Co. Judges To Discuss Tax on Coal

Judge Stumbo Says Many Dissatisfied With Restrictions

County Judge Henry Stumbo said Tuesday that a meeting of 36 county judges has been scheduled Saturday night at Whitesburg for a discussion of the counties' role in the handling of the coal severance taxes which are scheduled to be allotted them August 1.

Judge Stumbo said the county officials are not satisfied with the restrictions imposed on the counties as to how the severance tax monies may be spent. "I sure don't like the arrangement," he

He and County Attorney James R. Allen said the severance tax money does not go directly to the several coalproducing counties but is held in a Frankfort depository, with any interest accruing not benefitting the counties. Besides, none of the money may be spent on repair of roads over which coal is hauled. Two purposes for which it may be used are new bridges and access roads to industrial sites.

"We think our fiscal court is capable of spending this money properly," County Attorney Allen commented.

Floyd county's share is not definitely known but it may be around $200,000, officials have been told.

Judge Stumbo said he will propose that severance tax funds be spent on the construction of the courthouse annex.

County judges will meet in Frankfort August 1 with the committee headed by State Representative W. J. Reynolds, of Allen, and at that time each county is expected to receive its allocation.

Floyd Countians Say They Were Bales Employees

Three Floyd county men who said they were unwittingly involved in the Knott county activities of Bob Bales, who claimed a huge acreage in that county, were convicted last week in the Knott quarterly court of trespassing on private

The three—Jack Dingus, Earl Bolen and James Griffith-were not fined, however. They will be required only to pay court costs.

They explained that they merely were employees of Bales and did not know that he was not the owner of the land. County Judge Sid Williams commented that "they could have asked any neighbor and found out the land did not belong to him."

Bales did not appear for the hearing. In fact, nobody seems to know his whereabouts. His employees said they had not seen him in about three weeks.

Bales and employees were charged with moving machinery onto the property of Cullen and Oscar Owens, who have lived in New Mexico more than 20

Officers Report

Among those booked at the county jail over the past week were two charged with the illegal possession of marijuana.

'Weed' Arrests

Joe David Stumbo, 23, of Manton, was arrested last Thursday near Manton after Sheriff Joe Wheeler Lewis and Deputy Green Slone discovered a sandwich bag of marijuana in his possession. Another bag of the "grass" was discovered hanging on a briar where Stumbo allegedly had attempted to dispose of it, and a 17-year-old friend of Stumbo's attempted to conceal yet another bag by sitting on it.

Arrested Friday by City Policeman Keith Lawson was George Mossie, of Ohio. Mossie was searched in downtown Prestonsburg and a small quantity of marijuana was taken. Mossie was booked in police court and his case was waived to the grand jury.

A raid by deputy sheriffs Saturday evening on Branham's Creek, near Galveston, resulted in the arrest of Buford Keathley on a charge of possession of alcoholic beverages for purposes of sale. Cousins of Keathley, Marcus Keathely and his son, Darrel, attempted to detail the deputies and were charged with obstructing justice and disorderly conduct. Thirty-three beers and two fifths of whiskey were confiscated, and Keathley entered a plea of guilty to charges.

George Crum, of Tram, was charged with possession after a small quantity of liquor was seized by deputies from his home. Deputies participating in the raids included John D. Martin, Roland Howell, Green Slone, Linzie Hunt, Sherman Williams, and Ray Reynolds.

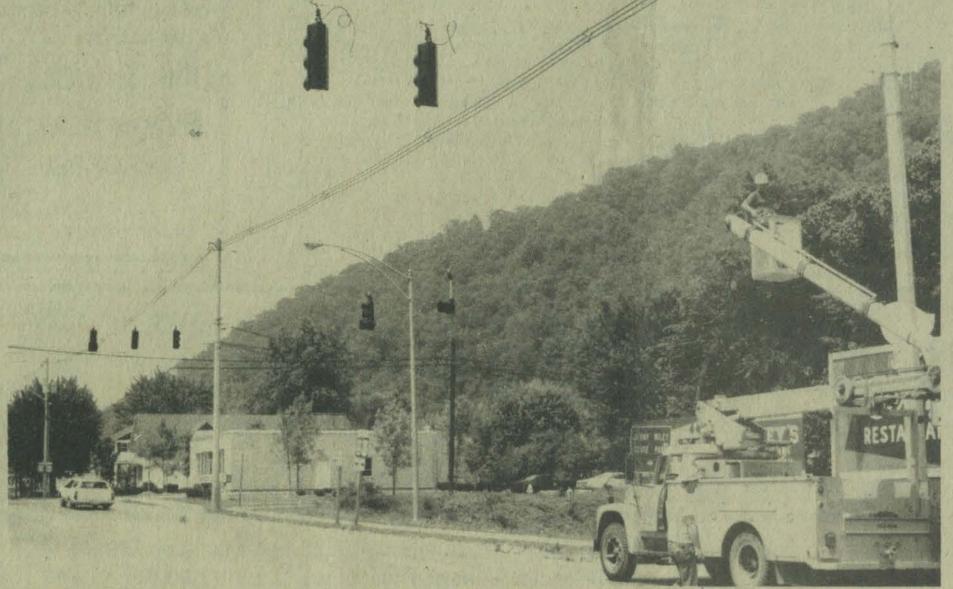

John Tracie Hamilton, of the Tackett Branch of Mud Creek, was charged last

186 Years of Recollections

Last Saturday Z. S. (Uncle Dick) Dickerson, of the Porter Addition, was 93 years old. Two days later, "Aunt" Anna Meade Price, also of Prestonsburg, observed her 93rd birthday. Last Sunday, she was visited briefly by Mr. Dickerson and Rainley White, and the two found common interest in recollections of many years. Both are mentally alert, and Mr. Dickerson continues a daily walk. Mrs. Price is confined to a wheelchair by arthritis but retains her keen interest in life about her. She is the widow of Tom Price, is the mother of 18, and came here from Lawrence county. Mr. Dickerson, a native of Virginia, has resided in Prestonsburg since 1908 and is widely known in this and surrounding counties.

Blast of Shotgun Fatal to Newsome Held Self-Inflicted

The shotgun wound which ended the life of 17-year-old Jerry Michael Newsome last Thursday at the trailerhome of his father, Earl Newsome, of East McDowell, was self-inflicted, it was ruled following an inquiry made by Coroner James J. Carter and sheriff's

The charge of a .12-gauge shotgun was fired into the youth's chest. He was alone at the home at the time, and officers said they learned he had threatened to kill himself. The body was discovered by his father upon his return home from a neighborhood store.

The victim was a junior at McDowell High School. Besides his father, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. Thelma Linkletter, of Ashtabula, O.; two brothers and two sisters, Barry Earl, Jeffrey, Kathy Ann and Linda Joyce Newsome, all of Ashtabula.

Funeral services were conducted at 10 a.m. Saturday from the Little Rosa Regular Baptist Church at East Mc-Dowell. Burial was made in the Lucy Hall cemetery there under direction of the Hall Brothers Funeral Home.

Floyd Save Our Land Group One can imagine several situations Joins Water Standards Action

The Floyd County Save Our Land Club, Inc., along with five other state conservation groups, filed a motion last Tuesday to intervene as plaintiffs in a water-quality-standards suit filed by Kentucky Attorney General Ed Hancock against the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

In the suit, which was filed June 25 in U. S. District Court at Lexington, Hancock asked Judge Mac Swinford to order EPA to disapprove the limited application of Kentucky's present water quality standards and extend them to "all waters" of the Commonwealth. At present, state waters covered by federal pollution laws are defined in a controversial map, "Streams of Kentucky," which has aroused numerous objections concerning the map's alleged incompleteness and inaccuracy.

Hancock argued that federal water pollution law required Kentucky administration regulation WP-6-2 to apply to all waters in the state and not simply to those shown on the map.

