

Officials Attend Dedication of Banner Bridge

U.S. Senator Wendell Ford addresses the large crowd which gathered last Wednesday for the official dedication of the Banner bridge, the $2.2 million span which was authorized during Senator Ford's term of office as governor and completed under the present administration of Gov. Julian Carroll. Ford was one of several state and local officials who were on hand for the occasion and he commended Gov. Carroll, local officials and the people of the Banner-Prater Creek section for working to make the structure a reality.

Gov. Julian Carroll said the bridge which has been open to motorists for almost two years, cost nearly twice as much as originally projected, "but the apparent need for the bridge made it of highest priority among state projects." Carroll went on to say, "With good transportation facilities in Eastern Kentucky we feel we can locate industry here after the coal is gone."

State Secretary of Transportation Calvin Grayson praised Ford and Carroll for their efforts in securing funds for the bridge. "This span was originally planned for federal funds, but Gov. Ford saw that it would take twice as long to get the money so he went ahead and authorized it for state funding," he pointed out.

Following dedication ceremonies which also featured entertainment by the Betsy Layne high school band and majorettes, the officials were treated to a huge meal at the Prater Creek school prepared by the Prater Creek Homemakers.

State May Not Seek for Baril Death Penalty

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said Monday that, unless more than circumstantial evidence can be unearthed before the Jan. 15 trial date of Tony Greg Baril, he will not ask the death penalty for the 18-year-old Abbott Creek youth who is accused of the knife-slaying near here last August 12 to Earl Chester Porter.

The statement was made by the prosecutor during a discussion of what he termed "tough" cases which are coming up for trial. The uncertain status of the death penalty in Kentucky also enters into Allen's decision.

Baril's attorney, Public Defender Gary Johnson, also indicated that Baril will not enter a plea of insanity. (A plea of insanity would be an admission of guilt.) The defendant, who remains in jail here, has maintained that he is innocent. He has explained that a footprint found at the scene of the slaying and identified as his was made when he approached the attendant's box at a Katy Friend service

Governor Views Garrett Span

Gov. Julian Carroll, thanked by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley (left) and Representative James "Jitter" Allen, inspect construction at Garrett along with a group of residents.

Gov. Julian Carroll took a first-hand look last Wednesday at the KY 80 overpass fill work which has aroused the concern of many Garrett residents, and his on-site inspection resulted in an order from the Governor for a reevaluation of the bridge design.

Lifted by helicopter following the dedication of the Banner bridge and a luncheon at the Prater Creek school, Gov. Carroll and U.S. Senator Wendell Ford were first familiarized with the status of the road work from the air by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley and State Representative James "Jitter" Allen who accompanied them.

Annual Thanksgiving Service Set Nov. 22 At Episcopal Church

The annual Thanksgiving service sponsored by the Floyd County Ministerial Association will be held Wednesday, Nov. 22, at St. James Episcopal Church here. The service will be at 7 p.m.

The Rev. Dean L. Pack, pastor of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, will be the speaker, and the choir of the Community United Methodist Church will sing, it was announced by the Rev. Walter Applegate, president of the ministerial association, who urged the public to attend the service.

The offering will be the fund maintained by the ministerial association for the aid of transients.

Contractor Says Asbestos Should All Be Removed

In a meeting Tuesday afternoon with school board officials and representatives of the Parents for Better Schools organization, Anthony Natale, head of a Mount Laurel, N.J. firm which specializes in the removal of asbestos from schools and other public buildings, confirmed the seriousness of a suspected asbestos health hazard at Prestonsburg High School which has been a focus of local concern in recent months.

Natale, who was contacted by the school board's architect, Marvin Crider, Jr., called the situation presented by the school's asbestos ceilings and upper wall sections in at least one room "one of the worst if not the worst I have ever seen," and he recommended total removal of the asbestos coating as the only permanent solution to the problem.

Natale said in some situations where ceilings are in reasonably good condition, the asbestos can be effectively sealed by the application of certain materials, but at PHS, he said, the deterioration was advanced to such a degree that complete removal was the only alternative.

"It should come off," Natale said, "there's no question about it."

Tests conducted recently by Kettering Laboratories in Cincinnati, O. confirmed the presence of asbestos fibers in eight air samples from the high school, and, as a result of the testing, the band room, which contained the highest concentration of asbestos, has been closed, and maintenance personnel have been directed to damp mop rather than sweep in order to avoid stirring up the fallen fibers. The tests showed asbestos fibers of the size that can be inhaled and cause asbestiosis, a respiratory disease which results in scarring of lung tissue. Asbestos has also been demonstrated to be a cancer-causing material.

Asbestos removal, according to Natale, would require from two to three weeks to complete and would necessitate closing of the school. An equivalent time would be needed to finish electrical repair.

The remove process, Natale explained, consists of the complete sealing of the work area with plastic sheeting prior to stripping of the asbestos layer which is packed in large plastic bags. Workmen are required to wear special protective clothing and utilize breathing devices, and a HEPA filter is employed which removes all asbestos particles from the air. Testing for the asbestos fiber concentrations in the air is done before, during and after the work, to make sure that the material has been removed completely.

Final disposal of the asbestos is usually made in a landfill area for contaminated materials, Natale pointed out. But since that type of facility is not available

Spurn Summons, Get 'Grounded,' Warning Heard

District Judge Harold J. Stumbo said Monday that he has received bad news for some drivers but that he thought they should hear it and thus be forewarned. The word Judge Stumbo has received from the state Department of Transportation is that the licenses of all drivers who fail to appear in court in answer to a summons or citation will be revoked.

The order applies only to cases dated after June 17, effective date of the new law governing such cases. Referring to those who fail to appear after having received a summons or citation, the department order reads:

"Effective immediately, we will suspend the license of Kentucky residents and also out-of-state motorists, in addition to notifying that state of the action taken here."

Eighteen convictions resulted from district court sessions last Wednesday and Thursday. Defendants, charges against each, and penalties assessed follow, with court costs in each case:

James D. Ferrell, drunk, given trial in absentia, $50 fine; Jay Blevins, drunk, jury trial, $50; Ershell Adkins, criminal mischief, third degree, jury trial, $250 fine; Chester Garrett, third degree assault, to pay $27.50 costs; Scottie Hamilton, no registration plates, jury trial, $100; Mitchell Manns, no motor-cycle endorsement, tried in absentia, $25; Ellis Little, concealed deadly weapon, tried in absentia, $250 fine; Ellis Little, public drunk, $75; Martha Spartman, theft, plea of guilty, $25; Ricky Johnson, no operator's license, (See Story No. 6, Page 4)

Get in Or Out Within 90 Days, County Is Told

Floyd county has until January 1 to get into the National Flood Insurance Program in reality—or to get out.

So, in effect, said Robert Maier, of the Federal Flood Insurance Administration, Atlanta, Ga., at Tuesday's meeting of the Floyd fiscal court.

Mr. Maier pointed out that, although the county adopted in January, 1976 a resolution to comply with the provisions of the flood insurance program and was accepted for insurance the following March, the court has never acted to put into effect a flood management program.

The county has been served notice that it has 90 days from Oct. 13 to create a flood plain management system, which includes granting or denial of building permits, or to withdraw from the program altogether.

The required system would provide for a building inspector to inspect proposed building sites and accept or reject them according to established guidelines.

Building within a flood plain will generally require the filling of sites to a level above flood or the construction of buildings on piers or breakaway foundations that would leave the first floor level above flood.

If the fiscal court does not take action to implement a flood management system within the required time, Maier said, the result will be that it cannot qualify after future floods for flood disaster funds from federal sources, all who now have flood insurance will have their policies cancelled at the anniversary date of the individual policies, and builders will not be able to borrow from federal sources.

The meeting Tuesday was a prelude to a general hearing-type session scheduled today (Wednesday) at 9 a.m. in the conference room of the Courthouse Annex building here. The meeting is a part of the move to bring the county and its communities into the "regular phase" of the National Flood Insurance Program, and is regarded as "extremely important."

Robber Walks Off with $300, Widow's Savings

The daylight robbery of a Hueysville widow of her savings last Friday afternoon left state police puzzled and unable to come up with a clue as to his identity.

Posing as a gas company representative who had come to check her gas heaters to economize on fuel, the man gained entrance to the home of Mrs. Anna Marshall, about 80. He checked her stoves, then when Mrs. Marshall was preparing to pay him his $10 fee he remarked, "You might as well give me that other $300 you've got."

Terrified, the widow drew from the bosom of her dress all the money she had—about $300. The man then left, (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Floyd—Ho-Hum—Had Election

Floyd county last Tuesday may have had its dullist election ever.

This was one that failed even to stir up a good argument. One voting-place, Drift, opened without an officer present. Some stayed open without a full complement of election officers. Not a "striker's ticket" was seen, nobody was at the polls to "favor" voters with printed reminders that their candidates deserved consideration. Not a vehicle was in use, hauling voters to and from the polls.

In fact, the voters stayed away in droves. Of the more than 25,000 registered voters in the county, only 4,430 cast ballots.

And the vote count, completed early Tuesday night, was attended only by tabulators and election officers who delivered the voted ballots to be counted and left without tarrying to learn the results.

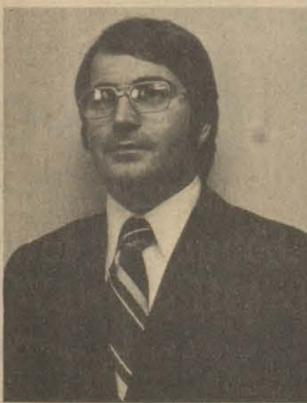

All this ended a day during which there was no suspense. It wasn't that the voters weren't interested or didn't care—they simply knew the results in advance, that Senator "Dee" Huddleston and Congressman Carl Perkins, the only candidates with even token opposition, were not threatened.

Congressman Perkins polled the heaviest vote—3,916 to 514 for his Republican opponent, Granville Thomas. Senator Huddleston totalled 3,222 votes to 727 for his Republican opponent, Louie Guenther, Jr.

Also contributing to the voter lethargy was the fact that the two administration candidates for board of education were unopposed. The two candidates, Dr. J.D. Adams in Educational Division 1 and Ray (Shag) Campbell in Division 2 were perhaps more interested because they were reported to have had a wager on which would receive the most votes. If they did, Dr. Adams won—607 votes to 578. One write-in vote was cast for Beulah C. Clifton in Division 1.

Their Kept Promise Earns National Award

GRADY STUMBO, M.D.

BENNY RAY BAILEY, Ph.D.

Sixteen years ago, two boys from the same Floyd county community, McDowell, jointly pledged that if they received a college education they would return to the Mountains in service to their people.

The promise was the only "tuition" to Alice Lloyd College that the late Alice Lloyd, founder of the Pippa Passes institution, required in lieu of cash. The two boyhood friends, Grady Stumbo and Benny Ray Bailey, kept their promise, and they are now keeping it in a joint venture that is perhaps serving their people better than they ever dreamed.

Ten years later, Stumbo and Bailey—having gone on to earn professional degrees in medicine and public administration—pooled their total assets of $53 and founded the East Kentucky Health Services Center. Today, Bailey, 34, and Stumbo, 33, are president and medical director of a modern health facility serving 35,000 patients with a $1 million budget in Knott county.

But the importance of their achievement extends far beyond the coal towns of eastern Kentucky. The rural clinic Stumbo and Bailey started from scratch in 1972 is now the model for some 250 rural health centers established under a program aided by the U.S. Public Health Service, as well as for a network of similar clinics funded in part by the New Jersey based Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. In addition, scores of medical professionals from all over the U.S. pass through the remote Appalachian clinic each year to get a first-hand look at how a model health care facility operates.

Stumbo and Bailey's achievement is being recognized by those outside of the world of medicine, too. This month the two young Kentuckians were named co-winners of a $10,000 Rockefeller Public Service Award. The nation's most prestigious honor for citizens working in the public interest, the award was given to Bailey and Stumbo for "promoting the improvement of health services and controlling health costs."

Hale Suit Says Pact Breached

Ex-Sheriff Henry Hale last week filed in circuit court here a suit seeking to recover from the Middle States Coal Company a total of $82,000 for alleged breach of a coal-hauling contract dating back to 1972.

The original contract, the plaintiff alleges, was entered into with Fawn and Fern Johnson, representatives of the coal company, and provided that the company would pay him $1.25 a ton to haul coal from Middle Creek, plus 5 cents for mileage. The haulage rate, he claims, was later raised to $1.40 per ton.

In 1975, Hale claims, Richard D. Johnson, the company's agent "induced" him to buy five additional coal trucks, which cost $291,000, and shortly thereafter the defendant employed trucks by other persons and refused to use the trucks owned by Hale. Plaintiff alleges he cannot now find work for his trucks.

(Richard D. Johnson in 1976 bought the entire stock of Middle States, subject to the contract with Hale, who continued to haul the company's coal, the suit points out.)

Hale asks $150 per day per truck for a period of 60 days, or $63,000 lost net income; $6,000 for depreciation of his trucks, $4,000 for interest and $9,000 insurance.

Regional Heart Clinic

Here Called Success

By JANETE E. HICKS
Health Educator
The regional heart clinic held at the Floyd County Health Department November 6, 7, and 8, was a success due to the efforts of the health department staff, an excellent medical team, and certain civic minded groups of the Prestonsburg area.

The medical team was composed of three cardiologists and a dentist from the University of Kentucky Medical Center in Lexington, Kentucky. These doctors examined 115 children and 86 adults all of whom were from the Big Sandy area.

A large reason why the heart clinic was so successful was the special effort shown by the Prestonsburg Kiwanians. These wonderful ladies donated their time to prepare sandwiches and soft drinks for the patients during the long interval of waiting to see their doctors. This was especially helpful on the clinic day for children since many children are better behaved when they are not hungry. All in all, the Kiwanians helped to make the heart clinic run smoothly and thus be a success.

The Floyd County Health Department again would like to express their thanks to this fine club.

The Floyd County Health Department has the following announcements:

1.) Wednesday, November 15, a community health nurse will be conducting the regularly scheduled outpost clinic at Hamilton's Kentucky Food Store at Teaberry. Immunizations, diabetes screening, TB skin tests, and blood pressures will be available at this clinic between the hours of 10 a.m. to 12 and 1 to 2 p.m. All persons in the Mud Creek area are urged to take advantage of this free medical service being offered in their community.

2.) Thursday, November 16, a Pap smear clinic will be conducted at the Floyd County Health Department from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 2 p.m. This clinic provides all women with the opportunity to be screened for cervical cancer, a procedure that doctors recommend for all women once a year.

3.) Also, on Monday, November 20, the regularly scheduled Bypro Outpost Clinic will be conducted at Ethel Osborne's store from 10 a.m. to 12 and 1 to 2 p.m. Services offered at this clinic will include immunizations, TB skin tests, diabetes screening, and blood pressures.

This clinic is a free service and the public is welcome to attend.

ALLEN COMMUNITY NEWS

Miss Nancy Koier, bride elect of Kenneth (Buster) Donta, was honored with a miscellaneous shower Friday evening, November 10, at the Allen United Methodist Church recreation room, where she received many gifts. Hostesses for the shower were Mrs. Ray Crisp, Mrs. Russell Laven, Mrs. Ray Brackett, Mrs. Danny Branson, Mrs. Bennie L. Lafferty, Mrs. Kenneth Allen, Mrs. Edgar Craft, Mrs. Walter Stewart, Mrs. Bob Harris, Mrs. James Riley Hall, Mrs. Bill Ratliff, Mrs. Valorie Hall, Mrs. Mary Zemo and Mrs. Donald A. Willis. Mr. Donta is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Donta, of Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Setser had as their guests last week-end her granddaughter, Mrs. John N. Langley, Mr. Langely and children, Jeffrey and Jeremy, of Lexington. Mr. Setser, who has been ill, is still confined to his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Steve Benedict, of Illinois, were here last week-end as houseguests of her sister, Mrs. Bill Ratliff.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Porter last week-end were his brother, Harry Porter, and Mrs. Porter, of Jackson, Michigan, who were also guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Porter. This week visiting Mr. and Mrs. Porter and Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Lumpkins and sons, Chris and Chet, were brothers of Mrs. Porter, Forrest Beverly, of Dayton, Ohio, and Clyde Porter, of Steele's Creek, near Wayland.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Crisp visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frank Preston, Sunday, and Ray Brackett spent several days with them. Others there over the weekend were Wayne Wendell Ratliff and sons, Chris and Chip, Danny Branson and Forrest Curry. Chip Ratliff managed to get himself a 10-point buck.

Mrs. Goldia Porter Williams has returned home, and will be making her residence here. Mrs. Williams and husband, the late Dr. Sankey Williams, had been living in Nicholasville.

Mr. and Mrs. Allie Howard, of Owensboro, were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Laven, Friday night. They also visited other friends while here.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clay and daughter, Charlene, of Cincinnati, Ohio, visited her mother, Mrs. Manford Davis, of Dwale, last weekend. Sunday, Mrs. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Clay and daughter were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Davis. Mrs. Manford Davis, who was a patient at Highland Regional Medical Center last week, was able to return home Friday, and is feeling well again.

Jerry Waugh, junior at Cumberland College at Williamsburg, Ky., visited his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Earl Waugh, over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lafferty, of Newark, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lafferty, Heath, Ohio, recently visited Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Setser. The group also visited Mrs. Darcus Lafferty, of Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Hatfield and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Branham, of Water Gap.

John Branham, of Bull Creek, remains quite ill at his home.

Mrs. Wayne Wendell Ratliff visited her mother, Mrs. Curtis Ousley, of Elizabethtown, last week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Borders, of Paintsville, visited Mrs. Ray Brackett, Sunday.

Kenneth Donta, accompanied by Nancy Koier, both students at Eastern Kentucky University, were here as houseguests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Donta, over the week-end. Other visitors were Mr. and Mrs. James Donta, of Little Paint.

The Allen Baptist Women met Monday, November 6, at 7 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Pat Branson. The meeting began with the singing of "Amazing Grace" by the group. The business meeting followed with the reading of the minutes and the treasurer's report. The plan of mission action for November and December was completed. The call to prayer was given by Mrs. Ruby Imes, with Mrs. Alta Malone leading in prayer for missionaries who were having birthdays on that day. The program on Argentina was presented by Mrs. Rosemary Frasure. Closing prayer was given by Mrs. Opal Martin. The hostesses, Mrs. Branson, Mrs. Irene Stephens, and Mrs. Mary Jo Waugh served refreshments to Pearl Watts, Alta Malone, Ruby Imes, Frances DeRossett, Margaret Tackett, Rosemary Frasure, Donna Slone, Opal Martin, Gertrude Clay, Flora Hunt, Eleanor Martin, Donna Reitz, Berniece Porter, Brookie Whitt, Beckie Watts, Danete Branson, Delilah Rice, and Stephanie Tackett.

Martin Christmas Parade Scheduled for Saturday

The Christmas season begins officially in Martin at 2 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 18, when a Christmas Kick-off Parade starts at the First Guaranty Bank and goes through town. The Martin Woman's Club is sponsoring the event.

