Seven sue coal companies over dust, debris

by SHELTON COMPTON

PRESTONSBURG — Lawsuits against coal companies show no signs of slowing down, as another has been filed in Floyd Circuit Court against Miller Brothers Coal Company and Laurel Mountain Resources.

Seven Floyd County residents — Kelvin Howell, Maxie Howell, Lee Maggard, Roma Maggard, Larry Howell, Anna Howell and Anthony Howell — jointly filed a civil suit on April 11 against the two companies, a complaint asking for compensatory and punitive damages.

The seven plaintiffs have claimed in the suit that the companies have conducted mining and blasting operations near their homes, resulting in dirt, dust and "flyable debris" being thrown, dumped and "otherwise placed" outside their permitted boundaries and onto the seven residents' properties and around their homes.

The seven individuals say in their complaint that this constitutes a "physical trespass" issue.

Each of the plaintiff's claim damages to their property and homes, diminishing the value of PRESTONSBURG — Over 100 parents took advantage of the Floyd County Family Resource and Youth Services Center's 14th "Give Yourself a Break Day" at the Mountain Arts Center on Thursday.

"It's a chance to get parents out of the school setting and provide them with a day of enjoyment and fun," said Brian Akers, Family Resource and Youth Services Center coordinator for Betsy Layne. "It's not as structured as the meetings held at the schools, but there's still a lot of information. It's a real enjoyable day for the parents."

The day featured an address by Supt. Henry Webb, followed by a question-and-answer session, a presentation titled "Accidental Dealer" by Sharon Collins, Youth Services coordinator for Allen Central High School, and Lola Ratliff, with Floyd County Schools, entertainment by Ron Cole, a presentation from Misty Ward, with Kentucky PIRC, titled "Parenting for Fitness and Nutrition," and a humorous presentation from Lola Ratliff that focused on parenting styles.

A catered lunch was provided and door prizes were also awarded.

According to Akers, the next big event sponsored by the Family Resource and Youth Services Centers will be a fun fair for new and expectant parents.

"It's going to be like a county-wide baby shower," Akers said.

More information about the events can be found by visiting or calling any of the Family Resource and Youth Service Centers in Floyd County.

Beshear tells Congress about drug epidemic

by SHELTON COMPTON
STAFF WRITER

FRANKFORT — Gov. Steve Beshear testified Thursday morning before a congressional panel on the prescription drug abuse issues facing Kentucky and the nation.

Among other points, including urging Congress to continue providing resources to the Harold Rogers Prescription Drug Monitoring Grant Program, Beshear reminded the congressional panel that in Kentucky alone, nearly 100 people die from drug overdoses every month.

"The fastest growing, most prolific substance abuse issue facing our country is the abuse and diversion of prescription drugs," Beshear said. "In Kentucky alone, 82 people die every month from drug overdoses, a number that has now surpassed car crashes as the leading cause of accidental death in our state."

The governor also proposed mandatory training for those who prescribe controlled substances and requested that more federal resources be focused on ceasing Florida's illegal prescription drug flow.

Florida, and especially South Florida, represents a significant population of unmonitored prescription drug pain clinics and prescribers.

In February 2011, Gov. Beshear sent a letter to Florida Gov. Rick Scott urg-

Ky. jobless rate drops from Feb. to March

FRANKFORT — Kentucky's seasonally adjusted preliminary unemployment rate fell from 10.4 percent in February 2011 to 10.2 percent in March, according to the Office of Employment and Training (OET), an agency of the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet.

The preliminary March 2011 jobless rate dropped 6 percentage point below the 10.8 percent rate recorded in March 2010 for the state. The 10.2 percent rate recorded in March 2011 is the lowest rate since November 2010 when it was 10.2 percent.

"Kentucky's economy showed signs of improvement in March 2011 as the unemployment rate dropped to 10.2 percent. Nonfarm employment grew for the third month in a row and reached its highest level since January 2009. Eleven consecutive months of year-over-year job growth provide additional evidence of economic recovery," said Dr. Justine Detzel, OET chief labor market analyst.

The U.S. seasonally adjusted rate decreased from 8.9 percent in February 2011 to 8.8 percent in March 2011, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure trends rather than actually to count people working.

Seven of the 11 major nonfarm North American Industry Classification System (NAICS) job sectors reported an employment increase in March 2011, while three decreased and one remained the same, according to OET. An increase of 11,600 jobs in March 2011 brought Kentucky's nonfarm employment to a seasonally adjusted total of 1,795,100. Kentucky's nonfarm employment has grown by 35,100 workers since March 2010.

According to the seasonally adjusted employment data, Kentucky's leisure and hospitality sector climbed by 5,100 jobs in March 2011. Since March 2010, the sector has surged by 11,800 positions. The leisure and hospitality sector includes arts, entertainment and recreation, accommodations and food services, and drinking places industries.

"The year-over-year expansion primarily occurred at accommodations and food services businesses reflecting the openings of a hotel, beverage services establishments and countless restaurants," said Detzel.

The state's trade, transportation and utilities sector grew by 2,100 jobs in March 2011. This area includes retail and wholesale trade, transportation and warehousing businesses, and utilities. It is the largest sector in Kentucky with 361,100 employees. Since March 2010, the number of jobs in this sector has increased by 1,200.

Construction sector jobs increased by 1,900 in March 2011. Since March 2010, employment in the construction sector has dropped by 2,200 jobs.

"This marks the third consecutive month of rising employment in the construction sector. As the economy recovers, businesses are expanding and entrepreneurs are building facilities to house new companies," said Detzel.

Employment in the other services sector, which includes such establishments as repair and maintenance businesses; personal and laundry services; religious organizations; and civic and professional organizations, rose by 1,600 positions in March 2011. This sector had 3,300 more positions in March 2011 than March 2010.

The government sector, which includes public education, public administration agencies and state-owned hospitals, added 1,000 jobs in March 2011. The sector has 2,800 more jobs than in March 2010.

The educational and health services sector reported 900 more workers in March 2011. The sector has 2,800 more jobs than in March 2010. This sector includes private and non-profit establishments that provide either education and training or health care and social assistance to their clients.

Employment in the mining and logging sector increased by 800 in March 2011. The sector has gained 1,500 jobs since March 2010.