The environmental organizations which also include The Citizens' League to Protect the Surface Rights, Inc., made up of individuals from Letcher and other Eastern Kentucky counties, three Louisville-Jefferson county-based groups, and the Kentucky Audubon Council, Inc., joined Hancock in pursuing the suit because, "given the vicissitudes of political life, there is the possibility that (Hancock) will no longer be Attorney General should his case reach the appellate level.

"In such event," the motion continued, "a new Attorney General might not pursue the issue presented in this cae with the vigor of Hancock." The groups contended that they, on the other hand, "will be in perpetual existence and are committed to pursuing this litigation through all appellate channels." According to a complaint tendered, but not filed, with the motion, the suit resulted from a controversy between Hancock and the conservation groups on one side and the EPA and Thomas O. Harris, Secretary of the State Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection on the other.

3 Suggested As Receivers Reject Post

Chances of the Princess Manufacturing Company's reopening for continued operation dimmed this week.

The Auxier plant had been granted a stay against mass filing of claims by employees and creditors when a temporary receiver was named late last month by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley and creditors were temporarily enjoined from filing suits. But the period of grace ended last Tuesday, the temporary receiver resigned and two or three others who were asked to undertake operation of the company under receivership declined to accept the job.

Bankruptcy or forced sale of the company's assets to satisfy debts which may exceed $400,000 is threatened.

When Judge Conley, on petition of The Bank Josephine, Princess' biggest single creditor, named J. E. Gibson, Jr. temporary receiver and restrained creditors from taking action until July 16, it appeared that the Auxier firm might be able to ride out the storm. But Mr. Gibson, who has been at the plant in a managerial capacity, representing North Carolina owners of the company, resigned as temporary receiver. W. L. Wells, one of the founders of the company, was nominated by the 108 employees of the company for the post of (See Story 3, Back Page, Sec. 1)

Street Repairs, Shy of Promise, Draw Criticism

City officials this week heard complaints from residents here that the street repair work which followed underground laying of telephone lines does not measure up to the high standard promised.

Highland Avenue from Court to Dingus Streets was cited as an example of unsatisfactory repair. The trench created for the burying of the line through this distance was filled above the level of the street on either side.

City Manager Curtis Clark said there will probably be no corrective measures taken. "We should have required blacktopping of the entire street, but did not," he said.

The repair work was long delayed because of the shortage of blacktop, and for that reason the city was promised, officials said, recently, "an extra special" repair job.

The city manager announced plans for the addition of two more tennis courts at Archer Park this fall and the fencing of the entire area devoted to tennis.

Funeral Home Opening Here County's Fifth

The business is occupying the former Floyd Funeral Home location at the corner of Lake Drive and Third street. Mr. Callihan said the building has been completely renovated and that widescale remodeling work has been done.

Officers of the company are Dayton Joseph, Jr., president; Paul Joseph, vice-president, and Barbara Joseph, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Callihan is a stockholder, and he and the officers comprise the board of directors.

Callihan was graduated in 1941 from the Cincinnati College of Embalming and was first employed at Newport, Ky. by the Radel Company Funeral Homes where he worked till entering the armed forces. After 312 years in the Air Force Medical Corps he was employed by the Harlan (Ky.) Funeral Home, remaining there till he and James J. Carter opened the Carter & Callihan Funeral Home here in 1946. In 1964 he sold his interest in the funeral home here and thereafter was for seven years field counsel for the State Board of Embalmers and Funeral Directors. He resigned this post in 1971 to become Floyd county juvenile probation officer, a position which he held till July

Water Quality Studies Funded

In Gov. Wendell H. Ford's recent distribution of more than $33 million in surplus funds is a $340,000 allocation to the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection to develop a water quality management plan for Kentucky's 10 river basins, including $50,000 for a study of the Big Sandy.

Natural Resources Secretary Thomas O. Harris said the study, which will cost the department $900,000, will allow continuation of the federal sewer grant program in the state. Kentucky's share of 1974 money is approximately $20 million. Communities will divide some $65 million for waste-water projects in 1975; and more than $100 million the following year, according to early

Before he learned of the governor's allocation of the money, Harris said a lack of money raised the possibility of delaying one or more of the studies which could have increased the total cost of the over-all program. The division of water quality had budgeted more than $500,000 to conduct the planning studies.

River basins included in the study are: Big Sandy River; Lower Cumberland River; Upper Cumberland Basin; Green River; Kentucky River; Licking River; Mississippi River; Ohio River; Salt River; and Tennessee River.

When completed next July, the plan is expected to provide a statewide water quality strategy in conjunction with other studies already completed.

The program is being carried out in compliance with a federal law which describes a river basin plan as "neither a broad water and related land resources plan nor a basin-wide facility plan," but rather a "management document which identifies the water quality problems of a particular basin and sets forth an effective remedial program to alleviate those problems.'

Walter Martin of the Water Quality Division said the Kentucky program is designed not only to look at municipal facilities, pollution sources and water standards but also to include public involvement-"not just public hearings or press releases, but the public telling those making the studies what they need in their area."

Following preparation and discussion, the study officially was initiated July 1, when the water quality staff met with representatives from the consulting firms who have contracted to conduct the individual studies. A river basin planning committee is now being selected to correlate the different surveys. Members of the committee will include the consultants, various government agencies and private citizens.

The individual studies, their consulting firms, and costs:

-Big Sandy; Proctor David & Ray, Lexington in association with W. E. Gates & Associates, Cincinnati; $50,000. -Lower Cumberland River; G.

Reynolds Watkins, Lexington; $70,000. -Upper Cumberland Basin; Mayes, Sudderth & Etheredge, Inc.; $60,000. -Green River; Roy F. Weston, Inc.,

TO PREVENT OVERCROWDING

In an attempt to prevent overcrowding, a New Jersey school has devised a method whereby teachers and students are divided into three groups of equal size, determined by grade level, special interests, extra-curricular activities and class choices. Each group attends school only four of the six days on a rotating three-week schedule which meets all state (New Jersey) standards. Advantages of such a plan include: vacations that coincide with regular fiveday schools; schools being able to accomodate one-third more students; no additional staff, teaching materials, or salary expenses are required.

The Morgan County Dilemma

A new development in the continuing fight between opponents and supporters of the Paint Creek dam has reportedly irked owners of coal lands in the area.

Attorney General Ed Hancock has held that the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection can legally deny mining permits in the reservoir basin if it is felt that stripmining will be harmful to it.

As a consequence, Tom Harris, commissioner of the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, has recommended that no mining permits in the Paint Creek drainage area be issued. Future issuance of permits may be done only at the direction of the courts.

The no-permit ruling may be extended to protect Cave Run Reservoir, which is only now being officially opened.

The situation leaves many landowners baffled and angry. They own coal, it is selling at $40 and $50 a ton now, and they want to cash in on the boom. But, if both the Paint Creek and Cave Run basins are to be protected, few Morgan county tracts lie outside the two areas and consequently few can be mined.

And in only one of five quadrangles of the Paint Creek Reservoir basin there are 310 million tons of coal awaiting the mining, one engineer has estimated.

Yet the inescapable fact remains: Cave Run must not be ruined and all the millions of public monies invested in it must not be wasted, as in the case of Dewey Lake, by strip-mining; and if the Paint Creek Reservoir is to be impounded, it, too, must be protected.

The Times does not argue the matter of damming or not damming Paint Creek. It simply points to the obvious: You can't have your cake and eat it, too.

We would add here that we regret that Ed Hancock wasn't attorney general in the early days of Dewey reservoir. No official voice for its protection ever spoke.

And we wonder: If a lake that doesn't exist can be protected, can a real impoundment such as Dewey continue to be despoiled?

TO RESERVE FUNDS

The Kentucky Turnpike Authority will reserve $48,899,327 accumulated from various toll road bond issues for future needs rather than current projects. Gov. Wendell H. Ford, chairman of the authority, said that the policy was necessitated by the threat of future gasoline shortages, which would greatly reduce toll road receipts and gasoline tax

UMW To Seek Med Services Upgrade Help

Officials of District 30, United Mine Workers of America, Pikeville, have contacted county judges of five Eastern Kentucky counties, including Floyd, in an effort to upgrade emergency medical services on the Big Sandy River.

