This Town— That World

HE'S GONE AGAIN

The senior ed is on vacation in Florida. His man Friday passed him on a south-bound road, Friday. He was escaping to the coolness of Sarasota's Terrace hotel. I was fleeing the sand and heat of the Gulf Coast.

The associate ed's chief worry when the paper is "dumped in his lap" is that the Fates will decree a dearth of news. Sometimes that has happened here. When it does he is reminded of the answer a down-at-the-heel drifter gave when asked about his luck.

"Luck? I'll tell you about the kind of luck I have. If a storm blowed up a flurry of ten dollar bills I'd be caught with boxing gloves on."

However, it didn't happen that way. The Fates were kind. Front page stories fell in unceasing sequence. To our regret, though, for many of them were the kind no editor, senior or assistant, likes to write. Violent death on the highway, and others, had to be written. Nothing, though, was written with such poignancy as the story of a little Floyd county child, kidnapped by a fiend and killed in a Georgia field.

SPEAKING OF EAST KENTUCKY

Speaking of the State of East Kentucky, — or were you? — if this area attains the status of Commonwealth in its own right, it will be the 50th star in the flag, providing Hawaii doesn't beat us to it. However, slim and long deferred as Hawaii's chance has been, I'd wager on Hawaii.

A bit of barber shop observation the other day from a prominent Prestonsburg attorney set out in simple terms just how East Kentucky could get what it wants from the state. Just induce Eastern Kentucky legislators to stand together as a bloc in the General Assembly. Simple, isn't it? Well, the wheel was a simple invention but it took prehistoric man thousands of years to think it out.

VACATION SUGGESTIONS

Beside a general lowering of the cost, many things could be done to improve vacations.

Here are a few suggestions:

- (1) Make road maps that fold up automatically when you are through with them thus dispensing of wasted effort in trying to do something you will finally not do anyway.

- (2) Mint coins that are miraculously translated into the exact change the youngster wants while on a beach or at a souvenir shop. You know — or did you? — when the youngster asks for 15 cents to buy a balloon and you fish in the pocket to find only a half-dollar, that half-dollar is all spent right quick for additional wares of diverse and gaudy appeal. You're an optimist if you expect any change back.

- (3) Let somebody initiate a course, mail order or otherwise, to instruct vacationers how to — See Story No. 9, Page 3 —

2 POLIO CASES ARE REPORTED

Martin, Mousie Children Attacked Last Week, Said; Howard Urges Vaccination

Two new polio cases were reported last week, according to Ray Howard, head of the Floyd County Chapter of the National Foundation.

Tommy Crisp, age four months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Crisp, of Martin, was diagnosed as ill with polio Friday. He was taken to St. Joseph's hospital, Lexington, suffering from the paralytic type of the disease.

Tincia Sue Short, about three years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Shelby Short, of Mousie, was diagnosed as having polio at St. Joseph's the next day. The disease was effecting one of her legs, it was said.

Howard pointed out that there was danger of an epidemic, that this county had already had five cases this year excepting the Short child which lived in Knott county. He said that Letcher county had five cases and that nearby Southwest Virginia had several cases. He commented that two of the children reported in this county in the last nine months as having polio were four-year-olds.

Howard urged parents to avail themselves of the Salk vaccine. "It's a pity that little children must be made to suffer from polio all because parents are neglectful," he said.

MARTIN MAN IS FOUND SHOT IN BED, AT HOME

Possibility Of Self-Inflicted Death Is Not Ruled Out By Coroner's Jury; Death Weapon Was Lying On Bed

Ed Halbert, 54, of Martin, was found dead in bed, alone at home early Thursday morning of last week. A 22 calibre bullet had entered his chest and ranged downward to come out midway his spine. Death was between 5:30 and 6:30 a.m., it was concluded by a coroner's jury.

There were powder burns on the man's chest and the bullet was lodged in his clothing, according to James Carter, Floyd county coroner. The jury pointed out that the death wound was for a reason unknown and did not rule out the possibility of its being self-inflicted.

The death-weapon was found lying on Halbert's left side on the bed.

Mr. Halbert was found early Thursday morning by Clyde DeRossett and Gordon Carroll who were passing. It was said that the victim's wife, Mrs. Eva Halbert, was away when the body was found.

Halbert and his wife, who were estranged, had procured peace warrants for each other recently and these were set down for trial at the next term of County Court. Both charged that each had threatened to kill the other. A peace warrant, procured in Magistrate Johnny Caudill's court by Ed Halbert charged A. J. Reed with threatening the life of Halbert. Other warrants charged Reed and Mrs. Halbert with fornication. The peace warrant for Reed was filed away recently subject to be redocketed.

13 COUNTIES GET HIGH AID

Eastern Area Payments Reflects Economic Picture Of Mountainous Region

Across East and Southeast Kentucky is a tier of 13 counties receiving over $500,000 each in payments from the state in old age assistance, aid to needy blind, dependent children, and the disabled. In all of the rest of the state only 12 other counties are classified in the half million dollar class.

The figures are from the annual report of the Statistical Journal of Economic Security in Kentucky for 1957-1958, published at Frankfort.

Pointing up also the economic doldrums into which the section has slumped are the high amounts of unemployment insurance benefits paid the counties in the east area by the state. Harlan county led all of the eastern counties with benefits of $1,223,845 paid. Pike came second with benefits of $1,469,621 received. Floyd county stood high, its unemployment receiving $742,409.

Total public assistance payments made in Kentucky in the period, which is the tenth anniversary year of the program, reached $48,344,956. Amounts of unemployment benefits were less, being $42,077,123.

"Insured unemployment in Kentucky, as in the nation, rose steeply during the last half of the fiscal year and workers stood in long lines in local offices in all parts of the state to claim the benefits which spelled the difference between standing in the soup-lines of the 1930's and the self-respect of being able to pay for essential living costs out of their own pocket," the report said. "Unemployment insurance benefit payments grossed $45.2 million for the year, up $13.8 million from the previous year. The checks to individual workers were equal to half or less of their usual earnings—enough for the most essential expenses only—but rising prices of food and other living costs cut deeply into the purchasing power of these checks and also lowered the standard of living for the thousands of needy persons receiving public assistance during the year."

Other counties, many of them heavily populated and with concentrations of industry, also received heavy grants of public assistance. Jefferson county recipients were paid $4,595,776. Fayette residents received $1,265,215. Perry county in the eastern tier

WOUND KILLS CHILD, 9, SAID

Pathologist Finds Death Traumatic Injury Caused; Court of Inquiry Is Held

After an autopsy report by Dr. E. T. Thornass, Pikeville pathologist, was submitted last week stating that James Ervin Ramey, 9, of West Prestonsburg, died from a traumatic injury of the brain with accompanying hemorrhage, a court of inquiry was convened Saturday by Clifford B. Latta, county judge pro tem.

The child, son of James and Betty Jo Skeens Ramey, died at home early Friday morning, August 8. According to his father he became ill with fainting spells near the home at 3 p.m. the day before his death.

The child's father told The Times, Tuesday, that on the night preceding his son's death while ill, the boy said three Prestonsburg youths held and beat him. Ramey said his son told him he was threatened with death if he told he was beaten. The father testified to his son's statement at the court of inquiry Saturday. Two of the youths named by Ramey denied having seen the victim for three days. The other boy named by Ramey was not present at the inquiry. Other youths, considered not implicated by Ramey, also testified.