After the parade, a Snow Queen and Princess will be chosen at a pageant held at the Martin Grade School auditorium, with Roy Ratliff serving as M.C.

Anyone who would like to participate in the parade should call Sherry Ratliff at 285-9175 or 886-2354.

Kentucky Afield

By JOHN WILSON

Kentucky outdoorsmen who like to hunt both small game and waterfowl might have a hard time deciding how to spend the upcoming weekend. All small game seasons open Thursday, Nov. 16, and the opening of the statewide duck season is Saturday, Nov. 18. Preliminary survey results from wildlife biologists indicate that the populations of both quail and rabbits are down this year, very likely as a result of last winter's severe weather. The populations of both species are good enough, however, that biologists feel no decrease in limits or season length is necessary. Waterfowl populations look good, but the mild weather over most of the country has allowed the ducks and geese to stay up north longer than usual, so opening day hunters may find fewer ducks than normal. As ponds and lakes further north freeze, the hunting prospects here will improve.

The grouse continues to be Kentucky's most underharvested game species. These birds are hardier than quail and shouldn't have suffered as much from the bad winter weather. If you want to hunt grouse, you'll have to go east—at least to the Daniel Boone National Forest. Grouse don't naturally occur in Kentucky outside the mountains and the rugged terrain is perhaps a big reason why we don't have more grouse hunters. The squirrel season also reopens Nov. 16 and many hunters have much better success now than they did in the early parts of the season. Squirrels are more concentrated and are also easier to see now that the leaves have fallen. So if you gave up after a couple of unproductive squirrel hunts last August, try again. The trapping and furbearer seasons also opens Nov. 16. Again this year the limit on raccoons is one per hunter per night or three raccoons per party of three or more hunters. There are no limits on other furbearers or on raccoons taken by trapping.

Duck hunters will be working under the point system again this year, and with one notable exception, the point values and other regulations are the same as last year. The big difference is that the point value for drake mallards has been raised to 35 points up from 25 last year. Since the mallard is among our most common species, this change is an important one to remember. The point values are as follows: Canvasbacks count 100 points each; hen mallards, wood ducks, black ducks, redheads and hooded mergansers, 70 points; pintail, all teals, widegeon, gadwall, shoveler, scaup and all other mergansers, 10 points; drake mallards and other species of ducks not listed above, 35 points. Coots have a point value of zero, but there is a daily limit of 15 and a possession limit of 30. The daily limit is reached when the point value of the last duck taken, added to the values of ducks taken previously, reaches or exceeds 100 points. The possession limit is the maximum number of ducks which could have been taken in two days. For a more complete rundown of small game and waterfowl seasons and regulations, write the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 for a free copy of the hunting guide or the 1978-79 waterfowl hunting guide, which also contains an identification chart for the more common duck species.

Kiwaniannes Assist At Health Clinic

The Prestonsburg Kiwaniannes served food and soft drinks to more than 200 patients at the heart clinic held here by the Floyd County Health Department. All food was supplied by the Kiwaniannes, and the soft drinks were paid for by the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club. Members of Kiwaniannes who participated in this service were Mrs. Ortha Meece, Mrs. Vera Ford, Mrs. Thelma Music, Mrs. Garnet Fairchild, and Mrs. Opal Dingus.

Celebrates First Birthday

Stephanie Ann Sizemore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Sizemore, of Martin, celebrated her first birthday November 11 at her home. The theme of the party was "Babyland" and her home was decorated with orange and yellow. Cake and ice cream were served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Dean R. Merritt, great-grandparents, of Emma, Mr. and Mrs. Merle M. May, grandparents, of Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis B. Merritt, of Banner, Mrs. Michael Auxier, Mrs. Robert Coleman and David, of Emma, Mrs. LaDonna Patton, of Manton, and Miss Joyce May, of Martin. Those sending a gift but unable to attend Mr. and Mrs. Cleaburn McDaniels, of Minnie, great-grandparents.

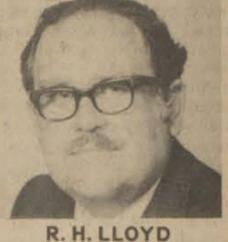

Census Survey Here To Profile Voting

Did you vote on November 7? Were you registered but did not vote? The Bureau of the Census will ask these and other questions about voting in the 1978 elections in a sample of households in this area during the week of November 20-25. Joseph R. Norwood, Director of the Bureau's Regional Office in Charlotte, stressed that no questions will be asked about party affiliation or for whom a person voted. The survey will provide a profile of the typical American voter and non-voter: age, sex, residence, education, labor force status, and family income. These voting questions are in addition to the usual ones asked in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted nationwide by the Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor. Information supplied by individuals participating in the survey is kept strictly confidential by law and the results are used only to compile statistical totals. Interviewers in this area include: Mrs. Caudine Martin, Garrett, and Mrs. Mary P. Richmond, Paintsville. CAREER FESTIVAL SET Alice Lloyd College's fourth annual Career Festival will be from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., Friday (Nov. 17) in the college gymnasium. All high school seniors are invited to attend. Hobson's Choice

Apparently, the time is near when the Floyd fiscal court and governing boards of the county's incorporated towns will have "to bite the bullet."

Now enjoying flood insurance protection under an emergency program which disturbed nobody, neither officials nor citizens, these officials are being told that they must perform a more unpleasant duty—enact an ordinance providing for flood plain management.

That will mean that the privilege of building wherever the owner of land or a building lot pleases will be no more. Flood plain zoning will be in force, sites will be inspected and they will be brought to a prescribed level, out of flood danger, or building will be prohibited.

These who must enact such legislation naturally would shun the role of restricting the freedom of citizens to use their land as they like. But this would be the situation if nothing is done about it:

—There would be no flood insurance available.
—In the event of a destructive flood such as the county is prone to, the county would not be eligible for flood relief from federal sources.

—Home or other building construction financing from federal sources—FHA and others—would be stopped.

If the officials do not act before Jan. 1, the people will suffer. If they do act, it's possible the officials will suffer from citizens resentful of the curtailment of their rights.

Those in authority have left only what is known as "Hobson's choice"—take what is offered or get nothing.

as well as the Stone Coal and Rock Fork sections.

In addition to the threat of increased flooding in the area, problems of dangerous access to new Route 80 are a primary source of concern.

If present engineering plans are carried out, school buses from the Garrett side of Beaver Creek would be required to cross two lanes of traffic to reach the school, and West Garrett residents wanting to travel east would be placed in the same dangerous position, it is claimed. Many feel that this would create a dangerous situation considering the amount of coal truck traffic which is expected to use the road and the high speeds such traffic may attain.

If an additional bridge pier were constructed, thereby making much of the fill unnecessary as most Garrett residents wish, the access onto the road might be located in main Garrett, it is believed.

"If the ramp onto 80 were located in Garrett and the old bridge (across Beaver Creek to the school) maintained," Judge Conley pointed out, "then the children wouldn't have to get on the road at all."

Conley said Gov. Carroll told his design engineer to "take a look at doing away with the fill," taking into consideration the idea of an alternate access.

Judge Conley said he felt confident that action would be taken by the state to allay the fears of the Garrett residents. He added that while the Governor made no firm promises, "he certainly left everybody feeling that there would be something done."

Following their visit to Garrett, Gov. Carroll and Senator Ford flew to Washington, D.C.

station and found Porter dying of his wounds. He claims he became frightened and fled.

The knife with which Porter had been stabbed 39 times has never been found.

The first murder trial ahead is that of Elder Lee Hamilton, charged with the Mud Creek slaying of the Rev. Charles (Hatler) Hamilton.

Trial of Randy Hall, charged with the slaying of his sister-in-law, Charlene Varney, on Mud Creek, which was docketed for Nov. 27 has been continued to Feb. 12. The continuance followed the transfer of Hall to Catlettsburg for trial on a federal firearms charge. The trial there has been delayed, it was said here this week, by a faulty indictment and the necessity to draft a new one.

The only recent criminal court trial was that of Willie Watson, who was acquitted Nov. 6 of a hit-run charge.

The most many textile industry workers are likely to be paid might very well come from the J. P. Stevens Company. As of September, 1977, Stevens workers earned six percent more than the industry average on an hourly basis and ten percent more on a weekly basis. Their earnings also approximated those of all manufacturing employees in the southeastern region of the country where most of Stevens plants are located.

within the immediate area, Ruby Catherine Clifton, head of the Parents for Better Schools, said the state Bureau of Mines had agreed to work with the group in providing a nearby strip-mine site for possible disposal of the material.

According to an average cost per square foot figure offered by Natale, the removal work would cost an estimated $75-100,000, and an adequate source of funding is the primary problem which the Floyd County Board of Education must face.

"There may be some federal funds available for this type of thing," Superintendent Pete Grigsby pointed out, "but I think we should talk to the governor first."

Mrs. Clifton suggested that Governor Carroll might consider the project at the high school as a pilot project or model which other schools in the state could follow. Nearly all buildings constructed between 1954 and 1958 utilized asbestos, it was said.

Crider requested that Natale submit written recommendations to the board to help the board with the future advertisement for contractor's bids on asbestos removal. It was also suggested that a statement on the severity of the problem at the school by Natale might help in securing state or federal aid.

Until actual removal work is begun, Natale suggested three steps which the board could take to minimize the danger of student and faculty exposure to asbestos:

- 1. Prevention of student damage and vandalism to the ceilings; 2. Installation of at least two filtering devices with appropriate filters to reduce fiber concentrations; 3. Damp mopping instead of sweeping in the school.

Natale stressed that these steps would only help out in reducing air-borne fibers and should not be considered as permanent solutions.

Supt. Grigsby said architect's recommendations would be reviewed at the board's December meeting.

Also present at the meeting, which was held at the high school, was Ray Brackett, assistant superintendent of schools, Tom Dowler, of the state Department of Education's Division of Buildings and Grounds, Joyce Everly, of the Parents for Better Schools, and high school Principal William Hughes.

Dewey Lake Fish Population Surprises State Biologist

Dewey Lake is a puzzler. Its waters are strongly acid. It is muddy, much of the year. Heavy siltation from upstream mining operations threaten its life. Coonweed threatens to choke it, particularly in its shallows.

And yet a population study headed for four days, Oct. 31 to Nov. 3, by Kerry Prather, Eastern Fisheries District biologist, showed that the game fish population there is much better than expected and that the balance between game and rough fish is good.

"I was surprised," Prather told The Times last week.

During the study both electro-shock and gill nets were used. Neither method, it was explained, kills the fish that are caught. Prather said the study was made in water about 10 feet deep, mainly from the shoreline and not in the deeper stream channel.

"In an hour's time electroshocking we measured, weighed, then released one 4½-pound bass and several 2 and 3-pounders," he said.

The study extended from the Jenny Wiley boat dock to the German bridge area. Prather said a large number of four- and five-pound bass was found. After one hour of electro-shocking, the biologists turned their attention to musky but recovered "several limits" of keeper-size bass, 12 inches or over.

Only one musky was trapped in a gill net, but Prather explained that they are a "very evasive fish," difficult to net or to reach by electro-shock.

Several musky measuring 16 to 15 inches have been caught this year at the lake—and kept by fishermen, although the legal limit is 30 inches, Prather said. A 29½-inch was reported caught about 10 days ago.

(Mr. Prather discusses the Dewey Lake musky in a separate story, elsewhere in this week's edition of The Times.)

The population study uncovered four "really large crappie and other evidence of a good crappie population. White bass were found in a study made earlier in the season but not during the most recent survey. Prather said the absence of this species in the latest study may be attributed to the fact that the netting and shocking of fish did not extend into the middle areas of the lake.

Last spring's spawn of both bass and crappie was good, the biologist said.

Improving health services and controlling costs are, in fact, what the East Kentucky Health Services Center is all about. Before the clinic opened its doors to patients in January 1973, Knott county (pop. 16,000) was ranked as one of the nation's most "critical" counties in terms of health care services and providers. The nearest medical facility was 32 miles distant, and the county's two physicians were swamped with patients seeking basic or "acute" health care.

Moreover, Knott ranked as Kentucky's poorest county with half its households living on annual incomes below the federal poverty level of $3,000. The steep, mountainous terrain affords residents little opportunity for agriculture, and coal is the area's only source of income. Clearly, no matter how much it was needed, if a modern clinic were to survive here, it would have to provide care at a reasonable cost.

Obviously, the money Stumbo and Bailey would need to get started would have to come from outside sources. Fortunately, both were experienced in obtaining funding for grassroots projects. While studying for his M.D. at the University of Kentucky, Stumbo had directed the Student American Medical Association's Appalachian Program, for which he recruited medical students to serve health care apprenticeships with him in eastern Kentucky. Bailey—while a Ph.D. candidate at Ohio University—had organized ALCOR, a community outreach program to mobilize an army of student volunteers working to improve the health, education, and community development activities of the hill people.

Despite those achievements, they raised more than a few pairs of eyebrows and encountered considerable skepticism in their bid for financial support. "Grady and I talk like hill folks," Bailey explained in a recent interview. "When you talk like us do, the first thing most people think of is the image of the typical hillbilly, the uneducated fella like they show on TV. You know, shows like Green Acres, Beverly Hillbillies and Hee Haw." "Most people figured we didn't know the first thing about health care," Stumbo added. "And it's even harder for folks to listen seriously to two fellows in their 20s talkin' about startin' a million-dollar project in a little armpit of the mountains nobody's ever heard of. Sure, we were chasing a dream, but we figured we had the track record and the credentials to back it up."

The two mountain boys were so eager to get their project off the ground that they overextended themselves financially. They took on debts they couldn't possibly handle, at least not without dodging creditors. "We got turned down on a loan for a down payment on the building," Bailey admits, "and a $19,000 check bounced. Eventually we took the phone off the hook until we could come up with the money."

Their dream clinic got an eleventh hour reprieve in 1972 when they received their first sizeable grant—$100,000 from the Fannie E. Ripple Foundation to purchase a building for the clinic. More grants followed—from the Kresge Foundation and the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation—and the East Kentucky Health Services Center, Inc., was born.

In the first month, 250 patients were seen. Today, the daily patient load averages 100, and the clinic has grown to include both mobile and satellite clinics and a staff of three doctors and a score of nurses, technicians and physical therapists. In addition to a complete range of modern medical services, the East Kentucky clinic offers care and treatment programs in physical therapy and cardiac rehabilitation and for chronic lung ailments such as the miners' black lung disease.

But Dr. Stumbo's prescription for community health care is much broader than merely treating the ill, the injured, or the infirm. He requires every patient to participate—at no extra cost—in a long-term program of preventive medicine.

"Sure, we take care of them when they bleed, when they hurt, and when they cough," says Stumbo, a slim, six-footer who wears dungarees and sport shirts on the job instead of the M.D.'s traditional white lab coat. "But we want to teach them the fundamentals of health care and patient self-help so they'll be better able to stay healthy in the future."

Both young men see primary care centers—handling patients' basic health care treatment and prevention needs—as the wave of the future in medicine.

"The patient's need has always been for primary care," Dr. Stumbo explains, "but as medicine became more scientific and specialized, the need for primary care was neglected. It's more interesting to look at a flashing cardiac monitor than an ingrown toenail."

The Bailey-Stumbo experiment in rural health care has broken new ground in other areas of the medical profession. In an effort to control costs passed on to their patients—half of whom are without medical insurance of any kind and pay on a sliding scale based on what they can afford—Bailey set up a system whereby the entire medical staff shares custodial, cleanup, and grounds work.

"We never did have a janitor," he says proudly. "We divide the sweeping and the mopping and the cleaning among the staff. We don't have any snow removal equipment, either. Just two little ladies who sprinkle salt. I guess you could say our health service management philosophy is people-oriented—once you have good people, well, everything else comes easier."

But Bailey, who has a Ph.D. from Ohio University and is responsible for managing the clinic's operations and finances, believes in modern—as well as non-traditional—management techniques. He sought the advice of experts at the Medical Economics Department at Stanford University, who analyzed the clinic's operations and helped design its in-house computer management and billing system.

Several times Stumbo and Bailey could have produced more income for their largely break-even operation by increasing staff patient loads, cutting back the no-charge preventive care program, and raising patient fees within affordable limits. For that matter, they could have established a profit-oriented clinic and become wealthy men. Instead, they chose to offer the most comprehensive and cheapest care possible, passing on whatever savings they could achieve to their patients. Why?

"The way I see it," Dr. Stumbo says, "we never could've got this far if our own people didn't believe in us and give us a chance. All that was ever asked of us was for us to return home."

"My people have honored me in every way. I don't ask for more. I don't need to impress anybody. When Benny and I go to sleep at night, we're satisfied. We know we've done the best we could for our people."

Stumbo and Bailey were selected, with five others, by a committee of 17 business, education and government leaders from a list of more than 125 nominees for the awards. Others named are the Rev. Jesse Jackson, national civil rights leader; Margaret C. Snyder, regional advisor to the United Nations Economic Committee for Africa; Stanley Sporkin, director of the Securities and Exchange Commission's division of enforcement; and Charles W. Work, attorney, and William A. Hamilton, President of the Institute for Law and Social Research.

walked calmly to his car and drove away.

Two Hueysville neighbors saw the man enter Mrs. Marshall's home but thought he had called to pay rent on a building which she owns on Stephens Branch. They said his car was a tan Plymouth, perhaps a 1969 model, bearing West Virginia license plates. They said the robber was a man of medium height, and slightly above average weight.

The money taken was mostly from her old-age pension.

Mrs. Marshall was robbed, some time ago, when she was residing on Stephens Branch, of approximately the same amount by a man who posed as a roof-painter. The widow of Albert Marshall, she lives alone at Hueysville.

Although Size a Problem, Betsy Layne Looks to Promising Season

By KENNY RICE

With their emergence as the "Cinderella" team in last season's 15th Regional Tournament, Betsy Layne's Bobcats are naturally considered a contender for the title this year with twelve lettermen back from that 13-13 club that lost to Belfry, 56-54 in the first round of the regional tourney.

Coach William Newsome, Jr., points out that the 58th District runners-up a season ago still lacks overall height and needs to compensate with consistent and controlled play to be a regional threat.

"Overall, our key is to have a more consistent effort than last season. We have a plus with the experience the boys got last year in the tournaments but they are still a young team when you look at their age. Steve Jones is the only eighteen-year-old on the team, the rest are seventeen and under."

Betsy Layne lost only one letterman from last season with the graduation of starting point guard James Hall, but the Bobcats have an abundance of talented guards back from varsity and up from the junior varsity.