A resolution was adopted at the District 30 executive board meeting July 11-12 at Pikeville initiating fund-raising activities with the ultimate aim of upgrading emergency medical services in rural counties in compliance with the National Highway and Safety Act of 1966.

Letters from District 30 President Squire Feltner and Secretary-Treasurer Julius Mullins have been submitted to the county judges of Floyd, Pike, Letcher, Knott and Martin counties asking for support from the various fiscal courts. The UMWA officials have proposed a meeting with the fiscal courts along with an emergency medical services specialist whom they have contacted.

The officials contend that vastly improved emergency medical services, which consists of emergency ambulance Mr. Howard, who was a native of White service, trained paramedics, and a highly complex communication system, are greatly needed in the five-county area in light of the number of underground coal mines in the area, closeness to lakes and reservoirs, number of small industries located or proposed in the area, and the general lack of adequate medical facilities and personnel in the area.

> Financing for the program would come from such sources as donations from the United Mine Workers of America, revenue sharing money, industry, severance tax and money from the Governor's National Highway and Safety Commission as well as support from county courts.

By DONNA J. GRIFFITH

A nurse from the Floyd County Health Department will hold a pap smear clinic at Ethel Osborne's Store at Bypro from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., next Wednesday. The health department reminds all women that they should have at least one pap smear a year and that the clinic is free.

The Floyd County Health Department will conduct a glaucoma clinic Thursday, July 25, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Since finding the disease and getting proper treatment can control glaucoma and prevent needless blindness, the public health nurses urge all persons over the age of 35 to take advantage of this free

Kinzer Is Top Winner in First Pro Hill Climb Held in State

It was no surprise to any of the estimated 4,000 spectators and riders Saturday when Terry Kinzer, of Allen, took top money in Kentucky's first professional hill club held Sunday on Stratton Branch, near Jenny Wiley State said at least a thousand spectators had to professional cyclists from Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Maryland and New York, Kinzer, riding a 40-cubicinch Triumph, needed only a single run up the climb to place first with a time of 6.922 seconds. Kinzer, 27, is reigning scheduled for October 27 with 50 to 60 Grand National and Canadian champion.

The cyclists were judged on elapsed time from bottom to top of the 460-ft., 50 per cent grade. The full length of the run, including level portions, is 625 feet.

The climb, sponsored by the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad and held on the grounds of the Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club, consisted of two classes, with the larger bikes (40 cubic inch) competing in Class A, while the 30 cubic inch machines ran in Class B.

Hill climb motorcycles are specialized machines equipped with lightweight extended frames, heavy chains on the rear tire to increase traction in the loose dirt. A nitro-methane alcohol fuel powers the bikes.

Kinzer's 22-year-old brother Jerry, and David Mosley, both of Allen, also made impressive showings in the competition, with Jerry placing fifth in Class A with a time of 7.437 seconds, and Mosley taking second best time in Class B with 7.680 seconds. The Kinzer brothers and Mosley are the only Kentuckians presently competing in professional hill

Mining Effect

The Appalachian Regional Commission announced recently the release of a Commission-sponsored study of the effects of surface mining on water quality in Eastern Kentucky.

The study, entitled "Surface Mine Water Quality Control in the Eastern Kentucky Coal Fields," is one component of a five-part ARC-sponsored research project on the development of improved surface-mining techniques in Eastern Kentucky. The report deals with acid mine drainage and other forms of chemical water pollution caused by surface mining in an attempt to facilitate the pre-mining identification of areas that might become severely polluted if surface mining were initiated. Preidentification of severe pollution areas would enable the improved protection of Kentucky's rivers and streams from acid mine pollution.

The report concludes by recommending extraordinary precautions when mining is permitted in high-acid pollution potential areas. A field manual has been developed, based on the report, to provide surface mine operators and inspection personnel with the information necessary to recognize the presence of potential acid contamination and for attacking such pollution at its

Other parts of the ARC-sponsored research project on improved surface mining techniques in Eastern Kentucky include: "Revegetation of Strip Mines"; "Slope Stability of Strip Mines"; "Surface Mine Abatement and Land Use Impact Investigation" and "The Design of Surface Mining Systems in Eastern Kentucky," which was released earlier

Through this examination the report identified three groups of coal seams in Eastern Kentucky which possess the highest potential for acid pollution.

Fertilization Ended At Dewey Reservoir

The Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources has announced that the fertilization program at Dewey Lake has been discontinued.

Suspension of the program does not reflect a change of policy, but is a consequence of the department's inability to procure fertilizer, The Times was told.

Three applications of 334 bags each had been made at the lake, and a fourth was scheduled this month when the cancellation order was received. In all, five applications had been scheduled during Fertilization of the impoundment, which was begn on an experimental basis, has continued over a period of several years after its effect, particularly on the growth of bluegill and crappie, was held beneficial.

$10,000 Grant Awarded PCC

A grant of $10,000 has been awarded Prestonsburg Community College for its cooperative education program, according to an announcement made July 10 from the office of U.S. Senator Marlow

According to Ron Carter, director of PCC's cooperative education program, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare funds have already been appropriated and will be received through the University of Kentucky's Appalachian Regional Fund. Carter said the money will be used primarily to hire a "field specialist" to operate cooperative education on and off the campus.

Carter explained that the cooperative education program allows students to alternate fulltime classroom work with public or private employment. "It makes their education more relevant," Carter

As an example, Carter said a student studying to become a medical secretary under the program would be placed with a private physician in order to accumulate practical work experience.

Employers decide the student's salary and evaluate his work at the end of the work period. In addition, the college evaluates the student's work and each student, in turn, is able to evaluate his employer. Students received regular academic credit for work done under the program.

The PCC program began three years ago with 12 students and Carter reported that 32 are expected for the fall semester. "The program is really doing well," he remarked, "and it's constantly expanding.'

Other schools support similar programs and, according to Carter, PCC is working toward a consortium agreement for joint cooperative education programs with Ashland Community College which received $15,000 in HEW funds for their program. Carter pointed out that the coordinator for Ashland Community College's project is Ada Salisbury, a Floyd county native.

Caution Urged In Use Of Gasoline Lanterns

Camping can be great fun. But watch out for hidden hazards.

Everybody knows about the danger of fire and poisoned insect bites. But not many people have ever heard about the damaging effects of beryllium dust. Exposure to fumes and dust from a metal called beryllium can cause damage to the lungs. The fumes can come from the mantles of some-not all-gas lanterns used in camping, says Kyle Griggs of the University of California's Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

The mantle in gas lanterns is a device. consisting of a sheath of threads, which gives off brilliant light when heated by the gas flame. When a new mantle is used, beryllium fumes can be released in the first few minutes. The mantle is usually lit in a confined space-like a tent-and the camper leans directly over the lamp, breathing the fumes deep into his or her lungs.

Lighting any gas lamp—the first time it's used-in an open area and letting it burn ten or fifteen minutes in the open can reduce the hazard to the lungs. Taking care not to blow on the lantern to clean it, a process that stirs up the beryllijm dust, is important.

Many products containing beryllium are not so labeled, and consumers are not aware that precautions are necessary to protect their health. Some brands of gas lanterns contain the metal but do not list it. Workers involved in making these products face the greatest danger. Beryllium is used mainly in the aerospace, nuclear, computer, and ceramics industries.

Inhaling very small amounts of beryllium dust or fumes can cause severe, irreversible lung disease after such a short period as six months. Your Kentucky Lung Association asks you to take care with your gas lanterns. It's a matter of life and breath.

Wednesday with grand larceny in connection with the breaking and entering, three weeks ago, of the John M. Stumbo school at Grethel in which a quantity of tools were stolen. The tools, which had been either hidden or discarded beside the road near the school, were found by the school's principal and a coat which was draped over the tools was later identified as belong to Hamilton. Another suspect has yet to be arrested. Arresting officers were Sheriff Lewis and Deputy Hueysville and found 58,000 pounds over the legal limit. The two executed bond and are scheduled for trial August 10.