Result of testimony at the court of inquiry was negative as far as official charges were concerned.

The child was attended by Dr. George P. Archer but he pronounced the boy dead about 10 or 12 minutes before his arrival at the Ramey residence.

Surviving, besides the parents, is one brother, Billy Ray Ramey, at home.

Funeral services were conducted Sunday, August 10, at the First Methodist Church here, the Rev. Harold Dorsey, pastor, officiating. Burial was made in the Clark cemetery on Town Branch under the direction of Moore Funeral Home.

NEW METHOD OF ASSIGNING

Of Grade Pupils Made; Principal Reveals Plan To Teachers, P.-T.A.

"After teaching last year and doing considerable research on the subject of pupil placement I am convinced that assigning the children to rooms by alphabetization is the best system," Woodrow Allen, principal of the Prestonsburg grade school, told his teachers and officers of the local Parent-Teachers Association, Tuesday afternoon.

Allen outlined the reasons for changing from the old system of allowing pupils and parents to choose their teachers to the new one of assigning alphabetically. The new system was directed by the Board of Education last year but was not enforced as he learned of the ruling too late, he explained.

Present at the faculty meeting were 23 of the 27 teachers in the system and attending by invitation were Mrs. Gwendolyn Dingus, president of the P.-T.A. and Mrs. Joe Burke, also a P.-T.A. officer.

The meeting was called by the grade principal after he was presented with a petition signed by 80 parents asking that the old system be retained. The petition said:

"We, the undersigned parents of children who will be enrolled in the Prestonsburg grade school, are not in favor of the proposed plan to place the children in schoolrooms in alphabetical order and that of Mr. Turner's (V. O. Turner, county superintendent) will be so that a plan may be worked out that will be approved by ALL concerned."

COUNCIL OK'S POOL REQUEST

Proposed To Submit Swimming Pool To Vote Resolved Monday Night

A $99,500 swimming pool has been placed on the November ballot by the passing of a resolution proposed by the Prestonsburg Junior Chamber of Commerce at the city council meeting Monday night.

President of the Jaycees Frank Heinze presented the request in telling the council that the young people of Prestonsburg deserve a swimming pool and that the Jaycees hoped it would pass. A two-third vote will be required to pass the swimming pool issue.

Resolution was passed by the council to pave sidewalks on North Arnold avenue, extending from Ray Howard's home on the left side to the home of Bill Goebel, Sr., and on the right side, from Joe Wheeler Jarrell's residence to near the gymnasium. The City Council said that property owners will be billed for the expenditure on the sidewalk.

In other business it was agreed that the city would provide a building site for the Emergency Squad. It was said that the Emergency Squad has plans to use the building to store equipment. The building may be located near the water plant at Lancer or at the Fire Station in Prestonsburg.

Spokesman for the Emergency Squad was Circuit Judge Edward P. Hill who was accompanied by two other Emergency Squad members, Don Sullivan and County Judge Henry Stumbo.

Lincy Boyd's low bid of $969 won the open bids on roof repairs to be made on the municipal building. L. B. Price's bid of $1,003 was second. Work will start within the next 30 days.

The city council authorized expenditure of upward to $2,000 to be made for repair work.

Prestonsburg Residents Comment, Pro And Con, On New State Idea

Discussion of the newly-envisaged State of East Kentucky and its possibilities as a separate commonwealth brought out this week that most people queried think the greatest asset accruing from the change would be the two United States Senators in Washington. Some were dead serious, many advanced the idea as a huge joke.

Other points brought forward were that the new state would be about equally divided between Democrats and Republicans and one could take the mountaineers for granted, that thousands of skilled and educated leaders would return from the North to build the new state and that we could develop a section attractive to tourists.

The Times, in an effort to secure a cross-section of Prestonsburg opinion, queried residents Monday. Below are typical comments:

Forrest Burchett, construction worker: "We need roads up here and less neglect. They are tearing up and rebuilding roads in other sections that are better than anything we have here. We are a forgotten section. The rest of the state remembers us only at election time."

Donald Horn, scrap iron dealer: "It would cost East Kentucky

FARMERS ASKS COST-SHARING

Greatest Number Seeks Permanent Pasture Aid, Local ASC Manager Says

Three hundred fifty-four farmers in Floyd county applied for and received approval on agricultural conservation practices during the first period of the year and were paid $34,544, according to Elder Goble, office manager of the local ASC office here. The first period is from Jan. 1 to June 30.

The greatest number asked for assistance in establishing permanent pastures and meadows, Goble said. Two hundred thirty-three farmers requested this aid which included seed-bed preparation, seeding, liming and fertilization.

Over half a million forest tree seedlings were set out by landowners and 107 farmers asked for assistance on site preparation and tree seeding purchase, a statistical study compiled by Goble shows.

Fourteen farmers during the first period of the year requested such practices as farm ponds, tile drainage, etc. Two hundred thirty-two farmers carried out their practices for total payment of $23,009. Twenty-eight farmers asked that their practices in the first period be transferred to the second period, July 1 to Dec. 31. These transferred practices amount to $3,339.

The second period, for which the deadline to sign up was Aug. 15, had a preponderance of cover crop assistance requests from Floyd county farmers, the ASC manager pointed out. Seeking aid — See Story No. 2, Page 6 —

COURT ASKS 'DOZER BIDS

Retirement Plan Voted By Floyd Fiscal Court; New Employees Hired

The Floyd County Fiscal Court voted Monday to place all county employees under a retirement system. Motion to do so was made by Grover C. Holbrook and it was carried without dissenting vote. The order is effective July 1, this year.

Besides paying claims, the court voted, upon motion of Magistrate Zeb Ousley, that the County Attorney file suit to obtain road right-of-way 20-foot wide over the property of Ted Akers and 30-foot wide over the property of Vannie and Charlie Akers. The property is on Little Mud Creek.

Herman Harman was employed to maintain and service the Sheriff's radio and equipment at a salary of $100 per month. Charles Stumbo was employed as grader operator on the county road system at $225 per month.

The court also voted to pay telephone bills of officials and to advertise for bids on a new angle-dozer and high lift. Johnny Caudill, Magistrate of District No. 3, was authorized to spend $1,000 on the construction of a new traffic bridge across Left Beaver Creek near Hi Hat.

REBEL GROUP SLATES MEET

Letcher Counties Asked By Hubley and Whisman To Defer Area Secession

Rebel Letcher counties, with anticipated delegations from other Eastern Kentucky counties, will meet Friday evening at Whitesburg to advance plans to secede from the state and set up a new one to be called East Kentucky unless better treatment of the area is accorded from Frankfort. Ray Collins, Whitesburg and Paintsville soft drink bottler, recently elected chairman of the group, will preside.

The movement, at first considered as a joke, was rapidly taking a serious turn this week when it was found that the idea had solid support with many persons in the area who think Eastern Kentucky is not receiving equitable benefits from taxation compared with the Bluegrass section.