Daryl Newsome (5-11 jr.) averaged 10 points per game last season and came on strong near the end of the year to earn a starting position. Newsome has a badly sprained ankle he sustained in practice and may miss the opener against Fed's Creek this weekend. That is a bad start for the Bobcats because Coach Newsome says "Daryl was looking very impressive in practice before the injury." Ronnie Akers (6-2 jr.) is a guard-forward and a returning starter who was also the "sixth man" as a freshman. Akers led the club in scoring last season with a 24 p.p.g. average. Gary Kidd (6-ft. jr.) is a fine outside shooter and was one of the leading jayvee players last season. Kidd can play the point or a wing spot on the Bobcat attack. According to Coach Newsome, "There has been a pleasant surprise in the progress of Wayne Morris (5-10 soph.); according to Newsome, and he could see plenty of playing time this year with his "exceptional quickness" plus the fact Morris is a good shooter from outside. Another good jayvee player, Robbie Roberts (5-10 jr.), gives Betsy Layne more depth and talent in the backcourt. Two freshmen, Dwayne Lykens (5-11, averaging 14 p.p.g. on the freshman team) and James Hall (5-8 freshman team starter) could see some varsity action this season.

"We have a lot of guards," Newsome laughed, "with the team's size, just about everyone is a guard."

Two starters return at forwards, however, with the talent at Betsy Layne. One starter a season past, Steve Jones (6-ft. sr.) who averaged 13 p.p.g. is the number three forward at this stage. Ricky Ferrell (6-3 sr.) is secure at one corner spot. Ferrell, a starter last year and key reserve the year before, was the number two scorer last season with a 20 p.p.g. Paul Layne (6-2 jr.) has come on strong in the pre-season and the leading jayvee scorer a season ago who also started a few varsity games, is the number two forward right now. Joey Reynolds (6-ft. jr.) could "play quite a bit at one wing position" and two football players who have only been practicing for a week, Hagan Bush (6-ft. jr.) and Greg Tackett (6-ft. sr.) give strength to the front line.

"Bush and Tackett are strong. Bush is real aggressive and Tackett should give us strength on the rebounding. If his offensive production picks up that will be a big bonus. We also have two guards, Akers and Kidd, who can play at forward."

Mike Williams (6-1 sr.) averaged 8 p.p.g. last season and returns as starting center. Keith Akers (6-2½ jr.) is expected to challenge Williams for the starting position and Ferrell and Tackett can be used in the pivot.

"Williams is an aggressive player and the leading candidate for the starting center position right now but Akers has played well in practice and I'll probably alternate those two in the pivot. I hope we can get more offensive punch from Williams this year," said Newsome "We have a size problem on the front line and we will have to work hard on the boards. A small man jumping against a big man takes its toll in the course of the game. We have to control the inside game."

Betsy Layne's most potent weapon appears to be the fine shooting game.

"We have a good offense with a lot of fine shooters from outside. Our offense will have to control the tempo for us. This is another key for us, to stay in control of the game to be effective."

The Bobcats are ready for another trip to the 15th Regional Tournament. They realize they cannot surprise anyone this season because they are regarded as one of "the teams to beat" for the regional title this year. Betsy Layne appears ready for the role as a favorite.

Coach Newsome feels another important factor for his team is to get off to a good start.

"If we could win a couple early we could be ok," he commented.

Betsy Layne's Schedule: Nov. 18, Feds Creek, H; 29-2, Preseason: Dec. 9, Wheelwright, H; 12, Johnson Cent., A; 21-23, Pikeville Inv.; Jan. 5, Allen Cent., H; 6, McDowell, A; 9, Prestonsburg, H; 12, Wheelwright, A; 13, Pikeville, H; 16, Sheldon Clark, H; 18-20, Mullins Inv.; 26, Allen Central, A; 27, Shawnee, H; 30, Prestonsburg A; Feb. 2 McDowell, H; 3, Knott Central, A; 6, Mullins, A; 9, Millard, H; 10, Virgie, H; 13, Paintsville, A; 17, Belfry, H; 23, Mullins, H.

Alice Lloyd Cagers Face Tough Schedule

By GREG JOHNSON

Men's basketball at Alice Lloyd College begins its season with a gruelling four games in seven days.

The season opener is Saturday (Nov. 18) with the Cumberland College junior varsity in Williamsburg. The following day, at 2:30 p.m., the Eagles open at home against Shawnee State.

Ohio Valley College will play Alice Lloyd at home at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday (November 21). The Eagles will play their first conference game at home against Southeast Christian College at 2:30 p.m. Saturday (November 25).

Coach Dan Wilson says the Eagles are slated to place fourth in the Kentucky Junior College Athletic Association. Last year's team finished in eighth place with a won-lost record of 10 and 17, and a conference record of 4 wins and 10 losses.

"I'm very pleased with the way the team has progressed during pre-season practice," said Wilson. "We have great strength, with four returning sophomores and nine new high school standouts."

ACHS Girls Optimistic But Not Overconfident

By KENNY RICE

"What a difference a year makes. Last season we were expected to lose because we had a young team. This year with everyone returning, we are supposed to win. But, that's to be expected in basketball," Allen Central Coach Judy Eversole said with a grin.

Last season, her first at Central, the Rebelettes had a record of 13-15. More importantly, they finished the season strong to advance into the 15th Regional Tournament as 58th District runners-up. That marked AC's first trip to the regional since 1975.

This year, Central has seven players back from last year, including the starting five. It is only natural that the Rebelettes are considered a district and regional contender. Judy Eversole does not get upset over being thought of so highly. She feels her team is good and above all, the Rebelettes are not overconfident.

"There are some areas we need to work on, that's one reason we are approaching the season with optimism and not an arrogant attitude," she added. "The county teams are going to be strong again this season as well as three or four teams in the region, so we are not the only team with a shot at the regional title."

Central has three returnees at guard in Toby Spradlin (5-4 sr.), Trena Hensley (5-4 soph.) and Kristi Frye (5-4 soph.). Each started at one time for the Rebelettes last year and each are being counted on to play a lot of ball this season. Freshmen Kim Wiley (5-5) and Kathy Layne (5-5) have looked impressive in pre-season practices and could provide relief at the guard spots. Another freshman who could see action in the Rebelette back court is Lisa Hutchinson (5-5) who is another of the talented freshmen on the Central team.

"I think we are strong at guards. Toby, Trena and Kristi have worked hard and are much improved over last year. Toby has played on the varsity for two years coming into this season and Trena and Kristi got a lot of experience last year because they either started or played in most of the varsity games as freshmen," Judy commented. "We also have some freshmen who will help us."

At forwards, Central also returns three fine players. Tammy Francis (5-7 sr.) has started for three years entering her senior season. Carol Shepherd (5-9 sr.) is another returning starter who gives the Rebelettes added strength on the front line by being able to play center. Tammy Martin (5-7 jr.) has been a starter and key reserve in her first two years at Central. Behind the trio, are four freshmen, Sherri Hale (5-7), Romona Hall (5-5), Angie Terry (5-6) and Lolita Baldrige (5-4), who are being counted on to see junior varsity action primarily, but give Central varsity depth on the front line.

"At forwards, we should be real strong," Coach Eversole said. "Tammy Martin is playing very well at this stage. Tammy Francis and Carol Shepherd have improved and they continue to work hard in practice. We have three very good forwards."

Becky Collins (5-9 jr.) is a returning starter at the center position. Becky was a starter and key reserve as a freshman and gives Central its fourth front liner with varsity experience. Freshmen Stephanie Green (5-9) is the third Central front liner to be over 5'8" and she is expected to provide back-up strength at center.

"We have two good centers in Becky and Carol, who can move into the pivot from forward. Stephanie gives us depth but without varsity playing time."

Judy has also bolstered Central's schedule this season with Woodford county, Ashland, and Hazard added to the list that includes Knott County Central, Johnson Central, Sheldon Clark and Paintsville as well as the 58th District teams.

"Our schedule is tough. I know every coach likes to think they are playing a tough schedule, but I really feel like this is the best one Central has had. We play at Woodford county and at Ashland, Knott County Central and Hazard are fine teams from the 14th Region. Our home opener is with Sheldon Clark and they are always good. The county teams are always competitive and we play most of the regional contenders," she commented.

In her second year, Judy Eversole has added to the foundation of the Allen Central program she started rebuilding last year. Most coaches regard Central as one of the teams to beat this year and possibly for seasons to come. In case you have not counted, Central has eight freshmen this season, two sophomores and two juniors. In years to come, Judy will probably be telling those teams what she has this unit. "Be optimistic, but not overconfident."

Allen Central's Schedule: Nov. 17, McDowell, H; 20, John's Creek, A; 22, Millard, H; 29-Dec. 2, Preseason; Dec. 7-9, Tom Wiley Tourney; 11, Ashland, A; 15, Woodford Co., A; 19, Johnson Central, A; Jan. 2, Wheelwright, H; 5, Betsy Layne, A; 8, Hazard, H; 12, Prestonsburg, H; 18, Knott Central, H; 26, Betsy Layne, H; 27, Wheelwright, A; 30, McDowell, A; Feb. 1, Lawrence Co., A; 3, Prestonsburg, A; 5, Paintsville, A; 12, Johns Creek, H; 14, Knott Cent., H; 17, Sheldon Clark, A; 19, Paintsville, H; 22, Johnson Cent., H.

Floyd Net Season Under Way

C. "OLLIE" ROBINSON

Floyd county basketball got under way last week with McDowell and Allen Central winning.

Prestonsburg opened its season last night (Tuesday) against Millard. Wheelwright will open this Saturday night against Magoffin County at home, and the Betsy Layne Bobcats will open at home Saturday night against Feds Creek.

The McDowell Daredevils opened their season at home and lost to Magoffin, 86 to 80. The Daredevils traveled to Dorton Nov. 4 and lost, 81 to 56, but traveled to Wolfe County the following Tuesday and won in overtime by a score of 73 to 68.

Last Friday night, the Sheldon Clark Cardinals came to McDowell and won by a score 80 to 76 although Brian Turner ripped the nets for 42 points for McDowell to bring his average to 35 points. The Allen Central Rebels opened November 7 with an 85-61 win over visiting Breckinridge. Phil Slone scored 20 points while teammate Mark Martin racked up 19. Allen Central won over Dorton, 76 to 64, and again it was Slone and Martin with 24 and 23 points, respectively.

The Prestonsburg Lady Cats won their fifth game in a row Monday night when they traveled to Knott Caounty and won, 62 to 50. Dee Dee Music pumped in 34 points, and Sherri Allen added 14.

The Wheelwright Trojanettes won their first game Monday night at Cordia, 71 to 45. Moscript had 16, Grigsby 15, Reid 14, and Curry and Little connected for 12 each. Last Thursday night, the Trojanettes lost, 65 to 64, to Dorton.

The Betsy Layne Lady Cats ran their records to three and two, losing to Virgie in overtime, 65 to 64, and winning over Elkhorn City, 72 to 36. All-State candidate Pam Clark Scored 16 and 35 points in the two games.

Five-Foot Drawdown Of Lake Under Way

The annual fall drawdown of Dewey Lake began Monday in preparation for the flood season.

A U.S. Corps of Engineers representative in the Huntington district office said the lake will be lowered five feet at a rate of about .3 foot per day. Water will be discharged at approximately 150 cubic feet per second. It is expected that the drawdown will be completed by December 1.

P'burg Firemen Bury 'Sparky' Warning Notice Posted at PHS

By DUANE ROSENLEB JR.
Herald-Dispatch Staff-Writer
(Editor's note: When we learned of the death of Sparky, the Prestonsburg Fire Department's mascot, we planned a story about him. But Duane Rosenlieb, Jr. had already done the job, beautifully, in The Huntington (W. Va.) Herald-Dispatch. So we reprint his story here.)

It was a sunny Indian Summer day, the kind Sparky loved to while away by lounging in front of the Prestonsburg Fire Station.

Sparky was the fire department's Dalmatian. He loved fire trucks and, fittingly, his final resting place is near one.

This is Sparky's story.

Two months ago, he barged into the lives of Prestonsburg firemen, a gift from the Paintsville Fire Department. Those who knew him before said he was a troublemaker, a growling, snapping, hell-raiser of a dog.

But Sparky changed all that. He became a town favorite, and in the words of Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn, "He would just be petted to death."

"He was a real fire dog," Blackburn said yesterday, the emotion welling in his throat. "We loved him and he loved us."

And so they remember Sparky in Prestonsburg. They remember how he was always the first one in the fire truck, tongue flopping, tail wagging, his large, well-muscled body straining to get into the engine's cab and sound the air horn.

"He was really something," said Ricky Davis, one of the firemen who knew him best. "If one of the boys opened the fire engine's door for any reason, he'd break his neck to get inside."

Sparky loved to sound the fire engines' horns. He would jump into the cab, place both lanky legs on the dashboard and, with one paw, flick the switch that would set off the klaxon.

The 20-month-old dog, barely more than a pup, was a budding star in Prestonsburg. He rode in the front truck in the town's Red, White and Blue Day parade. He made a big splash at the Firemen's Rodeo, loping around the Prestonsburg Community College campus and endearing himself to the hearts of Floyd County firemen.

"A lot of people in town miss him," Davis said. "They were used to seeing him because every time a fire truck was around town, he'd always be in it."

Sparky also was a pet to area school children.

"We would invite different schools into the station and he loved to be petted by the kids," Chief Blackburn said. "He'd stand right in the middle of them and he would just be petted to death."

And Sparky was a true fire dog. He went on a dozen fire runs, sometimes seeming to forget that he wasn't actually supposed to help fight the fire. Blackburn recalled one such incident.

On a mutual assistance call in a rural area between Prestonsburg and Allen, Ky., Davis charged into a flame-choked residence, Sparky followed close behind.

"We darn near knocked over a couple of Allen firemen to pull him out of the house," Blackburn recounted.

The friendship forged between Davis and Sparky was one that went beyond their two months of play and work around the firehouse. It was the man-dog friendship that has been forged through the ages.

Yet it wasn't all parades and play for Sparky.

"He kind of had bad luck from the first," Davis said.

Sparky was hit by a car, but recovered. He jumped from a moving fire engine, but recovered. In all, the Prestonsburg Fire Department spent about $140 for Sparky's medical bills.

But as suddenly as Sparky entered the lives of Prestonsburg firemen, he was gone.

He accidentally drank antifreeze that was being drained from one of the fire engines. This time, help was too late.

On a sunny Indian Summer day, the kind Sparky loved to while away, he was again resting near a fire engine. They buried Sparky in front of old Engine No. 1, a 1941 pumper that stands as a monument in Prestonsburg's Archer Park.

"I was the first person to help him get into a truck and the last person to load him off one," a tearful Davis said yesterday.

"I wrapped him up in the blanket he laid on just about the time he was at the station and buried him in the park," he said.

"I kinda thought it would be the best place to put him. He was a real fire dog,"

Firemen, Miners Have Highest Job Deaths

The International Association of Fire Fighters says professional firefighters have the highest rate of on-the-job deaths in the nation.

The association said figures provided by governmental units employing professional firefighters showed an on-the-job death rate of 79 firefighters per 100,000, an increase of 11 percent over the 1976 figures. It said this compares with a rate of 63 per 100,000 for mining and quarrying, the second-highest rate, and 36 per 100,000 for police, the third highest.

Medicines - whether they're prescribed for you or you buy them yourself in the drug store - get mixed together in your body, and sometimes the results are not in your best interest.

For instance, some drugs, alcohol and certain food can prevent other medications from working. Thus, the condition for which your doctor prescribed the medication may be going untreated. In some cases, they may team up to produce unexpected and undesirable effects.

One way to avoid trouble is to list all the medications you are taking, dividing them into those taken regularly and those taken occasionally. Make sure that every doctor you visit gets a copy. And make sure that you aren't taking anything that's not on the list...including alcohol.

Remember to check with your doctor or pharmacist for information regarding the medications you're taking. They're the experts. Keeping secrets from them can cause you trouble.

NOTIFICATION OF A PUBLIC HEARING CONCERNING THE CONSTRUCTION OF A COAL LOADOUT FACILITY TO BE LOCATED ON U.S. 114 IN WEST PRESTONSBURG, KENTUCKY

C. J. McNally and Company, Incorporated has applied to the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection for a permit to construct a coal loadout facility to be located on Old U.S. 114 in West Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

The application proposes the construction of facilities for receiving coal by truck; facilities for crushing, screening, and conveying coal and facilities for loading unit train coal cars. Since the proposed construction would be subject to the provisions of the Clean Air Act for Prevention of Significant Deterioration of Air Quality, and to the Standards of Performance for New Stationary Sources, air pollution controls would also be required to be constructed if a permit to construct were granted.

The application proposes the use of enclosures and a wet suppression system using high pressure water fogging nozzles. The control system proposed is to be the Best Available Control Technology. Therefore, the Department has concluded that the proposed construction will comply with all applicable requirements and a preliminary determination has been made to grant the permit to construct. Public notification of this preliminary determination was made by advertisement on September 27, 1978, and copies of the report of this determination were made available since September 27, 1978 for public inspection during normal business hours at the following locations:

Division of Air Pollution Control Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection West Frankfort Office Complex U.S. 127 South Frankfort, Kentucky 40601

or Division of Air Pollution Control Appalachian Regional Office 825 High Street, 3rd Floor Hazard, Kentucky 41701

At the request of affected citizens, a public hearing concerning this application for a permit has been scheduled for 7:00 P.M. on December 18, 1978 at the Floyd County Courthouse in Prestonsburg, Kentucky. The purpose of this hearing will be to receive comments from members of the general public who may consider themselves affected by any air quality impact that might result from the construction of this proposed facility. Any comments received will be considered in the Department's Final Determination to grant or deny the permit.

RARE BREED EXPENSIVE Chinese Shar-Pei dogs are considered the world's rarest breed. They have been raised in the United States for only about 10 years. A pup may cost as much as $1,500.

The economic impact of alcohol abuse and smoking is impressive. According to the November Reader's Digest, alcohol abuse cost $20.6 billion in lost production in 1976 alone. Smoking was not far behind-$19.1 billion for the same year.

You: In The Shape You Should Be?

If you're a high school student who can do 60 push-ups, 30 pull-ups and 100 sit-ups, and can jump and run with agility, you may be able to win a place in the next Youth Physical Fitness Program Championships.

This year, more than 200,000 young men and women representing over 1,200 high schools nationwide competed in six regional meets. The winners will now enter final competition for the main prize: a $2,000 scholarship offered by the Post Cereals Division of General Foods Corporation. Other scholarships total $2,500, and $500 goes to the high scoring team from each of the six Marine Corps Districts in the meet, the money to be used by the schools to purchase physical fitness equipment for non-varsity programs.

At the regional meets, Marine personnel supervised and coordinated the competition which determined those 18 teams of 108 athletes who will compete in Washington. Twelve states across the country, including Hawaii, will be represented in the national championship. The competition was designed by the Marine Corps and the events are basically the same as those employed by the Corps to measure the physical fitness of Marines undergoing recruit training. In each district, teams are picked according to the same standards.

The national competitors are going to enjoy an all-expense paid three days in the nation's capital, including a tour of the city and a Marine Corps parade.

To win, they have excelled in a number of activities. One is sit-ups: lie on your back with feet flat, legs bent and fingers interlocked behind the head. Then, sit up until your forehead is directly above or in front of your knees. Sit-ups are scored on the number that can be done in two minutes.

