

Suits Filed May Hasten Stream Job Beaver Creek Work In Martin, Vicinity Possible this Year

If the 50 condemnations suits filed in the Floyd quarterly court can be expedited, officials of Martin and the county will gain hope that the million-dollar stream improvement project in Martin and vicinity will after long delay get under way this year.

Jarvis Allen, attorney who represents both the city and county in the effort to gain right of entry to property bordering on Beaver Creek where the flood control project is planned, said Tuesday that about 18 of the condemnation suits filed in quarterly court resulted in judgments taken without trial and by agreement of the parties, then were appealed to circuit court. Other cases may go the same route, and some have not been appealed.

Twenty-four of the cases remain in quarterly court, awaiting hearing or the formality of judgment so that they can be appealed and decided by circuit court.

In cases of rights-of-way for highways, right of entry upon land may be gained before court decision on appeals by the state depositing in escrow the amount of the lower court award, but there has been some contention that this does not apply to the Martin project.

Once entry onto the property is gained, the U. S. Corps of Engineers will advertise the work for bids. Straightening and deepening of the stream channel and reinforcement of the banks are planned from the point near Martin where Right and Left Beaver Creeks join. The work will extend downstream through Martin and to a point near the mouth of the Sammy Clark Branch, downstream from Arkansas Creek.

Governor Voids Chairlift Order At State Park

Governor Ford last Thursday lifted the "hold order" which had stopped work begun on the Cumberland Falls State Park chairlift by Edward C. Music, of Prestonsburg, and development of the facility presumably was ready to be resumed.

Tommy Preston, the governor's press secretary, said the order halting the project was lifted following a discussion of the installation by Ford and Parks Commissioner Ewart Johnson and that Johnson had convinced the governor that the chairlift would be an asset to the park.

Mr. Music said last week that the chairlift situation at Cumberland Falls had been "blown out of all reasonable proportions" by the news media. He pointed out that the contract for the chairlift and the 20-year lease were signed by both the commissioner of parks and the commissioner of finance last Feb. 20 and that, acting on that authority, he had committed more than $91,000 to the project. Of this amount, equipment on the ground, ready for assembling, cost $68,000, he said.

The Prestonsburg man, who operates chairlifts at Jenny Wiley and Natural Bridge State Parks, pointed out that the clearing of a strip of trees for the chairlift

Man Held Here On 'Weed' Count

Activity of law enforcement officers in the county during the past week included the arrest of a Prestonsburg man on a narcotics charge, the recovery of a sizeable quantity of stolen copper wire, two liquor raids and a number of lesser charges.

John Gibson was found in possession of a small amount of marijuana after Deputy Sheriffs Doug Lewis, Linzie Hunt and Stewart Williams were called to a disturbance in the Goble-Roberts Addition area Saturday night. Gibson was charged with possession of illegal narcotics, drunk driving and no operator's license. Sunday, a juvenile was stopped from visiting at the jail after a large packet of marijuana was taken from the youth by a turnkey. No charge was made in connection with the incident.

Paul Carter Jackson was arrested last Tuesday by Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis and Deputy Green Stone and charged with selling stolen property after a large amount of copper wire that had been sold to Mountain Metal Company here was identified as belonging to a mining operation on Jack's Creek. Funeral Home Opening Is Set This Week-End

The Floyd Funeral Home will have its official opening in its new $175,000 facility on new US 23, near Water Gap, Saturday and Sunday after moving from its original Prestonsburg location earlier in the month.

The new brick veneer building has 5,600 square feet of floor space, with central heat and air-conditioning. Its main and auxiliary chapels have a seating capacity of approximately 300.

The new funeral home will have all new furniture and equipment, including intercom and music systems, Larry Burke, manager, said. The parking area at the Water Gap location will accommodate approximately 90 vehicles.

The funeral home has for about 20 years been located at the corner of Third street and Lake Drive in the building formerly owned by the late Anna Feiler and after her death purchased by Joseph, Incorporated. Its principal stockholders are Mr. Burke, Mrs. Mae B. Martin and Mrs. Thelma Turner.

CREASON ON CREASON

I have several "favorite people," and Joe Creason, of The Journal, is among them. One reason for my liking him is because, regardless of how ignorant you are, he'll pretend not to notice. When I thought to add to the sum total of my own personal knowledge during a conversation with him last Sunday, about all I got was confirmation of the fact that Benton, Ky. was the only town he was ever born in.

THANKS

Generally speaking, folks have always been kind to me. There's not the mark of a horsewhip on my back after all this time getting out a newspaper. And in the last few weeks I have been "recognized" for this or that. Last week, it was a fine group of youngsters from Allen Central High School's journalism class. Last Sunday, it was Prestonsburg Community College. Tonight, it's the Jenny Wiley Reading Council.

All this vaguely disturbs me. Hope they haven't decided that maybe they'd better scatter their flowers while they may.

I appreciate their thoughtfulness. It's always good to be "recognized." And at this stage of the game it's even better just to be recognizable.

THE MUSKRAT ERADICATOR

Watt Hale warns me we shouldn't judge others, and out of his personal experience proves he's right. He tells of the time, some years back, when a certain character with no visible means of support, lying, sitting or standing, frequented his community. The fellow was too lazy to be anything but harmless, but Watt said he seemed to fare about as well as those who worked, and he finally suggested to a friend that a vagrancy warrant for the fellow would advance the cause of justice.

But his friend didn't agree. "That man," the other told Watt, "he's done as much for us farmers up the creek there as anybody I know."

Watt, of course, wanted to know how the bum had been so helpful, and his friend told him:

Two File Suit Asking $361,000

Patricia A. Centers and her husband, William R. Centers, last week filed suit in circuit court here seeking to recover from Dr. Ira P. Potter, of Lackey, a total of $361,000.

Mrs. Centers alleged in her portion of the joint petition that from about July 1, 1972 through March, 1973 Dr. Potter was negligent in his diagnosis, treatment and prognosis of her condition, this resulting in cancer of the cervix and necessitating removal by surgery in May, last year, of her reproductive organs. Dr. Potter was named individually and also as doing business as the Potter Clinic Pharmacy. She asks $200,000 "for past, present and future pain, suffering and mental anguish," plus $11,000 for past and future medical and hospital expenses.

Her husband sues for $150,000 for loss of consortium.

Parkway Speed Trap Warning Is Sounded

"Motorists—watch your speed on Kentucky's Mountain Parkway."

This warning has been issued by the American Automobile Association to 870 motor club offices across the United States and Canada.

The warning was issued after a number of motorists charged that "traffic traps" were being operated by sheriff's deputies in Magoffin, Powell and Wolfe counties.

According to the Blue Grass Automobile Club, Lexington, the AAA has advised affiliated motor clubs that the Mountain Parkway is a "strict enforcement area" and motorists should use extreme caution not to exceed the 55 mph limit.

Motorists have complained that in Magoffin county, speed is checked with a radar unit operated by Sheriff Ben Patrick. If a vehicle operator exceeds the speed limit the sheriff radios a deputy stationed at the Salyersville toll place and a citation is issued when the offender stops to pay his parkway toll.

Sheriff Patrick has advised the Blue Grass Automobile Club that citations are issued only when the offender has exceeded 65 mph.