The state took notice of the secession move last week when Gov. A. B. Chandler said, "I'm obliged to keep them (East Kentucky counties). This is a case for Legislature." Attorney General Joe Ferguson had already pointed out that secession was legal under the Constitution.

Times Newsboy Saves For Adult Education

Ernest (Bucky) Collins, 13-year-old Times newsboy, shown leaving the newspaper office to start his weekly paper route. He is saving for his adult education.

Ernest (Bucky) Collins, 13, Floyd County Times newsboy, is saving for his adult education and to prove to his proudly exhibits a bank book with $130 in it. He began six months ago when a member of The Times staff suggested he add to the four dollars he had saved and promised him 150 papers free when he reached $100 in savings.

Bucky made the savings goal three weeks ago and collected from The Times. He sells 200 papers each week but began with only 25 weekly a few months ago. On Thursdays he has to stack his papers in a corner of The Times office and works from there. The load is too great to carry.

Deaf-Mute Kidnapper Takes Own Life Amid Fusillade Of Officers' Bullets; Coroner Rules Youngblood Is Suicide

Parram (Bunny) Youngblood, 32, Georgia deaf-mute, killer of Margie Jones, an eight-year-old Melvin girl, sped into a Georgia police roadblock, Monday, slammed on the brakes of a stolen station wagon, and amid the gun fire of four officers took his own life by putting a bullet in his brain.

Georgia officers had been seeking Youngblood, an itinerant safety razor blade salesman, from Toombsboro, in that state, finally quarried the killer ten miles from Macon. He was wanted after the body of the Floyd county child was found shot to death four hours earlier in a field near Sanderville. He had abducted the child Saturday night from the home of his mother where the Jones child and other members of the Floyd county family were visiting.

SUIT PLANNED ON ROAD JOB

Attorney General Writes Clerk Moore of Intention To Recover Expenditures

Highway Commissioner Ward J. Oates said Friday that the Department of Highways will advertise for bids on all uncompleted force-account road projects that cost more than $12,000. Oates made the statement after Attorney General Jo M. Ferguson expressed the opinion that work on the Dewey Lake road from the German bridge north toward Coppers Creek done prior to the 1958 force-account law was performed illegally.

The new law places the $12,000 limit on road construction the department does itself without first seeking competitive bids from private contractors.

Ferguson also said he intends to bring civil action to recover money illegally spent on such projects, as soon as the Court of Appeals interprets the law regarding a Knott county road case.

His written opinion was addressed to Floyd County Clerk DuRan Moore.

Moore two weeks ago questioned the Dewey Lake road — See Story No. 7, Page 5 —

Youngblood took his own life, contrary to first reports that he was killed by officers, by putting a revolver to his temple and shooting himself, according to the finding of a Georgia coroner's jury, convened Tuesday.

The Jones child was shot twice in the back with a high-powered rifle, had been beaten and choked. Doctors said she had not been raped.

The story of the tragedy began several months ago when Youngblood wandered into the Abner Fork of Left Beaver and became acquainted with the children of Mrs. Dollie Akers Warrens in the home of their grandmother, Mrs. Mary Jane Harris. Mrs. Warrens is a deaf-mute herself, the mother of three deaf-mute children and the wife of Clark Warrens. Youngblood was evidently attracted to the family because of these infirmities.

The Georgian had been released from an Arkansas prison in November, 1955, after serving four years on a ten-year sentence for attacking two teen-age sisters in Little Rock. Authorities say he stabbed one in the back and shot the other. Both recovered. At the time of the Kentucky visit he was charged with child molestation at Milledgeville, Ga. Details of his crime record were unknown to the Beaver Creek family.

Two weeks ago the killer persuaded Mrs. Mary Jane Harris, grandmother of the Jones child and her brother and sister, Jo Ann, 3 and Paul Lee, 6, to accompany him to Georgia to visit his mother, Mrs. Phelia Youngblood, on a Wilkinson county farm.

Mrs. Harris reported Youngblood forced Margie, Jo Ann, Paul Lee — See Story No. 1, Page 5 —

STATE OR COMMONWEALTH? If East Kentucky was admitted as a separate state the whole area, if it held to form, might conceivably wreck the movement by debating whether it was to be a State or Commonwealth. There isn't any difference whether the word "State" or "Commonwealth" is used but, brother, Eastern Kentuckians would debate with the "drop of the hat."

This columnist prefers the word, "Commonwealth." Virginia, Pennsylvania and Kentucky use it, all others are designated as states. Come to think of it, I'm running true to form of an East Kentuckian and leading off myself.

THANKS! Thanks, for reading the drivel. This column will return to its usual acceptability next week for the senior ed will return to write it.

Engineering Firm Says Proposal By Railway Threatening Fishtrap

Editor, The Times:

It has been recently called to our attention that there is an apparent attempt to sabotage the future flow of industrial and sanitary water storage from the Fishtrap Dam, which has been projected and ably reported on by our Corps of Engineers at Huntington, West Virginia.

Part of the money has been appropriated for the planning on the dam as recommended by the Corps of Engineers, and the plans will be made within the near future.

The money was appropriated by Congress for the dams, as projected by the Corps of Engineers, without any alterations to serve the particular interest of a few. The dam, as designed by the Corps of Engineers is for the service of the Levisa Valley and not for selfish, special interests.

We are well aware of the fact that an informed public is a safe public with which to deal, but unless the public knows what is actually going on in these matters, they are uninformed and therefore are unable to take appropriate action.

We have realized for many years that this valley must have in the future industrial water to support industrial development, and, furthermore, we know from past experience that it is necessary to have sanitary water—that is, water to drink and to use for sanitary purposes.

We know from past experiences that this river gets down to a very low stage, and that the water is at times unfit to drink and to use for sanitary purposes, even with our best methods of treatment.

We know, too, that we can have no future development in this valley without industrial water being supplied from some source other than natural rainfall, and in order to have this industrial water during the periods of low rainfall it is necessary to store the same in reservoirs above us for the purpose of serving the valley during periods of drought.

All interested parties, either directly or indirectly concerned with the property in the Fishtrap Dam Reservoir area, were amply notified and given ample time to file any objections to the procedure and plans as outlined in the Corps of Engineers report, titled "Interim Survey Report on Big Sandy River and Tug and Levisa Forks, Kentucky, West Virginia and Virginia, for Flood Control and Allied Purposes", and which report is divided into two sections titled "Text" and "Appendices", dated December, 1957, prepared by the Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, Huntington District.

It has recently come to our attention that the C. & O. Railway Company has filed a request with the Corps of Engineers at Huntington to construct a tunnel through the Fishtrap Dam and permit them to operate their railway above the dam within the reservoir area at the expense of destroying approximately 100,000 acre feet of potential storage capacity for this dam, which would be used in the future, or could be used for the purpose of supplying industrial and sanitary water from the Fishtrap Dam to Louisa.

We consider this move by the C. & O. Railway to be unfair and unwarranted in any respect whatever. We feel that they have disregarded the economic development or the very economic future of this valley. According to the C. & O. this would not interfere whatever with the storage for flood control, but this is a very controversial question.

We know that in the event water was covering the tracks, which it would, there would be a strong demand by both the coal operators being served by this railway and the C. & O. for the Corps of Engineers to drain this water from their tracks in order that they might operate their trains within the reservoir area, regardless of the damage to others below the dam.

