Classified employees protest differences

by KATHY J. PRATER
FEATURES EDITOR

EASTERN — Serving as spokesperson for classified employees of the Floyd County School System, Loray Huchinson was joined by Tammy Robinson and Glenda Thompson, both also classified employees, in expressing their dissatisfaction with what they feel is unequal treatment between board classified and certified employees.

"Never before, since working for Floyd County schools, have I felt so discriminated against," Huchinson said.

Huchinson was speaking in regard to the proposed 185 calendar day working schedule of board certified employees as opposed to the working schedules of board classified employees.

According to Huchinson, the current proposed working schedules for the 2003-2004 school year have "classified employees working an extra 12 days." Huchinson said that classified employees, who she says often work longer days than certified employees, are not being fairly compensated for their time.

"We always just thought that we had to work the longer days, and we worked," she said. Huchinson said that many teacher aides work beyond what is truly required of them because "the work has to be done."

Reward for missing man grows

by LORETTA BLACKBURN

A Hueysville man, Randy Allen, is offering a $10,000 reward for information leading to the whereabouts of his son, Michael Keith Allen, who has been missing for two years.

Allen last spoke to his son four days prior to May 30, which was the last date he could document the whereabouts of his then-26-year-old son.

It was reported that Michael Keith Allen, gradu-

PRESTONSBURG — What appeared to be a senior prank at Prestonsburg High School has resulted in criminal charges being filed in Floyd District Court against 10 current and former students.

According to a court document, police received a complaint around 2 a.m. Tuesday, stating that several people were walking toward Hardee's on Burke Ave. The complaint led Officer Mike Conn on a run through Burke and then to the high school when he didn't find anyone on that avenue. He stated that he found several subjects behind the school, who ran through an open back door when they saw him. He reported that 11 subjects were involved, 10 of whom were cited on first-degree criminal trespassing and second-degree criminal mischief charges.

PIKEVILLE — A Pikeville woman arrested for jury tampering while on trial May 22 saw the charge waived to a grand jury yesterday.

When Judge Darrell Mullins ordered a break from the trial of Angela Tenille Smith, 26, he warned that no one was to discuss the case during lunch, said Richard Leathers, of the Pike County Sheriff's Department.

However, Leathers reported that two jurors returned from lunch and informed Mullins that Smith had been in the waiting area and had allegedly been talking about the case rather loudly.

Judge Mullins revoked Smith's current bond, resetting it for $5,000 cash after telling the county attorney to seek a charge of jury tampering against Smith. Leathers then arrested Smith on the charge that day.

Smith was scheduled for a jury trial on May 22 in relation to a Dec. 18, 2002, incident in which she was arrested for public intoxication, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. A new trial has been scheduled for Sept. 18 in PRESTONSBURG — Melissa Coleman, the Pike County woman arrested along with Ohio native Anthony Scott Ward for allegedly engaging in a sexual act near a kid's playground at Archer Park on Memorial Day, is a child therapist employed with Mountain Comprehensive Care, the agency verified yesterday.

Personnel representatives with Mountain Comprehensive Care said they could not comment on reports that moves were being made to replace Coleman following her arrest this past Monday, but did verify that Coleman's position took her back and forth from MCC's Pikeville and Prestonsburg locations.

Coleman, 27, was arrested along with 40-year-old Ohio Wal-Mart

Odds & Ends

■ ELIZABETHTOWN, Pa. — Rock smashes scissors. Paper covers rock. Scissors cut paper. Student insists there's a deeper meaning.

Thomas Shaffer, who organized a rock-paper-scissors tournament at his high school, says the game is based on patterns, so the odds of winning increase when a player better observes his opponent.

"At first I was one of the believers that it is a game of luck," Shaffer said. "I'll let you in on a little secret: Most people open with scissors. Novice players rarely throw the same thing twice in a row."

Shaffer recruited 75 classmates at Elizabethtown Area High School to compete, got the school to let him hold the contest in the gym and even convinced a sponsor to donate money for trophies. A dairy donated chocolate milk.

Shaffer managed to back up his bluster about the game's intricacies, making the final round by winning 19 matches in a row.

But in the end, he lost to Jeff Leggett.

"It's not about luck," Leggett said. "It's about being on your game. Some days you can't pick up patterns."

Shaffer is scheduled to graduate next week, but Leggett, a junior, said he will organize next year's tournament.

■ LINCOLN, Neb. — A Nebraska lawmaker is so fed up with constituents crossing the state border to gamble that she proposed going to war with neighboring Iowa.

"I've been cautioned that the members of the Iowa Legislature might not take it kindly," said Sen. Pam Brown of Omaha.

Brown's proposed amendment read: "The sovereign state of Nebraska declares a state of hostility with the sovereign state of Iowa until such a time as the state of Iowa ceases the unjust and relentless appropriation of the resources of the citizens of Nebraska."

Brown offered the amendment to a proposed constitutional amendment that would ask votes to approve casino gambling in Nebraska.

She said she offered the tongue-in-cheek proposal to get her colleagues focused on the seriousness of the issue.

Supporters of the casino measure have complained that Nebraskans spend an estimated $250 million a year at casinos in Council Bluffs, Iowa, just across the border from Omaha.

Brown later withdrew the amendment.

■ WINFIELD, W.Va. — Putnam County school officials are getting a taste of what it's like to hold sway in Hollywood.

Putnam County Schools Superintendent Sam Sentelle had told three principals earlier this month to reject offers from the film studio DreamWorks Productions to shoot footage at their schools, fearing negative portrayals of West Virginia.

After learning more about the plot for "Win a Date With Tad Hamilton," Sentelle decided the romantic comedy would show West Virginia in a better light than another upcoming movie, "Wrong Turn."

That movie, which is being released Friday, features a group of teenagers who are stranded in the woods of West Virginia and hunted down by "cannibalistic mountain men grossly disfigured through generations of inbreeding," according to publicity materials for the film.

Sentelle said reaction to "Win a Date with Tad Hamilton" has been positive.

The film, starring Kate Bosworth ("Blue Crush") and Topher Grace ("That '70s Show"), is about Rosalee, a Piggly Wiggly grocery store worker who wins a date with Hollywood star Tad Hamilton. When she returns home to West Virginia, she has to choose between the celebrity and an old friend.

The movie will be filmed mostly in Los Angeles and is scheduled for release in 2004.

■ JACKSON, Mo. — It's certain that Eulah Detweiler graduated from high school, but she's not going to be able to prove it until the Dumeys family finds her.

The Dumeys consider themselves lucky after their home in southeast Missouri survived a May 6 tornado that spread debris throughout town — including the high school diploma of a Detweiler, dated June 17, 1932.

The diploma was from Hyde Park High School, a public school in Chicago.

Problem was, none of the neighbors knew the name, and no Detweilers are listed in the Jackson phone book.

Laura Dumeys contacted the Southeast Missourian newspaper in Cape Girardeau Tuesday, hoping that publicity might get the diploma to its rightful owner, but the mystery remains: Neither the local chapter of the American Red Cross nor the Federal Emergency Management Agency has assisted anyone with that last name.

Judge reinstates ousted Inez mayor

The Associated Press

INEZ — A judge has reinstated Inez Mayor Richard K. Penix, who was removed from office by the City Commission in April.

Special Judge Danny Caudill ordered that Penix be restored to the position because the commission did not allow him to defend himself in a removal hearing on April 22.

The commission charged Penix with willful neglect and misconduct in office, removed him from the position and named Joe Hammond as the new mayor.

Caudill, a circuit judge in Floyd County, said Penix was effectively denied the opportunity to submit evidence to defend himself and was not permitted to cross examine witnesses who testified against him.

"It's the same petty battles that go on in every city council and every fiscal court, but this has just reached a new level," said Ned Pillersdorf, a Prestonsburg attorney representing Penix.

City Commissioner Ann Maynard said Wednesday that Pillersdorf's characterization is inaccurate.

"We are doing what's in the best interest of the city," she said. "We can't stand back and let him do things without our approval."

Maynard said the commission plans to convene another hearing at which charges will again be leveled against Penix. No date had been set for that hearing.

Meanwhile, Maynard said Hammond is resigning as mayor. Hammond couldn't immediately be reached for comment on Wednesday.

Board debates how to spend $90,000

by KATHY J. PRATER
FEATURES EDITOR

EASTERN — Again, budget allocations and student-teacher ratios were brought up for discussion at Tuesday's Floyd County Board of Education meeting.

Matt Wireman, board finance director, submitted a tentative budget proposal that was accepted by the board and applauded by board member Mickey McGuire and board chair Carol Stumbo. Both members recognized Wireman's work on the budget and McGuire expressed appreciation of time that Wireman spent with him explaining the coded budget reports and monetary projections of the currently proposed $4.1 million budget.

McGuire followed with a proposal on how to spend at least a portion of the approximately $90,000 of thus far un-located funds. McGuire proposed that the board set aside $30,000 of these funds to be used in the upcoming school year to offer monetary "rewards to successful school principals." McGuire supported his proposal by noting that "school principals make the single most important impact" on children and the communities in which they live.

"We have lost good principals, some of the best we've ever had," said McGuire, "to other counties. The best thing that can ever happen to a teacher is a good principal. The best thing that can ever happen to a child is a good principal. I would like for Dr. Fanning to present a formula to the board by July [allowing for principal rewards.]"

Board member Glenna Slone took issue with McGuire's suggestion, saying that she believes that "the budget committee should be the ones to make that recommendation."

Further, Slone attested that she feels the extra funds could "best be used on other things, like textbooks." Slone said that before the board looked at providing monetary rewards to principals that they should first look into other issues such as transportation, construction and classified employee issues.

"We need to use this money wisely," Slone said.

Nava Jo Austin, a parent of a student who attends Prestonsburg High School, addressed the board in regard to inequity in student-teacher ratio formulas currently in use across the county. Austin said that she believes the Prestonsburg school was being treated unfairly according to the current allocation formulas.

Austin said that she had checked the student-teacher ratios in neighboring counties, including Johnson, Pike, Lawrence and Martin, and that she had found that "PHS has the highest student-teacher ratio" of most of the other counties and in Floyd County. The student-teacher ratio of PHS is currently 17-1.

Austin questioned why a school with a student enrollment as high as Prestonsburg's approximately 600 should have a higher student-teacher ratio than other county high schools.

Board member Glenna Slone said that some of the smaller high schools had to have more teachers in order to be able to offer more classes.

"Is it fair if schools with an enrollment of 400 can't offer needed courses? And, they still can't even as it is," Slone said.

Austin posed the question, "Well, is it fair to PHS?"

Board member McGuire said that he felt that Austin was "absolutely right" and that he, too, believes the allocation is unfair.

On another issue, McGuire brought the board's attention to the fact that he believes that the board "could possibly be in violation of the open meetings law" when a majority of board members appear at various committee meetings and engage in discussion while there.

"If three or more of us meet in the hallway and discuss school business, that is a violation of open meeting laws. I'm very concerned that having several board members present at varying committee meetings may be violating that law," he said.

McGuire said that he had drafted a letter in regard to his concerns to board attorney, Mike Schmitt, and Schmitt responded that he is currently investigating the matter.

In other business, the board voted to accept state funds to spend for school consolidation projects and to also consider the use of computers at board meetings in an effort to eliminate the cost of putting together expansive board packet informational materials.

Allen said that his son had always called at least weekly. He offered a $3,000 reward in Aug. 2001, but has increased it to $10,000 in hopes of finding his oldest son, who Allen said "will be 28 in September."

Det. Joey Howard, of Kentucky State Police, is investigating officer in the case and

Two of the young men cited were in last year's graduating class, Charles A. White, 19, of Prestonsburg, and Christopher Jervis, 19, of Endicott.

The other eight charged were seniors, Melissa E. Slone, 18, Kevin Jarrell, 18, Carly J. Bingham, 18, Evan C. McNutt, 18, Rudy M. Pennington, 18, Josh A. Pennington, 18, and Leslie A. Heinze, 18, all of Prestonsburg, as well as Kevin D. Jervis, 18, of Endicott.

Floyd County Superintendent Paul Fanning reported that Principal Ron Hampton received a phone call from police at around 2:30 a.m. and Hampton contacted him just prior to 6 a.m. Fanning said that he was informed that "hundreds of crickets" were released inside the school and that "fish bait and fish guts" were smeared in the school.

"They hadn't been there long," said Conn, who estimated that the pranksters had been there approximately 2-to-3 minutes when he got there. He reported that a lot of the bait was still in containers.

Fanning said that Hampton reported that all students, prior and current, were cited with the current students receiving a suspension.

Task force arrests man on possession charge

by SHELDON COMPTON

MARTIN — A Martin man was arrested Tuesday on various drug charges following an investigation by Martin City Police and the Floyd County Drug Task Force.

