TOTAL OF $2,055,845 SOUGHT FOR DAMAGES

SECOND ROUND IN LITIGATION ENTERED HERE

Plaintiff Stephenson Names Construction Firm In '62 Bridge Tragedy

Three suits filed in circuit court here Tuesday as an aftermath of the Knocley Hollow bridge tragedy of July 16, 1962, in which three persons were killed and a fourth injured brought to $2,055,845 the total asked in damages and funeral expenses.

Greeley Stephenson is the plaintiff in the three new actions, naming as defendant the T. C. Young Construction Company, which rebuilt the Knocley Hollow span after it was destroyed by the 1957 flood. The bridge collapsed as an auto occupied by Stephenson's wife, his daughter, Mrs. Naoma Vanhorn, his son-in-law, Phenious Vanhorn, and his granddaughter, Deborah Vanhorn, was crossing it.

Alleging negligence of the defendant firm, its agents and employees caused the deaths of the three adults and injury to the child, Stephenson sued for $500,000 damages and $1,190 funeral expenses in the death of Mrs. Vanhorn, $250,000 damages and $1,175 funeral expenses in the death of Mrs. Vanhorn, and $150,000 damages because of injuries suffered by the Vanhorns' six-year-old daughter, Deborah.

Last October, he sued in circuit court here for $100,000 damages in the death of his wife. Last April, he filed suit in U. S. district court against the United States, asking a total of $1,153,480 damages and funeral expenses. He alleged that the bridge collapse was the direct and proximate result of negligence of the U. S. Corps of Engineers. The bridge was rebuilt at U. S. expense.

EXCESS FUNDS GIVEN COUNTY

Clerk Robinson Makes Second Refund, Tuesday; Covers First 16 Months

County Clerk C. Ollie Robinson announced Tuesday that he was issuing to the treasurer of Floyd county a second check representing excess fees collected by his office.

The check in the amount of $6,632.21 brought the total refunds made to the county from fees exceeding the Constitutional $7,200 limit to $10,751.16. The first refund of $5,118.95 was made a few weeks ago.

The two checks cover excess fees for the first 16 months of his term of office.

Mr. Robinson said occupational taxes collected through his office had netted the county $5,702.35 and the Floyd County Board of Education $2,251.51.

This Town... That World

IT HAPPENED IN OLD FLOYD

Two golfers on consecutive shots score holes-in-one—bang, bang!—and a New Testament winds up in the election supplies returned from a precinct. We maintain that if the impossible happens, it will be in Floyd county.

LOST AND FOUND

It's something of a mystery how that Testament got mixed up in an election. But if a youngster who was 10 years, 5 months and 9 days old on Tuesday, January 16, 1962, the day he was given the Book for selling two pictures—we're reading from the flyleaf inscription—he can recover it by calling the County Clerk's office. The youngster's name is Bobby Don Jacobs, but the folks at the Clerk's office need his address.

PARODY

Pondering the tumult and the shouting of the recent political campaign, I had considered doing a parody of Kipling's "Recessional." But a re-reading of the poem left me with the feeling that here was something too noble to be tampered with in such a manner. Besides, I haven't had the time to do the job and I probably don't have the ability, even if I had the time.

I had a good start on it, anyhow, with these first two lines:

The tumult and the shouting dies, The captives and the stings depart.

RIGHT COMBINATION

My fishing luck has been so putrid that I can't write anything on even the ridiculous side about it. It's plain pitiful.

The other day, I rented locker No. 13, over at the dock, and somebody promptly reminded me that that would bring bad luck—as if I hadn't been having plenty of same, already. But I reasoned after this fashion:

Two negatives, they say, make a positive. So, if I ain't goin' nowhere means I am headed somewhere, the combination of Allen and OR No. 13 should just be about what the doctor ordered.

A SMALL DIGIT HELPS

A modern-day version of Peter at the Dike was enacted on Dewey Lake Sunday afternoon when Clyde Burchett's boat struck a submerged chimney. The resulting crash injured three persons and tore a hole in the bottom of the craft. Young Jimmy Flower acted as Peter. He put a finger in the hole and held back the water until all reached shore.

Mr. Burchett, his wife and two sons, Randy and Tommy, with Jimmy and David Flower, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Flower, were enjoying an afternoon on the water when the accident occurred. All members of the Burchett family were slightly injured but the two Flower boys escaped unhurt.

One good piece of luck (?) was the small size of the hole. Peter—er, Jimmy—has a small finger, you know.

HOUSE GROUP REPORTS BILL

Favorable Consideration Given To Expanded Aid In Vocational Program

It was announced last week by Congressman Carl D. Perkins, chairman of the general subcommittee on Education, that the subcommittee had ordered reported favorably to the full committee H. R. 4955 providing for greatly expanded financial assistance to state vocational education programs.

H. R. 4955, which was introduced by Perkins on March 18, as amended by the subcommittee, would authorize appropriations for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1963 of $45 million over and above the $67 million now being expended under the Smith-Hughes and George Barden Acts. In fiscal year 1965 the Perkins bill authorizes $90 million additional funds—in fiscal year 1966 $135 million and for each subsequent fiscal year $180 million.

Perkins said, "The funds authorized by the legislation would more than double federal efforts in the field of vocational education. The expansion of our vocational education programs so as to afford skill occupation training opportunities in every locality is essential."

The Perkins bill in addition to authorizing federal funds to be used on the existing programs in vocational agriculture, trades and industry, practical nurses and highly skilled technicians, would expand the permissible use of federal funds to other job areas such as the business and office occupations.

The bill would authorize states to (See Story No. 1, Page 6)

AIRMAN CALHOUN LOST IN DISASTER AT SEA

One of the 101 persons lost in Monday's plane disaster in the North Pacific, approximately 60 miles off the tip of British Columbia, was Airman Second Class Victor J. Calhoun, 21, of Prestonsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Calhoun, of Highland avenue, were notified Monday by the Air Force that their son "has been missing in flight since 3 June between McChord Air Force Base and Elmendorf Air Force Base, Alaska."

Ships at the scene of the mysterious disaster later radioed ashore that there is no hope of survivors. "Evidence indicated an impact of great force," the radio message said.

Lost in the crash, which has not been explained, were 58 servicemen, 22 dependents of servicemen, their wives and children—15 Defense Department employees and their dependents and a plane crew of six. Thirteen women, including two stewardesses, and 20 children ranging in age from 10 months to their teens were aboard.

The Prestonsburg airman, 38 other Air Force members, and 18 Army men were flying to Alaska to new assignments. Calhoun had been stationed at Barksdale Air Force Base, Louisiana, and last Friday concluded a furlough spent here with his parents prior to departure for his new assignment.