In Powell a Wolfe counties, where deputies are patrolling the Parkway, motorists claim they were cited for substantial excessive speeds when, in fact, they had been traveling just a few miles over the posted limit.

Motorists arrested in the three counties have protested the extremely high fees being charged by the county courts. The fees range from $26.50 to $28.00, with $7 of this amount being paid to the deputy who makes the arrest. In addition to these court costs, a minimum fine of $10 is assessed, making the total cost $36.50 to $38.00, the automobile club claims.

In addition to the high fine and costs, motorists arrested on the Parkway have complained about demands for cash bonds totaling $100 and the threats of being jailed if the bond is not posted or the fine paid.

At a meeting of the Executive committee of the Blue Grass Automobile Club held Monday in Lexington, the committee urged that the sheriffs of the counties involved "discontinue their aggressive patrolling of the Mountain Parkway."

A spokesman for the club said State Police do a very creditable job of policing this toll facility. There are no arresting fees when the State Police issue a traffic citation. According to the AAA Club, this alleviates the charge made by motorists that the sheriff and his deputies are conducting this enforcement activity purely for the revenue involved.

Our Mistake

The Times apologizes for its error in last week's edition in listing Ronald Turner as having been arrested for drunk driving and driving without an operator's license.

The name should have been Ronald Tackett, and how the mistake was made we cannot explain.

Creason Tells Grads To Turn, 'See Who Has Been Behind You'

Many of those who were merely in the role of onlookers at the graduation of 98 young women and men from Prestonsburg Community College last Sunday afternoon were placed in leading roles by Joe Creason, widely known Courier-Journal columnist, the speaker at graduation exercises held at the amphitheatre in Jenny Wiley State Park.

Members of the graduating class were asked by Mr. Creason to turn and look behind them where sat the parents and grandparents who had accepted their responsibility to their children and grandchildren and had made their education possible.

"Because they were materialistic," he said, "you will have more leisure time, work fewer hours, have greater opportunity and travel farther to more places than any other generation. Don't ever let yourselves be blind to what your parents and grandparents have done for you."

"The most dangerous thing facing this country," Mr. Creason told his audience, "is not war or Russia or China or drugs—it's nothing but plain, old, unadulterated indifference. For heaven's sake, be bothered about things!"

Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of the college, introduced the speaker and paid tribute to his administrative staff and the faculty of the college. He announced that Robert R. Allen has been promoted by the University of Kentucky's board of trustees to the post of assistant director of the college and as an associate professor with tenure. Mr. Allen has served as academic dean at PCC—or, Dr. Campbell said, whatever else he has been asked to do.

In his presentation of special awards Dr. Campbell announced that Robert J. Wallace, librarian at the college, had been promoted to a full professorship. Mr. Wallace was one of six who became the first librarians in the community

Park Camp Area Nears Completion Camping and Work Planned on Marina Held Major Assets

The opening of a modern camping area scheduled next month and future marina facilities which will cost $750,000 were hailed last week by George Barker, Jenny Wiley State Park manager, as additions which will continue to hold for the park a high place among state attractions to tourists and vacationers.

The camping area in the Goble Branch area of the park is expected to open by mid-June and it will afford 128 campsites with full camping facilities, Mr. Barker said.

Except for the installation of a lift pump to convey sewage across a hill to a sewage treatment plant removed some distance from the camping area, that portion of the work is complete. Electric power and water lines are in and two bathhouses are under roof. The former Camp Chatterawha property of the Girl Scouts, which was purchased by the state, will be used as a recreation center for campers, with indoor games such as shuffleboard and billiards, and an area for square dancing. The building formerly used as a chapel there will be converted into a small grocery store for campers' convenience.

Drainage pipe installation, work on access roads and installation of camp pads remain to be completed by Department of Highways personnel. The Parks Department will install grills for campers' use.

All electrical work, the water system, bathhouses and sewage plants were let to contractors, and some phases of this work have been delayed by at least two weeks by rain and the rise in the lake level.

Council Loses Patience After Repairs Delayed

Prestonsburg's City Council is becoming impatient with the contracting firm which left a number of streets here in car-shattering condition after telephone lines were laid underground last year.

City Manager Curtis Clark said Tuesday that the American General Contractors, Columbus, O., which removed street surfaces last year in laying underground cables for South Central Bell Telephone Company, had indicated restoration of the streets would begin last week but that it didn't. He was attempting to reach the contractor early Tuesday.

Highland and Riverside avenues and several cross streets were left in poor condition when the underground work was completed last year. Resurfacing work was begun last year, but was stopped when city officials held that the blockpaving being replaced was not of sufficient thickness.

Mr. Clark said the contracting firm has excused the street repair delay with the explanation that blockpaving has not been available, since asphalt-mix plants have not been in operation early in the season.

apparently first stole wire from the mine operated by Homer and Bobby Tackett on May 3 and later sold the wire to Mountain Metal for $238. The missing wire went unnoticed until Jackson allegedly struck again on May 6, selling $341.25 worth of wire. The mine owners soon identified the stolen goods and Jackson was booked in county court.

Two liquor raids Sunday netted Sheriff Lewis and deputies a modest haul. Thirty-two cans of beer were seized at the residence of Dicky Hall at Grethel, and a search of the home of Melvin Hall, of Galveston turned up five bottles of beer. Both men were booked on a charge of possession of alcoholic beverages for purposes of sale.

Others booked at county jail within the week, charges against each and arresting officers follow:

at Cumberland Falls is a fourth of a mile in distance, not the half-mile reported, and that no trees have been or will be cut in the perimeter of the falls themselves. "We are not destroying," he said. "We will plant flowering shrubs where the trees were cut, and this will not be a mechanical eyesore but will be converted into beauty that is in harmony with the entire scene."

The chairlift, which is scheduled for completion in July, will enable the elderly, crippled and other handicapped persons to enjoy the falls, the parks commissioner said. Music said many wheelchair occupants have been taken to the top of the mountain at Jenny Wiley and Natural Bridge parks for views which they never otherwise would have enjoyed.

The chairlift, both Johnson and Music contend, will be an asset to the park and will relieve traffic congestion in the vicinity of the falls. The lift is not visible from the park's DuPont Lodge.

Supporting Johnson's position, Gov. Ford said the commissioner "has repeatedly proven his competence in parks management and development." The project has met opposition from Robert Blair, head of the Cumberland Falls Preservation Association, Henry Ward, a former commissioner of parks, and others.

CONTRACT TROUBLE

Lenna Moore says he, L. J. Music and Clabe Bingham have a joint gardening venture going, up on Riverside. He, of course, hasn't done a third of the work that he claims to have done, operating a tiller, and so on, but the partnership seemed a perfect one: Clabe supplying the land, L. J. and Lenna maybe doing some of the work. But Lenna says complications have arisen. After everything was up and growing, he says, Clabe has recalled that one clause must be added to the contract and that is the one which is to name him as the one who will divide the crop.

Access roads to individual camp sites will be gravel-surfaced this year and blacktopped next year, the park manager said.

Gov. Wendell Ford announced last Friday the selection of Barge, Waggoner, Summer & Cannon, of Nashville, by the Executive Department for Finance and Administration to plan improvements to marina facilities at the park.