The information sector maintained steady employment from February 2011 to March 2011. This segment, which includes firms involved in publishing, Internet activities, data processing, broadcasting and news syndication, has decreased by 300 positions since March 2010.

"The shift away from mainstream media and news publications, a telecommunications company closing and layoffs at major newspapers factored into the year-over-year employment declines," said Detzel.

The professional and business services sector declined by 1,300 positions in March 2011. This area includes professional, scientific and technical services; management of companies; and administrative support and waste management, including temporary help agencies. Since last March, jobs in the sector have jumped by 8,800.

Kentucky's manufacturing sector decreased by 300 jobs in March 2011. Since March 2010, employment in the manufacturing sector has climbed by 5,500 positions.

"The year-over-year job expansion predominantly occurred in the durable goods subsector. As the economy recovers and consumers regain confidence, the manufacturing sector is ramping up production as businesses restock inventories to meet the resurgence in demand for products," Detzel said.

The financial activities sector dropped by 200 jobs in March 2011. This segment, which includes businesses involved in finance, insurance, real estate and property leasing or rental, has 1,200 fewer positions than in March 2010.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics' monthly estimate of the number of employed Kentuckians for March 2011 was 1,895,976 on a seasonally adjusted basis. This figure is up 11,062 from the 1,884,914 employed in February 2011, and up 34,649 from the 1,861,327 employed in March 2010.

The monthly estimate of the number of unemployed Kentuckians for March 2011 was 214,282, down 3,980 from the 218,262 Kentuckians unemployed in February 2011, and down 10,213 from the 224,495 unemployed in March 2010.

The monthly estimate of the number of Kentuckians in the civilian labor force for March 2011 was 2,110,258. This figure is up 7,082 from the 2,103,176 recorded in February 2011, and up 24,436 from the 2,085,822 recorded in March 2010.

Civilian labor force statistics include nonmilitary workers and unemployed Kentuckians who are actively seeking work. They do not include unemployed Kentuckians who have not looked for employment within the past four weeks.

Kentucky's statewide unemployment rate and employment levels are seasonally adjusted. Employment statistics undergo sharp fluctuations due to seasonal events, such as weather changes, harvests, holidays and school openings and closings. Seasonal adjustments eliminate these influences and make it easier to observe statistical trends. However, because of the small sample size, county unemployment rates are not seasonally adjusted.

A downtrend in tobacco production sounds like a bit of good news

It's sad sometimes when some things change. The fact that this year some of Kentucky's farmers are opting to grow something other than tobacco is not one of those things.

According to the Associated Press, agriculture experts estimate the cultivation of burley tobacco will decrease sharply in Kentucky this year. Less people smoking and bans on smoking in public places are apparently to blame for a lack in demand. Considering the thousands of people who die from tobacco use each year, we can't say we're saddened by the news, especially knowing that the Commonwealth's farmers are finding other crops to plant this year.

That same AP report noted that our farmers, expect to plant upwards of 140,000 more acres of corn and soybeans than usual. That sounds like a good trade off to us.

Kentucky spent $297 million between 1995 and 2009 on state subsidies for the tobacco industry, according to the Farm Subsidy Database, and $47 million in 2008 alone. Considering the figures, we can't feel too sorry for a loss in tobacco production.

It would be a better use of those dollars to incentivize farmers to grow more worthwhile crops, like corn and soybeans. In fact, why not legalize a hemp industry? It makes little sense not to when all factors, such as the bevy of uses for it, are considered.

Ultimately, this downtrend in burley production is a good sign, because unlike other industries farmers can always use their acreage to grow something else. With biofuels like ethanol all the rage right now, not to mention health studies that show eating whole grains ward off cancer, it makes sense to grow more corn or other grains. Looking at it from this perspective, subsidizing a corn farmer is much more palatable than someone whose crop is likely going to cause someone to develop cancer.

National Public Radio is having a tough time. It's being beaten up and knocked down, its good name dragged through the mud.

It hurts to watch stumble after stumble by executives of this smart radio network. (It's still smart if you listen to it, but behind the scenes, oh my.)

It started with the Juan Williams affair. Mr. Williams—who, incredibly enough, was both NPR's house conservative and Fox News' house liberal—told the Fox audience that he got nervous when he saw people who looked like Muslims board his plane.

The comment raised a dust-up. In the fight that followed, Mr. Williams was fired. (Weep not for him, dear friends; Fox immediately hired him full-time for $2 million.)

The firing raised another dust-up and the executive who fired him "resigned."

It's surprising that a prominent African-American journalist would appear to endorse a form of racial profiling. I didn't think Williams should have been fired for his comment, and I didn't think the editor should have been let go either. I believe in second chances.

Then came the Ron Schiller affair. Mr. Schiller, NPR's top fundraiser, was lured into a meeting with two men posing as wealthy Muslim donors. Heavily edited clips from the secretly videotaped meeting showed him denouncing tea parties and Republican activists—as Islamophobic, "seriously racist," and a little dim.

It's always dangerous to blurt out the truth like that. When the misleading footage of the conversation got out, Mr. Schiller was dismissed. NPR's CEO as well. I can see dismissing the fundraiser—he was a poster child for the Society of Effete Liberal Snobs—but firing the CEO is just giving in to the bad guys without a fight.

But wait, there's more. Another tape revealed yet another fundraiser instructing the fake donors on how to use a donation to fudge their taxes. (If that were a crime, every tax adviser would be in jail, but it does seem kind of cheesy for NPR to do it.) As of this writing, she has been placed on leave. But expect a trip to the guillotine soon.

One is tempted to quote the great philosopher Casey Stengel who, after watching his New York Mets butcher their way to another loss, said: "Can't anybody here play this game?"

The Republicans in Congress have responded to all of this by voting to cut off federal funding for public radio. Being realistic, they'd do that anyway. Conservative politicians, most of whom couldn't find their public radio station on the dial, hate public radio the way vampires hate the light.

NPR officials have pretty much stood there and taken the abuse with mild complaint. I think they're afraid if they defend themselves, conservatives will get even angrier with them.

But they will never mollify their critics.

Did I mention that NPR was smart? It is, and if there's one thing conservatives hate, it's smart. Just look at their favorite spokespersons—Sarah Palin, Michele Bachmann, Mike Pence, Steve King. No Mensa group they.