Mary Lee Jenkins, Trumbill, Connecticut, was the third place divisional winner in the Central Eastern regional figure skating competition held at Bridgeport Skating Club, Bridgeport, Connecticut.

Her program consisted of forward spirals, rotation spins, back and forward cross overs, waltz jumps, ending with a lateral Arabesque.

Fourteen clubs representing Connecticut, New York and Rhode Island competed in 15 divisions, and Mary Lee took her prize in the Class I competition. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jenkins, of Trumbill, Connecticut, and the granddaughter of Dr. Alpharetta Archer, of Paintsville, and the late Dr. James W. Archer.

years but who held onto their ancestral Knott county farm because, they said, "we wanted to own a little piece of Kentucky."

The court action holding that Bales was trespassing on the Owens brothers might end the whole traumatic experience for the Knott landowners. "If," said Cullen Owens, "they have no right to our farm, then they have no right to any other of the places they claimed."

Clark Pratt, attorney for the landowners, said the hearing might end the Bales claims. But, he added, Bales still holds the patents and he "might try to sell them to somebody else. They've been sold several times before, and they'll probably try to sell them again, if they haven't already."

The only way to settle the matter once and for all, he added, is for the propertyowners to file suit and have their rights cleared by the courts.

Bales based his claims to 39,800 acres of Knott county land on 199 patents of 200 acres each. The patents were issued in 1870 to W. H. DeGroot & Company.

Settling a Swarm of Wild Bees

Settling down a swarm of bring down the bees. In my wild bees was an art known to boyhood, as I hoed in the the old-time bee-hunters, who cornfields of June, I often saw knew the ways of the wild bees swarms of wild bees flying which lived in hollow trees in overhead, seeking their new deep woods and seemed to scorn the modern apiary with its boxed-up houses and honey

Most who saw a swarm flying over high in the sky tried all the "charms" they knew to home in some hollow tree which the bee-scouts had found and made ready for the new swarm. It took fast work and a lot of magic, too, to stop a swarm of wild bees in their fast, frenzied flight. A lot of the

The moment we heard the heavenly music of multiplied thousands of bees coming from the sky, all hands stopped work and began to make a loud tattoo by beating on plows and hoes with rocks. Sometimes they rang a cowbell incessantly in the belief that a lot of noise would stampede the bees and bring them down from the sky. My father usually kept an old cowbell handy about the field for use in bringing down a swarm of wild bees.

oldtimers could do it, though.

I can never forget that bright, cloudless June day when my father had a gang of men hoeing his corn out of the "first weeds," when a swarm of wild bees suddenly appeared on the horizon and filled the air with their wild, weird music. They flew swiftly in a straight line, looking like a zillion tiny dots swirling against the blue June sky.

One of the corn-hoers shouted excitedly, "I'll betcha there's a millyun bees in that swarm! Let's bring 'em down,

An old bee-hunter we called "Uncle Charley" knew all the "charms" for settling down a swarm of wild bees. He threw down his hoe and began quickly to turn over large, flat stones lying about the field. I was fascinated, just watching his maneuvers. After he had turned upside down three flat stones, he sat down on the last one-just sat there staring up at the swiftly passing swarm, his lips moving but no sounds coming from his quivering

The other workmen made loud noises, ringing the old cowbell and shouting at the bees to come down. Some beat on plows and hoes with heavy stones. But Uncle Charley just sat still as a church mouse, his lips working spasmodically. Suddenly that swarm of wild bees veered sharply from their course and down from the sky they flew in a swirling, excited frenzy. They settled down in a chestnut oak tree about a hundred yards from where we stood. The old man's "magic" had worked. Or so I thought. Suddenly he leaped up shouting, "I fetched 'em down, boys! That swarm's wuth a ten-dollar bill an' I claim it as

Twins in Dance Recital Opinions from the Office Of the Attorney General

In response to George R. licensing board's meetings Best, of the Kentucky Bureau of Highways, the Attorney General's office says there is no conflict between the two Kentucky statutes that prohibit the practice of land surveying without a license. An exception to those statutes is a law which provides that any employe of the state working under the direct supervision and control of a qualified and registered civil engineer or land surveyor may practice.

To William S. Howard, of Lexington, the Attorney General's office issued an opinion saying a statutory licensing board is a public agency within the meaning of the open meetings law. A must be open to the public when it is considering an application for a license. Its meetings may be closed to the public when it is considering complaints or charges against a licensee, unless the licensee demands that the hearing be

Miss Thompson, Mr. Randolph Wed

The sanctuary of the Harbor City Baptist Church, Melbourne, Fla., was the setting of the wedding of Miss Gailenna Ruth Thompson and Mr. Nelson D. Randolph, June 29. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dan Wade.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gale Thompson, formerly of David, now of Melbourne, Fla. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph, of Melbourne, Fla.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white Chantilly lace. The attached cape, high neckline and long, fitted sleeves were edged with a full ruffle, and the fulllength veil of Chantilly lace fell from a band of lace that was ruffled to match the gown. She carried a bouquet of spring flowers and baby's breath, entwined with George Conn, of Ivel, and the late Mrs.

presented by Mrs. Ali Schluter, organist, Miss Cindy Behan sang "Wherever Thou Goest," and Mr. Carl Rethwisch sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Miss Derinda Nelson, close friend of Force.

the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a pink gown and carried a white, satincovered Bible with a pink rosebud.

The bridesmaids were Miss Karen Ellis, Miss Barbara Randolph and Miss Martha Ellis. They wore identical orchid gowns and carried white, satin-covered Bibles with pink rosebuds.

Miss Karen Sue Everly was flower girl. Mr. William Randolph, Jr., brother of the groom, served as best man. Ushers were Mr. Paul Osman, Mr. Terry Watkins and Mr. Chuck Crews.

Presiding at the guest register was Miss Darlene DeRay.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony

Low Prices Threaten Livestock Farmers

By JOHN MANN

It seems the only Kentuckian more disgruntled over meat prices than the consumer is the farmer, and with good reason. His livelihood is being threatened by the lower prices he is receiving for his cattle this year, while meat prices remain the same as last year's.

This time last year, Kentucky farmers were receiving $47 per hundredweight for choice steers. Now the price has dropped to $44 per hundredweight, posing severe strain on farmers who are faced with soaring prices on feed, equipment and cost of labor

According to Phillip Smith, market director of the state Department of Agriculture, if the situation is not remedied it may force many Kentucky livestock producers to leave the farm.

"Although prices have improved some in the last few weeks, it's barely at a break-even level," Smith said, "and today's farmers are not going to continue to raise something they can't sell."

Smith mentioned several instances of how rising costs have affected the far-

For example, an 80-horsepower tractor costing around $5,000 ten years ago would cost about $10,000 now. Soybean meal has risen from $85 a ton then to about $125 a ton today, and corn has gone from $1.25 a bushel to about $3.15 a bushel in the same period.

Smith said that unlike the retailers, farmers can't pass their cost increases on to the buyer.

"Consumers often fail to understand that farmers are at the mercy of the market, because in reality consumers set the farm prices," Smith said, "if a farmer tries to hold back his livestock for higher prices he runs the risk of ruining the market value of his product."

Smith said that although meat prices have increased more than 100 per cent for some products, only about 35 per cent of this increase goes to the farmer, with the remaining 65 per cent going to the packer and retailer.