Existing facilities at both the Jenny Wiley and Terry boat docks have been determined unsafe by the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, and extensive reconstruction is required to improve the docks to a level acceptable to the Corps and the Department of Parks.

Ewart W. Johnson, commissioner of the Department of Parks said, "We feel that this project is essential to the maintenance of the high standards that we have set for our parks. These are the levels of service and the types of facilities that have gained for us the well-deserved reputation for having the finest system of state parks in the nation. Not only will the park be improved but the whole area will feel the positive impact of improvement to the marina facilities."

The project is part of governor Ford's executive budget of $14.2 million for capital construction by the Department of Parks.

Details of the improvements planned for the two docks will be announced on completion of the planning firm's work. Replacement of all the wooden section of the Jenny Wiley dock, plus enlargement of the dock, has been completed, and a fish-cleaning facility has been added. Wind damage to the roof of the metal section of the dock is yet to be repaired.

Looking ahead to the marina and camping area additions to the park and their attraction to the public, Mr. Barker said the park "is already having a great year," he said 70 percent of the cottages and 84 percent of the rooms at May Lodge were occupied last month and that the booking through August is now 90 percent full.

That compares well, he added, with a statewide parks average of about 60 percent.

Kentuckians Run for Office

By MARVA GAY

Frankfort, Ky.—Kentuckians love to run for any public office. But, most of all, they like to run for county sheriff.

According to the annual report of the Kentucky Registry of Election Finance, about 1,100 offices were up for grabs last year and 3,229 Kentuckians grabbed for them. There were 50 candidates for state Senate, 286 tried for state House of Representatives, 11 tossed in the hat for special elections and 280 bid for city offices. But the biggest scramble was for county offices with 2,602 candidates.

If divided equally, there were three candidates for every office. But, some offices are more popular than others.

Kentuckians' passion for running for sheriff was exemplified in Jefferson county, where 18 persons vied for the office—that's the 1973 record. Harlan county had 15 contenders for sheriff.

On the other hand, few run for property valuation administrator. However, Dr. K. P. Vinsel, executive director of the registry, said that doesn't necessarily mean fewer persons would like to run for that office.

"The only candidate for public office in Kentucky who must pass a test first is the one for property valuation administrator," Vinsel said. "Sometimes, only one or two persons in a county pass the test. So, that's all that run."

Of all the offices up for grabs, the job of coroner is one of the least sought—usually only one or two candidates in each county.

Of course, the number of candidates dwindles after the primary—and, in some counties the amount of money spent on the election drops to almost nothing after the primary. Vinsel explains that some counties are basically one-party counties, so the primary is the decisive election. "In counties where almost everyone is, say, a Democrat, the winner of the Democratic primary is a sure winner. So, hardly any additional money is spent on the campaign after the primary."

Besides listing the candidates for office, the registry's annual report lists campaign committees plus expenditures and campaign contributions.

Lumping the Kentucky candidates together by party, Democrats spent about $1.5 million on campaigns last year; Republicans spent $500,000 and See Jenny Wiley First . . .

The Times is in sympathy with those who would protect the environment but it finds a statement made by a member of the group opposing the chairlift at Cumberland Falls State Park inconsistent with fact.

This individual was quoted as saying, "It's the worst thing that ever happened to any state park in all America."

This "worst thing" consists, we learn, in the clearing of a strip of trees a distance of one-fourth mile, 30 feet wide. In their stead, we also are told, will go flowering shrubs and the surface fully protected.

Wonder if this critic of the Cumberland Falls situation has any knowledge of what has happened at Jenny Wiley State Park? A few years ago, timber over a large acreage there was cut and the logs were hauled straight downhill, creating vertical gullies down which the runoff from every rain poured into Dewey lake. And this lake is as vitally important to Jenny Wiley State Park as Cumberland Falls is to the state park where this chairlift is being installed.

This lake, which is such an integral part of Jenny Wiley State Park, has also suffered from the effects of stripmining operations for several years now till siltation threatens to cut short the life of the impoundment. Those who have protested here on the scene have received little or no support outside Floyd county.

Perhaps those who have been so concerned for Cumberland Falls should have come first to see Jenny Wiley. If they had, they surely would have decided that the Cumberland Falls chairlift is not "the worst thing" that has happened to any state park.

Stanford, Former Wayland Star, To Coach 14 in All-Star Game

By C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

Jack Stanford, a former Wayland High basketball star, will return to the 15th region June 1 to guide the 14th regional basketball stars in the annual battle between the two regions. George Francis, of the Hindman Yellowjackets, will serve as his assistant.

This year the 14th region is loaded with outstanding basketball players—from Powell County High, James Goodwin and Jay Means; from Breathitt County High, Daryl Gross, Clester Howard and Linville Herald; from Hazard High, Mike Sammons and Larry Moss; from M. C. Napier, David Combs and Earl Combs; from Knott County, Gary King and Gary Gibson; from Whitesburg, Frank Hillan and Eddie Stollard; from Dilce Combs, Daryl Feltner; from Carr Creek, Donnie Amburgey; from Ousley County, Nathan Mullins.

Coach Stanford said the combination has the speed and rebounding ability as well as scoring skills. The 14th regional stars won last year's game, 91 to 88.

The 15th regional stars will be coached by Pete Grigsby, Jr., of McDowell, and Coach Wendell Wallen, of Johnson

Central. The 15th region has the top scorers in the state on their roster, including Bill Jack Runyon of Paintsville, Mark Myers, of Pikeville, Jim Bob Michaels of Louisa, UK-bound Dan Hall, of Betsy Layne. Johnson Central's versatile Neal Burchett, Allen Central's playmaker, Don Hansford, and rebounding star, Keith Gearheart, McDowell's outstanding guard, Glenn Heinisch, and jumping Jim Tackett, Wayne Tiller of Sheldon-Clark, Jim Miles of Salyersville, playmaker Tommy Allen of Pikeville, Chipper McPeck of Virgie, Barry Thompson of Johns Creek and Prestonsburg's Jim Blackburn.

"This should be one of the best post season all-star games of all," Coach Grigsby said. With the spacious Prestonsburg fieldhouse as the site, a lot of razzle-dazzle play and high scoring should highlight the all-star event.

Two Week-Ends of Music Planned

From folk songs to bluegrass to "ol' time" mountain music—they'll all be featured Memorial Day week-end at the fifth annual Mountain Heritage Folk Festival, May 24-26, at Carter Caves State Resort Park, near Olive Hill.

The festival, which will emphasize Appalachian music as performed by the native hill people, has been labeled a "grassroots undertaking" to perpetuate the vitality of Eastern Kentucky culture.

More than 70 musicians will perform in a natural outdoor amphitheater in the beautiful Cascade area of Carter Caves, according to Park Superintendent Mason Branham.

The "picking and singing" starts Friday evening at 7 to kick off the festival and will last until the early hours on Saturday. Later Saturday morning, a folk workshop follows, featuring a folk medicine display of early mountain remedies, a session of folktales and lessons on mountain fiddle styles and mountain instruments and songs.

And throughout the festival mountain folks will exhibit some native arts and crafts at the amphitheater.

Saturday afternoon will be devoted to modern folk and bluegrass music, followed by another night of old mountain tunes.