NPR is one of our most important cultural institutions. It's worth every penny we spend on it. More than 27 million people listen to public stations each week. This is up 58 percent in the past decade. Only 37 percent of them describe themselves as liberals; 28 percent define themselves as conservative or very conservative.

NPR's not an arm of the Democrats, as Fox is of the Republicans. It's not even that liberal. Its staff is made up mainly of liberals, probably, but they are also professionals who seek to do an honest job of telling what's happening in the world—straight. That's called journalism. Fox News cannot be accused of that sin.

If the federal government were to take away NPR's subsidy, the network would survive. It's not that much money. But being a public institution is important to its mission. It enforces a responsibility that private institutions don't share.

We don't need a liberal version of Fox. We need something much, much better than that. And we have it—if we can keep it.

The Usual Eccentric

Vicodin, and clowns, and circus music, oh my!

by WILL E. SANDERS

I-ah jez gawf buck from da dentith and gawt a tooth pulled. Hey, I tinkta Novocain is star-tin to wear off. So that means the (prescribed) Vicodin I took on the ride home is liable to send me off to planet painkiller for the rest of the afternoon, so I'll cut to the chase.

Over the years, I took better care of my underwear than these once-peachy whites of mine. In my younger days, I maintained a diet solely of candy and other delicious confections. You could blindfold me, place an M&M in my mouth, and I could taste it and tell you what color it was. I was, in but a few words, a candy connoisseur.

To this day, I still hold the little league baseball record for having the most Sour Patch Kids crammed in my mouth for an at-bat. Thirty-nine, and I ended up vomiting in my father's Astro minivan later that afternoon. Man, he was so upset with me.

Whoa! I'm really getting off topic. Maybe these painkillers are kicking in?

It all started a few months ago. I went to the dentist and learned tooth

No. 31 needed to be extracted, which is some weird dentist code for pulling a molar.

Wait, back up! Actually, it all started more than a decade ago when I stopped going to the dentist altogether. What can I say? My second biggest fear in life is going to the dentist, although clowns run a steady third. My biggest fear in life? Shouldn't it be obvious? A clown dentist! I'm so glad they don't exist. (Or do they? Wait, I don't want to know. I just want to keep on believing that dentist clowns are purely a figment of my imagination.)

Thankfully, the dentist I had was dressed like a dentist, except he wasn't a dentist at all, nor was he a clown, which I appreciated immensely. He was an oral surgeon who conducts something called maxillofacial surgery. Now I might not have any idea what that means, but I can assure you it's extremely unpleasant to be the recipient of it.

See, your average set of human teeth are really in there. To exhume one, it takes a tremendous amount of force and the largest set of medieval teeth pliers you have ever set your eyes on. And thankfully for my sake, a decent amount of laughing gas.

Why is it that laughing gas is only administered during the most unamusing times of your life? You are never allowed to have it any other time except when something—say a piece of bone from your face—is being yanked out of your body.

This wasn't just any old sweet tooth that was getting pulled, either. The decayed molar that once held court on the far right of my lower jaw was a real devil. It had even made the American Dental Association's Most Wanted List for a string of daylight bank robberies throughout the Midwest. He had my loud mouth hostage and planned on fighting the oral surgeon... tooth and nail!

Yeah, these painkillers are definitely kicking in now.

"This won't hurt at all," the dental assistant informed me before giving me a shot of Novocain, probably because that's what people say to you before they jab a series of needles into your gum line.

Shortly thereafter, I felt the sweet embrace of nitrous oxide, followed by Dr. Victor Kim hovering over me with surgical contraptions that looked more like tools for torture than for tooth care. I winced and shut my eyes (and left them that way for the duration). And you better believe that I started sucking on that laughing gas like I was trying to play the tuba.

Deprived of eyesight, I noticed a fair amount of drilling for my liking, felt an odd tugging sensation and distinctly remembering hearing circus music, but then again that most likely was a result of the laughing gas.

When I opened my eyes, the den-

BLHS taking part in AP class program

by JARRID DEATON
FEATURES WRITER

BETSY LAYNE — Betsy Layne High School is one of 20 high schools in the state to participate in

AdvanceKentucky's AP Teacher Training and Incentive Program (ATIP).
AdvanceKentucky is funded by a $13.2 million grant from the National Math and Science Initiative

(NMSI), which is supported by ExxonMobil, Dell and Gates Foundations,
Lockheed and others.
Kentucky sponsors
include the Kentucky
Department of Education,

which has chipped in $500,000 for expansion to new schools during the 2011-12 school year, the Council on Postsecondary Education, and Kentucky
Science and Technology

Corporation. AdvanceKentucky has received federal grants from Appalachian Regional Commission and U.S.
Department of Education
through KDE.

"We are looking to increase enrollment at a younger age and guide kids to advanced classes," said
Betsy Layne High School Principal Cassandra Akers.

"We want to provide incentives that will encourage the students to participate in advance placement classes."

Akers said the ATIP program will be implemented at the start of the next school year, and the school is looking to add additional AP classes to preregistration
this year.

"We are also going to develop a flyer and have parent meetings over the summer," Akers said.

According to the Kentucky Science and Technology Corporation
"The NMSI model has demonstrated its proven ability in Kentucky schools to dramatically increase access to and accelerate learning in rigorous math,
science and English (MSE)
courses, as shown by qualifying scores on AP exams, particularly among underrepresented student populations."

"On the most recent 2010
AP exams, the 28
AdvanceKentucky schools alone contributed 43 percent of all new qualifying scores earned across Kentucky and 69 percent of new qualifying scores earned by minority students. These early participants performed at up to 12 times the national rate of one-year growth in student performance."

AG unveils new 'I Care About Kids' license plate

FRANKFORT —
Attorney General Jack Conway unveiled a newly designed "I Care About Kids" license plate Thursday.
Proceeds from the sale of the license plate will go to the Child Victims' Trust Fund (CVTF) to assist in funding child sexual abuse prevention programs and to help offset the portion of child sexual abuse medical exam expenses
not covered by private insurance or Medicaid.