Police said that at about 6:45 p.m. Tuesday, Ronald G. Stone, 65, of Martin, was arrested near his home by members of the Martin City Police, the Prestonsburg City Police and the Floyd County Sheriff's Office and charged with second-degree possession of a controlled substance, two counts of third-degree possession of a controlled substance and carrying a concealed deadly weapon.

Police confiscated a total of 382 schedule III and IV prescription pills and over $8,300 in cash after Stone's arrest.

The investigation, which is continuing with other arrests possible, was initiated based on information developed by the Martin Police Department.

All participating agencies request any drug-related information be reported to the sheriff's office or police departments in Martin or Prestonsburg.

manager Anthony Scott Ward Tuesday afternoon after Prestonsburg police received a call reporting a possible domestic abuse situation taking place at the park.

When police arrived, they reported finding the pair engaged in what Floyd County Attorney Keith Bartley said could best be described as "rough foreplay". Police said they found Ward allegedly using a boat oar to beat and spank Coleman, who was bound with leather straps on a picnic table about 15 feet from where children were playing in a nearby park.

Bartley said a charge of indecent exposure wasn't applicable in this situation.

"They had apparently just got started when the police got there," Bartley said. "So they stopped them before they had a chance to get too far. They were just basically engaged in rough foreplay. It was good that they got there before anything else could happen, but, as a result, they only get the disorderly charge and we don't have enough to prosecute them on anything more than maybe a concealed weapons charge, and that's sad."

Bartley said his office was considering possibly tacking on a charge of carrying a concealed deadly weapon after viewing the items confiscated after Coleman and Ward were taken into custody on separate charges of disorderly conduct.

In addition to the orders made by Judge Friend on Thursday, he stated that Smith was to have "no contact with the witness."

Classified

In regard to a board consent agenda item that appeared on the meeting agenda Tuesday evening, board member Mickey McGuire questioned the policy discrepancy between classified and certified board members and wondered aloud why the policy was clear on the issue of certified employees and the length of their working day, but unclear in regard to the same issue when it came to classified employees.

The attending classified personnel broke into applause when McGuire made his query.

Board attorney Mike Schmitt said that the matter could not be dealt with until a future board meeting and board chair Carol Stumbo said that the superintendent should be granted the time needed to look into the matter.

McGuire insisted that the item was on the agenda and that it could be dealt with that evening saying, "We can look at it and vote to amend it."

The remaining board members, however, voted to address the item at a later date.

Editorial roundup

The Herald, Rock Hill, S.C., on President Bush's tax cut:

Two years ago, Congress, at the urging of the White House, passed a $1.3 trillion tax cut, the largest in U.S. history. Since then, the unemployment rate has risen to 6 percent, the stock market has remained in the doldrums, most sectors of the economy are in a slump and the Congressional Budget Office forecasts a deficit in excess of $300 billion this year, an all-time record.

More tax cuts is the Bush administration's first recourse no matter what the state of the economy. When the nation boasted a surplus during the early days of the Bush presidency, the White House called for tax cuts. Now that the surplus is a dim memory, the prescription still is tax cuts.

And that is what Congress delivered on a largely party-line vote. Last week, House and Senate Republicans tentatively agreed on a framework for a $350 billion, 10-year tax-cut plan. ... The lion's share of the savings will go to the wealthiest taxpayers.

Proponents of the Bush plan gained the support of some skeptical moderate Republicans in the Senate by agreeing to phase in the tax cuts and limiting them to three years. But that's just an accounting gimmick. Only the most gullible believe that the higher tax levels will be reinstated in three years. ...

The Gainesville (Fla.) Sun, on spam:

The deluge of spam e-mails is prompting legislators to pass federal anti-spam laws that will protect Americans from junk.

Americans are drowning in "spam." Unsolicited, unwanted, frequently pornographic and very often fraudulent junk e-mail ads have become the curse of the Internet age.

And it's not just that spam has become a nuisance, something to be deleted as a matter of course every time one checks one's e-mail. The proliferation of junk e-mail advertising takes a toll on the economy in the form of lost productivity and is overwhelming government, business and personal information systems. ...

Only a handful of states have enacted anti-spam laws, but it looks as though Congress may finally be ready to confront the problem. ...

The deluge of unsolicited, sometimes vulgar and often fraudulent e-mail has become more than a minor nuisance. It's been estimated that junk ads now make up more than 45 percent of the e-mail received in America. Unless Congress acts to put a stop to the worst abuses, spam will clog the Information Highway and a valuable social, educational and economic asset will have been squandered.

In the moment

Conscious intentions

I am reading an interesting book called "Flow", which talks about how our consciousness is guided by our intentions. The idea of the book is to learn how to control one's conscious thoughts in order to obtain the optimal living experience regardless of what is going on in the outside world. The concept is that it is a human being's decision to be happy or sad at any given time.

Of course, one will not adhere to the idea unless capable of taking responsibility for one's emotions, which I have been able to do about 70 percent of the time after some really hard work.

I used to look at someone who had done something that I didn't like and I would say, "You made me mad." The ideas expressed in "Flow" say that I have to look at the situation and say "I allowed what you did to make me mad because of the way I perceived the incident." The book suggests that we can take our framing tools and derive the best from any situation by evaluating it to suit our needs. I can recall incidents in my life in which intentions really have shaped my conscious perception of things and the framework has led to my overall evaluation of situations. Looking back with a different consciousness, I see things much differently because my intentions have changed. The concept is empowering as a person realizes that good intentions will derive good perceptions.

I have found a path back to more positive thinking, because I realize that it really is a choice and it really is mine.

The shameful greed of airline CEOs

by JIM HIGHTOWER

"United We Stand," shout the red, white, and blue CEOs of America's airlines as they rush to Washington to explain that their industry needs $3 billion in taxpayer subsidies to keep flying in these perilous economic times.

Meanwhile, back at headquarters, these same CEOs are shouting quite a different message at their employees. Instead of "United We Stand," it's "You're On Your Own," as the top dogs are firing thousands and demanding cuts of one-third to one-half in the paychecks of the employees that remain, plus making huge cuts in worker pensions.

Well, harrumph the CEOs, we're accepting cuts in our pay, too! Look at Glenn Tilton, head honcho at United Airlines. Poor Glenn took an 11 percent salary whack last year and is taking another 14 percent this year, they point out, tears welling in their eyes at the thought of Tilton's sacrifice in the common cause.

Yeah, "poor Glenn" is down to only $712,000 in salary this year. But wait... there's more. He's also getting $1.5 million in stock payments this year, a $3 million "signing bonus," and a special $4.5 million pension payment. His total haul is nearly $10 million. Talk about your friendly skies.

Likewise, ol' Leo Mullins at Delta Airlines says he's cutting his salary to barely $600,000 this year, as well as giving up some $6 million in bonuses and stock payments. What a guy, huh? Before giving him the Golden Heart Award, however, let's note that he quietly is pocketing millions in corporate cash for a special pension fund he set up for himself this year — including extra payments to cover the taxes that he will owe on the special pension. Now that's putting the gold in the "golden years," isn't it?

Senator John McCain, for one, believes we should not bail out airlines until the CEO ripoffs end.

A rich, absorbing saga: 'The Wire' returns for its second season

by FRAZIER MOORE
AP TELEVISION WRITER

NEW YORK — When it premiered last summer, "The Wire" was labeled "smart" — a terrible burden to bear, even for an HBO drama series. The implication: Watching this is work.

It's not true with "The Wire," which asks only two things from its audience: attention and patience. (Its new 12-episode run begins Sunday at 10 p.m., following the season finale of "Six Feet Under" at 9 p.m.)

"The Wire" might be described as a drama about law enforcers and law breakers in Baltimore, each doing their thing with minimal success. Last year, it focused on a drug gang in the city's squalid projects (the series title refers to drug surveillance by the narcs).

The drug war rages on. But now the action has expanded to the city's crumbling waterfront, where jobs are disappearing and dock workers jockey for the limited shifts.

In the season opener, you are reacquainted with Detective Jimmy McNulty, who, as punishment for his inconvenient conduct in Homicide last season, has now been reassigned to a police boat — duty for which he is so ill-suited, "I can't tell the aft from the stern."

Then, while on patrol, he finds the body of a young woman floating in the harbor. He is about to become inconvenient again.

McNulty (played by Dominic West) wrestles with opposing urges in life. His smirking, arch indifference does regular battle with a righteous need to relieve his own boredom. Plus, he's incredibly stubborn.

McNulty is at the center of "The Wire," but this is a drama crisscrossed by numerous storylines and a crowd of characters.

The common denominator: work. The lack of it, and what you do to fill the vacuum. Or, for those who have jobs, the gnawing discontent work can inflict. On "The Wire," the characters — whether dealers, laborers or cops — spend a lot of time seeking work or, if they have it, trying to deflect it onto others while they look for an easier angle.

It's all about bureaucracy and paperwork, not results. Everybody seems to understand the system is out of whack, so one way or another they must beat it.

Frank Sobotka (Chris Bauer), the head of the dying dockworkers' union, wants to see the canal dredged, which he reckons would mean a revival in shipping and new jobs for his men. But this doesn't look promising. No wonder he takes bribes for help in getting contraband freight through inspection.

Baltimore police Major Stanislaus Valchek (Al Brown) has a score to settle with Sobotka and his longshoremen, who have made a bigger donation to the local Polish-American Catholic parish than Valchek and his fellow cops were able to do.

How (Valchek asks himself) can a shriveled union membership afford such largess? Institutionalizing his vendetta, Valchek mounts a task force to flush out union corruption in a campaign to nail Sobotka.

This lends accidental irony to an exchange between Sobotka and Port Authority police officer Beatrice Russell (Amy Ryan)

$276.2 million is Kentucky's share of federal windfall

The Associated Press

FRANKFORT — Kentucky expects to receive $276 million from a windfall in new tax-cut and spending legislation passed by Congress, the state's top budget official said Thursday.

A bit more than half the money — $138.8 million — is to be a "shot in the arm" to Medicaid.

It is "much-needed help," though not enough to cover Medicaid's projected shortfall in the fiscal year that begins July 1, Acting State Budget Director Mary Lassiter told a legislative subcommittee.

The new federal legislation provided $20 billion to state and local governments to be paid over two years. Half the money was earmarked for Medicaid. Unlike ordinary Medicaid funding, states are not required to put up matching money.

"It's intended to be a one-time shot in the arm for states," Lassiter said.

Medicaid is a $4 billion a year program in Kentucky. Gov. Paul Patton ordered $250 million in cuts to balance the program in the current fiscal year, which ends June 30. The newly enacted state budget assumes a $169 million shortfall the following year.

The rest of the money, $137.4 million, is to come to the state as a "flexible grant." Lassiter said it was not clear whether the state would receive a 50 percent installment in the current year or all the money in fiscal 2004.

Lassiter testified to a House-Senate subcommittee on preparation of the budget for the 2004-2006 biennium.

McGuire calls for board to revisit its principles

by KATHY J. PRATER
FEATURES EDITOR

EASTERN — Tuesday evening's meeting of the Floyd County Board of Education, held at Allen Central High School, began with the newest member of the board, Earl M. "Mickey" McGuire, district 1, posing the question of a possible reconsideration of board operating principles to his fellow board members.

The principles to which McGuire referred were adopted by existing board members less than two years ago and were formulated, in large part, during board team development sessions conducted by Tim Holt, of the Kentucky School Boards Association.

Among the principles adopted by the existing board members at the time of the work sessions, which began in the summer of 2001, are what Betty Rowland, of the Floyd County Education Association, termed Tuesday evening as "lovely sentiments."

The existing principles speak of providing "exemplary leadership" through, for one, "respectful behavior" and "thoughtful analysis, and by "not knowingly surprising one another." The principles further reflect an effort to "disagree agreeably," "seek to understand," and to "contribute positively to discussions."

McGuire's primary objection to the principles as presently outlined was to the one statement pertaining to the principle that individual board members have "no authority." According to McGuire the principles as set out "de-emphasize the importance of this board."

McGuire said that he feels individual board members "have a duty and a responsibility" to both accept successes as well as taking responsibility for failures.

"We rank 167th out of 174 school districts," he said, adding that "Our schools are pathetic."

McGuire said that by de-emphasizing the importance of the board, board members are not accepting the failures of the school system. "We represent the people of our districts. These people have no voice in choosing their superintendent ... only their board members. We are the only voice these citizens have," he said.

Board member Glenna Slone, district 5, took opposition with McGuire's words saying that "these failures did not happen overnight. We have improved."

McGuire responded, "How is being 167th out of 174 doing better? We are failing and we fail to recognize that."

McGuire defended Floyd County children by saying that "our children are just as smart and capable" as children in other districts and that "they deserve better."

"By rewriting these principles, we can better recognize the responsibility of each individual board member. As written now, they seem to reflect that we are satisfied with the status quo. Let's make it known that we are dissatisfied with the status quo. We are not here to keep things the same, but to improve things. That's why I'm here," he said.