A Sunday morning hymn session begins the last day of the festival, and a final round of music from 1-6 p.m. wraps up the three-day event.

Limited camping space will be provided, and Branham advised all music lovers to bring blankets and chairs to prepare for an outdoor week-end filled with mountain music.

The Carter Caves fest will be followed by the first Festival of the Bluegrass at the Kentucky State Horse Park, near Lexington, June 7, 8 and 9.

The biggest and best stars of the bluegrass world, including Bill Monroe and his Blue Grass Boys, "Doc" Watson, Ralph Stanley and the Clinch Mountain Boys, and Jim and Jesse McReynolds and the Virginia Boys, are expected to move into "overdrive," as bluegrass musicians say, with the finest bluegrass music anyone could every hope for.

Other performers well-known to Kentuckians, scheduled to be at the festival, are the McLain Family Band and J. D. Crowe and the New South.

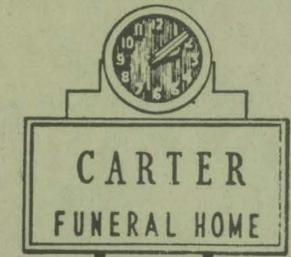

A part of Fayette County's participation in the Kentucky 1974 Bicenennial celebration, the festival will offer samplings of just about every facet of Kentucky's rich and hearty culture.

The mouth-watering foods and dishes native to Kentucky such as soup beans with ham hocks, cornbread and country onions, and country ham and biscuits, will be on sale to festival-goers. Exhibitions and demonstrations of early Kentucky arts and crafts are to be on display.

A variety of musical exhibitions will also take place with special "flat picking" guitar contests and other musical competitions and demonstrations.

Parking for both cars and campers will be free at the 963-acre farm north of Lexington on Iron Works Pike, and lists of motels and rates will be furnished on request to bluegrass fans at the festival.

Company Executive Praises Mr. Layne

(From Tom's Toaster, trade publication of Tom's Foods, Ltd., Columbus, Ga.)

In 1952 I was sent to Ivel, Kentucky to work with a fairly new TOM'S Distributor. I had never been in this part of Kentucky and had difficulty in finding a map to show the location. After a lot of driving and some good information I found the warehouse of Chester Layne. I found Chester to be a nice looking, enthusiastic young man working late from a one-ton panel truck.

It was my pleasure to work with Chester whom I found to be one of the best salesmen I had ever met. Chester had friends, relatives and customers galore. He worked long hours getting into the many areas he served, most of which were in mountain hollows or up the side of the mountain. Even in those days Chester had sales of $500.00 per day. Because of his confidence in TOM'S Products and his determination to sell more each day, Chester gave his competition a very hard way to go.

Over the years Chester continued to sell and build his business and grew to three trucks and, mind you, to this day, many maps do not show Ivel, Kentucky.

A few years ago I again had the opportunity to be associated with Chester and meet his family. He has a very considerate, thoughtful wife, Jean, and two fine sons, David and Malcolm. David is a college graduate and now teaches school, and Malcolm is in college with the ambition to become a lawyer. This is certainly a family of which any man could be proud.

Over the years Chester continued to work in the peanut business, but began spending more and more time dealing in real estate as this area became more developed and the roads began to improve. Although Chester divided his time between TOM'S and real estate, he has never really quit being a TOM'S Man at heart.

It is with mixed feelings that I see Chester sell his distributorship so that he can be free to enter county politics. I will always consider Chester as a friend of TOM'S as well as a friend of mine and I will not forget his motto, "Chester Layne, the Friendly TOM'S Man" which appeared on his sales tickets and which he broadcasted when he sponsored basketball games of the local high school.

Good luck to you, Chester, Jean, David and Malcolm, as you continue to serve the folks in your community in a new manner.

Suit by Martin, Others Asks $12.5 Million of Coal Firms

Cordell H. Martin, Hindman attorney, and three associates in a landholding company, have filed suit for $12.5 million against two Perry county coal companies, claiming the defendants have illegally mined from their land 1.25 million tons of coal.

Defendants are Sigmon Enterprises—four brothers, Edd and Harold, of Hazard, and James and Charles, of Middlesboro—and the Pine Branch Coal Sales Company.

The land company plaintiff is the Jefferson Land and Mineral Company, of Hindman, in which Martin, Lawrence G. Hall, of Salyersville, Mrs. Margaret Shockey and her son, Harold Shockey, both of Pikeville, are partners.

The suit is one of the largest ever filed in Eastern Kentucky.

According to the suit, Sigmon Enterprises obtained "fraudulent" deed to two tracts of the plaintiff's land totaling 5,013 acres in the Chavies section of Perry county through a 1969 transaction in which the Sigmons purchased 89 tracts of land in Perry and Breathitt counties for $50,000 from the court appointed receiver for the defunct Continental Realty Co., of Dover, Delaware.

Jefferson Land and Mineral Co. alleges in the suit that Continental Realty sold the two disputed tracts in 1915 and that the land became the property in 1929 of the Shockey family. Thus, the suit contends, the tracts were not part of Continental Realty's holdings in 1969.

The suit claims the Sigmons have removed 1.25 million tons of coal from the plaintiff's land and asks reimbursement at the rate of $10 per ton, for a total of $12.5 million. The plaintiff also seeks a permanent injunction forbidding Sigmon Enterprises from "trespassing" on the two tracts.

Edd Sigmon said, "There is nothing to the suit," but he declined to discuss specific points in the suit until attorneys for Sigmon Enterprises have filed a response.

Highlands Medical Center To Observe Nat'l Hospital Week

Residents of Floyd and surrounding counties will have an opportunity to become better informed about the services, activities and future goals of Highlands Regional Medical Center during National Hospital Week, May 12-19, 1974.

Highlands Regional Medical Center is joining 7,000 hospitals throughout the country in observing the annual event with the national slogan, "Get to know us before you need us."

On announcing Highlands Regional Medical Center's National Hospital Week activities, Chalmer Frazier, administrator, said, "In this era of vast social and economic change, people are concerned about how hospitals are meeting growing health care needs, both inside and outside their walls. They have a rightful interest in how effectively and efficiently hospitals are fulfilling their responsibilities, and about the rising costs of health care services."

"The objectives of our National Hospital Week 1974 activities are to encourage the people of this community, as well as those closely involved with the institution, to 'get to know us.' As they 'get to know us,' we hope the public will then better understand that we need their involvement and support in order to meet our obligations to the community."

Mr. Frazier said that in observance of National Hospital Week, Highlands Regional Medical Center will hold "Open House" Sunday, May 19 from 2 to 5 p.m. Guided tours will be made.

The National Health Crisis

By PAUL STARKE
(Administrator, Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin)

Experts in public affairs have long realized that our system of providing health care is inadequate, as many people are not receiving the care they require to maintain their health. No less concerned about health care in the U. S. is the general public itself. The most obvious reason, although not totally accurate, is our rapid growth and development following the second World War. This growth increased our demand for more and better health care services, it is felt.

The U. S. government, accepting this notion, introduced a number of legislative steps to encourage the provision of more services to more people. The results of this activity were Medicare and Medicaid in the mid-1960's. Surely these progressive steps should have improved the faltering health care system! To the surprise of many it did not, but indeed worsened the situation. What had gone wrong?