Water is our No. 1 resource. We have realized this for years, and the lack of industry in this valley has been due to the lack of water in the past. Now, through the construction of these dams we have an opportunity to have a sufficient water supply in the future to support industry in the valley, and at the same time greatly improve the sanitary water conditions of this valley. This can become an arid valley.

At this time we have an opportunity to get water with flood control, but the C. & O. Railway apparently is attempting to sabotage the future of the Fishtrap Dam for water storage to serve during the dry periods in this valley.

This proposed change, which of course would be made by the Engineers in the planning of this dam, would reduce the potential water storage capacity of this dam at the top by approximately 50 feet vertically; this in turn would reduce the storage volume by approximately 100,000 acre feet.

The 100,000 acre feet of water which would be destroyed if the C. & O. were granted their request, would afford a supply of 500,000 gallons a minute down the Levisa Fork from the Fishtrap Dam to Louisa, for a period of 45 days. Based on a consumption of a million gallons a day for the city of Pikeville, each two minutes of time with the flow of 500,000 gallons per minute, sufficient water would pass Pikeville to supply it for one day. All sections and towns adjacent to the river would be similarly affected.

The citizens of this valley can not afford to have the potential future of this valley sabotaged in any such manner as eliminating from the Fishtrap Dam the potential value of industrial and sanitary water to this valley.

The proponents of the scheme, as suggested by the C. & O. Railway, contend that this will not interfere with flood control. Theoretically, this is correct, but from a practical standpoint it is very controversial and very questionable, much more questionable than you might expect. We know that in the event water was above these tracks, there would be pressure from all angles to withdraw the water from the tracks and discharge it into the river so that the railway could operate within the reservoir area.

We feel that this issue is of momentous importance to the people of the Big Sandy Valley, and the citizens are not aware of this attempt because it has been conducted in somewhat of an underhanded manner. Let us have the Fishtrap Dam as projected and described in the above referred to report, without hindrance whatever, and let us have the dam to serve the public instead of special interests.

If this dam were constructed as requested by the C. & O. Railway Company it would be a very unique dam, for it would be the only dam in the United States constructed, maintained and operated for the exclusive benefit of a railway company.

The taxpayers of this county are paying for this dam and we must have the full benefit of all economic gains for the valley that can be provided from the dams above Pikeville.

Our economic future depends upon industrial and sanitary water for this valley. After the greater part of the goal is removed from this country, what are the people going to do if there is not industrialization of the valley? You can not have industrialization of this valley without water.

You will probably be told, no doubt, "booger" stories to the effect that you might not get the dam due to the actions of the C. & O., and that it is better to let the C. & O. go ahead and destroy the future of industrial water and sanitary water than to antagonize them at this time.

You will probably be told by the agents of the C. & O. that this will eliminate flood control altogether and the result would be that we will continue to drown in the Big Sandy Valley. This is untrue. This information is put out for the sole purpose of deceiving the people and nothing can be done by these agencies to eliminate the Fishtrap Dam from the picture.

The question naturally occurs, "What can I do as a citizen of Levisa Valley?" You can write or wire all the Kentucky Congressmen and your United States Senator. Tell them you are against the attempted sabotage of the Fishtrap Dam. Tell them you are against any movement or action that will destroy the economic benefit of industrial and sanitary water in the Levisa Valley. Act now!

(Continued from Page One) ment and John Whisman, executive secretary of the Eastern Kentucky Regional Planning Commission, requested Letcher county citizens to defer their secession plans until the state has had time to show what their agencies are planning in the way of help for the area. Whisman plans to attend the meet at Whitesburg, Friday.

Hubley and Whisman both telephoned Tom Gish, editor of the Whitesburg Mountain Eagle, last week to say they both had hope for the future development of the area and expressed the view that secession plans should be delayed until it is seen what the state can do for the eastern counties. Whisman said he personally approved of the spirit exhibited by the secession talk. He said he believed that interest "at the grass roots" as exhibited at the Whitesburg meeting last Friday is just the thing needed to spark development. No efforts to improve Eastern Kentucky can succeed unless the people of Eastern Kentucky themselves want to see improvement, he said.

(Continued from Page One) less than three miles of grade and drain improvement along the water inside Jennie Wiley State Park. He said it was being built to enhance the value of nearby property owned by State Senator Jerry F. Howell, of Price. Howell denied the accusation. At the time, Oates stopped construction on the project and called for a complete review of the State's force-account road work. Five days later, Oates said he had found nothing wrong with the Dewey Lake road and ordered work to be resumed on it. Meanwhile, a report submitted to Oates by George H. Hailey, director of rural highways, showed that 38 force-account projects are now active. Oates said Friday his deputy commissioner, Charles Byerly, was preparing official orders for these projects. "If a project doesn't conform to the law, it is a dead duck," Oates said. "In other words, if a project costs, say $25,000 to complete, then we'll advertise for bids and let somebody else do it."

In the case of Dewey Lake Road, Oates said grading is in the final stages and that the laying of rock will complete it. He said about $17,000 had been spent on the road, but that it will be finished for far less than $12,000. The work there was authorized last October by Rural Highways Commissioner J. B. Wells, Jr., as part of the development of Jenny Wiley Park. In his letter to Ferguson, Moore said The Floyd County Times quoted Howell as saying the attorney general had ruled that "force-account work was illegal, but agreed that projects already under way could be completed" in view of the new law. Then Moore asked: "Was it legal for the Department of Highways to construct new roads before the force-account law became effective?" Ferguson replied: "The answer to your question is clearly, 'No.'"

"The statement of Senator Howell is also incorrect if it means, as it implies, that force-account work on projects already begun could be completed before the effective date of the new act (June 19)."

"Until June 19 of the present year, the Department of Highways has never possessed the power to construct or reconstruct highways by its own forces unless it had previously sought bids for such work and had received no satisfactory bid." Oates said Ferguson's opinion "puts up a red flag, and we'll look into the matter further," and he added: "I do not condone building roads illegally, and any insinuation by the attorney general to the contrary is a malicious and a vicious thing."

Oates said he himself didn't know about the legality of money spent before the new force-account law, but added: "What was spent there (at Dewey Lake) before is beside the point. Regardless of whether prior work was illegal, I didn't see any sense of letting rain ruin the road and waste the taxpayers' money. It needed to be finished, and it is a good road. I saw nothing wrong with it."

Her headdress was a small lace cap bordered with seed pearls with attached shoulder length veil. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and stephanotis tied with lace streamers on a white Bible. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace, a gift of the groom. Her maid of honor, Miss Anna Ruth Waldron, of Winchester, Ky., wore a baby blue street length sheath dress with white accessories. She carried a bouquet of white carnations. The bride's travel costume was a pink linen sheath dress with white accessories. The bride is a graduate of Wayland high school and attended Caney Junior College and is presently employed as Service Representative for Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co. The groom was graduated from Campton high school and attended the University of Kentucky and the University of Tennessee. He is presently employed at Union Carbide and Mechanical Engineer, Oak Ridge, Tenn. Mr. and Mrs. Lockhart spent their honeymoon in the south.