Push-ups are scored by the number of times you can lower your body—which is held in a straight line from shoulders to feet with no part of it touching the floor—until your chest touches the hand of a counter on the floor.

Broad jumps are scored by distance, and the best of three is counted. Pull-ups consist of hanging from a 1 1/2 inch bar and pulling the body up straight until the chin is over the bar. The more you do, the greater the score.

Score in the 300 yard shuttle run—a complete dash around two pylons 60 feet apart, five times in a row—is computed in relation to total elapsed time.

The exercises are done in exact sequence with only three minutes rest between each.

Schools wanting more information can get it from Marine recruiters or from Headquarters, Marine Corps, Code MRR, Washington, D.C. 20380.

A GLAMOROUS GIFT FROM KENTUCKY

by Lynn Evans

Though born in 1859 in California, Mary Anderson, one of the most renowned actresses of the latter part of the 1800s considered Louisville, Ky., her home. After her father died, her mother married Dr. Hamilton Griffin of Louisville.

Mary received her early education at Ursuline and Presentation Academies in Louisville. When she was 14 years old, Mary persuaded her mother to let her leave school and pursue music and acting.

Two years later, Mary asked Barney Macauley of the Macauley Theater to give her a chance to play Juliet in Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet," which was being given as a benefit performance. After one rehearsal in borrowed gowns, Mary made her first appearance on the stage. Many critics thought it was remarkable that Mary did her job so expertly, for she was a poor student in school and had very little training for the theater. She was, however, tall, stately, beautiful and extremely confident of her abilities.

The drama critic of the Louisville Courier-Journal gave this account of her first performance:

She attempted a very difficult and no less remarkable task last evening in coming before the public for the first time in her life in the character of Juliet. But when we come to consider all the bearings that surround a first appearance, the manner in which she acquitted herself must have been very gratifying to her friends and very encouraging to her hopes... Miss Anderson demonstrated her possession of most decided talents, which, if cultivated, will fit her to shine in the highest ranks of her profession, and her performance last night shows her possessed of nerve and energy.

In January of 1876, under Barney Macauley's direction, she began making regular appearances on the stage. From Louisville she went on to new roles and new cities—Washington, D.C., San Francisco and New Orleans. Within two years of her debut in Louisville, she was playing at the Fifth Avenue Theater in New York City for a ten-week run.

From 1883 until 1887 she appeared in England, first in London and then at Stratford-on-Avon. She was as glamorized and beloved as Sarah Bernhardt. Each performance seemed to win her more admirers and more critical acclaim.

Returning to Washington, she appeared in "The Winter's Tale" during the inauguration week of President Benjamin Harrison. At the end of the performance Mary collapsed on stage, the reason kept from the public. She then retired, returned to England, married Antonio de Navarro and had two children. The Courier-Journal said,

"By this retirement when she was still a young woman—she was only 30—Mary Anderson left a place in the theatrical world which, in the opinion of many, never has been filled because no great actress since her time has so completely won the admiration of audiences on both sides of the Atlantic as she did with her combination of beauty and genius. Her retirement at the peak of her career was caused indirectly by a severe illness in March, 1889."

Many inducements were offered to her to return to the stage, which she did briefly at the age of 58 to help raise money for the World War I effort.

Mary lived quietly until her death at the age of 80. Before she died she wrote a book, "A Few Memoirs," and coauthored the dramatization of Robert S. Hichens' novel "The Garden of Allah."

Backed by fiscal court funding Knott County winning war on Japanese beetle

There's a war going on in Knott County—a war against Japanese beetles.

About eight years ago, brown patches appeared in lawns around Hindman and other Knott County areas. Then people noticed leaves on garden plants, flowers and trees taking on a lacy-like appearance.

It all brought the people on the run to the Knott County Extension agent for agriculture, William Francis.

True to the functions of the Cooperative Extension Service, Francis delved into the situation and discovered the source of the problem as the Japanese beetle.

The larvae, or grub stage, of the beetle was doing the damage to the turf and lawns, as they fed on the tender roots of the grasses, while the adult beetles were attacking the leaves of the plants, eating the tender tissues of the leaf and leaving the leaves skeletonized.

"It became a real critical problem with almost everyone in the county reporting damage to their lawns, home gardens, fruit trees and flowers," Francis said.

"After we found out what the problem was, we had to find a way to combat it," he said. "Milky spore" was recommended as one of the best weapons for control, the "spore" being a bacteria that attacks the beetle in the larval stage, causing blood poisoning in the insect and turning its normally clear "blood" to a milky color—hence the name "milky spore."

Finding the cause of the problem and the solution was only the beginning of the "war." Funds were needed to obtain the material and to provide methods of application to disrupt the invasion.

Francis presented the situation to the Knott County Fiscal Court and sought financial aid from the court to launch the milky spore attack on the beetles. "At the time we didn't know what the costs would be, but the court volunteered the money," the Extension agent said. And the "war" was on.

Now, thanks to the financial support of the county's fiscal court and the cooperation of virtually all Knott Countians, the battle is being won.

"The people realized the situation and after the fiscal court took action on financing the program, it was easy to recruit volunteers to be the 'distributors' of the milky spore," Francis said. "I went to each community and got volunteers to distribute the stuff and to keep the special 'cans' that we're using to apply the spore."

He explained that the milky spore "works when the insect is in the grub or larval stage in the soil." The larva likes to feed on the sweet roots of grasses, which kills the grass and causes the brown spots in the lawns.

"Those brown spots in the lawn is one of the best ways of detecting the Japanese beetle," the county Extension agent noted.

"Milky spore can be applied in several ways, but we're using a 'kill cane' that works on the principle of an old-fashioned hand corn planter," Francis explained.

"The hollow tube of the cane is filled with the milky spore and when the tip of the cane is placed against the ground, it dispenses the correct amount of the spore, or bacteria, into the soil. Earthworms and other insects in the soil help work it down deeper—and rainfall helps carry it down, too."

Whenever the Japanese beetle grub comes in contact with the spore, it poisons the grub's blood and kills it.

Wes Gregory, Extension entomologist with UK's College of Agriculture, who has been working closely with Francis in the Knott County "war," noted the infestation of the Japanese beetle is limited primarily to the eastern and northern sections of Kentucky, north of the Bluegrass. Infestations are spotty in other areas of the state, "but, where it does exist, it's heavy."

The beetle was first found in the United States in the northeast about 1917, Gregory said. It migrated into a number of states, including Kentucky. "We've had it for some time," the entomologist said.

He said it had a one generation life cycle, first in the immature stage as a larva or grub, being in the soil for from eight to nine months. It's in the soil for another two or three months as an adult before it emerges.

Gregory said the beetle is damaging in both stages, doing "a tremendous amount of turf damage" in the larva or grub stage. He said the adults feed on the leaves of over 400 different species of plants.

The milky spore treatment was seen by Gregory as being "the best way to go in the long haul. I think it is the way we will ultimately control the insect... because it doesn't allow the larva to attain adulthood."

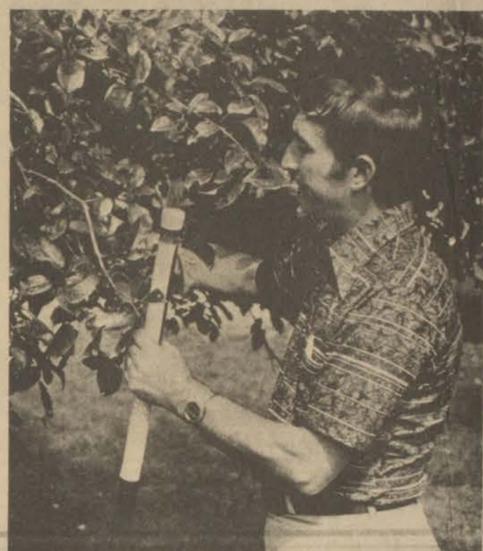

He termed the use of milky spore as a "self-replicating control" in that once it is placed in the soil, "it lasts for years." He pointed out the spore doesn't attack the adults, but in killing off the larvae results in smaller populations of adults.

Gregory said the Knott County "war" on Japanese beetles "is an excellent example of what can be done when people cooperate" and saw the support of the Knott County Fiscal Court as "the foundation of the point of success already reached in the program."

"I think this could serve as a model for other eastern and northern Kentucky counties to help stem the tide on the Japanese beetle," he added. The bulk of the success of the program, he said, was the result of the efforts of Francis, the Knott County Extension agent for agriculture, in finding the solution to the problem, generating the funding and finally coordinating the control program.

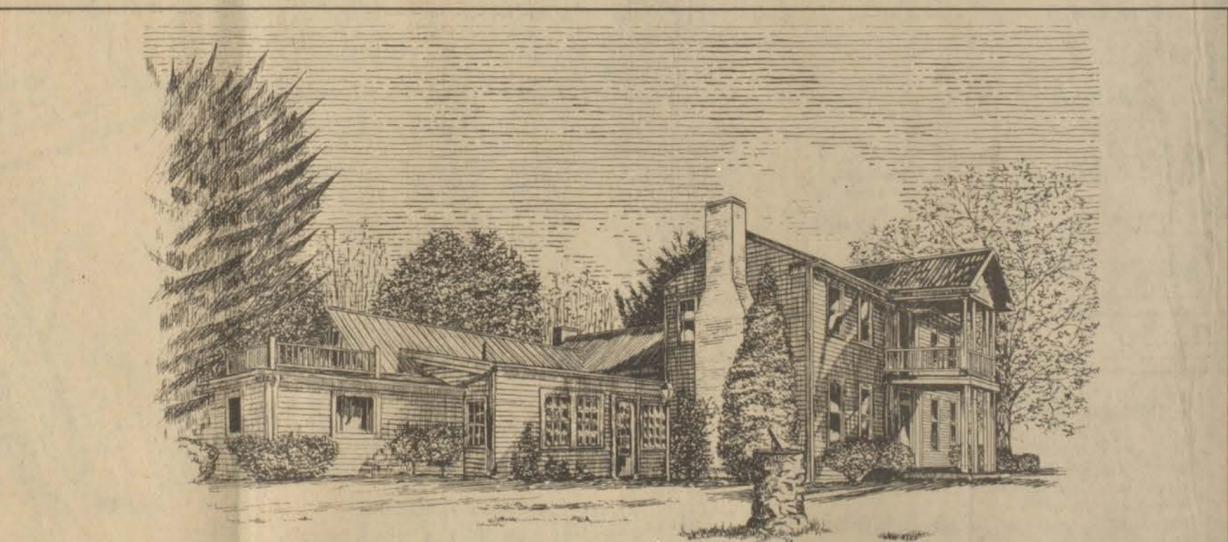

LEAF DAMAGE—The adult Japanese beetle attacks leaves of more than 400 species of plants, leaving only the skeletonized leaf on the plant. The "milky spore" does not affect the adult beetle, but the control of the adult population is in the kill of the larvae.

JUST LIKE A "WALKING STICK"—William Francis, Knott County Extension agent for agriculture, demonstrates the simplicity of using a "kill cane" to apply "milky spore" used in Knott County's "war" on Japanese beetles. The spore is injected into the soil in turf grass and kills Japanese beetle larvae as they come in contact with the substance in the soil.

The Garfield Place
Floyd County

Located on Second Avenue in Prestonsburg is the house used as Col. James A. Garfield's Civil War headquarters during his Big Sandy campaign in 1862.

It is a rambling two-story frame structure with brick chimneys and a two-story veranda across the front. The house faces the river and is situated about 300 yards south of where the soldiers camped.

The young and inexperienced Colonel Garfield was placed in command of the Union Army's 17th Brigade, which was ordered into Kentucky to destroy or at least stop the renowned and experienced Gen. Humphrey Marshall. General Marshall was moving an array of Confederate artillery, cavalry, and some 5,000 infantrymen toward Lexington to join Gen. Felix K. Zollicoffer, who was advancing on Lexington through Cumberland Gap and Mill Springs.

In a month, Garfield succeeded in driving the Confederate forces from Eastern Kentucky. He established headquarters in the home of John M. Burns, who fled downriver in fear for his life. Floyd Countians tended to sympathize with the South; however, public opinion was not unanimous. Burns supported the Union, while his close friend and law partner, John Elliott, was a Democrat and an outspoken sympathizer with the South.

Burns was ex-county attorney of Letcher County. Both men enjoyed a lucrative practice and rose in political favor. Burns served in Kentucky politics; Elliott was elected to two terms of the U.S. Congress and then into the Confederate Congress at Richmond.

Colonel Garfield's success was the first substantial victory of the Union cause. It won him a general's star, and started him on the road leading to the Presidency.

"The Garfield Place," as it is still called today, was purchased by Claude P. Stephens, who had a great sense for historical values. He preserved it not only for a home, but as a treasured monument to a significant part of Kentucky's place in history.

A Civil War pistol, believed to have been Garfield's personal weapon, was found in the walls of the house. It was identified by President Garfield's son, the Hon. James R. Garfield of Cleveland, when he visited the home in 1932.

Don't Overdo, Is Wintertime Advice

"Winter of 78 Survivor" was a slogan marketed on shirts in the spring of this year after many sections of the country as well as Kentucky remembered the severe winter weather. The Kentucky Division of Disaster and Emergency Services hopes that Kentuckians will be better prepared this coming winter for hazards associated with winter storms. Ronn Padgett, director of operations for DES, explained that winter differs from the other seasons because of many different types of storms and the speed at which those storms can turn from snow flurries into a blizzard. Padgett noted that a "blizzard" is the most dangerous of all winter storms. It combines cold air, heavy snow and strong winds that blow the snow about and may reduce visibility to only a few yards. A "blizzard warning" is issued when the National Weather Service expects considerable snow and winds of 35 miles per hour or more. A "severe blizzard warning" means that a heavy snowfall is expected, with winds of at least 45 mph and temperatures of 10 degrees or lower. During the past winter it was this type of storm that paralyzed some regions of the commonwealth for nearly three days. A "heavy snow warning" usually means an expected snowfall of four inches or more in a 12-hour period, or six inches or more in a 24-hour period. Warnings of "snow flurries," "snow squalls" or "blowing and drifting snow" are important because visibility may be reduced and roads may become slippery or blocked. Every winter many unnecessary deaths occur because people, especially older persons, engage in more strenuous physical activity than their bodies can stand. The Kentucky Division of Disaster and Emergency Services offers some advice about avoiding overexertion and the proper dress for winter weather. Cold weather, itself, without any physical exertion, puts an extra strain on the heart. If you add to this physical exertion, especially exercise that you are not accustomed to, such as shoveling snow, pushing an automobile, or even walking fast and far, you may be risking a heart attack, a stroke, or damage to your body. Winter storms such as heavy snows and blizzards are the most important times to be aware of this danger and to avoid overexertion. The manner in which you dress can be very important in the winter months. Try always to be aware of the weather forecast to avoid being caught unprepared by a winter storm. If you spend much time outdoors, wear several layers of loosefitting, lightweight, warm clothing rather than a single layer of thick clothing. Mittens are warmer than gloves. Use a hood to protect your head and face, and to cover your mouth to protect your lungs from the extremely cold air.

Sound Happenings

By COEY HARRIS

Well, rock 'n roll fans here we go again! Red, Hot and Blue Productions, the folks who brought you the Exiles, are doing it again! Southern boogie is gonna hit Prestonsburg with a driving force straight from Jacksonville, Fla. At the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse on Sat., Nov. 25 at 7:30 p.m. BLACKFOOT will appear with special guest Boulder to rock your very soul.

Blackfoot is a tight-knit southern boogie band of nine years, originating from Jacksonville, Fla. In 1969, a five member band began, only to lose a keyboard player in their early months, leaving the four we have today to tough-it out and put together the heavy sound of Blackfoot. During these years, the talented Randy Medlock pulled away from the band to play and write for the legendary Lynard Skynard over a year before the crash. In fact, if you'll check the latest Lynard Skynard LP "First and Last" you will find guitarist Randy not only wrote approximately half the cuts but displayed his diversified talents on the drums as well. The group's bass player Greg Walker also appears on the Skynard LP as he joined Skynard for several months.

Blackfoot's recording began in 1974 with "No Reservations" on the Island label. This album, as you can probably guess by the title, has a heavy influence from the American Indian heritage from where Blackfoot pulls their name. Their second album in 1976, "Flying High" moves the band more toward their southern boogie sound they are currently known for. Currently there is a new work undergoing the final stages of production on the Atlantic-Atco label called "Road Fever." The release date of this new LP is tentatively scheduled Jan. 15, but this Saturday night Blackfoot has promised a preview of the new LP.

Never heard of Blackfoot? Want more info on the group and more listening experience with them? Well, rock'n rollers check it all out with the good doctor of rock'n roll, Don Bevins, as he will be featuring jams currently released by Blackfoot on his show each evening from 6-12 p.m. on WECL. Now, if you want inside info on the band and the course they're sailing check out J.J.'s FM Underground show with Dr. D., Friday night for a personal interview with Blackfoot. Can't pick up WECL, poor thing? Do not despair, the Saturday of the concert at 2:30 p.m. there will be an autograph party with the members of Blackfoot at J.J.'s Sound Shop at Virgie. Everyone is welcome to come and rap with Blackfoot, take pictures, hug necks, and of course get autographs. The interviews, the parties, the concert, all coming your way—be sure and don't miss it!

Now, just for a tidbit of LP news. Do you like rock'n roll, rhythm and blues? Be sure to check out the new LP "Move It on Over" by George Thorogood and the Destroyers. This man can play a guitar, people! He makes it scream, he makes it boogie, he makes it cry! The cuts on the LP draw songs with such notable composers as Chuck Berry, Bo Diddley to over in the C and W field with Johnny Cash and Hank Williams. The album is on Rounder Records, get it and love it!

The doors with Jim Morrison have a new album. No folks, this is not a classical rock'n roll reincarnation. Previously unreleased material completed before the tragic death of Jim Morrison has been taken and placed on an album finished by the remaining members. The album has been released and should be in this area soon. Watch closely and don't let your eyes deceive you.

Remember Blackfoot and Boulder, two hot southern boogie bands, at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse, Sat., Nov. 25 at 7:30 p.m.! Doors will open early at 6:00 p.m. and tickets are now on sale at local merchants and the high school.

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all my friends in West Prestonsburg and relatives at West Van Lear along with everyone who brought flowers or expressed their sympathy in any way upon the passing of my husband, G. R. Fannin. A special thanks to Dr. Holbrook, the nurses and entire staff of Highlands Regional Medical Center. Your concern and sympathy will always be remembered.

By COEY HARRIS

The Allen Central High School Rebels have started out their '78-'79 basketball season on a good note by defeating the Dorton Wildcats, 86-74 in a game Friday at Dorton.

The following members of Coach Wallen's team contributed points in the contest: Phil Slone, 24; Mark Martin, 23; Ralph Caudill, 9; Jeff Bailey, 8; Randy Conley, 6; Keith Harris, 4, and Vanderpool, 2.

