed by Calhoun's widow are at wide variance. According to the police, State Trooper Philip Nickles shot and killed Calhoun when Calhoun resisted arrest. Mrs. Calhoun said a man in a brown uniform followed her husband over a bank and then she heard three shots fired while Nickles was at his radio. Discussion of the state's audit of the city by Bill Bottoms brought to light problems with the way flood relief money had been spent in 1977. A possibility exists that the money will have to be repaid to the state. Ernest Napier, 29, of Whitehouse, is being held in Johnson County Jail in default of a $50,000 bond. Napier is accused of the fatal shooting of Donald Henry Blackburn, 29, of Endicott.

The shakeup at the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center resulted in another year of funding for some programs scheduled for termination. The programs will continue with a substantially reduced administrative staff. An earlier decision to close the Layne House, a detoxification center for alcoholics, has been reversed although outpatient alcoholic services have been cut.

Budget cuts in the State Department for Human Resources touched this county as six women employees of the Big Sandy Area Detention Center were fired and the closing of the girls' unit was announced. The facility was designed to accommodate 25 juvenile offenders. In its 15-month operation, however, the daily census has averaged about nine youths—seven boys and two girls.

Hard pressed in recent months for cash, Floyd County will have for the fiscal year beginning July 1 anticipated revenues of $242,291, it was reported this week as the county's Budget Commission was preparing to allot money to the various purposes for which tax monies may be expended. Almost complete paralysis of the truck coal mining in this county is credited with contributing the greater part of the growing list employed in this county and speeding departure of numerous workers to other.

One of Eastern Kentucky's finest hospitals is envisioned for Prestonsburg as workmen employed by Dr. D.H. Daniel are not only remodeling the old Hereford residence in West Prestonsburg for use as a hospital, but are at work on a 32-room annex to the original structure.

County officials here have been told on "good authority" that actual construction work on the Johns Creek dam may not be started until next year as the government turns its attention this year to a gigantic defense program. Because all bids far exceeded the budget outlined and approved by the state for the county board of education's building program this year, the proposed Wheelwright high school gymnasium instead will be included in next year's plans.

374 consolidated and rural teachers were hired, Friday evening, by the Floyd County Board of Education for the 1940-41 school year.