"If the independent farmer does not have enough of a new return he is not going to keep farming," Smith said, "and if he is driven out of business, then you

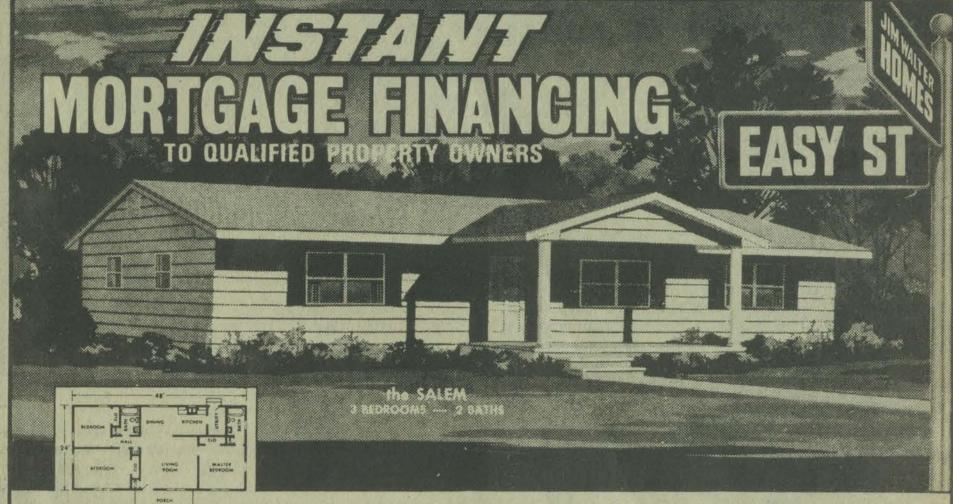

Floyd County Homemakers who attended the third annual Cultural Arts Camp held at Grayson recently included Minnie Gayheart, Grace Derossett, Eleanor Horn, Helen Boyd, Otelia Smiley, Sue Osborn, Alta Gibson and haven't begun to see high food prices."

"I don't foresee much relief for farmers as long as people are still demanding Model A prices," Smith said, "People should realize that in this country the average person still spends only about 17 per cent of his disposable income on food. This is the lowest percentage in the world."

Home Ownership Is Easy... The Jim Walter Way!

Jim Walter makes it easy for you to own a new, permanent home on your property. And, because tape, no delay and no "third party" to make the decision, INSTANT mortgage financing can be fast and easy, too. Choose one of the more than 20 two-, three- or four-bedroom, one- or two-bath homes that best suits your family's needs. Then, custom-construction — not pre-fab or pre-cut — can begin almost immediately. Shortly thereafter, you'll begin enjoying the pride of home ownership.

 OVER 20 MODELS BUILT ON YOUR PROPERTY Yes, Jim Walter builds easy-to-own, easy-to-love, easy-to-afford homes. Yours will be finished completely on the outside, including foundation, shutters and two coats of long-lasting paint. Superior materials, such as "wood-made-better" hardboard bonded roofing that lasts for years, and aluminum windows that never need paint, will be used in construction. The inside will be finished to almost any stage. You tell us where to stop, then complete the rest yourself to save many extra dollars. lation of ELECTRICAL WIRING & FIXTURES; PLUMBING; KITCHEN & BATH FIXTURES & CAB-INETS; FLOORING; WALLS; DOORS & TRIM.

When Jim Walter installs all interior options, you just paint or paper walls, paint trim, connect to outside utilities and move in. Or you may purchase

RATCLIFF IS GUEST SPEAKER AT SENIOR CITIZENS' CENTER

James Ratcliff, director of the Community Services Program of Prestonsburg Community College, gave an informative talk last Wednesday at the George P. Archer Senior Citizens Center on courses being offered this fall at the college. Courses mentioned were weaving, flower arranging, gourmet cooking, and music.

In addition to regular participants such as Mrs. Grace Burke, Mrs. Grace Stanley, Mrs. Lulu Wallen, Mrs. Pearl Bingham, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bradbury, Ermine Hall and Perry Green, all of Prestonsburg, several new people participated in the activities last week. They included Mrs. Lida Hall, Mrs. Dorcas Laferty, Mrs. Audilee Hall, Armanda Laferty, Mrs. Zella Stumbo, Mrs. Jenny Avington and Mrs. Hazel Adams, all of Martin, and Mrs. Otela Smiley, of Prestonsburg. Several out-oftown guests also visited the center last

Plans were made for a picnic to be held at Dewey Lake on July 26. Anyone wishing to attend is asked to ontact the center at 886-8386. Transportation will be provided for anyone wishing to attend.

Miss Hughes, Mr. Newman Wed

The marriage of Miss Tonda Ley Hughes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Hughes, of Weeksbury, and Ricky Darrel Newman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Estill Newman, of Melvin, was solemnized at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, July 6, at the Wheelwright Community Church.

Evangelist Bennie Blankenship officiated at the double-ring candlelight ceremony. Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Gwen Akers, pianist, and Mrs. Betty Frazier, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white delustered satin, enhanced with Chantilly lace. The high neck, bishop sleeves, empire waist, and A-line silhouette added to the deeply flounced hemline flowing into a semicathedral train. Her headpiece was a floor-length mantilla bordered in chantilly. She carried a bouquet of minature white carnations and daisies accented with baby's breath and white satin streamers.

Mrs. Deana England, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Debbie Allen, Weeksbury, Miss Shelia Howard, Owensboro, Mrs. Judy Barclay, Richmond, and Miss Penny Hughes, Louisville. They wore empire waist, floor-length gowns of redand-white checked gingham, strewn with tiny daisies and accented with ruffles across the shoulders. The bride's attendants carried baskets of daisies with red and white streamers.

Marvin Johnson, formerly of Hi Hat, served as best man. Ushers were T. L. Maddox, Paducah, Terry Culver, Paducah, Danny England, Stuart Florida, and Blaine Compton, of Lexington.

A reception was held at the Wheelwright Club House immediately following the ceremony. Assisting at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Gaza Litafik, Mrs. Waddie Newsome, Mrs. Ida Byers, Mrs. Aileen Fraley and Mrs.

The bride is a graduate of Eastern Kentucky University, where she received an associate of arts degree in nursing. She is presently employed by St. Joseph Hospital in Lexington.

The groom is a graduate of Lexington Barber College and is employed as a barber-stylist in Lexington.

After a wedding trip to Sugar Mountain, N. C., the couple will reside in Lexington.

Perkins To Speak at Dedication Of Cave Run Lake, Aug. 3rd formally dedicated in ceremonies construction began in June, 1965. The Saturday, Aug. 3, with Congressman Carl D. Perkins as the principal speaker.

The dedication of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers $46 million multi-purpose water resource project will also mark the official dedication of the U.S. Forest Service's recreation facilities around the lake and the Kentucky's Minor E. Clark fish hatchery which adjoins the Cave Run Dam.

The ceremonies will begin at 2 p.m. (CDT) at the Corps' project office area on State Route 801, about four miles south of Farmers and U. S. Highway 60.

The lake, which was built by the Louisville district of the Corps, was authorized

Mountain Manor Notes

Old-Fashion Days in Prestonsburg was a real treat for everyone at Mountain Manor. All the staff joined in, along with the patients, to help make all of their activities a success for these two days of work and fun for everyone. The bake sale was successful and items for their activities will be bought.

Ed Gearheart, a patient from Mountain Manor, was among those who helped furnish the entertainment. He added much with his guitar playing and singing.

Tom Baldridge, a 92-year-old, enjoyed his appearance in his Uncle Sam costume. He won first place in the men's division of the costume contest.

Mrs. Patsy Evans, activity director, was winner of the women's division.

Cave Run Lake, near Farmers, will be by the Flood Control Act of 1936 and project operates as part of the system of lakes which are used to store flood waters which, in turn, reduces flood stages on the Licking, Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. Its authorized purposes are flood control, water quality, recreation and fish and wildlife enhance-

The Lake will provide 8,270 acres of surface area for recreation purposes during the summer months. Recreational facilities will be built, managed and operated by the U.S. Forest Service.

The Minor E. Clark Fish Hatchery is designed to provide breeding facilities for musky, walleye, largemouth bass, rockfish and other species which will be distributed statewide.

Tours of the various areas of the project will be available after the ceremonies.

PCC To Offer Workshop In Chemistry Next Month

Prestonsburg Community College is again offering a chemistry workshop during the week of August 5-9, 8 a.m. to 12

Designed for those interested in pursuing a career in nursing, especially students who will begin their nursing program next fall (including alternates), the course will be taught by Mrs. Brenda Castle, a member of PCC's faculty.