Experts set out to analyze this critical question only to find out that nothing had gone wrong, except that they were laboring under a false assumption concerning the ability of the nation's health care system to utilize additional money to provide more services as was the hopes of Medicare and Medicaid.

It soon became apparent the American system of health service delivery was not a system at all. The majority of physicians were operating alone as private entrepreneurs under a fee for service piecemeal operation that required the patient to purchase separately shots, X-rays, laboratory tests, surgery, anesthesia, hospital services, drugs, etc. There was little co-ordination of health services. This mode of organization is comparable to pushcari vendors in an age of supermarkets. The business of delivering medical services had not substantially improved or changed for many decades. Other business enterprises were transformed to effectively organize people, resources, capital, technical skills, and management. Businesses that did not transform themselves from cottage or pushcart enterprises to modern, well coordinated systems soon disappeared as they proved to be economic failures. However, this could not happen to the medical field as it is an essential service. When the economics of the market system cannot support an economic activity, the government often enters with some form of subsidy. This, of course, is what has happened with the increasing flow of public funds into the health care industry. However, the subsidy did not overcome all health care problems. Thus further investigation was necessary to determine why a national health crisis still existed.

In 1970, the secretary of HEW conducted a study to determine the cause of this very serious problem. The special report concluded that the problem centered around four elements:

1 - Ineffective Use of Resources - Our population and the amount of resources invested in medical care as compared to other nations having a better record of health care provision, as determined by infant mortality rates, shows those nations have a smaller ratio of physicians and hospital beds to population than the U. S. This indicates that inadequate quantities of health care resources, in general, are not contributing to the health care crisis.

2 - Poor Geographical Distribution of Resources - Another part of the health care crisis is due to the large disparities in the geographical location of resources. Too many people simply lack convenient access to the services of physicians and many communities are unable to attract physicians, while other seemingly more desirable areas are blessed with an abundance of physicians. Without doctors, or relatively few physicians, hospitals and health facilities either are unused or under-used. Urban centers have personnel and facilities, poor inner city areas and rural American have difficulty recruiting medical staff.

3 - Inadequate Management of Resources - Improper co-ordination of resources wastes what is available to the nation and individual communities. Lack of basic business organization deluded the wise use of what is available to many communities. Poor planning and integration of health resources form the root of the management deficiency.

4 - Incomplete Financial Coverage for a Large Segment of Population - Another part of the problem stems from the intolerable exclusion of large numbers in the population from financial access to care. Those most in need of health care are the very ones who either have inadequate or no coverage as they are the less able to afford such protection. Basically, it is the employed who are covered by some form of health insurance. Even then, many of these group contracts provide less than minimum coverage necessary to maintain good health.

The unemployed and poor, most frequently, have no financial coverage at all. The health care crisis, then, is due to an inadequate system for health delivery; a system that is not comprehensive and excludes large segments of the population from access to adequate care.

Colonels' Barbecue Revives Memories

By HELEN PRICE STACY
Many friendships were renewed over bubbling pots of burgoo at the recent Kentucky Colonels' annual barbecue in Louisville. Old acquaintances swapped jokes, recalled former picnics and stirred up memories of younger years. Herbert K. Lykins, 72, Elberton, Ga., was most vividly reminded of his youth in Frankfort as a legislative page.

Born in the Caney-Cannel City section of Morgan county, where his mother taught school and his father ran a livery stable. Lykins has traveled extensively since those days, including a stint in Hollywood as an "extra." Yet one of his favorite subjects in his firsthand account of the state's General Assembly. An uncle, Sen. Jim Dan Whitaker first introduced him to the lawmakers.

"Gov. A. O. Stanley liked me and when he resigned to go to Washington he asked that I go along as a page, but I didn't get to," Lykins noted.

When Edwin P. Morrow was elected governor in 1919, Lykins said he returned to Frankfort as a page for an extra session of the Legislature.

He recalled carrying messages for several dignitaries and especially remembered dancing with the governor's daughter, Edwina.

"Edwina and I both loved to dance when they entertained at the mansion and Capitol. One time, Governor Morrow toned down the band for a special announcement, but we were so wrapped up in the dance we danced right on. Later we were so embarrassed we ran from the floor," he related.

Of all the people the youth met as a page, he said the most memorable was "the Veep," then Sen. Alben Barkley.

"He addressed me as 'Lykins, boy' when he requested a favor," the former page noted, adding that they often chatted between messages.

Lykins migrated to Hollywood during the depression when jobs were scarce. He was recruited to play the part of a German soldier just after having his hair cropped. He later worked with Mickey Rooney, Hedda Hopper and Robert Young's brother, Joe.

Although Lykins never became a star, he managed through the lean years as an extra and bit player, and once "squired" Hedda Hopper to a premier of her movie. While Lykins was on the West Coast, before becoming a Georgia businessman, Vice President Alben Barkley visited California. Lykins decided to see him in his hotel, but was told no visitors were being allowed.

"I told the clerk to send my name up and I'd show him," he explained.

When Barkley read the name, he called down. "Why, Lykins boy, you come on up these stairs. You gonna come right on in, boy."

Such recollections were in abundance at the Colonels' picnic.

The U. S. Employment Service, a major unit of the Manpower Administration, directs the federal-state employment service system, a nationwide network of 2,400 local offices.

Mrs. Miller observed her 102nd birth anniversary April 22 at the home in Wellston, O. of her granddaughter, Mrs. Gilbert E. Ray, and family with whom she has resided the last seven years. Her husband, Mar Miller, died years ago. At the birthday gathering, which was attended by relatives and friends, she sang two favorite hymns. "Her health is still good enough for her to enjoy the company of friends and relatives and to sing and pray," a relative said.

Four of her nine children are living. They are Aldo and Jack Miller, both of Jackson, O., Mrs. Nannie Grossenbacher, of New Mexico, and Mrs. Maggie Sheppard, of Florida.

Red Mulberry, Queen of Trees

By NEVYLE SHACKELFORD (UK College of Agriculture)

The red mulberry which grows over much of the eastern half of the United States and which has been called the "queen of trees," has a wilderness romance all its own. From its bark, Indian women of early America wove a sturdy cloth that was dyed and fashioned into colorful cloaks decorated with "feathers of swans, turkeys, and ducks." And in 1540, after the ill-fated expedition into the "apalachen country," the leaderless Conquistadores of Hernando DeSoto made ropes of the bark of this tree to rig the crude, homemade brigantines in which they sailed down the Mississippi to the safety of Mexico.

In comment on the mulberry, DeSoto's chronicler wrote they were "apt to feed silkworms, to make silk." Indeed, some of the early colonists at Jamestown tried this, but unlike those of the white mulberry that is not native to the United States, leaves of the red mulberry never proved successful as silk-worm food.

Nevertheless, the red mulberry served the young country well. Its wood, though coarse grained, is slow to decay and therefore made excellent fence posts and fence rails. Also, the tree was widely used for beams and for foot pieces for that famous land-splitting, root-breaking farm implement known throughout Appalachia as the "bull-tongue plow." When well seasoned, the tough, light, shock-resistant, and easily-workable wood was ideal for this purpose. Since it is easily split, it was used for making staves for barrels and kegs, and many a deceased pioneer has been buried in a coffin made from rived red mulberry puncheons. It hasn't been too many years since many old barn lofts contained a supply of mulberry boards rived out and stored away just for the manufacture of homemade caskets.