He had been in the Air Force two years and eight months. He was a graduate of Prestonsburg high school and was a member of the school's football team.

Surviving him, besides his parents, are three sisters, Gail Ann, Judy Sue and Rita Kay, all of Prestonsburg.

Cause of the disaster is unknown. The crash of the Northwest Orient Airlines DC-7 was the third worst in history involving military personnel. The pilot radioed at 10:06 (Pacific Daylight Time) for clearance to climb from 14,000 to 18,000 feet. When the air traffic controller attempted to contact the pilot, three or four minutes later, to grant permission to make the altitude change, there was no response.

POLICE PROBE AUTO THEFT

Two-Car Collision Near Park Results In Jailing of Wallen

The collision of two automobiles atop the dike at the entrance to Jenny Wiley State Park last Friday afternoon set State Police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation probing into a Chicago crime.

It was quickly established that one of the cars had been stolen in Chicago. The investigation continues in an effort to fix the blame for the theft.

Jimmie Ray Wallen, formerly of this county, was jailed by Trooper Don Goble late Friday. Wallen and a woman companion, Christine Personette, fled into the woods near the dike after the car driven by Wallen had hit an auto occupied by Ruth Jean Caudill, of Johnson county and Fairborn, Ohio, her mother, sister and brother. He was booked on charges of leaving the scene of an accident, driving without an operator's license and reckless driving.

Nobody was hurt in the wreck, it was said. Officers at the scene soon learned that the car occupied by Wallen and the woman had been stolen. Two others, listed as Hollis Griggs and Helen Ferguson, both of Chicago, admitted coming here in the car with Wallen and Miss Personette. Each of the men accused the other of stealing the auto, Trooper Goble said. The FBI is continuing the investigation.

Marion Yates, who escaped custody here April 20 while acting as a trustee at the county jail, was returned to jail last Thursday by Constable George Conn.

Charles Webb was jailed Friday and Dock Blanton was arrested by Constable Gory Porter after they had been accused of whipping a young man named Lafferty and of taking $75 from him on the Dweale mountain. Both accused men are residents of Dweale.

Others jailed within the week: Paul Taylor, a.w.o.l., arrested by FBI Agent Swearingen; Walker Newsome, charged with transporting intoxicants and operating a motor vehicle without license, jailed by State Trooper L. Hatton; Creed Smallwood, no operator's license and driving while under the influence of an intoxicant, booked by Trooper Hatton.

Machine Canvass Cuts DeRossett Lead By 1 Vote

Examination of the voting machines for all the precincts in the county was made Friday by the election commissioners in a review of the returns in the race for the Democratic nomination for Circuit Clerk.

The canvass of returns, requested by David Hereford who prior to Friday was listed as trailing Frank DeRossett by five votes, resulted in a gain of one vote for Hereford, leaving DeRossett the winner by four.

The election commissioners issued Mr. DeRossett a certificate of nomination, which is the equivalent of election, since the Republican party did not name a nominee for the office.

A Hole-in-One's Nothing... GOLFERS AT PARK COURSE SCORE TWO IN SUCCESSION

Golfing history was written Monday afternoon when two golfers playing in the same four-some shot consecutive holes-in-one on the Jenny Wiley State Park golf course.

It is believed the feat had never hitherto been performed in the long history of the game. It happened on the 122-yard No. 6 hole. Joe Wheeler Burchett, winner of the preceding hole, hit a seven iron straight to the flag—and the ball dropped for a perfect shot. "Top that one," he remarked to Arthur Hughes, of Prestonsburg, next on the tee.

Hughes swung, the ball sliced slightly, hit the green—and joined Burchett's ball in the cup. The two players and their playing partners, Albie Burchett and John G. Heinze, were so shaken that they did not leave the tee to go to the green, and the two balls were removed from the cup by members of an approaching foursome, among whom were Paul Phillip Hughes and Adrian Blackburn.

Needless to say, the other members of Hughes' and Burchett's foursome were over par on the three-par hole.

At the next tee Hughes remarked, "Strange that a fellow can't win the honor with a hole-in-one."

Francis Is Speaker At Princess Elkhorn Employees' Banquet

David L. Francis, Huntington, West Virginia, president of Princess Coals, Inc., addressed supervisory employees of the Princess Elkhorn Division, Saturday, at a banquet held Saturday evening at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park. Wives of employees were guests.

Mr. Francis spoke mainly of the future of the coal industry, of industry problems now being solved by better and cheaper rail transportation of coal, and of advances made through improved mine mechanization which gives coal customers a better product at cheaper prices.

He also pointed to the many improvements made in Eastern Kentucky within the last three years and of how these will help all citizens of the area.

Undersecretary of Commerce Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., said the Area Redevelopment Administration had "postponed further consideration" of the board's request "because the miners' Welfare Fund has refused to come in and justify its price."

As a result, Governor Bert T. Combs announced he would delay indefinitely a special session of the General Assembly to appropriate some $700,000 to cover an expected operating deficit after the proposed board takeover.

Roosevelt advised Combs in a phone call that complications were serious enough to warrant postponing the special session. Combs had planned to issue the call Tuesday for a session beginning next Monday or Tuesday.

In announcing his intention to call a special session, Combs emphasized Monday that the matter of a grant from A. R. A. was the (See Story No. 2, Page 6)

FLOYD BONUS TOTAL SET AT $2,027,436

With operations ready to close on the three-year-old Kentucky veterans' bonus, Adj. Gen. Arthur Y. Lloyd, administrator of the bonus program, estimates that the filing of 6,240 Floyd county bonus claims resulted in the payment of $2,027,436.

(These and other figures are not exact, it was pointed out, because bonus statistics are not set up on a county-by-county basis. The estimated number of claims was arrived at by using statewide surveys and information from Selective Service and the Veterans Administration. The average paid per bonus claim was $315.80, and that figure was used in determining totals paid.)

Lloyd predicted the "natural death" of the Bonus Division by the end of June. He said that, as of May 10, $126,378,644 had been paid to 400,180 Kentucky veterans and their beneficiaries.

In the Seventh Congressional district, which embraces Floyd and 22 other counties, an estimated 59,980 claims drew a total of $18,941,824.

COURTHOUSE SQUARE RENEWAL JOB CLEARED

The film, "No Man Is An Island," sponsored by the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club, will be presented this evening (Thursday) at 7 o'clock at the Strand Theatre, it was announced by Huck Francis.

Proceeds of the film will go to the Boys and Girls Work Program, Francis said. He urges people to see this outstanding film presentation. Tickets may be procured from any member of the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club.