The workshop may be attended by anyone who so desires. Registration will take place during the first class meeting, August 5, promptly at 8 a.m. in Room 155 of the Johnson Administration Building.

The workshop is primarily intended to help those students who have had little or no chemistry background and enables them to grasp more readily the content of the Integrated Human Biology course.

Dr. Roberts To Teach Two-Week Workshop

Pikeville, Ky.-Pikeville College will offer two new courses in culture and oral literature of the Kentucky Mountains. The two courses, English 495 (undergraduate level)—Oral History and Folklore, and English 554 (graduate level)-Folk Literature, will be taught during the two-week August intersession.

Both of the courses will be conducted as a workshop by Dr. Leonard Roberts, professor of English and director of the Appalachian Studies Center. Dr. Roberts said, "Responding to a growing interest in local and regional history and folkways, these courses are designed to prepare teachers and other leaders to conduct projects, teach high school units, direct camp activities using oral history, the arts and crafts of the Southern Mountain region, plays and games, and literature."

Registration for the courses will be held Monday, August 5, at 8 a.m. in the Armington Science Learning Center.

(30 Flavors)

Gov. Wendell H. Ford has announced a grant for $10,000 in federal funds to cover operational expenses of the five-county Big Sandy Regional Crime Council for the fiscal year just ended.

Ford said the Kentucky Crime Commission will pay for the grant out of funds made available to the state under provisions of the federal Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act.

The funds will be administered by the City of Pikeville on behalf of Pike, Martin, Johnson, Magoffin and Floyd counties.

According to a crime commission spokesman, the grant money will pay for council staff salaries and compensations, travel expenses borne by staff and council members, plus additional operational expenses.

Assumes Va. Pastorate

Rev. Larry Fredrick Mann, transferred recently from Kentucky to the Virginia Church Conference, has accepted his assignment to the Buckingham, Va. charge which includes three churches.

Rev. Mann, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Mann, of Prestonsburg, began preaching while still a high school student and since that time has assumed the pastorate of several churches. Rev. Mann and his wife, the former Judy Freeman, have one daughter.

Pollution Case Is 'No Contest'

U.S. District Attorney Eugene E. Siler, Jr. announced last Wednesday that Kentland-Elkhorn Coal Company has entered a plea of nolo contendere to charges relating to the pollution of Fishtrap Dam, Pike county.

The two charges to which Kentland-Elkhorn entered the "no-contest" plea arose from alleged pollution occurring on June 20 and June 23, 1972.

Judge H. David Hermansdorfer imposed the maximum fine of $2,500 on each of the two counts and suspended payment of the fines for 30 days, pending the receipt of certain information from the Army Corps of Engineers.

Judge Hermansdorfer indicated to counsel for the coal company that, although the maximum fine was imposed, he would possibly reduce the maximum fine to the minimum if the Corps of Engineers informs the court that Kentland-Elkhorn has corrected the problems around its coal-washing facility from which the pollution originated.

Judge Hermansdorfer indicated that he is more interested in pollution free water than he is in imposing fines.

Recently a hale and hearty 80-year-old farmer discussing farm practices of times past made the remark that, in the old days, with only an hour-and-a-half break at noon, it wasn't uncommon for farm people to labor in the fields from sunrise to sunset.

"A lot of work was turned off in those 12 to 14 hours," he said, "and nobody ever seemed worse off for the wear.'

The hour-and-a-half break at noon and the way it was spent, he added, was the key to the look of well-being of old-time farmers and helped them maintain their energy and endurance often years past their allotted span of three score and ten.

As he told it, after plowing, hoeing, or pitching hay for a good half day and then hiding away a gargantuan meal such as only a farm can afford, most farmers of old simply sought out some comfortable spot and went to sleep.

With the head resting on a cushion of some sort and the frame stretched out full length on a cool back porch or on the soft grass under a shade tree in the yard, the relaxing, restorative results of that midday snooze were little short of amazing. The regenerative machinery of the body could almost be felt in action, he said, and a man awoke with his "dinner settled" and ready for business.

Sofa Makes

It is known for a fact that this noonhour siesta was a custom many old-time farmers followed religiously. They claimed it added years to their lives and often surmised that Moses probably slipped up when compiling the Hebrew law. They said he should have made mandatory a noon-hour sleep every day just as he made Sunday a day of rest

Personally recalled is an old farmer who lived to an advanced age and who never failed, especially in summer, to take his noontime, after-dinner nap. He had a hammock, made from salt barrel staves, swung on wires between a couple of handy sycamores in his yard. Immediately after his midday meal, he would stretch out on this rustic bed and drift off to dreamland.

With the summer breezes soothing his tired body and his peaceful snore blending in harmony with the hum of honeybees working the white clover underneath the hammock, he was the picture of solid contentment.

This man (our grandfather) would sleep for perhaps 45 minutes and always promptly at 1 p.m., would snort a time or two, twitch his mustache as if trying to shake off a fly, then raise up with the announcement: "Time to hit the grit."

After gearing up the horses, swigging down two or three gourds of water fresh from the well, and filling up his earthen jug from the same source, he would head for the field with both muscle and mind refreshed, good for another good six hours of work.

Most farmers known about are too busy these days for a noon-hour sleep. To keep ahead of the game, they have to eat on the run, their tractors roaring all day and often well into the night. As a certain farm editor recently wrote, our current society is so shaped that the farmer is not allowed to slow down. He must, along with the rest of us, keep moving so he can eventually make enough money to relax.

The noon-hour nap was a good thing, but gone are the days.

Logs Imported 30 Years Ago Still Costing United States

Some elm tree logs from Europe burning infected trees and not permitting arrived on the east coast of the United States in 1930 and were transferred to railroad flatcars for a trip to the midwest and beyond. Tens of thousands of American elms have been destroyed by disease since that incident.

Bark beetles, carriers of a fatal fungus disease that came to be known as Dutch elm disease, dropped off the train. The disease first appeared in Ohio. It is now found in all eastern and midwestern states where the American elm grows. Although the tree is valued for its lumber, it is valued even more as a shade tree in as many as 40 states. Numerous states are conducting research into methods of controlling the disease, according to Dr. John Hartman, assistant Extension professor of plant pathology, College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky. Reasearch is being done in Maine, Massachusetts, Virginia, Wisconsin, and at the U.S. Department of Agriculture Shade Tree Research Center, Delaware, O.

Control of the disease, has emphasized spraying the elm trees with insecticides, prevention of root grafts, and good sanitation practices such as cutting and elm logs to be stored for firewood. "Logs stored for months serve as a winter home for the bark beetles until they can fly away in spring and infect other trees,' Dr. Hartman said.

Approval has been recently granted by the Environmental Protection Agency for injecting trees with the fungicide Benlate (developed by Du Pont), in order to obtain control and in some cases outright eradication of the disease, Dr. Hartman said.

"Infection begins in the topmost branches where the beetles feed on living twigs. The fungus clogs the conducting vessels and soon the leaves begin to droop and later turn brown and curl up. The fungus moves internally in the vascular system to all parts of the tree and it may also be spread from tree to tree, by root grafts when roots of diseased and healthy trees become intertwined. Root grafts can be prevented by cutting ditches between the diseased and healthy trees and treating roots with chemicals such as vapam. Infected, untreated trees may survive from a few months to a few years," he added.

When asked if the disease would eventually wipe out the American elm on this continent, Dr. Hartman said there were several things that might prevent it. Development of improved methods of treatments could slow the spread od disease. In addition, "As more and more trees die, the remaining ones could be so far apart that the disease might be checked.

"You may have heard that American elm trees that have not become diseased are resistant to the disease. That isn't right. Such trees have merely escaped infection. Although the disease is usually fatal to American elms, it is not so to Asiatic (Chinese and Siberian) elms and cork elms."

Shade tree breeders are developing elms that can tolerate the disease.