LOTS OF EARTHQUAKES The skin of our earth twitches with an average of 2,700 earthquakes a day, says the September Reader's Digest. Allen said that he had been accused wrongfully of ulterior motives and that personalities had entered into criticisms of himself. He deprecated all of this and went on to insist there were five reasons for assigning pupils alphabetically. These were: (1) The present system of registration leads to economic segregation. Many teachers operated their rooms on less than one-half of what other teachers received due to the economic condition of the children. (2) The old system led to social segregation. "This, I'm sure, isn't encouraged," Allen said. (3) The system in use caused some teachers to be classed as poor teachers by whispering people who gathered in groups to discuss schools. "A great injustice has been done to some good teachers here," the principal commented. He added that the Prestonsburg grade teachers were the equal of any in Eastern Kentucky. (4) There are instances of snubbing in pupil enrollment under the existing system. Allen commented that many teachers would attest to that. (5) There are instances where many teachers are overloaded and some given a light enrollment. Allen said the new system would equalize the burden. Allen outlined the mechanics of alphabetizing pupil and urged that "sanity prevail in discussion of the subject. I trust that, come Monday, there will not be any confusion about the new system." He admonished that the new system must be strictly adhered to. Several teachers complimented Allen on his stand but there seemed to be some opposition to the new system. One teacher issued a statement to The Times, saying: "School people are failing to bear in mind that the wishes of the taxpayers who finance our schools and parents who furnish the children are not considered—in some cases ignored entirely."

Afterwards he drove to adjoining Washington county, forced three of the children out and indicated he was going to kill Margie. The three other children walked two miles to a farmhouse, where occupants called Sheriff J. B. Garrett, of Sanersville. Officers said a man identified as Youngblood stole a station wagon Sunday night from Mr. and Mrs. Luverne Boeck, of Janesville, Wis. The couple was en route to Palmetto, Fla., with their three children. Four Warner Robins officers blocked State Route 24 between Macon and Warner Robins as Youngblood drove up between 1 and 1:30 p.m. Monday. Officers who spotted Youngblood in the station wagon in Macon had chased him ten miles. Ted Wright, Warner Robins police chief, said Youngblood shoved a gun through the car window and fired twice at officers. They returned the fire. Later, four bullet holes were found in the station wagon windshield. One bullet went through the windshield. The station wagon struck a bridge abutment, but was not badly damaged. Survivors of the child include her mother, Mrs. Warrens, of Melvin, two sisters, Mildred and Jo Ann, and two brothers, Paul and Gary. Funeral arrangements were incomplete Wednesday but it was said the body would be returned to Melvin for burial. The Georgia Welfare Department notified Floyd county authorities Wednesday that Mrs. Harris and her grandchildren were being provided transportation home. County Judge Henry Stumbo, as requested by them, sent $25 for meals while the family was in transit. Today about 17 minutes of working time will buy a dozen eggs, but 40 years ago it was 87 minutes.

Harold Baldrige, store manager: "I really think it's a bunch of people who want more than their share. As to secession I don't think we could survive. We would rather have our share and share equally with people of other sections of Kentucky." Hubbard C. Francis, merchant: "I think that we'd find it difficult to survive as an independent state; however, I feel that secession from the state of Kentucky would be advisable due to the treatment we are receiving. If we could be annexed to Virginia where roads and schools and government are fine I would be definitely for secession." Mayor Bill Napier of Prestonsburg: "I think it's a lot of nonsense. We can't blame anyone for our troubles but ourselves. We had a chance to elect a governor and didn't. We failed ourselves." Frank Harmon, savings and loan company manager: "Every Kentuckian should be proud of being a Kentuckian. Any differences we have should be worked out among all Kentuckians. If people assert themselves in the proper manner, they will certainly be heard. I think that the question of secession from the state or union was pretty definitely settled 100 years ago during the Civil War. This is a foolish movement."

Hansel Cooley, store manager: "I really think it's a good idea—but could we survive? But aren't we just surviving now?" So ran Prestonsburg comment, some of it treating the whole matter as a joke, many seriously thinking the possibilities over. All however, agreed that Eastern Kentucky needed more attention from Frankfort and that the entire area has been grossly neglected by all administrations since the state was formed.

got $926,551 in public assistance and heavy payments were made to all the counties in the eastern end of the state.

Discussing the huge load of unemployment benefits being carried by the Department of Economic Security, the report went on to say that the claims in 1958 were higher than ever before in the history of the program except in a court decision as to whether workers involved in a labor dispute were eligible for unemployment insurance.

"During the 1958 fiscal year the Kentucky economy followed in the orbit of the nation-wide satellite of spiraling unemployment," the analysis stated. The Kentucky spiral actually began during the preceding fiscal year as decreased consumer demand for durable goods produced in the Louisville area provided a foretaste of things to come. National increases in unemployment in the fall of 1957 were primarily propelled into orbit by conditions in durable goods industry groups, such as automobiles, aircraft, refrigerators and other electrical appliances. By January 1958, Kentucky had spun into the national orbit with worsening conditions in Louisville, and spreading throughout the state. Hence, the most serious cutbacks in employment and increases in unemployment were in the last half of the current fiscal year."

The statistical analysis discussed the job placement activities of the Department of Economic Security.

"During the 1958 fiscal year nearly 155,000 job seekers filled new applications for jobs in the Department's local offices. This was a 19 per cent increase over the year before and was a direct result of the greater number of unemployed workers during this year. All of the other activities connected with placing workers in jobs decreased this year, also as a result of the unemployment situation. Employers listed only 51,451 non-agricultural job openings and only 44,070 workers were placed in non-agricultural jobs, with both of these activities being 23 per cent below the previous year. With the exception of service industries, job placements in all other major industry groups have been declining for two years. More workers were placed in service industries this year than two years ago but placements in manufacturing industries have dropped about 7,200 in two years and the number of workers placed in all other industry group is lower than two years ago."

LAST YEAR 79 persons were convicted of setting fire to Kentucky woodlands, mostly through carelessness, the State Forestry Division reports in Commonwealth Magazine.

The penalty for this can be a fine of $10 to $100, or from 10 days to six months in jail, or both. The division reports that of the 203 incendiary fires in 1957, some were set for "pure cussedness" some to spite landowners, others by joyriders on highways. Some were set by people with the false notion that fires are good for forests because they clean out snakes. A few were set by pyromaniacs just to see the woods burn.

For incendiary fires, the penalty is a $500-$1,000 fine, 1-5 years in prison, or both.

Mining Deaths Show Decrease In Kentucky

Kentucky coal mining fatalities numbered three last month, compared with four during July, 1957, Chief James H. Phalan of the State Department of Mines and Minerals reported.

He said that mine deaths in 1958 through July totaled 23, a decrease from the 34 fatalities recorded during the same period last year.

The department is sponsoring "no accident month" in September, proclaimed by Gov. A. B. Chandler.

In previous years, the safety drive has been restricted to coal mines. But this year, the proclamation says, the drive "is being broadened and a concerted effort made to eliminate death, injury and destruction of property not only in our mines, but also in all phases of work, on our highways and in our homes."

Chandler urged Kentuckians "to enlist in the army that is being recruited to fight in the crusade to make our fatality and injured shorter year by year."

Phalan announced that the Kentucky Mining Institute will have its annual meeting at Lexington, November 6-7.