The Kentucky Jaycees, in cooperation with the Prestonsburg organization, are sponsoring a drive to wipe out a deficit of $129,000 incurred last year by the hospital. James R. Spurlock has been named chairman of the drive here.

Jaycees will be out in force collecting dollars to make the drive a success, Spurlock said. He urged those who may not be solicited to send their contribution of a dollar to Dollar Day, Kentucky Jaycees, Louisville 2, Kentucky.

Spurlock noted that Floyd county benefited materially last year from the services of Children's hospital. Statistics show that the total patient days from this county was 138. He said that in 1962, 30,116 children were treated and they chipped up a grand total of 41,905 patient days. The hospital gave approximately $579,000 in free care. It has topped the $500,000 mark in free service every year for the past four years and this is the first time any organization has conducted a statewide drive to give Kentucky's only children's hospital some help.

Children's hospital is the only hospital in the state devoted exclusively to the care and treatment of the acutely ill child. Children's is a private, non-profit hospital, and receives no tax support.

Mr. Ramey said he wants to make the training facilities and services of the teaching personnel in the Prestonsburg Extension Center available to all persons in the area who are 16 years of age or older and can profit from the training program. The center's training program is primarily concerned with high school youth during the year while high schools are in session but with the completion of the high school year classes in carpentry, electricity and machine shop are available to the public.

Summer classes will be offered again this year in the Prestonsburg Extension Center, according to an announcement by George L. Ramey, of the Mayo State Vocational School, Paintsville.

CASH GRANT CONTINGENT ON FINANCING

The Courthouse Square urban renewal project here was given final approval this week after review of the project report by the Urban Renewal Administration commission, and a capital grant of $194,743 was made on the undertaking.

The success is subject, however, to the grant of financing the city's share of the project cost.

Second of the urban renewal jobs planned here, the Central Business Area, has cleared review at Atlanta and has gone to Washington for a final decision. Proposals on this second project were filed at Atlanta, a week or more later than the Courthouse Square plan, and it is believed approval of this project is only a week or two away.

The Central Business Area is in the square formed by First and Second avenues and by Court street and Ford street.

Approval of the Courthouse Square urban renewal work will mean the sale of the old courthouse site to the city, lessening the net debt to be incurred in the construction of the new courthouse across Third avenue from the old.

It was said this week that an important meeting of the City Council on water and gas line extension will be held Friday evening. Installation of more hydrants and increased size of water lines as well as extensions will be considered, and it was said that the improvements will mean a fire insurance classification reduction and accordingly cheaper rates.

A New Power Felt in Politics

Perhaps no particular segment of the state's population played a more vital role than the teachers in the recent Democratic primary as pertaining to the gubernatorial nomination.

Determined not to lose the ground they had gained, organized and fighting together as never before, they exerted an influence which reached down to practically every family in the state. They flexed political muscles never before used, muscles they probably did not realize that they had.

Effective as they were, there is a danger inherent in this role the teachers have played. Now feeling their "political oats," they must be aware of the responsibility which goes with power and influence and guard against the radical elements, the hot-heads and those other disturbing influences which inevitably find a toehold in any group of such size and numbers as the teachers represent.

They must not make the mistake other powerful and influential groups have made in the past. Their influence outside their own ranks will exist only as long as they realize that teachers owe their services to all classes of people and as they resist the temptation to see good only in those measures and official acts which are specifically good for the teachers.

The teachers must remember the No. 1 factor in the nomination of Edward T. Breathitt was Governor Bert Combs and his Administration which was marked by three years of progress, and by its imagination and courage which dared to do things never heretofore attempted in the Commonwealth.

They must remember, too, that in Mr. Breathitt they had a strong candidate, a refreshing personality, young, unscarred and yet aggressive, who is in himself the best proof of his intelligence, ability and purpose.

Never sell the teachers of the land and their influence short. Because their influence reaches so deeply into the lives of those about them, especially into the lives of children and youth, it is of extremely great importance that these teachers be the sort of individuals one would want to become a part of his children's lives.

Because they as a group have evinced a new power in the exercise of the ballot, it becomes doubly important that they themselves guard what they have and use it carefully.

DEMOCRATIC VOTE BY PRECINCTS

TO THE VOTERS OF THE 96th DISTRICT:

I would like to thank all my loyal friends for their support in my race for Representative.

I have worked hard in the past legislative meetings with Governor Combs and my fellow legislators, to do all I could for education and labor in order to help the people of Eastern Kentucky.

Due to misunderstandings, I found, after the election was over, I had no one in many precincts, only in a few where I had close relatives and friends.

As I am a laboring man, I worked up till two weeks before the election. I know there were many of you I didn't get to see. In the two weeks I campaigned, I saw as many of you as I could.

There were also false rumors spread. I would like to say, I was trying to see everybody and was not responsible for what other people did or said.

I pulled 1700 votes in my district, which I know came from the hearts of the people. I thank you sincerely. I wish also to extend my best wishes and congratulations to Mr. Gearheart upon his victory.

Sincerely, BEN MARTIN

FELLOW FLOYD COUNTIANS

The support which you gave me in my successful race for Circuit Judge is heart-warming, and Minnie and I offer our sincere thanks.

Probably the worthwhile value of a political campaign is the presentation of issues which affect our county. I have discussed with you some of these problems and I look forward to our joint effort in reaching a solution.

My opponent can take credit for a hard-fought campaign, conducted in the best tradition of Kentucky politics. I join with him in offering my enthusiastic support to all of the Democratic nominees in the coming November election.

Let us now join hands to face our common problems and secure the future for our children and the good of Floyd county.

Again my sincere thanks,

Your friend,
HOLLIE CONLEY

Paul Hager To Direct Recreation Program

Prestonsburg's summer recreation program will get under way next Monday with Paul Hager, city recreation director, in charge. It was announced this week by City Councilman E. B. May, Jr., head of the recreation department.

The program will continue for about 10 weeks and is designed to offer both boys and girls, free from school work and with time on their hands, outdoor sports to claim their interest. Earl Castle is chairman of the Recreation committee which is developing the entire program.

Hager was employed for the work by the City Council at a salary of $200 a month.

The program will begin with Little League, Minor League, Babe Ruth and Connie Mack baseball for boys and softball for girls. Badminton and volleyball may be added during the summer. Eventually, May said, the city hopes to provide a swimming pool and tennis courts to round out a complete recreation program.

All play will be at the grade school playground.

(Details of schedules and other information appear elsewhere in this edition of The Times.)

Allen Thanks Supporters

I wish to congratulate Harold Stumbo upon his successful campaign and nomination as Commonwealth's Attorney and wish for him the best success in the administration of the office.