Caudill led in rebounding for ACHS with 10, followed by Harris and Slone with seven and six, respectively.

The Rebels next game will be played at the Allen Central Fieldhouse against the McDowell Daredevils.

Veterans' Queries

Q—I know I have an overpayment from prior training. Is it possible to have a portion of my monthly entitlement withheld to apply to repayment and continue my education with the remainder?

A—This may be possible. If immediate full repayment would cause undue hardship, you may request this monthly repayment method. Upon VA approval, a withholding will be established to liquidate the overpayment within a defined enrollment period.

Q—What happens to the Veterans Group Life Insurance if the insured veteran failed to name a beneficiary?

A—If no beneficiary has been designated, payment will be made in the following order: (1) widow or widower; (2) child or children in equal shares with the share of any deceased child being distributed among the descendants of that child; (3) parent(s) in equal shares; (4) a duly appointed executor or administrator of the insured's estate; (5) other next-of-kin.

Q—How is my educational entitlement computed while I am enrolled in a correspondence course?

A—Payment is based on 90 per cent of the total charges for the course. One month of entitlement is deducted for each $311 paid.

Notice of Intention To Mine

1. In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that: Hayes, Inc. Betsy Layne, Kentucky 41605 intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 4 acres located Northwest of Dana in Floyd County. The proposed operation is approximately 1 mile West of Prater Creek Road's junction with Johnson Fork Road and located East of Johnson Fork of Prater Creek latitude 37 d. 33' 44", longitude 82d. 40' 37". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by Hayes Leasing Corp. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: Contour Strip and Auger Operation - Amendment to proposed permit number 036-0009. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement Prestonsburg Area Office, South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application number 036-0010. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2) and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS 350 that the proposed post mining land use does not constitute a change from the pre-mining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change inland use may be submitted to the address listed above.

REFRIGERATORS NEED AIR FLOW

WASHINGTON—Don't build cabinets or counters too close to the refrigerator, the U.S. Department of Energy advises. Enough space should be left for air to circulate around the refrigerator, for if the flow is restricted, heat can build up and the air compressor must work harder and longer and thus waste energy.

State Pension Woes Acknowledged

A Tennessee legislator suggested Monday that although his state's employee pension plan differs but little from Kentucky's, improvements could be made to make the Commonwealth's plan more effective.

Tennessee Rep. John Bragg told a special Legislative Research Commission subcommittee that attempting to reform state pension plans is a thankless job complicated by the intricacies of the subject material.

"There is no more serious problem you face than to be sure that people who are entitled to a pension get one," Bragg told the 18-member subcommittee. "You're really not going to get any brownie points for what you're doing."

Bragg and other officials told the subcommittee the major problem facing pension plans is the large number of pensioners being supported by a decreasing number of current workers.

He said that by the year 2030, three workers will be supporting one pensioner, who in turn, will receive less money because inflation will eat into that fixed income.

Bragg noted "pensions must be created through a surplus in the work force." At present, he added, "we're putting in for past services." Pension plans fall under legislative jurisdiction.

He noted that "the taxpayer is the ultimate employer, not the city, local or state government."

The legislator guided the subcommittee through a series of questions.

RETIRED TEACHERS MEET

Members of the Floyd County Retired Teachers' Organization held their quarterly meeting, beginning at noon last Saturday, at the Floyd County Library, with Miss Alice Harris and Mrs. Lucy Regan as hostesses. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Mae K. Roberts, the vice-president, Mrs. Minnie Grace Sutherland, presided. The devotional was presented by the Rev. Dean Pack, pastor of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church here. The minister told the group (Paraphrased): that, as God depends on Christians to tell others about Christ, teachers who have experienced the emotions of pain, sacrifice, heartache, devotion and joy, have the obligation of helping others to be mindful of the way in which divine guidance can, through these experiences, enrich people's lives.

Following the Rev. Pack's discussion, Mrs. Patsy Evans and the "Senior Citizens Songsters" from Archer Park sang familiar songs.

Mrs. Sutherland introduced John Faulkner, Manager of the local Social Security office, who spoke on newly enacted legislation affecting the Social Security program. Mr. Faulkner also answered questions from the audience.

Mrs. Frankie Best, chairman of the new legislative committee for this district, presented a list of requests which her group expects to make to the legislature at its next session. Among these are requests that:

1. Kentucky retired teachers continue to maintain their retirement system, independent from that of the state;
2. A built-in, cost-of-living increase be appropriated for retired teachers; and
3. Improved provisions be made for certain teachers with prior service.

Mrs. Best added that Kentucky now has the best teacher retirement system in the nation.

The acting president, Mrs. Sutherland, discussed the recent Kentucky Retired Teachers' workshop which was held at May Lodge.

A "get-well" card was signed, to be sent to E.D. Roberts, husband of the president of the group. Mr. Roberts is a patient at Central Baptist Hospital, Lexington.

The hostesses, Mrs. Regan and Miss Harris, served a dessert course to "Senior Citizen Songsters" Mesdames Patsy Evans, Grace Burke, Vivian Fraley, Marie Bingham, Clara Robinson, Juanita Hager, Ora Reynolds, Rosy Burchett, Lillie Mae Price, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Warrens, and John Ward, and members, Edna Saunders, Beatrice Collins, Nora Martin, Opal S. May, Edith Hopkins, Frankie Best, Minnie Grace Sutherland, Norma Stepp, Docia Woods, Anna May Mellon, Misses Ruby Akers and Anna Mary Friend, and W. H. Martin, O.E. Stanley, Delmas Saunders, and guests, the Rev. Dean Pack, John Faulkner and William Runnels.

Poachers Draw Record Penalties

Thomas K. Mercer, West Point, Ky., and Norman J. Elmore, Valley Station, both 18, received at Elizabethtown Monday what is very likely the heaviest penalties in Kentucky history for deer poaching.

District Judge James N. Scudder fined the two $1,000 each, plus court costs, revoked their hunting privileges for two years, and ordered them to pay $220 for the deer they killed Oct. 24. The two pleaded guilty.

In addition, the judge ordered all equipment used in the poaching case confiscated, including a 1977 GMC Sprint. This is the first time that a late-model vehicle used in conjunction with a deer poaching case has been declared contraband. (The current retail value of the automobile is approximately $3,400.)

Also confiscated were a rifle, a hunting knife and a spotlight. Items declared contraband are turned over to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and ultimately sold at public auction.

Mercer and Elmore were apprehended by Hardin County Conservation Officer Curtis Owens, of Elizabethtown, after they were observed spotlighting by a fish and wildlife aircraft surveillance patrol. When apprehended, the two had a "button" buck (an immature deer) in their vehicle and were apparently continuing to hunt illegally, Owens said.

The two were fined under the provisions of a new law, passed by the 1978 Kentucky General Assembly, which provides fines of from $300 to $1,000, jail sentences of from 30 days to one year, loss of hunting privileges for up to three years and restitution for wildlife killed. Previous state law allowed judges to confiscate all equipment used in game law violations but provided for considerably lower fines.

HAROLD NEWS

Mrs. Elizabeth Spears was hostess to this month's regular meeting of the United Methodist Women of Bogel-Day United Methodist Church. Harriet Mullins, president, presided. Mrs. Ruby Staton gave the devotionals. Mrs. Anita Thomas read Psalm 127, and Mrs. Cora Branham led the group in prayer. All officers were reelected, except Mrs. Mitchell Thomas, the pastor's wife, who was elected vice-president. The dedication of the new stained glass windows recently installed in the church was discussed and plans were made for the program and the menu for the dinner, Nov. 19, at 2 o'clock. Each person told what they had to be thankful for during this year. Refreshments were served to Ruby Staton, Elizabeth Spears, Addie Bea Hall, Cora Branham, Margaret Branham, Arcolas Allen, Harriet Mullins, Hattie Mae Hall, Jackie Kidd, Regina Daniels, Anita Thomas.

Low-Income Families To Get Solar Energy

Some 1,000 low-income families will have their homes solar energized and hundreds of unemployed workers will get on-the-job training in solar equipment installation under a project supported by the Departments of Labor (DOL) and Energy (DOE) and the Community Services Administration. The 1-year project will be undertaken in 10 communities across the country, under a $3 million agreement.

Says She Got Runaround

What type of people do we have for City officials, who refuse to talk to a person on the phone about the property that one of their employees destroyed. They trespassed on my property with their City trucks, destroyed flowers in my yard and tore down my fence—not once but three times.

I called the city clerk's office to get them to replace the fence. You could hear them tell the office girl what to say, but when I asked to speak to Mr. Hyden, he had just left the office. The girl asked Mr. Tackett something; I asked to speak to him, and he had just gone out the door.

All I wanted was the fence replaced. The office girl told me to get an estimate, and bring it to the office, and they would then notify their insurance company. Then I could find someone to fix the fence and they would give me a check.

If I have to do their work for them, then I want pay for the other two times they destroyed my property.

The fence was replaced by the construction company for the telephone company. They did some damage after the city had done it first.

I gave a foot of property to the city to make the alley wider. This is the thanks I get.

Grateful for Help On Garrett Situation

I want to thank, personally, Congressman Carl D. Perkins, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley and Representative "Jitter" Allen for their combined efforts in stopping the dirt fill of the Garrett bridge on the new Route 80 being built through Garrett.

This fill would cause higher waters for the town of Garrett and the Rock Fork and Stone Coal areas.

And a special thanks to Judge Conley and Representative Allen for their concern about safety of the school children riding the bus to and from the Garrett Grade School. I and others heard Judge Conley and Allen suggest to Governor Carroll a change of the design of the bridge so that the school bus would not have to cross the four-lane traffic.

I think all the people in this area should be grateful for what these people have done. Let's hope and pray Governor Carroll will make their suggestions a reality.

Comments on Needs Of Endangered Citizens

Commenting on your article "Citizens Want Law for Left Beaver" (Nov. 1, 1978), let me first commend Terry Horn for her excellence in journalism. Quite professional!

Then, I would like to congratulate the citizens on Left Beaver for finally prodding their elected officials into fulfilling their obligations to the public. It always takes involvement in order to get much accomplished.

Being the eldest child of Ex-Sheriff Joe W. Lewis, I have had many opportunities to witness the deplorable lack of law-enforcement personnel to meet the needs of the public. Many were the occasions when, in the dark hours of night, I answered the telephone at home and heard a frantic, pleading voice—a frightened, desperate human requesting help. How sad and impotent I too felt when I had to reply, "I'm sorry, but there's no one here to assist you. The sheriff is already working the roads tonight. Have you tried to contact the state police?" The reaction to that question was usually a groan of futility.

In those midnight and early dawn hours, when human lives and safety are at stake, and hoodlums predominate, there needs to be someone, or some source to whom these endangered people can turn. It's not surprising that so many of them finally take the law into their own hands, considering the circumstances.

I suggest that the Floyd Fiscal Court and other responsible policymakers there, consider providing for a paid night dispatcher in the sheriff's office, and if possible, at least two salaried night-shift deputies (in addition to other prior concessions) to respond to such night calls. Even this much probably won't be enough, but at least it would be a beginning, better than the present situation. In my opinion, this is an absolute necessity for the safety and welfare of Floyd county citizens. I can think of nothing more valuable than human life and liberty; I empathize so deeply with those needy people that I cannot adequately describe my feelings.

In closing, I would like to state that my brother, Sheriff Doug Lewis, has no knowledge that I have written this letter. I do not know what reaction he would have, but I should think it would be favorable and positive. My purpose in writing it is not to meddle in politics, but to express what I have experienced through being a member of a law-enforcement family.

Primary Nursing Care Receives New Emphasis At Highlands Hospital

Nurses from Highlands Regional Medical Center in Prestonsburg who attended a recent workshop in Louisville learned that Highlands Regional is farther along than many other hospitals in providing primary nursing care to its patients.

Primary nursing care is a coming thing in nursing according to Lisa Parlier, R.N., inservice coordinator at Highlands.

"Primary nursing care is not really new," said Parlier, "it is a shifting back to the more traditional approach to nursing by getting nurses back to the bedside and involved in direct patient care."

In the last several years, according to nursing sources, the duties of Registered Nurses had become fragmented with many of their direct patient care responsibilities taken over by ancillary personnel.

Carolyn Graham, R.N., the patient education coordinator at Highlands, reported that H.R.M.C. was ahead of many hospitals in re-implementing the programs being advocated by the sponsors of the primary care workshop. H.R.M.C. is already doing so, as she puts it, "because of young and enlightened nursing, medical, and administrative staff."

In one of the new programs being implemented at Highlands some nurses have been switched to a seven days on, seven days off schedule. During their "on" the nurses work 12-hour shifts with appropriate meal periods and breaks. The new system reduces the number of different nurses caring for a particular patient during an average hospital stay, thus allowing more personal attention by registered nurses and a better patient-nurse relationship. The new program is still in the pilot project stage and is being evaluated by hospital staff.

FRESHNESS FROM OUR FAMILY TO YOURS.

Ask Us About Medicare

By ANITA WEBB

"Why can't I get faster payment from Medicare" is a question frequently asked by those on Medicare. We at Medicare agree that prompt payment is one of the most important concerns to those who file claims. Yet, it is a fact that the majority of properly filed claims can be paid within two weeks.

A claim with only one bill is processed faster than a claim with many bills. For this reason, we urge filing a claim when you have enough expense to meet the $60 deductible and after that file a bill each time you receive medical services. Holding your bills until the end of the year may result in failure to file a claim because the bill may become misplaced or you may simply not remember that you had expenses to file. Also, year-end filings are not paid as quickly because the seasonal backlog of claims delays payments.

Your physician can help you file Medicare claims. We suggest you ask the billing clerk at your doctor's office to file the claim or assist in filing your claim. Feel free to contact the Metropolitan Medicare Office at 1218 Harrodsburg Road, Lexington, Kentucky 40504, or call, toll free, 800-432-9255.

Notice of Intention To Mine

1. In accordance with the provision of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Triple Elkhorn Mining Co., Inc., P. O. Box 70, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653 intends to file an application for the surface disturbance mining of approximately 2.7 acres located south of Allen City in Floyd County. The proposed operations is approximately 1/2 mile south of State Route 80's junction with Betsy Clark Road and located north of Betsy Clark Branch, latitude 37 d. 35' 53", longitude 82 d. 43' 19". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by Palmer Crisp. A brief description of the kind of mining activity proposed is: Surface disturbance of underground mining. The application will be filed at the Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement Prestonsburg Area Office, South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653.

Persons wishing to file written objections and/or request a formal administrative hearing in regard to the above described surface mine should notify the Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection within 30 days of the date of this notice. A copy of the newspaper clipping must be attached to the written objection. The objection or request for a hearing will reference application number 036-0006. Such objection or request must be in accordance with KRS 224.081 (2) and must be forwarded to the Director of Permits, Bureau of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

2. Notice is hereby provided pursuant to 30 CFR 715.13 (d) (10) and KRS 350 that the proposed post mining land use does not constitute a change from the pre-mining land use. Public comment regarding a proposed change in land use may be submitted to the address listed above.

Uranium Hunted in State

(From The Kentucky Business Ledger) The federal government is prospecting for uranium in southeastern Kentucky. But there's no reason to rush out and engage in land speculation on this account; it's all part of what the U.S. Department of Energy calls NURE—the National Uranium Resource Evaluation—and eventually the survey will reach every part of the United States, including other areas of Kentucky not now being surveyed.

"We're making a comprehensive survey to determine the probability of uranium sources all across the nation, to provide information to those making future energy decisions as part of a national energy policy," explained Jim Gaver of the Department of Energy's eastern area survey office near Aiken, S.C.

Sample teams began surveying various areas of the country in 1975. The eastern office began on the east coast and has been working its way westward, so that they just reached southeastern Kentucky this fall. Random samples of ground water and stream sediment are being taken from every four to six miles, Mr. Gaver said. After analysis, maps will be prepared showing those areas most likely to contain uranium deposits.

Uranium is a precious mineral which fuels power reactors and generates nuclear energy. While a national debate rages over more extensive use of nuclear power, no one denies that it is a potentially valuable energy source.

The Kentucky sampling will end sometime in November, Mr. Gaver said, since the thrust of the nationwide survey is being changed to concentrate on the far western areas of the country where uranium is known to exist. After the western surveys are completed, the teams will return to Kentucky and other areas of the eastern U.S. to complete their sampling, he said.

Normally it takes about a year to evaluate samples for potential uranium deposits, he explained, but because the remainder of the eastern survey is being deferred the results of the current Kentucky sampling probably won't be known until about 1982.

One surveyor working in Wayne county, one of the 10 Kentucky counties now being surveyed, said he found Kentucky landowners to be very cooperative with the project that takes samples from their wells, springs or streams. "People have been fantastic," said Charles Muir. "Out of a thousand samples I've taken, only about 10 people have been a little gruff about it." Mr. Muir surveyed 30 counties in Tennessee before beginning the Kentucky phase of the project.

The water and sediment samples are used to locate uranium deposits since traces from deposits are carried along with the water that runs around and through them.

Judge Frazier Resigns Post

Stephen "Nick" Frazier, of Paintsville, district judge for Johnson, Lawrence and Martin counties, has submitted his resignation, effective Dec. 1.

He cited a heavy caseload that kept him from spending time with his family as the reason for resignation.

The resignation was sent in a letter dated Monday to Kentucky Supreme Court Chief Justice John Palmore. Announcement of his resignation was not made until Thursday.

Frazier said in his letter his judicial district has been among the top five in the state during the past six months for the number of misdemeanors on its docket. He has regularly staged late-day and night court to accommodate the heavy docket.

"For the most part," he said Thursday, "it's a seven-day a week job. During weekdays, it's court during the day—sometimes to seven o'clock at night, and then after supper, it's back to the office, or sometimes to night court.

"The demands of the office, with three small children, are too great."

Frazier said Chief Justice Palmore can name a temporary judge for the office, but a permanent replacement will have to come from appointment by Gov. Julian Carroll, from a list of recommendations made by a six-member panel from the area.

Frazier becomes the first judge to resign since Kentucky entered the district system in January. Judge Willard Lake, 62, of Ohio County, died on Wednesday. Another district judge, J. Calvin Aker, of Somerset, was elected Tuesday to the Court of Appeals, but has not submitted resignation from his lower post.

State Readies for Winter Problems

One state official at a Cold Weather Preparedness Conference in Slade recently jokingly suggested that "The best snow removal is called spring." Despite the truth of the jest made by Commissioner Ralph Ed Graves of the Department for Local Government, conference participants spent two days at Natural Bridge State Park discussing preparations for cold weather emergencies.

Representatives from nine state government agencies which have varying degrees of responsibility during emergencies briefed members of the State Regional Council on what is being done to meet the needs of Kentuckians should another winter of '77 or '78 occur.

The State Regional Council consists of the people who run six regional offices established by the 1978 legislature under an Office of Inter-Agency Relations. The regional offices are designed to make state government more responsive to local needs, according to Joe Elam, deputy secretary for the office.