Benlate, a benomyl systemic fungicide, can be injected under the bark by gravity using a feeding tube attached to the trunk, or under pressure using a tank with 30 pounds of pressure. It has been successful in saving diseased trees about 50 per cent of the time when infection is five per cent or less. The chemical, a powder which is usually suspended in a liquid, is applied by injecting it under the bark or by spraying the foliage. The tree takes up the fungicide carrying it to the upper branches.

Some cities have passed ordinances requiring that infected elm trees be properly removed and all of the wood destroyed. Although evidence of the disease can be seen throughout Kentucky, no official sampling of the percentage of kill has been reported in the Commonwealth.

Timana announces the New Electric/Gas Heating Cooling unit with a completely new "furnace!"

It's small enough to hold in your hands, yet with 120,000 BTU input, it's powerful enough to heat an average size home, AND ONLY AMANA HAS IT!

The Amana Electric/Gas Units have many advantages not found in conventional systems. Here are just a few of them.

Economical 2-stage heating, 80,000 and 120,000 BTU input. This saves you money, because on mild days, the HTM* Heat Exchanger operates at 2/3 capacity conserving fuel. When it gets colder, it automatically goes to full capacity. (120,000 BTU input).

Operates just as efficient on natural or propane gas. And in the summertime economical electric cooling takes over to cool and dehumidify the air throughout your entire home.

HTM* Heat Exchanger starts like a car, with a spark plug. No costly, often bothersome pilot light to worry about. Saves on fuel, too!

Exclusive safety features . . . by design! Air is heated indirectly . . . never a chance for contamination of circulating air. Entire system outdoors and vented to atmosphere.

Quiet operation outside home. No noisy start ups, quiet combustion. Amana Turbo-bladed blower is "quiet" and delivers heated or cooled air inside to every room. Quick and fast installation on slab outside or on any type of roof. Many commercial applications. All units factory-wired and 100% tested ready to install and perform at top efficiency. Amana's Electro-Coating Paint System provides up to 3 times more protection against rust and corrosion than conventional Flo-coat systems.

Swango Springs Water Aided the Ill, Lame

By HELEN PRICE STACY stroll to Swango Springs.

"It's quite likely that someone will Each year at homecoming time for suggest an oldtime corn roast at this Hazel Green Academy, former students vear's reunion, Aug. 9-11," commented and faculty members find time for a Mrs. Rowena Cash Combs, who was assistant librarian at the academy seven years and now lives in West Liberty. "They might get up a tacky party, hayride or-who knows?-maybe even a snipe hunt."

Before telling about popular snipe hunts of long ago, she gave some history of Swango Springs and its tremendous popularity as a watering place in the late

"What healing qualities the spring water had, they did not apply to the sheep my great grandfather Harrison Swango had. He found the spring, cleaned it out, then turned his flock of sheep into the field to graze. A few days later he found his sheep dying. He had a chemical analysis made of the water and was told it contained minerals that probably could have medicinal value."

A marker placed on Ky. 191 by the Kentucky Historical Society and the Kentucky Department of Highways credits Mrs. Swango with having better luck with the water.

Mrs. Swango bathed a dog with mange in the water. A few days later she discovered the dog completely well, and from then on the springs gained importance.

Harmon Swango opened a boarding house near the spring and before long Rittenhouse Hotel was built on a knoll overlooking the spring hollow and community of Hazel Green. Rittenhouse catered to the Bluegrass trade and established a stable of blooded horses to provide mounts for the gentry.

In an era when society from throughout the world made meccas of mineral spas, the hillside Rittenhouse Resort spa attracted guests from throughout the states and many foreign countries.

"We students who lived in Hazel Green looked forward to summer vacations when 'boarders' were to arrive to drink the recuperating waters. From spring into late autumn they came.

"Daily, late in the afternoon we would stroll to the springs, each individual carrying a crudely carved cane to help in climbing the hill. Some had amber stained jugs and others carried bottles to fill with water to take back with them. Our new friends, the 'boarders' would come out to greet us. We tried to entertain the guests various ways, but we had many laughs at the expense of New Yorkers who all seemed anxious to go snipe hunting."

There were no snipes around Hazel Green, but as a prank, local youths would offer to take a New Yorker on such a hunt, always at night and through rough country, just to see the reaction of the city dwellers.

"Here along the old trail you can still find your initials carved on walls, fences and trees," reminisced Mrs. Combs. "Many courting couples walked to the springs and back, and at the springs lasting friendships were made with strangers from far places."

The carved initials and the familiar stone-walled spring house "tend to serve as reminders of that once-happy and carefree period of life." The old hotel burned later and Ky. 191 dug into the hill, near the spring. On the knoll the old Swango homestead sags with weather and years, but the springs remain and the water is the same as it was in the last century when some guests thought it healed everything, "even

Jean Thomas: Keep on Traipsin'

By CHUCK RATLIFF Ashland, Ky.-Looking back, Jean Thomas could say she has left her mark. But that's not her style. At 93, she doesn't look back

"The Traipsin' Woman" earned her recognition through "determination, suffering and hard work," often sustained on a diet of faith, encouragement of friends and "one more doughnut.'

Born in Ashland, she was christened Jeanette Mary Francis de Assisi Aloysius Narcissus Garfield Bell, but shortened that to Jean Thomas after her 1913 marriage to Albert Hart Thomas.

The Traipsin' Woman recently recalled that as a child she was accused of being "venturesome" and "stage struck."

"I was, " she chuckled, "and you can bet your life I intend to stay that way." Miss Thomas was a "liberated women," long before that movement became popular. At the age of 17, she began a career as a court stenographer. This was when young ladies took up "school teaching and dressmaking" and traipsin' over the country was viewed with distrust, disdain and even superstition by the mountain folks, she recalls.

"Some folks thought I might have been a witch," she jokes,

Carefully saving her wages, Miss Thomas was finally able to go to New York to attend Hunter College and the Pulitzer School of Journalism.

After 13 years in Greenwich Village, she moved on to Hollywood to work as a script writer for the silent movies. At one time she was a stenographer for Texas Guinan, a colorful impresario of the Roaring Twenties.

While her associations in New York and Hollywood are all part of the Jean Thomas story, it was as she traveled the mountain circuits in a jolt wagon that The Traipsin' Woman became interested in the songs mountain people sang to the accompaniment of dulcimer, lute, fiddle and other native instruments.

It was there that she began to collect the folklore, traditions and music to preserve for future generations a bygone lifestyle which might otherwise have been lost.

She heard, learned and grew to love the Elizabethan ballads which had been handed down virtually unchanged since early immigrants brought them to this country from the British Isles.

From the practice of the mountain people getting together for a singin' gatherin', The Traipsin' Woman conceived the idea of a folksong festival to preserve and present this traditional music for the general public to enjoy.

In 1930, with the encouragement of several friends, including Brooks Atkinson, then drama critic of the New York Times, the American Folksong Festival and Society was founded to "bring the singin' gatherin' out of its mountain remoteness before this rich music was lost to American Culture."

Personal friends and professional acquaintances have assisted The Traipsin' Woman over the years. Such notables as Carl Sandburg, Erskine Caldwell and Burl Ives, with whom she has appeared on national television in "Gateways to Folkmusic," have served on her national advisory board.

But the festival is only one of the methods Jean Thomas has used to share her knowledge and love of the mountain traditions. She is the author of several books on the subject.

The "Singin' Fiddler of Lost Hope Hollow" is the story of Jillson Setters, with whom Miss Thomas performed at the invitation of Britain's Royalty.

"The Sun Shines Bright" is the first part of the Traipsin' Woman's autobiography, and its very title exemplifies the philosophy by which Jean Thomas has lived.

But though she says that if she had her life to live over, she would change nothing, she admits there have been trying moments.

"I have felt the twinge of self-pity and fear. But these are the most destructive forces in the world and it takes faith in God and faith in yourself to overcome

"In the early years, there were times when I was broke; just enough for a cup of coffee and a doughnut. Sometimes I thought I could never face another doughnut, but I did for it meant survival. It was even good-still is.