I wish to thank those people who supported and aided me in this campaign and even though our efforts were not successful I have no ill feelings towards those who opposed me.

I firmly believe that each citizen has the right to vote for his choice and am willing to abide by the decision of the people.

Sincerely,
JARVIS ALLEN

UNCERTAIN OF HUSBAND'S FATE, FLOYD CO. WOMAN DECLINES TO HAVE HIM DECLARED DEAD

Although to do so would mean the collection of money for herself and two children from the U. S. government, Mrs. Mary Ruth Clay, of Martin, will not have her war-veteran husband, now missing nine years, declared legally dead until she knows it is the right action to take.

Mrs. Clay, who works in a store here with her mother, Mrs. Maude Dye, said this week she has been unable to decide to take the legal steps necessary until she is certain her husband is no longer living. Officials have assured her it would be a simple matter to establish the legality of her husband's death and collect what is due her.

A deeply religious woman, Mrs. Clay said, "But he may be alive."

Her husband, Carroll Clay, was operator of a fruit market and a thriving business, when he left Allen in a truck in April, 1954, to buy a load of fruit. He drove alone. He did not return.

Two months later, a letter reached Mrs. Clay from her husband, then in Florida. He told her he was ill.

Since that time no word has been heard from him. Meanwhile his Army records have been used by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in an effort to find him, and the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, which financed the truck he was driving, staged a nationwide search.

But no trace of either the truck or its driver has ever been found.

BABE DIES

Turner Ramey, Jr., two-month-old son of Turner and Delcie Stone Ramey, of Garrett, died Tuesday at Our Lady of the Way hospital. Besides the parents, he is survived by one sister. Funeral services were conducted Wednesday at the graveside, the Rev. Merlin Stone officiating. Burial was made in the Ramey cemetery at Bolen, Ky., under the direction of Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Bobby Fischer of Brooklyn, winner of the U. S. chess championship five times, was launched on his career at age six, Reader's Digest reports, when his sister bought him a $1 chess set. A chessboard with all pieces in place has stood beside his bed ever since. He is one of the 60-odd players in the world to bear the title of grandmaster. Only nine of these are Americans.

touchiest aspect in negotiations. He said:

"It is a very sensitive situation. It is an unusual situation, almost a desperate situation which requires a solution."

Some high state officials tried earlier to get the U. M. W. to turn over the hospitals to some other group without charge. The effort reportedly was rejected quickly and decisively.

Despite this deadlock between the undersecretary and the mine union negotiators, Representative Carl D. Perkins expressed confidence the hospital agreement would eventually be worked out.

Roosevelt said the Presbyterian board was "technically" the applicant for a purchase grant but would operate the hospitals in Kentucky, West Virginia, and Virginia "on a nonprofit basis through a non-sectarian subsidiary."

Roosevelt said he had been told that the Fund "considers that its $9,500,000 demand price cannot be reduced and further explanation and justification is not required."

"I consider that our position that the miners' fund must be present as either a party to or at least an observer at the negotiations is a minimum acceptable condition to further consideration of this application."

Neither the U. M. W. nor the Presbyterian board would comment specifically on Roosevelt's statement.

This is the U. M. W. welfare fund's viewpoint as outlined Tuesday:

It has a $27,000,000 investment in the 10 hospitals. But after months of negotiations with the Presbyterian board, a price of $9,500,000 was set on them, and the church group agreed May 1 to buy the facilities if financing could be arranged.

In order to fulfill its part of the "understanding" with the Welfare Fund, the missions board sought a purchase grant from A. R. A.

The U. M. W. agency did not feel it could contribute anything to the negotiations between the other two parties.

In the May 1 agreement, the church group set a target date of October 1 for its takeover of hospitals at Harlan, Hazard, Whitesburg, Middlesboro, and McDowell, Ky.

Ownership of the other five, at Pikeville, Beckley and Williamson, W. Va., and Wise, Va., would be transferred to the missions board by July 1, 1964.

After this "understanding," the miners' fund held off sending out closing notices to the hospitals at Whitesburg, McDowell, Hazard, and Middlesboro, which had been scheduled to shut down July 1.

GEARHEART THANKS VOTERS

I take this means to express my sincere thanks to all who voted for or worked for me in any way in the race for Representative. To you who voted for or worked for Mr. Martin, you used the privilege given to you by the laws of our country, therefore, I say, Amen. Let's join hands for a great Democratic victory in November.

Yours truly,

use the new funds for the construction of area vocational schools and makes provisions for vocational training for the unemployed adult and out of school youth. The new funds provided by the bill would not have to be matched, except where used for vocational school construction in the first year. After the first year matching on a 50-50 basis would be required. States have been overwhelming federal vocational education funds by as much as 8 to 1 in some training programs in an effort to meet the great public need.

The bill would make permanent Title VIII of the National Defense Education Act which authorizes $15 million annually for programs to train highly skilled technicians. This provision was due to expire in fiscal year 1964.

It also makes permanent Title II of the George Barden Act authorizing funds for practical nurses training which otherwise would have expired in 1965.

The bill gives the states a greater latitude in fitting vocational training for job opportunities in the states by permitting transfer of funds from vocational education categories to other occupational fields when greater job opportunities opened up in other fields.

Mrs. Nellie Martin Webb, Descendant of Pioneer Settlers

This picture of Mrs. Mary Martin Webb, wife of Ben Webb, was made in 1900 near Allen. The scene reflects graphically a bit of life on Floyd county farms at the turn of the century. Mrs. Webb and her husband were engaged in merchandising for over 50 years.

Mrs. Webb was the oldest of ten children of Marion F. and Caroline Mayo Martin, pioneer settlers. Mr. Martin held title to a vast area of Beaver Creek land which included the site of the present town of Wayland. It was near Wayland that the pioneer, William Martin, settled about 1800.

The First National Bank salutes the early settler families and their descendants who have contributed so much to the development of our region.

STRIP-MINE SHOWDOWN SEEN IN NEAR FUTURE

BY JOE CREASON
(In the Courier-Journal)

A head-on contest matching private profit vs. public interest will develop if action results from a recent almost-overlooked suggestion made to the President of the United States by the Governor of Kentucky.

The suggestion—and it is only that at present—might lead to a long-delayed showdown in determining once and for all how long the destructive exploitation of natural resources by strip coal miners and others is to continue before restrictive steps are taken on a national level.

Offered by Governor Bert Combs in a meeting with President John F. Kennedy to explore ways the federal government may assist in flood and redevelopment problems in Eastern Kentucky, the suggestion is this:

That a new national forest be created in Eastern Kentucky to cover the upper watersheds of the Big Sandy, Kentucky, Licking and Cumberland Rivers—streams that rise within a comparatively few miles of each other high in the hills, and which in March caused more than $50 million in flood damage.