ORGANIZATIONAL MEET AT HAZARD, SUCCESS

More than 500 persons gathered at Hazard, Saturday, in the first of a series of meetings for Bert Combs on the platform and pride to our state.

Former Governor and U. S. Senator Earle C. Clements joined Judge Combs on the platform and gave his "unqualified endorsement" to the Prestonsburg attorney.

The meeting, planned as an organizational session, attracted Democratic leaders from 22 South-eastern and Eastern Kentucky counties. The main floor of the Perry County court room and the balcony were packed, and the crowd overflowed into the court house yard.

Combs attacked the two percent levy on state employees, promised to eliminate graft and inefficiency in the Highway Department. He said that he would build no "back to nature" cabins, referring to the intention of the state to build sub-standard tourist cabins at Jenny Wiley State Park.

"I can win easily if I can get a good majority in East Kentucky," the Prestonsburg attorney told the Hazard audience.

Clements flew into Hazard from Frankfort after attending funeral services for former Governor and U. S. Senator A. O. Stanley.

Numerous county leaders who were Chandler's campaign chairmen in the '55 campaign, publicly pledged their support to Combs and promised to "more than double their efforts" in his behalf.

Paul Brannon, Central Kentucky newspaper publisher, also spoke and said that the Blue Grass region is strong for Judge Combs. He announced that an organizational meeting for the Blue Grass will be held Saturday, August 23, at the Lafayette Hotel Ballroom, 2 p.m.

Wendell Ford, of Owensboro, chairman of the Young Citizens for Combs, told the Eastern Kentucky audience that Western Kentucky would also give Combs a great majority because, "Bert is not only

GORDON MOORE

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

By GORDON WILSON, Ph. D.
Western Kentucky Teachers' College Bowling Green, Ky.

In one of my essays I may have left the impression that all the people in Fidelity were philosophers, all were able to discuss weighty problems. I certainly did not mean to do any such thing, though I did want to indicate that even our little village and its surrounding area had people who loved to talk about things in life that most matter. Sometimes it has been hard for me to convey to younger people the strange organization of our neighborhood. Outwardly it was democratic to the limit. In our school, in our churches, in most of our social gatherings there were no caste lines drawn; the humbles and the best-fixed—and they were not far apart financially—came together with an ease that was and is commendable. My father, for one, would have punished me severely if I had shown any favoritism to the youngsters that came from the homes with better-than-the-average comforts. The hired man was just as much a part of the family of the average farmer as the son or daughter; in very rare instances some hired man did not live up to this confidence and was soon employed elsewhere. A visitor from a place where society is pretty well stratified would have thought us hopelessly democratic, blind to natural differences that exist among men.

But under this outward democracy there was a sort of benignant paternalism that, in most cases, was hardly aware of itself. Nearly every little man was protected and upheld by some slightly larger man. Not only did farmers "stand good" for their colored hands, but they were often behind the efforts of many white men who needed a friend or a backer. Most of the storekeepers at Fidelity and near by knew that, in general, a debt owed by Mr. B. was somewhat assured because of his friendship with Mr. C. Not everybody collected all that was owed to him, but it is certain that the little man, backed by a larger man, could nearly always be expected to do as well as the average.

A thing that always was noted by my brother and me was that among our colored friends this same paternalistic attitude prevailed. Some of the colored families had white friends who saw to it that nobody suffered. Some, however, put themselves under the care of their own race. There were a few well-to-do ex-slaves who were patrons to their race. We used to see the team of one of these richer ones going up the road toward Fidelity; we nearly always guessed rightly that some hanger-on of Jim or John had died, and the better-off colored man was assuming the expense of the coffin. One of these colored men had a huge acreage of land that he had gradually acquired; on his farms lived less fortunate ones than he, who yielded to him a sort of vassal reverence that I have seldom seen anywhere else in my life.

It has amused me to remember how the leaders in our little society were hardly aware of their leadership. They would have sworn that they were in no sense other than the rest of the folks. Often they lived in no better houses and had no more actual income, but "their words were as good as their bonds" at the country store or at the county seat. No one would have ever dared to think even alone, that he was a vassal of some outstanding man of our Fidelity; but some of us who lived there and went away love to recall how many of our philosophies of life, our attitudes toward life and death and good and bad, came from these unconsciously stalwart ones.

HEALTH NOTES

By Floyd County Health Department

The duties of a county health department sanitarian are many and his program changes to meet the needs of the particular county to which he is assigned. Some of his specific duties include his work in connection with adequate sewage disposal, safe water and milk supplies, rodent and insect control and the inspection of camps and swimming pools.

Generally speaking, the county sanitarian plans with officials of communities and with individuals for the solution of all the problems of environmental sanitation.

In connection with his work he collects samples for laboratory investigation, such as from the public water supply, milk as sold in the county, school water supplies, etc.

Another important phase of his work in the field of environmental sanitation is that of school and public building inspection. Waste disposal, whether from individual homes or a community, constitutes an additional problem for the county sanitarian in his work of preventing disease spreading by insects and rats.

Inspection of the restaurants in your town, to insure proper refrigeration and adequate dishwashing, is still another phase of the county sanitarian's job and the sanitation rating sign of "A" in such a place is his report to you.

Your sanitarians in the Floyd County Health Department will be glad to help you solve your community and individual sanitation problems.

PATRIOTIC PROCESSION CROSSES PRESTONSBURG BRIDGE

At the end of World War I the railway was the chief means of access to Prestonsburg. Across the Prestonsburg toll bridge, erected in 1907 by a stock company headed by A. J. and W. H. May, thousands entered the town or left by it to board the passenger train. The bridge was taken down in the mid-thirties as a modern bridge was constructed to connect the depot at the mouth of Middle Creek with the town.

After U. S. Highway 23 entered Prestonsburg and the railway "stop" at the west side of the river was discontinued, the bridge stood unused for awhile, a silent reminder that Prestonsburg was making progress. Ripley, author of "Believe It Or Not," remarked just before it was dismantled that it was the only bridge in the world that "ran into a dead end and went no where."

Shown in the picture above is an unidentified patriotic occasion with a float, band and marching soldiers entering the town across the structure. Uniforms of the soldiers are of World War I vintage.

The First National Bank, shown on the left, was organized in 1904, and although time and tide may change, the institution still continues to fulfill its mission of service to our section.

Lack of Talent, Redlegs' Trouble Many Conclude

Consensus of opinion among Redleg followers in this area indicates that lack of talent, not managerial ability, has led to the downfall of our heretofore Cincinnati heroes.

A team such as Bill McKinney's light hitting crew who won games by scores such as 3-1, and 2-1, failed to materialize in this year's Redlegs who acquired pitching strength in Harvey Haddix and Bob Purkey. The change-over from slugger to fancy-dan fielders and ace pitching was only a dream in the Redleg front office. Now that Birdie Tobbets magic has failed them, it has been a question of what the Redlegs may resort to.

Little help next year is expected from the farm teams, as Seattle, Nashville, or Savannah, teams representing the higher classifications of the Cincinnati farm teams. During the home-run era of productive sluggers as Ted Kluszewski, Wally Post, Gus Bell, Ed Bailey, and Frankie Robinson, the Redleg front office concentrated on procuring pitching aid.