Board chair Carol Stumbo, district 4, asked McGuire if he would like to make a motion to rewrite the board operating principles, which he did. The motion, however, died for lack of a second.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

SALOME ONE OF THE BIBLE'S DRAMATIC CHARACTERS, HAS INSPIRED STORIES, PLAYS, BOOKS, OPERAS, AND MORE THAN ONE MOVIE! NUMBERS OF ARTISTS HAVE PAINTED THIS SEDUCTIVE, DESTRUCTIVE YOUNG WOMAN WHOSE DANCE SO ENRAGED KING HEROD THAT HE VOWED, "ASK OF ME WHATSOEVER THOU WILT, AND I WILL GIVE IT THEE." THAT RASH PROMISE COST JOHN THE BAPTIST HIS HEAD WHICH SALOME DEMANDED—AND GOT—ON A PLATTER! BUT...

NO ONE KNOWS IF HER NAME WAS 'SALOME'—IN FACT, SHE HAD NO NAME AT ALL! IN THE TWICE-TOLD TALE (MATT 14:6-11; MARK 6:22-28) SHE IS NEVER CALLED ANYTHING EXCEPT "THE GIRL" OR "THE DAUGHTER OF HERODIAS," THE NAME SALOME APPEARS BUT TWICE IN THE BIBLE (MARK 15:40, 16:1) AND DESCRIBES ONE OF THE WOMEN WHO, ALONG WITH MARY MAGDALENE AND MARY MOTHER OF JESUS, WERE AT THE CRUCIFIXION—HARDLY THE KIND OF WOMAN WHO WOULD DO A SALACIOUS DANCE BEFORE HER STEP-FATHER!

ALDOUS HUXLEY'S PAINTING—SALOME (METSUCHAN) FROM "METSUCHAN" BY ALDOUS HUXLEY, NEW YORK.

Crum promoted to lieutenant

ROTA, Spain — Danielle Crum, daughter of Air Force Technical Sergeant and Mrs. Bradley Crum, was promoted May 23 to Naval JROTC Lieutenant Junior Grade at Rota Naval Air Station, in Rota, Spain. Crum will be serving in the capacity of Operations Officer for the unit. Cadet Crum also sang the National Anthem at the promotion ceremony. Her proud father had the privilege of being the first to salute Lt. Crum. Lt. Crum was also awarded outstanding Cadet of 2003. One of Danielle's recent accomplishments was being awarded one of U.S. Air Force's Europe's Youth of the Year Award. Danielle and her mother will be traveling to Washington, D.C., to be presented the award at the Pentagon in June. Danielle is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Billy W. Duff of Garrett and Mr. and Mrs. Daniel F. Crum of Martin and great-granddaughter of Mrs. Amanda Music of Abbott.

who, making her rounds, greets him by joking, "Just so I can finish my paperwork early, what kind of stuff are your people going to be stealing today?" "Maybe a whole container ship," Sobotka grins. As for McNulty, bored out of his mind on harbor patrol, he can't help meditating on the death of his waterlogged Jane Doe. His interest is heightened by his up-yours attitude toward the bosses who banished him from Homicide: This case, if ruled a murder, would become their headache to solve. At hour's end the mystery multiplies with Russell's shocked discovery of undeclared perishable cargo. Eventually the bewildering case will fall to McNulty and Russell, a novice whose previous job was taking tolls on I-95. Nothing happens in a hurry. "The Wire" was created by David Simon, a former police reporter for The (Baltimore) Sun who also worked on two other Baltimore-based TV series — "Homicide: Life on the Street" and "The Corner." Knowing this, you should know better than to count on the storytelling patterns and rhythms of a typical weekly drama. More than any series on American TV, "The Wire" unfolds like a novel, with richness and deliberative pacing. Its density absorbs you, putting you in the middle of things. Just as if you were physically present at the docks, or the squad room, or the blue-collar bar where the workers occupy their down time, you have to engage with the surrounding action. That's your job on "The Wire": attention and patience. The payoff is terrific.

Former editor of two newspapers dies at 79

The Associated Press

HAZARD — Louise B. Hatmaker, former editor, publisher and owner of The Jackson Times and The Beattyville Enterprise, died of complications from cancer Sunday at a nursing home. She was 79.

Hatmaker ran the two newspapers for 30 years before selling them in the mid-1990s.

The longtime journalist, who began her career as a reporter at The Hazard Herald in the 1960s, received many awards for her work in journalism.

In April, Hatmaker was inducted into the Kentucky Journalism Hall of Fame.

She was active in the Kentucky Press Association, and was awarded the Russell Metz Most Valuable Member Award in 1997. In the 1980s, she received the Edwards M. Templin Award for outstanding community service from the Herald-Leader.

The Hazard native was a graduate of Cumberland College and attended Eastern Kentucky State Teachers College.

Survivors include a daughter, a brother and two granddaughters.

A memorial service will be held at 11 a.m. Saturday at First Baptist Church in Hazard.

Home-run hitting Reds not unlike '56 squad

by BILLY REED
TIMES COLUMNIST

The current Cincinnati Reds are on a pace to break the team's record of 221 home runs in a season, set in 1956 when the Reds played in Crosley Field at the corner of Vine and Findlay. That team, the first to wear the sleeveless jerseys, was one of the most exciting in Reds' history.

Going into the '56 season, the Reds had posted losing records for 11 consecutive seasons. But much to the delight of the long-suffering Crosley fans, the Reds turned it around dramatically.

They led the National League much of the season and were featured on the cover of a relatively new magazine named Sports Illustrated.

The main reasons for the turnaround were a rookie left-fielder named Frank Robinson and a power surge the likes of which had never been seen in Cincinnati.

The Reds' didn't have their

Rain-soaked odds and ends from district-tournament week;

Many say the regular season is a dress rehearsal for the playoffs, and that has surely been the case as the post-season began this week in high school baseball and softball.

It's not so much that the play has been similar, or the results, as it is the weather. Mother Nature has proven she's no more fond of district-tournament week than the

"We figured our toughest game would be that first game against Prestonsburg," said Patton. "We trailed the whole game against Prestonsburg before we came back. Ninety-percent of our games this season, we've played from behind. You can't take anything away from Betsy Layne, they came out ready to play tonight."

DRIFT — Allen Central has played from behind much of the season. Head coach Ronnie Patton will be the first to tell you that. When the championship game of the 58th District Tournament rolled up on Wednesday at Drift Park, Allen Central again found itself in a hole, trailing 2-0 as late as the third inning. Then the Rebels came alive. Allen Central battled back from the 2-0 deficit to beat Betsy Layne 7-4 behind the strong arm of Shannon Moore.

Going the distance, Moore recorded the win. The victory gave Coach Ronnie Patton a district championship in his first season in the Rebel dugout. Allen Central's quest for a third straight title really took shape on Memorial Day when the Rebels hung on to beat a scrappy Prestonsburg team. Patton and his coaching staff weren't overlooking any team or any game heading into the post-season.

"We figured our toughest game would be that first game against Prestonsburg," said Patton. "We trailed the whole game against Prestonsburg before we came SALYERSVILLE — Sheldon Clark continued its journey toward a 15th Region title Tuesday night with a come-from-behind win over Johnson Central.

The Cards (21-7) rallied from an early 6-0 deficit to defeat Johnson Central, 12-9, and earn the school's second ever 57th District title at Ramey Memorial Park, home of the Magoffin County Hornets.

"This is the best feeling in the world," SCHS Coach Mike Hall said after the game.

The game, which lasted over four hours, was suspended in the second inning for 45 minutes due to inclement weather.

first black player, Chuck Harmon, until 1954, seven years after Jackie Robinson had broken the big-league color barrier with the Brooklyn Dodgers. But Harmon was, at best, a journeyman. Frank Robinson was destined to the Reds' first African-American star.

Robinson came out of McClymonds High School in Oakland, the alma mater of basketball superstar Bill Russell, who had just led San Francisco to its second consecutive NCAA title.

A fearless right-handed hitter who crowded the plate, Robinson hit with power, ran the bases aggressively, and was at his best in the clutch. Late in the season, when the Reds were involved in a tense three-way pennant fight with the Dodgers and the Milwaukee Braves, Robinson slid so hard into third base against the Braves that he and Eddie Mathews, the Braves'

All-Star third-baseman, became embroiled in a vicious fistfight. Robinson hit a team-leading 38 homers in '56, tying the National League rookie record set by the Braves' Wally Berger in 1938. Responding to Robinson's lead, rightfielder Wally Post slugged 36 out of the park, first-baseman Ted Kluszewski 35, centerfielder Gus Bell (of Louisville) 35, and catcher Ed Bailey 28.

Third-baseman Ray Jablonski added 15, and reserves Smokey Burgess, George Crown, and Bob "Swish" Thurman added 12, 10, and eight homers, respectively.

The only non-sluggers were second-baseman Johnny Temple and shortstop Roy McMillan, who hit a total of five homers.

Unfortunately for the Reds, their pitching staff was, to be kind, ordinary.

The ace of the staff was Brooks Lawrence, who had a 19-10 record. Star reliever Herschel Freeman had a 14-5 record and 18 saves. But the lowest earned-run average among the Reds' starting rotation - Lawrence, Joe Nuxhall, Johnny Klippstein, and Hal Jeffcoat - was 3.72.

So the '56 Reds always seemed to be winning games by scores such as 9-8 or 12-10. They once hit eight homers in a single game against the Braves. For the season, they had 44 homers in 22 games against the Dodgers.

Alas for the Reds, they faltered in the last two weeks of the season and finished third. The Dodgers won the pennant with a 93-61 record, followed by Milwaukee at 92-62 and Cincinnati and 91-63.

But the 91 victories were 16 more than the '55 team, a significant improvement. That put the Reds on the path to win the 1961 pennant for manager Fred Hutchinson. In the World Series, they lost to the Roger Maris-Mickey Mantle Yankees who had clouted 240 homers, a new big-league record.

So far the current team reminds me of the '56 bunch.

With Adam Dunn, Austin Kearns (of Lexington), Aaron Boone, Ken Griffey Jr., and Sean Casey, the Reds have a new Murderer's Row of sluggers that brings to mind Robinson, Kluszewski, Post, Bell, and Bailey.

Also like the '56 team, the current Reds' pitching has been mediocre, at best. As the summer unfolds, the Reds might be inclined to call up some of their promising young pitchers at Louisville and Chattanooga. They may not be quite ready, but they also may be better than what the Reds have right now.

Like Crosley, the Reds' new Great American Park seems to be friendly to long-ball hitters. The pitchers may not like it, yet good pitchers will do well in any park. Among the pitchers who won at least 20 games for the Reds during their Crosley days were Bucky Walters, Paul Derringer, Ewell "The Whip" Blackwell, Jim Maloney, Bob Purkey, and Joey Jay.

Let's hope the current team continues to be imbued with the spirit of '56.

The great thing about having a bunch of sluggers is that, no matter how many runs you might fall behind, you're never out of a game.

Two big innings, the fourth and fifth, vaulted Betsy Layne to the third straight district triumph.

Leadoff hitter Tasha Stratton got things going for Betsy Layne in the first inning, singling and later scoring. Amanda Robinette, the winning pitcher for Betsy Layne, doubled and scored to put Betsy Layne ahead 2-0.

Betsy Layne led 2-1 at the end of the first inning and 5-2 after two frames. The Allen Central offense had quite possibly its poorest hitting game of the season, managing a single run in each of the first four innings. Rebel pitcher Tiffany Turner scored twice, once after reaching base on a triple, and teammates Amber Scott and Jessica Isaac crossed the plate twice.

Stratton went three-for-four at the plate with two doubles and a single. Robinette was three-for-three with two singles and a double, reaching base four times with a walk thrown in the mix. Kim Clark also had a couple of singles and a double. Brandi Bentley had two doubles for Betsy Layne.

Turner took the loss for Allen Central.

Allen Central finished as the Floyd County Conference Champion. Both Betsy Layne and Allen Central advance to play in next week's 15th Region Tournament.

Betsy Layne 4, Prestonsburg 2

Betsy Layne waited three innings before it got on the board Tuesday night in the second first-round game of the 57th District Tournament. But in the end, Betsy Layne would advance on, winning 4-2.

Prestonsburg scored in the first inning when Kelly Key reached base on a walk and later scored. Betsy Layne trailed 1-0 before getting on the scoreboard with a run in the fourth inning. Pitcher Amanda Robinette reached base on an error. Betsy Layne built on its lead in the fifth inning, scoring two runs.

Prestonsburg catcher Amanda Tackett countered with a home run in the top half of the sixth inning to cut the Betsy Layne lead to 3-2.

In the bottom of the sixth inning, Kaitlin Kirk scored to lengthen the Betsy Layne lead to 4-2, the game's final margin.

Robinette was the winning pitcher for Betsy Layne.

Whitney Parsons took the loss for Prestonsburg.