In the opinion of Governor Combs, a national forest would have multiple benefits. It would aid in controlling floods at their source along the mountainside, and it would place under management and restore productivity to land left denuded by open-cut coal mining and heavy timbering.

Last Monday, the U. S. Government asked to intervene in a strip-mining suit pending in Federal Court at Pikeville on the grounds that mountainside surface mining is destructive of the national resources.

The government charged, in effect, that strip and auger mining are done without proper control and restorative measures, and thus cause soil erosion which affects streams and pollutes water, impairs the natural beauty, destroys topsoil and vegetative cover, damages adjacent property and diminishes the value of the area for outdoor recreation.

That effort by the government to enter the Pikeville suit points up some of the growing concern over the damage left by open-cut mining.

It also points up why it is that the Combs suggestion for a new national forest, if anything comes of it, just might bring about a showdown on many of the perplexing problems revolving around the exploitation of all natural resources.

There is, for instance, the very real possibility that Congress at last would be forced to determine the point at which the ravaging of land by strip and auger mining—a growing problem in Kentucky—ceases to be a local and state matter and becomes a national concern.

Specifically, any national forest boundary set up in far Eastern Kentucky would include vast expanses of land underlain with coal. Eventually, Congress would have to face up to the touchy matter of what to do if coal companies refused to sell key tracts of land.

Improved equipment makes it possible today to strip coal from mountainside land which long ago was timbered over, and which until now has been inaccessible for coal mining. Present-day machines can cut wide benches for miles and expose coal on slopes too steep to stand on. Up to 7,200 tons of coal an acre can come from such land.

It stands to reason that, while they may be unable or unwilling themselves to reclaim stripped land properly, the coal companies would not willingly sell land that can be surfaced-mined at a profit.

Thus, inevitably, this question would arise:

If it could be proved that to strip such tracts would create a flood hazard and not be in the best interest of the general public, would Congress be willing to invade the empire of private enterprise and allow the land to be condemned and taken into a national forest?

Meanwhile, Governor Combs sticks to his national-forest suggestion as one with long-range benefits for an area desperate for help.

Since it appears likely that some emergency steps to help the depressed areas in the Southern Appalachian region may be taken in the near future, certain questions about national forests could become of prime concern to Kentuckians.

Exactly what is a national forest, and what are its benefits?

A national forest is an area with natural resources which effect public values, but which ordinarily would not be managed for the greatest public benefit under private ownership.

The creation of a national forest has started with a suggestion like the one Governor Combs left with the President. Most of the 148 reservations have been established by presidential proclamation, but in some cases, an act of Congress has been the beginning.

Careful study is given to the boundary of the area to be considered for a national forest. Ownership of land, going price per acre, recreational potential, and other details are determined before Congress is asked to appropriate money to purchase land.

Provided every step is taken as rapidly as possible, about six months would be required to bring the first tracts into a new national forest.

The initial move in managing any new forest land in Eastern Kentucky probably would be to flatten the spoil banks left by strip mining. This would be done to prevent the high mounds of raw dirt, rock and slate dumped over the hills when the cut is made, from continuing to slip and erode down the slopes into the streams below.

At the same time, grass-sod waterways and culverts would be built to control water draining through the spoil banks. Grass and about 1,200 pine seedlings to the acre would be planted.

Once the spoil banks were flattened and grass planted, small dirt or cement dams and collection basins would be built on creeks near the top of the hills to reduce at the source the volume and velocity of water falling along the ridges.

Such dams and basins have reduced drastically erosion in Cumberland National Forest, the only national forest in Kentucky.

It would be seven or eight years before great changes could be noted in a new national forest. But by then, now-bare hills would have a stand of grass, and forest cover would be large enough so that water-absorbent topsoil again would be restored in part.

Within 30 years, this could be harvested for pulpwood. Within 60 years, timber would be full-grown. Cumberland is a perfect example of tangible benefits derived from a national forest.

That forest stretches in a long, narrow block atop the Cumberland Plateau for 190 road miles from Fleming county to the Tennessee line. When land acquisition started in 1932, most of the 1,367,000 acres in the authorized boundary—and "authorized boundary" means only the area inside which land can be bought—had been cut over many times. As many as 4,000 fires swept over 80 percent of the area each year.

Now, by careful management, the 459,875 acres which actually have been acquired for the forest are on the way back. From 4,000 the number of fires was cut to 59 last year, and acres burned to fewer than 300.

At present 25 million board feet of timber is marketed and auctioned off for cutting annually, and about $30,000 a year more than the cost of administering the forest is returned to the U. S. Treasury.

One fourth of all money taken in from timber sales is passed back to the forest counties for roads and schools. During the first 20 years of forest operation, McCreary county, which lost 56 percent of its land, received an average of 23 cents an acre from the Forest Service as compared with 7.9 cents an acre from private timber land.

All this from a forest which is not yet fully mature.

No one has suggested the number of acres that should be included in the boundary of the new forest suggested by Governor Combs. But Robert Collins, supervisor of Cumberland National Forest, estimates that at least two million acres in 12 counties lie along the watersheds of navigable streams where floods build up.

More than 75 percent of the area of these 12 counties is classed as land suitable mainly for timber. Yet, except for small, isolated pockets, only scrub trees and residue from fires now stand.

Collins also estimates that from 2,000 to 4,000 men could be put to work in flattening spoil banks, building dams and basins, planting seedlings, and doing other things necessary to restore productivity to land which now is more a public liability than an asset.

MAJOR CHANGES SCHEDULED IN PUBLIC AID PROGRAM

Gov. Bert Combs has announced three major changes in the state's public assistance program in a move to relieve hardships on many needy in Kentucky. The changes are:

1. Actual amount of funds received by needy persons from their children will be used in computing assistance grants.

2. Needy persons will no longer be required to give up their homes to qualify for assistance funds. Formerly, if applicants owned homes with a value of more than $3,000 or $5,000, depending on location, they were not eligible for assistance.

3. The practice of considering small amounts of earned income in determining eligibility for old age assistance shall be discarded.

"Under the new policy," Combs explained, "an aged person's eligibility and amount of grant will be determined by the ability of his children to contribute to his support. This will relieve hardships on many needy persons whose children are not able to help support them because of their own family's expenses, such as excessive medical bills and the education of children."

Since 1936, the State Public Assistance Division has placed prop-

PUBLIC HOUSING HELP IS ASSURED KENTUCKY

Frankfort, Ky., May 27 (Spl.)—As a result of a unique plan developed by the state, Kentucky has been virtually assured federal aid for a pilot program of low-rent public housing for the elderly.