Now they have potential pitching greatness on their Nashville roster in lefty Jim O'Toole, but alas no hitting. The biggest hitting star is represented by Nina Pinson, up earlier this year when he failed.

The Redlegs pulled a boner in trading Curt Flood, one time hailed as second Willie Mays. Now he is proving that is mediocre record at Savannah last year was largely a result of his switch from centerfield to third base. The St. Louis Cardinals have been employing the fleet young man in centerfield where he seems definitely adjusted at bat and in the field.

Great dividends have not been garnered from Dee Fondy, Ted Kluszewski's replacement. He can run, but who needs runners? Curt Flood can run and hit; Freddie Hutchinson calls him one of the best basemen who has come up in a long while.

Great baseball teams are sometimes the result of trades which are not made, rather than the ones which are made. Gabe Paul just happened to make them—and they're all wrong. A team in eighth place proves they were wrong.

Now is the time for the suburbanian, lower than the lowest Redlegs to try the farm hands. Everything else has failed.

Top hitters of the Eastern Kentucky Mountain League are now Jimmy Vance and Harold Conn. Harold, a lefthander swifter, is leading the loop in homer and runs batted in, according to late figures. Wendell Childers, third baseman for the local team, is leading the Prestonsburg team in hitting. Childers, only 16, will be back with the local high school team next year. Odd thing is, however, Childers find high school pitching much harder to solve than the tougher semi-pro flinging.

HAROLD

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fred Gearheart and son, Wayne, and Mrs. Florabell Salisbury, of Harold, were in Chicago last week-end. They attended the St. Louis Cardinals vs. Chicago Cubs ball game at Wrigley Field, Saturday afternoon. They also visited their brother Edward Sizemore and family in Gary, Ind.

Miss Lou Sizemore, of Harold, returned home Monday from a two weeks vacation with her brother, Edward Sizemore and family in Gary, Ind. While there she attended the horse races in Arlington Park, Chicago, saw the Cardinals vs. Cubs ball game at Wrigley Field and visited many other interesting places while there.

Rain, Mud Hamper Play But 36-Holes Are Made With High Good Humor

Thirty-eight golfers, from Hazard, Paintsville, Wheelwright, Pikeville and Jenkins, competed in the 36-hole annual medal tournament of the Eastern Kentucky Ladies' Golf Association over a water-logged course at the Elkhorn Country Club on August 15 and 16. Rain continued through most of the two days and playing conditions caused the scores of beginners and veterans alike to soar far above their usual game. Although wet, mud-spattered and upset, most of the women finished the 36 holes with their usual good humor and "gameness".

Each year the competitive play between members of the Association attracts a larger number of players. The young daughters of the members are always encouraged to take part and they are beginning to crowd the "old heads" for top honors in the one-day meets held in May, June and July and the two-day medal event, which determines the Eastern Kentucky champion.

Toby Walden, Paintsville's Big Sandy Bowl Queen, and Jane Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Clark, of Wheelwright, drew all of the gallery who braved the downpour to watch the tournament.

Mrs. M. E. Prunty, Mrs. J. W. Bell and Mrs. T. D. Vaughan, who were in charge of the cocktail hour, banquet and decorations, did a wonderful job. Food and decorations were planned around a "south sea island" theme. Everyone was given a lei to wear and flowers were provided for those who wished further decoration for their hair. A milk glass ashtray, in the shape of a seashell was given to each person attending. Fresh pineapple and flower decorations, Hawaiian music and the water which practically surrounded the club house, rounded out the illusion of being on an island. Shirley Perry entertained the group with her interpretation of "Sixteen Tons."

Silver awards were given to the following winners: a replica of the large "travelling" trophy was given to the champion.

NEED GAMES

McKell high school in Greenard County is seeking a football opponent for Friday, October 10th. Coach Benny Webb prefers to play a team in the Big Sandy area this season with a return game at home next season. He may be contacted at South Shore, Kentucky.

M. C. Napier high in Perry County has an opening date on October 31 and wants an opponent either at home or away on a two-year basis. Interested parties may contact coach Ed Orick in Hazard.

OUTWITTED

For the past couple of seasons, Jenkins and Hazard have been opening game opponents in the Eastern Kentucky Mountain Conference. After last season's 6-0 defeat to eventual champion Jenkins, Hazard mentor Jim Caudill told Coach Nick Diachenko of Jenkins that in the '58 season he was going to have his team play a lesser-regarded opponent before tangling with tough Jenkins.

Thus Caudill, moved Elkhorn City to the opening game spot on his schedule, then Diachenko, not to be outdone, promptly scheduled two games before his unit vies with Hazard, September 5.

Prestonsburg and Paintsville high school will again switch Friday and Saturday home football games to afford fans of each school the opportunity to see the other's games.

The schedule now reads, Hazard at Prestonsburg on September 12, and Jenkins at Paintsville on September 13th; Fleming at Paintsville on Friday, September 26th, and Jenkins at Prestonsburg on September 27th; Belfry at Paintsville on Friday, October 3, and Pikeville at Prestonsburg on October 4; Louisa at Prestonsburg on Friday, October 10th, and Lexington Dunbar at Paintsville on October 11.

HIGH FAMILY INCOME SEEN
Many in Floyd County Attain Upper Bracket, Statistical Study Shows

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 — A considerable portion of Floyd county families have moved into higher income brackets in recent years. More of them are in the $4,000 and over groups than ever before. A smaller proportion, conversely, is left in the lower income categories.

Despite occasional periods of recession and despite price inflation, there has been a persistent rise in real, spendable income and buying power.

The facts are brought out in a nationwide breakdown of 1957 incomes, revealing the portion of the population in each grouping. The copyrighted study, made by Sales Management, covers every county in the United States.

It determines, for each community, whether the so-called "average income" is enjoyed by a large part of the population or whether it is merely a statistical figure resulting from a balancing off between very high and very low income groups.

In Floyd county, 31.0 per cent of all households had net incomes, after taxes, of $4,000 or more last year, the study shows. They accounted of all earnings.

In the prior year, as a comparison, the consumer units in this category garnered only 46.3 per cent of such earnings.

The breakdown shows also that 4.2 per cent of the households locally were in the $7,000 to $10,000 bracket last year. They received 9.4 per cent of the total income.

Some 33.8 per cent of the households were in the $2,500 to $4,000 class. They collected 30.5 per cent of the income.

If all adds up, for the average household, to greater purchasing power than before. The increase in earnings has more than kept pace with the rise in the cost of living.

Much of this available cash was not, however, taken to market, although consumer purchasing stood up surprisingly well for a depression year. A large part went into savings, which are now at an all-time high.

These cash reserves will eventually make themselves felt, when the consumer is ready, in greater expenditures for cars, home and the many luxuries of modern living.

Rev. John Gano Was Pioneer State Minister

Frankfort, Aug. 18 — The Baptists have the strongest claim to having been the first religious group on the Kentucky frontier. Squire Boons, brother of Daniel Boone, was, it is believed, the first Baptist minister to come to Kentucky. But the first religious services in Kentucky were probably conducted in 1776 in Harrodsburg by two Baptist preachers, Thomas Tinsley and William Hickman.