"When it's time to renew your car tags, please consider purchasing our redesigned "I Care About Kids" license plate," said General Conway, chairman of the Child Sexual Abuse and Exploitation Prevention Board, which oversees the CVTF. "The proceeds from these license plates help fund programs that are truly making a difference for Kentucky's most vulnerable children. With your assistance, we can help keep Kentucky families safe."

Nationally, rates regarding child victims of rape or sexual assault range from 1.2 to 1.9 children per 1,000.

Approximately one-third of all sexual assaults reported to law enforcement involved a victim under the age of 12,
and it's estimated that only one in 10 victims of sexual abuse ever discloses the abuse.

"Children who have been sexually abused are more likely to abuse alcohol and are 3.8 times more likely to develop drug addictions," said General Conway. "The consequences of child sexual abuse are significant and can

last a lifetime."

The new "I Care About Kids" license plate is expected to be available this summer and can be purchased through local county clerk's offices.

Kentuckians can also support child sexual abuse prevention initiatives through private donations or through the Kentucky Income Tax Refund Check-Off. For

CSAEP Board and Child
Victims' Trust Fund, visit

Petition

to support this resolution,"
Ray said.

The resolution is boiled down to a simple statement included in Ray's letter, sent out April 12, which says, "If the VA fails to give Veterans
a complete disability exam, that is an error," adding that
"The VA saying it's not an error is nonsense."

The Johns Creek DAV
Chapter 166 has also issued a similar letter of resolution sent from that post's commander, Robert Charles of Island Creek. In that letter, Charles addresses the same issue.

"Freedom isn't free," he writes. "Disabled combat veterans know that better than anyone. It's a disgrace when disabled veterans' freedom is stripped from them
after they have sacrificed so much to protect and preserve our basic freedoms."

The VA (Veterans Administration) has written a regulation that Charles and Ray, along with more than a dozen others who have already signed the floating petition, say has "literally taken" veterans' freedom to present and have evidence considered that is favorable to their disability claims.

In essence, the regulation stipulates that if the VA does not administer an examination, or if the medical history isn't considered, this isn't considered an error and filing veterans cannot use the lack of these as evidence for a claim.

As of Thursday, a petition circulating in the region
seeking to have Congress strike down the regulation has garnered about two dozen signatures, most of those from residents of Pike County.

Teachers

America will be sending approximately 30 of its members to the region.
Floyd County Schools will focus on finding applicants with certifications that will fill high-need positions, such as physical science, math and foreign language. The teachers from Teach for America will be required to go through the same application and evaluation process as all other teachers.

"Teach for America has been working to find the right entry point into Appalachia for a number of years, and we're grateful for the leadership of the state legislature and the Education Professional Standards Board in reaching this point," said Wendy Kopp, founder and CEO of Teach for America. "We're excited to join the region's ongoing efforts to strengthen its education system and look forward to recruiting and developing individuals who will work alongside other committed educators to expand educational opportunity for Eastern Kentucky's children."

Teach for America members will apply for open positions in high-need schools in the Floyd, Knox and Martin County school districts, and the organization will open a central office in Hazard. Teach for America will continue to pursue partnerships with additional school districts over the coming weeks.

Governor

ing him to reconsider his decision to not implement a state drug monitoring system previously approved by the Florida legislature. Recent news reports confirm that, at least in part due to outside persuasion, the drug monitoring project is moving forward and will be operational later this year.

Beshear has pointed again

and again to his state's own system, KASPER (The Kentucky All Schedule
Prescription Electronic Reporting System) as an example to look to in forming other systems to combat the drug epidemic.

KASPER tracks controlled substance prescriptions dispensed within the state, helping health care providers ensure a person

does not get prescriptions
from several different sources, while also helping police investigate the diversion of pills to illegal sales.

In 2006, the White House recognized KASPER as one of the nation's flagship prescription drug monitoring programs.

"KASPER has proven successful in Kentucky's battle against prescription drug abuse," Beshear told the congressional panel Thursday. "However, the full effectiveness of this powerful weapon is limited by the fact that some states still do not have similar systems."

In addition, Beshear offered during his testimony
on the importance of increasing resources to federal, state and local law enforcement and prosecutors in Florida to address the threat that drugs obtained there will be diverted and abused on a regional scale.

"Kentucky is not an island. We live in a mobile society and that mobility limits the ability of any one state to be entirely successful in addressing substance abuse issues."

Lady Rebels edge South Floyd

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

MINNIE — The Allen Central Lady Rebels claimed their third straight win on Monday, edging host South Floyd 3-2 in a 58th District/Floyd County Conference softball game at Minnie Park. Allen Central plated a pair of runs in the fourth inning and held off a late South

Floyd rally to clinch the victory.

The Lady Rebels bested South Floyd after the Lady Raiders claimed a convincing 11-0 win in six innings earlier in the season.

Veteran Allen Central pitcher Shea Spurlock got the win. Spurlock registered 12 strikeouts.

Ada Gayheart suffered the loss for the Lady Raiders.

Gayheart was saddled with her first loss of the season. She recorded 11 strikeouts in the short effort.

Gayheart, helping her cause at the plate, delivered two doubles.

Allen Central improved to 3-4 after claiming its third straight win. In back-to-back matchups last week, games played April 6 and 7, respectively, Allen Central beat Pike County Central 11-5 and Cordia 17-0 in three innings. South Floyd dropped to 3-1 after being handed its first loss.

Allen Central scored first in the opening inning. After the first two batters in the Allen Central order struck out, Spurlock legged out a triple. The next batter in the

Shepherd returns to majors form

Lawrence County senior pitcher is dominating less than two years after Tommy John surgery

by RICK BENTLEY
TIMES COLUMNIST

By the end of his freshman season at Lawrence County High School, baseball fans across the Commonwealth knew full well who Chandler Shepherd was after he pitched the Bulldogs to the state championship game.

By the summer between his sophomore and junior year, the Commonwealth wondered if he'd ever be able to return to form.

By the time this season ends, the University of Kentucky may have its prized recruit to a hefty signing bonus in the Major League draft.

And you thought your high school days were up and down.

Shepherd, who had Tommy John surgery shortly after ending his sophomore season for the Bulldogs, appears to be back. On Wednesday, Coach Travis Feltner could be heard smiling through the phone as he recited his senior right-hander's numbers.