Mayton out as AC football coach

EASTERN - Robert Mayton was notified via email this week that he would not be hired back as head coach of the Allen Central High School football team. Mayton spent two seasons at the helm of the Rebel grid program, taking over for Kevin Spurlock in the spring of 2001. Spurlock had a combined record of 4-16 over two seasons, going 2-8 in each campaign. A replacement is expected to be named soon. One name which has popped up is that of current Allen Central Middle School head coach Jeremy Hall.

Johnson Central, now 15-8, used a six-run first inning to gain the early momentum.

Senior pitcher Robert Howell was rocked early as he allowed the six runs on only two hits. During that span, the Cardinals committed three errors.

Howell, who only worked 1/3 of an inning, was relieved by freshman Brandon May.

Sheldon Clark trimmed its margin to one by scoring two runs in the home first while tacking on three runs in the second.

Centerfielder Travis Carter started the first inning with a single and moved to third on a Brian Fletcher single.

Carter scored on an RBI single by catcher Jamie Jarrett and Fletcher later scored on a ground out by Robert Howell.

May trimmed the deficit to three (6-3) on an RBI single to the centerfield gap which scored Phillip Lawson.

Carter put the Cards to within one, 6-5, with a two-RBI shot that scored Robert Howell and Lawson.

But Johnson Central seemed to break the game wide open in the top of the third as lead off hitter Steven Burgess blasted a two-run shot over the leftfield fence to put the Golden Eagles up three, 8-5.

Trenton Vanhose added a solo shot in the fourth to extend JC's lead to four, 9-5.

But the Cardiac Cards never gave up hope.

A bases loaded triple by first baseman Steven Howell in the bottom of the fourth turned the tide for Sheldon Clark as they knotted the score at 9-apiece.

And senior Anthony Potter stuck the dagger in the hearts of the Golden Eagles with a two-run homer in the bottom of the sixth to give the Cardinals their first and only lead of the game.

Sophomore pitcher Kyle Horn, who earn the victory on the mound, fanned Central's Chet Griffith in the top of the seventh to secure the victory.

"Kyle is a great pitcher," Hall said. "He keeps his composure well, and I knew he had the stuff to finish the game for us. Kyle and Brandon (May) will make up a great one-two punch for us next season."

Horn, a left hander, fanned nine batters in his three and 2/3 innings of work. He allowed two hits and walked only two batters.

Travis Montgomery worked the sixth inning in the losing cause. He allowed three runs and gave up four hits in the frame.

Adam Blanton, a member of the Huntington Hounds baseball team started the game.

Travis Carter led the SC bats with three hits, including a double, two runs and two RBI.

Steven Howell followed with two hits, including a double, and a team-high four RBI. Jarrett finished with two singles and two RBI.

Sheldon Clark will look ahead to next week's 15th Region Tournament at Johnson Central High School.

The tournament will conduct its drawing later this week.

Tackett leaves Prestonsburg post for AD job at Betsy Layne

by ED TAYLOR
SPORTS CORRESPONDENT

Veteran girls' basketball coach Harold Tackett will not walk and rave along the sidelines when the 2003-04 basketball season tips off in December. One of the region's top girls' coaches will instead run the athletic department at Betsy Layne High School next year. However, Tackett said that did not rule out the prospect of returning to the hardwood another time. "I am not getting out of coaching," said Coach Tackett. "I am just taking some time off from it." Tackett said the decision to leave Prestonsburg, where he has coached for the past 10 seasons, was a hard one. Tackett last year coached at Prestonsburg High School while he taught school at Betsy Layne. "Prestonsburg has been home for me and I have had some really great times there," he said. "No. It was not an easy decision to make. I hope I made a difference while I was there."

Tackett took his team all the way to the 58th District championship in 1994, his second season as head coach. He built the Prestonsburg program into one of the top regional teams in the always-tough 15th Region. "I look forward to the challenge at Betsy Layne," Tackett said. "I enjoy the atmosphere at the school. I just felt it was time to move on." Tackett will inherit one of the region's best overall high schools in Betsy Layne. He hopes to make an impact on all the athletic programs, especially football. The Betsy Layne football program has not won a game in three seasons. "I think the main concern there is to get the fans in the stands at the football games," Tackett stated. "We need to increase the number of players who dress for football." Tackett said he feels the programs overall are at a high point and he hopes to help keep them there. "The programs are doing great," he said. "We just need to continue to support the kids and get the community involved more."

Tackett began his coaching in Floyd County at the Mountain Christian Academy. It was evident he was an organizer (See SPORTS, page four)

Blevins continues win streak

COEBURN, Va. - Young Brian Blevins from Clintwood, VA, claimed his third victory of the season this Saturday during the Norton Press 260 at Lonesome Pine Raceway.

Undefeated, Blevins (40) seems to have picked up where his grandfather and competitor, Paul Shull (48) left off at the end of the 2002 season. Shull won the Double Kwik 2 Kwik Pole Award with Blevins starting the race outside the front row. Blevins overtook Shull early in the race and held on to a commanding lead throughout the feature.

A lengthy red flag was displayed after a hard spin by the 22 of Roger Neece damaged the backstretch guardrail. Neece was not injured in the accident and went on to run the Grand Stock race later in the evening. Brad Housewright (0) and Jack Wagner (7) were also involved in the spin.

Finishing behind Blevins to round out the top five were Shull, Tommy Spangler (29), Travis Watson (20) and Chris Tunnell (6).

In a special appearance at LPR, ten area pastors took to the track in the 2nd Annual Pastor Race. The pastors were driving Pure Stock 4 cars borrowed from the division drivers. Perhaps one of the most breath taking moments of the night was when the 99 car of Bobby Joe Spencer spun with the 65 truck of Lee Stidham. Spencer, from the Auxier Freewill Baptist Church and Stidham, from the Haven of Praise Church both walked away from the spin and were able to continue the race.

The event, which is also a fundraiser for the participating churches, brought fans to their feet as these rookie drivers completed 15 laps. Greg Baker of Trinity Life Church claimed his first victory at LPR. Following behind Baker were Danny Mullins (Davis Chapel of Norton), Ben Murphy (1st Church of God), Wayne Hagar (Zion Family Ministries), Lee Stidham (Haven of Praise), Don Musick (Cedar Creek Baptist), Quinten Scholtz (Pikeville Methodist Church), Bobby Joe Spencer (Auxier Freewill Baptist), John McCarroll (Trinity Life Church) and Ken LeMaster (Allen Christ United Methodist).

In the Pepsi of Norton Grand Stock race, Neece claimed victory after the original winner, Alan Woodruff, was disqualified during post race inspections. While contending for the lead, the 25 of Rob Austin sustained contact with the lap car of Ray Lester (3). Both cars were able to continue the race after some work. Rounding out the top five were the 5 of Jason Dockery, 05 of Tony Dockery, 4 of Darrell Hurley and the 29 of Chris Tunnell.

Coming back to his dominating ways was the 88 Vic's Decorating Modified 4 of Kirby Gobble. Gobble started the race on the Kidd Tire Pole position and maintained his lead throughout the 30 lap feature. Troy O'Quinn (37) battled behind Gobble, looking for a chance to take the lead. O'Quinn finished the event second with the 16 of Freddie Taylor Jr. in third. Rounding out the top five was Jack Osborne (33) and Joe White (26).

In other racing action, Larry McKnight (7) claimed the Community Trust Bank Pure Stock 4 win. McKnight also won the NAPA of Pound and Wise Pole position. The 65 of Jamie "Moonshine" Mills battled with the 18 of Scotty McMurray for much of the race. After a four car spin, the restart regular season, forcing the powers that be to shuffle the deck, pray for a break in the weather and wonder how much the city of Houston would take for the Astrodome since they barely use it these days.

I've long said that while baseball is my favorite sport (this statement doesn't overshadow it's cousin, softball, by the way), interscholastic baseball isn't as high on my list. It's not so much the level of play; I enjoy a good game even if it's very young youth-league action. But this week has provided me with a tremendous witness in my case that high school and college baseball is played at the wrong time of year.

In a perfect world, these sports would be contested in the fall, when weather is much dryer and would provide perfect entertainment as the nice, welcome cool of a fall evening came after the miserable heat and humidity of summer.

Yes, there is some rain in the fall and by post-season time it would start being cold in the evenings, but there's no way it could be as miserable as playing in the spring. I'm sure folks in Florida, Arizona and California wonder what the heck we're talking about, but the fact is it's simply not possible to enjoy a baseball game in the shivering cold that requires two sweatshirts and a blanket for comfort.

And as if the cold isn't enough, the rain surely is a solid enough argument.

But of course there's football season to contend with, so baseball, the redheaded stepchild of interscholastic sports, is left to the spring. As Bruce Springsteen is fond of saying, "Maybe someday."

Beyond question, the talk of district tournament week was the raising of that forgotten-about program in Inez, the Sheldon Clark Cardinals.

Former Johnson Central and University of Louisville standout Mike Hall led the Cards to the 57th District title, sending folks in that area scrambling the trophy cases to see if the school had ever won a district baseball crown.

The Cards didn't take the backdoor in either. They opened play with an 11-0 rout of Paintsville, providing scribes with a seldom seen opportunity to write the phrase "rout of Paintsville" during baseball season. They followed it up with a 12-9 win over Johnson Central in the title game.

"This is the greatest feeling in the world," Hall told Ronnie Hickman of The Mountain Citizen. The win made the Cards 20-7 on the season, and a surprising 15-0 against 15th Region teams.

The wins came in Sheldon Clark's first meetings of the season with Paintsville and Central.

Rumors had begun to spread the last couple of weeks of the regular season about the Cardinals. As it turned out, they were apparently true. When regional play commences next week at Johnson Central, a lot of folks with have their eyes focused on the red and blue.

Count me among those offering congratulations to Mike Hall and his Cardinals.

The Phelps Hornets put a scare into Belfry in the 60th District tournament. They had runners in scoring position when the final out was made as the Bucs held on for a 2-1 win.

If the weather cleared up, Phelps was to play Pike County Central last night to see which would advance to the regional tournament.

Floyd County was assured of sending a first-year coach to the 15th Region tournament when tournament favorite Allen Central hooked up with Prestonsburg in the opening round.

As it turned out, Ronnie Patton led the Rebels past John DeRosset's Blackcats 6-5 in the opener, and followed it with a 6-4 win over Betsy Layne in Wednesday evening's 58th District title game.

The youthful Rebels, who start five freshmen, got a complete game from Shannon Moore in the finals.

Looks like Allen Central baseball could be a team to contend with for years to come.

Pikeville made sure it wouldn't be the odd team out in the rugged 58th District softball tournament with a 5-1 win over Shelby Valley on Wednesday. They got a boost from Emily Colvin, who donned the "tools of ignorance" and played catcher for what appeared to be the second time in her life.

If PHS baseball coach Chris Lawson ever needed help in the middle of the infield, he could do worse the Colvin too. It hasn't been that long ago that she was turning heads in the Little League baseball tournaments.

Now that Pikeville is in, Shelby Valley and East Ridge will wait for a pretty day to decide which of them will make it to the next round. That should be a classic, and the two 58th teams will have to be on the short list of favorites for the regional title and a trip to Owensboro.

Defending Late Model Champion David Powers or Magoffin County put the No. 97 J.M.C Motorsports, Stinger Grand Prix on the pole of the Late Model feature with a best lap of 13.52 in the Green's Lawnmower Sales and Service-sponsored car. In what wound up as a photo finish, Powers edged out Allen's Brandon Kinzer for the Late Model feature win. Tom Hall finished third, followed by Terry Hicks and a fifth-place Jim Lemaster. Scott Lemaster, another Magoffin County driver, drove to a win in the Bomber feature.

George Meade finished runner-up in the Bomber division.

West Liberty's Wes Bailey took the lead on the 10th lap of Saturday night's Road Hog feature to hang on for the win in his B4U machine, finishing in front of Rick Baker, Michael Marcum and Walt Castle.

Leroy Akers of Hueysville led all 10 trips around the red clay of 201 to take the Four-Cylinder feature win in his No. US 43 Mustang, getting to the payoff flag ahead of Mark Jude of Inez.

Saturday night will feature a $1000 Super Bomber feature race on the red clay of 201.

back. Ninety-percent of our games this season, we've played from behind. You can't take anything away from Betsy Layne, they came out ready to play tonight."

Patton credited some of his team's success to his assistant coaches.

"We've got a great coaching staff," added Patton. "My son, Byron (Patton), one of our assistant coaches, does as good a job calling pitches as anyone around. Greg Home, another assistant is an excellent person to have around. He is very knowledgeable of the game. Craig Kidd is another very knowledgeable person we have on our staff."

Betsy Layne put its first two runs on the board in the first inning when Brandon Combs singled and later scored, and Jordan Kidd reached base after being hit by a pitch and crossed home plate. The 2-0 Betsy Layne lead stood through the first two innings as Bobcat pitcher Brett Preston started strong, going through the first two innings without giving up any runs.