The red mulberry also figures in pioneer medicine. It can be recalled when the inner bark was dried, powdered and dosed out as a purgative and an-themintic. A syrup, made from the ripe fruit boiled in honey and vinegar, was given in croupy infants. That the powdered bark may have had some virtue is to be seen in the fact that some herbal medicine houses still offer it for sale and for the purposes mentioned above.

When ripe, red mulberries are truly delicious and, like wild goose plums, possess an unforgettable tang and flavor. In times past, every farm boy worth his salt knew the location and time of ripening of every tree within a radius of at least five miles of his home. During mulberry season, when he could snatch the time from his daily chores, he pilgrimaged to these trees like a Mohammed to Mecca, often coming away with purple-stained evidence of having worshipped at the shrine of Morus rubra.

Often, the country boy had to compete with wildlife for a share of the fruit. No less than 25 species of songbirds, not to mention crows and doves, have an overpowering taste for mulberries. Foxes, opossums, racoons, and skunks are very fond of them, too, and a gray squirrel will risk its hide any day for a bait. Until game warden enforcing conservation laws put a stop to it, squirrel hunting was a rule in mulberry time. All a hunter had to do to secure a quick and easy mess of squirrel stew was to place himself under a tree of ripe mulberries and pick off the squirrels as they came to feed.

Because mulberry trees of this size and form to make usable logs are relatively scarce, not too much value is placed upon this tree by lumbermen, according to J. A. Newman, Extension forester with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. But in all other respects, it remains a valuable wild resource that has meant a lot to the making of America.

EBB'S HAIR CONSULTANT WILL EXPLAIN HAIR PROBLEMS FREE AT THE PLANTATION MOTEL, Rt. 23 & 460, SATURDAY, MAY 18 HOURS 1 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY,

Louisville, Ky., May 15
Now is the time to act on this great opportunity. Every hair-worried person (man or woman) should take advantage of this FREE CONSULTATION. Many users have reported not only stopping their hair from thinning . . . but are really growing more hair.

GUARANTEED
You will be given a written guarantee on a pro-rated basis from the beginning to the end.

Naturally we could not give you such a guarantee if it didn't work.

CAN'T HELP
Male pattern baldness is the cause of a great majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss, for which no method is effective. Ebb Hair Specialists cannot help those who are slick bald after years of gradual hair loss.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness seems to "run in the family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of your hair loss.

Many conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead you are beyond help. So, if you still have hair on top of your head, and would like to stop hair loss and grow more hair . . . now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

FREE CONSULTATION
Just take a few minutes of your time on Saturday, May 18, and go to the Plantation Motel, Rt. No. 23 & 460 in Prestonsburg, Ky. between 1 p.m. and 8:30 p.m. and ask the Desk Clerk for E. T. Miller's room number.

There is no charge or obligation . . . all consultations are private, you will not be embarrassed in any way.

Judge Rules in Favor Of School Dress Code

U. S. District Judge Bernard T. Moynahan, Jr. ruled last month that there is a reasonable relationship between dress and grooming regulations and the orderly operation of a school system.

The judge's action came after a two-day hearing on that question in connection with a suit filed in November, 1972 against the Fleming County Board of Education.

The case now returns to the 6th Circuit Court of Appeals for a final decision on whether to uphold Judge Moynahan's rulings.

The attorney for the plaintiffs attempted to amend the complaint to allege that the grooming code was discriminatorily applied. Judge Moynahan refused to accept the amended complaint.

Nature Trails

By Rufus M. Reed

The Subtle Moods of Nature

The moods of nature are as varied as life. There is a mood for every hour, every month, every season of the year. Man—and animals, too—can sense these moods, and the deeper one can sense them, the more will he be in tune with the finer moods of nature.

There are moods of gaiety and of peace and tranquility; there are moods of melancholy, as in late autumn when so many creatures and plants are dying.

In autumn when the wind sighs and sings a doleful tune through the dying leaves, and the days are growing shorter, while the sun casts dark silhouettes of trees and hills—all this creates a mood of melancholy which animals and birds can sense. The cawing of the crow sounds the melancholy note of dying autumn, and at this season animals such as squirrels are deeply touched. Gray squirrels will sit still for a long time in some tree with fading leaves and literally cry in a doleful, melancholy voice, quite unlike the merry "squacking" of summer days.

Dawn brings a waking mood to all nature. The winds wake up and begin to stir from their lair; the robins blink their eyes and begin to carol their finest tunes, in a chorus that gets the day off to a good start. Little, wispy fogs rise and float like gossamer across the land, soon to be absorbed by the upcoming sun.

The wood thrush creates the finest waking mood of spring. As soon as he arrives from the south, he sends out a loud, flutelike strain that swirls and echoes far over hill and dale. His first, fine notes electrify the woods and put all nature in tune.

Trees have their moods as well as people. The mood of a mighty oak is one of grandeur; it stands solemn and aloof, above the moods of all lesser trees.

The mood of a hot, sultry day in July brings all nature to listless repose. The red-tailed hawk sails high and echoes the mood by a loud, querulous squealing. Cows wade knee-deep into the water to cool their bodies; they stand stockstill for a time, too indolent to move.

The mood of August and early September is one of deepest tranquility. A sense of peace pervades the land, the forest grows solemn, still; birds have folded up and quit singing; a lone cuckoo laments with a long, drawn-out series of coos and breathless clucks. The hectic growth of the summer has slowed to a standstill; the trees and the earth rest in peace. The wind sings a quiet tune among the full-leaved boughs.

The mood of a winter mountain capped with snow is one of stark and fearsome beauty—a beauty that is captured and held in the frozen arms of winter. Such stark beauty is unreal, almost ethereal, as it captures the sunlight and reflects its radiance with millions of gleaming sapphires.

The mood of a pine grove is something apart from all the others. The very air is sweet-scented by the aromatic odor and the millions of pine needles capture sublime melodies from every small wind. The tall pines are Aeolian harps that play soft, seductive strains like the sigh of surf on old ocean's shore.

The far-off roar of hilltop winds in autumn creates a mood that stirs the human soul with vague and nameless longings. The soul senses here one of the deep symphonies of nature played in a melancholy minor key.

The heat of a summer drouth creates a mood in which all nature prays for rain. The plants wilt and collapse; heat waves shimmer across the dry, sunbaked earth. Tree frogs climb high and implore the sky for rain.

The mood of the spring is light-hearted gaiety. The mood, when summer is full, is one of quiet rest and a sense of peace, with labors well done. The mood of autumn is tinged with grief for the dying season. The mood of winter is that of one who is in a trance too deep to know life and the hectic growth of a spring that's past and gone from the earth.

Floyd Countians Among Alumni Honored at Awards Banquet

Richmond, Ky.—Eastern Kentucky University honored 101 of its outstanding graduates, including four residents or former residents of Floyd county, at the Centennial Alumni Awards Banquet last Friday night as the University began a three-day Alumni-Commencement Week-end.