Four wins, no losses, he said. Twenty-one innings pitched, only two hits allowed, he added. Thirty-nine strikeouts, three walks, he continued.

And no — zero, zilch — runs allowed. Forget earned runs. Nary a run has been scored off him.

It's safe to say Chandler Shepherd is back.

Oh yeah, by the way. At the dish? Try on a .519 batting average with a dinger and five RBIs out of the two-hole.

"He's had a great start," his coach said. By that statement, it's also possible to expect Feltner to say water is somewhat moist and Hawaii has potential to be a nice tourist attraction.

The kid can flat play the game.

"It's amazing. He's been really strong and is throwing it well," said Feltner. "He's added a pitch and has looked

All 'A' Baseball: Pikeville slips past Rebels

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

PRESTONSBURG — Reigning regional champion Pikeville punched its ticket to the 15th Region All "A" Classic championship game on Wednesday, defeating longtime rival Allen Central 1-0.

Pikeville freshman pitcher Jacob Hamilton went the distance and claimed the win. Hamilton only allowed two hits. He had 11 strikeouts in a stellar outing. Hamilton was instrumental from the mound throughout Pikeville's long postseason run during the 2010 season.

Allen Central's starting pitcher Jake Prater suffered the loss in a complete game effort. Prater limited Pikeville to three hits.

Pikeville, still undefeated, moved to 9-0 after notching the win.

Allen Central, which blasted Shelby Valley 17-0 in five innings and doubled up Phelps 8-4 during games played earlier in the region; at small school tournament, dropped to 3-5 following the loss.

Following two scoreless innings, Pikeville first baseman Layne Cecil doubled and later scored for the Panthers in the third frame.

Allen Central made noise with a baserunner or multiple runners on base in three separate innings prior to being shut out.

Steven Layne and Randy Maynard both had a single for Pikeville in the hard-fought win.

Gage Parsons and Cameron Hamilton each had a single for the Rebels.

Allen Central was visiting Letcher County, Central Thursday evening. The Allen Central-Letcher

GAINESVILLE, Fla.

Former Arkansas head coach John Pelphrey, a Paintsville native, didn't stay unemployed long. Pelphrey is returning to Florida, where he'll rejoin longtime friend Billy Donovan as an assistant on the Gators' coaching staff. Former St. John's head coach Norm Roberts has also been announced as a new assistant coach for the Florida men's basketball program.

Pelphrey served six years (1996-2002) as an assistant under Donovan. The Paintsville High School product is returning to Florida after spending the past nine seasons at South Alabama (2002-07) and Arkansas (2007-11). Arkansas fired Pelphrey last month after the former University of Kentucky stand-out compiled a 69-59 record with the Razorbacks. Pelphrey guided Arkansas to the NCAA Tournament during his first season.

Former EK Miner Dean signs with Florida Flight

TIMES STAFF REPORT

ORLANDO, Fla. — The Florida Flight have signed veteran guard Mike Dean for the 2011 season. Florida is a second-year franchise in the Continental Basketball League (CBL).

A former Middle Tennessee State University standout, Dean has been playing professionally across the globe for the past seven years. He has enjoyed stints in several foreign countries including Poland, Germany, Mexico, Venezuela and the Dominican Republic. In the United States, Dean has played in the Continental Basketball Association (CBA) and the NBA Developmental League. Dean was a star player for the East Kentucky Miners during a successful stint in Pikeville.

Dean led the CBA in scoring with Rio Grande Valley Silverados before being traded to the East Kentucky Miners midway through the 2007-2008 season. On March 2, 2008, the Miners, under the guidance of Coach Kevin Keathley, broke a 29-year CBA record for most points scored in a game by a team with a 194-115 win over the Atlanta Krunk. The offensive-minded Dean led all scorers with 44 points as the Miners also set the professional basketball single-game scoring record.

Dean recently returned from playing in Venezuela after suffering a minor ankle injury. His ankle is again completely healthy, and he will join the Florida Flight for training camp in April.

"I just want to thank God for giving me so many opportunities to play basketball at this level," said Dean. "I'm really looking forward to joining the Florida Flight and helping this team bring a championship to the Avlon Park area of Orlando, Florida this season."

This season, the Flight will keep a 10-man active roster, as well as an inactive developmental roster for players seeking to improve their game and jump to the next level. Training camp for the Flight starts April 20. The CBL season will tip off in early May.

Shepherd

really sharp to this point. Sometimes numbers lie, but his haven't to this point. He's been strong, sharp and throwing the ball well. And then there's this: "He feels good, and we feel good having him out there."

"That's a must better evaluation right there. I'd say. The most difficult thing for Feltner to negotiate has been the weather forecasts. "It's hard to get into a good groove," he said. "Hopefully the weather will break soon."

Back to his star pitcher, Feltner said despite signing the scholarship at Kentucky the pro scouts have been plentiful this spring. "We've had three or four scouts every time he's pitched," he said. "They call weekly wanting to know when he's going to throw."

"We have hopes he'll be a draft pick somewhere. If he continues to have good year it looks promising. We'll just have to wait and see on that."

We asked Feltner to compare Shepherd before and after the surgery.

"He has always had great arm and great stuff. I just feel like he's stronger than before," the coach said. "I know he's stronger mentally. Long term this may be the best thing for him mentally. He had to dig deep and get stronger. He's been able to go out and pitch without any fear of injury."

That's important coming off an injury like that.

It's not in the back of his mind right now, so that's good."

Shepherd was released to pitch at the end of May last year. After throwing two times for Lawrence County, he headed north to play for famed Cincinnati Midland, a Connie Mack team. "He was strong every outing all summer and all fall as well," Feltner said. "His rehab was perfect all last year. He never missed a step and was stronger all the way through. He made it all the way unscathed."

Last year, Feltner was saddled with only using his stud pitcher as a fielder and hitter. "It was tough," he said. "You take your No. 1 guy away — who has been your No. 1 since the eighth grade and threw a lot in the seventh grade, you take a guy away like that, and you don't have a guy to go out and stop them."

But Lawrence didn't exactly struggle, winning 24 times. "We had a good year and a good ball club," the coach said.

Not, however, what it could have been. "We definitely had a big hole to fill," Feltner said. "He's a once-in-a-lifetime player for a school like us."