When the winter's first snowfall hits, Elam wants the regional office officials to be ready to answer the inevitable questions about which roads will be cleared first; who to contact for emergency fuel cost assistance; where to secure the services of a four-wheel drive vehicle for medical transportation and dozens of other queries.

List of Candidates For '79 Is Growing

The list of Democratic candidates for governor mounted this week, and in the meantime others seeking lesser state offices were tossing their hats into the ring.

While Dr. Harvey Sloane, an early candidate, continued his walk over the state, Congressman Carroll Hubbard, Ralph Graves and Terry McBrayer made their official announcements. State Auditor George Atkins and Lieut. Gov. Thelma L. Stovall already were listed.

Clerk of the Court of Appeals, Martha Layne Collins was the latest to get in the race for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant-governor. Bill Cox, of Madisonville, had earlier filed for the office.

Mr. Cox spoke at his Floyd county dinner at May Lodge last Thursday evening and paid tribute to the late Judge Henry Stumbo. He was accompanied by 86 of his Hopkins county supporters. Of Judge Stumbo he said:

"Some of you visited my office in Washington and saw the picture of the Tram bridge that hung on my office wall. That picture was a gift from one of the finest county judges ever to serve in Kentucky, and one of the best friends I had in the mountains of Kentucky—the late Judge Henry Stumbo."

Secretary of State Drexell Davis in announcing for state treasurer specifically mentioned Charlotte Mullins, formerly of David, who is Davis' executive director of the State Board of Elections. "Charlotte," he said, has worked faithfully with me over the last seven years to provide high quality state service to the people of Kentucky and has been invaluable to me."

VISITS MAGOFFIN O.E.S. CHAPTER AT SALYERSVILLE KY

Those from Adah Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, who recently visited Magoffin Chapter at Salyersville were Mrs. Nawanie Conley, worthy matron, Henry Conley, worthy patron, and Leatha Joy, chaplain. Initiation was held after the business meeting. The worthy matron gave a detailed report on Grand Chapter. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

A Very Unboring Barbecue For Two

It's patio season, and you are planning a romantic dinner for two al fresco. How do you produce a really interesting meal with a minimum of fuss and bother? Try this elegant and delicious version of meat on a skewer: Beef Kabobs à la Grecque.

Strong black coffee is a good complement.

This is definitely not an everyday menu, which is the whole idea. Beef Kabobs à la Grecque will add a welcome spice to your barbecue life this year.

BEEF KABOBS A LA GRECQUE

(Makes 4 kabobs)

- 2 crushed garlic cloves
- 1/2 cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 2/3 cup (6-ounce can) Contadina Tomato Paste
- 1 cup water
- 1/3 cup lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 3/4 teaspoon ground cumin
- 1 pound top sirloin steak
- 12 (2 medium) 1/2-inch zucchini slices
- 12 mushrooms
- 4 onion wedges
- 8 (1 medium) green pepper wedges

Sauté garlic and onion in oil in medium saucepan. Stir in tomato paste, water, lemon juice, salt and cumin. Boil gently, uncovered, 20 minutes. Stir occasionally. Cut steak into 16 pieces. Marinate meat pieces in tomato mixture in refrigerator 4 hours. Add zucchini to marinade last hour. Arrange kabobs on four 14-inch skewers as follows: meat, mushroom, zucchini, onion, meat, pepper, zucchini, mushroom, meat and pepper. Place on grill over medium coals. Cook 15 minutes or until done; turn frequently. Brush kabobs with remaining sauce while cooking.

Assembly of God Church Hosts Sectional Meeting

The West Prestonsburg First Assembly of God was host to Kentucky District Assemblies of God, Inc. at a sectional council meeting, Wednesday, November 8.

During the business session, which was conducted from 1-5 p.m., sectional officers were elected by church delegates and included: Lorie Vannucci, section presbyter; Dwight Davis, youth leader, Christ ambassadors, and Lois Anderson, Womans' Mission, sectional representative.

The Big Sandy section was represented by the following A.O. G. state churches: Ashland Assembly of God, pastor, Victor Jackson; Grayson Assembly of God; Hager Faith Assembly of God, pastor, Mrs. Lois Anderson; Martin Assembly of God, pastor, Lorie Vannucci; Pikeville First Assembly of God, pastor, Paul Sword; Raceland Assembly of God, pastor, Wayne Hemphill, and the West Prestonsburg First Assembly of God, pastor, Henry H. Wright.

Kentucky District Assemblies of God, Inc., of Crestwood, Ky. were represented by Rev. James C. Ellis, superintendent; Lavern Snyder, assistant superintendent; Joseph R. Hardt, secretary-treasurer, and Loren H. Kohl, director of youth ministers.

Following general business and election a fellowship dinner of turkey and trimmings was served by the host church and an enjoyable fellowship was had by all.

Miss Prater Heads College Program

ANALYZER, the journal of the National Society for Cardiopulmonary Technology, featured in a recent number the cardiopulmonary technology program at Santa Fe Community College, Gainesville, Fla., and its instructor, Miss Sandra L. Prater, formerly of Prestonsburg. The program led by Miss Prater is marked by its own training laboratory, a feature missing from similar programs in other colleges.

Miss Prater, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Prater, of Prestonsburg, is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School and Berea College, and earned her M.A. at the University of Wisconsin.

WAYLAND COMMUNITY NEWS

The Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club recently held its first program meeting of the club year at the home of Mrs. Hansel Bradley, of Garrett. Mrs. Marie Mullins conducted the program on the subject of education.

"Education is beneficial enough to change life," was Mrs. Mullins' opening statement. She explained the educational system's emphasis recently on "back to the basics," citing the fact that many students read at a very low level. She pointed out that, while school administrators talk about the fact that

"Johnny can't read," it has been discovered that "Johnny can't write, either."

Mrs. Mullins reminded her listeners that they could be proud of the fact that the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, as well as the General Federation, has always had a special interest in education, offering awareness programs with contests and awards and a fine scholarship program for deserving young people.

Devotions were given by the Devotions co-chairman, Mrs. S. M. Martin. (In the last club press release the club reporter failed to mention that Mrs. Hansel Bradley would serve as co-chairman, with Mrs. S. M. Martin replacing Mrs. J. T. Spillman, who has been bedfast since an automobile accident July 30.)

At a business meeting following the program plans were completed for the daughter club dinner to be held in November.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Marie Mullins and Mrs. Felix Coburn, to Mrs. J.C. Wells, Mrs. Joyce Stevens, Mrs. James E. Martin, Mrs. S.M. Martin, Mrs. June DeCoursey, Mrs. Anne Castle, Mrs. Don Hughes, Mrs. Marcellous Dunfee, and Mrs. Otto Martin, members, and Mrs. Thomasine Whicker and Miss Nancy Sue Dingus, guests.

Panel Challenges Inspectors' Power To Close Strip-Mines

A legislative subcommittee said last Thursday that state reclamation inspectors should not be given authority to shut down strip-mining operations found in violation of federal law.

The subcommittee on surface mining of the Interim Joint Committee on Agriculture and Natural Resources rejected the argument that Kentucky law should mirror the federal strip mine act by allowing the state Department for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection—or its reclamation inspectors—to issue cessation orders.

The committee action came during a review of comments submitted by environmental groups and coal industry representatives on the proposed permanent federal strip mine regulations. Subcommittee chairman Rep. James "Jitter" Allen, D-Martin, said the recommendation was made by "several groups," but declined to identify them further.

The panel rejected the proposal after Natural Resources Secretary Eugene Mooney opposed it, saying federal law does not require such delegation of authority.

Mooney said there's even some question about the constitutionality of a state law allowing the secretary to issue "abate and alleviate" orders to strip mining operations without a hearing.

"We don't pay inspectors to have that kind of responsibility," Mooney said. "It puts the burden of decision...on people not selected or paid for that kind of activity."

The subcommittee rejected several other recommendations aimed at increasing public participation in the regulatory process, including one asking that citizens who provide information to the federal Office of Surface Mining be allowed to accompany inspectors on site visits.

Mooney said federal law does not authorize citizens to routinely accompany inspectors on strip mining sites, but only on followup visits where the state has failed to act on a complaint within a certain time.

"Our experience in the past is that it's bad policy," Mooney said. "Citizens and operators get into arguments—sometimes fights—on the site. Nothing is added by having a person accompany an inspector."

The subcommittee also rejected a recommendation asking that the right to challenge the department's inspections and enforcement be extended to public interest groups as well as persons adversely affected or injured by an operation.

The subcommittee is scheduled to make its recommendations to the full committee Monday for submission to federal surface mining officials.

Meanwhile, Ken Hart, representing the Kentucky Independent Coal Operators Association, suggested that the state conduct a study of the cost of the permanent regulations, and ask the White House for a 60-day moratorium pending the results. The panel agreed to take it up with the full committee Monday.

The Veterans Administration is processing compensation, pension and education claims faster and more accurately with an automated data processing system, "TARGET".

Coalfield Crime Under Probe

(From The Kentucky Business Ledger)

A Georgia trial has provided state agents investigating organized crime in Kentucky coalfields with "some fairly good information" which may be used to further the state probe.

Coalfield crime investigators gained the information while following the trial of Robert L. Herring, who stood this fall on charges of fraud and racketeering under a federal indictment.

He is charged in Kentucky with theft by deception—a charge stemming from the sale of a $100,000 piece of mining equipment in Letcher county.

Herring was found guilty of the federal charges. The racketeering charges involved the sale of coal mining equipment handled by his company.

State Police Col. Lewis Babb, director of criminal investigations, said the trial did provide "fairly good information," but none of the information has as yet been used in the Kentucky probe. He added the trial provided the opportunity to "make some contacts."

Col. Babb said the state is in the process of bringing Herring to Kentucky to stand trial on the theft by deception charge.

Kentucky Secretary of Justice John Smith told The Harlan Daily Enterprise that Herring is "thought to be the chief mover of organized crime" in the state's coalfields.

The state investigation into crime in the coalfields, which was made public in early May, slowed during the Herring trial in Georgia as investigators hoped to gain information which could advance the state probe.

Concerning the overall progress of the coalfield crime investigation, Mr. Smith said the indictment against Herring in Kentucky is one of two major points of satisfaction he finds with the probe.

"I think we've developed one of the best cases against (Herring)," Mr. Smith said. "We worked very hard on that case. We felt he was a central figure (in coalfield criminal activity)."

The Department of Justice chief said he is also pleased with the results of the state investigation since about $1 million in stolen mining equipment has been recovered since the probe began.

Col. Babb said the investigation, which has been most active in the eastern Kentucky coalfield, is making "steady progress." The intensity of the investigation has slowed somewhat recently due to other activities, he said, but, "We're beginning to gear-up again."

State Police Lt. George Meyer, a member of the investigative team, said, "We're still looking at big names from out of the state who came into the state. These people have a Georgia influence and they're people who have had problems with securities violations and things along this line."

Lt. Meyer said, "Right now, we're mostly gathering intelligence. We've not made any cases recently, but we're still gathering evidence on them. It's a slow process."

The state coalfield crime investigation has been most active in Perry, Laurel and Leslie counties, Col. Babb said, but the probe has not been limited to these counties.

When the investigation was made public, officials said the direction of the probe would be into securities and financing. Mr. Smith said, "We made the biggest thrust in that area in the beginning. Recently, the thrust has been on stolen equipment. We're still working with the securities people, but we are on a little different direction now with stolen equipment."

State investigative activities are being coordinated through the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

When the probe was announced, eastern Kentucky coal operator association officials said they had no knowledge of organized crime problems in the industry.

Mr. Smith said, "Organized crime certainly was a problem or we wouldn't have acted to do something about it. The fact was there was organized crime in the coalfields and it alarmed me. The influence of organized crime was widespread."

Mr. Smith said "a big part" of the announcement of the investigation was to create a deterrent to crime. He said, "This was to tell the citizens and crooks that for the first time, state government was taking steps to see that organized crime would not come into the state."

Thus far, the investigation has resulted in the arrest of 57 persons and the recovery of more than $1 million in stolen mining equipment. State Police officials term the recovered items "a small amount of what has been taken."

Banks Is Named Hwy. Office Head

The state Transportation Department has announced the appointment of Bert H. Banks as chief of the Bureau of Highway's Pikeville district office.

Banks, 54, most recently served as assistant director of the bureau's maintenance division in Frankfort. His new appointment was effective November 1, according to Transportation Secretary Calvin Grayson.

A native of Letcher county, Banks is a registered professional engineer and has worked in the state highway program since 1949. As 12th district engineer, he will be in charge of bureau operations in Floyd, Johnson, Knott, Lawrence, Letcher, Martin and Pike counties.

Banks replaces Gail B. Mullins, who has been reassigned to the central office in Frankfort as assistant director of maintenance.

Eat. Drink. And be wary.

We're not going to suggest that people stop drinking. But let's face it. Drinking too much, like eating too much, is bad for your health. What's more, it can lead to an alcoholic dependency. And that's bad for you, your family, and everybody around.

Here are some tips for sensible drinking. Eat something first to slow alcoholic absorption. Dilute high-proof drinks with water or fruit juice to slow the rush to the brain. Sip your drink, don't gulp.

Remember, moderation in food and drink will help you lead a longer, healthier life. Staying healthy is the best kind of health care — and the least expensive.

You can help by taking care of yourself. At Blue Cross and Blue Shield and Delta Dental of Kentucky, we're concerned about rising health care costs. That's why we're working with consumers, dentists, physicians and hospitals to find ways to hold costs down.

Council Elects New Chairman

ILENE THOMPSON
Title I Pac Chairman

The first 1978-79 Parent Advisory Council meeting for the Floyd County Title I Reading Program was held recently at the Regional Library in Prestonsburg. The meeting was conducted by Harry J. Wallace, Floyd county Title I director.

Primary purpose of the meeting was to discuss the accomplishments of the Title I Reading Program for the current school year. Participants were given a printed summary explaining the number of students served, test results, and services rendered by Title I nurses and social workers. The Title I budget was also discussed. It was noted that because of extra funding the Title I Program in this county includes an extra nurse, two additional reading teachers and two reading aides.

Mrs. Ilene Thompson, Martin Elementary PAC representative, was elected Floyd County Advisory Council chairman. Mrs. Thompson has been actively involved in the Title I PAC for several years.

Birth Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Calhoun announce the birth of their second child, a daughter, on July 10 at Wilson Memorial Hospital in Sidney, Ohio. She has been named Jennifer Anne. She joins a brother, John Anthony, at home. Mrs. Calhoun is the former Delois DeRossett. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. T. J. DeRossett, of Prestonsburg, and the paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Dode Calhoun, of Water Gap. Mrs. Minnie DeRossett of East Point is her great-grandmother.

EXPRESSION OF THANKS

We would like to take this means to express our heartfelt thanks to everyone who helped in any way during the illness and upon the sudden death of our husband and father, Kimble Collins; to all who gave money, the beautiful flowers and those who brought food and in any way by thought or deed helped to ease our sorrow. Especially we thank James Paul Connors, Marie Harmon, and Clem Stambaugh for their effort in obtaining contributions for our family. Also a special thanks to all of our much loved family who stood by us in our time of need, Euela Mae Wells for her beautiful song, the minister, J.A. Patton, the Carter Funeral Home and the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad. Our tender thanks.

DINWOOD NEWS

A double birthday was celebrated October 28th for Alma Dingus, the eldest, and Katina Jean Krull, the youngest, of five generations. Other members of the generations are Marcella Ward, Billie Jean Ward and Teresa Johnson.

Ice cream, potato chips, refreshments and a couple-layer cake decorated with yellow roses were served. They received many nice gifts.

Henry Layne, who resides in Davenport, Iowa was here for the celebration of his mothers birthday.

Fallen Leaves Can Be Put to Work

By JOHN SHARKS
County Agent

Now that most of the beautiful fall color in Floyd county has passed, leaves are starting to fall like rain. The piles of leaves in your yard need not become a nuisance to you or your neighbors.

A light covering of leaves can be chopped up with a lawn mower and will work into the grass. Large quantities of leaves, however, can smother grass and other small plants by excluding light and air, especially if they become wet and compacted. If left on the lawn too long, dead or thin spots can develop.

Leaves can be turned into compost for improving the soil. They can also be beneficial as a mulch for protecting some tender plants during the winter. Oak leaves generally make the best mulch because they are stiff, decompose slowly and do not pack tightly around plants. They are particularly useful for a mulch around large plants with fine, shallow root systems, such as azaleas and rhododendrons. Soft leaves from maple, ash or poplar trees tend to mat and shouldn't be used as a mulch.

If leaves are used to protect plants, place them in wire cylinders to keep them from blowing away during the winter. Use them over soil mounds protecting roses or around the base of tender plants. Be sure not to cover the foliage of evergreen plants such as rhododendrons.

Leaves are an excellent source of organic matter for a compost pile. Fallen leaves are largely composed of cellulose, since the starch, sugars and nutrients have been withdrawn before they fall. It is the cellulose, however, that makes them excellent soil conditioners after they have decomposed.

When making compost from leaves the addition of other materials will hasten their decomposition. Chopped leaves will decompose more quickly than whole ones. Leaves should be layered with soil to introduce organisms that will cause their breakdown. Since composting required nitrogen, you should mix in about 3/4 cup of ammonium nitrate or one to two pounds of a general garden fertilizer, such as 12-12-12 per bushel of packed leaves.

Composting will not take place rapidly during the winter but will speed up with the onset of warmer weather. The compost should be turned or stirred in early spring and every few months until thoroughly decomposed.

If you're limited for space, six to ten inches of leaves can be spread over the garden and turned under this fall. They will decompose in the soil during the winter. Sprinkle fertilizer lightly over the leaves before plowing down to speed their decomposition.

For additional information on constructing a compost heap, contact the County Extension Office and ask for Horticulture Fact Sheet, HO-34, Making Compost.

FAMILIES GET SOLAR ENERGY

Some 1,000 low-income families will have their homes solar energized and hundreds of unemployed workers will get on-the-job training in solar equipment installation under a project supported by the Departments of Labor (DOL) and Energy (DOE) and the Community Services Administration. The 1-year project will be undertaken in 10 communities across the country, under a $3 million agreement.

A very REFINED Gentleman OR how NORBERT RILLIEUX was the original Sugar Daddy.

On August 26, 1842, Norbert Rillieux put a patent on a sweet idea. It was a way to refine sugar. To help the sugarcane juices evaporate more quickly, he enclosed condensation coils in a vacuum chamber. A process that's made things a lot sweeter ever since. You can make your future a little sweeter, too, by buying U.S. Savings Bonds through your Payroll Savings Plan. They're the dependable way to save for an education, vacation, or even retirement. Because they always pay off with interest. So buy U.S. Savings Bonds. And be a "sugar daddy" in your spare time.

Honors Veterans

Henry L. Setser, Commander of Veterans of Foreign Post 5839, placed this Buddy Poppy Wreath at the Archer Park memorial on Veterans Day to honor the memory of departed Veterans.