Allen Central seniors Alex

Patton and Dusty Hammonds reached base (Patton on a single, Hammonds on a walk) and scored in the third inning to even the game at two. Tyler Turner drove both Patton and Hammonds in on a long single to leftfield. The Rebels went up 3-2 in the fourth inning when Alex Maynard reached base on a walk and scored.

The nip-and-tuck affair continued in the top half of the fifth when Preston doubled, scoring Kidd. With the game tied at three, Allen Central pushed back out for a lead, this time a three-run advantage. John Hall reached base on a single in the fifth inning and scored when Neil Allen followed with a home run over the rightfield fence. Moore helped his cause at the plate by singling in the inning and later scoring. Betsy Layne's Preston was replaced on the mound by Patrick Stapleton in the sixth inning. But the damage against Betsy Layne was already done.

Turner reached base on a strikeout in the sixth inning and eventually scored on a Neil Allen single Patton, Hall and Allen each had two hits apiece in their four respective plate appearances.

Allen Central entered the final inning hoping to close the door on Betsy Layne.

Stapleton scored with two outs in the top half of the final inning when Jordan Case came through with a clutch single. All Betsy Layne could manage in the last inning was the lone run.

With the district championship win, Allen Central will play a runner-up team from another district in next week's regional tournament.

School maintenance helps get fields ready

Without the help of the Floyd County Schools maintenance department, the softball and baseball district tournaments may not have been able to conclude on Wednesday as scheduled. Greg Adams and David Dawson each came up to work the fields that were under water when long before pre-game warmups were held before the championship games.

New Betsy Layne coach could be announced next week

by STEVE LEMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

BETSY LAYNE - A new head football coach at Betsy Layne High School could be announced as early as next week. The new coach will replace Glen Ripkoski, who spent one season coaching the Bobcats following the team's 2001 season under Tim McCoy.

This will be the program's fourth coaching change in four seasons. Betsy Layne is on a 29-game losing streak which spans over three seasons. Ted George is the last Betsy Layne coach to register a win. George stepped down in 2000, giving way to McCoy, who eventually gave way to Ripkoski. The outgoing Ripkoski spent the 2001 season as an assistant under McCoy. The Betsy Layne football program has dropped out of district competition and will not play a district schedule during the 2003 season.

Michigan St., UK to shoot for record

DETROIT — Michigan State wants to add the college basketball attendance record to the one it already holds for an NCAA hockey game.

The school said Wednesday that it will play Kentucky in a men's basketball game on Dec. 13 at Ford Field. A news conference to discuss the details of the event will be held Thursday morning at the indoor arena in downtown Detroit where the NFL's Lions play.

The college basketball attendance record of 68,112 was set Jan. 20, 1990, at a game between Louisiana State and Notre Dame at the Superdome in New Orleans. The NBA's attendance record is 62,046 from a Chicago-Atlanta game at the Georgia Dome on March 27, 1998.

Ford Field seats 65,000 in its football configuration, but several thousand more seats could be added around a basketball court on the artificial turf.

At Spartan Stadium, Michigan State played Michigan to a 3-3 tie on Oct. 6, 2001, before 74,554 fans — the most to ever watch a hockey game.

"This game is sure to be a once-in-a-lifetime experience for the coaches, players and fans involved," Michigan State coach Tom Izzo said. "Kentucky is the perfect opponent for this game as it is an elite program with a national following. It will be great for Michigan State University, the Spartan basketball program and college basketball to play this game on a national stage. We hope to create a Final Four atmosphere for a regular-season game."

Kentucky coach Tubby Smith said he's looking forward to the experience.

"I want to tell you how excited and proud we are to be participating in such a spectacular event," Smith said. "It will be a fun environment as everybody's eyes around the country will be on Ford Field."

Former Western Kentucky star to walk on at Kentucky

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEXINGTON — Patrick Sparks, a first-team All-Sun Belt Conference selection last basketball season at Western Kentucky, will transfer to Kentucky, his father said.

Steve Sparks said Tuesday that his son would walk on at Kentucky and will sit out the 2003-04 season. Patrick Sparks would not be eligible to play at Kentucky next season under NCAA rules for transfers.

Sparks, a 6-1, 185-pound point guard from Central City, has been promised a scholarship for his final two years of eligibility, his father said. Kentucky has already allotted its 13 available scholarships for next season. His father said Patrick Sparks carries a 3.8 grade point average and should qualify for academic aid.

Steve Sparks said the family could "handle this year from a financial standpoint. They committed to him two years after that."

Brooks Downing, Kentucky's basketball media relations director, said the school could not comment on the situation. UK coach Tubby Smith was out of town and unavailable for comment.

Sparks, who played for his father at Muhlenberg North High School in Greenville, announced April 22 that he would transfer from Western Kentucky. He visited Oklahoma State and Louisville before talking last week with Smith. Sparks canceled recruiting trips to Kansas and Ohio State.

Sparks averaged a team-high 13.3 points and 5.9 assists per game as a sophomore last season for Western Kentucky, as the Hilltoppers reached the NCAA tournament for the third straight year. His assist total was tops in the Sun Belt Conference. Sparks also set a single-season school record with 84 3-pointers and led the team in steals with 73.

MINNIE — The athletic honors continue to roll in for Allen Central senior athlete Tiffany Turner. On Wednesday, after the championship game of the 57th District Softball Tournament, Turner was named Floyd County Conference Player of the Year. While pitching, she helped lead Allen Central to one of the best regular-season records in all of Eastern Kentucky.

Turner signed earlier this spring to play softball for nearby Alice Lloyd College and head coach Tim Rice. She has also been a key member of the Allen Central volleyball and basketball teams.

Turner and the Lady Rebels finished second in the district, losing 14-4 to Betsy Layne.

P'burg Reds rolls to wins

by STEVE LeMASTER
SPORTS EDITOR

PRESTONSBURG — In Little League action last week, the Prestonsburg Reds beat the HAP (Harold-Allen-Prater) Yankees 19-9. Joseph Collins pitched the first three innings for the Reds and recorded the win. But it wasn't all smooth sailing early for the Reds.

The Yankees jumped on top early, leading 3-0, when Jimmy Meade, Shane Case and Luke Sturgill all reached base and scored. The lead for the Yankees was short-lived, though. Centerfielder Seth Setser scored four times for the Reds in the win. Shortstop Chris Schoolcraft and right-fielder D.J. Ousley both crossed the plate three times.

Reds 16, Mets 7: The Reds continued their scoring parade with a 16-7 win over the Mets. Kyle Gearhart, Seth Setser, Chris Schoolcraft and J.D. Head all scored three times each in the rout. D.J. Ousley, Joseph Collins and Kyle Chaffins all crossed the plate once.

Ousley had a triple in the win.

Billy Robinson, Jody Tackett and Tyler Sparks each scored twice for the Mets. Austin McKinney scored once.

by the way he ran an elementary basketball tournament. He later took his talents to the high school level before settling in at Prestonsburg for the past 10 years.

I feel that the administration at Betsy Layne made a good choice in the hiring of Tackett for the position. The girls' basketball program is the 15th Region champion and the boys' program one of the region's best. Baseball and girls' softball have always been strong at the school.

Speaking of Betsy Layne girls' basketball, Betsy Layne's Whitney Lykens was the top vote-getter for the 15th Region All-Star team, also coached by Betsy Layne girls' coach Cassandra Akers. Betsy's Anna Bevins and Vicky Hall, Allen Central's Terri Mullins, East Ridge's Patience Hylton and Savannah Howard of Magoffin County were also named to the elite team.

Darnella Bradley, one-time outstanding basketball player for the Allen Central Lady Rebels, has resigned her coaching position at The Piarist School. Bradley was in her second stint at the private school located in Martin.

Up Left Beaver way, Tony Isaac gets the nod to replace Melinda Osborne, who resigned at the close of the 2002-03 season, at South Floyd High School. Isaac is a veteran coach in the middle school ranks. Tony will do a very good job at South Floyd. Another good name, Greg Johnson, is going to assist Tony at South Floyd.

Rumors have been going around about Cindy Halbert leaving Allen Central for the Pikeville High School girls' coaching job. If that is a fact, then Floyd County will have only one returning girls' basketball coach next season and that would be Coach Akers at Betsy Layne.

With Coach Tackett leaving the Prestonsburg job, that creates still another opening in the district. Speculation as to who will replace Tackett has been varied. One time boys' coach Jackie Pack has been mentioned along with Bridgett Clay, definitely one of the top coaches in the region. Clay held the job for five seasons.

Whew! It has worn me out trying to figure all this out. Until Sunday, good sports everyone and be good sports!

THROUGH MY EYES

Teacher let the monkeys out!

Hip, hip, hoo-ray! School's out! (Finally.)

I am bone-weary from yet another year of early mornings, madcap rushes around the house and running back and forth to and from extra-curricular activities. I am, most definitely, not one of those parents who bemoan the ending of the school year ("Oh, my, what am I going to do with them underfoot all summer long?").

Kathy Prater

On the contrary, I am jubilant each and every time a school year finally winds down. (Now, if I could only get the Floyd County Board of Education members to take a summer break...)

Memorable days

The recent holidays turned out to be pretty memorable for me. I had the chance to recall what it's like to have a puppy underfoot, and I had the pleasure of guests who were never underfoot.

Jen Barry, one of the three young women who worked with me at The David School and who helped me so much when my mother was becoming more and more feeble, came over from her home in Iowa with her fiancé Jeff.

They brought with them Bo Peep, the big, easy-going retriever mix, and a five-month-old beagle, named Lucy.

Jen said since she returned to Iowa after her stint here people have been curious as to the breed of Bo Peep, so named because she resembled a lamb when she was rescued from abandonment five years ago in David. Jen was always at a loss except to speculate on all the mixes possible, considering the seemingly unending stream of strays in that community.

Jeff came up with a ready answer that seems to say it all. He dubbed Bo a Kentucky Muthound. I'm in favor of mak

As usual, when the staff and students of Prestonsburg Elementary set about to celebrate their school's successes, they do it up in grand style. The end of one more school year has, once again, been celebrated this week in grand fashion.

From "Puppy Love" projects aiding local animal shelters to limousine rides to lunch at May Lodge in recognition of good salesmanship, on to a PRIDE Club state recognition awards ceremony held in Somerset and a final high-flying send-off to middle school for fifth grade students in a hot air balloon, the local school always finds a unique way to celebrate student successes.

On Wednesday, Rebecca M. Haywood, music instructor, led her Music TAG (Talented and Gifted) students in a rousing revue performed in the PES auditorium for the entire school and visiting relatives and friends.

The show opened with Micaya Canterbury, Brittany Coyer and Devin Clifton singing the "Star Spangled Banner," followed by a group performance of song and dance

Editor's Note: For years, Floyd County Times founder and former publisher Norman Allen wrote a weekly column that looked at Floyd County through his eyes. His columns are being reprinted due to request. The following column was written in 1961.

A POOR RECORD

Fewer than 5,000 voters of the upwards of 20,000 registered as voters in this county went to the polls Tuesday. Must we be fired up with a knock-down-and-dragout political campaign filled with name-calling and oiled with the long green before we will go out and do our simple duty as free Americans? If other sections of Kentucky hadn't done as badly, we would be in a mood to criticize.

TRUE EDUCATION

Here's a question for these commencement days: What does the word, "education," mean? You'd never guess (unless you have read it as I did! John Ruskin's definition. Here 'tis:

"Education does not mean teaching people to know what they do not know; it means teaching them to behave as they do not behave."

Things to Ponder: Disenfranchised grief

Last weekend was a very busy time for many people in our area. There were a variety of family reunions. It seemed only natural that folks would be coming home to honor those who had family members die. In our culture, it has typically been known as "Decorating Day." The local cemeteries were full of colors and people. After spring flowers have bloomed, it is a good time for a reunion for this purpose. These activities also remind us of loss, and our process of grieving, since the loss of a loved one through death is the most common serious bereavement we will have to face. Generally, society has a set of "rules" or "norms" that try to identify who, when, where, how, for how long, and for whom, people should grieve. However, there are other situations of loss that will provoke the same grief reaction, where the grief is not recognized, is covered up by the person, and/or the losses may not be recognized or validated by others. This type of grief is thought of as "disenfranchised."

A significant example for me, personally, of disenfranchised grief was when my ex-husband died suddenly about seven years ago. I was shocked that I would have such a reaction to the event. After all, we had been divorced for more than 22 years at the time, and our emotional connections as a "couple" were long gone prior to the divorce. HOWEVER, there was a significant and major flood of emotional reactions, immediately, and over the first months after his death. Although it was very painful, I was so glad that I could be with our adult son during his initial need to grieve also. Since my ex-in-laws and I have always maintained a close relationship, they requested that I "sit with the family" during the funeral. It was so difficult to sit in the same church for his service where, as a young couple with lots of dreams before us, we had our infant christened. The realization of my emotional reaction to my ex-husband's death was overwhelming. Perhaps, due to my significant periods of anger regarding the breakup of our marriage and the adjustments needed for the couple of years following, I just had never considered that my reaction would have been of that intensity. It would have been so helpful at the time, if family, friends, and most of all, myself, would have recognized my emotional status at the time.