"I guess," she mused, "I've always been chasing that doughnut-always Sitting in her "Wee House in the Woods" museum home, The Traipsin' Woman said, "It's been fun. You should have fun, enjoy yourself while developing your talents.'

And of the future-retirement?

"I have a few more projects to complete," she replied mysteriously, but then with indignation she said, "Me

Not as long as there is a story to tell or a song to sing, anyway.

INVITATION FOR BIDS

Sealed proposals will be received by the Floyd County Fiscal Court, Prestonsburg, Kentucky (Floyd County), at the office of the County Judge, on Wednesday, July 31, 1974, at 10:00 A.M., Central Daylight Saving Time, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read aloud for furnishing of all materials and labor and performing all work as set forth by this Invitation for Bids, the Instructions to Bidders, the General Conditions of the Contract, the Specifications, and Drawings prepared by Forrest G. McCloskey, & Associates, Architect, Lexington, Kentucky.

The work to be bid upon: Renovation of the Old Martin High School Building, into an Elementary School, and New Physical Education Building.

Proposals will be received as follows: Proposal No. 1 to include the entire project.

Plans, specifications and Contract Documents, may be examined at the following places: Builders Exchange of Knoxville, Tennessee, and Louisville, Kentucky; Dodge Corporation of Knoxville, Tennessee, Louisville, and Lexington, Kentucky; AGC Office in Lexington, Kentucky, and at the office of Forrest G. McCloskey & Associates, Architect, 248 East Short Street, Lexington, Kentucky.

Copies of the documents not to exceed two (2) sets, for the General Contractors, and his major subcontractors, Mechanical, Air Conditioning, Plumbing, and Electrical only, may be secured from the Architect, Forrest G. Mc-Closkey & Associates, upon payment of $35.00 per set, which payment will be refunded upon return of the plans, specifications, and other documents in good condition, within ten, (10) days after date of bid opening. If more than two sets of documents are requested, they may be obtained upon payment of $10.00, which payment will not be subject to refund. All deposits on hand after expiration of the ten-day period, became the property of the Architect.

All Subcontractors, material suppliers, and other interested parties, may obtain the necessary sheets required to estimate their work upon payment of $1.00 per sheet of the drawings, which charge will include the corresponding section or sections of the specifications, or they may rent a copy of the plans and specifications for $1.00 per day for a maximum of three (3) days.

Bids must be accompanied by a bid bond payable to the Owner in an amount not less than five percent (5 percent) of the Base Bid.

Bids received after the scheduled closing time for the reception of the bids will be returned unopened to the bidders. Documents available on or about Wednesday, July 10, 1974.

INVITATION FOR BIDS

In the event an award is made and the successful bidder fails to furnish a satisfactory performance bond within fifteen (15) days after written notification of acceptance of the Proposal, and fails to execute a contract for the construction of the work under the award, then the bid bond shall be forfeited as liquidated damages for such

Notice of Requirement for Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities: Bidders are cautioned as follows: By signing this bid, the bidder will be deemed to have signed and agreed to the provisions of the "Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities" in this solicitation. The Certification provides that the bidder does not maintain or provide for his employees facilities which are segregated on a basis of race, creed, color, or national origin, whether such facilities are segregated by directive or on a de facto basis. The Certification also provides that he will not maintain such segregated facilities. Failure of a bidder to agree to the "Certification of Nonsegregated Facilities," will render his bid nonresponsive to the terms of solicitations involving awards of contracts exceeding $10,000 which are not exempt from the provisions of the Equal Opportunity Clause.

Judge Henry Stumbo 7-10-3t.

For example, there are all kinds of wildlife to enjoy as well as some fine fishing opportunities around any of Kentucky's many streams.

Along the waterways you might see broods of wood ducks with the hen leading the small ducklings about. Other bird life also abounds along stream banks, and a person who is interested in this form of recreation can sometimes see a different bird on each bend of the

The youngsters along on such a trip will get a big kick out of observing young' squirrels trying to scurry about the tree limbs with a great deal more difficulty than their agile parents.

A vivid example of the beauty of wildlife and what you may see if you're in the right place at the right time is an experience I had some 20 years ago when I was camping out in a quiet spot at Dale Hollow.

We established our camp on a flat site well back off the main lake on a small tributary. What made this spot so ideal was a small cold stream that flowed past the tent area and into the lake. This stream had a small waterfall with a deep hole of water below it, so we built a small dam below the deep water to make an ideal place to hold fish until the trip was

Several crappie had been placed in the holding pool when we discovered from the dried fish scales on one of the close-by rocks that something was devouring some of the fish from the pool.

Late the next evening I took a stand close by in hopes of seeing what was taking the fish. Much to my surprise I observed a female mink with three of her kits visiting the fish bank. The female would enter the clear cool water, swim under a small rock ledge about two feet below the surface and catch one of my going-home crappie.

She then would climb back out on the rock where the young were waiting to be

It was a most exciting adventure, not only to the feeding mink but for me. This is but one of many exciting things that has happened to me while enjoying the out-of-doors.

PASSED AND APPROVED this July

WILLIAM O. GOEBEL, JR. Mayor, City of Prestonsburg, Ky.

BEVERLY M. HACKWORTH Clerk, City of Prestonsburg, Kentucky Named Blood Donor Chairman

Jametta Mounts, newly elected chairman of the Floyd County Blood Donor Advisory Committee, illustrates some of the objectives of the Floyd County Blood Program.

Jammetta Mounts, B.S.M.T., was year ago. elected chairman of the Floyd County Blood Donor Advisory Committee at its first meeting, July 11.

Approximately 20 Floyd county residents attended the meeting, at which the countywide blood program was discussed and officers were elected.

Miss Mounts, a lab technician at Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin, was born and reared in the Floyd county area. She received a degree in medical technology and biology from Pikeville College and worked at Central Baptist Hospital, Lexington, before she came to Our Lady of the Way Hospital, about a

As chairman of the Blood Donor Advisory Committee, Miss Mounts hopes to help the Floyd County Blood Donor Club acquire 1103 pints of blood this year. This is the total set by the Central Kentucky Blood Center in Lexington and needed to achieve countywide blood assurance in Floyd county

The next meeting of the Blood Donor Advisory Committee will be held July 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the Floyd County Library. All who are interested in maintaining a safe, adequate blood supply for the county are encouraged to attend this meeting.

TRAILER PARK REGULATIONS

James B. Goble, administrative assistant, Floyd County Health Depart-So if this type of excitement is what you ment, advises all persons planning to park in Floyd County to be thoroughly familiar with the provisions of the law and regulations of the Commonwealth of Kentucky relating to mobile home parks including the issuance of permits, collection of fees, construction requirements, construction plan submission and approval, sanitary operations and penalties for noncompliance.

> Unless mobile home parks are constructed, operated and maintained in a sanitary manner they constitute a threat to the health of the occupants of the park and to the health of the residents of adjacent areas. Questions as to compliance with the law and regulations should be directed to the Floyd County Health Department or to the State Department of Health, Frankfort, Kentucky.

"Mobile home park" means a parcel of land, under the control of any person, available to the public in which two or more mobile home lots are occupied or intended for occupancy by mobile homes.

INFECTIOUS HEPTATITIS

Infectious Hepatitis—once called 'yellow jaundice''-is a common contagious disease which is thought to be caused by a virus. It is sometimes a fairly mild disease but can become very serious. The virus which causes hepatitis attacks the liver, which is the body's chemical factory. For that reason, recovery from the disease is often a rather lengthy affair.

Infectious hepatitis is probably spread by contact with either an infected person or his body wastes. Children are more often affected than adults because youngsters sometimes neglect to wash their hands after going to the bathroom. Contaminated food or water can also spread hepatitis. Because rural residents often to not have sanitary sewer systems, but must rely on septic tanks or outhouses, hepatitis is more frequently found in the country than in the city.

Many cases of hepatitis can be prevented by doing two things; disposing of sewage properly and following the rules of good personal hygiene. Personal cleanliness is important in preventing hepatitis.