Eastern, currently observing the Centennial of Higher Education on its campus, honored the 101 recipients in the John Johnson Building Ballroom, following a reception in the building's Walnut Hall.

Other major events of the week-end include the dedication at 2:30 p.m. Saturday of a statue created by sculptor Felix W. de Weldon as a Centennial Year gift to the University from the Alumni Association; the annual Alumni Day Banquet with the announcement of the year's Outstanding Alumnus that evening, and baccalaureate and commencement exercises Sunday.

The honorees at the Centennial Alumni Awards Banquet, representing 20 states, were chosen from hundreds of nominations reviewed by a special subcommittee of the EKU Centennial Committee. Final selections were based on records of the Alumni Association, interviews, and extensive research over a period of several months.

Graduates of Walters Collegiate Institute, Eastern Kentucky State Normal School, Eastern Kentucky State Normal School and Teachers College, Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College and Eastern Kentucky State College are included in the honorees. Eastern became a university in 1966. Walters Collegiate Institute was Eastern's immediate predecessor on the campus, existing from 1901 to 1906. It followed Central University, founded in 1874, the date from which the Centennial of Higher Education on the EKU campus is counted.

The award recipients received the EKU bronze Centennial Medallion, cast in crystal lucite and encased in a leather and velvet presentation case. The names of the honorees are engraved on both the case and the lucite.

Recipients from Floyd county were: Mrs. James D. Adams, Prestonsburg, class of 1956, former teacher and civic leader; Dr. Jack Allen, Prestonsburg, class of 1935, now social sciences chairman at Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. Zebrum S. Dickerson, Prestonsburg, class of 1942, professor and department chairman of business education at Madison College, Harrisonburg, Va.; Claude H. Farley, Pikeville, class of 1928, former Floyd high school principal and superintendent of Pike county schools; William Donald Music, Auxier, class of 1940, retail marketer for Gulf Oil Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Among others honored were Earle B. Combs, former New York Yankees outfielder, baseball Hall of Famer and member of Eastern's board of regents; Lee Majors, class of 1963, television and movie star; Dr. Robert R. Martin, class of 1934, president of Eastern; William A. Cheek, class of 1932, superintendent of Lawrence county schools.

"THOSE CRAZY EPISCOPALIANS"

are they sort of a private club ... just for the rich?

Ha! You should be around when the nearest Episcopal parish is trying to finalize its annual budget. You'd know better.

Actually, this church did acquire a bit of snob appeal during the early days of our nation. English colonists introduced their own Episcopal version of The Church of England. It was only natural that many of these "first comers" became the wealthy landowners, the merchants, the gentry of this young nation. George Washington, Alexander Hamilton and — indeed — three-fourths of the signatories to the U. S. Constitution were Episcopalians.

But today, the Episcopal Church represents an exceptionally-broad cross section of the nation: people of every vocation, social status, race and political persuasion gathered under one roof.

You see, Episcopalians believe strongly that the church is a proper meeting ground for men's differences. Christianity, they say, represents the world's greatest hope for reconciling the divisions between one man and another. You don't have to agree with your fellow man; you only have to live with him.

Your nearest Episcopal minister may have some very good thoughts for you on that ticklish subject. There's no obligation on your part if you care to pay him a visit.

Winter Caused Over $3 Million in Road Damage

Frankfort, Ky.—Winter weather caused an estimated $3,201,000 damage to Kentucky highways this year, Transportation Department officials reported.

"The damage consists primarily of road surface failures resulting from winter rain, snow, ice and the general 'freeze-thaw' cycle," said Russell Romine, director of the Bureau of Highways' Division of Maintenance.

The estimated cost of winter damage last year was $2,565,000. "However," Romine noted, "the damage to Kentucky highways is about the same as last year although the dollar figure is higher."

The cost of the winter damage is figured on the basis of what it will take to restore the highways to the level of maintenance which existed prior to the winter season.

"The higher dollar figure this year can be attributed to the increase in cost of material used in maintenance rather than to more extensive damage," Romine explained.

"Based on current prices, the cost of materials has increased an average of 48 per cent. However, some important materials such as liquid asphalt have gone up as much as 300 per cent."

Romine pointed out that for the second straight year the winter was abnormally light. "This probably saved us in view of the rising costs. If the entire winter had been as harsh as the first week in January, we would have been out of material funds by the end of the season." Romine said that "during that first week we used all the salt we had on hand."

In all, the Division of Maintenance used 120,000 tons of salt this winter.

Of the Bureau of Highways' 12 Districts, the 10th District, made up of Breathitt, Estill, Lee, Magoffin, Morgan, Owsley, Perry, Powell, and a Wolfe counties, was the hardest hit with $937,000 worth of damage due to numerous slides occurring in this district.

A breakdown of the damage, by districts:

First (Paducah)—$260,000; Second (Madisonville)—$150,000; Third (Bowling Green)—$300,000; Fourth (Elizabethtown)—$150,000; Fifth (Louisville)—$19,000; Sixth (Covington)—$650,000; Seventh (Lexington)—$150,000; Eighth (Somerset)—$160,000; Ninth (Flemingsburg)—$150,000; Tenth (Jackson)—$937,000; Eleventh (Manchester)—$125,000; and Twelfth (Pikeville)—$150,000.

From an old friend . . .

Formula 33 Corporation

Have you heard the one about the scrubbers?

You'll appreciate this more if you bear in mind that "stack gas scrubbers" are monstrous contraptions designed to absorb most of the sulfur-oxide emissions from manufacturing plants, electric power plants, and the like.

They require huge amounts of chemicals, usually lime or limestone, which then become saturated with the residue.

There are many kinds of scrubbers. They do remove sulfur-oxides, when they work.

But those suitable for a sizeable coal-fired utility clog the works, and cause prolonged shut downs.

But our story isn't about clogs, repairs, or reliability.

It's about environmental protection.

We are all concerned about the cleanliness of the air, the water and the land. They belong to us all.

And that's reason enough for us to shrink from the most promising, the wet limestone scrubber.

On a major installation, it would emit tons of wet-waste sludge that would confront an ecologist with a disposal nightmare.

Applied to a 12,000 megawatt coal-fired system, limestone scrubbers would in only five years produce enough of this oozy gook to cover, for instance, 10 square miles of Washington D.C., five feet deep.

Saturated gook.

Which could leach polluting chemicals into the ground and its water.

Which would have to be fenced or patrolled for the safety of those under 5'6".

The irony of it is that "stack gas scrubbers" are strongly recommended by the Environmental Protection Agency—even though not required by the Federal Clean Air Act.

There are better, safer ways to protect the public health and welfare.

One is to release the vast reserves of Government owned low-sulfur coal in the West.

Another is to up-date the Clean Air Act to allow time for the development of the technology to clean high-sulfur coal before it is burned.

To sit and do neither would be a tragic comedy; a comedy of errors whose consequences would be tragic.

Consumer Comments

Frankfort, Ky.—Even the most alert consumer occasionally discovers that he has purchased a product that is defective or in some way below the quality he expected.

In these instances, the consumer has an obligation to himself to complain. And by complaining in an effective manner, the consumer makes it more difficult for the unethical or irresponsible manufacturer to operate, and more difficult for the disreputable retailer to do business.