Feltner guesses that Shepherd is consistently hitting 88-89 miles per hour, and knows from a scout he topped out at 92.

The coach also knows there's no promise his team will automatically assume the throne in the 15th Region, especially after Pikeville made it to the state semifinals only one year ago.

"Make no mistake about it, it was no fluke the run they had last year," he said. "They have a good ball club. We've got a good one with him, but to me they're the team to beat. I can promise you that on our end we know they've got a good ball club. We didn't give it to them; they came in and took it."

But the Bulldogs won't be in any rush to hand the trophy over to the Panthers or to anyone else.

"We want to enjoy it," he said. "Don't want it to hurry and get here. We feel like we have a good solid ball club built around pitching and defense. We have goals of a great postseason run again."

"And having someone like (Shepherd) on the hill is a big advantage."

'Sharktopus'

by TOM DOTY
TIMES COLUMNIST

The SyFy Channel finally delivers a monster movie that's worth watching, thanks to veteran producer/director Roger Corman.

Mashing up critters to create new monsters is the latest trend in creature features. Corman is already working on "Piranhaconda" and I had a ball making up new monsters with my sons. They came up with a few possible sequels, such as "Dolphinator," "Clamasauros," and "Robo-Fish." Use this game to get you through the boring parts and you might just have yourself a real ice-breaker for your next dinner party.

Tom Doty
Times Columnist

Our story opens with vacationers enjoying the sunny southern California sun, until a shark decides to stalk a nubile swimmer. The toothy terror is about to gobble up the beach babe, when it is suddenly yanked out of its comfort zone by the titular terror. That's right, folks, you get to see what a sharktopus looks like in the opening scene. The creature is a shark from the belly up but gets about on eight tentacles that it uses to swim, crawl and grab for food with a boarding house reach that has to be seen to be believed.

Turns out the critter is being monitored by scientists, who are controlling it from a nearby craft. They consist of dad and daughter scientists, Sands and Nichole. They are using electrical implants to control the beast.

If you're guessing that they designed it for the military, then you're way ahead of this flick. Sure enough a naval official stops by (unofficially) and asks that they give him a demonstration of Sharktopus in action.

The resulting show includes stalking a speedboat, but Sharktopus gets too close and shears off his implants. He is now free to eat and he does by trashing the boat.

The next scene is hilarious and finds two slob painting a battleship. Their conversation turns to an examination of the worst way to die, and, boy, do they find out the answer.

Sands and his daughter track the beast to Puerto Vallarta and engage the services of a disgruntled ex-employee to bring their baby back alive. Meanwhile, a tabloid reporter (who works for a CNN type of news channel) gets wind of the story and teams up with a drunken sailor and her goofy cameraman to get the scoop of the century, while a Howard Stern type of DJ begins reporting on the story as well.

It all leads to a gory finale that provides plenty of gore and a few yuks, as Sharktopus hits the shore and begins stalking prey on land (okay, neither sharks nor octopi can do that, but nobody mentioned this fact to Mr. Corman).

This one is fun, but you may want to fast-forward through some of the stilted dialogue. The film benefits from a few scenes where they forego CGI to have extras battle Styrofoam tentacles (my favorite part). Roger Corman even appears in a cute cameo as a beachcomber who loves buxom women almost as much as finding coins in the sand.

While the movie may not reinvent the wheel it is fun to see Corman still enjoying junk movies in his 80s.

A Prestonsburg native has been recognized for his volunteer work with Sodexo, an organization that helps to provide solutions for hunger and poverty.

Dennis E. Shepherd, a graduate of Prestonsburg High School, was one of eight volunteers recognized as a Sodexo Hero of Everyday Life in 2010. Shepherd is a driver at the United States Marine Corps base in Camp Lejeune, N.C.

According to a release provided by Sodexo, "Dennis has been instrumental in the success of Sodexo Servation at the USMC by organizing and delivering food donations to the Onslow Community Ministries Kitchen and Religious Community Services. Since 2004, Dennis has collected and delivered 18,000 pounds of food. Every day after Dennis finishes his regular work day, he volunteers ten hours a week, doing charitable jobs including cutting grass and baking cakes to help rustle up food donations, supplies, and money for local charities. Dennis also engages in creative activities such as posting advertisements to help spread the word and encouraging others to help support people who need help in the community. To date, Dennis has collected in-kind and monetary donations valued at $20,000 for children and families in need."

Sodexo is an independent charitable organization that, since its founding in 1999, has made more than $12 million in grants to fight hunger in America.

"The concept of economic recovery is very theoretical for the one in eight Americans who are facing the very real prospect of going to bed without knowing where their next meal is coming from," said Stephen J. Brady, president of the Sodexo Foundation. "We honor these Sodexo employees who are giving so much of their time, their talent and from their own pockets to offer real solutions to help people for whom hunger is a real, daily concern."

DINNER DIVA

Dinner Diva early edition: Insider tips on spring veggies

Most folks assume that whatever is available in the produce section is what's in season. This isn't necessarily the case. Sure, grocery stores offer a wide variety of fruits and veggies year-round, but that doesn't mean the flavor and freshness is there as it is with produce that is in the peak of its season.

Spring is upon us, which means we have an abundance of new vegetables to look forward to! Fabulous fresh spring veggies include artichokes, asparagus, fava beans, fennel, avocado, mustard greens, radishes, Vidalia onions, watercress, basil, and tender, sweet lettuce. Lots of good crops to look forward to in this season. Also, local farmer's markets will be starting up shortly bringing locally grown fruits and vegetables to the table! Research your area and see if you can find one by you! Definitely worth it. Check out localharvest.org for a list of places near you.

A good spring recipe:

Minted Lemon Asparagus
 Ingredients:
 2 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice

1 tablespoon fresh mint, chopped

1 pound fresh asparagus spears, trimmed

1/4 cup crumbled feta cheese

In a small bowl, mix lemon juice and mint - set aside.

Bring a large pot of water to a boil. Add asparagus to pot of boiling water for about 45 seconds, then remove and place in a bowl of ice water to stop the cooking process. Drain asparagus and place on a serving plate. Drizzle with lemon mixture and sprinkle cheese over the top then serve!