Disenfranchised grief is experienced when the loss cannot be openly acknowledged, socially validated and supported, or publicly mourned. The more complex the society, the more likely disenfranchised grief will happen. There are three common reasons. The first one is when the loss is not recognized publicly, such as infertility, miscarriage, or any time the loss is generally viewed as "only minor" by those not directly involved. The loss of a pet would be in this category. Most often a sense of loss occurs, when there is significant change in a "lost" person, one who is still physically alive, but has had significant personality changes. Examples would be changes brought about by dementia, mental illness, or other brain syndromes, like Alzheimer's Disease.

The second possible source of disenfranchised grief is when the griever is not recognized. In these cases, the person experiencing the grief is accepted as incapable of grieving, and thus there is not any need to mourn. Instances would be the very young, very old, mentally disabled, and intellectually impaired.

The third likely contributing factor to disenfranchised grief is when there is a loss and the relationship is not recognized. Examples might be the many close human relationships, besides family-based ones, such as work colleagues, former close friends, step-relations, and roommates. There are also other nontraditional relationships that tend not to be recognized, or socially sanctioned, as a probable source of grief. AIDS deaths certainly are socially ambiguous and often create uncertainty related to these deaths. Needless to say, adjustment to failure of a marriage is another major task that frequently is an experience of disenfranchised loss, and might be even more threatening than death, with its tendency to be an active rejection of one by another. Since there is no actual way to mourn, the divorce grief has to be worked out alone, and recognized that it is a response to the death of a marriage, and not an individual.

An opinion was that another frequent major source of disenfranchised grief created by the relationship not being recognized, is when the ex-spouse passes. The reaction to the death of an ex-spouse will not be the same for everyone, and will depend upon the relationship after divorce, and resolution of the prior bereavement felt by the separation and the divorce. It is thought that there is a greater likelihood of a severe reaction to the ex-spouse's death, if the death happens within five years of the divorce. In these situations, the surviving ex-spouse might feel a desire to visit or care, yet might also experience discomfort and confusion, feelings of being left out, or having to share grief with a new spouse. Sometimes, the children's reactions to the "other parent's death" might create distress for the surviving parent.

Because there is the lack of social recognition for disenfranchised grief, it is prone to be a hidden grief, and this "hiddenness" can

A BURNED-UP TROUBADOR

Well, I thought I had already walked the extra mile or so for him, but when my youngest son outlasted me and talked me into returning for him to a Huntington, West Virginia music store a guitar with a cracked neck, I learned that all that had gone before was a lark.

To start with, I park in a lot in Fourth Avenue and then learn that my destination is down a block to Third and then about three blocks farther east. I eye the case and wonder if the folks I meet will think Machine Gun Kelly has hit town or if it will be some smart-aleck from the old hometown to give me the eye and wonder aloud where the haybarn is. I have as much affinity for a guitar, anyway, as for a sidewinder, and I'm feeling plumb headpound as I tuck my head down and sink down the avenue with this thing dangling from my hand. I keep thinking of that character who, years ago, up our way walked our country road with such long strides he almost squatted backward as he stepped forward, and who went his merry way, sawing on a fiddle. I see myself merged with his ungainly self.

But I make it to the store without incident, although I am certain two teen-agers looked back after they had passed. My ears aren't so old I can't hear a combination of snort and snigger, and they (the ears) were all lit up by the time I reached the haven of four walls and a closed door.

There I make the exchange of instruments, screw up my courage and once again breast the tide of human traffic. I am just getting the guitar and its case swinging right when I spy, parked in a car a few feet ahead, a total stranger who has a glint in his eye that

Weddings

Bush-Fields

Mr. and Mrs. Billy D. Bush, of Harold, are pleased to announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Kayla Rena, to Jerry Allard Fields, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Fields, of Pikeville. The bride-elect is a 2002 graduate of Betsy Layne High School. She is currently employed as an Avon Sales Representative. Her fiancée is a 1997 graduate of Pike County Central High School. He is currently employed by Velocity Market, Pikeville. The couple will wed in a ceremony that will take place on Saturday, June 14, 2003, at half past twelve o'clock in the afternoon, at the Harold Church of Christ, Harold. The gracious custom of an open church wedding will be observed. Following a honeymoon to Pigeon Forge, Tennessee, the newlyweds will reside on Island Creek Road, Pikeville.

Meadows-Conley

Laura Meadows, of Martin, and Roger and Linda Conley, of Hueysville, are pleased to announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their children, Trish and Derek. Trish is the granddaughter of Gene and Pat Shepherd, of Martin. Derek is the grandson of Cordelia Conley, of Hueysville, and the late Milton Conley, and Glen Slone, of Maytown, and the late June Slone. The couple are both graduates of Allen Central High School and Morehead State University. The bride-elect is employed by Kentucky Community Based Services, Brooksville, as a social worker. Her fiancée is employed by US Bank Institutional Trust & Custody, Cincinnati, Ohio, as a relationship manager. Following a honeymoon trip to Paradise Island, Bahamas, the couple will reside in Alexandria. A June wedding is planned.

Artwork of Caraline Roll to be featured at Sacred Winds Ensemble Concert

The Sacred Winds Ensemble, under the director of G. Scott Bersaglia, will be presenting their seventh annual Summer Concert on June 8. The program, entitled "So Who Is This Jesus?" with the subtitle, "Don't You See?", will explore the wonder of God's love through music and scripture in efforts to explain just who Jesus really is.

To better present the message of the Gospel through the performing and visual arts, Hazard native Caraline Roll has been commissioned by the Sacred Winds Ensemble to produce drawings of the story of Jesus and the Samaritan Woman found in John:4. Miss Roll's artwork will be displayed during the concert to visually depict the music's biblical message.

The concert is June 8 and will begin at 2:30 p.m. at The First Federal Center on the campus of the Hazard Community College. Admission is free and all are invited.

entitled "Everybody Has Music Inside" that got everyone, students and audience alike, warmed up and ready for entertainment.

Jonna Craft gave a wonderful performance of the song, "Wide Open Spaces," accompanied by classmate, Courtney Marsillett. And Devin Clifton, a fellow fifth-grader, wowed those in attendance by performing "In My Red Convertible," a piano solo.

Josh Blackburn, Devin Clifton, Bradly Hampton, Brad Hicks, Brad Stanley and Cody McCoy had everyone bent over with laughter as they entered the stage in overalls, fake beards and bare feet to perform the favored bluegrass tune, "I Am a Man of Constant Sorrow."

Then, Victoria Petry rocked the house with her Avril Lavigne attitude and costume as Kim Chaffins and Jamie Hall joined her in singing "Sk8ter Boi."

Topping it all off, the entire group once again assembled onstage to perform "If You Feel Like Rockin'," the show's finale, choreographed by students Kalan Wells and Kaitlyn Minix.

Once again, Floyd County students showcased their talents with a wonderful show of fun-filled entertainment geared to sending everyone off into summer with high spirits and an appetite for adventure.

Students Elizabeth Baldrige and Brittany Peppi narrated the morning of fun and other PES Music TAG students participating in the event were: Julie Compton, Alexis DeRossett, Janet Meade, Kasey Moore, and Hannah Walker.

Mrs. Gwen Hale-Frazier serves as principal of the school.

ing that a new breed with broad characteristics for inclusion.

Lucy, on the other hand, is pure beagle and pure pup. She has the classic mix of brown, black and white, the almost sideways lope and the ears that flop as she runs.

My little dog Daisy was particularly intrigued to encounter a dog that's smaller than she is. But for the most part, Daisy did not connect with the newcomer. She opted to watch as the pup went through her mantic pace, until early Monday when the foursome was preparing to leave.

The big dogs were another story. For three full days, they turned into puppies again themselves. At first, I was scared that they might hurt the little one, but not to worry. Bubba, Ben, Bo and Lucy formed their own exclusive pack and romped until they dropped day after day.

Bubba and Ben had met Bo about three years ago, but I have no idea as to whether dogs have memories of past meetings. At any rate, they took up as if they'd lived next door all this time. And the puppy showed no fear whatsoever.

The four canines ran paths around the house, Lucy first in the lead and then in pursuit. She would jump at the sheath of loose skin under Bubba's face and swing off it. He, Ben and Bo would nip at the pup's back until she was soaking wet.

They would all frolic until they literally dropped wherever they happened to be. Lucy most frequently plopped right in the middle of a stand of creeping phlox I had planted a couple of months ago. To her, it was a soft cushion, and I figured it would revive itself once she left.

It took only three or four minutes for Lucy to get her second wind and she'd attack one of the big dogs again. There they'd go, racing and rolling across the yard.

If it's possible for dogs to smile and laugh, I'd swear these did just that. They were the picture of pure joy.

Bubba and Ben have pretty much laid around since the departure of the new friends. I suspect their aging limbs are recuperating.

The adult visitors were a treat to have around, too. Like model guests, they did not expect to be entertained during their sojourn. They went on excursions together, asking me if I wanted to join them beforehand, but not insisting. I most often chose to stay at home and enjoy a few days vacation from a demanding and stressful job. (Of course, I did bring some work home.)

They took me out to dinner on Friday night, they bought steaks for grilling on Sunday, and whenever I cooked, they jumped up as soon as the meal was over to wash dishes and help put up the leftovers.

They put up good-naturedly with the way, stop telling me every single day that they need paper and pencils. ("Didn't I just buy notebooks and pencils," I ask. "People keep borrowing them," they say...) If only I owned some stock in a lumber mill somewhere.

Now, though, comes the task of how to keep them busy in the weeks to come. I'm thinking of putting together a box of good books and reading materials and a daily "to-do" list of household chores. ("And again, the winning contender is....MTV!") Oh well, I can certainly give it a good try.

I'm taking next week off to recuperate.

Don't bother to call 'til past noon - homework and teachers and field trips and coaches and such have worn me out...

See ya 'round the swimmin' hole (I hope).

Actinic keratoses can lead to skin cancer if not treated

Q I have noticed these rough patches on my forehead since doing yard work this spring. I went to the doctor and he said I have an actinic keratosis and gave me some cream for it. Could you tell me more about this condition?

A Actinic keratoses are skin lesions that occur in up to 25 percent of the population in the northern hemisphere. They are a direct result of ultraviolet radiation and are more common in fair-skinned people as well as those who have a long history of sunbathing and/or not using sunscreens. These lesions are also often seen in those whose jobs require them to work outdoors.

It's good that you are having these actinic keratosis lesions treated. This is because they are classified as "pre-malignant" and can become cancerous if left untreated. The kind of cancer they develop into is called squamous cell carcinoma. It's one of three major types of skin cancer. While not as likely to kill as melanoma, squamous cell carcinoma is more dangerous than basal cell carcinoma, which is the most common type of skin cancer.

Actinic Keratoses commonly "show up" in the spring or summer, leading physicians to believe that they become more active after sun exposure. By show up, I mean that this is when the patient is most likely to notice the skin blemish and the doctor to diagnose it. Most commonly these blemishes are found on the face, the back of the hands and the forearms. They feel like a rough patch on the skin and can be red and scaly. There can be one lesion or several.

A physician can usually recognize this lesion and frequently does not need to do a biopsy to make the diagnosis. Several different types of creams and ointments are used to treat these lesions. They can also be removed by freezing them a couple of times using a technique called cryotherapy.

After your lesions have been taken care of, your primary goal should be to not get anymore. We are realizing now that sun exposure when we are young causes lifetime damage to the skin. We cannot turn back the clock, but we can move forward, wearing protective clothing when out in the sun and using a sunblock with a high sun protection factor, or SPF. In general that SPF number should be 15 or higher. On any day that you are anticipating sun exposure, you should apply sunblock in the morning before you go outside. Don't forget to use sunblock on your lips, and if your hair is thinning, on your scalp.

Using these preventive techniques can help you avoid another round of actinic keratosis. The same measures — if started early enough in life — can also protect against other forms of skin cancer, including the dangerous melanoma variety. Also, taking these common sense steps to reduce sun exposure will set a good example for our children and grandchildren. If they follow our example, their generation will see many less cases of precancerous and cancerous skin lesions.

further increase the reaction to loss. Emotional reactions can be intensified with extreme feelings of anger, guilt and/or powerlessness, thus creating an even more complicated grief response. The reduced or absent social support adds to a sense of generalized isolation on the part of the griever. One writer (Hocker, 1990) perceived this type of grief as unsanctioned and unrecognized grief, and thought it had several characteristics: social stigma with embarrassment on the part of the bereaved, due to loss being unsanctioned and secret; absence of mourning rituals fails to provide a way to express cultural beliefs and values, and the community's recognition; grief is not expressed at the proper time, since emotions are held in and create frustration; economic and legal problems with pressures resulting from loss that is not a legal one, such as unmarried partners; and emotions are exaggerated by the disenfranchised nature of the loss.