Three Kentucky cities seem sure to be selected for the pilot project. They are Stanton, Manchester and Columbia. A possibility of a fourth site at Cave City or some other locality is being considered by the federal government.

A. R. Henson, regional director of Public Housing Administration at Atlanta, told a group of about 150 persons at a Governor's conference on housing for the elderly that Stanton had already been checked and is approved. Columbia and Manchester will be checked soon, he said.

Under the plan, first of its type in the nation, the federal government will build low-rent public housing centers and lease them to local non-profit organizations to operate.

The Kentucky plan combines public housing and personal care homes into one concept. This type of facility is designed to fill the gap currently existing in housing for those elderly persons who fall between the aged who are able to take care of themselves completely and those who require nursing home care or hospitalization.

Sidney Spector, a special assistant in the U. S. Housing and Home Finance Agency, predicted that if the pilot program here is successful, many other states will follow Kentucky's lead in providing housing for the elderly.

Gov. Bert Combs, in welcoming the group, outlined a long-range plan he has begun for developing housing for the elderly in Kentucky.

FOLK SONG FESTIVAL SLATED AT ASHLAND

Ashland, Ky., May 27 (Spl.)—On June 9, the 33rd in a string of second Sundays in June, Jean Thomas, the "Traipsin' Woman," will present her annual American Folk Song Festival here.

Kentucky mountain minstrels and a sprinkling from Ohio and West Virginia make the annual singin' gatharin' at Ashland a re-creation of the gatharin' Jean Thomas discovered during her traipsin' in the Kentucky mountains as a court stenographer.

During the festival, three and more generations of a single family will appear on the rough stage before a century-old log schoolhouse, to sing and play the tunes handed down by their Anglo-Saxon ancestors. This year's performers range in age from three to 70.

Accompaniment for the singers issues something gally, sometimes mournfully, from the same make-do instruments used by the Big Sandy region's first settlers. They range from corn-stalk fiddles, primitive three-string dulcimers, lutes, lap harp, and homemade banjos fashioned from gourds.

Play-party games, courting songs, answer-back ballads, fiddle and banjo tunes, spirituals, and work songs from the Big Sandy fill the wooded hills where spectators find places on puncheon benches, tree stumps or on the ground.

For this year, Jean Thomas also searched out the area's painters and sculptors who will display their art near the "Wee House in the Wood," her combination residence-museum.

"No modern slants whatsoever" has been the watch-word of Miss Thomas since she presented her first festival in 1930. An 82-year-old native of Ashland, "Aunt Jean" describes herself as "such a shy little creature" while narrating her annual gatharin' but declared recently "I don't want it moved or changed, but to remain a monument to the Kentucky mountain people. I want it to be a bona fide corporation, and I want it nailed down right while I am still here."

MISS ROBERTS (1961) Robert Nethery, of Lexington, and Harry Bishop, of Paintsville.

The pageant program was brightened by the appearance of Miss Nancy Bowling, Miss Kentucky of 1962. She played several piano selections and joined Bill Lindsay, of radio station WPKE, in emceeing the program.

Conservation Camps To Develop Reliance In Boys and Girls

The opening of the Conservation summer camps is at hand. Often we have been asked to explain the benefits of these camps and to answer this question adequately would take up much more space than is allotted.

One of the greatest benefits to be derived by the boys from their one week stay at either Camp Wallace on Lake Cumberland or Camp Currie on Kentucky Lake is that of self-reliance. Many of these youngsters, boys and girls, have been held to the apron strings of their parents so closely that they have not been privileged to make a decision for themselves. To be sure, at these camps they are not turned loose to run and romp and do as they please. They are under strict rules and regulations as administered by competent camp personnel but, on the other hand, they are not coddled. They are told the rules and they soon find out that they are to abide by them of their own volition. They know that if they do not of their own initiative abide by these rules, that they must suffer the consequences. And reliance is therefore built into their minds and they are most happy usually to, without prodding or cajoling, abide by their rules, because there is about such action a pride in doing something for themselves.

So, in their minds, they are experiencing something new. They are being counted on to perform a given duty and they are so elated that they have been freed from the "home rule" shackles that they give their all for the sake of Dear Ole Camp Wallace or Camp Currie. It builds in them a feeling of pride or grownupishness, that they have not before experienced. It is much like the youngster who for the first time makes the basketball squad at his school. It is a great day.

At either of these camps there is a round-the-clock schedule which the youngster is to follow. The schedule is explained and posted but then the boy is put on his own, more or less. He is expected to follow this schedule without further explanation. Camp personnel is standing by to see that he does. It's only when he does not, that he gets in trouble. But, you'd be surprised at the small number who get in trouble. They follow the schedule because they are expected to and faith has been placed in them in this endeavor.

Yes, if the camps accomplished nothing else for the boy, that self-reliance that is generated in his formative mind undoubtedly is well worth the costs involved.

Floyd Men Are Honored At Pikeville Exercises

Pikeville, Ky., June 3 (Spl.).—Two young Floyd county men took high honors at Pikeville College's commencement exercises here Sunday.

Ray Jones, Bevinsville, top-ranking boy among the 76 graduates, was awarded a medal for academic excellence. He had a standing of 2.47 (quality credits per semester hour) in his entire college course.

A new spirit is evident in American education, and the quality of education at all levels has improved, Pikeville College graduates were told by Dr. John F. Latimer, associate dean of faculties at George Washington University, Washington, D. C. He addressed 76 candidates who received degrees Sunday, and about 120 others who expect to complete their work in summer school.

Record Class Graduated At Eastern, Martin Says; Dr. H. W. Hill, Speaker

Richmond, Ky., May 21.—Degrees were awarded a record graduating class of 562 at the 58th spring commencement of Eastern Kentucky State College Wednesday of last week, President Robert R. Martin announced.

The previous record number of degrees conferred by Eastern was 486, awarded at the 1962 spring exercises. Another class will be graduated at the summer commencement Aug. 1.

Dr. Henry W. Hill, president-emeritus of George Peabody College, Nashville, delivered the commencement address. Speaker for the baccalaureate services, held Sunday (May 26) was Dr. Homer W. Carpenter, minister ecumenical of the First Christian Church, Louisville. Both programs were held in Hiram Brock Auditorium.

Degrees were conferred by President Martin on 54 candidates for the master of arts degree, 117 for the bachelor of arts degree, and 391 bachelor of science candidates. The class was presented for graduation by Dean W. J. Moore.

The honorary doctor of laws degree was conferred upon Dr. Hill, and Dr. Carpenter was awarded the honorary doctor of letters degree at commencement exercises.