Car fire not something to take lightly

by TOM and RAY MAGLIOZZI

Dear Tom and Ray:

Last week my fiancée's father was driving his 1987 Buick from the farm into town. A couple of hundred yards from the house (and about 1 mile from the highway) on the gravel road, the car caught fire. Her dad, instead of using his cell phone to call the fire department, left the car on the road and walked home to tell his wife. He told her it'd burn itself out. A short while later, they were in the kitchen and were — seriously — surprised to see the fire department outside putting out the blazing car. So, (1) what the heck kind of family am I marrying into? And (2) we know that it's toxic, in poor taste and dangerous, but would the car actually have pulled a "movie moment" and exploded? Or, like her father says, would it have burned itself out? — Seth

TOM: I think Pops REALLY wants a new Buick, Seth. He was afraid that if he put out the fire, they'd somehow be able to patch up his car, and he'd have to drive it for another five years. So he walked away to make sure it had ample time to caramelize.

RAY: That's a very dangerous thing to do. It certainly can explode. What happens, is that fires usually start in the engine compartment. Sometimes they can burn themselves out, if they run out of nearby materials to combust.

TOM: But lots of times they keep burning. And then they spread to the undercarriage, and then the tires, and the interior. Once a fire spreads, it easily can melt the fuel lines, or cause the pressure in the fuel tank to rise so much that the tank breaks.

RAY: And even if the car doesn't explode like the Death Star in "Star Wars," any rupture in the fuel lines or fuel tank will result in a huge and violent increase in flames.

TOM: That could set nearby fields, and then houses, on fire, which won't endear Pops to his neighbors.

RAY: So, whenever you have a car that catches fire that you can't address immediately with the proper fire extinguisher, you should move away from the car and call the fire department.

TOM: What kind of family are you marrying into, Seth? One that needs to work on its communication skills. If Pops had been able to say, "Ma, I really want one of them new Buicks," perhaps this could have been avoided.

Even recirculate setting brings in some outside air

Dear Tom and Ray:

Can you please tell us which vehicles recirculate all of their inside air, rather than pulling in outside air? My wife is extremely allergic to smells, so pulling outside air into the car absolutely will not do. We were told that some Acura models recirculate the air continuously from the time the engine is started. Such recirculation would benefit us. On the other hand, we understand that the Lincoln MKZ has a switch that must be activated to recirculate the air; otherwise, it will pull in outside air. It is very important to us that no outside air get into the car's interior, due to my wife's sensitive condition. Can you please name any particular makes and models that might keep out truck exhaust, road tar, bus fumes, etc.? This presents a serious health issue for us, and we sincerely appreciate your advice. — Roy

TOM: Gee, Roy, I'm not aware of any vehicles that completely shut out the outside air. Unless they're made by NASA.

RAY: Right. Without any outside air at all, you'd eventually suffocate in the car. And carmakers would never do that to their customers.

TOM: Heavens, no. Think of all the lost repair income!

RAY: Most cars have two settings for air that you can select from: Fresh (outside air) and Recirculate (inside air). Usually, there's a switch or button that allows you to choose one or the other.

TOM: But even the Recirculate setting allows some amount of outside air to come in (I would guess it's 10 percent), for the respiratory reasons stated above. So using the Recirculate setting certainly would cut down on the outside odors, but it wouldn't eliminate them completely.

RAY: Almost all cars also have cabin air filters that can stop certain allergens and dust particles. But the molecules that carry smells are too small to be stopped by such filters.

TOM: The only solution, if you really can't breathe ANY outside air, is to provide your own tanked air, like astronauts or scuba divers do.

RAY: But then you'd need a car with large front foot wells so that when your wife wears her scuba gear, she'll be able to sit comfortably in her fins.

TOM: Seriously, Roy, I don't know of any car that will completely block out all outside air. If your wife can handle some outside air, then any car with a Recirculate setting (and that's almost every car) should help. But if that's not good enough, then a doctor may be of more help than a couple of lousy mechanics. We wish you the best of luck!

Shingles rash gone, but pain lingers on

by PAUL G. DONOHUE, M.D.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I've been trying to deal with shingles pain for six months. At times it's so bad that I can't sleep. I have tried Tylenol, Aleve, and Advil, and some herbs that my wife bought. Nothing works.

Can you tell me what will? I did. Will the shingles vaccine take away the pain? — R.M.

ANSWER: Shingles comes from the awakened chickenpox virus that has been hibernating in nerve cells ever since the childhood infection. Even if you can't remember having had chickenpox, odds are you did. More than 90 percent of adults — in fact, close to 99 percent — have evidence of a prior chickenpox infection in their blood.

Once the shingles rash goes, pain continues to remain in a significant number of people. That's not shingles. It's called postherpetic neuralgia. When the chickenpox virus comes down nerves to your skin, it injured the nerves. That's what causes lingering pain long after the shingles rash has disappeared.

Plenty of medicines can quiet that pain. You have to experiment to find which works for you. Lyrica is a somewhat newer addition to these medicines. You need a prescription for it. Capsaicin cream, gel or lotion is found on the shelves of all drug stores. You apply it directly to the painful skin. Quenza is a new preparation of capsaicin. It's applied by your doctor, or a health professional in a one-hour treatment, and is touted to provide three months of pain relief.

The lidocaine patch is another skin-applied treatment that quiets pain. Amitriptyline and Cymbalta, both antidepressants, are oral medicines that can dull postherpetic pain. Opioids like tramadol and oxycodone can be turned to when others fail. And this is just an abbreviated inventory of treatments.

The shingles vaccine doesn't do a thing for postherpetic neuralgia; it cuts the chances of developing shingles in half. And if a vaccinated person does develop shingles, it lessens the chances of postherpetic neuralgia. The vaccine is recommended for everyone 60 and older.

The shingles pamphlet explores this common illness in detail. Readers can obtain a copy by writing: Dr. Donohue — No. 1201W, Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475. Enclose a check or money order (no cash) for $4.75 U.S./$6 Canada with the recipient's printed name and address. Please allow four weeks for delivery.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Will you discuss the eating of canned tuna? I enjoy a tuna-salad sandwich once in a while. But I read that the mercury in tuna is harmful, especially to expectant mothers and small children, and to adults in general. I also read that light tuna is less toxic than white albacore tuna.