In discussing his view of unresolved and unsanctioned grief, Hocker gave several suggestions for ways that others might be supportive of assisting the grieving individual to cope in as a satisfactory manner possible. Recognize that the grief is unsanctioned and that it is, in fact, a valid loss. Listen—allow them to give voice to their loss. Understand, such as being understanding of their loss. Be of help in their resolution of the loss, and work with them as they did this. Check out yourself regarding your losses to recognize your own grief. Most importantly, remember that bereaved individuals need to have their loss and grief socially legitimized by others. When it is not, their grief may be hidden, and only lasts longer. They may develop a type of chronic grief that repeats itself, possibly with greater intensity, with each new loss. Also, it is important to support the person grieving that it is OK, to gradually go on with her own personal life without grief.

absence of a bathroom door. (That's another story, and we did at least have a curtain.) On Sunday evening, Jeff installed a bi-fold door for me — a job expected to take 30 minutes but actually took two hours. I shudder to think how long it would have taken me.

Sometimes, we are not too sorry to see guests leave. It's always good to see them come, but just as good to see them go. This visit was different. I felt genuinely sad when Jen, Jeff, Bo and Lucy got in the car for the long journey back to Iowa. They made my Memorial Day holidays truly memorable and sweet.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 836-0300

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Motts Branch Coal Inc., P.O. Box 2765, 436 Daniels Creek Road, Pikeville, Kentucky 41502, has applied for a permit for a surface coal mining and reclamation operation affecting 487.9 acres, and will underlie an additional 243.1 acres, located 2.9 miles northeast of Hueysville, in Floyd County.

The proposed operation is approximately 1.5 mile northwest from Route 2029's junction with KY Route 7, and located in Saylor's Branch and Racoon Branch of Saltlick Creek, and Mudlick Branch and Shepherd Branch of Brush Creek.

The proposed operation is located on the David and Martin U.S.G.S. 7-1/2 minute quadrangle map. The operation will use the contour strip, area mining, and highwall/auger methods of mining. The surface area is owned by Knott Floyd Land Company, et al., Knott Floyd Land Company Inc., CONSOL of Kentucky Inc., Betty Reed, Delphia M. Hale and Carol S. Wireman, Carl Reed, Connie Castle and Kathy Williams, Ronnie D. and Sue Prater, Patrick and Kristi Crisp, Ike Richmond Heirs, Clarence Woods, Art Campbell, Floyd Davis, Dixie Adkins, Carmel Davis, Carl and Mary Hayes, Winfred and Stella Hale Heirs, and Paul Prater. The operation will underlie surface area owned by Knott Floyd Land Company, et al., Knott Floyd Land Company Inc., CONSOL of Kentucky Inc., Carl Reed, Connie Castle and Kathy Williams, Ronnie D. and Sue Prater, Patrick and Kristi Crisp, Ike Richmond Heirs, Clarence Woods, Art Campbell, Floyd Davis, Dixie Adkins, Carmel Davis, Carl and Mary Hayes, Winfred and Stella Hale Heirs, and Paul Prater. The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 3140 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, #2 Hudson Hollow Complex, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 836-0301

In accordance with KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Frasure Creek Mining, LLC, 1051 Main Street, Suite 100, Milton, West Virginia 25541, has applied for a permit for a surface and underground coal mining and reclamation operation, located 0.91 mile northeast of Wayland, in Floyd County. The proposed operation, will disturb 161.67 surface acres and will underlie 201.11 acres for auger, of which 8.64 acres are included in the surface acres, and the total area within the permit boundary will be 354.14 acres.

The proposed operation is approximately 0.85 mile southwest from KY Route 777's junction with KY Route 680, and is located along Martin Branch of the Right Fork of Beaver Creek.

The proposed operation is located on the Wayland USGS 7 1/2 minute quadrangle map. The surface area to be disturbed is owned by The Elk Horn Coal Corporation. The operation will underlie land owned by The Elk Horn Coal Corporation. The operation will use the contour and auger method of surface mining. The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 3140 South Lake Drive, Suite 6, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, #2 Hudson Hollow Complex, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Pursuant to KRS 231.040, application for a permit to operate a place of entertainment, has been made by Ellis Brown, of Box 142, Langley, KY 41645. The name of the proposed business of entertainment is R & B Game Room. The nature of the business will be Pool Tables and Game Room. Pursuant to KRS 231.070, the Floyd County Attorney shall investigate whether the applicant lacks good moral character, or whether the applicant will obey the laws of the Commonwealth in the operation of the business, or whether the applicant, within the last two (2) years prior to the date of filing the application, has been convicted in Kentucky of maintaining a public nuisance. Pursuant to KRS 231.080 any person desiring to oppose the permits shall file with the County Clerk, no later than June 19, 2003, in writing, allegations that show cause as to why the application shall not be granted. Said written information shall be signed, dated, and reflect the current address of said person providing the information.

Pursuant to KRS 231.080, a hearing has been scheduled for June 19, 2003, at the hour of 2:30 p.m., or as soon thereafter as same can be heard before the Floyd County Judge/Executive, at the Floyd County Justice Center, 2nd floor in Prestonsburg, Kentucky. The Floyd County Judge/Executive shall hear evidence in support of, or in opposition to, the granting of the permit.

HON. KEITH BARTLEY
FLOYD COUNTY ATTORNEY

COALFIELDS TELEPHONE COMPANY

PUBLIC NOTICE OF TARRIFF FILING

On April 14, 2003, Coalfields Telephone Company filed revisions to its local service tariff, Kentucky Tariff PSC No. 3. This filing raises the fee for returned checks to $20 per occasion, and increases fees associated with premise visits. In addition, the company also proposes to introduce new optional features for budget toll and telemarketing, screening. Any corporation, association, body politic or person, may request leave to intervene within thirty days after notice of the proposed change is given. The motion shall be submitted to the Public Service Commission at 211 Sower Boulevard Frankfort, KY 40602-0615, and shall set forth the grounds for such motion, including the status and interest of the party. A copy of the filing can be obtained from the business office at 20 Laynesville Road, Harold KY 41635, during regular business hours, or by contacting the business office.

PUBLIC NOTIFICATION

Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission recently received notice of violations (NOV) of a drinking water standard for (TTHM). These notices include all of Prestonsburg's distribution customers, including, Auxier Water Company, City of Martin, and Sandy Valley Water District. Although this is not an emergency, as our customers, you have the right to know what happened, what you should do, and what we are doing to correct this situation. PCUC routinely monitors for the presence of drinking water contaminants. Testing we received on 12/10/2002, shows that our system exceeded the standard, or maximum contaminant level (MCL), for (TTHM) total trihalomethanes. The standard for (TTHM) is 0.089 mg/l. The last annual running average level of (TTHM) for 2002, was found at 0.080 mg/l. We recently sampled again for the first quarter of 2003. The annual running average, including the first quarter of 2003, was found at 0.088 mg/l. This is not an immediate risk. If it had been, you would have been notified immediately. You do not need to use an alternative water supply (e.g. bottled). However, if you have specific health concerns, consult your doctor. Please share this information with all the other people who drink this water, and may have an increased risk of getting cancer. Also people who drink water containing haloacetic acids in excess of the MCL, may have an increased risk of getting cancer. Although total organic carbon (TOC) has no health effects, it provides a medium for the formation of disinfection byproducts. These byproducts include trihalomethanes (THMs) and haloacetic acids (HAAs). Drinking water containing these byproducts in excess of the MCL, may lead to adverse health effects, liver or kidney problems, or nervous system effects, and may lead to an increased risk of getting cancer. You do not need to use an alternative water supply (e.g. bottled). However, if you have specific health concerns, consult your doctor. Please share this information with all the other people who drink this water, and may have an increased risk of get-received this notice directly (for example, people in apartments, nursing homes, schools, and businesses.) You can do this by posting this notice in a public place or distributing copies by hand or mail.

Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission is now in the process of bidding an alternate disinfection product. As soon as this product is installed, the running average should be greatly reduced, thereby putting the utilities within standard limits. This notice is being sent to you by the Prestonsburg City's Utilities Commission. If you need more information, please call Donald Compton at (606) 886-6871. State Water System ID#0360358.

LAYNE BROS. FORD LINCOLN MERCURY HONDA MOVING BACK TO IVEL SALE

ATTRACTIONS

TRI-COUNTY

FLOYD COUNTY • JOHNSON COUNTY • PIKE COUNTY

Mayor Jerry Fannin and the City of Prestonsburg would like to express their support of Young Artists in Floyd County

Mrs. Maggie Fannin's Art Class at Prestonsburg High School have been working diligently for the past six weeks painting murals in her classroom.

The students referred to the windowless room as a dungeon-like atmosphere, therefore she and some of the students decided to create their own windows.

Mrs. Fannin said, "the kids have been so excited about this project. I have kids wanting to paint who are not even enrolled in my art classes."

The classroom atmosphere is now very inviting and pleasant.

Floyd County

AREA ATTRACTIONS

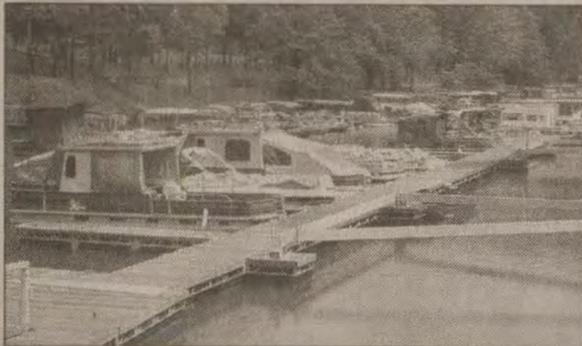

The West Prestonsburg arch bridge drapes across the Big Sandy River as a testament to engineering brilliance and creativity. Although no longer used as a primary means of travel, the bridge is a reminder of Prestonsburg past cutting edge construction efforts.

Stumbo Park in Allen offers recreation for almost every interest, from baseball and softball fields, tennis and basketball courts, to Beaver Valley Golf Course.

Thunder Ridge Raceway has become a magnet for racing fans of all stripes. Local stock car racers and fans flock to the track on the weekend, while special events such as American Motorcycle Association racing or rodeos attract big crowds. In the fall, racing turns to the four-legged variety, as Thunder Ridge offers harness racing and wagering. Thunder Ridge also operates inter-track wagering year round.

For those interested in seeing more of the Jenny Wiley's Dewey Lake, the Marina is the best bet. From the marina's dock, a boating vacationer can set out and explore the beauty of one of Eastern Kentucky's most beautiful locations.

The Jenny Wiley Theatre is the place to go for quality entertainment if you're in town and visiting this state park. Located just behind the Wilkinson-Stumbo Convention Center, the theatre had produced such classics as "Annie", "Big River" and "The Wizard of Oz".

May Lodge is a popular destination for visitors seeking a hotel room or fine dining. The Lodge overlooks Dewey Lake, providing scenic views throughout the year.

Nearly ten tennis courts are open to the public at Archer Park and easily spotted just off to the left when entering the park's secondary entrance.

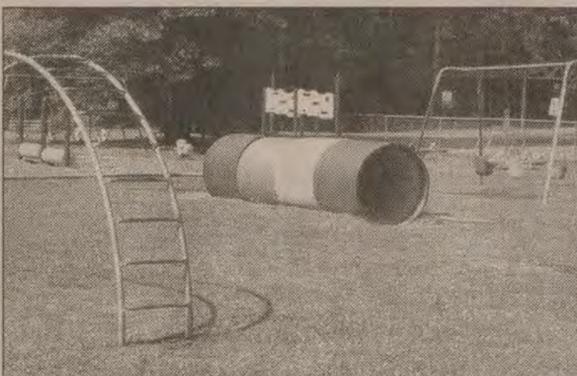

Archer Park's skating rink provides a nice break from the park's other outdoor attractions. The rink is located in Prestonsburg and can be found near the park's administration building.

Archer Park

A traditional red C&O caboose presides over a nearby playground at Archer Park and is always a favorite attraction for kids and adults alike.

Prestonsburg's Archer Park War Memorial is the newest addition to the park's many attractions. With a fountain and an array of American flags surrounding the park's centerpiece, patriots from near and far can visit and enjoy the memorial.

One of Archer Park's two children's playgrounds sports jungle gyms, swings and slides, merry-go-rounds and various other items sure to keep the kids busy.

Prestonsburg's Archer Park swimming pool is equipped with two slides and is always a favorite summertime spot for cooling off and having a little fun.

The Mountain Arts Center is Eastern Kentucky's showcase for both national recording artists and local talent. The MAC has featured the stars of the Country Music Highway and other acts, as well as homegrown talents in the Kentucky Opry and Kentucky Opry Junior Pros.

The region's newest attraction isn't finished yet, but the East Kentucky Science Center is expected to open later this year. When complete, the center will include a planetarium, an exhibit hall, a science classroom and a gift shop, with unique items such as freeze-dried ice cream.