One of the most important of the early Baptist preachers in Kentucky was the Rev. John Gano, whose portrait hangs in a conspicuous place in the Kentucky Historical Society Museum in Frankfort. Reverend Gano arrived on the frontier in 1786, five years after the first Baptist Church was organized at Elizabethtown. Although preceded by Lewis Craig, William Hickman, John Taylor, Ambrose Dudley, and other famous pioneer ministers, Gano played a leading role in the rapid growth of the Baptist Church in Kentucky, which advanced in phenomenal fashion from three churches in 1781 to 285 by 1812.

Gano was already an important religious leader before he turned his organizing talents to the frontier. After attending Princeton, he made three successful evangelizing tours into the South. In 1762 he accepted the pastorate of the Baptist Church in New York City, an office which he held for almost a quarter of a century. While in New York he helped to found Brown University, first called Rhode Island College.

When his church was temporarily disbanded during the period of British occupation of New York, Gano joined the Continental Army as a chaplain, serving most of the war in the brigade of General James Clinton.

Several colorful stories have been told about his religious influence on the American soldier during the Revolution. One tale displays a swearing lieutenant the butt of Gano's riposte. The disquieted young officer turned to face his chaplain with a "Good morning Doctor." Gano replied, "Good morning, sir. You pray early this morning, sir." "I beg your pardon, sir." "Oh, I cannot pardon you. Carry your case to your God."

John Gano's most important assignment during the American Revolution was that of April 19, 1783, when he led his auditors in prayer during the official ceremonies conducted by the headquarters of General George Washington, marking the end of the armed hostilities with England.

Gano was born in Hopewell, New Jersey, in 1727. He died in Kentucky in 1804, following a six-year illness. He is buried in the Daughters of the American Revolution plot in the Frankfort Cemetery.

ANCIENT SALAMIS IN CYPRUS

Salamis of Cyprus was named for the Island of Salamis by the prince of Greek archers. Teucer named this city after his island homeland off the coast of Aftica. In the time of Paul, Salamis was located on the eastern shore of Cyprus. It was a great commercial center extending 12 miles in length and two miles wide. The world's largest forum also stood here. Paul and Barnabas sailed from Seleucia, Syria to the capacious and convenient port of Salamis on their first missionary journey. Seleucia was about one hundred miles away and could be seen on a clear day.

Paul preached in the synagogue of this city without realizing any real response, after which he and Barnabas moved across the island until they came to Paphos on the western shore.

In the Third Century a dreadful earthquake shook Salamis and completely destroyed the city; one half of it fell into the sea and the other half was buried in the sands. Some suppose this calamity came as a result of the city's failure to accept the apostle's message. The city was never restored but remains buried in the sands until this day.

Cyprus was the native land of Barnabas and Salamis was his city. Barnabas returned here on his second missionary journey, but it is unlikely that Paul never did return. Tradition states that Barnabas was killed here during Nero's reign. His tomb was erected on the spot and may be seen today.

The story of Paul and Barnabas' visit to Salamis is found in the 13th Chapter of the Acts of the Apostles.

Public Aid Total Last Fiscal Year Up $4 Million

Frankfort, Aug.—Public assistance payments to needy persons in Kentucky totaled $48,344,856 last fiscal year, the Department of Economic Security reports.

The department said it was the second year in which the payments increased by about four million dollars.

The new record high total of payments resulted entirely from increases in the number of recipients, since there were no significant changes in average payments, the department added.

Payments in the different categories of aid in the 1957-58 year and in the previous year were listed by the department:

Old age assistance, $26,958,590, up from $26,354,655; aid to dependent children, $16,956,345, up from $15,813,824; aid to needy blind, $1,559,205, up from $1,505,903, and aid to permanently and totally disabled persons, $2,870,726, up from $638,747.

The new category for the permanently and totally disabled, begun in 1956, grew during the 1957-58 year from less than 4,000 recipients to nearly 7,500, the agency said.

The second largest increase, the department said, was in the number of families and children receiving aid to dependent children—a boost of about 750 families and 2,600 children during the year.

There was a decrease of 1,150 old age assistance recipients, the department added, because of continued expansion of old-age, survivors and disability insurance programs.

Settlers of Harrodsburg were industrious and thrifty. In 1775 John Harman raised his first corn in the east end of the city. The first woolen mill and the first gristmill in the West were operated here and pottery, plows, flour and textiles were manufactured.

LIEUT. JAMES M. THORNSBURY 1838-1896

Three years ago The Times had a feature article on Lieutenant James Thornsby, of the Union Army, who was captured by the Confederates and taken south to while away the months in a prisoner-of-war camp. He was a native of Pike county.

Lieut. Thornsby escaped from the rebels in Georgia and returned to the Levisa Fork of Big Sandy where he lived. He died at Pikeville at age 52. He was the father of Dr. Quilman Thornsby, onetime resident of Gulnare.

Now comes to light in the household of a grandson, James Thornsby, a letter written 94 years ago by Lieut. Thornsby from Macon, Ga. while he was prisoner. He was envisioning the end of the Civil War and his speedy release.

The letter follows without corrections:

Dear Father and Mother, Brother and Sisters. I embrace this present opportunity of writing a few lines to let you know that I am well at present, hoping that this may find you all well.

We left Richmond on the 7th inst. and came to Danville, Va., and left Danville the 12th and landed here on the 17th which is about 1,000 miles from where you are. This is a nice country and we have a nice place to camp in and are doing better now than we have since we have been prisoners. The Rebs give us corn bread and meal, bacon, beans and rice and cooking vessels. We have 2 acres of shady ground that we occupy.

I think I will be home the first of July. The papers say we will go home before long. I have only one letter from you yet. Write to me soon and often and let me know you are all getting along and send paper and Envelop in your letter to answer yours.

I want to know if Mary has come back or not and if Nancy moved with you. If you need any money before I come Capt. Thornsby owes me $15.00 Tell him to pay it to you for me and it will be all right. Give my respects to all inquiring friends.

When this you see, remember me to the many miles apart we may be. I will say to you that I am here without friends but I have one friend Every place I go and that friend is Jesus and if I never see any of you anymore in this world prepare to meet me in Heaven where parting will be no more. So farewell—direct your letter to Macon, Georgia, Prisoner of War.

Here, William. is a lock of my hair. Send me a lock of yours.

THE BATTLE OF ROCKY GAP

Recently a group of army reservists from Lee and Owsley county fought a mock battle on Double Cabin Creek in Lee county. Almost on the same site a real battle was fought, Oct. 8, 1864, between the Unionist and Confederates.

This incident was a Civil War battle listed in the records, as the Battle of Rocky Gap in which Lt. Colewell Oaks, commanding a company of Union Home Guards, defeated a detachment of foraging Confederates under the command of Capt. Jerry Smith. A few prisoners were taken by the rebels, one of them a member of the McGuire family, who were numerous in the section. After threats to shoot him he was released.

The skirmish was insignificant but did have the effect of stopping the forays of Confederates from Southwest Virginia into the upper Kentucky river section. The Battle of Rocky Gap was just one of the approximately 5,000 engagements of the struggle. It had no effect whatever on the main course of the Civil War. It was one of the little skirmishes in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky that history scarcely mentions.