Will you clarify this? — D.R.

ANSWER: Shark, swordfish, king mackerel and tilefish are the fish with the highest mercury concentrations.

Seaford that is low in mercury and quite safe includes shrimp, canned light tuna, salmon and catfish.

Albacore (white) tuna has more mercury than canned light tuna, but it's OK to eat 6 ounces of it once a week. Eating a tuna-salad sandwich, whichever the source of tuna, once in a while (once a week) isn't going to cause any health problems.

A moderately entertaining week for releases had a little bit of everything.

■ "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows" — Part one of the "Potter" finale plays like an extended setup, but that was how it played in the book a swell. The three leads (looking more like adults than teens) have lots of conversations and hit the road for the final showdown with Voldemort (which will happen in the next film). Good if you have been with the series all along, but a long wait for little payoff if this is your first outing.

■ "Country Strong" —

A good performance by Gwyneth Paltrow cases viewers over the rough spots in this drama about a country-western singer who can't stay away from the bottle. The plot is actually a perfect country song, but it's kind of slow going, as Paltrow tours and threatens to have a complete breakdown. Tim McGraw is pretty good here as an actor, and Paltrow does well as a singer, so the movie has that going for it.

■ "Female Convict Scorpion" A great "Grindhouse" series from the 1970s gets an upgrade here. This was based on a series of films about a Japanese woman who breaks out of jail and kills the guys who sent her there. This effort will hopefully bring back this series of exploitation flicks that revolve in and around the delivered top-notch thrills for the adult junk movie fan.

■ "Summer in Genoa" — Italian locations punch up this life-affirming drama that charts one year in the life of a family after the mother has died. Colin Firth is in top form as the husband left behind to care for their teenaged and adult daughters. Good and measured drama that provides a thoughtful study on coping strategies.

Next week sees Firth back in his Oscar-winning role as the title character in "The King's Speech."

Salome's Stars Weekly Horoscope

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Impatience is still somewhat of a problem. But a sign of progress should soothe the anxious Aries heart. Meanwhile, invest some of that waiting time in preparing for the change ahead.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Bovines tend to excel at solving problems, not creating them. But you risk doing just that if you're slow to respond to a timely situation. If necessary, seek advice from someone you trust.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) The Gemini Twin might need to do more than a routine check of both a job-linked and home-based situation. Dig deeper for more data on both fronts to avoid unwanted surprises later.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Moon Children facing an important workplace decision are encouraged to use their perceptiveness to see through any attempt to win them over with a supercharge of fawning and flattery.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Good news catapults Leo and Leoans into reconsidering a deferred decision. But time has moved on, and it's a good idea to recheck your plans and make adjustments where necessary.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) The week favors relationships, both personal and professional. Take the time to look for and immediately repair any vulnerable areas caused by unresolved misunderstandings.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A friend's problems bring out your protective instincts. Be careful to keep a balance between meeting the obligations of friendship without being overwhelmed by them.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The temptation to take an extreme position on an issue is strong, but moderation is favored both in personal and professional dealings. Move toward finding areas of agreement.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Getting another boss or teacher? Try to see the person behind the image. It will help you adjust more easily to the changes that new authority figures inevitably bring.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Much as you might dislike the idea, keep an open mind about using the assistance of a third party to help resolve problems that threaten to unravel an important agreement.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Music helps restore the Aquarian's spiritual energies this week. Take someone you care for to a concert of your musical choice. Also, expect news about a workplace matter.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A challenge that seems easy enough at first could take an unexpected turn that might test your resolve. Decide if you feel you should stay with it or if it's better to move in another direction.

BORN THIS WEEK: You can be strong when standing up for justice, both for yourself and for others.

UK FOOTBALL: Newton leads offense in spring practice

TIMES STAFF REPORT

LEXINGTON — After Joker Phillips praised the University of Kentucky defense for playing well in the team's first major scrimmage of the year last Saturday, the head football coach expressed that same pleasure after practice Wednesday morning, saying the offense responded well on a beautiful day at the Nutter Training Facility.

Phillips was not only pleased with how the offense responded Wednesday, but spoke highly of the play of junior quarterback Morgan Newton. The second-year head coach said the starting quarterback threw the ball better at practice, guiding the offense to make several impressive plays. Phillips told reporters after practice that Newton is starting to have "some swing going."

"You have seen how our quarterbacks grow up here and how they change," Phillips said. "He is playing with a lot more confidence and has some swing going, as they would say. He is starting to feel good about his performance because he is making plays. That is what happens. If you make a couple of plays, you start feeling better about yourself and better about the offense and start studying the offense a little bit more. We just need Morgan to grow into that position."

One key component to the offense this season, besides the development of Newton, is going to be the play of sophomore running back Raymond Sanders. The native of Stone Mountain, Ga., had 68 rushing attempts last season for 254 yards and three touchdowns. Phillips said that he has been happy with Sanders so far this spring and his understanding of the Wildcats' offense but is still looking for improvements.

"For one thing, Raymond has a really, really good understanding of our offense," Phillips said. "I really like what he is doing in our running game, but I think what Raymond has to do is understand how to pick up blitzes better. We are getting a chance to see a lot of stuff coming at him and in our passing attack our backs have to be able to pick up blitzes."

Conversely to the offense's strong play in practice, Phillips said the defense needs to continue to show improvement. The Kentucky head coach said the Wildcats installed yet another defensive package into its playbook this week and with more and more being installed.

"The offense was making plays and defensively we got another new package that comes in today and we had way too many busts (in coverage)," Phillips said. "Our guys have to pay a lot more attention in the meeting rooms.... They dominated on defense Saturday but today I thought that our offense bounced back and responded."

Phillips said a trend so far this spring has involved the defense showing improvements after film sessions. Phillips hopes the trend continues this week and improvements to the most recently installed defensive package are made.

"The film that we will have from today's practice will give those guys an opportunity to teach off of it and they should get better the next practice," Phillips said. "That is what has happened in the past. We would put a package in and it wouldn't look that good on the field, but we would go in and teach off of it and come back the next day and execute it better."

Kentucky will return to the practice field Friday morning before holding another scrimmage Saturday in Commonwealth Stadium. The scrimmage is closed to the public and media.