McDOWELL HI DOWNS ASHLAND IN REGIONAL

A five-run splurge by McDowell after two were out in the fourth inning proved too much to overcome as the Ashland Tom Cats were beaten 6-5 Saturday in the regional championship game at Central Park.

Ashland made a strong effort to bounce back in the fifth inning when it racked up four runs, but Wade Blackburn came in to limit the Tom Cats to a single hit the rest of the way and save the victory for the starting pitcher, David Turner.

Blackburn's sterling relief work was vitally needed by McDowell as Carl Goegler, who relieved Ashland starter Bob Yancey, also turned in a sparkling relief effort as he struck out eight (six in a row), and held McDowell hitless through three and one-third innings.

Keith Howell led off with a double for McDowell in the top of the fourth inning, and after one batter was retired, Blackburn singled and Stumbo walked to load the bases.

It then looked as though Yancey might get out of the jam when he struck out Jerry Patton for the second out, but this set the stage for the McDowell explosion. Ken Ratcliff dropped a soft liner into right field to score one run and when Shawn Howell drove a ball to right field that bounced over a small fence for a ground rule double two more runs scored. McCoy then belted a long triple between the left and center fields to drive in the final two runs of the inning before Goegler came on to strike out the final batter.

Ashland's bid to catch up began with one out in the bottom of the fifth. Eddie Radjumas walked and moved to second on Chipper Miller's single. A walk to Jordan then loaded the bases.

Ernie Daniels hit a long drive that barely eluded the outstretched glove of the centerfielder and the Tom Cat shortstop moved into third with a triple as three runs scored. William then shot a line drive single to right field to score Ashland's final run of the inning.

The winners opened the scoring in the second inning when pitcher Turner, who was also a standout on the McDowell basketball team, drove a long double to left field that landed near the sidewalk. He then hustled home on a single by Ratcliff on the left field line.

Ashland's other scoring came in the third inning when Yancey led off with a ground ball to shortstop and was safe on a bad throw to first. Gayle Bomar was safe at first when Yancey was forced at second.

ond on a sacrifice attempt. Bomar then stole second and rode home on a single by Miller, who was thrown out at second attempting to stretch it into a double.

Miller collected two for four to be the game's only hitter with more than one safety as base hits were well spaced for both teams. Relievers Blackburn and Goegler were two of the tournament's top performers as both boys hurled shut-outs in the semi-finals. Blackburn hurled a one-hitter last Friday afternoon against Rowan County high.

Ashland concluded its season with a 17-10 record. McDowell will go to the state tournament in Lexington which will be played at the University of Kentucky Sports Center, June 5-6.

A total of 11,110 Kentucky children received services of the State Department of Child Welfare in the year ending last June 30, according to the department's annual report submitted to Gov. Bert Combs by Child Welfare Commissioner Richard J. Clendeman.

UTILITY FIRM RECOGNIZES SAFETY RECORD

Ashland district employees of Columbia Gas of Kentucky, Inc., have received an award from the American Gas Association in recognition of an outstanding safety record. B. B. Brown, district manager, center, is shown being congratulated by W. P. Dick, vice-president and general manager. At right is R. M. Jackson, manager of distribution.

Mr. Jackson said they have received a Million Manhour Certificate from the Association for having worked 1,252,080 consecutive manhours without a disabling injury from March 7, 1955, to March 25, 1963. The employees have continued to work without a disabling injury since the end of the award period.

The 86 employees of the Ashland district serve almost 23,600 customers in 23 towns and communities, including Ashland, Catlettsburg, Greenup, Flatwoods, Louisa and Westwood. Customers of the company's Ashland district live in Boyd, Greenup, Knott, Lawrence, Martin, Floyd and Pike counties.

Mr. Brown said that during the award period there were two disastrous floods of the Big Sandy River and that the employees worked without an accident during the period despite many hazardous operating conditions created by the floods.

What's the value of your household possessions—your furnishings and equipment? If you were to lose them tomorrow through fire or theft, could you make a true net-worth statement? An up-to-date household inventory would serve as a guide, notes Frances Stallard, UK Extension specialist in home management. Such an inventory also gives a basis for deciding how much insurance to carry on such possessions.

Vacations go smoother in a Chevrolet Corvair

Bring on those mountains! They're not so high and mighty any more when you've got Corvair's gummy six and rear-engine traction working on them.

You scurry up the meanest grades. You move with sure-footed agility on wet pavement, muddy lanes, gravel and other would-be miseries.

And with most of Corvair's weight bearing down on the rear wheels, you have an easy time steering, too. Fact is, the handling's so light we don't even offer power steering for the car.

And there's more to feel good about. No problems with your radiator boiling over or going dry, because there's no radiator. Corvair's engine is air cooled. No concern about brake adjustments, either, because the brakes adjust themselves. Nothing much to think about at all except the good time you're having (and maybe the next mountain you're going to flatten).

Like to do that in a sporty bucket-seated Monza Club Coupe or Convertible? Like to spring into summer with a 4-speed stick shift* and Spyder package* with its 150-hp Turbocharged engine, special instrumentation and insignia? Your dealer's got just the Corvair and the Trade 'N' Travel deal on it to put you in a holiday mood.

Sugar Shortage Rumors Unfounded, USDA Says; Supplies Are Plentiful

Rumors of a sugar shortage in the United States are unfounded, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The sugar needed for United States consumption is either in hand or in sight, USDA emphasized.

"A relatively tight situation in world sugar supplies early this year created uncertainty in the market and gave speculators a chance to bid up prices," noted Charles S. Murphy, Under Secretary of Agriculture.

Recently, USDA has received new assurances from foreign countries supplying sugar to the United States that they will fulfill their quota commitment. In addition, the United States has access to supplies throughout the world through the global quota system.

"Sugar already on hand or committed to the United States for 1963 totals 500,000 tons more than last year's entire national consumption," Murphy said. He went on to point out that the speculative "bubble" in the sugar market is bound to burst in the face of this plentiful supply. "Speculators may be able to keep the bubble going for awhile, but not for very long."

Recently announced plans for Congressional hearings on the current sugar marketing situation "will show that U. S. sugar supplies are going to be plentiful and will help restore stability in the sugar market," he said.

USDA officials indicated that the only way a shortage could develop would be for consumers to hoard sugar supplies and warned that people who load-up with high-priced sugar may sustain losses when the price goes down.

TO: DR. JOHN G. ARCHER

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of Prestonsburg General Hospital, Inc., held on May 20, 1963, a motion was made, seconded and carried, that you vacate that part of the Prestonsburg General Hospital now occupied by you.

You are, therefore, notified to vacate that part of the hospital now occupied by you, not later than June 22, 1963.

Dated: May 18, 1963.