A versatile facility that can house a number of functions, both large and small, the Wilkinson-Stumbo Convention Center in Prestonsburg's Jenny Wiley State Resort Park frequently offers visitors an interesting escape from the outdoors.

AREA ATTRACTIONS

Nestled in one of Eastern Kentucky's long-gone coal boomtowns is a hidden gem. The Coal Miner Museum, operated by the Van Lear Historical Society, is housed in the 93-year-old Consolidated Coal Building and offers a fascinating look at the life of yesterday. The building once was the center of community life, housing not only the operations center for the company, but also Van Lear's bank, doctor, dentist, fountain and jail. The museum is now reclaiming some of that legacy, offering tours of the historical society's many artifacts and displays, coal education for local students and life music every other Saturday night. It remains a work in progress, with volunteers continually updating the offerings. One future attraction will be a coal mine replica to give visitors the dark and cramped life of the miner. The museum is open Monday through Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Artists from across the region have an outlet for displaying their creations in the Van Lear Historical Society's Coal Miner Museum.

The museum pays tribute to Van Lear's military veterans, with pictures of the many who have served.

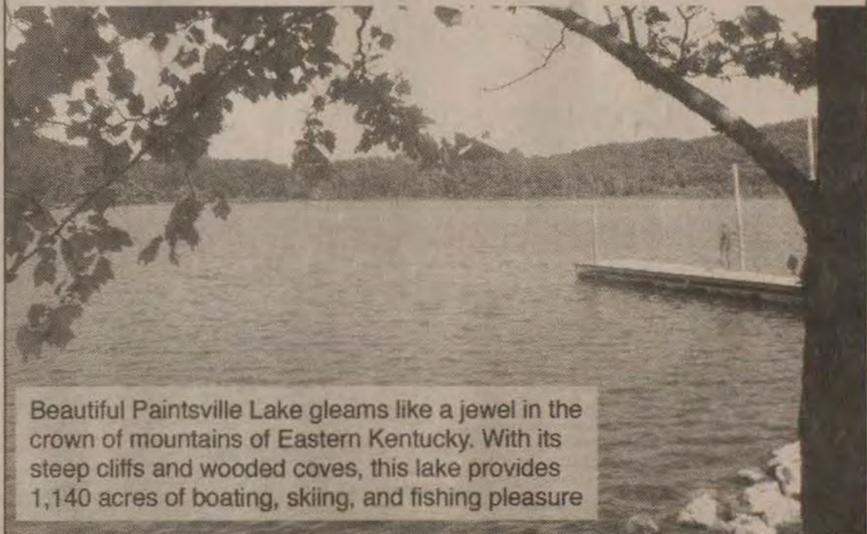

One of the true delights of a tour at the Coal Miner Museum is a model train set which recreates in exacting detail life in Van Lear in its heyday.

The Paintsville Kiwanis Club constructed and maintains a half-mile walking trail through the forest surrounding Paintsville Lake, giving hikers a safe and scenic spot to get outdoors.

Paintsville Lake State Park Campground

Beautiful Paintsville Lake gleams like a jewel in the crown of mountains of Eastern Kentucky. With its steep cliffs and wooded coves, this lake provides 1,140 acres of boating, skiing, and fishing pleasure.

Campground

The 32-site RV campground opened in 2001. Each site has electricity, water, and sewer hookups. In addition, there are 10 primitive sites. Restrooms, showers, and laundry facilities are provided. Playgrounds, horseshoe pits, a sand volleyball court, a basketball court are also in the campground. Two of the RV Sites are adapted for the disabled.

Open year-round. $24 campsite for developed sites; $11 for primitive sites. Two adults. Each additional adult is $3. Pets are allowed if restrained.

Picnic Pavilions and Shelters

Two pavilions and two shelters are located in the campground area. Each can be reserved in advance by calling the campground number. Reservation fee.

Paintsville now boasts a tourist center along the U.S. 23 Country Music Highway for visitors looking for information on area attractions.

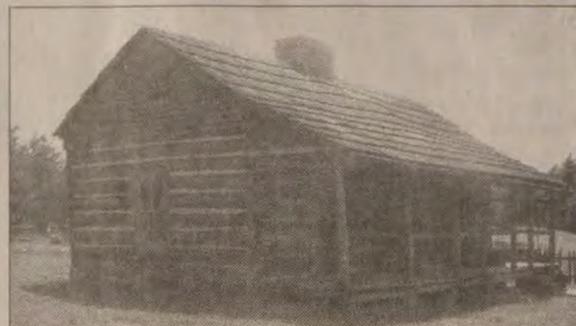

Eastern Kentucky's most famous landmark can be found following a long drive through Van Lear and up Butcher Hollow. Country music superstar Loretta Lynn's homeplace attracts fans from around the country, many of whom saw a replica in the movie Coal Miner's Daughter and are interested in viewing the genuine article. Tours are given by Lynn's brother, Herman Webb, and can be arranged at the old Company Store No. 2 about a mile from the mouth of Butcher Hollow.

Mountain HomePlace

A short trip across the dam at Paintsville Lake takes visitors back nearly a century at Mountain HomePlace. The living history farm recreates life in Appalachia in the late-1800s with authentic buildings and craftsmen. Mountain HomePlace includes the McKenzie homestead, a barn, a church and many other elements of life in the 19th century.

Paintsville Lake

Paintsville Lake provides a beautiful backdrop for fishing, boating and just enjoying nature. The park's newest attraction is a campground, giving visitors both a reason and the means to stay more than just a day.

THE DILS CEMETERY

The Dils Cemetery is believed to be the first integrated cemetery in Eastern Kentucky. Colonel John Dils, who was opposed to slavery, gave many freed slaves jobs in his tannery and general store. He later provided gravesites for them and their descendants.

While more than one hundred thirty African-American graves have been located in this historic spot, only forty-nine of those have been correctly identified. It is our hope that further investigation will bring to light the remaining names and stories.

The Dils Cemetery research project has been conducted through funds provided by the African-American Heritage Commission and the Pikeville-Pike County Tourism Commission.

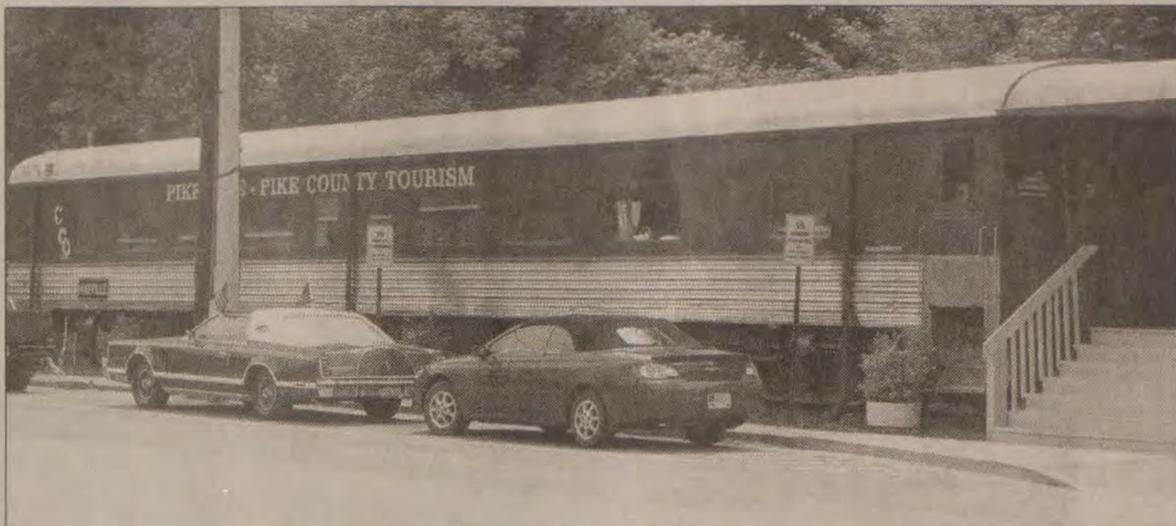

Dils Cemetery in Pike County, originally provided by Col. John Dils, is believed to be the first integrated cemetery in Eastern Kentucky. Because of this, the cemetery reveals fascinating details of African-American heritage as well as being the resting place of Randolph McCoy, one of the famed leaders of the Hatfield-McCoy feud.

Pikeville's Fishtrap Dam is one of the best fishing spots in Pike County with its spillway garnering most of the attention. Adults and children alike find little problem getting the big catch with an assortment of bass and trout consistently provided from the dam.

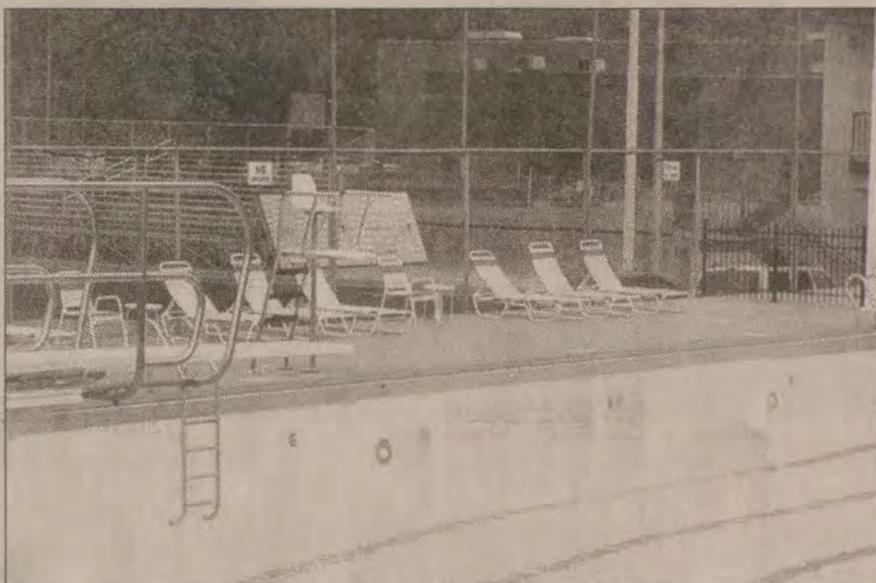

The Dils Cemetery, located at the mouth of Chloe Creek in Pikeville, is listed in the National Register of Historic Places as part of the Hatfield-McCoy Fued Historic District. The graveyard is the final resting place of Randolph McCoy, one of the early leaders in the feud, his wife Sarah and roughly 50 African-American graves, making the cemetery one of the first integrated cemeteries in Eastern Kentucky.

Fittingly, the Pike County Tourism Commission is housed within a section of a old coal train.

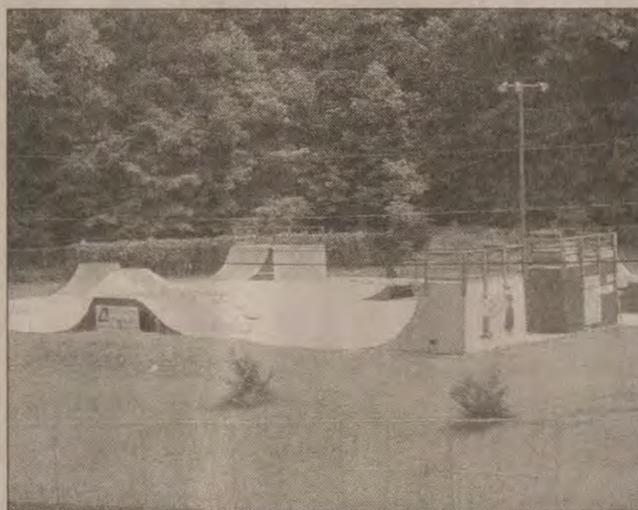

A stage in Pikeville's city park is often the focal point of many outdoor activities including musical performances from local country and bluegrass bands.

Seasonal workers prepare for the summer season at the Pikeville Pool, located near Pikeville High School. The pool can provide a refreshing break and some cool fun for visitors.

The Riverfill Cinema in downtown Pikeville houses 10 screens and is always showing the latest blockbusters. Complete with a full concession stand, the Riverfill is the perfect after-dinner option for the family.

For those with an extreme interest in skateboarding, Pikeville's Bob Amos Park offers a trendy skate park complete with a variety of props, loops and dips. Skateboard enthusiasts can use the park all day for a charge of only $5.

The Complete Golfer's Guide

The Big Sandy region has plenty to offer golfers, including 18-hole courses in Paintsville, Pikeville and Prestonsburg, as well as 9-hole courses in Prestonsburg and Allen. Stone Crest Golf Course, the area's newest course, offers unique play from its vantage point atop Maggie Mountain. The Paintsville Country Club Golf Course is the area's oldest course and features two blind drives over the Big Sandy River. Mountain Pub-Links, in Pike County, opened in 1992 on the site of a former farm and offers very challenging play. The region also offers 9-hole courses at Beaver Valley Golf Course in Allen and at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park.