Paragraphs from Kentucky History

In Elliott county there is a bridge that begins and ends on the same side of the stream.
 In Morgan county rusted support cables for a swinging bridge across Elk Fork Creek near Lenox originally were part of New York City's streetcar system.
 In Owsley county initials cut on a huge boulder near the mouth of Sexton's Creek by Daniel Boone in 1784 may be seen only during dry weather; other times, the initials are under water, indicating a drought at the time of Boone's second trip.
 On April 27, 1805 on the shores of Tripoli, Lt. Presley N. O'Bannon of the United States Marine Corps became the first American to raise a U.S. flag over foreign soil. O'Bannon was in Logan county by 1807 and is buried in Frankfort cemetery. He led the attack that overcame pirates of the Barbary Coast who were holding 180 Americans for ransom.
 In the mountains of East Kentucky in 1834 almost 500 persons were receiving Revolutionary War pensions. Some veterans exhibited a peculiar mountain independence and would not accept a pension.

In Ohio County in 1790, Hannah Barnett, 10 year old daughter of Joseph Barnett, was held captive by Indians for six months.
 Dr. Reuben Saunders, grandfather of Irvin S. Cobb, made history in McCracken county and the world in 1873 when he discovered that hypodermic use of morphine-atrophine halted cholera. He was born in Frankfort in 1808. His son, Dr. John B. Saunders, did research on leprosy in Honolulu and was the personal physician of the King of Hawaii.
 Feliciano in Graves county was bypassed when the railroad was built in 1858 and businesses moved elsewhere. It had been one of the greatest commercial centers in Western Kentucky.
 John Penney, great-grandfather of the store founder J.C. Penney, helped constitute Salt River Church in Anderson county and served as its first pastor.
 The Mystery cemetery is located in Bullitt county. Age of cemetery is unknown and none of the tombstones bears names or information.
 In 1893-94 a four-foot log from Monroe county's famous tulip poplar tree was on exhibit at the Columbian World's Fair and Exposition in Chicago and won first prize. At the St. Louis Exposition in 1904, a piece of cannel coal from Morgan county was ignited by a single match.

 Site of four Scott county courthouses in Georgetown was sold to the county by Elijah Craig for six pounds (120.00).
 Pulaski county was named for Count Joseph Pulaski who came to America to help fight for freedom in the Revolutionary War and died at the Battle of Savannah.
 The Eighteen Mile Church was built in Oldham County in 1800 by a group of early Baptists.
 In Jefferson county, in 1837-38, Our Lady Church was organized by Father Stephen Badin, the first priest ordained in the United States.
 Uncle Sam in Breathitt county was Samuel VanderMeer who came from New Jersey in 1923, became pastor of Morris Fork Presbyterian Church in 1927 and that year married nurse Nola Pease. Together Uncle Sam and Nola totaled 98 years of service to generations of Kentucky children.
 At Grahm in Carter county Matthew B. Sellars, native of Baltimore, preceded the Wright Brothers and others in some experimenting and inventing pertaining to aviation, power flight and gliders.
 William Holmes McGuffey, famous for his McGuffey Eclectic Readers, taught in Bourbon county, 1823-26.

Revival Begins At Hi Hat Church

The Hi Hat Church of God of Prophecy will hold a revival beginning tonight (Wednesday) through Sunday with services at 7 p.m. each evening. Evangelist, Rev. George Griffin, will lead these services, and Rev. Jerry Caudill, pastor, invites the public to attend.

Black Lung Benefit Deadline Extended Till February 15

Congressman Carl D. Perkins announced that those miners presently receiving black lung benefits from the Social Security Administration now have an extension until next June 30 to apply to the Department of Labor for medical care benefits.
 The original deadline for application was November 3 this year, but at Congressman Perkins' request the deadline has been extended.
 Under the Black Lung Reform Act of 1977, which was authored and shepherded through Congress by Congressman Perkins, those miners who were receiving black lung benefits from Social Security became eligible for the payments of their medical expenses which result from black lung. At present only about 45,000 of the 150,000 eligible miners have applied for their medical benefits, he said.
 "I want to urge all miners who are presently receiving black lung benefits to go to any Social Security office and sign up for the medical card," Congressman Perkins said. "And I want to clarify one possible misunderstanding about what will happen when they apply for these medical benefits. First, this will not affect continued receipt of monthly black lung benefits. Those benefits are theirs for life," he said.
 "No matter what happens to a Labor Department claim for medical benefits, miners will continue to receive monthly black lung benefits from the Social Security Administration," he said. "Also, in most cases, they will simply be awarded the medical benefits without even having to take a test. This will be true of all miners who quit working in the mines before 1970," he said. "For those who worked in a mine since 1970, the most that would be required is some medical tests to establish entitlement to the medical benefits," he said.
 "But it bears repeating that miners will not in any way jeopardize Social Security black lung benefits by applying for medical care. A miner has absolutely nothing to lose by going to his Social Security office," Congressman Perkins said.

D.A.V. SERVICE OFFICER TO BE AT AUXIER, THURSDAY
 Eugene Akers, state service officer for Disabled American Veterans, will be at the Auxier Fire Department Thursday, November 16, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. to assist veterans with claims for benefits due as the result of service connected disabilities. Widow and children of deceased veterans who are not receiving benefits should also inquire if there are benefits to which they are entitled.
 All who are seeking benefits should bring discharge papers, any letters from the Veterans Administration, marriage certificates, birth certificates of any unmarried children under age 18, or if in school, under age 23.
PUBLIC NOTICE
 There will be a special meeting of the Prestonsburg City Council at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, November 15. This meeting will take the place of the regular meeting scheduled Thursday, November 16.

System To Warn Of Flood Threat

A flood warning system which will be a prototype for a later nationwide program is expected to be working in a 12-county area, including Floyd and other eastern Kentucky counties, by late next spring, those attending a Pikeville meeting last Thursday were told.

This information was given by James Giraytys, of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, Washington, D.C., who said the expanded program to serve a four-state area is scheduled for operation in 1980 and for all of Appalachia by the following year.

One of the speakers at the Pikeville meeting was Doyle Cook, of the National Weather Service in Charleston, W. Va., who said he was aware of the flooding problems of this area because he is a native of Wayland and recalls flash-flooding of that area when he was a boy.

He said that since the April, 1977, flood, a flash flood alarm system had been installed at Grundy, Va., and related how the floods had knocked out communications, making it impossible for the Grundy area to contact the Flood Warning Center in Cincinnati, Ohio.

"This was the cause of warning problems on the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy," Cook said, adding that residents of Williamson, W. Va., were given a seven-hour warning water that would come over the flood wall there.

The proposed program for the 12-county area in eastern Kentucky and neighboring areas of Virginia and West Virginia was outlined by John Monro, of the NOAA Washington office, who said total cost for the program will be approximately $1.2 million dollars with approximately one-half million coming from state and local government.

The improvements to be made for the flood warning system in the 12-county area will include improved observations and communications by local volunteers, which, Monro said, was the backbone of any flood warning system. This will include some 600 observation points in the 12-county area. Four satellite-reporting rain gauges will be strategically located in the area. These were described as battery-operated rain gauges, which will transmit their data directly to a satellite and then in return to the weather bureau.

A new weather radar will be installed at Jackson, which will greatly improve the coverage of the Appalachian area. A mini-computer for data collection will be centrally located in the area.

One hundred to 150 radio reporting rain gauges will be located throughout the area. Monro reported that only 66 of these are currently in use in the entire nation. The development of a specialized forecast procedure, using all technologies available, will also be put into use.

Teams will be sent to each county to make on-site surveys on where equipment should be placed and to recruit local volunteers. This phase of the program will get under way this week.

Monro said the program will be fully operational by spring, 1981, that improvements to the warning system have already been made, and that improvements will be made each day from now on.

Mention wild cherry to somebody and nine times out of 10 the first thing a person will think of is fine furniture.

There's a very good reason for this because for over 200 years the wood of this tree has been prized by furniture and cabinet makers. It is one of the very finest cabinet woods and after it has been reduced to boards and seasoned it will not crack or warp. For many years the wood has been stained to take the place of mahogany and recently has become one of the most expensive woods on the market. Along with walnut it is sometimes used Goodin Banks, to soundly thrash three burly ox drivers with a fire poker, or so the story goes.

Well tanked up on cherry bounce, the young woman became incensed when ox driving customers made improper advances toward her. Grabbing up a fire poker she beat them out of the tavern. When her employer tried to intervene, she almost cut off his head with his own meat cleaver.

This tale comes from a book entitled "Washington's Generals," and it carries a warning: Don't mess with somebody high on cherry bounce.

Besides evidently adding potency to alcoholic beverages, wild cherries furnish food for many wild animals such as deer, fox, racoons, mice, chipmunks and squirrels. Black bears all but go out of their minds over wild cherries and will skin up trees like lizards to get at the fruit. Birds also feed heavily on the fruit and are a major factor in spreading the seed. Deer and rabbits will feed on sprouts and seedlings even to the extent of destroying all the young plants.

The leaves, twigs and bark of wild cherry contain prussic acid or hydrocyanic acid. Livestock have been killed by eating the wilted leaves. Deer, however, can eat unwilted foliage without ill effects. The bark has been used as a flavoring agent in cough syrups, tonics and sedatives. The fruit is also said wonderful for making jellies.

Good tree, the wild cherry.

to make caskets, a practice that goes back into American history. Daniel Boone is supposed to have built his own coffin out of black cherry lumber.

Back in Colonial times the mention of wild cherry brought to mind something else than corner cupboards and dish shelves. It brought to mind a highly favored, but bitter "fightin' liquor" called cherry bounce. This beverage was produced by adding the juice of wild ripe cherries to rum, brandy, or whisky and was highly potent. So potent in fact, that it caused a tiny wisp of an early Massachusetts tavern serving girl named

Success Spells End To Moose-Hunting

John and Annie Canfield, of Pocatello, Idaho, have both taken their life quota of bull moose while some residents of the state are still waiting their chance to hunt one.

In Idaho permits to hunt certain game in controlled hunting units such as national forests are drawn by lot. Two years ago, Mrs. Canfield, a native of Craynor, drew her permit to hunt moose, which she did with success. This year, her husband drew his permit to hunt in the same unit, Caribou National Forest on Diamond Creek on the Idaho-Wyoming state line. He brought home a 1200-pound bull moose. Thus the Canfields' moose-hunting is ended, for one moose is the lifetime limit per person. If next year either of them draws a permit to hunt moose, then they will forfeit hunting any game in protected areas for that season.

Mrs. Canfield is the daughter of Mrs. Dollie Case, of Craynor, and is a sister of Emil Carroll, of Craynor, and of Amos Carroll, of Harold.

Biologist Says Under-Size Musky Being Taken from Dewey Lake

Before you put a tiger in your livewell or on a stringer measure him carefully. The "tiger" in question is a tiger musky—a cross between muskellunge and northern pike—which the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources has stocked in Dewey Lake. Some fishermen are apparently keeping tiger musky under the legal 30-inch minimum size limit, according to Eastern Fisheries District Biologist Kerry Prather.

The first stocking of tiger musky was made in Dewey in 1975. These fish are now just below the legal size limit, and are starting to live up to their "tiger" namesake by attacking anglers' offerings. Although a 29-inch fish may seem large, it is still under the legal harvestable size, Prather says, adding that allowing the fish to grow for another season will mean some 35 to 40 inch fish for anglers. After a few more years, these fish could weigh 30 to 40 pounds and represent real trophies.

The muskys also serve an important biological function, Prather says, since they eat adult gizzard shad, carp and suckers. This helps keep the population of these rough fish in check and can lead to an improved ecological balance and improved fishing for all game species. "Keeping these undersized tiger muskies is not only illegal," Prather concludes, "but is also harming your chances for trophy fish and for better fishing generally in Dewey Lake. If anglers enjoy catching these fish, then carefully release them, we can establish a new and exciting game fish in this area. But if fishermen persist in keeping undersized fish, we may have to consider dropping Dewey Lake from this stocking program." Tiger musky must be stocked, since they are a hybrid and will not reproduce.

In addition to the 30-inch size limit there is a daily limit of five and a possession limit of 10 on tiger musky.

Head Start Program Goals

The Head Start Program is based on the premise that all children share certain needs, and that children of low income families, in particular, can benefit from a comprehensive developmental program to meet those needs. Parents, not only can the Head Start Program take care of educational training for your children but also medical, emotional and physical needs. We are the program that CARES ABOUT YOU AND YOUR CHILD. If you are interested in what we have to offer please contact Vicki Ann Steele at the Floyd County Board of Education. The phone number is 886-2354. PETE GRIGSBY, JR. Superintendent of the Floyd County School System 10-11-6t.

VA Queries Answered

Q—Can a veteran use his loan guaranty benefit to purchase a home outside the United States?

A—Loan guaranty benefits are available only in the United States, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam and American Samoa.

Q—I am a widow receiving Dependency and Imemnity Compensation. Recently I became entitled to social security benefits. Will my social security payments reduce my DIC?

A—No. The amount of DIC is based on the deceased veteran's military rank. Income is not a factor.

Q—I plan to marry a widow with two children. Will I be eligible for additional education benefits based on these stepchildren?

A—Yes. Step-children living with the veteran are considered dependents of the veteran.

Q—I have a $10,000 National Service Life Insurance policy. I receive a dividend each year and I am using my dividends to purchase paid up additional insurance. Does this additional insurance have a cash and loan value?

A—Yes. Paid up additional insurance has both cash and loan value.

ARC Sets Parley on Children

An Appalachian Regional Commission conference on "Raising a New Generation in Appalachia" will be held Nov. 15-17 in Asheville, N.C., and Kentucky's Appalachian program will be well represented, according to Development Secretary William Short.

"The Development Cabinet is the state agency through which the Commonwealth's ARC program is coordinated; therefore it is very important that those individuals who work on a day-to-day basis with the ARC and Kentucky Appalachia's problems should be involved in this conference," Short said.

Going from the Development Cabinet will be Short; Deputy Secretary Wilburn Pratt, Ralph Coldron, executive director of the Office of Community and Regional Development; his assistant, Executive Director David Bolt, and Sallye Hill Stumbo, community development coordinator.

"The conference will explore ways to equip Appalachian children for new opportunities becoming available to them as the economic conditions improve," Short said.

Students Help Gather Nuts To Feed Wildlife

Youngsters here recently showed their concern for the needs of wildlife during the coming winters.

Members of the Prestonsburg High School biology class helped Bill Pettrey collect approximately 55 pounds of hickory nuts, walnuts, Chinese chestnuts, hazel nuts and acorns to be placed along trails in the Dewey Lake game refuge area.

Mr. Pettrey said the nuts are mainly for squirrels but that grouse will feed on acorns and hazel nuts.

Vice-President Walter F. Mondale, who has served as a member of the Senate Committee on Labor and Public Welfare and chaired the Subcommittee on Children and Youth, will speak Nov. 17. Also attending will be governors of the 13 Appalachian states, including Gov. Julian Carroll, and ARC federal co-chairman, Robert W. Scott.

Contaminated Honey Is Being Removed

Some contaminated honey is being removed from Kentucky IGA stores by its in-state distributor.

The W.T. Sistrunk Company, the Kentucky distributor for IGA Foods, is presently instituting a voluntary recall of the shipment of contaminated honey, said John Draper, manager of the Department for Human Resources food control branch.

The contaminated honey was discovered in a routine inspection by the food control branch, Draper said.

The recalled honey, packed and distributed by J.W. Parrish of Homer, Ga., was found to be contaminated by ants and other filth, plus added corn syrup, he said.

According to Draper, the federal Food and Drug Administration presently is analyzing samples of the honey in order to determine what action will be taken against the packer.

To Prevent Turkey Hangover

With Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays right around the corner, it's time to take precautions against food poisoning caused by America's favorite holiday food—turkey.

"During last year's holiday season there were about 250 cases of food poisoning reported in Kentucky," said John Draper, manager of the Department for Human Resources' food branch.

Improper handling of a frozen turkey as well as improper thawing and preparation can result in food poisoning. The unlucky individual will experience temporary but acute discomfort, such as stomach pains, diarrhea, nausea and fever for from three days up to three weeks, according to Draper.

Turkeys, because they are larger than most poultry, are very susceptible to the growth of harmful bacteria, Draper said. "Turkeys take a long time to thaw and to bake, and this is what gives bacteria time to grow," he explained.

But, according to Draper, proper cooking kills salmonella bacteria, the most common type of food poisoning related to poultry, unless the bacteria are present in an overwhelming quantity. But a thorough cooking is not the only precaution to take to prevent the growth of bacteria, he warned.

Cooks should wash their hands and utensils, cutting boards and surfaces which have been in contact with the uncooked turkey. If this is not done, bacteria can easily spread to other foods which do not require extensive cooking, thus allowing bacteria to multiply rapidly.

Thawing should be done gradually in the refrigerator (below 45 degrees). Never thaw a turkey, refreeze it and thaw it before cooking. If a turkey is thawed in a microwave oven, it should be cooked immediately.

It is safest to cook the turkey and dressing separately. If stuffing is preferred, place the dressing in the turkey immediately before cooking and remove it as soon as cooking is completed. Underdone juices around the bones can drip into the stuffing and induce bacterial growth.

A meat thermometer is the best way to determine when the turkey is done. It should be inserted into the thickest part of the thigh, but not in contact with the bone. Turkey should be baked in a 325-degree oven until the thermometer registers about 190 degrees. If the turkey is stuffed, place the thermometer into the center of the stuffing and bake until the reading is at least 165 degrees.

If a thermometer is not used, test for doneness by moving the leg and thigh. The joints should move easily and the thick part of the thigh should feel soft when pressed.

Never partially cook a turkey one day and finish cooking it the next.

Turkey packaging and cookbooks usually include a chart showing how long to cook turkeys of various weights. Such a chart is a convenient reference, but a meat thermometer is more dependable.

Leftover turkey can be used in variety of ways. Proper storage and handling are important. Meat left after serving should be removed from the bones, placed in shallow pans and refrigerated immediately. A turkey out of the refrigerator is handy for all-day nibbling and later-on sandwiches, but it is also a prime target for salmonella, as is also the case in many other holiday foods. A cooked turkey should never sit at room temperature longer than two hours.

Stuffing should be refrigerated separately. Leftovers which will not be used within a few days should be stored in the freezer.

When using leftovers, handle cold turkey as little as possible and only after hands have been thoroughly washed. Use clean cutting boards and knives.

Food poisoning is not likely to occur when people observe these standard precautions, said Draper. Anyone who experiences one or more of the symptoms of food poisoning—abdominal pain, diarrhea, chills, fever, nausea and vomiting—should consult a physician. Confirmed cases of food poisoning should be reported to local health departments.

World Prayer Meeting To Be Observed Here

The congregation of First Assembly of God, West Prestonsburg, will participate in the "Revivaltime" World Prayer meeting on November 19, at 6 p.m.