More positively, an effectively registered complaint helps the legitimate manufacturer and businessman better serve the individual consumer and the public at large. Legitimate operators want to know when and in what way their products have failed to please.

When registering a complaint by mail, give the brand name, model number, size, color and other details useful for identifying the product. Include in your letter as specific an explanation of your complaint as you can formulate. Keep a copy of the letter and all correspondence that you receive or send. If sending the product by mail, be sure to insure it. If after complaining to the merchant, a satisfactory adjustment has not been made, inform the retailer or manufacturer that you are going to take your complaint to the Attorney General's Division for Consumer Protection. Then call the Division of Consumer Protection using the toll free HOTLINE 1-800-372-2960, to find out whether they can help you with your consumer problem. Send your complaint in writing, stating all the necessary facts and include all documents related to the complaint. Mail to Division of Consumer Protection, Capitol, Room 34, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

No-Fault Causing Confusion

Frankfort, Ky.—It's no one's fault but many Kentuckians are confused about no-fault auto insurance.

A no-fault law passed by the 1974 Kentucky General Assembly goes into effect beginning July 1, 1975, so—omitting the details that still must be ironed out—what is no-fault? What does it do? Why?

Simply, no-fault insurance is a plan under which an auto owner can collect from his own insurer for medical bills and lost wages resulting from an accident regardless of who was to blame for the accident.

Making no-fault more complex is Kentucky's unique form of the auto insurance among the half of the nation that has adopted some form of no-fault. Unlike other states, Kentuckians have three options. They can take no-fault insurance alone, reject no-fault entirely, or take out a quasi-no-fault policy that lies somewhere between no-fault and traditional insurance.

To reject no-fault, a person must inform the state commissioner of insurance in writing that he intends to do so. He can then purchase whatever type of auto insurance he wishes in the same manner as is done now.

There are six basic categories of auto insurance coverage—property damage, comprehensive, collision, bodily injury, medical payment and uninsured motorist. No-fault pays for only the last three—bodily injury, medical and uninsured motorist.

That means no-fault pays only for injury to people—not to cars. It will not reimburse anyone for bent fenders or any other type of property damage. Anyone who wants to be insured for things no-fault does not include should buy an extra type of insurance.

During the first year, no-fault policy holders will get a reduction in premiums for bodily injury liability combined with uninsured motorist insurance and $1,000 medical payment insurance. But, the reduction won't amount to much to the policy holder. For instance, a business man in Frankfort and a farmer in Smiths Grove would save about $4 a year on the basic no-fault policy. A 21-year-old man in Louisville would save about $15 a year.

According to State Insurance Commissioner Harold McGuffey, the big advantage in no-fault is quicker payment of claims and an increased number of accidents covered.

"With no-fault insurance we will get 60 per cent more of our people covered," McGuffey said. "About 60 per cent of all accidents in which someone is killed or seriously injured are either one-car accidents or accidents in which both parties are believed to be at fault. Then the people receive nothing, except medical payment, because they are at fault."

"Also," McGuffey continued, "with no-fault insurance, payment of claims is prompt since it is not withheld until fault is established."

To get all these no-fault advantages, the policy holder gives up the right to sue—except in certain circumstances. Litigation still is allowed in cases of permanent disfigurement, certain types of serious fractures, permanent injury, permanent loss of bodily function, death or medical expenses in excess of $1,000.

If someone wishes to retain his right to sue—he can do that, too. The third option allows a person to buy no-fault coverage and still retain the right to sue in all cases. This form of insurance costs more than the others.

The law specifies that owners and operators of motor vehicles must provide a minimum of $10,000 public liability for one injury arising out of an automobile accident and $20,000 limit for all injuries incurred in an accident. The $10,000 one injury, $20,000 all injuries in one accident minimum was already required for all automobile insurance. This public automobile liability insurance protection currently carried by Kentucky motorists. No-fault coverage will continue to protect the motorist against claims arising out of his negligent operation of a motor vehicle if he injures someone who has rejected no-fault. A no-fault policyholder is also covered if the injured person suffers the type of injury for which the law permits him to sue, if the adverse party is killed, or if the adverse party's medical expense exceeds $1,000.

A policy buyer has the option of purchasing up to $40,000 no-fault insurance.

But, if this is no-fault, who cares who was negligent? The insurance companies do, for three primary reasons.

First, fault still must be determined for payment of property damage.

Second, the company insuring the person who was at fault may have to repay the other insurance companies for expenses they incurred because of the accident.

Third, the companies need statistical information on accidents to determine rates for different categories of people. For instance, premiums for young men are higher than for middle-aged women because records show young men cause more accidents.

But with no-fault coverage, the determination of who was to blame is behind the scenes. Persons directly involved in an accident are not called into court—except in some cases where they are called upon to explain what happened. And payment for injuries usually is completed before a case ever goes to court.

Despite the confusion and the complexities, no-fault auto insurance does provide prompt payment for many injuries, and is on its way to Kentucky.

Switch to our 1974 Mark II. It brings you big car benefits without big car problems.

Mark II has plenty of space per passenger. It rides cushy . . . yet parks and handles easy.

And Mark II gives you the kind of luxury . . . as standard equipment . . . that you may have associated only with big cars. Such as an AM-FM Multiplex radio on the Hardtop and Wagon. An electric clock. Tinted glass. Power front disc brakes. Plus the gas benefits of a peppy 6-cylinder engine.

If this is your first "little" car there's another advantage. The Mark II isn't styled like one. But it's designed to save like one.

Group Asks Church Participation In 3-Day Bicentennial Sabbath

The Floyd County Bicentennial Committee is asking that all Floyd county churches participate in the 1974 Kentucky bicentennial and the 1976 national celebrations.

Their participation is being asked, it was explained, because both state and national celebrations are commemorations of important events in history and, more importantly, are times for renewal—for a rekindling of the faith that drew people to America, sustained them during their struggles in the wilderness and inspired them to found and maintain a nation based on the dignity and freedom of the individual.

The various Kentucky religious communities are being asked to participate in a special Bicentennial Sabbath, May 24, 25 and 26, so that they may rededicate their congregations to the pioneer religious principles.

The three-day Sabbath, which will be a part of the nation's Memorial Day celebrations, will allow all faiths to observe the Bicentennial on their normal day of worship.

A "Committee of Five," composed of representatives of Kentucky's various religious communities, has been chosen to coordinate the activities of congregations around the state and to encourage all of them to observe the Bicentennial Sabbath in some way.

The committee has chosen the Sabbath theme, "The Rock from Which We Were Hewn," to suggest that every Bicentennial Sabbath sermon stress the importance of religious faith in Kentucky's history.

Congregations are also encouraged to ring their bells at 12 noon of their day of worship. The oldest member of each congregation may be honored, it was suggested, at some appropriate time during the Bicentennial Sabbath days.

Although each individual congregation is encouraged to observe the Bicentennial Sabbath in its own way, the underlying theme of the special day of worship is "to have people in all Kentucky churches and synagogues emphasize the origins, traditions, hopes and ideals of the Commonwealth of Kentucky."

Any person or church group desiring additional information may contact Mrs. Gwendolyn S. Dingus, Prestonsburg, telephone 886-2758 or 886-2461.