PRESTONSBURG GENERAL HOSPITAL, INC. by GEORGE P. ARCHER, M.D., President

ATTEST: CHALMER H. FRAZIER, Secretary

In view of the above, I am moving my office to the old home place of George P. Archer—the George P. Archer who built and/or made The Bank Josephine. This home is at the corner of Second Avenue and Graham Street, next to the Methodist Church. There are no parking meters there, and I hope to be able to gain permission from the Board of the church to use during week-days the church parking lot which adjoins the church and my office.

I am moving to the address so that I may give you uninterrupted service, and will be open for practice on Monday morning, June 3, at 9 o'clock.

In an adjoining box is the schedule of the hours we plan to place ourselves at your command. We intend to make every effort to follow this schedule religiously, and we hope to continually improve our service to you.

Congratulates the Winner

Last week in The Floyd County Times I congratulated the winner in the race for Circuit Clerk; however, I didn't mention the name of the winner, as I anticipated a re-check of the voting machines, which were checked on the 30th day of May, and which resulted in a gain of one vote for David Hereford, leaving Frank DeRossett with a majority of four votes.

Now, my congratulations go to Frank DeRossett, the winner, who won by his untiring efforts and hard work and all the money he and his friends could muster together and the other candidates, of course, did likewise.

I have offered my services to Frank for a year or more, free of charge and without one penny of cost to him, which I would have done for David Hereford, I am well aware of the fact that neither of them could do or start with a knowledge sufficient to operate the office as it should be. I have been more than thirty years gaining the knowledge I have to operate this office as it should be and to the satisfaction of the lawyers who practice here. I wish Frank well in his new undertaking and hope that he will make a splendid clerk and keep up the work as required, which will take long hours for a newcomer to this office. I sincerely hope that he will not disappoint the people in his efforts and give the service required because upon his service and efficiency his future will be based. The service I have given to the people in this office has been the hardest and most difficult positions I have ever held. I know that when I was first elected to this office, I was so badly disgusted that I tried to sell to Jonathan Fitzpatrick, who offered me $1,200.00 and I asked him $1,500.00, and we split on $300.00. I was teaching school at that time and had a little mountain farm on the Spurlock Fork of Middle Creek and desired to return to it. A lot of people who know better will ask and request Frank to do things he is not permitted to perform under the law. The law must be followed or something detrimental can and may happen.

I was a supporter of this Administration and I have always consistently followed the administration in power, and I put more than $6,000 into it and Breathitt received the benefit; notwithstanding, a lot of people placed me with Chandler and many tickets were printed and handed out on the day of the election, and in precincts where Hereford seemed to be on top his name was placed and in others where Frank seemed to be the strongest his name was placed. I have some of the tickets showing this procedure while I had none, trying to be neutral as between the race for Governor, but it didn't work out that way.

So to Frank goes my wholehearted support and all the help I can give him in his efforts as Clerk and without any compensation or pay. I am not broke by any means. A lot of my friends feel that perhaps I am, but such is not the case. I can make another race anytime I so desire, although this one cost me $20,000 I make money outside of the Clerk's office, in real estate, the stock market and many other ventures.

So good luck to you, Frank, and with all my heart I hope for your success because upon your performance as Clerk will depend your future career as a politician or as an officeholder. All of which I submit to you for your kind consideration.

Watch The Times for more revealing facts will follow. I have nothing to tell but the truth and as it happened.

Additional Federal Aid Allocated for Repairs

An additional $1,750,000 in federal funds has been allocated for emergency repairs to public facilities in Kentucky counties stricken by March's disastrous flood.

Gov. Bert Combs received word of the allocation from President John F. Kennedy. The President's telegram to the Governor also said that additional funds will be provided if they are needed.

The new allocation brings to $2 million the amount of federal money made available for repairs to facilities such as schools, bridges, roads, and water lines. Most of the money will be utilized in Eastern Kentucky where flood damage was more severe than in any other part of the state.

State Civil Defense officials said requests for aid from cities and counties declared disaster areas as a result of the flood have totaled about $1 million so far and that new applications are being made almost daily. Local governmental units must file applications for aid by June 11.

EDUCATION COST LESS PER CHILD IN REGION

Kentucky expended $250 annually on each child in average daily attendance in the school year of 1960-1961 but the average for the nation was $390. Floyd county spent $209.85 to earn the rank of 106 in the 120 counties. Nelson county led the state with first place spending; $350.86. Bardstown, in the same county, exceeded even that by spending the sum of $433.79.

The pattern for the larger expenditures is for the most to be expended in the central part of the state and the lowest amounts in the poorer eastern section but this doesn't altogether hold true. There is a contrast between Perry county, the lowest in the state, with only $174.07 expended and Hazard, the county seat, which spends $250.82 on each child in average daily attendance. In Scott county this condition is reversed. The county spent $280.59 on each child, considerably above the state average but Georgetown in the county dropped $50 lower to $230.63. Woodford county ranks second with $324.24 expended with Bourbon county, third, spending $322.99.

Berea Junior Class Elects Miss Robinson

Berea, Ky., May 25 (Spl.).—Miss Ruby Jean Robinson, daughter of Mrs. Nan Robinson, of West Prestonsburg, has been elected junior class secretary for 1963-'64 at Berea College, Berea, Kentucky.

Today's carnation is the product of centuries of effort. The large, double, perpetual-flowering carnations of today were originated by a French botanist about 1840 and were introduced into the U.S. about 15 years later. Since then, intensive hybridization and selection in this country have produced many varieties and strains. A recent development in carnations is the miniature spray type, which has several small flowers on a single stem like pompon chrysanthemums.

The highest amount expended per child in the state was in the independent school district of Anchorage. The figure was calculated at $339.80, far above that of Jefferson county which takes fourth place in the county rank with $312.73.

It was in the eastern section of the state where the amount spent on each child dropped to the lowest points. Perry was at the bottom, with Magoffin, spending $179.30 taking the 119th place and Letcher, spending $184.22, Jenkins, with an independent district within Letcher, spent $297.10. Knott spent $198.73.

The figures are from "Where Does Your Community Stand In Supporting Its Schools?" issued in January by the College of Education, University of Kentucky, Lexington. "This report is not presented under any assumption that money per se is what makes a good school nor that districts should race with each other toward any standards, financial or other. We do assume, however, that comparisons are sometimes meaningful and significant and that what one community can do another of equal ability should be able to do though whether it should or should not is another matter. We assume that money has something to do with determining how well schools are able to operate."

The report was written by Paul Street, director of Bureau of School Service, James Treston and Bonnie Hume.

Eight other facets of Kentucky education were studied and the findings issued in the report.