According to the Rev. Henry H. Wright, pastor, some 100,000 persons across the nation are expected to participate in more than 1,500 volunteer prayer groups.

The Prayermeeting is organized by "Revivaltime," international radio broadcast of the Assemblies of God, released on approximately 600 stations.

This year some 50,000 prayer needs have been received at the "Revivaltime" offices in Springfield, Missouri.

Each of the prayer groups will receive duplicated lists from the compiled requests. Each prayer partner will be asked to pray for 12 to 15 specific requests.

This year's Prayermeeting marks 21 years of annual prayer emphases by the Assemblies of God Radio-TV Department.

The public is invited to participate in this special observance.

Veterans of the armed forces received a total of $4.7 billion in compensation during 1977 for disability incurred while in service. The amount for individuals is based on degree of disability.

Some '77 Flood Victims To Get Help on Fuel Bills

Congressman Carl D. Perkins has been assured that victims of the April, 1977 flood disaster who are still in government-owned housing will get winter assistance with gas or electric bills. This type of assistance, which amounted to 50 percent of monthly propane, natural gas or electric heating bills, from November through March, was made available last year also, at Congressman Perkins' request. He said it was justified because people who are still in government mobile homes, and have not been able to return to their pre-flood living arrangements, deserve some help with high heating costs.

Pastor-Church Relations

By WILMAY

While no church or member is ever perfect and more than formerly find fault with pastors—none of whom can please everybody—authorities say some clerics do cause grave problems, the same as the laity. Our files contain material from a dozen Christian sources, publications from many faiths, on this subject, compiled for years. No one tries harder to shed light on the question that Dr. C. R. Daley, noted editor of WESTERN RECORDER. Fair to both sides, he does a grand job, using countless articles by other experts. With permission, some excerpts follow:

"We are to lead and not command. We are shepherds, not generals. We are servants, not masters." H. W. Schafer in W. R., 11-17-73.

Next are four paragraphs by Dr. Daley himself:

"A church should keep track of those it ordains. It should not let one it ordained go from church to church leaving a string of unpaid bills, extra marital affairs, or other immoral acts. All advice given pastors is not good. One such piece of advice relates to how to exercise pastoral leadership. It often comes from aggressive, domineering preachers who are successful as some count success but who show little respect or regard for others. They assume they have a direct line to heaven and have the latest word from God. They disregard the feelings and ideas of others and expect unquestioned acceptance of whatever they recommend. Staff members, church officers and committees are not expected to exercise any responsibility except to put into motion and execution the will of the pastor. This kind of pastor finds no place for constructive criticism or loyal opposition.

"A few pastors succeed in this kind of ministerial tyranny. They are very able persons with ability to manipulate people. They maintain allegiance of enough church people to stay in control. Those who oppose their ways eventually become weary of turmoil and lapse into silence or leave.

"These 'great men' confess their 'humility' and proceed to tell how to get the job done. They sometimes chastise their fellow pastors who do not take charge and put in their place any members who question them. They magnify their successes and scarcely mention their defeats.

"They make some converts among their listeners. These are generally persons of a gentle nature who do not take charge and dominate. However, they decide to take the counsel of their heroes and take charge of the church. There are too many pastors and churches today suffering because of this false concept of pastoral leadership. This does not mean a pastor is not to be a leader and to recommend courses of action. It means he expresses his ideas and that he respects those whose ideas are not in complete agreement with his. He is a shepherd and not an ox driver."

So much for the Daley comments. He has had extensive experience and contact with thousands of pastors. Infidelity, immorality, chronic indebtedness, and dictatorship are strong indictments.

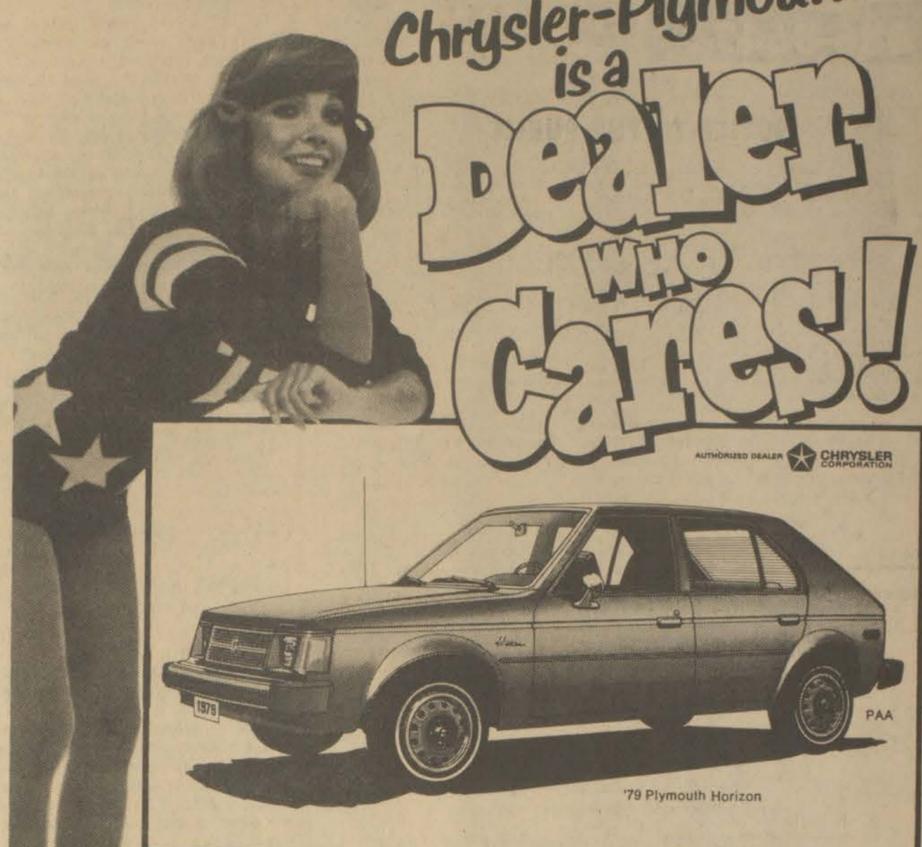

More common charges from others against some pastors are milder, though bad enough: They rarely visit, betray confidences, break promises, show jealousy and ingratitude, complain; have few goals and limited vision; make little progress—blaming predecessors and congregation; pad committees and reports; ignore parliamentary rules and church constitutions; participate in "ministerial grapevines," denouncing members to other pastors and superiors; misrepresent, are sometimes double-minded, and inconsistent.

Quoting clerics of many beliefs, Bruce Buursma's article mentioned in the first of this series was titled, "The Tie That Binds the Clergy to the Church Is Being Undone," something neither side wants. The first pastor he interviewed said, "The thing that's pushing me out is lack of love. My congregation wants me to be a paid lover of souls, but they won't give their love back to me. I simply can't put up with it any more. What's wrong with the American church? Why is the church doing this to its ministers?" (Quote from the Courier-Journal, copyright 1977, used with permission.)

Apparently that pastor's attitude was part of his problem. He forgot that love and all desirable qualities in a church start in the pulpit, and that Christians who love only to be loved live on a low plane. If we give to receive our motive is wrong. Some ministers overflow with so much love that they eliminate or by-pass friction, mobilize an entire church in months, achieve remarkable success wherever they go, like Pastor Joe Brown in Cumberland. (p. 14, W. R. 2-8-78.) Filled with love of God and mankind, truthful, always sincere, they inspire everyone to respond. Instead of wanting to hear old problems—which exist more or less everywhere sometime or other—they stress love, forgiveness, returning good for evil, and serving Christ; practice as well as preach tithing; condemn gossip but never stoop to it; never depend upon others to do their talking; never expect to be upheld by members while undermining some; feel no resentment when a former pastor is wanted for revivals or to officiate in weddings or funerals; judge members, workers, and superiors for themselves, not according to rumors.

One young pastor embodying such traits, brimming with love, enthusiasm, consecration, faith, and prayer, led his new church far in one year. Later he accepted a large church whose warring members had for 20 years asked every pastor to resign. Only a handful heard his "trial" sermon, but in six months he had bridged the chasm of ill will among 200, had every department thriving, and initiated a full program successfully, because: (1.) No church surpasses its earthly head; (2.) God always rewards attributes like that pastor had.

Gen. Assembly Open to Ideas

Have you ever said, "There ought to be a law"? Tell it to the Legislature!

The Kentucky General Assembly says it wants to encourage the people to get involved in the legislative process. The Legislature will not meet until January, 1980, but issues which will be voted on then are being discussed right now.

Legislative committees are meeting regularly in Frankfort and in many cities and towns throughout the state. These committees are listening to people express opinions on issues which will become bills in the 1980 General Assembly.

In a meeting last week the Legislative Research Commission (LRC), the administrative arm of the General Assembly, approved several ideas for improving the operation of the Legislature. One of those ideas was to install a toll-free telephone number which people could call and leave messages or express opinions which would be passed on to legislators. Callers could also receive information on legislative meetings by dialing the number. The telephones will be installed next month and the toll-free number will be widely publicized.

There are several other ways for people to participate in legislative activities:

If you have an idea for a bill or any kind of problem with state government, you should discuss it with your state legislator, or write a personal letter to the legislator. A new legislative committee is going to be reviewing various agencies of state government and is seeking citizen suggestions for agencies which might need to be reviewed.

If you have a suggestion on a law which you think might need to be changed and you don't know who to talk to, send your idea to the Legislative Research Commission, Room 300, State Capitol, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, with the request that it be forwarded to the correct legislative committee for consideration. The LRC will send a copy of your letter to the proper committee and to your local legislators.

If you want to speak to a legislative committee about your idea, you can arrange it through the LRC.

If you are going to Frankfort and would like to attend a legislative committee meeting, call the Legislative Research Commission (502) 564-8100, for complete information on meetings which have been scheduled.

A monthly schedule of meetings is printed in the INTERIM LEGISLATIVE RECORD, a newspaper-type summary of legislative activities. The RECORD is available free of charge by sending your name and address to the Office of the Director, LRC, at the same address as that of the Legislative Research Commission.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Floyd County Board of Education is in the process of completing their enrollment lists for their Head Start Program. The locations for the Head Start Centers are: Clark, Garrett, Martin, Osborne and J. M. Stumbo elementary schools. There are still vacancies left at all of the centers, especially Clark.

The following services will be offered by the program:

Full day program; Two-way transportation by the school bus (if you live near one of our centers); One teacher and one aide for 20 students; Medical and dental check-ups; Immunization program; New classrooms with carpeting, paneling, bathrooms and water fountains (except for Garrett where we will renovate a classroom); New school furniture; New classroom equipment; Breakfast, lunch and a snack plus new cots for naptime.

The program also takes handicapped children who meet the income guidelines set forth by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

All parents with four-year-olds who are interested in enrolling their children in Head Start, please call Vicki Ann Steele at the Floyd County Board of Education. The number there is 886-2354.

Local Drug Seminars Favored

Officials from the state's education and human resources departments last week advised a legislative subcommittee that a statewide seminar on drug abuse scheduled next April might not be as effective in fighting the social problem as holding several local seminars across the state.

Taylor Hollin, deputy director of the Bureau of Instruction in the Department of Education, told the subcommittee on drug abuse, "I personally do not believe that a one-day program will change the (drug-abusing) individual that much...Students have asked, 'If it's so important, how come (the seminar) is only done once a year?'"

Hollin recommended that rather than the single seminar, tentatively planned for next April in Louisville, a continuing program developed by and for local communities would be more successful in emphasizing the drug abuse problem.

Hollin also questioned the subcommittee's planned thrust of the Louisville seminar. He suggested that a seminar should be directed at teachers, school administrators and counselors, parents and community leaders, rather than at middle and high school students alone.

"Drug abuse cannot be solved by the schools alone," Hollin said. "We're pleased that you have this interest. It's the direction (of the subcommittee's efforts) we're questioning."

Hollin said a 1974 state law mandated local school districts to develop a policy and program on alcohol and drug abuse. He said that Kentucky "has the most comprehensive drug education program in the nation."

Hollin's comments were supported by the subcommittee testimony of Howard Rosenberg, manager of the management information branch in the Department for Human Resources. Rosenberg told the subcommittee that a human resources training program for social workers, physicians, clergy, psychologists, school counselors and school teachers limits program participants to between 250 and 300.

Rosenberg said a larger group would be "unmanageable." He also recommended smaller seminars in the local school districts.

David Armstrong, Jefferson county commonwealth attorney, said he agreed with the subcommittee's efforts preparing the Louisville seminar, but agreed with Hollin and Rosenberg that several smaller seminars would be more effective.

However, Armstrong disagreed with Hollin that the local program mandated in the 1974 law has been effective in Jefferson county. "I'm convinced today that (the program) isn't being done in Jefferson county. I don't know about the rest of the state."

Report Says Student Behavior Serious Only in Urban Area

Delinquency, drug abuse, vandalism, truancy and other forms of anti-social student conduct do not pose serious problems for Kentucky schools except those in the state's most populous, urban areas, according to David Jackson, director of the state division of alternative education.

Last spring, the 1978 General Assembly passed legislation instructing the state Department of Education to develop a comprehensive program dealing with student behavior problems on a statewide level but retaining local authority for actual disciplinary measures.

Consequently, an alternative education plan was prepared by the department and approved by the State Board for Elementary and Secondary Education at a recent meeting.

The plan presents guidelines which local school boards may elect to follow in tailoring disciplinary procedures and programs to their particular needs.

"In Kentucky, widespread student misconduct and its disruptive influence are still basically an urban problem," said Jackson. The small size of most Kentucky school districts, he explained, discourages discipline problems characteristic of "big city" environments.

Jackson said the term "alternative" was used to avoid "negative labeling" of students who, for a variety of reasons, have not responded to traditional school programming and create problems for the regular classroom.

"Alternative education may pertain to many different aspects of unconventional schooling," he said, "But we have narrowed our focus to student behavior problems. We're trying to first assess, then apply, some workable alternatives to older, outdated methods of student discipline."

The division of alternative education is strictly a service vendor for school districts, providing leadership and technical assistance in the development of local plans. Such local programs usually are funded through federal grants that require complex application procedures and constant revision.

Jackson said his agency furnishes local school districts with details and evaluations of current alternative projects being studied in many parts of the nation.

"We can't dictate what particular program a school district must follow, or whether it must participate in the first place. Local school officials have a hands-on knowledge of what their problems are and how to address them best. We simply assist those districts that request our assistance."

Fortunately, he said, most small, rural schools are capable of handling disciplinary problems on a case-by-case basis.

The department is monitoring existing alternative projects conducted by the state Department of Justice in several urban areas. Those pilot programs are supported by federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grants.

Previously, the state education department also joined in federally funded programs dealing with juvenile delinquency, truancy and other school related behavior projects. However, those federal funds ran out two years ago.

Since 1976, the department has taken a project-by-project approach, culminating in the draft of the Alternative Education Plan with an appropriate allocation from the state budget for its administration.

National Register Grants Conference Scheduled Nov. 17

Persons owning property listed on the National Register of Historic Places may be interested in attending a grants conference being held by the Kentucky Heritage Commission.

According to Bill Hearn, the commission's preservation grants coordinator, the one-day conference is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m., Friday, November 17 at the Paul Sawyer Library, 305 Wapping Street, Frankfort. Its purpose is to give a summary of regulations and procedures pertaining to the administration of federal grants-in-aid for restoration and rehabilitation projects. It will give participants a chance to ask questions about the grants process.

The conference will cover state and federal regulations, applicant responsibilities, development of project plans and specifications and project administration and completion.

Those interested in attending the conference should contact Sarah Cunningham, Kentucky Heritage Commission, 104 Bridge Street, Frankfort, 40601, or call 502-564-4452.

BENJI REBUFFED

Benji, the dog with a fan club in the United States, won't be coming to Britain to make a planned $5 million movie or $750,000 television show.

British authorities, fighting to keep rabies out of the country, say the celebrated dog would have to spend six months in quarantine as any other dog would.

The Economy and You

This is a first in a series of weekly articles to be published by Students in Free Enterprise (S.I.F.E.), an organization of Business students dedicated to the continuing existence of our Private Enterprise System. Each week key economic topics will be discussed trying to explain the importance to the Eastern Kentucky area.)

Last week President Carter announced an increase of 1 per cent in the Federal Reserve's Discount Rate (this is the interest rate charged to member banks when they borrow funds from the Federal Reserve). With inflation the number one problem in our economy, this increase of 1 percent was deemed necessary to help control inflation in our economy. With the discount rate increase, we will see in the near future local bank interest rates on borrowing money to also increase. Since it costs banks more to borrow from the Federal Reserve, it will also cost you (the consumer) more to borrow from local banks. In other words, credit will become more expensive, hoping that since borrowing cost more, consumers will be discouraged from excessive spending, one cause of inflation. Also affected later on will probably be an increase in savings account interest rates offered by banks. Higher rates on your savings account will stimulate consumers to save more and spend less thus lessening the incentive for excessive spending. So President Carter has taken a major step in halting inflation, as was seen by many as a necessary move to put more confidence back into the American economy and the U.S. dollar. More will be needed, but hopefully business, industry, and consumers will all be interested in helping in the fight against the economy's number one problem.

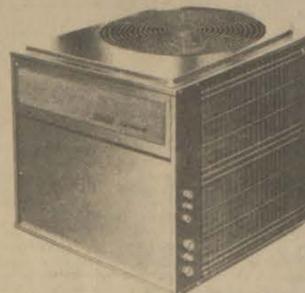

If you have questions on topics that you would like discussed in later issues write to: S.I.F.E., Prestonsburg Community College, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653.

WHAT BRINGS OUT THE CHEESE IN MACARONI AND CHEESE?

What can evaporated milk do for macaroni and cheese? Just what it does for all foods—brings out the special flavor you want to taste most. Try this recipe and see.

- 1 pkg. (7 or 8 Oz.) elbow macaroni
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon oregano, crumbled
- 4 thin slices onion
- 1/2 pound sharp cheddar cheese, shredded (2 cups)
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 can (13 fl. oz.) evaporated milk (1-2/3 cups)
- 1 tomato—cut in wedges
- 1 tablespoon butter, melted
- 2 tablespoons fine dry bread crumbs
- 1/8 teaspoon sweet basil, crumbled

Drop macaroni gradually into 3 quarts briskly boiling water to which 1 tablespoon salt has been added. Cook until macaroni is tender, about 7 minutes. Drain. Place half the macaroni in a well buttered 1-1/2 quart baking dish or casserole. Mix salt, pepper, and oregano. Sprinkle half over macaroni in dish. Break two of the onion slices into rings over macaroni. Layer half the cheddar cheese over, then sprinkle with half the Parmesan. Pour about half the evaporated milk over. Repeat. Bake in preheated moderate oven (350°F) for 30 minutes. Top with tomato wedges. Mix butter, crumbs and sweet basil, then sprinkle over top. Continue baking 10 minutes longer. Four to six servings.
